WOMAN HIT BY CAR DIES OF INJURIE

Mrs. Loyst Is Struck Down On Highway

DIES IN HOSPITAL

Driver of Car Charged With Criminal Negligence pending Inquest

Mrs. Florence E. Loyst, wife of Jay B. Loyst, was fatally injured at 8 p.m. Saturday when she was struck by an automobile in front of her home on the Provincial Highway, near the railway crossing at Sidney.

Mrs. Loyst and her son, Stewart, aged ten, were walking and had turned northward to enter the front yard of the home when a westbound automobile, driven by Harold Yateman, of Thurlow township, crashed into them. Mrs. Loyst was hurled violently to the pavement and one wheel of the car passed over her body. The son was also knocked down, but escaped with a bruised right knee and the loss of several teeth. Mrs. Loyst was rushed to the hospital, where it was found that she had sustained fractures of several ribs and that her right side and her lungs had been crushed. Despite heroic efforts on the part of physicians, Mrs. Loyst succumbed to her injuries at 4 p.m. Sunday.

Yateman, who reported the accident to the police, was arrested and subsequently admitted to bail in the sum of $4,000. He said that he was not driving fast and that he did not see Mrs. Loyst and her son until it was too late to avoid a collision. A charge of criminal negligence has been preferred against him by the Provincial police and this charge will remain in effect until the outcome of the coroner's inquest is made known. The inquest was begun at 10 a.m. Monday at Tickell and Sons undertaking parlors and was adjourned until Wednesday at 7 p.m. in the police court rooms.

appears, according to the inform- in possession of the police, that Loyst and her son were return- their home, known as the Wal- omestead, and had just reached a Mr. and Mrs. Helon drove a buggy and engaged Mrs. conversation, the group re- on the south side of the high as apparent that Mrs. Loyst been severely injured and as ckly as possible she was conveyed the hospital here where upon examination it was ascertained that in addition to fractured ribs and injuries to her lungs, Mrs. Loyst sustained other painful injuries. It was feared at the time the injuries were such that death would result and such proved to be the case.

Yateman in describing the accident to the police, insisted that he was not driving fast at the time and that he did not see the two until it was too late to stop the car. The car it may be stated was stopped a few feet from where Mrs. Loyst and her son were struck. As the affair happened outside of the city the Provincial police officers were notified and took charge of the case.

The victim of the unfortunate affair was 51 years of age and was born in Murray Township. She was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. James M. Rosbrough. For some years she had resided in this locality and was a lady highly esteemed by all who knew her. A husband and son survives and to them and other relatives will be extended the heartfelt sympathy of many.

THE INQUEST.

The body was removed from the hospital to Tickell & Sons undertaking establishment where at 10 o'clock on Monday morning an inquest was opened before Coroner Dr. Boyce. Mr. B. C. Donnan, acting County Attorney represented the own and Mr. C. Cameron was present in the interest of Harold Yateman.

The jury is composed of Messrs. Chas. Campbell, foreman, G. F. Ostrom, John Henderson, Jas. W. Bailey John B. Archibald, H. Ransom, J. E. Parks and H. W. Hanna.

Coroner Boyce briefly outlined to the jury the nature of the affair and the duty imposed upon the jurymen.

Jay B. Loyst testified he resided on the Trent Road in the 1st Concession of the township of Sidney. He viewed the body of deceased which was that of his wife, whose name was Florence E. Loyst. His home was adjoining the railway tracks which crosses the highway. Deceased was 51 years of age. Witness did not see the accident which occurred about 8 o'clock on Saturday evening.

Police Detective Trulash sworn testified he summoned the jury on Saturday evening at 8.15. Harold Yateman reported to the police the accident. The matter was then turned over to the Provincial Police as the accident occurred outside of the city. Witness knew nothing of the accident. Yateman reported the affair to Chief of Police Kidd, and later the Provincial officers carried on the investigation. Witness summoned the jury all of whom are qualified to act.

Mr. J. L. Tickell testified that the body of Mrs. Loyst was obtained from the hospital on Sunday afternoon by order of the property authorities. The body was that of Mrs. Loyst which the jury viewed.

The enquiry was then adjourned until Wednesday evening in the police court rooms at 7 o'clock.

At the conclusion of the preliminary enquiry the body was prepared for burial and later taken to deceased late home.

The funeral took place this afternoon the body being interred in the Trenton cemetery.

CASE LAID OVER

When Yateman appeared in Police Court this morning before Magistrate Masson, on a nominal charge of criminal negligence, the case was laid over until Friday next at 10 a.m.

While driving a Ford car Monday morning near Madoc, Mr. Munn and Mr. H. Armstrong both of this city residing on Donald St., were hurled over a ten foot embankment and both received serious injury, Mr. Munn, unfortunately had three or four ribs broken while Mr. Armstrong sustained a broken collar-bone. Belleville Beauties Lauded in Booklet

In the last edition of the booklet issued by the Government of Ontario, boosting Ontario as the Premier Province of Canada, and as the "Lakeland Playground", Belleville and the Bay of Quinte district have not been forgotten. One passage says:

> Returning to Lake Ontario from an exploration of Kawartha, the city of Belleville is the next objective, both as an important centre of population and as the gateway to the Quinte country. Tall spires in the distance above the tree-tops helps to locate this fine old county seat, its founders having chosen well its site, reads the article. Beautiful for situation, Belleville is not the least of the attractive cities of Canada that cover the continent from ocean to ocean. It is, moreover, one of the series of important lake ports, facing the Bay of Quinte, a waterway of magnificent sweep, its shores marked with many a reminder of the history of the past and of the United Empire Loyalists as the pathfinders to a new region. The Bay affords ideal conditions for all kinds of aquatic sports and water navigation, and presents a marine panorama of outstanding interest.

REV. KERR TALKS ON LLOYD GEORGE

Local Pastor Discusses Qualities of Great Britisher

With ropes about their necks Kiwanians Herb Fish and John J. B Flint, were initiated into the Belleville Club at luncheon today. When they were led to the Altar o ion Kiwanian E. D. O'Flynn, who presided today, explained the need qualities of the Kiwanians, which both newly initiated members replied suitably. Guests today were Mr. E. G. Cookhill of Sydney, N.S. who is motoring west to British Columbia with his wife; Dr. Harry W. Sharpe, Lindsay; J. L. Irwin and H. Wordsworth Pearson, both of Belleville, and Kiwanian Rev. M. Boyd of Kingston. Kiwanian "Herk" Aylesworth, "the man who sings to beat the band," rendered a solo in excellent voice.

Rev. A. S. Kerr, who leaves on Thursday for the "land of no prescriptions," (The British Isles) was speaker of the day on the subject "Life of Lloyd Lloyd."

The outstanding quality of Lloyd George, in the speaker's opinion, was his spirit of daring, and his determination to carry through his convictions despite opposition. Arduous industry, love of home, and a passion for simple things are natural and excellent qualities possessed by Lloyd George and King George in common Christianity, is described by the little brother of the poor,' as gold mine, never exhausted, but always yielding new treasures. Golf is his favorite outdoor sport.

During the war, Lloyd George made his greatest hit by reason of the services he rendered, and in 1908 as Chancellor of the Exchequer, his fearless criticisms embittered the electors of his own constituency so strongly against him that his effigy was burned. Election was won by Lloyd George by reason of his adherence to the principles of Gladstone, his support of Irish Home Rule and the reform of the Labor Laws.

In two or three generations, his real worth will be appreciated.

Kiwanian Boyd also spoke a few words of appreciation, and Kiwanian Bill Lattimer told of the excellent District Convention held at Peterboro Harold Holton and Jack McGie obliged with many songs and choruses, and the pep of the meeting was maintained sky high.

Bread and Butter For World's Largest Family

Dr. Barnardo's Homes are once again making their annual appeal for half-crowns in memory of the founder in connection with their anniversary, which will be celebrated on Saturday, 23rd June, at the model village for girls, Barkingside, Essex. H.R.H. Princess Beatrice will attend. The Duke of Somerset will preside.

The Barnardo Family is the largest in the world, 7,308 children (of whom 1,[illegible] are helpless babies and toddlers under 5). All these growing youngsters need food to turn them into A-1 citizens.

Since the Homes were founded 57 years ago, 96,0[illegible]8 children have "passed through", the majority taken from circumstances and surroundings which would have prevented them from growing up healthy profitable citizens of the empire.

At this moment 7,308 are undergoing the process of transformation.

Last year 306,475 half-crowns were collected, sent in by 48,476 friends from all over the empire.

There is no joy equal to the joy of giving, there is no satisfaction equal to the satisfaction of helping those who really need your help.

Cheques and orders payable "Dr. Barnardo's Homes Founder's Day Fund" and crossed, should be addressed to the Honorary Treasurer, Howard Williams, Esq., at Headquarters, 18-26 Stepney Causeway, London, E 1, England.

Man's Age of Strength.

It might be natural to suppose that with increasing age the muscles, which develop with constant use, would become stronger, but such is not the case.

It has been proved by experiment that the amount a man uses his muscles does not influence the increase and decline of strength.

These tests showed that where the average lifting power of a boy is 280 pounds, it should be increased by his twentieth year to 320 pounds. A maximum of 365 pounds, or thereabouts, should be attained by his thirtieth year, after which a decline in strength sets in. Between forty and fifty this decline is rapid.

Save Fuel in Cooking

The illustration shows an interesting test you should try in your own kitchen. It proves the superiority of good enameled ware for cooking purposes. Take an SMP Enameled Ware Sauce Pan, and a sauce pan of equal size made of aluminum, tin or other metal. Into each pour a quart of cold water. Set both sauce pans over the fire. The water in the SMP Enameled Ware Sauce Pan will be boiling merrily in about five minutes, while the water in the all-metal sauce pan will come to the boil in about eight minutes—three minutes longer. Save fuel in cooking. Use

MISSING MAN RETURNS.

Considerable excitement was caused on Sunday by the sudden disappearance of Mr. Sid Davis, an elderly man who was at Mr. Raymond Zufelts residence at Avondale, Sidney Township. It was feared that he had wondered away and had met with some mishaps but, fortunately, such was not the case as he returned home later in the evening, but was not able to state positively where he had been. During the day a searching party searched fields, etc., and also dragged the boy for some distance. The return of Mr. Davis naturally relieved the minds of relatives and friends.

CADETS AT CAMP.

The Belleville School Cadets under D. P. McManus left for Barriefield on Monday morning, leaving the C.N.R. station on the 8.10 train. There will be over 1000 cadets from Eastern Ontario at the Camp. Everything possible is being made to make it a success.

The camp will break Saturday, July 7. Cadet Major Chas. Tyres and Cadet Captain Dan McManus will have charge of the boys.

Mr. James Alexander, also left with the cadets, and will be assistant to Mr. "Chuck" Robertson, of Kingston, who will have charge of the Y.M.C.A. tent at the camp.

STRENGTH RETURNS TO E. S. JOHNSON

Dreco Makes Such Improvement in Mr. Johnston's Health That He Discards Cane. Is Better in Every Way After Five Years' Suffering

The experience of Mr. E. S. Johnston of 425 Spadina Ave., Toronto, Ont., is a typical example of the health-building qualities of Dreco, the famous herbal remedy.

"For five years I have suffered from arthritis," says Mr. Johnston. I had terrible pains in my hips and knees and my ankles were very swollen as were also my hands. My kidneys and liver were also in very bad condition and I often had sharp pains shooting across the small of my back. In fact every muscle was sore as the pains were so intense. The least exertion caused shortness of breath. I could scarcely walk without the aid of a cane and to get up and down stairs was almost impossible.

I had tried almost every kind of medicine but seemingly could not build my system up at all. I was discouraged and had lost faith in every kind of medicine. My wife, however, had read of the wonderful benefit many people were receiving from Dreco, so I decided I had better give it a trial. And truly, in just five weeks time I have improved 100%

"My pains are not so severe and the swelling in my hands and ankles is nearly all gone. I now enjoy my food and fell the benefit of the nourishment I am now deriving from it. I rest better and can go about without a cane. Dreco is the first remedy remedy ever to go to the root of my troubles. My wife also elated over my experience with Dreco thus far and we can heartily recommend it."

Dreco, by toning and regulating the organs, puts them in proper working order and a general improvement in health results. Dreco contains no mercury, potash or habit forming drugs but is prepared from roots, herbs, bark and leaves of established medicinal value.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Belleville by The Belleville Pharmacy, and is Sold by a Good Druggist everywhere.

HOW TO SLEEP 3-IN-A-BED

YES, it CAN be done—but not like this.

The trouble is, most people go to bed with "something" on the mind—or ON THE STOMACH!

The answer is, no matter what the day has brought forth to upset your mind and digestive organs, take Beecham's Pills when you retire.

Though in no sense a "sleeping potion," this 80-years-famous household medicine so harmonizes the system that you can sleep in quiet and perfect rest, even in two feet of bed space.

Beecham's Pills are as efficient and harmless for children as for adults—sweetening the stomach, invigorating digestion and stirring liver and bowels to natural activity.

EARLE & COOK CO.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

I am taking it for granted that this twentieth century you believe in a vacation.

However I have as much right to tell you how to take it as I have to tell you how to bring up your children.

You know by this time that children are not all alike. With one you can reason, explain, use moral suasion and so forth and you get results. This is the ideal way to correct. With another youngster moral suasion is an unknown phrase, the strap or the stick being the only language he understands.

And so with a vacation for you.

The things you wish to do, the place to which you wish to go, the time of year at which you wish to go, are all determining factors in the real benefits of the vacation.

Do you notice how I use the word "wish" so often. That's just the point. To do what you wish to do once a year at least.

However, if you can choose your own time the latter end of July, is very suitable from the health standpoint. If you take it earlier, you have to come back to town the hottest period of the year. Taking it later you are often too fagged by the heat of the summer weather to enjoy your holiday.

Where to go? Mountains, seaside, country. You know best. I'm speaking about a person in normal health.

Many people criticize the younger people because they come back from their vacation more tired than before they departed.

However, there is just this point to remember. They have done the things they "wished" to do. And that should be the "ideal" of a vacation.

The whole secret is to have a real change, a re-creation of one's self. If you take your business or work along with you, you are only cheating yourself.

I often think that the men and women would be wise to copy the example of the youngsters.

What it that?

Just a real outdoor life—swimming, fishing, eating, sleeping, and with the least amount of clothing on that is allowed in the neighborhood.

Don't worry about the big meals you eat as long as you are getting outdoor exercise.

Normal vision from glasses

But the principal object of an optometrical examination is to give comfortable vision.

If you suspect that you have some eye defect you are not fair to yourself in not having your eyes attended to.

To submit to an examination here is to be sure of the condition of your eyes, and of getting the relief which this condition demands.

WOMEN FROM FORTY TO FIFTY

Will Be Interested in Mrs. Thompson's Recoveryby Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Winnipeg, Man.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me good in every way. I was very weak and run-down and had certain troubles that women of my age are likely to have. I did not like to go to the doctor so I took the Vegetable Compound and am still taking it right along. I recommend it to my friends and to any one I know who is not feeling well."—Mrs. THOMPSON, 308 Lizzie St., Winnipeg, Man.

When women who are between the ages of forty-five and fifty-five are beset with such annoying symptoms as nervousness, irritability, melancholia and heat flashes, which produce headaches, dizziness, or a sense of suffocation, they should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is especially adapted to help women through this crisis. It is prepared from roots and herbs and contains no harmful drugs or narcotics.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from roots and herbs, has for forty years proved its value in such cases. Women everywhere bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Women who suffer should write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Cobourg, Ontario, for a free copy of Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women."

THE FRENCH RUHR POLICY

Unravelling of the German reparations tangle appears discouragingly remote—at first the deadlock lay between Germany and the victorious allies—to-day there is a wide divergence of opinion on the part of England and France on the one hand and between France and Belgium on the other.

France is tired of Germany's dilatory and tantalizing tactics. She has reason to be tired of such tactics; yet in France's determined stand there appears unmistakable evidence of egoism. French statesmen and diplomats appear to have forgotten for the moment the important part played by the British Empire in the World War. Without the armies, the wealth and the generalship of Britain, France would have been hopelessly crushed under the iron-shod heel of the conqueror. The nation to-day owes her very existence to Britain.

To be sure, she is vitally concerned because of the juxtaposition of the two countries in Europe, but she should not repulse the proffers of aid and advice from the great power to whom she owes so much. The reparations problem can never be solved until the allies, especially England, France and Belgium reach a common basis of agreement. In the matter of allied settlement proposals, England is in a receptive mood; but France refuses to entertain indemnity pledges which really consist of mortgages on German industry until the obstacles the German government has placed in the way of German industry are removed. In other words, France demands that Germany's passive resistance in the Ruhr be discontinued.

More conciliatory methods may advance the immediate cause of France. Full collaboration with Britain in the preparation of proposals would give greater force to overtures made to the German Government and would undoubtedly hasten the day when Germany shall be influenced to use the power of her government to put an end to strikes and other industrial disturbances which the government has hitherto ordered or encouraged. This act on the part of Germany would do more than anything else could do to demonstrate her good faith. When this move is made it will mark the "beginning of the end" of the reparations impasse. But Germany's future activity in the matter hinges upon France's new policy with regard to the occupation of the Ruhr.

CANADA'S OPPORTUNITY

Industrial progress and development of natural resources are, of course, nationally synchronous progress, in a national sense. Predicates development. Yet this progress which is so greatly desired is born of the travail of an appalling complication of correlated and interdependent movements. While this fact is perhaps not apparent to the average person, knowledge of it is the bugbear of capitalists and commercial technicians.

The variety of factors which enter into industrial progress create wide-spread ramifications; there are the matters of wage adjustments, cost curves, production and market fluctuations and a myriad of other problems of major or minor importance.

Development of industries in the United States is in a well advanced stage, when comparison to the sit- [illegible] some of which have shaken the nation to its foundations.

Wage problems have proved the most potent disturbing influences—strikes, the great modern weapon of the union employe—have been frequent and there is no gainsaying the fact that the principles upon which most strike movements are premised are sound.

An economic scheme, however, which, breeds sporadical idleness and non-production is abortive, regardless of the fact that such periods of idleness and non-production, in isolated instances, frequently prove to be constuctive steps.

This industrial stagnation is, of course, due to voluntary idleness—and often suffering—on the part of the workers and enforced idleness on the part of the operators. Unfortunately, the chiefest inconvenience is experienced by the public.

There comes a time, however, perilously near in the States, when the strike or walkout policy becomes a menace—a Frankenstein capable of destroying the entire economic structure of a nation. Then adherence to union principles has become a fetish, capital has assumed a reciprocal attitude and fires of class hatred burn fiercely. The massacre at Herrin, Ill., in June, 1922, in which 31 non-union miners were killed is an incident illustrative of the consequences of such a condition.

Industrial discord has reared its ugly head at Sydney, Nova Scotia. Steelworkers there are demonstrating their dissatisfaction in an aggressive manner and it has been necessary to introduce troops to maintain order. The manner in which the situation is handled is of vital importance to Canadian industry. Equable adjustments and definite and final solution of the existing problems are imperative.

Canada should establish a precedent or, better, a system by which she may avoid the difficulties which have harassed industry in the States. Judicious treatment of impasses between capital and labor when the struggle is in its incipient stage may avert greater difficulties later. Canada has opportunity to study the experiences of the United States and Great Britain and should profit by them.

By The Side Of The Road

Mr. Sailendra Nath Banerji, had the temerity to assert that boys are more important than girls in India in talking to the delegates at the Ontario School for the Deaf. He shocked the women delegates, but then India is a long way from here and they may be much wiser than we are.

On the other hand they encourage co-education in Japan, according to Mr. U. Kawanoto, which indicates that the Land of Cherry Blossoms has a fairly aggressive womanhood.

If persons almost completely deaf hear their first sounds over the radio, they are likely to be disappointed. The average radio equipment is still far enough from perfection to recall the squeaky phonograph of a few years ago.

"Work to be stopped", says a heading in a Toronto paper. Hurray! We've been hoping for that right along. Nothing to do till tomorrow.

A group of boys over Owen Sound way were detected in the act of throwing money into a well. Evidently they desired to pool their resources.

This isn't a very good one, but did it ever occur to anybody that somebody took the "rur" (Ruhr) out of Mr. Drury?

In Buffalo the other day a young woman named Miss Edna Lord became the bride of Thomas A. Good—Good Lord!

By the way, Mr. Parliament was inadvertently referred to as a U.F. D. candidate in The Intelligencer columns Friday. We apologize. It is difficult to distinguish a U.F.O. from a Liberal these days, you know.

One divorce in every seven marriages is the record of Paris. Versailles is next in order with one divorce in eleven marriages. Other French cities are slightly behind. A few years ago France was notorious for the loose manner in which the marriage knot was frequently tied. The French divorce statistics used to read like a ghastly joke.

We don't read much about them now. It is not that they have got any better, but simply that we have get worse. Figures that used to stagger, hardly interest us any more.

Instead of our papers making a front page story of the fact that Paris has one divorce for every seven marriages, the Paris papers now feature the fact that Chicago has one divorce for every five. The joke is now on us, so to speak.

BOLSHEVIKS AMONG SQUIRRELS

(Toronto Saturday Night)

After witnessing the slaughter of the innocent by the pesky red squirrels, I have come to the conclusion that they should be exterminated. From personal observation I may say that these little beasts do not confine their attacks on bird life to the daylight hours, but plunder the nests at night, killing the young, eating the eggs, and turning the nests inside out.

In sections of the city where red squirrels are plentiful it is to be observed that there are few birds' nests. The reasons are obvious. Their nests and their contents in the brooding season are easy prey, and the birds soon learn to avoid such districts.

So far as I am aware the grey and black squirrels have a clean bill of health in respect to plundering birds' nests, but the reds are villains and should in the interests of bird life be killed on sight.

THAT OLD TRADITION

Uncle Sam may be right in breaking the customs seals on a British liner in a search for contraband, but what's to become of the old tradition that the ship of a foreign country in any port is a part of the territory of that country and immune from search, except in case of war. However, the incident furnishes an opportunity for the diplomats to demonstrate their skill on a really delicate question.

This is to people who are missing benefits which millions now enjoy.

There is a new way of teeth cleaning. It is used by careful people of some 50 nations, largely by dental advice.

It means whiter, prettier teeth, better tooth protection. It means fighting the teeth's enemies more effectively.

Your dealer will give you a ten-day test. Go ask him for it. Test this new method now.

Don't leave that film

You can feel on your teeth a viscous film. It clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays. The tooth brush, used in old ways, has left much of it intact. That's why so many had dingy teeth, decay and other troubles.

Food stains, etc., discolor film. Then it forms cloudy coats. Tartar is based on film. That is why teeth lose luster.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acids. It holds the acids in contact with the teeth to cause decay. That was almost universal.

Germs breed by millions in film. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. And that became alarmingly common.

Their greatest enemy

Film was the teeth's chief enemy. Very few escaped its harm. So dental science long sought ways to fight it. Eventually two ways were found. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved these methods effective. Then a new-type tooth paste was perfected to apply them twice a day. That tooth paste is called Pepsodent. Now it has come into world-wide use, largely by dental advice.

New in several ways

Pepsodent brings other new effects which research proves essential. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay.

It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

To millions of homes these new effects are bringing a new dental era—a new conception of what clean teeth mean.

The New-Day Dentifrice

Far prettier teeth
You see them everywhere

Look about you. Note how teeth now glisten—teeth which once were dim. Mark how much those glistening teeth aid to beauty and to charm.

Those whiter teeth come from fighting film. And they mean safer teeth as well. This delightful test will show you how to get them.

Present the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear. Watch the other good effects.

One week will bring you new conceptions of what clean teeth mean. Cut out coupon now.

Avoid Harmful Grit

Pepsodent curdles the film and removes it without harmful scouring. Its polishing agent is far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

The Duty of Fire Prevention

Prevent Forest Fires

Carelessness with cigarette butts, cigar ends, matches, pipe ashes, camp fires, fly smudges, railway locomotives, slash-burning operations—human carelessness of some kind accounts for over 95% of the forest fires in Ontario.

It is impossible to say how many fires along railway lines are not due to engine sparks, but to the thoughtless smoker tossing away his cigarette or cigar butt. However, there is no doubt a fair number of forest fires originate in this way, and such are preventable. Each individual should realize his personal responsibility to be careful with fire in any form in northern Ontario.

Save Ontario's Forests

The Ontario fire ranger is at the mercy of all types of carelessness, and cannot prevent fires starting, as a rule. He can only attempt to limit the consequences. He is entitled to your help and co-operation by being careful with fire.

RAILROADERS CINCH FIRST HALF BY WIN AT PETERBORO

Ready For Dempsey-Gibbons Fight

THRONGS AT SCENE AWAIT OPENING OF GREAT RING BATTLE AT SHELBY

All Financial Difficulties Surmounted and Original Program is Assured

Shelby, July 3.—The final $100,000 of the $300,000 Dempsey guarantee has been assured and the big fight will be staged to-morrow, according to schedule.

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

Shelby, Mont., July 3.—(United Press).—In a shiny new pine arena, nestling down in a cup of rolling hills, in this little but hustling cow-oil city, Jack Dempsey and Tommy Gibbons are scheduled to meet under the afternoon sun to-morrow, for the world's heavyweight championship.

The bout is scheduled for 15 rounds to a decision. James Dougherty of Philadelphia, who was favored by Dempsey and Jack Kearns, his manager, will be the third man in the ring.

The arena, which is about half the size of the Rickard stadium in Jersey City, was built at a cost of $75,000 to seat 40,000 spectators. The seats are selling at from $20 to $50. The seats are very narrow and it is going to be a job sitting on them many hours, especially if a hot Montana sun is on the job and the sun does get hot out here—make no mistake about that.

How They Size Up

Dempsey		Gibbons
6 ft. 1 in.	height	6 ft. ¾ in.
188 pounds	weight (normal)	184 pounds
73 in.	reach	74 in.
17 in.	neck	17 in.
41 in.	chest (normal)	41 in.
44 in.	chest (expanded)	44½ in.
32½ in.	waist	35 in.
15 in.	biceps	14 in.
12¼ in.	forearm	12½ in.
8¼ in.	wrist	9 in.
22 in.	thigh	22½ in.
15 in.	calf	14½ in.

Dempsey 's guaranteed $300,000 for his efforts, and in addition, $10,000 for training expenses. And Kearns, Dempsey's manager, got $200,000 of the amount when June was half-gone, even if he did come close to wrecking the show to get it. Gibbons is gambling. He has agreed to take 50 per cent of the receipts after Dempsey's guarantee is taken out. Perhaps Tommy will owe himself money after the fight is over, for $300,000 looks like a big bunch of money even out here, where money doesn't go very far anyhow.

Dempsey says he expects to enter the ring at 190 pounds and Gibbons will probably be about 10 pounds lighter. Jack Kearns and Jerry Lavatas, Dempsey's trainer, will head the force in Dempsey's corner. Eddie Kane, Gibbons' manager, will be in Gibbons' corner, with a corps of assistants.

It has been announced that the Dempsey-Gibbons fight would be staged at 3 p. m., Rocky Mountain time, which is 4 p.m. central standard; 5 6. m. eastern standard, and 6 p.m. daylight savings time on the Atlantic coast. On the Pacific coast this will be 2 p.m. standard.

There are only three hotels in Shelby, but tents have been put up all over the town and the Great Northern Railroad has put in force four miles of new sidetracks, where it has accommodations to park thirty special trains, where customers are expected to eat and sleep.

Of course refreshment stands of all kinds have appeared all over town and outside of the Pullman customers most of the eating will be of the hot dog variety.

The county has also provided immense parking spaces for autos and plenty of reservations for parties who desire to camp and these spaces have been filling up the last few days.

Cobourg's Victory Over Kingston Clears Way for Belleville's Preliminary Victory

Belleville Grand Trunks are now undisputed champions of the first half of the C. O. B. L. schedule by virtue of their win over Peterboro at Riverside park last Saturday afternoon in a hard-fought battle by the score of 5 to 4. Cobourg aided the Trunks materially when they trimmed Kingston and thus prevented a possible chance of a tie-up.

Saturday's game was a nip-and tuck affair all the way, with honours fairly even ecept in the hitting department, where Belleville led with a total of eleven safe bingles while Peterboro managed to grab but five safe blows from the Belleville hurlers delivery.

Manager Gerow elected to start Jack Williams on the mound in view of the fact that Peterboro does not thrive on south-paw twirling. "Lefty" pitched nice ball until the fifth when he sent out relief signals after walking two men when Jack Oulette was rushed to the rescue. Williams struck out two and allowed four hits during the four innings in which he occupied the hillock. Williams could not seem to groove the ball, all of his pitches were a trifle high, consequently Walter Gerow sent in Oulette who kept the situation well in hand during the remaining five innings.

With two on bases and nobody out Oulette the lanky speed-ball artist was in a serious predicament. Before the third man was out the Petes had shoved three runs across without having secured a hit. An infield sacrifice hit, a passed ball and a sacrifice fly gave the lift-lockers their three digits and thus put themselves one run in the lead. They were indeed in jubilant mood, but Oulette allowed but one scratch hit during the rest of the game.

Heckman pitched a nice game and pulled himself from several tight holes with two and three Belleville runners on the paths.

Peterboro had three errors and all of them were rather costly. In the fifth, when Wolfe fumbled Harry Mills' line drive and hesitated a moment, Brownscombe and Meagher scored. Again in the seventh, Harry Mills singled to right. Collins hastily threw the sphere to Helson at third in hopes of catching Weir who was tearing down between second and third. The throw was wild and Weir galloped home with the equalizer.

In the eighth, with two down, Ross grounded to Johnston and "Shiner" fumbled, and Wicky was safe. Then Wicky decided to steal second, and crossed the plate on Meagher's pretty single.

Belleville's two errors were, however, not quite so costly, although Jack Oulette's wild pitch meant one run.

The game was featured by several nice catches on the part of outfielders. When Brownscombe pulled down Ansaldo's drive in the eighth inning it was a life-saver. With Collins on base at the time, it would easily have meant two runs had the clout escaped "Brownie's" outstretched glove. It was a wonderful catch and Harry was applauded by both Peterboro and Belleville fans.

In the matter of strike-outs, honors were the same. Williams whiffed two, Oulette seven and Heckman nine. Jack K. Williams and Allan Meagher gathered three hits apiece and were both going great guns in the field. Harry Mills got two hits and both were mighty smashes. His drive to Wolfe in the fifth was a sizzler and the little blonde was forced to drop it. Harry made some wonderful stops on first base of wild throws. His attempt to cut Ansaldo at the plate in the fifth was the logical play.

Stan. Hagerman caught a nice game and held both Oulette and Williams up in fine style. Wicky Ross made a couple of pretty catches out in centre garden. Babe Casey tried hard to cut Commoli at the plate in the fifth, but his throw fell a trifle short. Vern. Weir had a good day in short and cut off a number of runners at the keystone sack.

Dick Butler was none too sure of himself on balls and strikes, while Cy Dell of Oshawa on the bases was, in our opinion, fairly good. Jakie Solomon was on deck in all his usual glory. The "old stuff" of runners not touching the bags, failed to work with the "umps."

Umpire Dell received the "merry razz" when in the seventh, with Meagher on first, Weir hit to shortstop, who forced Meagher at second. Shiner Johnston relayed the sphere to Commoli at first in an attempt to complete a double play, but Dell called Weir safe. The crowd thought otherwise and Dell received a rough passage.

With the first half tucked under our belts, we are now sure of figuring in the play-off, but wouldn't it be grand and glorious to cop both of those schedules. And that's what we're going to do, so Jake Solomon may as well relinquish all hopes of winning the second. Jake is very optimistic regarding the Petes' chances but we figure they are pretty slim.

Peeny Mills was on the bench in Peterboro, lending a helping hand here, there and everywhere. He may possibly be able to get back in the game towards the middle of the second schedule.

KINGSTON LOSES TO COBOURG, 12-6

Contest Resolves Self Into Slugging Tournament

Cobourg, July 3.—Cobourg defeated Kingston here Saturday at C.O.B.L. fixture by a score of 12-6. To-days' win from Kingston and Belleville's win from Peterboro gives the Bay of Quinte boys the championship of the first half of the schedule. Both teams used two pitchers, Jahren and Derry doing mound duty for the homestead and Gallagher and Moore for the visitors. It was a very heavy hitting affair fifteen for Cobourg and ten safeties for Kingston. Each team had four errors. Higginbotham's stab of Batstone's drive was a wonderful piece of work and robbed the Kingston of a home run. Daley got a home run on a mighty clout to right field. Ken Colling, of Belleville, and J. S. Theroux umpired. The former was threatened with a dip in the lake when he called Turpin out at third. Cobourg opened the second schedule at Peterboro on Monday.

All this talk of art, artists and their comparative values may seem beside the point. But I emphasize it because there has been so much bunk passed out about the remuneration of screen "art" and the high salaries paid to screen "artists." And the astonished public, in moments of skepticism, fails to discover either art or artists, and wonders what in Sam Hill such big salaries are paid for, anyway. The movie stars aren't commercial or financial geniuses, they don't build great industries that give employment to thousands, they don't contribute anything of much lasting value.

The answer is that the majority of them are paid for looking pretty. And when they no longer look pretty or, which more frequently happens, the public gets tired of the same pretty face doing the same stupid things, they are tossed out, out into the night. The situation reminds me of the story of the man who tried to divorce his wife because he got weary of looking at her peaceful face. It's only reasonable to expect a little variety.

BODY IS RECOVERED

Gravelbourg, Sask., June 30.—The body of Rene Gareau, drowned a short distance south of here, came to the surface 400 feet from where the man is supposed to have gone down with his horse.

Green Corn Au Gratin

Score and scrape pulp from 6 ears of corn; there should be 2 cups. Cook in 3 tablespoons butter, ½ tablespoon finely chopped onion, 1 finely chopped green pepper (discarding seeds and veins) five minutes without browning. Add 3 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon sugar, and slowly 2 cups rich milk, while stirring constantly. Add corn pulp and 2 beaten eggs; turn mixture into buttered baking dish, cover with buttered crumbs and bake in a moderate oven until mixture is firm and crumbs are browned.

MISS ORIOLE'S CONCERT.

Miss Oriole "sang like a bird,"
Such notes no one ever had heard;
Whenever she trilled
With envy she filled
Blanche B. Jay, whose voice was absurd.

The birds all went to Miss Eleanor Oriole's concert. Her voice was the talk of the woods. Every one predicted a great future for her. After a year of study abroad she would surely take the bird kingdom by storm.

"Those clear, high notes!" sighed Florence Robin. "What wouldn't I give to be able to sing like that?"

Blanche B. Jay said nothing. But every one knew how she envied Miss Oriole's wonderful voice. Blanche couldn't even carry a tune. Miss Oriole looked lovely in her vivid orange and black evening grown. The concert was about half over when, to all the bird's surprise, Dr. Owl strolled in. Dr. Owl was always late. Miss Oriole felt very honored to have him there. He was an authority on music.

"Your voice is really good, my dear," said Dr. Owl to Miss Oriole after the performance. Blanche B. Jay sniffed in disgust. It was too much for Eleanor to have all the advantages. Blanche was burning with jealousy. She had never been out of her own home town. Eleanor went south every winter with her parents.

Eleanor's happy face suddenly clouded over. "Oh, Dr. Owl," she cried, "I cannot afford to go abroad for study. I've always heard those foreign masters were terribly high priced. You know we are poor". Blanche smiled for the first time during the evening. The Jays were the richest family in the woods. Blanche was happy to think that she had something Eleanor had not. With all her talents Eleanor could not get far without money. Blanche flew off to talk to the other girls.

After all, a beautiful voice wasn't everything. She would get her father to let her travel. Wouldn't Eleanor be jealous if she should go abroad? She decided she would go.

"Oh, my dear Miss Oriole, you must not give up your musical education with a voice like that," Dr. Owl insisted. "I shall see what I can do. Perhaps I can borrow the money for you."

"Father," Blanche asked the next morning at breakfast. "I would like to go abroad."

"Impossible daughter," Mr. Byron B. Jay shook his head. "I can't afford it just now. I just made a loan to Dr. Owl to educate a musical friend of his."

PATRICIA BRENT SPINSTER

ANONYMOUS

It was a few minutes to one as he asked for Lord Peter Bowen at the enquiry-office of the Quadrant. Two minutes later Peel descended in the lift to inform him that his Lordship had not yet returned to lunch. Was Mr. Trigged expected?

"Well, no," confessed Mr. Trigg, looking at Peel a little uncertainly. "'E wasn't expecting me; but 'e asked me the other night if I'd call in when I was passing, and as I was passing I called in see?"

For a moment Peel seemed to hesitate.

"His Lordship has a luncheon engagement, sir," he said, "but he could no doubt see you for two or three minutes if he asked you to call. Perhaps you will step this way."

Before Mr. Triggs had a chance of doing as was suggested, Peel had turned aside.

"No, my lady, his Lordship is not in yet; but he will not be more than a minute or two. This gentleman," he looked at the card, "Mr. Triggs, is ——"

Mr. Triggs looked at the exquisite little vision before him in surprise and admiration. He took the proffered hand as if it had been a piece of priceless porcelain.

"I'm Lord Peter's sister, you know. I've heard all about you from Patricia. Do come up and let us have a chat before my brother comes."

Mr. Triggs followed Lady Tanagra into the lift, too surprised and bewildered to make any response of her greeting. As the lift slid upwards he mopped his brow vigorously with his handkerchief.

"I just been to see 'er," he said.

"Who, Patricia?" asked Lady Tanagra.

Mr. Triggs nodded, and there was a look in his eyes which implied that he was not at all satisfied with what he had seen.

"Quarrelled, 'aven't they?" he asked.

"Well," began Lady Tanagra, not quite knowing how much Mr. Triggs actually knew of the circumstances of the case.

"Said she'd broken it off. I gave her a talking to, I did. She'll never get another young chap like 'im."

"Did you tell her so?" asked Lady Tanagra.

"Tell her so, I should think I did!" said Mr. Triggs, "and more than once too."

"Oh, you foolish, foolish man!" cried Lady Tanagra, wringing her hands in mock despair. A moment afterwards she burst out laughing at the comical look of dismay on Mr. Triggs's face.

"What 'ave I done?" he cried in genuine alarm.

"Why, don't you see that you have implied that all the luck is on her side, and that will make her simply furious?"

"But—but——" began Mr. Triggs helplessly, looking very much like a scolded child.

"Now sit down," ordered Lady Tanagra with an irresistible smile, "and I'll tell you. My brother wants to marry Patricia, and Patricia, for some reson best known to herself, says that it can't be done. Now I'm sure that she is fond of Peter; but he has been so impetuous that he has rather taken her breath away. I've known him like it before," said Lady Tanagra plaintively.

"But 'e's an awfully lucky fellow if 'e gets 'er," broke in Mr. Triggs, as is feeling that something were required of him.

"Why, of course he is," said Lady Tanagra. "Now will you help us, Mr. Triggs?"

Lady Tanagra looked at him with an expression that would have extracted a promise of help from St. Anthony himself.

"Of course I will, me dear, I—I beg your pardon," stuttered Mr. Triggs.

"Never mind, let it stand at that," said Lady Tanagra gaily. "I'm sure we're going to be friends, Mr. Triggs.

"Knew it the moment I set eyes on you," said Mr. Triggs with conviction.

"Well, we've got to arrange this affair for these young people," said Lady Tanagra with a wise air. "First of all we've got to prove to Patricia that she is really in love with Peter. If she's not in love with him, we've got to make her in love with him. Do you understand?"

Mr. Triggs nodded his head with an air that clearly said he was far from understanding.

"Well, now," said Lady Tanagra. "Patricia knows only three people that know Peter. There is you, Godfrey Elton, and myself. Now if she's in love with him she will want to hear about him, and—"

Five U. S. Sailors Scalded to Death

Newport, R.I., July 3.—Five men lost their lives from steam, boiling water and a flare back from the oil furnace in fire room No. 2 of the destroyer Williamson, off this port. Three others are in the naval hospital here severely scalded, burned and otherwise injured.

How any member of the crew of this fire room came out alive is a mystery. Four of them did and one was able to walk to the naval hospital.

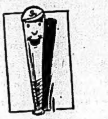
HOW BATS ARE MADE



It's "Batter up" and "Batter out!"
It's bats this story tells about.
Just read and you will see
How baseball bats have come to be.

That bat which you are so proud of took a great deal of trouble and labor to make. Before it ever thought of being a bat, it was part of an ash tree and might have grown in one of twenty different states.

Finding good, straight-grained ash to make baseball bats is a problem nowadays, because ash is also used for wheel spokes, and there is a limited supply. The best ash for making baseball bats is what is called "second growth white ash." This second growth ash is the part of the tree which grows after a tree has first been cut down. Second growth is tougher and straighter grained than the virgin ash.

Logging the trees to a lumber mill after they are cut is the first thing which must be done to make your baseball bat. At the lumber mill the tree is barked, sawed, and cut into handy lengths. Buyers from the great sporting goods manufacturers inspect this wood at the lumber mills, buy up a lot of it, and have it sent to their factories.

The bat is then finished off, the ends being smoothed up and trimmed Next, it is oiled and waxed. Then a coat of a special sort of shellac is put on it and set on fire. This gives the finished product the nice, burnt, smooth finish.

OH, THE CRUEL THING!

"Hello! Fishing?"

"No, you half-wit, I'm drowning baby worms."

RIGHT, ACCORDING TO WEBSTER

Bottom—"How about 'fortnight?"

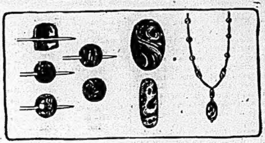
Correct this sentence: "The girls decided to do without new hats in order that Mother might have a new suit this time."

Summertime Jewelry Making

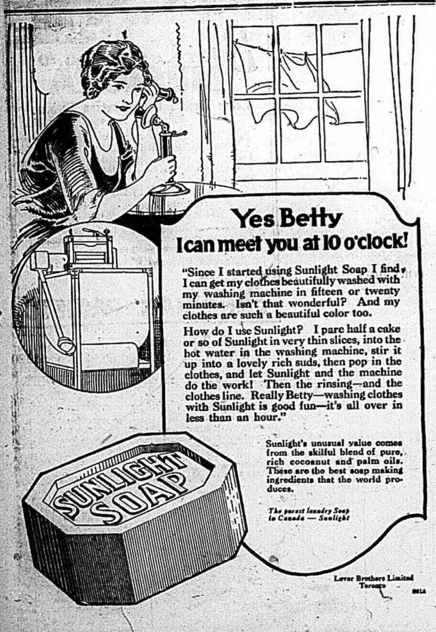


A necklace to match every dress, rings enough to overflow your jewel box, ornaments in just the color and shape you need to give a stylish touch to your new hat, pins for your collars, and even tinkling bracelets to slip on your arm—it seems like a fairy god-mother's promise to a fairy tale princess, but there is no magic about it—you can have all these things, and the added fun of making them yourself, if you put your clever fingers and enthusiasm to work.

If you have never used sealing wax except to seal letters, perhaps the necklace of round beads will be the best thing to start on. To make a bead, cut off ½ inch of wax from the stick of the color you wish. Heat a steel knitting needle and press it down into the wax. Let this cool, then hold it over a flame and revolve it slowly until the piece of wax rounds into the shape of a bead. Dip it in water to cool and wipe it thoroughly.

To decorate the bead, heat the tip of a stick of wax of a contrasting color and dot the bead here and there. Twist it over the flame until the wax melts and the colors blend. To remove the bead, cool it in water, wipe, and then heat, the needle on both sides of the bead. Slip the bead back and forth a few times and then off the needle.

Make about six or eight beads and string them on a narrow ribbon or cord, about three inches apart. Finish the end with a pendant which you can make by shaping a bead a little larger than the others and, before the needle is removed and it is still soft, pressing it flat against a piece of glass. To make oblong or oval beads start with a longer piece of wax and press the needle in lengthwise.



Yes Betty
I can meet you at 10 o'clock!

"Since I started using Sunlight Soap I find I can get my clothes beautifully washed with my washing machine in fifteen or twenty minutes. Isn't that wonderful? And my clothes are such a beautiful color too.

How do I use Sunlight? I pare half a cake or so of Sunlight in very thin slices, into the hot water in the washing machine, stir it up into a lovely rich suds, then pop in the clothes, and let Sunlight and the machine do the work! Then the rinsing—and the clothes line. Really Betty—washing clothes with Sunlight is good fun—it's all over in less than an hour."

Sunlight's unusual value comes from the skilful blend of pure, rich coconut and palm oils. These are the best soap making ingredients that the world produces.

TYPES OF CUSTOMERS.

Here Are Nine of Them for Your Consideration.

1. The Good natured Customer—He smiles at your efforts and laughs at your work. Smile with him and laugh at your own expense. It helps the sale.

2. The Doubting Customer—the one who questions and doubts every statement you make. Printed facts and figures go a long way toward convincing this skeptic.

3. The Disputive Customer—Welcomes a dispute so he can prove his knowledge of things. A mild form of combat pleases him. Use care not to overstep the mark.

4. The Taciturn Customer—One of the hardest types to handle. You have no way of telling by word of mouth if you have succeeded in arousing interest. Watch the eye of this person and be less talkative than with the usual type.

5. The Technical Customer—Usually a professional man. To say you "guess" or "think" spells ruin when making your plea here. You must know to be sure with this kind.

6. The Impolite Customer—Rarely, if ever, encountered by a polite salesman.

7. The Price Customer—The person who buys price first and article afterward. This type is easily sold by asking him to recall some particular purchase where price was the only factor. Call attention to the well known fact that "the memory of quality lingers long after price has been forgotten."

8. The Comparative Customer—Compare article with article is the maxim of this type. When you note the comparative prospect at work use the same tool. Compare your goods with the other fellow's just as this prospect does and likes to be done by.

9. The Customer Who Cannot Say "Yes"—To this type you must act as both salesman and buyer. As soon as you observe sufficient interest in your article is aroused, close the sale quickly.—Paper Wads.

Sounds That Mock.

Standing in the famous Whispering Gallery of St. Paul's Cathedral you can make every sound you utter plainly audible to a friend on the far side, even though you speak in tones so low that he would find it difficult to catch what you were saying a couple of yards away in the open.

At Girgenti, in Sicily, is an even more wonderful echo. There a whisper at the western end of the cathedral can be heard 100 yards away in the choir stalls.

At Pisa there is an echo that takes no notice of two sung notes, but if three are uttered they are flung from one stone to another with ever-increasing strength, until after a few seconds it seems as if some mighty choir were singing.

In Bavaria there is an echo which may terrify those who hear it for the first time. If a shout is sent up it is heard echoing from crag to crag until it dies away in the distance. For some seconds all is still; then, faint and far away, a sound is heard which grows rapidly louder until it bursts overhead with a crash like the firing of a great gun.

Sounds, like light, can be reflected by surfaces which they strike aslant. But it is curious to notice how often unwanted echoes occur in great buildings that have been erected for special purposes. In the Albert Hall concerts were at first impossible, for sounds rebounded from the walls and met those that were leaving the platform. It was not until wire netting was used to break the sound waves that things improved.

In London's new County Hall the echoes are so bad that it difficult to hear words spoken only a few yards away.

The Elusive "Amparo."

Use of the "amparo" as a legal recourse in Mexico is to be restricted in a bill which the Government intends to present to Congress. Abuse of the measure is the reason. President Obregon recently declared that in many instances persons arrested have already provided themselves with "amparo," which secures their immediate release without bail.

The "amparo" is one of the most generally used and at the same time the most complex procedure to be found in Mexican courts. It is a sort of injunction and writ of habeas corpus combined, and is employed either to restrain a court from acting or to secure the release of a prisoner from custody. Attorneys here admit that an exact definition of the word is impossible, and point to the fact that books have been written about it, with its specific meaning and origin still obscure.—New York Tribune.

Carving on Lebanon.

On the face of a cliff in the Lebanon hills Rameses II., king of Egypt, well over 3,000 years ago ordered his stone carvers to inscribe a tablet setting forth his conquest of the land. The figures of the ancient Egyptian ruler and his men still are visible. A few feet away one may see, carved in the same rock by a British stone cutter, a record of the coming in September, 1918, of Field Marshal Sir Edmund H. H. Allenby, G.C.B., commander of the Allied Forces in Asia Minor. And the passage of the centuries from B.C. 1300 to A.D. 1918 is recorded by a dozen other carvings, each describing the march of a victorious army.

No Place for Imitations

We thought it was about time for some one to commit a brand new Spoonerism. It was at prayer meeting and the young minister calling upon a Mr. Crowe who was in the congregation said solemnly: "And now I am going to ask Brother Pray if he will please crow for us."—Boston Transcript.

W.C.T.U. NOTES

Regarding the argument of the Government control advocates that "revenues will increase year after year," the White Ribbon Tidings comments:

"Nothing is truer than this statement. Having once created this Government-gain-Frankenstein monster, there is no getting away from its hounding steps. Its subsidizing of roads, schools and charitable institutions is simply a dose of narcotics to dull the conscience of the people to the evils of alcoholics, and to blindfold their eyes to the fact that, in reality, their pockets are being robbed."

The result of the recent referendum in Manitoba should be a clarion call to the Temperance forces of Ontario to unite in a vigorous campaign of education, law enforcement and organization.

On guard, Ontario!
Lo! 'tis thine ancient foe,
Marching in triumph now!
Awake! Awake!

Under the western skies
Thy sister, ravished, lies;
But she will yet arise
And rout the foe.

On guard, Ontario!
Defeat and shame and woe
May thy fair land o'erflow.
To arms! To arms!

"Slower'n snails!" replied the landlord of the Petunia Tavern. "Why, actually, things are so dull that the barbers in the Palace Tonsorial Parlor have took to the mandolin again!"

JUST PLAYFUL.

A motorist and his wife traveling over a familiar road came to a sign pointing to Bangor. The reversed arrow pointed to Monroe.

"That sign is exactly reversed," said the driver to his wife. "Bangor is the other way."

"I guess the sign is more apt to be right than you, Fred," answered his wife, with conjugal emphasis. "Go right in and inquire at that farmhouse."

Fred obeyed, and the farmer answered, "Yes, that sign ought to be over on this side of the road, but when we tried to set it we struck a ledge, so we stuck her over there."

"But," remonstrated Fred, "it makes the directions the wrong way around."

"I know it does," said the farmer, "but anybody knows enough to git to Bangor."

"Why, oh why," asks a friend "does the little pig, with its pink little nose, neat little form and beautiful grey eyes, become a dirty, ugly bristled, shapeless, ill-mannered old hog?" Can anyone answer the conundrum?

TOM MOORE AND MARY MILES MINTER IN STRONG WESTERN PICTURE

Real "Dude" ranch in Wyoming wilds,—ever hear of the Dude Ranch? There is only one in the West, and it was visited by Tom Moore and Mary Miles Minter, the featured players, Charles Maigne the director, and other members of the company which spent six weeks in Wyoming making exterior scenes for the big picture "The Cowboy and the Lady", which is being presented at Griffin's and which opened to a big and appreciative audience Monday matinee and night.

This unique ranch in the Wyoming mountains, the legitimate name of which is the "Bar B-C," is dubbed the Dude Ranch by the neighboring cowboys, because it is maintained as a sort of summer resort for tourists and guests of the hostess. The ranch is stocked with cattle and is improved with all sorts of facilities for diversion and outdoor sports, and is a place where the tenderfoot may fully enjoy the Wild and Wooly West without experiencing too much of the "wild and wooly."

"They have everything there except tennis and golf," observes Miss Minter, and she added with a smile, "I guess they are afraid to introduce those sports for fear the cowboys will revolt and stampede."

Miss Minter, Mr. Moore and other members of the company were guests of the owner, Katherine Burt, who is a well known writer, and, by the way, author of "Singed Wings," a story that was transferred to the screen with Bebe Daniels in the featured role. If the large and very appreciative Monday matinee and night audiences can be taken as a sample of the interest taken in "The Cowboy and the Lady", the picture should draw capacity audiences tonight and Wednesday night.

RICHARD DIX AND COLLEEN MOORE IN FINE RUPERT HUGHES PHOTOPLAY

"The Wall Flower" is the unique name of the feature photoplay that was shown at the Regent yesterday, matinee and night, to large and well pleased audiences. Richard Dix, the screen's handsomest actor, and Colleen Moore, who has the leading feminine role, both appear in parts that are well suited to them, as also the supporting cast. The story concerns a young woman who goes to dances, but rarely dances,—the sort of girl that doesn't know how to dress, doesn't know how to talk, doesn't know how to act. "The Wall Flower" is the funniest and at the same time the most thought-provoking photoplay that Mr. Rupert Hughes has written. Two big audiences Monday matinee and night were well pleased. The program is completed with a funny comedy and a chapter of the ever popular and final chapter of the serial photoplay "The Social Bucaneers" and a News film.

WARNING VOLLEY FIRED AT SYDNEY

Sydney, N.S., July 3.—The first shots of the Sydney steel strike were heard Saturday night at Whitney pier, where the situation became so serious that troops were called out, the Riot Act read, and a volley fired over the heads of the crowd in an effort to induce it to disperse.

Even this show of military force seemed to have little effect, and it was not until a machine gun was placed in position and at least apparent preparation made to fire that the crowd moved slowly off and gave up its efforts for the night.

If the Lord can see all our faults it's mighty difficult to understand where he gets all his angels.

ROYAL STRONG MEN.

They Were Able to Play Pranks on Courtiers.

Augustus the strong of Saxony was famous as a royal Samson. He would often seize two of his courtiers, grasping one with his right hand and another with his left, holding them up at arm's length and twirling them about.

On one occasion the horse ridden by one of his attendants refused to budge. After some minutes of coaxing, the king dismounted, placed his herculean shoulders under the horse's chest, grasped the animal by the forelegs, and calmly walked away with both horse and rider.

Dom Pedro I., emperor of Brazil, is also on the list of royal strong men. On the occasion of a carnival he arranged matters so that he was standing on the bow of the royal barge between two of his stateliest courtiers.

Suddenly, in the midst of the festivities, the king reached out, grasped a courtier with each hand, and after holding them for a few moments squirming in the air and begging to be released, he relaxed his grip, and allowed them to drop into the water.

Peter the Great of Russia, like Charlemagne, possessed great physical as well as mental power. His years of work as blacksmith and ship carpenter had so developed a naturally powerful physique that he was believed to be the strongest man in Russia.

The story is told that a certain blacksmith in a little country town boasted that he was the only man in the world who could lift his own anvil.

The emperor, hearing of the blacksmith's boast, disguised himself as a workman and, with a single companion, set out for the blacksmith's village. On learning of their errand the blacksmith without a word laid aside his tools and, grasping the anvil with his brawny hands, lifted it with a great effort about a foot from the floor.

Then Peter took the anvil, raised it a foot, two feet, three feet, until finally he swung it to his shoulder and calmly walked away with it.

A worthy successor of Peter the Great was Czar Alexander III., who was one of the strongest men in the world. He was often called "The Russian Samson."

The czar's regular visiting-card was a Russian coin, which he would bend almost double with his powerful fingers. Alexander was also fond of breaking horseshoes, and it is said that he had never found one he could not break in two. He could take two packs of cards and, by gripping the ends with his hands, tear them straight down through the middle.

Robots in Folk Lore.

Karel Capek has dramatized in "R. U.R." an idea that has fascinated men since the beginning of labor. A curious version which points M. Capek's moral of the dignity of work is an old Central American folk tale that Charles J. Finger has discovered. According to this legend a maker of magic whittled for the lazy inhabitants of a tropical valley 20 little wooden servants apiece which were wound up by a wooden handle that resembled a tail. The people were delighted that there was no more work to be done, but finally they tired of the mechanical servants. The little wooden men rose in revolt and drove the inhabitants into the wilderness, but they soon fought among themselves. The hungry dogs and cats fell upon them, and drove them to the forest where their descendants became monkeys, jibbering among the trees and clinging to the branches with their long, handle-like tails.

Trenton Outclasses Harwood Team 20-2

Trenton again defeated Harwood team to the tune of 20-2. The game was not the least interesting as it seemed to be a one-sided game. Towards the last Trenton changed pitchers and allowed their junior team play and they let the Harwood team go home with two runs.

Trenton should be proud of their team and should take more interest in the games then they have been doing. This is the ninth straight game they have won this season.

Trenton has lost another one of their baseball players, Howard Chase He was transferred to Sudbury with the Royal Bank.

Our interest in it doesn't end with the purchase.

We sell you more than the watch—a service of time accuracy.

Would Have Given $100 For One Night's Sleep

"Before I got Tanlac I often said I would give a hundred dollars to get a good night's sleep, but now I sleep like a child every night and feel so well it doesn't seem like I am the same person," said Mrs. Annie Stillson, highly esteemed resident of 263 Simcoe St., London, Ont.

"I suffered for years from nervousness and stomach trouble. My appetite had all but left me and what I ate hurt me so bad I actually dreaded to sit down to the table. My nerves were so unstrung I could hardly sleep any at all, and I was so weak and tired many days I couldn't do my housework.

"But it's pleasure to sit down to a meal now, for I enjoy my food like a child does candy and nothing I eat hurts me a particle. My nerves are perfectly calm and my sleep rests me so I feel refreshed throughout the day. Tanlac has no equal."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

This year the County Council has instituted what will be known as the County Medal, to be awarded each year to the pupil from the schools of the Inspectorate of South Hastings, outside of Belleville and Trenton, making the highest aggregate marks at the Entrance Examination, Group II. This being the first year that this prize was open to competition, there was keen competition for the honor of being the first County Medalist. The honor goes to Jean Leslie of S.S. No. 11, Thurlow.

Below will be found the list of successful candidates at the recent High School Entrance examination. There are two Entrance centres in Belleville, one for pupils from the city schools, the other for pupils from the rural schools near Belleville. Both centres are under the Board of Entrance Examiners for Belleville High School, composed of Principal MacLaurin, Inspector Clarke, W. G. Anderson representing the public schools, and Sister M. Edward representing the Separate schools. There were 127 candidates at the city centre and 104 at the county centre.

The names are arranged in alphabetical order. The city list is grouped by schools.

Certificates will be mailed to successful candidates and a statement of marks to those who were not successful, just as soon as they can be prepared. The Inspector will be at his office, 232 Church street, on Saturday July 7, when any who call may receive their certificates. Any not called for will be duly mailed.

MAN'S CAPACITY FOR GIN PUZZLES COURT

Is it reasonable to believe that a man, not accustomed to drinking, and having had nothing to eat all day, could commence at 7 p.m. to drink an Imperial quart of gin, (except for two drinks which had been taken out of the bottle), and be in a position to walk about the streets at 12 o'clock mid-night?

That was the question before the house to-day in police court, when the third member of the Sunday morning party of June 24 last, appeared in court charged with being intoxicated in a public place, to wit, Lingham street, at 3.00 a.m. Just prior to his arrest the accused slipped from a sidewalk and sprained both ankles, and to-day he walked with difficulty, using a cane.

In court accused pleaded guilty to the drunkenness charge, but it was in connection with locating the source of the liquor which produced the intoxication that the strange story was divulged. Both Magistrate Masson and Acting Crown Attorney Donnan refused to believe the story, and the Crown threatened to imprison the accused for three months or such time as he changed his story. This did not move the defendant one iota however, for he insisted that he was stating the actual facts under oath. He was fined $25 and costs of $9. He paid.

The accused said the gin had been procured by prescription at Kingston and he did not have any liquor after leaving his own private residence. The party was "dry", he said, and when it was declared over, and the taxi called, the loading proceedings had but commenced when the patrol car drew up along side, and arrests were made.

F. KELLIHER HURT BY RUN-AWAY TEAM

Plunging Horses Carom Him From Bicycle Against Tree.

At 12.20 o'clock noon today, Frank Kelliher, 106 Dundas street, was severely injured, when he was thrown off his bicycle by a runaway team of horses belonging to Harry Smith, ice man, which were hitched to one of the company's wagons. The accident occurred in front of the residence at 66 Dundas Street.

Kelliher was bleeding profusely, his forehead being badly gashed, and the back of his head deeply lacerated, when he was picked up and carried to a lawn, where his injuries were treated.

Dr. J. Robertson and Dr. S. Cronk were summoned, and the police were notified. The injured man was taken to the General Hospital.

Kelliher was wheeling west on Dundas street, when the accident occurred, and evidently did not realize that the team of horses were galloping down the street behind him at the break neck speed. He was hurled from the bicycle and catapulated a lamp post. The bicycle was totally wrecked. The horses did not stop their wild race, but turned the corner of Church and Dundas streets, and ran to the stables. The driver was not on the wagon, when the accident occurred.

At 2.30 p.m. Dr. J. Robertson stated that Kelliher was suffering from shock, and some concussion of the brain, although it is difficult as yet to learn the extent of the concussion. Other injuries are a deep incision on one arm and three serious cuts on the forehead. The injured man will be given a thorough examination this afternoon.

FRANCE STUBBORN ON RUHR POLICY

Curzon Says Reply Means France Will "Remain in Ruhr Forever"

London, July 4.—Marquis Staulaire, French Ambassador, on Tuesday verbally presented Premier Poincare's answer to the British questionnaire, demanding information on France's Ruhr attitude.

When he told Marquis Curzon, in effect, that France will not evacuate the Ruhr until full reparations payments are made, Lord Curzon interrupted that this means France remains in the Ruhr forever. Count De Saint Aulaire expostulated. Lord Curzon explained occupation so cripples Germany she can pay nothing, hence if France remains until all is paid, she will never go.

Deplying to the British query regarding reparations, the Ambassador said France demands as a minimum thirty-one billion gold marks for herself. She also refuses to cancel any German "C" bonds, except to the amount to which Britain and America remit the French debt.

He made it clear France will agree to no moratorium for Germany except on condition deliveries in kind continue and collection of local revenues in occupied territory continue.

Strawberry Festival At P. Harrison Home

A strawberry festival was held at the charming home of Mr. Philip Harrison, Lewis Street last evening, at which the members of the staff of The Daily Intelligencer were guests. The Harrison home is surrounded by a profusion of flowers which are now in the fullest bloom. They presented a very attractive appearance. During the early part of the evening, dancing and music were the entertainment features.

The guests then adjourned to the dining room where an inviting spread awaited them. Some twenty people sat down to the table and everyone thoroughly enjoyed the occasion. The party ended near the midnight hour.

Owing to the inclement weather only a limited number attended, but those who did spent a most enjoyable evening and everyone voted Mr. and Mrs. Harrison and Miss Mable ideal entertainers.

SHOCKING WORDS RESULT IN FINE

Patrick Hurst Found Guilty of Using Improper Language.

Patrick Hurst was found guilty by Magistrate S. Masson in police court this morning, of using grossly insulting language, and was fined $10 and costs and $5.50 and given week's time in which to make payment. The complainant at whom the shocking words are alleged to have been directed is Robert Slavin, 40 Strachan street, next door neighbor of defendant. W. C. Mikel, K.C., defended the accused, and B. C. Donnan appeared for the complainant. The accused pleaded not guilty, and the trial was the most striking case of contradictory evidence seen here for some time.

Slavin, the complainant, testified that while sitting in his kitchen last Friday evening at 8 p.m., reading the paper, Hurst came out of his house, passed by the Slavin door, and began to shout and comment in a loud voice about a hedge between the properties, and to which defendant had always objected. Hurst, according to Slavin's evidence, then called him by name, and used epithets which almost shocked the court. In answer to Mr. Mikel, on cross examination, witness stated that he had not "made faces" at the "angry" man, to incite him to carry on as he was alleged to have done.

Slavin described Hurst's condition at the time as being "off to the races". Mrs. Slavin also heard the alleged insulting language, and her evidence was in the main, similar to the evidence of her husband.

Hurst took the stand and swore positively that he did not use the words attributed to him. He admitted that at times he swore, but insisted that he did not use "big" words like the ones which caused his appearance in court. He also admitted having a drink of liquor that evening, also a "night cap" just before retiring.

Mrs. Hurst swore positively that her husband had not used the insulting language, and informed the court that the liquor was taken by her husband for his nerves, which are in bad condition.

In imposing the fine, Magistrate Masson stated that the complainant and his wife, in his opinion, were more worthy of belief than the defendant and his wife.

"I am satisfied the language was used, and that this was not the first time, and there was no justification for it", commented the bench.

OVER 10,000 IN STRIKERS' RANKS

Coal Workers Demand That Militia be Withdrawn from District

INDUSTRY TIED UP

Immediate Action in Connection with Crisis Not Contemplated at Ottawa

Sydney, July 4.—Eight thousand men quit the coal mines here at midnight in an effort to aid the steel workers. They insist on the militia being taken from the district. Other mine workers are walking out to-day.

Union officials announced that the strike was "100 per cent.", which meant that pumpmen and maintenance men have or soon will be out.

The company has been notified the miners will allow a reasonable for the removal of horses from the pits. Most of the animals have been brought to the surface in preparation for a strike, but a considerable number remain underground.

The walkout of miners completes the tie-up in the allied coal-steel industry of the island and brings the number of strikers up to a figure in excess of 10,000 men.

It is not expected that the miners of the mainland in Pictou and Cumberland counties, will join the Cape Breton men in their strike.

The troops from Halifax numbering about 250, which have been stationed at the Sydney Steel Works since Saturday, have been reinforced by the arrival of three hundred and fifty more from London, Ontario. Seventy-four horses have also arrived.

Ottawa, July 4.—No immediate action is contemplated by the federal department of labor in connection with the ultimatum issued by Cape Breton mine workers that they will cease work unless troops in the Sydney strike area are withdrawn at once.

This announcement was made by Hon. James Murdock, Minister of Labor.

He pointed out that his department had nothing to do with the militia and that if the Industrial Disputes Act had been flouted it was a matter for provincial authorities to deal with. The minister said he had received no official communication from the strike leaders.

Troops sent to preserve order in Sydney are there because the local authorities appealed for their protection under the provisions of the Militia Act, it was explained by officials of the department of national defense. The troops will remain in the strike district until the local authorities express a desire for their withdrawal.

LUMBER STATISTICS

Many readers will perhaps be surprised to learn that Ontario ranked second among the provinces of the Dominion in the production of lumber in 1921. Statistics published in the July issue of the Canada Lumberman show that the total lumber cut in Ontario in that year was 714,054,000 feet. British Columbia's output in 1921 was 996,265,000 feet. Although British Columbia is noted for her extensive timber tracts and her giant pines and cedars, the value of her 1921 lumber output, $24,867,221, was but little more than Ontario's output for the same year, $24,518,164.

New Brunswick was third in 1921 with 209,982,000 feet, valued at $7,810,822; and Nova Scotia made a poor fourth with 115,246,000 feet, worth $3,054,995.

These figures are significant in view of the fact that manufacturing is a primary industry in Ontario. Rapid strides have been made in the development of hydro power in the province during the past few years and, with vast quantities of timber available as raw material, Ontario should become an important world producer of finished lumber products. Hardwoods are plentiful and furniture and implement parts should form a considerable item of export.

There is good reason to believe that furniture manufacture will flourish in Hastings county when the Bancroft power plant is in operation and a development of this nature should prove highly advantageous to the Belleville district. It is to be hoped that the day is not far distant when Canada's furniture imports will be relatively infinitesimal and the legend "Made in Canada" will become familiar in all parts of the world where finished lumber products are sold.

REDUCTIO AD ABSURDUM

The action of Mr. Edward W. Bok of Philadelphia, former editor of the Ladies' Home Journal, in offering a reward of $100,000 for "a practicable plan by which the United States may co-operate with other nations to achieve and preserve world peace," is typically American. While the motive is undoubtedly altruistic and the results may be beneficial, the advisability of such a step is a moot question.

On the continent, where men are trained thoroughly in diplomacy and statecraft, none is better fitted than they to undertake solution of problems of state. Other public men, who are not well grounded in national and international affairs do not aspire to positions as experts in such matters. This situation obtains in a lesser degree in America.

Yet Mr. Bok, with a careless gesture brushes aside the product of the United States school of statecraft, which has produced some very able men and calls upon all and sundry to bring forth a solution of one of the abstruse problems in the history of international affairs.

Mr. Bok has arranged for an erudite board of judges and will pay $50,000 for an idea and another $50,000 upon proof of the practicability of the plan. "Every American" is eligible from the girls of the "Follies" down to black stevedores on the New Orleans docks. While there are thousands of men and women in the States competent to study the problem intelligently, only unbounded optimism can inspire the hope that a solution can be found among the "common peepul". One important point in the offer is that the second award will be made when the practicability of the plan is demonstrated "either through its adoption by the United States Senate or because a sufficient popular response endorses it."

Hence, we may witness the spectacle of the United States Senate solemnly discussing a world peace scheme conceived in the brain of a Kansas farm hand, whose sphere of life has been limited to the cornfields of his native county. Mr. Bok's plan is, of course, highly unorthodox and unethical; it is really the antithesis of practicability. However, there can be no doubt of the worthiness of his purpose. The New York Times thus explains it:—

"Mr. Bok's real purpose in making the award is to give the American people, as a whole, a direct chance to express itself upon a problem for which we have not been able to find the answer through political avenues or through the efforts of interested special groups. It is a fitting time to do this because of the changing consciousness of our people upon matters international.

"Watching the kaleidoscopic changes now taking place with startling rapidity in Europe, millions of Americans, who a few years ago did not feel at all concerned about our relation to the rest of the world, now begin to suspect that a fundamentally changing Europe means a changing America, and that the peace of the world is our problem.

"Mr. Bok and those who have undertaken to administer the award think some American will evolve a plan acceptable to all or most of the various groups which, while they have perhaps differed as to the best method of international cooperation, now agree in wishing to find some way by which the United States can do its share in preventing war and establishing a workable basis of good will among the nations."

From our point of view, the idea is preposterous—unsound and indicative of lack of good judgment. Mr. Bok's undertaking might be aptly described as a case of "reductio ad absurdum".

Sound Testimonial
Evidence

showing the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over the ills of women is constantly being published in this paper. The strongest recommendation any article can have is that borne by the persons who use it. Once ill with ailments that caused suffering and despair, but now restored to the joys of health, from a grateful heart multitudes of women write letters of appreciation to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. of Lynn, Mass. Such evidence of the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over the ills of women should induce every suffering woman to try it.

CELEBRATING

The Fourth was not observed in style
  In father's day, unless
You lost an arm or leg or two,
  Or got some burns, I guess.

"A sissy's" what they called the guy
  Who showed no bandaged toe;
And father boasts, "Those were the days
  Of reg'lar boys, you know."

But if I say I'd like to have
  Some cannon crackers, now,
My goodness, but you ought to hear
  My father raise a row!

To clean the white straw hat rub with a lemon dipped in sulphur. Wash off with water and stiffen with white of egg.

Wrap the silver in waxed paper when you are putting it away for any length of time and it will not tarnish.

A sea salt bath is the best thing known for tired feet. The skin of a lemon, too, will work wonders on tired pedal extremities. Allow the lemon juice to dry on, as it will draw out the heat and inflammation, leaving the feet cool and comfortable. Alcohol and witchhazel mixed, rubbed on the feet, afford great relief.

To remove finger marks from mirrors, windows, locks and latches, put a few drops of ammonia on a cloth and rub the marks. It will remove them admirably.

To remove tea or coffee stains of long standing, wet the spots with cold water cover with glycerine and let stand for two or three hours. Wash with cold water and hard soap.

So many times "yellow spots" will appear on fine linens and one's unable to account for them. Don't despair. Just rub the "rust spot" with lemon juice and salt, lay it in sunlight and watch your trouble vanish.

The best way to make good sticky cinnamon buns is to put a layer of brown sugar in the pans before putting in the buns. Bake slowly and remove from pans as soon as done, so the sugar will not harden.

SWISS CHARD

Wash and pick over ½ pk. Swiss Chard. Cook in boiling salted water until tender (using as little water as possible). Drain well and finely chop. Melt 2 tbsps. butter or bacon fat, add 1 tsp. chopped onion, cook 3 mins. stirring constantly. Add 2 tbsps. fine cracker crumbs or 1½ tbsps. flour, ½ tsp. salt, ⅛ tsp. nutmeg and gradually 1 cup stock (chicken or beef broth) continue stirring. Add Swiss Chard. When heated through turn into serving dish and garnish with thinly sliced hard cooked eggs.

"O MOTHER, I'M SO HOT"

Thousands of little Canadians will run to mother this summer and whimper "O mother, I'm so hot." A natural condition? Yes, to be hot in hot weather, but not to whimper about it, if the blood condition is right. A child so fed that its blood is acid instead of alkaline, like the adult with acid blood, feels devitalized, "all in" on a sultry day. There is but one way to make the blood acid—by improper feeding. "Excess Acid" foods, like white flour, refined cereals, meats, fats, sweets, make acid blood or "heat the blood." If the blood is alkaline there is no devitalizing sense of heat, no depression of bodily or mental vigor, however hot the day. Natural unrefined foods keep the blood alkaline—whole grain cereals, milk, eggs, nuts, beans, greens and fruits. These are rich in alkalis and keep the blood "cool" and the mind and body fit, regardless of the heat.

Roman Meal is the only rich alkaline cereal, 406 parts in each 1,000 "Excess Alkali," alkaline enough to correct the acids of white flour, other cereals, fats, meats and sweets. It makes delightful porridge, pancakes, puddings, cakes. Even hot Roman Meal porridge is more "cooling" than any cold, refined, acid-forming cereal. But you can serve Roman Meal delightfully icy-cold, as BROSE-O, CHOCOL-O, JELLE-E. See "Summer Recipes" on package. With milk, cream, honey, preserved or fresh fruits, a hot-day treat, a child's delight which can be prepared in ten minutes. At grocers.

PATRICIA BRENT SPINSTER

ANONYMOUS

"But ain't she going to see 'im?" demanded Mr. Triggs incredulously.

"No, she says that she doesn't want Peter ever to see her, write to her, telephone to her, or, as far as I can see, exist on the same planet with her."

"But—but—" began Mr. Triggs.

"It's no good reasoning with a woman, Mr. Triggs, we woman are all as unreasonable as the Income Tax. Now if you'll do as you are told we will prove that Patricia is wrong."

"Very well, me dear," began Mr. Triggs.

"Now this is my plan," interrupted Lady Tanagra. "If Patricia really cares for Peter she will want to hear about him from friends. She will, very cleverly, as she thinks, lead up the conversation to him when she meets you, or when she meets Godfrey Elton, or when she meets me. Now what we have to do is just as carefully to avoid talking about him. Turn the conversation on to some other topic. Now we've all got to plot and scheme and plan like—like——"

"Germans," interrupted Mr. Triggs.

"Splendid!" cried Lady Tanagra, clapping her hands.

"But why has she changed her mind?" asked Mr. Triggs.

"You must never ask a woman why she changes her frock, or why she changes her mind, because she never really knows," said Lady Tanagra. "Probably she does it because she hasn't got anything else particular to do at the moment. Ah! here's Peter," she cried.

Bowen came forward and shook hands cordially with Mr. Triggs.

"This is splendid of you!" he said. "You'll lunch with us, of course."

"Oh no, no," said Mr. Triggs. "I just ran in to—to——"

"Of course! That's it," cried Mr. Triggs, beaming. "I can't stop to lunch though, I'm afraid. I must be going to——"

"Have you got a luncheon engagement?" asked Lady Tanagra.

"Er—well, yes."

"Please don't tell fibs, Mr. Triggs. You're not engaged to lunch with anybody, and you're going to lunch with us, so that's settled."

"Why, bless my soul!" blew Mr. Triggs helplessly as he mopped his head with his handkerchief. "Why bless my soul!"

"It's no good, Mr. Triggs. When Tanagra wants anything she has it," said Bowen with a laugh. "It doesn't matter whether it's the largest pear or the nicest man!"

For an hour and a half they talked Patricia, and at the end of the meal both Lady Tanagra and Bowen knew that they had a firm ally in Mr. Triggs.

"Don't forget, Mr. Triggs," cried Lady Tanagra as she bade him good-bye in the vestibule. "You're a match maker now, and you must be very careful."

And Mr. Triggs lifted his hat and waved his umbrella as, wreathed in smiles, he trotted towards the revolving doors and out into the street.

After he had gone Lady Tanagra extracted from Bowen a grudging promise of implicit obedience. He must not see, telephone, write or tele- to Patricia. He was to eliminate himself altogether.

"But for how long, Tan?" he enquired moodily.

"It may be for years and it may be for ever," cried Lady Tanagra gaily as she buttoned her gloves. "Anyhow, it's your only chance."

II

The next afternoon as Patricia walked down the steps of Number 426 Eaton Square and turned to the left, she was conscious that in spite of the summer sunshine the world was very grey about her. She had not gone a hundred yards before Lady Tanagra's grey car slid up beside her.

"Will you take pity on me, Patricia? I'm at a loose end," cried Lady Tanagra.

"Jump in," cried Lady Tanagra. "It's no good refusing a Bowen. Our epidermises are too thick, or should it be epidermi?"

The car crooned its way up Sloane Street and across into Knightsbridge, Lady Tanagra intent upon her driving.

"Is it indiscreet to ask where you are taking me?" enquired Patricia with elaborate humility.

Lady Tanagra laughed as she jammed on the brake to avoid running into the stern of a motoromnibus.

One-Piece Bathing Suit Is Passing

By HEDDA HOYT, Fashion Editor of United Press.

New York, July 4.—No one can say "Oh Horrors!" when they look at the bathing beauties at the resorts this season. For behold, their costumes no longer consist of the slick-fitting one-piece suit. They are garbed in the most modest bathing attire that we have seen since the long-sleeved, long-stockinged era.

Perhaps we are witnessing a revulsion from the "skin-tights" of previous seasons, when every woman, regardless of her physical charms, displayed herself before the public in a form-fitting bathing suit. Not one girl in one hundred really had good reason for wearing them and yet, regardless of the beach censors, they wore them, claiming that they were the only sensible costume for swimming. Many of them never got nearer the water than the board-walks.

COLORS THE RAGE.

The beaches have never looked prettier than they do this season with groups of women garbed in colorful batiks, painted India linens and ruffled taffetas. Color rages rampant. The idea this year seems to be to look as alluring as possible, rather than to dress as scantily as possible.

One imagines that the beach is covered with little girls in party frocks that are cut short at the knees until one discovers that they are merely short-skirted women in the smartest of bathing attire. Many of these suits are made of changeable taffetas, with long slender bodices and ruffled or tiered skirts. Others are made of bandana squares with bloomers of solid color matching the border of the bandana. India prints are much used in the same manner. With the printed bathing costumes, bright colored shoes and caps are used carrying out the main color in the print.

Capes of cretonne and rubberized materials also add a degree of modesty to the beach costume. Only at the resorts which are frequented by the tenement dwellers does one see a display of figure this year.

The stocking question seems to be about equally divided this year, some women wearing half socks and no stockings whatever and others wearing long sheer stockings of tan, taupe or black.

BATHING CAPS.

Caps this year are absolutely captivating! There are those adorned with rubber trimmings, such as plumes, flowers and ribbons, which are so becoming. Then there are the tie-around turbans which are merely long strips of colored rubber which drape about the head and clasp over the brow with an Egyptian buckle or ornament.

Gingham bathing suits made like children's rompers are worn by the younger girls to some extent. Often there is an accompanying sunbonnet of gingham to ward off the sun's rays.

Get Sunburned all you wish

Rub Campana's Italian Balm on your face and arms each day. It won't prevent you getting sunburned; in fact, it assists the sun in giving the skin a clear, healthy, bronzed texture, instead of a coarse redness, but it will prevent the roughness and soreness and irritation that comes from sunburn, or excessive perspiration.

Be sure to take a good supply of Campana's Italian Balm away with you on your vacation—because you can't buy it conveniently at many summer resorts.

A wedding took place at the home of Rev. W. H. and Mrs. Spargo, Manvers Road, Bowmanville, at 9.30 Saturday afternoon, when their younger daughter, Etta May, was married to R. J. F. Staples, B.A., of Toronto. The bride's gown was of orchid crepe trimmed with ivory radium lace, with a picture hat of black lace. She wore the bridegroom's gift, a string of beautifully matched pearls, and carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and maiden hair fern. The bridesmaid was Miss Jessie B. Tuite of Belleville, who wore a dress of cream French voile, with black lace hat, and carried pink roses. The bridegroom was assisted by D. H. Blatchford, B.A., of Toronto. The wedding march was played by Miss Madeline Young, B.A., of Belleville. The bride's mother wore a gown of black charmeuse satin. Instructors of Deaf Appreciate Courtesies

While a large majority of those attending the convention of American Instructors of the Deaf left on Saturday, a number remained here over Sunday, the last ones leaving on Tuesday morning. It was very gratifying to the staff of the Ontario School for the Deaf to hear the eulogiums passed by everyone upon the school and the work it is doing. The opinion was freely expressed that the new buildings were unequalled in America or Great Britain for their handsome appearance, up-to-date appointments and their adaptability to the purpose for which they were erected, while the work done here, as shown by the class demonstrations, was declared to be unexcelled by any other schools on the continent.

The visitors were also enthusiastic in their praise of the beauty of Belleville and its environments and of all parts of the province through which they had passed, and many expressed the hope that they might return in the near future. The practically unanimous opinion was expressed that this was the most successful and enjoyable convention ever held by the Association.

At the closing session on Saturday, resolutions were passed expressive of the admiration for the fine buildings and equipment of the Ontario School for the Deaf, and thanking Dr. Coughlin and his staff for the excellence of the service rendered and the perfection of the arrangements made for the comfort and enjoyment of the members of the convention; also for the excellent demonstrations of class-room work given by Miss Ford, Miss Smith, Miss Nurse, Miss Bradley and Mr. Lally, and the very helpful conferences on reading conducted by Mr. Stewart. Among the other resolutions adopted were the following:

"That a vote of thanks be extended to The Belleville Intelligencer and The Ontario for their reports of the proceedings of the convention."

"That the members of the convention express their hearty appreciation to the musicians who provided the musical program on Wednesday evening, to the Rotary, Kiwanis and Masonic societies, and to the Belleville Club and the Y.M.C.A. for the hospitality extended to members of the convention, and to the citizens of Belleville who so kindly offered their cars for the delightful drives on Thursday and Friday evenings.

Toronto, July 4.—Dr. Winters, Montreal, overcome with a heart attack at the Union Station today, died in the General hospital yesterday.

MAKING BOXING CHAMPIONS BY WHIM

(By PAUL R. MALLON, United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, July 4.—"When is a champion not a champion". Ask the New York State Boxing Commission.

The board of governors of boxing in New York is practising a policy of lifting the championship laurel from the head of one boxer and placing upon the brow of another. Thus are champions made in New York. They needn't fight. All they have to do is place a forfeit with the commission, wait six months, and if the challenge is not taken up they forthwith become champion of their class.

A champion may be a champion in the State of New Jersey and every other state in the country, and yet a few miles away there would still be another champion of the same class in New York.

This is not the purpose for which the law was made. The purpose of this provision was to avoid the old rule of champions dodging fights with contenders they feared. Before boxing regulations were introduced a champion could refuse to meet any of his chief contenders and thereby retain his title even though he might not be the best man of the class.

He still can. The law didn't help matters any. It only complicated things.

The commission lifted the title of Mickey Walker because he had failed to answer the forfeit of Dave Shade. The title thereupon was given to Shade. A perfect law would not have permitted this. It would have compelled Walker to meet Shade, and determine which was best. After the order was issued, Walker didn't worry any. He went on fighting in other states under the name of champion. He did just what he pleased outside of New York.

When the commission decreed that Johnny Kilbane was no longer champion because he would not meet Eugene Criqui, it didn't worry Kilbane either. He went on picking up money in other communities as he pleased, and when he got good and ready to fight Criqui he did—and lost his title.

If every state where boxing is permitted had a state commission and these state commissions were bound together as a sort of "court of justice" this old rule could be eliminated and a national policy toward boxing established.

To tell a fighter he cannot fight in New York State does not mean much. He still can ply his trade elsewhere and make money until he himself desires to come back to New York. But to tell a fighter he could not fight in the United States would force him to see the light.

What is needed is a national rule over boxing, instead of a state rule. Then, if a champion refused to meet his best challenger, he would have to come to terms or fight in some other country. There would be few refusals in that case.

As it is, no one pays much attention to changes of titles ordered by the New York Boxing Commission. They don't mean anything.

The federal government, of course does not wish to get mixed up in the boxing game. There has been little agitation for a national commission and thus far no congressman has shown enough interest in boxing to seek legislation.

It seems, however, that the commissioners of boxing, who are selected for their desire to better the sport, might do something along a national line.

A Federal Trade Commission rules big business in a national way. The boxing business in the United States runs yearly into millions. The necessity for a national governing body seems obvious.

When the 140th Epsom Derby was run in England several days ago, a group from parliament went out to look over the betting sheds and plan some new ideas for legislation.

It might be a good idea for some of the state legislators to go out and look over the betting at Belmont Park and other tracks where gambling, while not yielding any revenue to the state, is enriching bookmakers.

It is estimated conservatively that more than $300,000,000 is bet on races in New York state each year. Yet not a penny goes to the state, because pari-mutuel machines are not permitted.

The state income tax could be lifted from the salaries of workers if betting was taxed instead of winked at.

SPORT GOSSIP

The Trunks play in Cobourg on Saturday and are at home against Kingston next Wednesday. They have already lost one game of the second schedule and cannot afford to lose many more if they hope to cut any figure in the second half of the race. With no game to-day the team should be in fine fettle for Saturday's battle The lake shore crew have also lost one game to Peterboro and are aching for the tilt with the Trunks. It's a nice little drive by motor along the lake shore and Belleville fandom will no doubt be well represented.

The fans are still trying to figure out how Umpire Largo "saw" that double play Monday. From all points around the diamond, including the press box, it was clear that Meagher did not have his foot on second, while it is just as abundantly clear that Mills dropped the ball almost the same instant as he touched the runner. Anyway it looks as if Large's place was closer to second and that the decision at first belonged to Kay. —Kingston Standard.

• • •

Cliff Boundy, Umpire of Cobourg, donned a Cobourg uniform Monday, in the games at Peterboro, and consequently barred himself from again officiating in "B" Section. Boundy played a fair game, although he was taken out of the game in the 5th innings when he failed to get under a difficult running fly. He secured a nice single in the 2nd innings, much to the surprise of Manager Solomon who was hollering. "He couldn't see them, Al. old boy when he was umpiring, how can he see them now?"—Post.

To win the first half, Belleville won every game at home and one away from home. The Trunkers have a nice hitting nine and two good pitchers. Hagerman, the new catcher, is much after "Peeney" Mills' style.

Heckman is complaining of too much work, and that his arm has not been in good shape all season because he has been pitching too much. President Dodman reminded him yesterday that two years ago Pitcher Jack Oulette played three games in one week, two of which went over time, and one of which was a thirteen innings affair, and that Oulette never pitched better ball. "You want more work," was the President's admontition to Mr. Heckman.—Post.

KINGSTON VICTORY IS WELL EARNED

Kingston Standard Sport Writer Acknowledges Belleville Prowess.

Kingston, July 4.—Smarting under defeat at Cobourg on Saturday afternoon and determined to start the second division of group "B" right, the Kingston Ponies opened up a barrage on Oulette, Belleville's pitching ace, at the Fair Grounds on Monday morning touching him up for eleven hits and eight runs before sending him to the showers. Williams, who replaced him, fared better. In the one and one-third innings he was in he yielded but one run and one hit, but it was enough to win the game and start the locals away well on the second lap in the race. But, withal, it cannot be denied that during the ninth inning there were anxious moments for the locals. Belleville had the score nine to five when the visitors came in for their ninth, and four runs are none too many against a fighting team like the one piloted by Walter Gerow. Gallagher was in fine form up till then, and he started well, forcing Casey out to Somerville and throwing Hagerman out at first himself. Williams got a great hand when he came up for the first time, and he responded by singling over second. Ross also singled, and then the fans were given another chance to gasp when Meagher did likewise, Williams and Ross scoring. The score was now nine to seven. Brownscombe contributed a single and then Gallagher's day's work was done. He went to left field and Cherry trotted to the mound and took up the burden. His first one was a ball, the next a strike and the next one Weir, always a dependable batter, drove to Teepell, who scooped it quickly to the waiting Battsone, and Meagher was the third out. Thus ended the suspense for the Kingston fans, and the locals walked off with the first game in the second division.

PETES COP GAME FROM TURPIN'S CREW

Peterboro July 4.—The Petes got away to a good start in the second section of the Big Four race and made a clean sweep of the Dominion Day series with Cobourg by grabbing the afternoon game at Riverside Park yesterday from Dick Turpin's lively crew. The final count was 5 to 1 and the Petes were in front from the fourth inning on, taking the lead in that session after Cobourg had broken away from the barrier and set up a one-run margin in the first frame.

It was a battle of right handers, Heckman opposing Jahren, Cobourg's Swedish hurler from Gull Lake, Saskatchewan. Heck had considerably the better of the argument, although he allowed seven hits to three, because he gave nothing away, kept the Cobourg safeties scattered and extinguished ten by the strike-out route. Jahren was found for only three safeties and but one of these figured in the run-making, but his lack of control was costly, four of the Petes getting bases on balls while two others were hit and two of these charities blossomed into runs while several others indirectly were a factor in the scoring. The three misplays marked up against the Petes did no harm while two out of the three Cobourg errors were costly and in addition the Petes used five sacrifice hits and pulled two double steels, demonstrating that runs can be scored and ball games won by heads up baseball with a minimum of hits.

There was a lot of snappy fielding on both sides and the game provided lively entertainment for the big holiday crowd.

Cobourg got their only run in the first inning. Skitch singled past second to open the frame. T. Kenney was thrown out by Heckman, Skitch going to second. J. Kenny's solid smash to centre scored Skitch. Wolfe gathered in Drennan's high fly after a run.

If you had twice the money you have chances are that you would be four times as big a fool as you are now.

Editor—"Does it pay to advertise in my paper? "Well, I should say it does. Look at Mr. Smith, the grocer, for instance. He advertised for a boy last week, and the very next day Mrs. Smith had twins—both boys."

PETERBORO 'BEEFS' ABOUT DECISION

Umps Ruling on Weir at First in Seventh Causes Brainstorm

Peterboro, July 4.—A raw decision by Base Umpire El Dell of Oshawa in calling Weir safe at first base in the seventh when everybody else in the park saw the Belleville shortstop was out by a yard, was the break in Saturday's Big Four game at Riverside Park that eliminated the Petes from the running in the first section and allowed Belleville to win by 5 runs to 4, the first loss on the home grounds for the Solomon crew since the year before last. The play on Weir should have retired the side, but instead Belleville scored a run afterward, and the counter was enough to give them the decision.

It was the most exciting game of the season, and a tough one for Heckman to lose, his teammates faltering behind him at moments when misplays hurt the most. A misjudged fly by Collins in the fifth was responsible for several Belleville runs, and slow fielding and a poor throw to third by the same player cost another in the seventh, following Dell's bad decision. The winning run in the eighth was the result of a fumble by Johnston. Heckman fanned eleven of the visitors and was decidely unlucky to lose the decision.

Williams started for Belleville, but after he had walked two men to start the fifth, retired in favor of Oulette. Good bunting by the Petes enabled them to score three runs in that frame, but Oulette held them hitless and runless in the last four innings. He was materially aided in the eighth by Brownscombe, who with the tieing run tearing for the plate and two out, went back into deep left and made a great catch of Ansaldo's hard smash that was labelled a triple.

There was no scoring until the fourth, although both teams had an opening, and the Petes lost a run when Ansaldo failed to score from second on Swanston's rap past third.

LATE SPRING CHICKEN MEAN EGG SCARCITY

Poultry Expert Gives Warning of Low Production Next Winter

"The delayed spring this year was responsible for many poor hatches and a large proportion of late spring chicks. This will mean fewer pullets than usual," says Prof. F. Elford at the Poultry division of the Experimental Farm at Ottawa. A serious situation has thus developed, according to Canada's chief poultry authority. At the present there are practically no eggs in cold storage. Usually eggs are coming forward in heavy shipments at this season and the storage houses become well filled. This year their floors are practically bare and supplies in sight are more limited than they have been for some considerable time.

Canadians are today consuming more eggs per capita than ever before, and so, with this combination of circumstances, the late-hatched chicks this year present a serious problem.

If ever there was a need for taking care of the pullets and bringing them to maturity at the earliest date, it is right now. In fact Prof. Elford goes so far as to advise securing expert advice and assistance in order that the maximum of eggs may be secured. Under the circumstances the poultry-keeper and the man or woman who has a few chickens in the back yard should do everything possible to take advantage of these conditions, and secure such information and knowledge as will enable them to get the best results from their hens. He expressed himself as being of the opinion that great good would be accomplished by having reliable information on the care of poultry broadcasted in every possible way. Otherwise, he says, the Canadian people will not be able to eat their egg a day, owing to scarcity and high prices.

Bandits Attack Foreigners

So far as China is concerned, banditry is probably the second oldest profession, and those who are astonished at its recent manifestation in Shantung are not aware of Chinese conditions. What is novel about the present demonstrations is the fact that they were directed against foreigners. Hitherto it has been rare for a Chinese bandit to interfere with a foreigner. He has been regarded as too dangerous to molest because of the alacrity with which strong foreign Governments hasten to defend their nationals, and perhaps in the process get a stronger foothold in China. To the Chinese the foreigners are still the "devils" that they were in the days of the Tai Ping rebellion, but they are feared and respected. Even the recent outbreak was not unexpected by foreign residents in Shantung. It was indeed predicted after the Japanese had left the peninsula. The Japanese held the Shantung bandits in check or obliged them to confine their depredations to their own countrymen. When they left it is estimated that there were 24,000 active bandits in Shantung with whom the Chinese authorities were utterly unable to cope.

The bandits of China are as a rule the creature of weather conditions. When rains fall moderately so that crops are good there are few bandits, except the professional criminals who remain bandits all the year round. These, however, are the mere nucleus of the bandit army. When there is a crop failure, tens of thousands of Chinese farmers turn bandit for the time being and prey upon the neighboring towns and villages. It is their avocation between crop seasons, and they willingly return to tilling the soil if the next year promises a good harvest. This double occupation is of great service to them when the Government, fearing that banditry in a certain district is verging upon rebellion, sends troops to suppress them. When the troops arrive the bandits have vanished. They are bending their backs over their few poor acres, their weapons hidden and all signs obliterated of their lawless calling. They are also aided by the willingness of the soldiers sent to hunt them to share in their loot, and perhaps to desert and become bandits themselves. It is said that thousands of the Shantung bandits were at one time soldiers.

This makes them all the more formidable. They know how to use weapons; how to organize; the value of discipline in their own ranks and the necessity of having competent leaders. Not long ago a meeting of Chinese Chambers of Commerce in Shanghai passed a resolution calling upon the Chinese Government to suppress the traffic in arms and ammunition. Without this trade the bandits would not be so dangerous. As matters stand, they are likely to be quite as well armed as any force sent against them. Chinese merchants find it profitable to buy rifles and ammunition and smuggle them to the bandits. Some noted bandit leaders have bought rifles in wholesale quantities from foreign manufacturers and as a result of corrupting Chinese officials have had them delivered safely. Deserting soldiers contribute their quota, and often soldiers when they are discharged without back pay turn bandits and bring to the camp their military experience as well as their weapons of destruction.

Economic reasons are also responsible for the failure of the Government to stamp out the bandits. When soldiers are sent against them as likely as not the soldiers have not been paid for months, and enter upon their task with no enthusiasm, often deserting if they find that the district where the bandits operate is likely to reward the industrious hold-up. The authorities at Tsinan, the capital of Shantung, when appealed to for protection, admitted frankly that they could do nothing. The bandits were stronger than the available military. In the past when sufficient pressure has been applied to the Pekin Government local authorities have sent armies into the bandit districts and these have returned with a creditable number of heads as fruits of their zeal. As a rule these heads were once the property of inoffending peasants whom the soldiers found it a great deal easier to kill than bandits. On other occasions the soldiers have been worse than the bandits and the citizens have often made requests that they should be withdrawn.

Shantung for generations has been the home of bandits, because it is so seriously overpopulated. It would appear that many thousands find it impossible to earn a living honestly, and the Chinese, like other people, choose to earn a dishonest living rather than starve. Famine and flood always add to the numbers of the bandits, who, as a rule, are said not to be cruel, although tales of torturing victims for ransoms have been heard. From time immemorial the Chinese worth preying upon have found the best way to deal with bandits is to pay them blackmail. If they hand over regular sums to the local bandit chief they will not be molested. At one time they sought to combat the bandits by Ku Klux methods. They formed many secret societies, but these the bandits also joined, so that the raids of the societies were known in advance, and when an attack was made the villagers often found as many bandits as honest men in their ranks. Until China once more has a strong Government in Pekin whose edict runs throughout the country, banditry will remain a plague.

Without Precedent.

On being told the story of Cain and Abel a little girl of six said: "But if nobody had ever been dead yet how did he know he had killed him?"—Boston Evening Transcript.

She—"He's a fellow from Yale."

We—"Oh, I've often heard of those Yale locks."

LACK POWER OF DESCRIPTION.

Average Person Unable Accurately to Define Things.

It seems rather strange, but there are a number of things which we know well enough and yet are totally unable to describe accurately.

In some cases, to give a description of an ordinary common object may require special scientific knowledge, in others it seems as though it ought to be simple enough to anybody—and yet nobody can do it!

An example of the former class is shown by the joke which was common a little while ago, of asking people what a spiral staircase is. It takes mathematician to define a spiral, and the average person finds it easier to trace one with his finger.

But suppose some one is asked how he distinguishes between beef and mutton! That requires no specialized knowledge, but the chances are that he will be hopelessly floored. Yet when he sees them both he will know each in a minute. Even then he will probably still be unable to explain exactly how he recognizes them.

Again, suppose some imaginary person of ordinary intelligence had never seen any flowers and had no idea what they were. How many people could tell him so that he could recognise them in future? Probably no one, not even the greatest botanist!

Other things which would seem to be easily and simply described really often require quite a lengthy explanation. For instance, to make the appearance of a book plain to anyone who didn't know would necessitate a fairly complete and detailed account of the process of bookbinding.

A man was once asked to describe (without making any diagrams, of course) the appearance of a violin. He soon got into difficulties and gave it up!

The reason for this curious inability to explain common things is that we are never called upon to do it. Neither has anyone ever explained them to us. People are shown flowers from infancy and get to "know" them without realizing why or how they do it. It is the same with thousands of commonly occurring "familiar" objects.

A man having once seen a violin would recognize another at any time, but any amount of verbal description of it would leave him almost as much in ignorance of what it looked like as before.

Still Hope For the World.

In a day when international courtesies of any kind are few and far between the London, Eng., Observer notices an interchange of courtesies between the Frankfurter Zeitung and a firm of Parisian florists.

Some twenty years ago the Frankfurter Zeitung established a fund for the preservation of the grave of Heinrich Heine, who lies buried in the cemetery of Montmartre. The Parisian firm of Desclers undertook to keep flowers and shrubs their contract for many years.

The war severed all relations between the two countries; but even when feeling was at its bitterest, the French florists faithfully did their duty by the dead poet, and his grave was never suffered to fall into neglect.

But the mark has now fallen to such a depth of depression that the Frankfurter Zeitung finds it impossible to turn marks to francs in order to pay the bills for which its fund was established and was regretfully compelled to write the French caretakers informing them that it was impossible to continue the work.

This is the reply that came back from Paris—a reply that is filled with more hope for the peace of the world than all the oratorical thunder of all the statesmen:

"We well understand that the present state of affairs is unfortunate for everybody. During the war we tended the grave of the great poet constantly, and we have not the intention to cease doing this. If things are readjusted to their former values again, you will be our debtor. If this does not happen, you will owe us nothing."—Living Age.

Fit as a Fiddle.

Why do we say "as fit as a fiddle?" If a violin is not in exact tune it will produce a discord distressing even to untrained ears.

So sensitive are these instruments that they are effected by the slightest change of temperature, while even playing one for any length of time jars the strings from their delicate adjustment.

Therefore, if it is to be played at all, a violin must be in perfect tune and, as everyone knows, it is "set" every time it is to be played. It has to be absolutely fit before it can be played. Thus we get the phrase "as fit as a fiddle," which dates back to the days when the "fiddle" was even more popular than it is to-day.

Fur-Bearing Animals Increasing.

An apparent increase in all varieties of animal life in Alaska, aided by a general respect for the game protection laws, is noted by Governor Bone in his annual report to the secretary of agriculture on enforcement of law, made public recently. Many fur-bearing animals particularly were said to be showing an increase despite the depredations of wolves, coyotes, eagles and hawks, which also are evidently growing in numbers.

Exercise and Change.

"So you've seen the doctor."

"Yes, and he ordered me to go up and down the front stairs for an hour in the forenoon and up and down the back stairs for an hour in the afternoon."

"Why the back stairs?"

"Oh, just for a change of climb it."—Boston Evening Transcript.

DUST UNTO DUST.

Eternal Law Seen in the Case of Egypt.

Egypt, the rich spawning bed of all the infamies and all the magnificences of the first epoch, that African India, where the waves of history broke and died, where but a few years before, Pompey and Antony had finished the dream of empire and of life, this prodigious country, born of water, burned by the sun, covered with the blood of many peoples, inhabited by many animal gods, this country, paradoxical and supernatural, was by contrast the predestined asylum for the fugitive.

The wealth of Egypt was in mud, in the rich snake-breeding mud which the Nile rolled out each year upon the desert. Death was the obsession of Egypt. The soft, prosperous people of Egypt would not accept death, denied death, thought they could conquer death with graven images, with embalmings, with sculptured representation of flesh-and-blood bodies. The rich, portly Egyptian, son of mud, adorer of the sacred bull, and the dog-headed god, could not resign himself to dying. He manufactured for his second life immense necropolises full of bandaged and perfumed mummies, of images of wood and marble, and raised up pyramids over his corpses, as if stone and mortar might save them from decay.

When Jesus could speak He was to pronounce the verdict against Egypt; the Egypt which is not only on the banks of the Nile, the Egypt which has not yet disappeared from the face of the earth along with its kings, its sparrow hawks and its serpents. Christ was to give the final and eternal answer to the terror of the Egyptians. He was to condemn the wealth which comes from mud and all the fetiches of the pot-bellied river dwellers of the Nile, and He was to conquer death without sculptured tombs, without mortuary kingdoms, without statutes of granite and basalt. His victory over death is won by teaching that sin is greedier than worms and that spiritual purity is the only aromatic which preserves from decay.

The worshippers of mud and animals, the servants of riches and the beast, could not save themselves. Their tombs, high as mountains though they be, decked out like queen's palaces, white and fair to see as those of the Pharisees, guard only ashes, dust returning to dust, even as the dead bodies of animals. Death cannot be conquered by copying life in wood and stone. Stone crumbles away and turns to dust, wood rots and turns to dust, and both of them are mud—eternal mud.—From the Life of Christ by Giovanni Papin.

Turquoise Mines.

Much as we may read of it in fairy tales, a great deal more than the use of magic words is required to open the vast rocks and caves of precious stones that abound in many quarters of the globe.

Prehistoric Mexican miners, for thousands of years before Columbus opened up traffic routes to the great continent, built enormous fires against the mountainous rocks in which views of turquoise were known to exist, to disintegrate the rock and yield up the precious stuff to the light of day.

These great turquoise mines have existed since the dim ages in the depths of two great hills, called Mount Chalchihuitl and Turquoise Hill.

On the side of the former are a number of ancient caverns, called by the early prospectors "wonder caves," or "mystery caves," which were worked by them for hidden gems. One of these pits is 130 feet deep, 200 feet across the rim, and 100 feet wide at the other end.

The extent of the mining which took place may be judged from the vast dumps of waste material, which still cover an area of about twenty acres. As is always the case in these mines, a great bulk of the material is so mixed up with the rocky matrix as to have no value, but every now and then a nugget is found that is big enough to yield a fine gem.

CORRUPTION IN NAME OF LAW

(Toronto Saturday Night)

One Anderson is the mainspring of the United States Anti-Saloon League. Mr. Anderson announces that had an appeal been made to the churches, and $50,000 raised it might have prevented the repeal of the Mullan-Gage law. All of which aids one to analyse the Anderson type of mind and dissect the morals of a man who suggests that the churches go into the wholesale business of corrupting legislators with money payments. Mr. Anderson apparently has a curious idea of the conscience of church memberships if he thinks that they would have willingly and knowingly contributed money for bribery purposes.

If the leaders of Tammany Hall, corrupt as that body is supposed to be, suggested a bribery fund of $50,000 for the repeal of the Mullan-Gage law, one can readily imagine the howl that would have gone up from the Anderson camp. Somehow or other it reminds one of the working out of the Ontario Temperance Act when gun men were employed to shoot and even to kill people in the name of the O. T. A.

RETIRING FIREBRANDS.

(London Express)

We must have an army in training, but it is our profound hope that none of these young men will have to face the ordeal of war. Every day the firebrands who think in war terms are retiring farther and farther into obscurity. It is certainly the intention of the country that its young soldiers will not be flung into the pit of sacrifice in furtherance of wild adventures in the future.

HOT WEATHER SUGGESTION.

(Guelph Mercury)

Sleeping on goose feathers or wearing rabbit skins is said to provoke hay fever. There's always somebody trying his best to disturb the peace of mind by questioning people's personal comforts. The report is likely propaganda, to get us out of the habit of sleeping on the old-fashioned feather bed, so conducive to sleep, whether hay fever is helped or not.

HAS COME TO STAY.

(Flint Journal)

Proposals to tax gasoline as recent as two or three years ago would have resulted in curtailment of the use of automobiles. But there will be no such result now. The motor vehicle has become such a necessity for business and family use, that its numbers will increase in spite of anything law makers may impose on its use.

However, the "poor" taxpayer should view with great satisfaction the stupendous growth of the automobile industry and especially the enormous increase of cars in use this year.

HE'S A CHAMP

"Curabus Auratus" is the name which the scientist gives to the common golden gardener beetle, one of the best insect friends of our gardens.

Very often this creature is a peaceful, lazy sort of chap and he likes to lie half buried in sand. This only happens when his stomach is full and there is no more food in convenient sight. But, just let a troop of caterpillars come ambling along—

When this happens, all of the lazy sand-resters come to life and dash out like an Arab band attacking a caravan. The golden gardener is a vicious slayer and there is nothing in the world he would rather kill and eat than caterpillars.

If there were enough caterpillars around, a band of 100 beetles would slaughter and consume 3,000 caterpillars in a single day. One jab of the beetle's sharp pincers and the caterpillar is done for. Only the very bushy haired species have any chance of surviving, because the beetles only pull out hair instead of inflicting the fatal wound when the hair on the caterpillar is very thick."

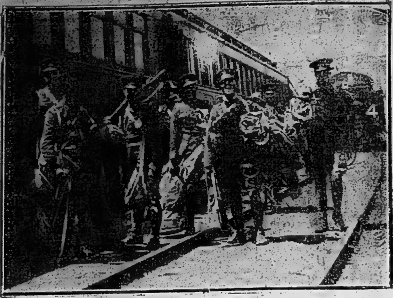
FAMOUS VOLCANO FILMED

Kilauea in Hawaii is seen in Betty Compson's "The White Flower". Manipulating motion picture cameras on the edge of the Famous Volcano Kilauea furnished plenty of excitement to the cast of "The White Flower" the new Betty Compson Picture was screened in the Hawaiian Islands and which will be on view at Griffin's Thursday to Saturday.



To Quell Sydney Strikers.—With steel helmets and other war equipment, more than 200 sildiers from Stanley Barracks have left Toronto for the east. The unit, composed of the Royal Canadian Regiment and the Royal Canadian Dragoons, will form part of the force to maintain law and order during the British Empire Steel Company's strike.

The Company remained in Hawaii for several weeks encompassing in that time beautiful backgrounds of Honolulu, exciting swimming scenes, on the Beach at Waikiki, scenes with a background of Pineapple and sugar cane plantations and other views colorfully representative of the famous American possession. Miss Compson plays a half-caste Hawaiian Girl, and is supported by Edmund Lowe, Edward Martindel, Arline Pretty, Sylvia Ashton, Leon Barry and Lilly Phillips.

In addition to this quality photoplay there will be a good comedy, an Educational picture, and a News film.

POPULAR STAR AT REGENT IN CLEVER FARCE

When we see a fat man slip on a banana peel and fall, although the thing may be a tragedy to him, our natural impulse is too laugh. Scientists have endeavored to explain this trait of human nature in various ways, but disagree as to the Fundamental impulse which prompts us to laugh at the woes of others. This impulse is vividly exemplified in fraction and drama and is the basis of most written humor.

Hoot Gibson has a lot of trouble in "Single-Handed" his latest photoplay which opens at the Regent Thursday night. In this story Gibson plays the role of a Country Town Youth, with a knack of continually getting into trouble, but what is tragedy to him affords untold humor to the bystanders he was continually fiddling to the annoyance of everyone in town.

The ability of Gibson as an actor of western holes has never been questioned and his knack of combining the parts of a country town Boob and Western Character is one is a treat to see, there is not a dull moment during the run of the photplay.

Comedy, Educational and News Films will also be shown.

LAST SHOWINGS TO-NIGHT

The final showings of "The Cowboy and The Lady", the big picture featuring Mary Miles Minter and Tom Moore, will take place at Griffin's to-night. The play has attained wide popularity, and its success has been merited. Don't miss it.

Other films of interest in addition to the above are also being shown.

LAST SHOWING OF THE WALLFLOWER AT REGENT

When she danced at a party every Patent Leather shoe in the room was in danger, all her dreams of romance was punctured one by one and so broken hearted she threw her self under the wheels of an automobile and was bumped into a Heaven on Earth for the car was driven by the one man who could change the Wall Flower into a Rose. The close up tells the story of the happy feat. It is a real good story, you'll say so.

Other films of merit will be showing along with the above.

ALBERTA WHEAT HIT BY STORM

Lethbridge, July 4.—Damage, which it is estimated will run into millions of dollars, resulted from a terrific hailstorm and hurricane which swept a path in Southern Alberta from three to ten miles wide and 150 miles long, northwest and southeast.

Entering Southern Alberta around Midnapore and Dewinton, where calves were killed by hailstones, the hurricane swept through Okotoks, High River, Aldersyde and thence south between the Aldersyde and Macleod branches of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The average strip which was the worst hit was about four miles wide. The storm struck south, crossing the Crow's Nest branch between Monarch and Nobleford, through Coalhurst and Lethbridge, breaking thousands of panes of glass, thence south through the Wilson siding district and south between Sterling and Raymond into the Milk River ridge ranching district, south of Raymond.

No reports of lives lost are to hand, but the earliest wheat is practically 100 per cent. loss in the path of the storm.

HUMAN BLOOD ON DELORME'S AUTO

Montreal, July 4.—Human blood and soap, the latter in such quantities that small particles of it could be detached, were found on the rear cushion of the automobile owned by the Rev. J. Adelard Delorme, according to expert testimony given at the trial of the accused yesterday by Dr. W. Derome, medical expert at the Montreal morgue.

Dr. Derome's testimony was admitted only after strenuous objection by C. H. Cahan, K.C, counsel for the defense. Mr. Cahan contended that medical science had not progressed to such a point yet, where an infallible test could be made to distinguish whether a stain of blood was that of a human being, or of an animal.

The crown prosecutor said he could not follow Mr. Cahan when he said that an expert must come from abroad or from a great distance. Dr. Derome, he pointed out, was on the spot, the stains were fresh. He made the tests under the advance science had then made, that was two years ago, and he got certain results. He admitted that a cross-examination might show that some doubt exists and that if they do not go above a reasonable doubt they must be set aside. He maintained, however, that evidence should go before the jury.

Effective and "Pleasant to Take"

The foundation of healthy, happy manhood and womanhood lies in a healthy childhood and babyhood. Keeping babies and children healthy frequently demands the use of a good laxative to keep the bowels open, or an anti-acid preparation to neutralize a disordered condition in the stomach.

Milk of Magnesia combines these qualities to a remarkable degree, and is, therefore, very generally prescribed and used for this purpose. It is mild, hence especially suitable for young persons.

REXALL MILK OF MAGNESIA is the best kind we know of and we recommend it unhesitatingly. It is of full strength and purity, almost tasteless, pleasant to take, thoroughly reliable and not injurious in any way. Good for young and old alike; the best that can be produced.

CASH PLANT TO OPEN IN AUGUST

Factory in Grier School Building Expect to Employ More Than 50 Hands

BEGIN REMODELLING

Brantford Equipment Will be Brought Here—Old Country Workers Coming

Mr. A. Lole, chief engineer for J. and J. Cash, Inc., South Norwalk, Conn., and Mr. George Bagley, manager of the Brantford branch of the same manufacturing organization, have been in Belleville the last two days mapping out plans for the reconstruction of the Grier Street school building which they have purchased and which they took possession of today.

The Patterson Construction Co., has the contracts for remodelling the building and fitting it up to meet the requirements of the new proprietors. This work must be completed considerably before the first of August. By that time Mr. Bagley expects to have the first set of looms installed and in operation. By September he hopes to have the work of installation completed and the full force at work. All the looms and other factory equipment at Brantford are being moved to Belleville and, in addition, several other looms for special work are being newly imported from England. A number of trained workers from Brantford are moving to Belleville and besides those there will be several young women highly skilled in the operation of the new looms who are coming over here from the main plant at Coventry, England. All the other workers will be trained locally at Belleville.

It is expected that from twenty-five to thirty hands will be employed at the beginning, increasing later to fifty or more.

As announced some time ago J. and J. Cash are engaged in the manufacture of woven labels, wash ties, scarves, gloves, wash cloths and other specialties. The firm has been established for more than one hundred years at Coventry, Eng., and has branches at South Norwalk, Conn., Los Angeles, Cal., and Melbourne, Australia.

With the closing of the Brantford factory, Belleville will have the only branch in operation in Canada. This city is indeed fortunate in securing so soundly established an industry without the payment of bonuses, the giving of free sites, the purchased of stock or offering special inducements of any kind. Belleville was chosen simply because if its superlative advantages as an industrial location.

Mr. and Mrs. Lole, who have been stopping at the Quinte, left by the eleven o'clock train for New York via Kingston and Cape Vincent. Mr. Bagley left for Brantford by the International Limited this afternoon He expected to return in about two weeks time.

MANY INTERESTS AT CADET CAMP

Boys at Barriefield Find Days Well Filled—Routine Popular

Jim Alexander, of the Y.M.C.A. here, who is assistant to the officer in charge of the "Y" tent at Cadet Camp, Barriefield, reports that everything is "lovely" at the big camp. There are eight hundred cadets under canvas, and everyone is busy. Recreation is the phrase of camp life which the "Y" is looking after, and interesting programs have been planned.

The Ottawa cadet band gave a splendid concert Monday night; the Second Battalion put on a concert and movie show Tuesday night, and last night the Kingston Rotary Club staged a concert. More than 300 letters are posted out of the camp each morning. Already 100 entries have been received for a monster checker tournament which has been arranged.

Barriefield Camp, July 5.—The boys have taken to the routine of camp life at the cadet camp here very quickly and are enjoying it to the utmost. Their full program of drill was carried out yesterday, and a bathing parade to Navy Bay was staged. Each morning all the cadets attend church service, according to their different denominations, the Catholics being in charge of Captain the Rev. Father Desjardins and the Protestants in charge of Major the Rev. H. I. Horsey and Major the Rev. W. E. Kidd. After breakfast the morning drill is commenced and this is continued till dinner time, which is 12:30 standard time for the boys and 1 p.m. for the officers.

An inspection of the Mess arrangements was conducted by Major-General J. H. Elmsley at 1.30 yesterday afternoon and the general inspection of the cadets will take place to-morrow evening.

At 7 p.m., daylight saving time, the inspection will be commenced and during that ceremony the distribution of prizes for the various competitions at camp will take place. After that the big military tattoo will be held, with the massed bugle bands of the camp and the brass band of the P.W.O.R. The committee which is making every effort to have the tattoo a big success consists of Major W. J. McManus, Major Wheatley, Sgt.-Major Gilbert and Sgt.-Instructor Day. The De La Salle Cadet Corps will supply a guard of honor, accompanied by their bugle band, for the ceremony at the Royal Military College tomorrow in connection with the Historical Society meeting.

One of the contests that is attracting much attention, being really one of the features of the camp, is the guard which is maintained over the quarters of the Camp Commandant, Capt. V. W. S. Heron. Tuesday the guard was taken from the 3rd Battalion, the Lindsay Cadet Corps, and yesterday the De La Salle Cadet Corps from Ottawa were in charge of the guard. The guard goes on duty in the morning being stationed in a tent outside the Commandant's billet. All day one of the members paces up and down in front of the headquarters.

The boys are thoroughly looked after in regard to their health and Major Kane stated yesterday that he expected very little illness among the boys. The hospital emblem flies in the breeze outside the camp just the same as it was flown outside the base hospital in France.

The representatives of the Ontario Athletic Commission were busy yesterday morning making preparations for athletic contests. A sand pit was being constructed for jumping events and all other lines of sport will be given attention. Baseball equipment has arrived and the boys will be given a chance to show what they can do in that game.

The men in charge of the athletics, Mr. Harvey Pulford, Mr. Nick Bawlf, and Sgt.-Major Ernest Morgan, are all very popular with the boys, and are busy looking after their many requirements.

Railway Strike Now Threatened In Great Britain

Few Children Hurt In Motor Accidents Here

Realizing that in most accidents in which a child is injured by a motor car, it is the child, and not the motorist who is the contributory cause of the accident, the Ontario Safety League have addressed an open letter to Ontario mothers and fathers:

When asked if he had received a copy of the letter, Chief Kidd yesterday stated that he had. The Police Department receives circulars and literature from the Ontario Safety League from time to time.

"Do you intend taking any action or have you authority to take action in the matter"? the chief was asked.

"No, we will not find it necessary to do so", he replied, "as Providence has been very kind to us in this city, in this connection, there being almost no accidents of this type occurring."

"Encourage your children to play in their own yards, in adjacent and conveniently located playgrounds provided by the city, and in vacant lots. Keep them off the streets and roadways. Many fatalities occur on account of children being allowed to wander into the streets by themselves.

"Children should not be allowed in the streets without an adult to look after them. Instruct them as soon as possible to always look, especially before crossing the street; to cross at intersections only; not to cross between street intersections; to cross at the same time with vehicle traffic; to cross on what would be the sidewalk allowance if extended over the intersection; not to be a Jay Walker, nor walk diagonally across the street.

"Teach your children not to ride on the back of vehicles. Teach them when on bicycles not to hold on to the rear of moving automobiles, trucks or horse drawn vehicles."

The Police agree that there is much truth in the statement that in many cases, the children, and not the motorists, are to blamo fore the accidents.

At 2.30 p.m. the condition of Frank Kelliher was announced by hospital authorities as about the same, there being no appreciable improvement. Kelliher was severely injured when thrown from his bicycle against a lamp post, on Dundas street, yesterday afternoon, when a runaway team of horses hitched to an ice wagon collided with him.

MISSING MAN'S BODY IS FOUND

Patrick Hastings Believed Killed in Fall from Train at Lansdowne

BODY IS CLAIMED

Was Enroute to Toronto From Scotland When Fatal Mishap Occurred

The disappearance of Patrick Hastings from a G.T.R. train, while en route from Montreal to Toronto, was solved by the finding of his body on the roadbed of the railway at Lansdowne, near Brockville, yesterday morning. Hastings was apparently killed by a train but no witnesses to the accident have been located.

When found, the body was lying between the two tracks. Upon examination, it was ascertained that there were severe scalp wounds, that one leg was broken and the torso was severely bruised. A watch was the only article found in the clothing and for some time the body was not identified. At Lansdowne an inquest was opened and adjourned until Friday.

Relatives of the deceased at Toronto were notified of the finding of the body and left for Lansdowne to claim it. The body will be removed to Toronto. The general impression is that Hastings at an early hour on Tuesday morning, after divesting himself of his coat and hat, walked to the rear of the coach and was thrown from the vestibule by the jolting of the train, and hurled against the sides of the cars behind.

TRAIN STRIKES RIG; AGED MAN INJURED

Mr. Nelson Giles, 88, Suffers Fractured Shoulder in Crossing Track

Mr. Nelson Giles, an aged resident of Ameliasburg, was seriously injured at Cannifton road crossing when the democrat in which he was riding was struck by a west-bound ballast train about 9.30 this morning. He suffered a fractured shoulder and severe scalp wounds.

Mr. Giles was returning from a trip to the country when the accident occurred. He was coming towards the city and his horse was travelling slowly, it appears. The train which has been hauling gravel was empty at the time, and was not travelling very fast. Engineer Pinkston, in charge of the train, blew the whistle at least three times before nearing the crossing, he said.

Mr. Giles was apparently unaware of the approaching locomotive and as a result the hind left wheel of his rig was hit and the vehicle hurled some distance away. Mr. Giles was thrown into the air several feet. His injuries were immediately treated. A box on which Mr. Giles had been sitting, together with a crate, were thrown a considerable distance down the track. The vehicle was badly damaged, both shafts and the one rear wheel being shattered.

Mr. Giles was rushed to the hospital in the Grand Trunk ambulance, where he was attended by Drs. Wallbridge and Tennant. They pronounced his condition as serious, his injuries being chiefly scalp wounds and a broken shoulder.

Mrs. Sam. Way, who was near the scene and who noticed the approach of the train and the man's position, was quick to realize the danger and she sprang directly over the coupling between the freight cars. By this time, however, the engine had struck the unfortunate man. Mrs. Way and a neighbor, Mrs. Connor, bathed the victim's forehead and made him as comfortable as possible until the arrival of the ambulance. During this time Mr. Giles was conscious and was able to talk with those about him.

Two boys had leaped on the rig previous to the accident and shouted at Mr. Giles. Whether he was confused or failed to hear the warning is not known.

Mr. Giles is eighty-eight years old and has been a resident of Prince Edward county for many years. From last reports he is resting easily.

The horse Mr. Giles was driving was severely cut and bruised and three of its ribs were broken.

CROWN HOPES TO REST THIS WEEK

Montreal, July 5.—A feature of the evidence in the Delorme trial yesterday was the evidence of a witness called by the crown for the object of showing that the accused could have been at Snowdon, where Raoul Delorme's body was found at 11.35 or 11.45 and at Cote St. Michel toward midnight. It will be remembered that different sets of witnesses have testified that a car, alleged to have been the priests, were seen in these two different districts, several miles apart on the night of the murder.

Montreal, July 5.—The prosecution in the trial of the Rev. J. Adelard Delorme hopes to complete its case by Friday of this week, or Saturday at the latest, it was stated yesterday. The last move to be made by R. L. Calder, K.C., crown prosecutor, will be to ask the court's permission to read into the record the testimony given by the accused when he was called as a witness at the investigation into the murder which took place before Coroner McMahon and a jury. At that time no one, with the possible exception of some of the police officers, suspected that the Abbe would be accused of the crime. It is anticipated that the defense counsel will raise strenuous objection to such testimony being presented.

Yateman Not Yet Cleared in Fatal Accident Probe

The verdict of accidental death, returned by the coroner's jury last night, at the inquest into the death of Mrs. Emma Loyst, does not necessarily clear Harry Yateman, driver of the car which struck the woman, inflicting injuries which later caused death, of the charge of criminal negligence, which has been preferred against him by the Provincial police.

This was the opinion of Mr. C. Cameron, counsel for the accused, when asked this morning. There is no doubt however, that the verdict will have a bearing on the case. It will be necessary to have a recommendation from the Attorney General's Department in order to clear the accused from the charge.

When asked about the case this morning, both District Inspector R. Bumpstead of the Provincial Police, and Acting Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, stated that the preliminary hearing will take place at police court here to-morrow morning at 10 a.m., but that in all probability, the case would be laid over for one week in order for the Crown officials to make further investigations. Yateman is now out on bail of $4,000.

There has been no indication of any contemplated legal action by Mr. Jay B. Loyst, husband of the victim.

Over 1,000 Present at Sunday School Picnic

The picnic held at Massassaga park yesterday under the auspices of the Bridge Street, Holloway Street and Tabernacle Methodist Churches Sunday school was a decided success. It is estimated that more than 1,000 were in attendance and all thoroughly enjoyed the outing.

The steamer Brockville, made several trips from the Government dock to the Point carrying a large number each time. In the evening a delightful sail upon the bay was a picnic feature. During the afternoon a program of sports was carried out and prizes were awarded to the successful competitors. At a seasonable hour at night all had been safely landed home. The attractions upon the park were liberally patronized.

SECRECY SHROUDS NEW NEGOTIATIONS

London, July 5.—Secrecy is being preserved by the government as to the nature of the exchanges between the French ambassador, Count de Saint Aulaire, and Lord Curzon. An official said there never had been a time since the war when secrecy was deemed so imperative. Negotiations going on are of most delicate and vital kind, and they are likely to leave the position either very much better or very much worse between England and France.

A cabinet meeting is being held to consider Curzon's report of his interview with the French ambassador who stated Poincare's view on the questions regarding the French policy, which were asked in the British memorandum.

THE BOYS ENJOY CAMP LIFE

Everything is going strong at the Boys' Camp at Moira Lake, according to reports received from those who have visited the tented city. The boys claim that the chef is a dandy, and after all that is the big factor in the average growing boy's life.

The leaders are proving themselves to be competent executives. To-day a new punt will be launched and another punt is coming. Mr. R. C. Sidenius will be at the camp over the week-end and will have charge of the Sunday services. It is expected that another group of boys will leave Monday for the camp.

Evidence Shows Both Victim and Driver Negligent

Witnesses at Inquest Reconstruct Fatal Accident Before Members of Jury.

CAR NOT SPEEDING

Verdict Infers Negligence Was Evident, Attaches No Blame to Parties Involved.

After having been out almost one hour, the Coroner's Jury in the inquest into the death of Mrs. Florence Emma Loyst, last night returned a verdict of accidental death. It was inferred, that both the driver of the car, Harry Yateman, and the dead woman, Mrs. Loyst, may have been negligent to a certain extent, but it was held that no direct blame could be attached to the driver of the car.

Mrs. Loyst, it will be remembered, was struck by a Star car, driven by Harry Yateman, on the Trent road on the evening of Saturday last, while she crossed the roadway from a buggy to the entrance of the Loyst farm.

None of the witnesses examined last night believed that Yateman was driving at an excessive rate of speed. The majority of witnesses were reticent about estimating the speed, apparently being of the opinion that the speed was moderate. However, two witnesses estimated the speed at 25 miles per hour, and one witness believed that Yateman was driving rather fast for the amount of traffic on the highway, and the proximity of the railway crossing.

The evidence was very carefully brought out by Coroner Boyce, Crown Attorney Donnan, and the jurors, who asked numerous questions, the accident being completely reconstructed for the benefit of the jury.

All seemed agreed that the Yateman car was stopped as promptly as possible, that his brakes were working well, no liquor had been consumed by either driver or passenger in the car and that a desperate effort was made to avoid the woman by swerving the car sharply. Indeed, one witness, who saw the accident believed that had the brakes not been applied so firmly, the injuries to the woman would not have been so severe as the left rear wheel almost came to rest on top of the woman's body, then slowly rolled off.

Following is the verdict as brought in by Foreman Charles D. Campbell of the Coroner's Jury, and handed to Coroner Boyce:

"We, the jury, find on the evidence submitted that the said Florence Emma Loyst came to death on Sunday July 1, at the Belleville General Hospital, due to injuries received on the evening of June 30 by being struck by an automobile driven by one, Harold Yateman, along the Provincial highway in front of her home.

We find on the evidence submitted that while both the driver of the car and the deceased may have been negligent to a certain extent, yet no direct blame can be attached to the driver of the car and therefore we return a verdict of accidental death."

Dr. J. Robertson was the first witness at the inquest, and told of the injured woman Florence Emma Loyst having been brought to his office after the accident. The woman was found to have had several ribs fractured on the right side, and one of the ribs had perforated the lungs. She was brought to the office about 8 p. m. Saturday and died at the General Hospital at 2.30 Sunday. The woman was suffering from shock but rallied, death being due to perforation of the lungs and heart failure.

To Mr. Cameron, counsel for Yateman—"Mrs. Loyst was rather a frail woman. I have been her physician for some five years. I do not think the car passed over the woman, an examination of the lower part of the body did not indicate that she had been run over. The injury appeared as though she were struck by something softer than a fender, possibly a tire.

When asked if the injuries received would cause death if the woman was normally robust, Dr. Robertson stated that he did not believe that they would.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

Like a House—Your Foundation.

You know right away how important to a house is its foundation. The builder chooses hard ground—not sand—and then puts in a foundation of stone, brick, or cement—something hard that will stand the weight of the house.

And so when the foundation of that body of yours had to be planned it was designed for strength and stability. I refer to the framework of bones that carries your organs inside, and your muscles outside.

Why the very first food you receive—milk—is meant to help in the formation of bone.

Did you ever stop to think of that wonderful foundation or framework of yours?

The huge heavy bones of the spinal column piled one on top of the other that give you carriage, support you in the erect position, and incidentally protect that precious nerve bundle, your spinal cord.

Then the framework of ribs protecting heart and lungs. Also the heavy bony case, the skull, protecting your brain. Think also of the huge bones of the legs that carry your entire weight, and the bones of the arms that support the finer muscles of the arms and hands.

Even the finer or special senses of hearing, seeing, speaking, and smelling have a foundation of bone supporting them.

Now although you are born with this bony frame, it does not become completely "set" as it were, until you are grown to manhood or womanhood.

And so when you see your youngster growing up with round shoulders, low shoulders, bow legs, knock knees, sway back, flat feet, drooping neck and so forth, just remember that you are the one responsible if these conditions are not corrected at least in part.

This is the condition of their foundation and these faults in the foundation should be corrected before the final structure—adult manhood or womanhood is reached.

So watch the foundation.

GIRLS, GIRLS, AND MORE GIRLS SEEN IN COMPSON FILM

Many Hawaiian women enter the lists for service in the White Flower Tall Girls, and Short Girls, Slim Girls and Plump Girls, Pretty Girls and—well, girls not so pretty, but girls, girls, scores of them, all dressed up in their nicest frocks, stormed the office of the Doyle Touring Service in Honolulu to apply for jobs as minor actresses in Betty Compson's latest photoplay "The White Flower, which was produced in the Hawaiian Islands, and which will be an unusual feature at the Griffin theatre opening tonight and for the balance of the week. A general invitation had been issued by Manager Griffith of the Compson Company to apply for places in the scenes requiring many people.

And how the Honolulu girls hopped to it. Unfortunately, however, several attractive misses loitered about the street corners apparently appalled by the mob-like proportions of the crowd around the Doyle office, and failed to muster sufficient courage to run the gauntlet of the crowd which gathered to this novel event. Who can tell how many of these super-bashful maidens forfeited a golden opportunity to leap into fame via the motion picture.

At any rate Mrs. Julia Crawford Ivers, who wrote the story and directed the picture, secured the most beautiful girls in the Islands to serve as "atmosphere" for the action of Miss Compson and the balance of a well picked cast.

A variety of shorter length films, comedy, western and educational films, will complete the program.

GIBSON PROVES PATHOS IS BASIS OF REAL HUMOR

We are told that the basis of all humor is pathos. Charlie Chaplin is the real example of this theory. When Chaplin is sad on the screen his audience is convulsed and until recently Chaplin has remained alone in his field. But another actor has appeared as widely removed from Chaplin as may be imagined in the type of roles that he plays, who evinces that same faculty of being very funny when he is pathetic. This ability of Hoot Gibson has never been seen to better advantage than in "Single Handed", his newest picture, which will be the photoplay offering at the Regent tonight and the balance of the week.

Gibson impersonated a country town youth who is considered a boob by his fellow townsmen and through perfectly good intentions gets involved in a whole flock of embarrassing situations.

The picture is one of action as are all of the Gibson pictures, and not a dull minute has been allowed throughout the run of the picture. A well selected variety of shorter length films will also be shown in addition to the above.

REV. KERR LEAVES FOR BRITISH ISLES

Rev. A. S. Kerr, who has been for some years the popular pastor of St. Andrew's Church in this city, left yesterday for a trip to Scotland, and the British Isles. On Tuesday evening at the home of Major and Mrs. Bumpstead, 178 Bleecker avenue, a farewell was given to Rev. Mr. Kerr by members of his congregation. During the evening the journeying minister was presented with a purse of money, the same being presented by Mr. Wm. McIntosh, who presided over the gathering. Brief addresses were given by Rev. Dr. McTavish, Rev. D. C. Ramsay, N. Thompson, J. W. Hall, J McIntosh and Wm Leslie, all of whom wished Rev. Mr. Kerr, a bon voyage and safe return. To the many complimentary remarks made and the presentation, Rev. Mr. Kerr replied in a most suitable manner. The Johnstone Pipe Band furnished a programme of music, playing a number of Scottish airs. Refreshments were served to all present. The lawn where the affair took place was appropriately decorated for the occasion and all were made welcome by Major and Mrs. Bumpstead.

FOXBORO GARDEN PARTY

Under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Methodist Church at Foxboro, a garden party was held last evening on the church lawn and was largely attended. An excellent supper was served at 6 p.m. Booths upon the grounds supplied with delicacies of the season were liberally patronized. The Foxboro brass band was present and rendered a number of tuneful selections. A delightful programme was carried out those taking part benig Miss Phyllis Stewart, elocutionist, Mr. F. W. Sprague soloist, Misses Marjory Bird and Valeria Wrightmeyer, soloists. Brief addresses were given by several ministers who were present. A goodly sum was realized for a worthy purpose.

Photographed the Danish King.—Pirie Macdonald, the well-known New York photographer, traveled 3,800 miles to photograph Christian X., King of Denmark, and pronounces him to be a man of men, a man of heart and gentleness, but strong both in a physical and mental sense. The photograph shown above was one of those taken by Mr. Macdonald in the king's palace at Amalienborg. The New Yorker found the Danish king very democratic. "He came forward with his hand toward me and a grasp that was good to feel. He took me by the elbow to the door—then stepped to one side for me to precede him."

THE MOTOR CAR MENACE

The deplorable accident on Saturday night, as a result of which a wife and mother was struck and fatally injured by a motor car, illustrates vividly the menace of motor cars when proper caution is not exercised.

Since pedestrians instinctively avoid personal danger, the onus of responsibility must rest upon the drivers, although pedestrians are frequently guilty of contributory negligence. The chief danger, however, is to children, who are lured into the streets by childish inclinations and, ignorant of the danger, often find themselves in the path of a speeding motor car.

The first responsibility lies, of course, with their parents, who should keep them from all streets on which there is an appreciable amount of traffic. Children should be taught to realize the danger and there should be instilled in their minds a proper regard for the menace represented in speeding motor cars. Children should not be permitted to "catch" rides on trucks or to attach themselves to moving vehicles while riding bicycles.

When the parents are delinquent in this duty to their children, it becomes the task of the police department to impress upon the parents the seriousness of their obligation and to assist in the preservation of the lives of the boys and girls of the community.

Chief of Police Kidd has informed the Intelligencer that a kind Providence has hitherto guarded the youngsters of Belleville and that serious accidents to which children were parties have been rare in the city. However, although the Belleville police department is in no wise remiss in its duty in this matter, it is wise to be prepared. As an old adage teaches, "it is idle to lock the barn after the horse is stolen."

In this connection, it might be suggested that reasonably severe punishment in accident cases where motor drivers are found culpable usually proves an effective deterrent.

IMMIGRATION

In his speech before the Senate and House at the closing of the second session of the fourteenth parliament of the Dominion of Canada on Saturday, the Governor General said:

> An increasing immigration has been a significant feature of the present year. Agreements have been negotiated with the British Government for co-operation in an Assisted Passage Scheme; and closer co-operation has been effected between the Railways, Shipping Companies and the Department of Immigration and Colonization which, it is anticipated, will produce a large increase in the number of desirable settlers."

In this passage, the Governor General sounded an encouraging note. Intelligent co-operation between the Canadian and British governments, the railways, ocean shipping company's and the departments in Canada entrusted with the advancement of this phase of development should prove especially effective during the next few years.

The United States has inaugurated a drastic elimination system in connection with the immigration movement, hoping thereby to cull undersirables and to introduce into American society only those whose advent will serve to advance American progress and nourish American ideals. The nation below the border has found that lack of discrimination in the acceptance of immigrants has resulted in the presence within its borders of heterogeneous groups, large numbers of which are liabilities rather than assets.

To factions in these groups is attributed a large part of the "red" agitation, which has seriously menaced American industry during the past few years.

Yet, despite the rigid immigration laws now in effect in the States, thousands are clamoring for entrance. The attraction is the highly developed state of industry and the wide range of commercial interests in the States. An appreciable number of these could be diverted into Canada or, better, could be encouraged to leave their European homes with Canada as their destination if the proper course were pursued.

When the United States was in its early stages of development, the solid foundations of the nation were laid by sturdy immigrants from England, Scotland, Ireland, the Scandinavian countries and Germany. To these early settlers the nation owes much. Canada today has thousands of them within her borders and she has now to offer the same inducements, which led those adventurous souls to brave the oceans in frail sailing vessels three-quarters of a century ago.

This type of immigrants is still available and Canada can secure them in the thousands if she can evolve a practicable immigration policy. With the various great interests of the country co-ordinated an efficient system could be devised, whereby the fertile lands of the west and especially the newer areas, such as the Peace River and Peace Vine countries, could be populated by stout-hearted and God-fearing men and women, whose energies would add greatly to the country's wealth and whose sound philosophy and inherent loyalty would soldify national spirit and expand industrial interests.

American experience has taught the advisability of carefully selecting citizenship stock and this phase of the undertaking should be judiciously considered.

By The Side Of The Road

The farmers in France complain that wireless broadcasting is responsible for the cold, rainy weather experienced in France during the past three months. Too bad they can't utilize the hot air, which is being wasted in the Chamber of Deputies.

—o—

Press despatches state that few more than 7,000 witnessed the Dempsey-Gibbons fisticuff tete-a-tete. Dempsey is accustomed to much larger optiences. On viewing the assembly at Shelby, he must have felt moved to cry with the Roman Emperor", Varus, Varus, bring me back my legions."

—o—

As a matter of fact, if the despatches are correctly interpreted, the battlers didn't attract much larger crowd than the Ferguson-Raney debate at Fergus. The latter event certainly served a better purpose.

—o—

Thousands of Americans flocked to Montreal to celebrate American Independence Day. They have lots of fireworks in the States, but their firewater is of a poor quality. Hence the exodus in the direction of Montreal.

—o—

If some disciple of Burbank in the zoological field can evolve a boneless fish and a wriggleless fishworm, he shall greatly convenience a vast army of Izaak Waltons. While at the task he might also experiment on stimulation of the 'striking' proclivities of game fish. By the way, it is certainly keenly disappointing to land a fine bass, only to find that it is just a trifle under size and to be warned by the Fish Inspector to return it to its habitat.

—o—

The person who originated the phrase, "Yes, we have no bananas" should apply for a diplomatic post in some world theatre where ambiguity and side-stepping form an important part in a diplomat's life. If there is any sense in the phrase, we fail to grasp it.

Doctor—How did your husband take pneumonia?

PRESS OPINIONS

YOU'VE NOTICED IT.

(Detroit Free Press.)

Man's a curious animal. He'll hear a little knock in his four-cylinder motor and beat it to the service station to find out what's wrong. But let his own throat get sore or his own pipes become wheezy and he'll go right on leaving them to get well the best way they may.

OPPOSITE METHOD.

(Springfield Union.)

What the people of Great Britain seem to have accomplished in a rational way brought the force of moral suasion we seem not to have accomplished nearly so well with our irrational attempt to legislate the individual into a state of complete sobriety.

NOISE AND BUSTLE.

(Woodstock Sentinel-Review)

A clergyman in the United States declared recently that church unity would be impossible until people gave up the idea "that God is first to be found in noise and bustle and programmes and political methods or managing other peoples' affairs. Such a statement may be worthy of more consideration than it is likely to receive. This is in age of noise and bustle, and there is a tendency towards political methods for managing other people's affairs, which some people attribute to religious zeal and some to other causes.

THE PEOPLE PAY.

(London Advertiser.)

In be long run a provincial Government has only one source of revenue, and that is the people. Getting Government money is not finding cash—it is taking it from the people.

[illegible]

(Brantford Expositor)

[illegible] complain[illegible] of a [illegible] apathy regarding the Provincial general elections. The explanation seems to be that the average elector has loosened his party moorings and finds it just difficult to define where he is at, and what are the outstanding issues of the campaign.

TIRED OF THE IRISH QUESTION

(Philadelphia Ledger)

The fever in Ireland's blood is cooling. At last it has been borne in upon the rebel chiefs that theirs is one of the lost causes of the world. They looked to Americans for help. It is not coming, for Americans are tired of the Irish question and are convinced of the justice of the Anglo-Irish pact. If this, indeed, be the end of Irish madness, all of Ireland and all Irish folk everywhere are to be congratulated.

Wit and Humor

PERPETUAL MOTION

A negro called upon an old friend who received him in a rocking-chair. The victor observed not only that his host did not rise, but that he continued to rock himself to and fro in a most curious way.

"No, I ain't sick, Mose," said Harrison.

"Den," continued Mose, "why does yo' rock yo'self dat way, all de time?"

"Yo' know Bill Blott? Well, he sold me a silver watch cheap, an' if I stops moving like dis, dat watch don't go!"

Canada Confident of the Future

CANADA is endeavoring to regain her after-the-war stride in the midst of many difficulties, — debt, deflation and depression being some of them.

Quack remedies and academic theories beset her path on every side. Some suggest that our debt worries can best be eased by going further into debt. Others preach blue ruin, decry their own country and indulge in mischievous propaganda generally, while still others look for a new social order or some miraculous sign to indicate a better coming day—all this in apparent forgetfulness of the fact that just as there was no royal road to win the war, there is now no royal road to pay for it or regain our former buoyancy, vigor and confidence.

Some are leaving Canada hoping to escape taxation, only to find there is no escape anywhere. In seeking for easy remedies too many of us overlook the fact that the greatest remedy is honest, hard work faithfully and intelligently performed, accompanied by old-fashioned thrift.

It takes time, it takes patience, it takes grit. But every Canadian knows in his heart that Canada is coming through all right.

Our Experience Proves It

Look back over the path Canada has trod. The French Colonists, cut off from civilization by 3,000 miles of sea, faced a continent—a wilderness—without the aid of even a blazed trail. They had to fight savages, frosts, scurvy, loneliness and starvation.

The United Empire Loyalists subdued an unbroken forest in one generation, growing their first wheat amid the stumps and snags of the new clearing.

The Selkirk settlers came to Manitoba when the prairie was a buffalo pasture, and grew wheat where none had grown before and where those who knew the country best at that time said wheat never would grow. To-day the Canadian prairies grow the finest wheat in the world.

In proportion to population Canada stands to-day among the wealthiest nations in the world, with average savings on deposit per family of $800. Canada's foreign trade per head of population stands amongst the highest of the commercial nations, being $192 per capita in 1922-23, as compared with $135 in 1913-14, the "peak" year before the war.

New Opportunities for Canada

In Canada, although prices in the world markets fell below war level, our farmers reaped last autumn the largest grain crop in Canadian history, and Canada became the world's largest exporter of wheat, thus in large measure making up for lower prices.

Last year, Great Britain, after an agitation extending over thirty years, removed the embargo on Canadian cattle, and a profitable and practically unlimited trade is opening up for Canadian stockers and feeders.

"The 20th Century belongs to Canada"—if Canadians keep faith.

The next article will suggest practical opportunities for profit making on our Canadian farms.

Today
Go fight the film on teeth
Watch the new beauty come

Your dealer will give you a ten-day test of a new teeth cleaning method. Go learn what it means to you.

Millions now employ it. Dentists the world over now advise it. It is bringing to people of some 50 nations whiter, cleaner, safer teeth.

You will want these results when you know them. And you will want all your people to have them.

Why teeth grow dingy—why decay

Food stains, etc., discolor film. Then it forms dingy coats. Tartar is based on film. That is why teeth lose luster.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. That is why tooth troubles have been almost universal.

Germs breed by millions in film. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. And that is alarmingly common.

Two film combatants found

Dental science has long been trying to meet this situation. Two film combatants have been found. One acts to curdle film, one to remove it, and without any harmful scouring.

Able authorities proved these methods effective. Then a new-type tooth paste was created to apply them twice a day. That tooth paste is called Pepsodent. The glistening teeth you see everywhere now are due largely to its use. All the world over it is fast bringing a new dental era.

Pepsodent REG. IN CANADA
The New-Day Dentifrice

A scientific tooth paste based on modern research, free from harmful grit. Now advised by leading dentists the world over because of its unique effects.

Multiplies two vital factors

Research also proved two other things essential, and Pepsodent supplies them. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva. That is there to neutralize mouth acids, the cause of tooth decay. It multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva. That is there to digest starch deposits which may otherwise ferment and form acids.

The use of Pepsodent is delightful. Its benefits are quick and apparent. They will be a revelation to you, and so clear you cannot doubt them.

Present the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth whiten as the film-coats disappear. Watch the other good effects.

One week will bring you a new conception of what clean teeth mean. It will show you the way to prettier teeth, to better tooth protection. Go get this tube.

Children

Pepsodent is even more important to children than adults. Their teeth are susceptible to film attacks, and very few escape them.

Dentists advise that children use Pepsodent from the time the first tooth appears. And always before retiring.

Avoid Harmful Grit

Pepsodent curdles the film and removes it without harmful scouring. Its polishing agent is far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

JACK DEMPSEY GETS DECISION OVER TOMMY GIBBONS IN FIFTEEN-ROUND BOUT

FIGHT RECEIPTS TOTAL $225,000

Official Figures Give Attendance at Bout as 27,202

GIBBONS CHEERED

Challenger Might Have Taken Crown if His Punches Had Had More Steam

Shelby, July 5.—Promoters of the Dempsey-Gibbons fight announced to-day that official paid attendance by Government check was only 27,202 and receipts $225,000. The Government tax amounted to $22,500.

Shelby, July 5.—Jack Dempsey retained the world's championship yesterday after one of the greatest heavyweight battles in history while feathered Indians, kilted Scots, cowboys and ordinary mortals cheered his defeated foe. For fifteen rounds Tom Gibbons, the St. Paul battler, took everything that could be handed to him and, although he was groggy, hanging on and trying desperately to last through the finish, he was the hero of Shelby's great day. The bout, which was preceded by so much scandal and failure, was, from the boxing standpoint, great enough to justify everything.

The maddened fans who sat through glaring sun and stewed in the intense heat of a blazing afternoon witnessed a struggle worthy of greater things, and Shelby's day, after all, proved a tremendous success.

The pro-Gibbons faction went wild when at frequent intervals the St. Paul boxer carried the bout to the champion and rocked him with repeated lefts. Had Gibbons possessed the punching power of Dempsey, last night would have seen the crowning of a new champion. For it was not until the final round, when Dempsey's punishing body blows finally sapped the strength of "Thunder Chief", did he pile up any great advantage. The fifth, the eleventh and possibly the thirteenth rounds belonged to Gibbons. The second and fourth were so even no man could decide, and in every other round Dempsey was the winner.

Do You Know?

"Is it true that some of the baseball club owners are objecting to the use of major league parks for boxing?

J.K.M.

It is said to be true that club owners object to having a big boxing match staged in an American League park when two teams are playing at a rival National League park and vice versa.

"Are the Brooklyn National and the Boston American League clubs for sale?"

A.W.

Both these clubs have been rumored at various times as being on the market. But it is almost safe to say that any club in the major leagues could be purchased—for the owner's price.

"Is the track built for the Olympic games in Paris next year good enough to promise new records?"

Charley Paddock, who has seen the track, says it is not a good track. It is constructed of red brick dust and the turns are too sharp, he says.

JUNIOR LEAGUE IN MORIBUND STATE

Organization Now Appears to be "Thing of Past"

Belleville's Junior league is apparently a thing of the past. After each team had played two or three games the league dropped flat and nothing further was heard about it. Chas. Hayes' good work in organizing the league was not kept up. It is rather late in the season, when many of the boys are camping, etc., to make an attempt to reorganize the league, but it could be done. Tim Sullivan's Indians are, from all appearances, the winners of the league in the games that have been played thus far. Kingston's juvenile league are just now starting their second schedule and some red-hot contests have been staged down east. The winners of the Belleville league are expected to go up against the Limestone champs in the eastern Ontario juvenile series for the O.B.A.A. championship. Either a second schedule should be drawn up or the Indians should be declared champions.

He resigned for business reasons.

"PEENY" MILLS BACK IN GAME IN TWO WEEKS

It was announced this morning that Captain "Peeny" Mills will probably get back in the game in about two weeks' time. Meanwhile Stan Hagerman will of course remain behind the bat. The latter is certainly an able substitute and has filled in admirably during Mills' absence. Things are pretty quiet the last few days in baseball circles in the "Big Four". Both of Saturday's games will be of the high-class type. Belleville should win in Cobourg and Peterboro are hoping to take a fall out of the Kingston squad.

"Sleepers" in Railroad Bed.

The most common explanation of the term sleepers is that the logs repose in the bed of the railroad. Unfortunately for this theory, the particular word occurs not only in connection with railways, but in other industries, being always used as a technical term for pieces of timber or metal fixed in a horizontal position.

Its real origin is the Norwegian "sleip," which meant timber, metal, or even stone, laid so as to form a convenient surface to drag things over.

Originally used as a technical term in the days when our railways were in the building, it did not take long for our navy laborers to corrupt the word into the nearest English it sounded like, and so sleips became our common "sleepers." Our word "slab" comes from the same Norwegian word.

Most and Dry Air.

Dry air is slightly heavier than ordinary humid—not foggy, air. The number of molecules in a given volume of air and the same volume of water in the form of invisible gas under the same conditions is the same. When such water molecules are introduced into the dry air a corresponding number of air molecules are displaced. The atomic weights of nitrogen, the principal ingredients of air, are greater than the atomic weight of water vapor. Therefore since a light substance replaces a heavier one the total weight is less. Foggy or smoky air is quite likely to be heavier than dry air.

SIGNS 16-YR.-OLD WONDER 3RD. BASEMAN

By FRANK A. CLARVOE

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

San Francisco, July 3, (United Press)—The San Francisco Seals, bidder for pennant honors in the Pacific Coast League, believe they have helped their chances for next year by signing Eddie Montague, young high school baseball star, said to be the youngest player on contract in organized baseball.

Montague is only 16 years old. He got his training on the sand lots of Golden Gate Park and with the Polytechnic high school team. Experts who have watched him work claim he is the sweetest third baseman they have ever seen for his years, and promises to be a greater player than Willie Kamm, his discoverer.

The young Seal has been under cover for some time and his signing was kept a dark secret until the school season had been played out. Eddie is a right-handed hitter and, according to George Alfred Putnam, Seal secretary, "has everything—the old arm, the old punch with the bat, the speed and grace of Kamm and the eye of O'Connell. Tell you, he's a marvel."

Kamm claims to have discovered Montague, and told Charley Graham, who has the say-so in such things for the Seals, that Montague will make a better ball player than Kamm ever hopes to make. Which was modest of Willie, so to speak. Kamm was responsible for Montague signing with the Seals. As a part of the present big leaguer's recommendation, he declared that Montague could make good in the Coast league right now. Several big clubs are understood to have been after Montague, but the kid followed Kamm's advice and signed with the Seals, "for," said Kamm, "they made me what I am today."

In exchange for his being a good boy and going in with the old gang, Kamm sent Eddie one of his old gloves, which the youth intends to put to official use when he reports to the Seals' training camp at Boyes Spring next season.

According to local health records, Montague was born in San Francisco July 24, 1906. He joined the Sunset Federals, a city league team, when only 12 years old. There he got acquainted with Kamm and imitated that rising star so well that Kamm taught him all he knew, until today Montague needs but big-time experience to be one of the game's best cyclone sackers, according to Kamm.

The Sunset Federals is the team which has started off such major league stars as Pinelli, Caveney, Bohne, Fonseca, George Kelly and Billy Cunningham. Anson Orr, manager of the Federals, is credited with dividing honors with Kamm in bringing out the youth's fielding and hitting qualities.

Last season Montague played with Cliff Ireland's Independents, of which Bert Ellison, Joe Kelly and Harry Courtney were members. The Independents class with the Federals in being baseball kindergartens of fame in these parts.

In appearance Montague is a little over medium height with a framework of bone that should fill out enough to render him shock-proof to the sizzlers that come down the lefthand line. He whips them over to first with the easy swing that Kamm taught him.

Kamm wants Montague to succeed him at third, but just now Eddie Mulligan is holding down the corner.

THE GREAT DEFEATED.

The lame duck wandered around Hamilton for several hours yesterday. Meeting him in front of the Post Office, an old friend slapped him on the back and said: "Well, I did my share Hello; I voted for you."

The lame duck thanked him feebly and responded; "I'm at a loss to understand how I failed of election."

"Why so?"

"I can't find anybody who didn't vote for me."

OVER A THOUSAND

Bill saved a life every day
And didn't think it out of the way;
But the prize that he won
Through the millionaire's son
Showed him how braveness could pay.

• • •

It was the Fourth of July and blistering hot. The beach was packed with bathers. Through the crowds the dark-skinned lifeguards paced up and down, trying to keep a sharp lookout in all directions at once.

Suddenly Bill, the oldest lifeguard and the one who held the record of saving more lives than any guard on the coast, stopped short. His sharp eyes had caught sight of a small figure, too near a big, devouring wave. Before he could reach the boy the big wave had wrapped itself around him and drawn him into its plunging depths.

Immediately Bill was in after him, but he was not any quicker than a little pup that stood by. The little dog was not used to the strong waves, as Bill was. The lifeguard carried both the limp little form in the blue bathing suit and the pup back to the shore in his arms. He was used to saving lives. It was all in the day's work.

No one seemed very much interested in the little boy whose life had just been saved. A big grey automobile had drawn up at the edge of the sand. "It's Pierson, the multimillionaire," the bathers whispered. "His boy is lost. Kidnapped, most likely." Nobody connected the little fellow in the blue bathing suit with the millionaire's son. Suddenly a streak of brown shot through the crowd and stopped, yelping, at the side of the big car. Every one made way for the millionaire as he jumped out and followed the little dog across the beach to where Bill bent over the boy.

"He'll be all right in a little while now," Bill said, answering the agonized question in the father's eyes, "but you shouldn't let such a little shaver come to the beach alone." Bill did not recognize the millionaire.

"He ran away. We did not know," he answered. He took the boy in his arms. "I'd like to reward you." His hand went in his pocket.

"But you'll take a present, won't you? You saved the dog's life, too. I'd like to give him to you. He's a pretty valuable pup."

"I would kind of like to have the pup," Bill laughed. "He's a nice little cur, and I've a mind I could teach him to be quite a help in my work."

That night Bill's wife met him at the door. "Did you hear about the lifeguard that saved the millionaire's son?" she asked. "Here it is in the paper. He gave him a thousand-dollar dog for a reward."

"Gee, some guys have all the luck. Now look what I got." Bill set the little brown pup down before his wife.

WOMAN'S HEALTH RESTORED

She Claims Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Did It After Everything Else Failed

Milwaukee, Wis.—"I feel that I ought to let you know about my case. I was ailing and could barely do my housework and washing I was so run-down, just from having one child. I took a lot of medicines and had doctors. Then I gave them all up and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I feel wonderfully good now. I do every thing that comes along, and we all take your medicine as a tonic when we don't feel just so. I am thankful for what the Vegetable Compound has done for my health and for my family."—Mrs. MARY SAIECHECK, 944 28th St., Milwaukee, Wisconsin.

Letters like these testify to the value of the Vegetable Compound. These women speak from the fullness of their hearts. They describe as correctly as they can their conditions: First, those symptoms that affected them most conspicuously; and later the disappearance of those symptoms. They are sincere expressions of gratitude. For nearly fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been so praised by women.

PATRICIA BRENT SPINSTER

ANONYMOUS

"I feel like a pirate to-day. I want to run away with someone, or do something desperate. Have you ever felt like that?"

"A politician's secretary must not encourage such unrespectable instincts," she replied.

Lady Tanagra looked at her quickly, noting the flatness of her voice.

Patricia laughed. "It is all very well for Dives to tell Lazarus that it is noble to withstand the pangs of hunger," she replied.

"Now let us go and get tea," said Lady Tanagra, as she turned the car into the road running between Kensington Gardens and Hyde Park.

"Tea!" cried Patricia, "why it's past five."

"Tea is a panacea for all ills and a liquid for all hours. You have only to visit a Government Department for proof of that," said Lady Tanagra, as she descended from the car and walked towards the umbrella-sheltered tea-tables dotted about beneath the trees. "And now I want to have a talk with you for a few minutes," she said as they seated themselves at an empty table.

"I feel in the mood for listening," said Patricia, "provided it is not to be good advice," she added.

Patricia looked up at her. Overhead white, fleecy clouds played a game of hide-and-seek with the sunshine. The trees rustled languidly in the breeze, and in the distance a peacock screamed ominously.

"I have told him," continued Lady Tanagra, "that I will not have you worried, and he has promised me not to see you, write to you, telephone to you, send you messenger boys, chocolates, flowers or anything else in the world, in fact he's out of your way for ever and ever."

Patricia looked across at Lady Tanagra in surprise, but said nothing.

"I told him," continued Lady Tanagra evenly, "that I would not have my friendship with you spoiled through his impetuous blundering. I think I told him he was suburban. In fact I quite bullied the poor boy. So now," she added with the air of one who has earned a lifelong debt of gratitude, "you will be able to go your way without fear of the ubiquitous Peter."

Still Patricia said nothing as she sat looking down upon the empty plate before her.

"Now we will forget all about Peter and talk and think of other things. Ah! here he is," she cried suddenly.

Patricia looked round quickly; but at the sight of Godfrey Elton she was conscious of a feeling of disappointment that she would not, however, admit. Her greeting of Elton was a trifle forced.

Patricia was never frank with herself. If it had been suggested that for a moment she hoped that Lady Tanagra's remark referred to Bowen, she would instantly have denied it.

"No, Godfrey, don't look at me like that," cried Lady Tanagra. "I am not so gauche as to arrange a party-a-trois I've got someone quite nice coming for Patricia."

Again Patricia felt herself thrill expectantly. Five minutes later Mr. Triggs was seen sailing along among the tables as if in search of someone. Again Patricia felt that sense of disappointment she had experienced on the arrival of Godfrey Elton.

Suddenly Mr. Triggs saw the party and streamed towards them, waving his red silk handkerchief in one hand and his umbrella in the other.

"He has found something better than the fountain of eternal youth," said Elton to Patricia.

"Whatever it is he is unconscious of possessing it," replied Patricia as she turned to greet Mr. Triggs.

"I'm late, I know," explained Mr. Triggs as he shook hands. "I 'ad to run in and see 'Ettie and tell 'er I was coming. It surprised 'er," and Mr. Triggs chuckled as if at some joke he could not share with the others.

"Now let us have tea," said Lady Tanagra. "I'm simply dying for it".

Mr. Triggs sank down heavily into a basket-chair. He looked about anxiously, as it croaked beneath his weight, as if in doubt whether or no it would bear him.

"All we want now is——" Mr. Triggs stopped suddenly and looked apprehensively at Lady Tanagra.

"What is it you want, Mr. Triggs?" enquired Patricia quickly.

"Er—er—I—I forget, I—I forget," floundered Mr. Triggs, still looking anxiously at Lady Tanagra.

"When you're in the company of women, Mr. Triggs, you should never appear to want anything else. It makes an unfavourable impression upon us."

"And what did she say when you proposed?"

"Well, first she said that I had none of those stable qualities which a woman requires in a husband; then she told me she considered me the most fickle improvident and unreliable of my sex."

But she didn't refuse me—she accepted me."

MY DOG

BOB, A LONDON FIRE HOUND

Leaping flames, smoke-filled rooms and falling walls hold no terrors for Bob, the famous London fire dog. When the fire calls come in at the station, Bob is the first to leap to his place on the ladder truck. He can hardly wait to get to the fire and as he watches the firemen put up the ladders at the burning building, he barks impatiently and seems to say: "Hurry up, there's no telling how many people I'll have to save."

When the ladder is adjusted, Bob climbs up and plunges into the smoke searching for any trapped victims. Into all the rooms he goes, nose close to the floor. Sometimes sparks fall on him and burn him, but he does not stop.

When Bob finds any one trapped or overcome, he makes his way back to the street and with a few sharp barks tells the firemen that he will lead them to the rescue. The firemen follow him and Bob superintends the affair. He is responsible for 12 rescues.

Sometimes Bob gets trapped in a burning building, and when this happens he makes his way to a window and barks until the firemen hold the life net for him to jump into. Bob will jump from a fourth story window into the net without any fear.

HANDLING LAYING HENS

Feeding and Housing Must Both Be Considered.

Give the Birds a Good Run—Dry Mash Hoppers Save Waste—Suggested Ration—Forage Crops—Don'ts for the Layers.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Following are results of experiments carried on by the writer when connected with the Agricultural Experiment Station for Vancouver Island, Sidney, B.C.

Houses and Yards.

The house in which the birds are kept is provided with a water-proof roof and a floor that is always dry. In preparing the house for the new flock of pullets, everything movable is taken out, cleaned, and then saturated with a mixture of equal parts of creosite and coal oil. The interior of the house is well scraped and swept clean of any foreign material. A coating of lime-wash is then applied, and the movable equipment replaced after the lime-washing has been done. When everything is dry, a 6-inch layer of dry straw is placed on the floor. The house is now ready for the five-month-old pullets, and care is taken to see that only strong, vigorous birds are permitted to occupy house space.

The runs provide ten square yards of surface for one bird. They are in duplicate and are used alternately for feed growing and exercise space. Late-leafing, deciduous trees only are used about poultry yards. The coniferous windbreaks are located far enough away from the poultry yards and buildings to permit of maximum sunlight entering all space occupied by the birds.

Feeding.

A dry mash hopper of such construction as will prevent waste is supplied with the following mash mixture:—

Ground oats	300	"
Beef scrap	200	"
Wheat shorts	200	"
Corn meal	100	"
Fine salt	4	"

This mixture is always available for the birds. The whole grain ration is composed of two parts wheat, one part cracked corn, and one part oats, by weight. This is fed on the floor of the house morning and evening, in the daily proportion of five pounds per fifty birds, during the late autumn and winter. When a supply of skimmilk is available, the birds are given all they will take, and the beef scrap is reduced one-half. Shell, grit, and charcoal are always before the birds, being supplied in small metal hoppers which are conveniently placed.

Small areas of kale, chard, and alfalfa were grown to be used as green feed for poultry. The chard was relished to a greater extent than the other green feeds. Green alfalfa was most useful during its season from May to November. For winter green feed, kale and mangles were used. For little chicks, chickweed was supplied during the first ten days, then lettuce and chard. A supply of clean water is always available for all the poultry; it is given in fountains placed thirty inches above the floor and surrounded by the narrowest possible platform on which the birds may stand to drink. This method has proved very satisfactory, as it prevents the birds from working dirt and foreign matter into the receptacles.

The laying houses are kept thoroughly clean. Dropping boards are scraped and sanded every morning. All litter and dust is removed every three weeks, the house swept out, and fresh litter again placed on the floor. The perches are sprayed with a creosote and coal oil mixture in equal parts, every three weeks. During the winter period a dust box four feet square and ten inches deep is provided. The birds are always given the freedom of an outside run, no matter what the weather is. The drawer type of trap nest is used, the birds readily becoming used to its action. Broody hens are confined in slat-bottom crates for the necessary period required for the change of their opinion on the subject.

Don'ts For the Layers.

Don't put pullets into an unclean house.

Don't forget to clean the house and provide new, clean litter every three weeks.

Don't neglect to keep the dry mash hopper filled with a mash made from clean, wholesome grain, and meat products.

Don't waste time and money feeding tonics; well-cared-for poultry do not need nor are they benefited by such a practice.—L. Stevenson, Sec. Dept. of Agriculture.

CARE FOR THE BINDER

Proper Attention Is Both Necessary and Profitable.

See That the Reel is Properly Adjusted—Study the Length of the Grain—Keep a Watch on the Knotter—Don't Forget the Oiling.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

The grain binder or modern harvester is a complicated machine with many moving parts, requiring careful adjustment and constant care if it is to give the best service and last. Perfect sheaf or bundle making begins with the delivery of the standing grain to the knife and platform. In this the reel plays an important part; if properly adjusted for height and distance forward, the grain will fall evenly and will be carried in like condition to the packers and binding attachment. With the reel improperly adjusted, the grain may fall forward or it may be scattered on the platform. Once scattered, it is impossible for the conveyors or packers to straighten it out, to the degree necessary for perfect sheaves. Careful watch should, therefore, be kept on the reel and adjustment made while the machine is in motion to meet the conditions caused by lack of uniformity in the crop. The grain passing from the conveyors or elevator is next adjusted by the butting attachment and the packers.

Meeting the Needs of Long or Short Grain.

The binder table or the butting attachment can be shifted to meet the needs of long or short grain, and the binder operator must be alive to the making of the necessary adjustments or the bundles will not be of a desirable shape and tightness. The binding attachment with its twine run needle and knotter will give highly efficient service if given reasonable attention by way of oiling and proper adjustment. The binding attachment parts rust very easily during periods of idleness, so liberal applications of a heavy mineral oil or grease to all parts not protected by paint will save the machine, will save time, labor and temper. Rust can be removed by sandpaper, but harvesting machines were never intended for such treatment. The wooden slats that form an important part of the canvas conveyors will sometimes tear loose. This is caused by the frame and rollers not being in proper alignment or square. This difficulty is overcome by adjusting the cross braces of the frame until it is square and the rollers in alignment.

The Transmission of Power.

The power for operating the various parts of the grain binder is transmitted by chain and sprocket, the various units being provided with tighteners. If the various chains are not run at proper tension, trouble will follow. If too tight the links will break, or the draft will be heavy. If too loose the machine will be driven with a jerky motion. If the chains are just slack enough so such can not be taken off by hand when the machine is not running, they will usually be satisfactory when in motion. Chain links and sprockets should be well oiled at all points of contact. Missing sheaves or failure to tie the bundle is a common trouble, usually due to the operator's failure to make the adjustments necessary to give full efficiency to the tying mechanism. If the needle fails to carry the twine far enough over that it may be grasped by the twine disc, a knot will not be tied, since but one end is held. This condition is generally easily recognized by the twine being knotted in a loop at one end, the other end being free. When the twine disc is held too tight by the clamp and spring, it will in turn hold the twine so tight as to pinch it off and cause a failure to tie. This condition is generally indicated by one end of the band being frayed. The loosening of the spring that holds the twine disc will remedy this fault. If the twine disc is loosened too much, the knot can not be tied; this condition is generally indicated by both ends of the twine band being frayed.

Keep a Careful Eye on the Knotter.

Another cause of failure to tie is often found in the knotter spring which holds the finger down upon the knotter hook being so loose as not to hold the ends of the twine while the knot is pulled over the billhook, resulting in a band with clean cut ends but no knot, the adjustment through wear or lack of adjustment through shaking loose of the bolt, holding the twine cutting knife, causing the severing of the twine before the knotter finger or billhook has closed over it. A bent rusty needle or shaft, or needle, billhook, twine disc or twine runs will cause no end of trouble early in the harvest through loose, untied or missed sheaves.

Pay Attention to Oiling.

Oiling the grain binder takes considerable time with fifty or more oil holes to keep clear and supplied with oil. There are bearing surfaces other than oil holes that must receive attention also, such as the reel standard, various chains and sprockets, sliding parts of the binding attachment and the bundle carrier. All bearings subject to heavy friction and speed should be oiled every hour if the binder is to last as long as a binder should. Every bearing should receive lubrication at least twice a day no matter how little work the bearing does. The main drive bearings, the pitman, and the sheaf binding attachment require the closest attention.—L. Stevenson, Sec., Dept. of Agriculture.

Most failures with live stock can be attributed to lack of a definite aim in breeding.

WORKING THE MOWER

Practical Instructions on Running This Useful Machine.

Give the Cutting Bar and Steel Plate Attention—Keep the Knife Sharp—Go Over the Machine Daily—Returns From Bees.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

This machine has given splendid service to the farmers of the past and present generations. Fifty years ago the mower was a perfected machine, and the improvements since that date have not been of a revolutionary nature.

Watch the Cutting Bar.

This machine is subjected to a number of abuses, traceable to the carelessness of the average farm hand, lack of attention in oiling, dull ledger plates and knife operated over rough or stony ground. With the knife running close to the soil surface, injury from contact with gravel, sand and small stones is frequent. The watchfulness of the operator to avoid subjecting the cutter bar to injury is the best protection when the mower is in use on rough ground. The cutter bar with its numerous guards can be elevated or tilted quickly by an experienced operator and obstructions avoided. The guards should be kept tight and in perfect alignment.

Give the Steel Plate Attention.

The small steel plate that is riveted to the guard at the point where the knife edge performs the scissor movement should be kept sharp or at least not permitted to wear round. These plates, commonly known as ledger plates, become dull with use, a condition that greatly reduces the efficiency of the mower and increases the draft. A mower with dull or rounded ledger plates will stick in heavy cutting or damp grass. A sharp knife and sharp edged ledger plates means light draft for the team and clean, free cutting of the crop.

The Knife Must Be Kept Sharp.

Too much attention cannot be given to the cutter bar with its attached guards and quick moving knife. If the mower sticks at every mouse-nest or tuft of grass, the place to look for the trouble is in the dull knife, the ledger plates, the worn guards, or the keepers that hold the knife down in place. With the new mower it will be noted that the cutting edges are sharp, that there is but little play for the knife other than as intended. In the past too little attention has been given to keeping the ledger plates sharp. With these dull, no matter how good the knife is, tough material will be drawn beneath the knife instead of being cut, forcing the blade up against the guard causing wear that gives a loose fitting knife, poor work and greatly increased draft.

Why the New Mower Cuts Best.

The experience of all is that the mower cuts better the first season than ever after. This experience is largely due to the fact that too little attention is paid to the parts that are responsible for the cutting. The wear on the section points of the mower knife is greatest near the point. This wear, together with the grinding necessary to keep the knife sharp, changes the shape of the section considerably, and in such a way as to reduce its efficiency as a cutting implement. The man doing the grinding should endeavor to keep the original shape of the section in so far as possible. Many of the emery grinders used in sharpening mower knifes grind away the points of the section to a serious extent without doing very much sharpening. A specially shaped emery or carborundum stone or file should be used and the work done in the farm shop. A spare knife should always be at hand in the field.

Go Over the Machine Daily.

The mower should be gone over carefully twice each day and all bolts tightened. The main bearings should be oiled at least once each hour, and the pitman bearings at least every half hour. When the mower is not in use the knife should be removed. The cutter bar should be elevated to the vertical position when the machine is not in use. A little heavy mineral oil should be brushed over all parts that are likely to rust. Don't use paint oils. The mower, like the binder, to give its best service, should be given good care.—L. Stevenson, Sec., Dept. of Agriculture.

Returns From Bees.

Good returns are obtained from keeping bees in Canada, the conditions in many parts of the country being particularly favorable for honey production. Yet much uncertainty exists, and misconceptions have arisen as to the returns to be expected. One sometimes hears that a colony of bees has produced in one season four or five hundred pounds of honey. Such yields, however, are exceptional, and are the result of a combination of fortunate circumstances, abundant flowers of alsike and white clover, fireweed, or other important honey plants, a particularly industrious colony, a well trained and experienced beekeeper, and, above all, favorable weather. They cannot be obtained from every hive, nor can they be repeated year after year. Somtimes a year of failure follows a year of plenty.

To get reliable figures it is necessary to average the returns from the colonies in the apiary for a number of years. The latest figures show that the average annual yield of honey has varied from 18 pounds per colony in the least profitable apiary to 132 pounds per colony in the most profitable apiary. The average annual production for all the apiaries was 63 pounds per colony, which is high enough to make a satisfactory profit. These figures indicate the importance of good management, the returns of only 18 pounds having been due to inexperience.

REPORTER LIVES ON $2.50 PER WEEK

Huntingdon, W. Va., Juiy 5.—(United Press)—Just to prove that it could be done, Monroe Worthington, reporter for the Huntingdon Herald-Dispatch, lived for a wek on $2.50 and reported his experiences each day in his paper.

One of the rules was that he musn't accept free meals.

So, when News Editor Wiatt Smith assigned Worthington to "cover" a banquet of the American Institute of Banking, other members of the staff called it cruel and inhuman treatment.

But Worthington refused to sit on the sidelines and watch the others eat. Nor would he break the rules. Fortified with restaurant price lists, he conscientiously ate exactly 75 cents worth, then donated the 75 cents to the Salvation Army, and had 72 cents left of his $2.50 on which to eat for the remaining two days of the week.

JUST WHAT SHE NEEDED

Mrs. M. Steed Tells of Wonderful Benefits Her Daughter Received From One Bottle of Dreco

A story of motherly love triumphant by the aid of Dreco is told by Mrs. M. Steed, of 43 Lindiner Street, West Toronto.

"My daughter Beatrice had been in a general rundown condition for several months," says Mrs. Steed. "She had no appetite, poor circulation, pains all through the body and severe headaches; also spells of indigestion. She was very nervous and couldn't sleep well. She tried various remedies but none of them seemed to give her any result.

"Reading of so many people getting good results from Dreco, I decided that she had better try it. One week ago I purchased a bottle. Already there is a marked improvement. She is beginning to get a good appetite, rests better, has no more headaches and in fact her condition in general has improved greatly.

"It was just what she needed and I do not hesitate in praising the merits of this great remedy. I will never lose an opportunity of telling my friends about Dreco."

Statements like this from responsible people right in Toronto should do much to convince people of the true merits of Dreco. This remedy does not contain mercury, potash or habit forming drugs but is composed entirely of the juices or roots, herbs, bark and leaves that act on the vital organs and puts them in good working order.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Belleville by The Belleville Pharmacy, and is Sold by a Good Druggist everywhere.

EVIDENCE SHOWS

"At the hospital, after having administered an opiate to Mrs. Loyst, she was able to make one statement about the accident. When asked by the physician how the accident happened, she replied, "I stepped out from behind a rig" and that was all she said.

"Her injured son Stewart, was not in the same room as his mother, until it was eviden that the woman could not recover, when the boy was taken in the room to see his mother for the last time."

Fred Helm, C. P. R. railroader who lives at lot 30, first concession Sidney was the second witness. Witness was on the south side of the Trent road, just east of the railway crossing when the accident occurred, and was talking to Mrs. Loyst. Mrs. Helm and daughter were in the buggy with witness at the time. Witness did not see the accident, but heard a scream, and saw the woman being picked up, and had travelled but 20 feet on his way after concluding his conversation with Mrs. Loyst. Helm was driving a buggy toward Belleville.

"I noticed that there were six motor cars coming down the road, behind the Loyst woman so I said to her, "You look out now."

I saw the car that hit her, but could not judge the speed of the car. The car was travelling fast for that particular place, with the crossing so near and the heavy traffic on the road. I went back to the scene of the accident, and found the front wheels of the car were between the railroad rails on the crossing, on the east track, (there is a double track here).

To the Coroner—"It was broad daylight at the time."

MRS. ANNIE HELM

Wife of Fred Helm, who was in the buggy with him, told of Mrs. Loyst having stated when leaving the buggy that there were six cars coming, "I then turned and saw three cars coming, I said 'you be careful'," testified the witness.

"I heard the woman scream and looked back. The car was upon her, but I do not know what part of the car. I heard a grinding noise".

To Crown—"Mrs. Loyst was a cautious woman, always warning others, and her hearing was good, I believe. I did not hear the alarms of any cars on the road. The cars were travelling at a moderate rate of speed. Mrs. Loyst wore glasses.

John Bates, 135 Catharine street, this city, who was driving a Ford car from Trenton and going over the railway crossing when the accident occurred, was the next witness.

"My front wheels were just going over the first tracks when the accident occurred," explained witness. "I saw the car hit the lady and boy. I was about 20 or 24 feet from the accident, the car which hit her was a Star car, driven by Harry Yateman, and was travelling towards Trenton. The car was stopped in an awfully short distance. The car did not travel further than 21 or 24 feet after striking the woman. It appeared as though about the centre of the radiator struck the woman. The car had a bumper on it. I did not go back to the scene of the accident, but stopped for a few minutes. There was one car ahead of me for sure, possibly two. I could not estimate his speed, and I heard no warning sounded."

Police Constable Charles G. Sweet, of Gardenville, Ont., and former constable on Toronto Police Force (recently resigned), was travelling east in an automobile, near the scene of the accident, "I had gone about 50 yards past the scene of the accident, when it occurred," commenced witness. "I would judge that the car was travelling about 25 miles an hour when it passed me, and I thought it was rather fast for approaching a crossing. I stopped and went back after the accident, and when I arrived, the car had been turned around facing east, and the injured woman was in the seat. The woman was conscious, suffering great pain, and calling for her boy."

Mrs. Doris Sweet, wife of Charles Sweet, thought the Yateman car was travelling quite fast, possibly travelling 25 miles per hour. "I first noticed the car sway out to avoid striking someone, in looking back from our car, then in an instant, the woman was lying in the road. She was lying about three or four feet from the railway crossing."

Harry Ketcheson, lots 27 and 28, first concession of Sydney, also witnessed the accident, from his car, with his wife, Mrs. Ida Ketcheson, and daughter. Mr. Ketcheson proved to be one of the best witnesses of the inquest.

"I was travelling towards Belleville, and I slowed down for the crossing, as the crossing is very rough. Suddenly I saw a woman and boy dart out from behind the buggy, apparently not looking for traffic, and they began to run across the highway diagonally in a north-westerly direction towards the gateway of the Loyst farm. Suddenly the woman stopped momentarily, as though to reach back for the boy's hand, then she was struck. It all happened while you would snap your finger."

In the opinion of the witness, as the woman turned to grasp the boy's hand, she was hit by the centre of the bumper, and thrown head foremost underneath the left rear wheel, which passed over her body about the waist or a little higher.

"The woman had not gone 15 feet from the buggy when the boy was struck. The boy was hit first. The woman and boy were running across the road. I do not think the Yateman car was travelling at an excessive rate of speed. The rear wheel went over the woman, and I think the fender caught her on the hip and threw her head first around and underneath the left rear wheel. The wheel passed up slowly over the woman's waist, and practically stopped above her body. It then slowly rolled off.

"The woman raised up and fell over with her head facing south. The car went about 15 feet after it hit the woman. The car was on its own side of the road when it stopped. It swerved after it hit the boy in an effort to avoid striking the woman. I picked up the boy after the accident, and took him to the hospital, and remained until the arrival of Mrs. Loyst. She was suffering great pain, was unable to get her breath, and asked repeatedly for her boy Stewart."

Sergeant D. Atkins, of the Provincial Police, stationed here, told on the stand, of having received a telephone call from Chief of Police Kidd at 8-30 the evening o fthe accident, informing him that a lady and a boy had been struck down at the railway crossing by a motor car. Witness proceeded to the station, where he found Harry Yateman, the driver of the car which had struck the woman. Upon interviewing Yateman, witness was informed that the woman and boy had been knocked down, and the estimated speed of the car at the time of the impact was from 22 to 25 miles per hour. The Yateman car was not equipped with a speedometer. Yateman stated that he had not sounded his horn, and had not seen the lady and boy until three feet from them.

The next morning the witness went out to the scene of the accident, having been unsuccessful in locating the exact place of the accident on Saturday night. The glasses belonging to Mrs. Loyst were found by Sergt. Atkins on the railway track. The width of the travelled roadway at the scene of the accident is 21 feet. There was a skid mark on the roadway 22 feet in length. On inspecting the car, the officer found the bumper bent back on the left side. There was no liquor in the car, or no evidences of drinking. During Sunday, the officer testified that during the inquiry he made repeated enquiries at the hospital as to the condition of the woman, in order to ascertain whether he might interview her. No one was allowed to see Mrs. Loyst because of her condition.

Provincial Constable N. Maker, who was with Sergt. Atkins, corroborated the evidence given by him, and also told of testing the brakes on the Yateman car, and said he found them to be in good condition. Officer Maker did not believe that the car could have been stopped so quickly had Yateman been speeding.

Manville Yateman, cousin of the driver of the car, who is employed by him, east of Corbyville, as a teamster, and who was a passenger in the car that hit the Loyst woman, was the last witness examined. Yateman testified that he did not see the buggy until their car was within three feet of the buggy. Harry Yateman, the driver, applied the brakes. Witness did not know who was struck first, the boy or his mother. The car was stopped in its own length, and when the car stopped, and witness had stepped out of the car, he found the injured boy about four or five feet behind the car, standing up. The woman was placed in the rear seat of the car which had struck her, and taken to Dr. Robertson's office on Pinnicle street. She was conscious but suffering great pain, and continually asking for the boy, Stewart. Witness went from the doctor's office to the Police Station with his cousin, and reported the matter to the police.

The jury was composed of Messrs. Chas. Campbell, (foreman,) G. P. Ostrom, John Henderson, Jas. W. Bailey, John B. Archibald, H. Ransom, J. E. Parks and H. W. Hanna.

SMITH HARDWARE

QUIET REIGNS IN AFFECTED AREAS

Sydney, N.S., July 5.—With over 10,000 men on strike in the Cape Breton industrial area, the day passed without serious disturbance, so far as police and municipal officials have been able to ascertain this morning. In the coal field relays of pickets organized on a military basis are closely guarding the twenty-two collieries of the British Empire Steel Corporation, but no attempt is being made to work the mines, and company officials bringing out horses and trying to keep the pits pumped have not so far been interfered with.

Some official information from Besco sources indicate that the company regards the trouble as between the men and the federal and provincial governments rather than between the men and the company, inasmuch as their avowed demand is for the removal of the militia and provincial police who were sent here by the two governments respectively.

The strikers have also abandoned the fight to save the big coal bank at New Aberdeen, where a huge heap of over 250,000 tons of coal has been on fire for the past ten days. No disturbances have occurred at the steel plant or the coal mines, and no move toward a settlement has been made by either side since the informal conference between Hon. D. A. Cameron and the strike leaders here yesterday.

The present join steel-coal strike in Cape Breton affects seventeen collieries at widely scattered points on the south side of Sydney Harbor, five major collieries on the north side and the Sydney steel plant. These are all held by the British Empire Steel Corporation. It is not anticipated that the miners in the small independent mines on the north side, such as the Indian Cove, Toronto and Little Bras d'Or mines will come out.

LEADERS ORDER DOCK STRIKE OFF

England's Food Supply Seriously Threatened by Walk Out

London Has Only Week's Supply of Bread—Women Figure in Rioting

(United Press Despatch Exclusive to The Intelligencer)

London, July 6.—The strike of 36,000 dock workers, which is spreading to allied trades and threatening England's food supply, was called off by union executives and the men ordered to return to work Monday. It is considered doubtful if they will obey.

London, July 6.—England's spontaneous dock strike has assumed alarming proportions today, threatening London's bread supply. London is reported to have only one week's supply of wheat, and chilled meat prices have shot up one shilling per seven pounds today.

London, July 6.—England is experiencing a recrudescence of industrial troubles. A battle took place Wednesday at Whitehaven between miners and the police. The strike has been in progress for some weeks, against reduced wages. The strikers have had no funds except seven shillings a week from the poor law.

A breakdown in negotiations on Monday led to the outbreak, in which windows were smashed, and the colliery manager's car was burned. Police reinforcements were drafted into Whitehaven Wednesday, which caused fresh exasperation. At nightfall the crowd, in which the women were foremost, attacked the company's offices.

TORONTO CHILD IS KILLED BY TRUCK

Six-year-old Crushed Beneath Heavily Loaded Vehicle.

Toronto, July 6.—Another young life was snuffed out when little six-year old Robert Hartford, of 559 Dufferin street, was run over and crushed beneath a heavy truckload of scrap iron at Dundas and Dufferin streets.

Together with two other lads of his own age, little Robert had gone an errand for a neighbor. On their return the three boys darted out from the curb running toward the south side, apparently not observing the approaching truck.

Yateman drove the Star car which struck down and fatally injured Mrs Emma Loyst on the Trent Road on Saturday evening last.

125TH BIRTHDAY OF CHURCH OBSERVED

Wicklow Congregation Celebrates Unique Event.

Cobourg, July 6.—One of the most unique events in the history of the church life of Canada took place Wednesday evening at Wicklow, ten miles east of here, when the congregation of the Baptist church celebrated the 125th anniversary of its existence.

Te history of the first Baptist congregation in that locality dates back to 1785, when Reuben Crandall, a youth of eighteen years, came to Canada as a licensed Baptist preacher from a place called Nine Partners, New York State. He came on foot, and crossed the St. Lawrence River near Prescott. Travelling westward, he found settlers in Prince Edward county, in whose homes he held services. Coming on farther west, he reached Cramahe and Haldimand townships, where he made a stand, and organized a congregation.

In 1798 the Haldimand Baptist church was organized. As early as 1800 the small house would not accommodate the congregation, and later a larger building was erected, which for several years was the only church building in the township of Haldimand. In 1817 it was able to claim the entire time and services of a regular pastor. Among these early pastors were: Revs. Winn, Farmer, Card, Butler, Holman and Waite.

Rev. L. H. Coles, Colborne, the present pastor of the Wicklow and Colborne churches, presided last evening.

TWO BROTHERS DIE WITHIN FORTNIGHT

Not often does death claim two members of one family so close together, as in the case of the Blair Brothers at Maynooth, North Hastings. On June 4th, Mr. Alex Blair passed away at his home, leaving a wife and seven small children under the age of 15 years to mourn the loss of a husband and father. The late Mr. Blair had been ill only a short time, his death coming as a shock to his family and friends.

Two weeks later Alfred Blair, brother of the deceased became seriously ill and passed to his reward on June 18. A widow and one daughter, Dorothy, are left to mourn his loss. The bodies were interred in Emmanuel cemetery.

Historical Society Dedicates Tablet

Kingston, July 6.—The civic welcome to the Ontario Historical Society was given yesterday morning in Convocation Hall by Ald. F. B. O'Connor. The report of the secretary, A. F. Hunter, showed that the society had been 35 years in existence. The financial report shows a balance on hand of $609.90 and there is invested in bonds $651. The museum fund now amounts to $683.50. The morning session was concluded with the appointment of the nominating committee, resolutions committee and the reading of the statement from affiliated societies.

In the afternoon papers relating to the general work of the society were read. At 3 o'clock the tablet on the British Whig newspaper building to mark the site of the first St. George's Church, built in 1792 by Archdeacon Stuart, was dedicated. Lieut.-Col. Cruickshank recalled the history of the founding of the church and the first council held by Governor Simcoe. He turned the tablet over to the care of the Whig Company.

J. G. Elliott, president, accepted it with thanks and promised care of it. He expressed the conviction that greater care of historic records and collection should be given by governments, both because of history and for the benefit of future generations. The Canadian vision in this regard needed stimulation. Very Rev. Dean Starr, rector of the second St. George's, built in 1825, also spoke.

EXPLOSION KILLS SARNIA WORKMAN

Sarnia, Ont., July 6.—James H Thompson, 246 Queen Street, a fireman employed at the plant of the Imperial Oil, Limited, was literally blown to pieces about seven o'clock last night when a still in the main yard of the refinery exploded with a blast that was heard all over the city. Fellow-employes said that Thompson was up on the still when the blast occurred.

STATISTICS SHOW LESS DRUNKENNESS

Convictions Show Decrease of 26 Percent Since 1921.

Ottawa, July 6.—A very marked decrease in criminal offenses in 1922 as compared with the previous year is recorded by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. A general decrease in drunkenness is also shown, most notably in British Columbia.

The total number of offenses tried by the various criminal courts in Canada during the year ending September 30, 1922, was 163,929, as compared with 182,720 in 1921, the decrease being 10.28 per cent. Convictions decreased from 177,173 to 158,339, or 10.52 per cent The acquittals of indictable and major offenses increased from 5,547 to 5,590 during the year.

British Columbia showed the greatest decrease in convictions for indictable offenses, the number falling from 1,282 to 1,004, or 21.68 per cent. Alberta decreased 7.36 per cent., from 1,263 to 1,179, and Ontario 6.93 per cent., from 7,543 to 7,021. Saskatchewan increased 14.02 per cent., from 1,220 to 1,391, and Quebec 8.74 per cent., from 2,654 to 2,885. Prince Edward Island had 15 convictions in 1921, and 27 in 1922.

Domestic Impasse Aired "Cat-o-nine tails" Mentioned

John Budreau appeared in police court this morning, charged with assaulting his wife, pleaded not guilty, and on hearing a lecture by Magistrate Masson, was allowed to go without payment of court costs. Mrs. Budreau also received a warning in which her martial obligations were stressed. The assault is alleged to have taken place on July 2.

The woman is nearly deaf, and it was necessary for Magistrate Masson to relay his advice to Chief Kidd who shouted to the woman.

"Your duty as a wife is to try to keep peace in the family, and your husband has a right to object to your companionship with other men, providing such companionshp seems unreasonable."

That was the advice of the magistrate to the woman.

"And you," continued the bench, in addressing the man, "Must not lay your hands on your wife, except in case of self-protection, and in that case, you may only use sufficient force to prevent injuries to yourself. If you are found guilty of assault you will be fined, and possibly imprisoned and whipped. That is, your hands will be tied up on a triangle, your back bared, and the "cat-o-nine tails" applied by the powerful man in whose hands it is held. If your mother interferers with your wife, it is your duty to stand by your wife and tell your mother to go home."

Mr. C. Cameron appeared for the accused.

"SHOWDOWN" IS BRITAIN DEMAND

London, July 6.—"State your position definitely, or we will state ours independently." That's Britain's attitude toward France now, whatever it may have been before the French Ambassador delivered his "vague and unsatisfactory" verbal statement.

UNLUCKY DAY FOR O.T.A SUSPECTS

William Stainton and Herbert Maracle of Deseronto were arrested by Chief Wm. Bowen recently and handed over to Provincial Inspector Frank Naphan and Provincial Officer N. Maker, charged with unlawful purchase of liquor. John Mosher, arrested at Conway, near Adolphustown, by Inspector Exley, was turned over to Inspector Naphan and Officer Maker on an O.T.A. charge. All three men will be tried at the Court House building here before Judge Wills on Friday, July 13.

CIVIC COMMITTEES RECOMMEND C. N. R. WATER SUPPLY CONTRACT

Five-Year Sliding Scale Agreement Expected to Increase City's Revenue

At a meeting of the various civic committees held last evening only one recommendation was adopted and passed on the Council. A number of accounts were passed. The recommendation was from the Water Works Department and was as follows:

Recommended that the Mayor and City Clerk be authorized to sign the agreement with the Canadian National Railways for their water supply as per contract.

The contract is for a period of five years and provides for a sliding price scale, according to the quantity of water used daily. The contract is considered to be most satisfactory to the city and the Railways.

The Railway Company has recently been paying the city $23.00 per day for its water supply. It is expected that the figure will be increased by the terms of the proposed contract.

SEEK PREFERENCES FOR WAR VETERANS

G. W. V. A. in Convention Passes Resolution on Railway Employment.

Vancouver, B.C., July 6.—Desirability of preference in employment to ex-service men employed on Canadian railways was discussed in yesterday's session of the G.W.V.A here, with the result that a resolution was endorsed to the effect that "whereas under the working agreement between the Canadian National Railways and the men's representatives, in the event of a reduction of staff, seniority of service governs, and this would affect a majority of ex-service men now employed, all members of his Majesty's forces should take seniority before that of any unnaturalized alien; that their seniority should be dated as from the date on which they joined the forces, such seniority rights to be applied in all instances, except for production in the service, and also that ex-members of his Majesty's forces be given preference for employment and promotion."

METAL WORKERS IN GERMANY WALK OUT

United Press Cable, Exclusive to The Intelligencer.

Berlin, July 6.—German metal work union has overwhelmingly voted for strike beginning this morning, union headquarters informed the United News that ninety per cent. of the union's total strength of 300,000 members are for the strike.

Ethel Barrymore Divorced; Eyes Blackened, Charge

Providence, July 6.—Ethel Barrymore has secured a divorce from Russel G. Colt. She claimed her husband blackened her eyes.

NO REFLECTION INTENDED

In its report, on the following day, of the Conservative meeting held at Trenton on the night of June 22, last, The Intelligencer, in quoting the speech of Maj. Ponton, said: "instead of employing ex-servicemen to form an effective force, 'he said.' Mr. Raney put a lot of non-descripts in uniform. Some of them he sent down to Belleville——'"

No stenographic report of the speech was made and the reporter endeavored to "cover" it as accurately as possible by taking notes. He did not assume that any reflection upon Provincial Inspector Bumpstead or any member of his force was intended.

The Intelligencer has the highest respect for Inspector Bumpstead and the members of his force and desires to correct any erroneous impressions, which may have been created by the passage to which reference has been made.

The Intelligencer apologizes to Inspector Bumpstead and the members of his force and urges its readers to take note of the fact that absolutely no reflection upon any official here was intended. On the contrary, The Intelligencer feels that it can conscientiously refer to them only in a complimentary manner, as it knows of nothing derogatory to their reputations or records.

The reporter's impression of Maj. Ponton's speech was that no unfair references to the officers were intended.

Trent Road Crossing Target for Criticisim

Three weeks ago the watchman at the double track railway crossing on the Trent road, just near the cemetery, were removed and the sole protection at this crossing now are the "wig-wag" and bell.

This action has aroused the ire of several of the citizens of this city, who discussed their grievances with The Intelligencer this morning, and their argument seems to be very reasonable.

There is a double track at the point of intersection, crossing the Trent road, a Provincial highway, and naturally a road on which the traffic is always heavy. Approaching the crossing from the east the view is obscured by trees and shrubbery. Approaching from the west, the view is obstructed by a house. The railway authorities have now removed the plank crossing and substituted it with crushed stone, which, it is reported, makes a very rough crossing.

The matter was threshed out before the Ontario Railway Board here last year, and the railway officials decided upon this action. It is the opinion of many that the wig-wag signal is not nearly as safe as the watchman.

CADET CAMP TO BREAK TOMORROW

Potential Soldiery Loathe to Leave Charming Setting

Barriefield, July 6.—Things are going along smoothly at the cadet camp and the boys are enjoying themselves as much as they can while their training is also receiving proper attention. The boys are sorry that the camp is not lasting another week at least but they are looking forward to coming back again.

Invitations have been extended to the citizenry in general to be present for the inspection which takes place this evening at seven o'clock city time. The boys are all in readiness, and it is expected that a good showing will be made by the cadets. They have been drilling faithfully and well and are in good shape for the critical eye of the inspecting officer.

To-day the distance judging contest will take place and the cadet making the fewest mistakes in the contest will be awarded a suitable prize. At the inspection to-night, the presentation of prizes for the athletic events will take place. A handsome silver cup has been presented for competition by Mr. M. P. Reid. There is an absence of sickness in the camp and the spirit of the camp is excellent.

Camp will break on Saturday morning and the cadets will leave for their respective towns and cities on the noon trains. This evening after the inspection, boxing events will be staged and other athletic events while a tatoo will be held at dusk.

UNION LEADERS NOT SUPPORTED

Quiet Reigns in Strike Area—No Recent Violence Reported

SITUATION EASES

Strikers' Attitude Appears But Lukewarm in Certain Sections

Sydney, N.S., July 6.—Throughout yesterday and up until a late hour last night the Cape Breton strike area was so quiet that one might almost hear the proverbial pin drop. Steel helmeted soldiers guarded the property of the British Empire Steel Corporation, local and mounted policemen roamed about the streets in the immediate vicinity of the plant, but residents of the affected district kept indoors for the most part, and no untoward incident developed.

Sydney, N. S., July 6.—Whether or not a collapse of the coal miners' strike is imminent or not is difficult to say, but there are indications that the policy of the U.M.W. executive, which is directing the strike has not the whole-hearted support of the miners. The 100 per cent. strike policy, removing all maintenance men and leaving the great submarine collieries practically at the mercy of the elements seems to be the phase of the strike where a marked difference of opinion exists.

Evidence of this feeling is given by the action of Caledonia local where at a meeting Wednesday four men were appointed by the members to act as maintenance men in the Caledonia collieries. At New Waterford there is a growing objection to the strike and it is not unlikely that the miners in that area will return to the mines, where the power plant has been kept going continuously since the walkout.

Mayor D. W. Morrison of Glace Bay, who had the courage to advise against the strike at a great mass meeting at Glace Bay the night of the strike, has been nominated by No. 16 local to oppose Secretary J. B. McLachlan in the U. M. W., district elections. Mayor Morrison has a large following in the district, particularly by the saner type of miners, and the returned soldiers, having served overseas himself.

KINGSTON TROOPS ORDERED TO SYDNEY

Detachment of 450 Men Includes Nearly All R. C. H. A. From Petawawa.

Kingston, July 6.—Kingston troops have been called to the strike area at Sydney, N.S., and may take part in any action there. Wednesday at 2 p. m. a detachment of about 450 men, which included nearly all the R.C.A. from Petawawa, left, under direct orders from headquarters in Ottawa. While in camp there the soldiers are under the direct jurisdiction of Ottawa, so the order to move to the strike section came from there. Only a small number were left to keep the camp running and if it is found that this cannot be done they will be removed too and the camp closed.

NATIVE HAWAIIAN SEEN AS SORCERER IN ISLAND PICTURE

Defies Superstitious Fears by Playing "Kahuna" in "The White Flower"

Because the "Kahuna" or native sorcerer is credited with having the power of shortening human life, no native Hawaiian wished to play this role in Betty Compson's latest picture, "The White Flower." The natives seemed to entertain the idea that they would shorten their own lives if they played such a role.

Mrs. Julia Crawford Ivers, who directed the picture in Hawaii, finally succeeded in securing a wicked looking old native answering to the name of "Maui Kaito", who has sold papers on the streets of Honolulu for many years, to play the role of Kahuna.

Maui Kaito is a full blooded Hawaiian, born on the Island of Niihau. He has spent the sixty years of his life in the Islands. Even today, after several years of newspaper selling in Honolulu, he understands so little English that it was necessary to secure an interpreter to relay Mrs. Ivers' directorial instructions.

The scenes in Hawaii of the burning volcano Kilauea give the spectator an idea of what damage Mount Etna in Italy has done just recently.

LURE OF CIRCUS IS FEATURE IN HOOT GIBSON PICTURE

"Single Handed," the new Hoot Gibson picture that opened at the Regent last night, has one attraction that seems to be universal, appealing to old and young alike—the lure of the circus. The blare of the bands, the swell of the big tops, the shrill voiced bally-hoos, the glittering parade, the odor of the saw dust and roasted peanuts, the sparkle of the pink lemonade and the crunch of ice cream cones combine to make the magic word—circus. A genuine old fashioned circus in all its hectic glory forms the background for "Single Handed," the Universal picture starring Hoot Gibson, which opened at the Regent last night. The picture is a novel departure from the roles that Gibson has been seen in the past. It is replete with comedy and pathos and approaches the rare comedy work of Charlie Chaplin. It is a story of a boob that lived in a Kansas country town and is full of action from start to finish.

Along with this feature is shown a funny two-part comedy and a scenic taken of the Skeena River in British Columbia, a Pathe news film, which makes up a variety program which is sure to please.

War Fleet Turned Into Razor Blades

London, July 5—United Press).—England's proud wartime fleet is being converted into razor blades, dancing floors and gunmetal watch cases.

The metal will be moulded into articles of peace. Wooden decks are destined to resound to jazz music and gently tapping feet.

The Warspite, a terror of the seas from 1914 to 1918, has been sold for $33,500. It cost about $4,000,000 to build.

Shipwreckers scrap monster vessels with the same care that builders put into their construction. Every bolt and rivet is individually removed. Turbine blades, sometimes numbering 750,000 in each engine, are separately removed, melted and sold. Brass stairway coverings are worth taking up.

For a naval officer to scrape his chin with a portion of his old ship will be like Fido eating his brother in a sausage, but they must get used to it.

N. Y. Declares War on Careless Picnic Parties

New York, July 6.—(United Press)—New York has declared war on those of its citizenry who picnic in the public parks on Sundays and depart without the formality of cleaning away newspapers, tin cans, pickle bottles, food fragments and miscellaneous little so dear to the Sunday picknickers.

Park officials had complained to the police department that two or three days were sometimes required to clean up after Sabbath festivals in Central and Bronx parks. Special squads of bluecoats were thereupon assigned to patrol the city parks on Sunday and on the first day, 300 summonses were served, ninety-five per cent. being charged with throwing rubbish on the lawns, the remainder for violating park ordinances, such as trespassing on forbidden park property.

Some men's idea of a pair of slippers is that they are something to fold up and put into a travelling bag.

DR. COUGHLIN THANKS BELLEVILLE CITIZENS

Belleville, Ont., July 5, 1923

Editor, The Intelligencer,—

I would like through the columns of your paper, to heartily thank the many citizens of Belleville, who extended such a warm welcome and such generous hospitality to the members of the Convention of Instructors of the Deaf which met at the Ontario School for the Deaf last week. It is very gratifying to us all to know that the convention was unanimously declared to have been one of the best ever held by the Association, not only in professional interest and value, but for its many other enjoyable features, and to this enjoyment the people of Belleville contributed to no small degree.

Your readers will also be glad to know that our visitors were delighted with our beautiful city and bay and with everything they saw in this country, and expressed the warmest appreciation of the many courtesies they had received here and elsewhere, and they will carry the praise of Canada and the Canadian people to every part of the United States, as well as to Great Britain, India and Japan all of which countries were represented.

Again thanking all who contributed to their entertainment and yourself, for your report of the proceedings,

Faithfully yours,
C. B. COUGHLIN,
Sup't.

HARLOWE DALE

The warm weather and nice rains that we are having is making grain and hay look very prosperous, also the hoe crops are fine and strawberries abundant.

The party that gathered together for a day's outing on Gull Lake last week had a very enjoyable time boating and fishing. The ladies furnished a sumptuous dinner which all partook heartily of, after which some went out to troll and others went bathing. But unfortunately the wind raised and all had to stay till nearly sundown before getting back to landing.

Mr. Charles Hiller from Roblin is visiting with his sister, Mrs. W. Scott.

Mrs. Neal Stovers is visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Thompson.

Miss Arvilla Curtis, who has been in Toronto for some time, is visiting her sister, Mrs. T. Whiteman.

Mr. I. B. Morey, Baltimore, entertained some friends at J. White's.

Mr. R. Cuddy has his home moved and is preparing to build again.

Mr. W. Cuddy has greatly improved his barn by building an addition.

Mrs. Stovers has been a guest at J. White's.

Mr. I. F. Morey and wife, Mrs. N. Stovers and Miss Anna White were guests at Lillian Thompson's recently.

THE ART OF FORGETTING

(Buffalo Enquirer)

No one has learned the art of life who has not trained the mind to forget every experience from which it may derive no advantage. When the lesson of the mistake is learned, forget the mistake. The hours of shadow make no record on the sun-dial.

Here and There

In 1922 Canada produced minerals estimated to be worth $180,622,000, an increase of practically $6,000,000 over the previous year.

A British silk manufacturing firm has decided to establish a large plant near Quebec city for the manufacture of artificial silk yarn.

Almost sixteen and a half million bushels of wheat were exported from the port of Vancouver during the period September 1, 1922, to May 31 of the present year, according to figures issued by the Merchants Exchange.

Among the large number of unaccompanied women on the last westward voyages of the Canadian Pacific liners "Montclare" and "Melita" were twenty-three who were coming to Canada to be married in various parts of the Dominion.

An official in charge of the cattle shipments from the Port of Montreal recently stated that nearly 40,000 head of store cattle would be shipped from the port this year. He declared the rush seasons would be the months of August, September and October.

On her last eastward voyage the Canadian Pacific liner "Empress of Canada" established a new trans-Pacific record of 8 days, 10 hours and 55 minutes from Yokohama to Vancouver. The previous record, 8 days, 18 hours and 31 minutes, had been held since 1914 by the "Empress of Russia" of the same line.

If public deposits in banks and loan companies can be taken as a fair indication, the Canadian is the world's richest man, according to a statement made by F. A. Hatch, retiring president of the Ontario division of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. These deposits amount to more than two billion dollars, or $250 per capita.

According to a report of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, 62,273,169 tons of railway freight originated in Canada in 1922, and 26,581,631 was received from foreign connections, making a total of 88,854,800 outgoing. Also 62,548,578 tons terminated in Canada and 25,438,906 were delivered to foreign connections, making a total of 87,987,484 tons.

A distinct type of sheep, adapted to prairie range conditions and said to possess superior wool and sheep qualities, has been developed by R. C. Harvey, an Alberta sheep raiser. It will be known as the "Romnellet," and has been evolved after eight years' experimenting with crosses of the Romney-Marsh with the Rambouillet. As evidence of the wool production from this species, Mr. Harvey's annual clip is 120,000 pounds.

That Canada was gradually becoming more and more of an industrial country, and that Canadians themselves were not truly aware of the fact, was the opinion expressed before the Winnipeg Rotary Club by Prof. R. C. Wallace, of the University of Manitoba. He stated that during the past twenty-five years the population of Canada had increased 80 per cent., the railway mileage 120 per cent., while the industrial life of the country increased 700 per cent.

St. Hyacinthe, Que., has the distinction of having developed the world's largest organ plant, and by native invention and improvements evolved an instrument which receives praise from the world's first artists. An organ recently shipped by Cassavant Freres of that place to Paris, France, is absolutely the first to leave the American continent for Europe, the movement having heretofore been in the opposite direction, and was so shipped because the purchaser desired the finest and most up-to-date instrument that could be secured.

EARLE & COOK CO.

U. S. MOTHERS WORK TO BRING UP CHILDREN IN COMFORT

Washington, July 6 (United Press).—Why do married women seek gainful employment? What is the answer to the problem presented by the working mother?

The Children's Bureau of the Labor Department set out to answer these questions. Its report might be entitled "How the Other Half Lives."

For bureau investigators, who went into 11,000 cases of mothers who are employed, found that actual need, and not vanity or love of finery, was the motive that impelled the great majority of the 11,000 mothers to leave their homes and children to help earn the family living.

The bureau went into the cases of working mothers in Baltimore, in the Chicago stockyards, in gulf coast oyster canneries, in the beet fields in Michigan and Colorado and the cotton fields of Texas. They found that by far the largest percentage of these working mothers were from homes where the husband's earnings were relatively smallest, and where the children were most numerous.

They found a set of human facts which showed how menacing to the future health of the nation is this problem.

The health of babies was lowered by change of food or improper feeding; the home surroundings were of a lower standard because of the lack of the mother's care; they found some families orphaned because the mother broke down under the double load of her household duties and her outside employment.

HARD FOR MOTHER.

They found that mothers arising at dawn to get breakfast and get the children off to school, and then going to a day of toil in field or factory; they found them late at night baking, cleaning, mending, unremittingly spending their strength for their children.

The case of one Chicago mother was cited as an example. This young woman, who works for a packing company, puts her three-year-old child in a day nursery and sends a six-year-old to the nursery for lunch and after school. She keeps her house "immaculately clean" the bureau investigator reported, but to do it she works until after 11 every night, and when she does the family washing, she stays up until five in the morning.

A colored mother who cleaned cabs every night for 9 hours bought the day's provisions on her way home from work in the morning. She got the family breakfast before going to bed. She was usually up again at noon to prepare lunch for the children, and was always ready with their dinner in the evening. Every week on Wednesday she did the family washing and the ironing on Thursday, and often on other days she did the general housework and the family's plain sewing. Evidently most of her housekeeping was attended to when she should have been sleeping.

STOCKYARDS MOTHER.

A mother who worked in the stockyards from 3.30 in the afternoon till 11.30 seldom got to bed till 1 o'clock and the children kept her from sleeping late in the morning. She prepared the breakfast and lunch and did all the work except the washing and scrubbing. Her husband was an unskilled factory laborer, earning $18 a week and he did the scrubbing on Sunday and got supper every evening for himself and the children.

A mother of three children doing nearly all her housework in addition to 9 hours' work at a tailor shop started dinner the night before, so it had to be warmed up when it was eaten the next day. Laundry was sent out, but she did the ironing herself in the evenings. For the weekly cleaning she tried to take Saturday off, but this was impossible in the busy seasons.

Timely Hints on Summer and Fall Fashions

By HEDDA HOYT
Fashion Editor of the United Press
(Written for the United Press)

New York, N.Y., July 6.—Gypsy bathing caps are the latest thing at the beaches. They are rubberized squares of silk in brilliantly printed designs which wrap about the head and tie in Gypsy ends at one side. They are worn over the water-proof bathing cap.

Two-faced frocks are the latest word from Paris. Their fronts are entirely different from their backs. For instance, the front may be made in straight-lined effect, while the back has a skirt with three tiers of ruffles. Again the back may be tucked from head to foot, while the front is entirely plain.

Navy blue is more popular than black at present for the street dress. Browns are shown in the early fall exhibits and it is predicted that every shade of brown will be popular.

Women Should Act Quickly

When a woman finds herself afflicted with backache, headaches, nervousness, dragging-down pains, pain in her side, irregularities and irritability, dark circles appear under the eyes and her complexion gets sallow, she may be sure the underlying cause is some ailment peculiar to her sex. Such women should act quickly and take the great American remedy for such conditions, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and they may be saved years of suffering. For generations this old-fashioned root and herb medicine has been restoring ailing women to health, and it may be relied upon with perfect confidence.

AN AMERICAN OPINION

The New York Times in referring editorially in its issue of July 4 to the treaty between Canada and the United States to protect the halibut fisheries of the Pacific Coast, while crediting the Government with victory in the debate in the House of Commons over the treaty, pays tribute to the statesmanship of Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, Conservative leader. The Times assumed that the Government has shown that it was not guilty of "unnecessary and indecorous" conduct, but it adds:

"Still, Mr. Meighen made one fair point against the treaty. The Government said it affected no imperial interest. How about the reservation made by the United States Senate—which accepts mighty little and nothing without reservations? 'None of the nationals and inhabitants and vessels and boats of any other part of Great Britain shall engage in halibut fishing contrary to any provisions of the treaty.'

"The Canadian House of Commons has accepted the treaty, or convention, as the Canadian Government suggested that it be called. It hasn't accepted the reservation. The Minister of Marine and Fisheries, Mr. Lapointe, and Premier King said that they had reasonable ground for believing that the United States Senate would repeal the reservation. What has reason to do with Senate reservations? Mr. Lapointe said that the Senate's reservation was unnecessary, because the regulations under the treaty or convention would prevent any vessel of any nation whatsoever from using a Canadian or United States Pacific port as a base for halibut fishing. Without such a base it would be impossible for a vessel to engage in halibut fishing. The treaty provides for a close season of three months, beginning in November. Congress will meet in December. Will the close season be over before the Senate considers again this unnecessary reservation? The Canadian Minister of Marine and Fisheries should be more careful in his language. Water isn't half as necessary to a halibut as a reservation to our best Senatorial minds."

The reservation made by the United States Senate furnishes prime facie evidence that imperial interests ARE involved and that Canada's position in the matter of the halibut treaty is wholly different from that in connection with the Versailles treaty, which she signed, or the League of Nations, of which she became a member. The admonition to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries might rightly apply to more than "his language."

PRIZE-FIGHTING

Another red-letter day in the history of pugilism passed into history on Wednesday with the staging of the contest at Shelby, Mont. The attendance was disappointing to the promoters, but the enthusiasm seems to have been all that could be desired.

There appears, at first glance, to be sound argument upon which to predicate the assertion that prize-fighting is non-essential and detrimental to social progress. Yet, while the atmosphere of the prize-ring is certainly not elevating and the satellites, whose lives rotate about the stellar artists are not usually "eligible" from a social standpoint, these facts do not necessarily indict the sport of the squared circle.

Love of sport is a notable British characteristic and, inseparably coupled with it by tradition and custom, are love of fairplay and clean tactics. The average Canadian looks with favor upon any form of sport, which is clean and fair and conducive to the improvement of the health and physique of the participants. Prize-fighting, when the environment meets these requirements, is not wholly beyond the pale.

The history of the sport in the United States, however, has many smudged pages and for this reason prize-ring contests are coming to be looked upon askance in some quarters. Dempsey's character has been frequently assailed and his motives have been questioned. But the sport fans of Toronto, who met him when he appeared there in an exhibition bout, speak well of him. If Dempsey is the clean-living man he should be to fulfill the requirements of his profession and, if his present position is due solely to his natural talents and conscientious training, then he is deserving of reward for his efforts.

The average person is inclined, perhaps, to consider the incomes of successful pugilists unreasonably large. Yet, as a Belleville professional men, reminded the writer yesterday, the men who lead in their chosen calling receive a proportionately high remuneration for their services. The physician, whose talents have placed him above his fellows in his profession, the successful barrister, the educator and a host of others, who are specialists in their professions, command remarkably large incomes. When one considers that a prize-fighter of championship calibre does not usually enter the ring more often than once in two or three years, the sum of $300,000 does not seem unreasonable when compared to the incomes of leaders in other professions.

If pugilism is kept clean, it shall thrive, but unless the sport is purged of the unwholesome influences, which are too frequently evident, it will descend to the level of brutish physical encounters, palpably designed to wheedle money from the purpose of gullible spectators.

By The Side Of The Road

Typographical errors will creep into newspaper columns despite the most rigid censorship. In a Hamilton paper the other day a pink luncheon was charmingly described, but unfortunately it was referred to as a "punk" luncheon.

Since young women, eligible to matrimony, are greatly in the majority in England, the transfer of some of them from Coventry to Belleville should serve a dual purpose. Belleville has a great many young men, who should prove attractive as prospects for matrimonial alliances.

They are seeking high and low for a new U.F.O. leader; one who can assemble the shattered ranks and guide the remnant from the 'Moscow of political defeat" back to normalcy—or to a point as near to normalcy as it is possible for the United Farmers' Organization to attain. What's the matter with Dr. Coyne of Toronto? He should be able to "get in on the money".

Well, the weather is fine and the fish are biting. We should worry about the reparations tangle or the disorders in Eastern Europe.

A labor union organization in Toronto has pronounced emphatically in disapproval of the employment of "brass hats" to preserve the peace in strike areas. They should remember that the "brass hats" are essential to the welfare of a democratic commonwealth since they form a physical illustration of the democratic principles of the Canadian commonwealth.

The expression, "pouring oil on troubled waters", has lost its metaphorical significance. Nowadays in disturbed areas oil provokes discord.

CORRECT.

"What a terrible thing it must be," said he, "for a woman to discover a love letter in the pocket of her husband's coat just after she has mended it neatly and lovingly!"

The woman smiled "That could never happen," she said. "The woman would find the letter first—then she would not mend the coat.

PRESS OPINIONS

AN AMERICAN OPINION

(Buffalo Times)

Precipitately departing from the intention of allowing foreign ships to carry wine rations as medical supplies, it is now announced that all liquor brought into our ports by foreign vessels will be seized as contraband.

It is a dangerous and desperate experiment. Whether it means absolute confiscation or is preliminary to a legal test in the courts, it is sure to intensify the embroilment in which the Volstead act has involved us with the maritime nations of the world.

OUT OF HIS LINE.

(London Herald)

At a London police court recently an elderly woman complained that her husband insisted on doing all the household cooking. The magistrate was amused, until she produced a piece of beef burnt to a cinder in some places and raw in others.

He found the evidence convincing and the applicant was told to apply for a separation on the ground of cruelty. Would the magistrate have been equally sympathetic to a male applicant? It is the wife, as a rule, who is responsible for the cooking and therefore the cruelty.

NEWSPAPER IDEALS

(Natal Advertiser).

To us knowing a little of the trade of journalism, the marvel increasing daily is that with encouragement so meagre as to be almost non-existent, the press of South Africa (to mention only one corner of a world-wide field) should labor as zealously as it does for the promotion of ethical ideals from which it can never hope to profit and in pursuing which it very often gives offence to those able and eager to injure it in return.

It was said in times past that gratitude was a quality unknown to kings. It certainly is one unknown to the newspaper-reading democracy.

TIME FOR A CHANGE.

(Montreal Star)

We have a natural monopoly in pulpwood on this continent. This is one of our most valuable and immediately available sources of national wealth. We ought to be able to take advantage of it. We are talking advantage of it—and without causing retaliation—so far as the provinces have legislated.

It would be no more than a legitimate development of our traditional policy of encouraging home industry if we compelled the manufacture of every stick of Canadian pulp-wood in to a finished product before it left the country.

We surely have a right to rescue our land from the old imputation that it was the home of "hewers of wood and drawers of water" for the luckier people to the South.

BYWORD IN EUROPE.

(London News-

Ellis Island is becoming a byword in Europe; it is fast becoming also a focus for all the anti-American feeling that exists in the various European countries, and it is a grave mischief of American prestige.

It is quite true that it is very difficult to devise, and still more difficult to work satisfactorily, any measure for the limitation of immigration; but it is impossible to believe that this continual procession of cases is necessary in which perfectly respectable persons, guiltless of all offences except the accident of being in excess of an arbitrarily fixed quoto, are treated with what looks in their country of origin as high-handed and deliberate insult.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

WATER AT CAMP OR SUMMER COTTAGE

I realize that it is the twentieth century and that you have sense enough to know that impure water may mean serious illness or even death. And yet it would seem that people will still take a chance, and drink from wells that may have been exposed to all sources of contamination.

If you could see what comes out of some of these wells or cisterns when they are cleaned out from time to time you'd be surprised to say the least. I'll not tell you what I've seen myself because I don't want you to swear off drinking water. Water, pure water, is a good thing, a necessary thing for that body of yours.

Do you know when the analyst tests water as to its purity he does about a dozen different things. He tests its odor, its color, its taste, makes a microscopic examination for vegetable matter and bacteria, and then looks into the matter of the way the water is collected and carried to your home. All this is done by your department of health. So you see city water may not taste so good, but it is safe. And yet you will go to camp or cottage and perhaps take a chance on the water in the well or spring.

If you are locating for a cottage or camp and there is a well on the property, pump the water out for a few minutes and then secure a sample in a bottle for examination.

Years ago the books gave us the simple tests with lump sugar, advised a good method of making a filter with charcoal and gravel, and other advice, but this is hardly considered safe enough now. So you best plan is to have the water examined by the department of health. It costs you nothing and may save you countless hours of worry and grief.

Two simple effective methods of rendering the water safe are by boiling or adding chloride of lime to it. Boiling takes some of the taste out of the water, but you can bring the taste back by just beating the water with an egg beater or a clean stick of wood.

The chloride of lime method is so simple and effective that it is in everybody's power to render the water safe. A handful of chloride of lime thrown into the well once a week will keep the water pure. Remember, if the well has been uncovered during the winter it should be pumped out completely before you use it.

Kidney Sufferers

REGARDLESS OF SEX OR AGE

NOW is a good time to use ENURESOL TABLETS for your Kidney or Bladder trouble, for weak, lame back, for cystitis, nervousness, for days of pain and weary, sleepless nights, for headache, loss of appetite, for painful bladder ENURESOL TABLETS are man's greatest discovery.

GETTING UP time after time is one of the most annoying of kidney troubles, and one of the most dangerous, as many people bothered this way never seem to realize that this is only a warning of kidney trouble. The loss of sleep is another drain on the nervous system, and the chilling of the body from rising so often is another shock for the system, which is already overworked.

BED-WETTING takes about the same position in kidney troubles that backache, and other warnings do. It is simply a warning that kidneys or bladder are affected if only from nervous shock, but is doubly dangerous because the bed-wetting may stop for years, then come back as any of the troubles at first mentioned of which the cause is the same. ENURESOL TABLETS overcome this cause.

This theory has been proven correct by the uniformly good results obtained with ENURESOL TABLETS in young and old, as the following typical cases from our records show, names of which will be furnished upon request:

R. D., Minnesota: Girl, age 14 years, had always been a bed-wetter, although apparently well otherwise. Her parents tried many treatments, medical and mechanical, without benefits. Seven weeks after beginning to use ENURESOL TABLETS she stopped wetting the bed, but continued the treatment six weeks longer and she has had no return of the trouble.

R. G., Wayne, Michigan: Boy, 11 years. Three years ago his mother ordered four boxes of ENURESOL TABLETS and four months later reported the boy had not wet the bed for six weeks, and since reports the trouble has not returned.

Mrs. W., Milwaukee, Wis.: Age 44 years, has never had a full night's sleep, having to get up four to eight times a night. Visited Hot Springs, mud baths, sanitariums, and was operated on twice in two different hospitals without benefit. Six weeks of ENURESOL cured her completely, three years ago, and has had no return of the troublesome nuisance.

F. J., Minnesota, 75 years old, is no less interesting. For over 25 years F. J. suffered with incontinence of urine, day and night. As he grew older the trouble increased, having to pass water every half hour or oftener. Had a stroke of paralysis which increased the trouble to such an extent that only a few drops of bloody urine could be voided with intense pain, causing surgeons to suspect cancer of the bladder. Being placed on ENURESOL at the dose of two tablets every two hours with a glass of cool water or milk, the tenesmus disappeared in twelve hours and had a good restful sleep the next night, and fully recovered perfect health in the next three months. Mr. F. J. is now 85 years old and at last report was still alive and well.

It is important to regulate the diet, and overeating, coffee, and acid foods should be used sparingly.

ENURESOL TABLETS are absolutely safe and harmless, being a tonic for the kidneys, bladder and nervous system.

It is dependable for weak, nervous, restless, slow-growing, languid children. A fair trial of ENURESOL TABLETS will convince you of their value.

FANNING WITH FARRELL

WHERE DO AMATEURS GET THE CASH

By PAUL R. MALLON, United Press Staff Corresondent.

New York, June 30.—A new storm is being stirred up to clean so-called amateur athletics of professionalism. Great gusts of words are blowing from east and west, howling reform.

The latest furore is being directed against track athletes. It is said a great number of running stars are receiving money in secret for performing in various meets.

It is known that a policeman can't wear silk shirts and a high hat on his salary. It is known a taxi driver can't tour the world on his profits every year. It is known a poor man can't live in ease without money.

A leading runner said he had been offered $30,000 to tour the west with a bunch of gamblers for three months. Another sprinter said he had received an offer of $1,000 for one race.

Gamblers would take the runners to small towns, where there are some local "stars." They would let their man (under an assumed name, of course) lose a couple of races to loosen up the change of the small townsmen. Then they would sock in a good bet and depart with the cash.

One of these runners said he knew many of his brother amateurs that were being paid money. He named them, and named the amount they received for certain races.

"Everybody knows about it," he said. "But what can you do? If you raise a howl, they would sweep out the best runners in America.

"It would ruin the sport and spoil American chances in the next Olympic games."

That's interesting. It certainly cannot be considered "American sportsmanship" to let such a condition continue, the storm stirrers say. If any amateur is receiving money he should be kicked out. And the only reason nothing is being done about it is because it would spoil American chances in the Olympics.

• • •

But some of the old heads take a different viewpoint. They say it is useless to pick on one sport and let others go free.

A large number of college athletes are receiving tuition and board and other gratuities for attending certain schools.

Amateur baseball players in many communities receive inducements for lending their services to certain teams.

Tennis stars don't patronize certain clubs and draw large crowds because they like the air.

It cannot be said in fairness to all these that their motive is commercial. They don't accept these gratuities in the spirit of making money. They look upon them as "picking up a little bit on the side."

Of course, a sprinting star who runs for gamblers should be kicked out. There aren't many of these. Most of the money received by amateurs of the track is received just like the others—for patronizing a certain club.

How many amateur athletes would there be left in the United States if football, baseball, track, golf and tennis stars were swept out?

If the reformers want to reform, they will have to clean up all these, not just one. Then they will have to 'prove' that certain amateurs received certain specific sums. They will have to find someone who will confess, produce documents or get a witness when the money is handed over.

It's a pretty big proposition, and it will take a considerable sized storm to do any good.

It's more likely that said storm will dwindle to a zephyr.

Jack Kearns doesn't know a thing. He fixed it so Dempsey, to whom he is charge d'affaires, would get his entire purse before he stepped into the ring with Tommy Gibbons. He pried out $100,000, cash money, as soon as the contract was signed, collected another $100,000 after a few weeks, and was due $100,000 July 2.

Kearns may not look good in a silk hat, but he knows how to do his stuff.

SPORT GOSSIP

The Lindsay team followed the Drury government under the avalanche yesterday when they were defeated by the Oshawa team here by a score of 15 to 1. A few weeks ago the Motor town boys visited town and Lindsay put it over them in a snappy game but yesterday's exhibition was far from the game that was played that day. The Oshawa team knocked 21 hits from Begg yesterday. Several of the hits should have been fielded by the locals but they were listless in the field. Six errors were chalked up against Lindsay. The locals on the other hand took nine hits from Patten and one from Dainty during the engagement and only scored once. Several men were picked off by injudicious and slow running of the base lines. Lindsay had the edge in the first of the game and the first three men up hit safely but Patten improved with use, while Lindsay slid backward and the last few innings the visitors were facing only a straight fast ball, which they proceeded to hit to all parts of the field. Oshawa made fifteen safe hits in the last four innings.—Post.

OSHAWA MANAGER RESIGNS

Oshawa, July 4.—At an executive meeting of the local Central Ontario League club, the resignation of Ray Belding as manager of the team was accepted, and Charles Shultz was appointed to succeed him. Owing to business connections Belding was unable to accompany the team on many of the road trips. The executive of the club is endeavoring to make arrangements with Lindsay to have the games scheduled to be played here next Wednesday moved forward to this Saturday.

Ottawa St. Pats defeated Kingston "Big Four" team by a score of 16-13. The game was featured by very heavy hitting all around. Manager Batstone dug up a new hurler by the name of Delaney from Gananoque. The boy showed up fairly well and may possibly be used at a future date.

Batstone and Daley are tied for the home run honors on Kingston's "Big Four" team. In the matter of triples Rice has already smashed out a trio of three-baggers. Sommerville has three doubles. Twigg has a batting average of .366 and is heading the list. Bert Daley is heading the base-stealing department and is also leading in the matter of sacrifice hits.

Two-Minute Tours

(By United Press)

Announcement that the U.S. army air service will use a motorized balloon to make a chemical attack upon the gipsy moth in New Hampshire, recalls the interesting pioneer experiments in fighting insects with aircraft.

Lieutenant J. A. Macready, acting chief of the flying section of the government's aviation experimental station at McCook Field, Dayton, Ohio, was the man who piloted the machine which was an epoch maker in the annals of insect warfare.

Two years ago there occurred in Ohio three full broods or crops of the caterpillars, each sufficiently numerous to defoliate completely the grove in which they appeared. Some groves put out three full crops of foliage and each in its turn was wholly consumed by the ravenous worms.

The plane used was a Curtis J N 6, equipped with a hopper for carrying and liberating the poison powder.

The catalpa grove in which the dusting was done was situated on level ground and had been planted for the growing of post and pole timber. It was a rectangular plot, 800 feet long and 325 feet wide, and contained approximately six acres. The trees, 4,815 in number, were from 25 to 30 feet tall.

The plane flew at a speed of 80 miles an hour at an altitude of from 20 to 35 feet and in a line 53 yards to the windward and parallel to the grove. The dense cloud of poison dust thrown out behind the moving plane was grasped by the wind and floated through and over the grove, covering the foliage in its passage.

Of Interest to Women

By HEDDA HOYT

(Fashion Editor of the United Press)

Written for the United Press

New York, N. Y.—July 6.—(United Press)—Do you remember when you were a little girl living in the land of "Make-Believe?" We "made believe" we were grown ladies with servants galore and huge estates and when we grew up without the servants and estates, perhaps, we had the business of "make-believe" THRUST upon us. We had to MAKE over our old clothes and BELIEVE they were the latest models out.

The woman who can get away with this little job of make-believe is a wonder!

I want to suggest a few little things that can be done with the left-overs of last summer. First, there is that fringed cape made of black silk crepe which many of us had. They are completely out of fashion this year and unless we cut off the fringe and add a piece of material placing it on with a tuck so that it makes a straight, long cape with a little gray squirrel collar at the neck, we won't wear it.

A SHOPPING GOWN

I saw the prettiest shopping gown for warm afternoons that could be made out of the old black cape. Of course some new material had to be brought, as the cape formed only the skirt portion.

The long upper bodice was made of white silk crepe with huge squares outlined in black. A narrow strip of black monkey fur finished the joining of the skirt to the bodice and drew the two materials together.

The bodice had a square neck line and very short sleeves which were also finished with monkey fur. This was worn with a tiny black mushroom shaped hat faced in white chiffon and ornamented with a white waterlily on the front brim with green leaves falling to one side.

Another thing one can use the old cape for—the bathing suit with the long bodice and three tiered skirt and bloomers.

REMODELING SUMMER DRESSES.

Perhaps you have a lovely summer dress that is too short for this season. It may be a little organdy with a ruffled skirt, an embroidered skirt or some lovely material that you hate to throw away. Try taking the best of the skirt and making side panels. It matters not if the panel is pieced to give it length, as this can be done in some unnoticeable way. It is very simple then to buy enough material for a plain little underslip of the same shade.

If the frock is faded, wash the new material and place it in the sun until it has lost it's brightness. I have already said in previous articles that skirts may be lengthened by means of pleated flounces. These are very new. Sports skirts may be lengthened by sewing them on a long bodice. They need not extend as high as the normal waistline, as the sweaters hide them anyway.

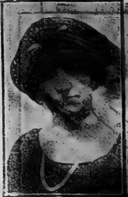
There's a hat box full of last season's hats. Their brims are somewhat awry and their crowns are bent beyond recognition. The wetting the crowns and shaping them over an inverted bowl of the required head-size. When dry, paint with a hat dye in any darker shade. Wire the brim and bind with grosgraine or velvet ribbon. Ribbon or flower trimming can be used. As a certain Irishman said, "It's not the age of the hat, but the way it is cocked that makes it."

Geysers on the Job for Yellowstone Opening

Yellowstone Park, Wyo., July 5.—(United Press)—With the official opening of Yellowstone National Park, intense activity in the Norris Geyser Basin is reported by rangers. This activity has culminated in the appearance of a new geyser. Recently this new geyser has been erupting to a height of 75 feet, and there are indications that it may continue to erupt indefinitely at intervals of about twice hours. Its eruptions are followed by great steam displays and loud roaring.

The Crater Geyser, sometimes called the Mud Geyser, also of recent origin, has been very active during the winter and has enlarged its crater.

During the spring rangers have been taking note of the famous Semi-Centennial Geyser, fifteen miles south of Mammoth Hot Springs in the Roaring Mountain region, which first erupted with extraordinary violence on August 11, 1922. This Geyser is still inactive and it is uncertain whether it will erupt again this year.



MISSING FROM HOME

Believed to be in Toronto, the police have been asked to locate Essie Viola Gibbons, missing from Edmonton since June 21. Miss Gibbons is described as twenty-three years of age, five feet three inches, fair complexion, light brown hair, wearing dark green suit with a three-quarter length coat heavily embroidered with grey chenille, with beaver collar.

ANONYMOUS

"God bless my soul, I didn't," cried Mr. Triggs earnestly, "I've been looking forward to his ever since I got your wire yesterday afternoon."

"Now he has given me away," cried Lady Tanagra. "How like a man!"

"Given you away, me dear!" cried Mr. Triggs anxiously. "What 'ave I done?"

"Why, you have told these two people here that I made an assignation with you by telegram."

"Made a what, me dear?" enquired Mr. Triggs, his forehead corrugated with anxiety.

"Anyway, I'll forgive you anything, Mr. Triggs, as you have come," said Lady Tanagra.

Mr. Triggs's brow cleared and he smiled.

"Come, I should think I would come," he said.

Lady Tanagra then explained her meeting with Mr. Triggs and how he had striven to avoid her company at luncheon on the previous day. Mr. Triggs protested vigorously.

During the tea the conversation was entirely in the hands of Lady Tanagra, Elton and Mr. Triggs. Patricia sat silently listening to the others. Several times Lady Tanagra and Mr. Triggs exchanged meaning glances.

"Why ain't you talking, me dear?" Mr. Triggs once asked.

"I like to hear you all," said Patricia, smiling across at him. "You're all too clever for me," she added.

"Me clever!" cried Mr. Triggs, and then as if the humour of the thing had suddenly struck him he went off into gurgles of laughter. "You ought to tell 'Ettie that," he spluttered. "She thinks 'er old father's a fool. Me clever!" he repeated, and again he went off into ripples of mirth.

"What are your views on love, Mr. Triggs?" demanded Lady Tanagra suddenly.

Mr. Triggs gazed at her in surprise. Then he looked from Patricia to Elton, as if not quite sure whether or no he were expected to be serious.

"If I were you I should decline to reply. Lady Tanagra treats subjects flippantly," said Elton. "Her attitude towards life is to prepare a pan-cake as if it were a souffle."

"That proves the Celt in me," cried Lady Tanagra. "If I were English I should make a souffle as if it were a pancake."

Mr. Triggs looked from one to the other in obvious bewilderment.

"I am perfectly serious in my question," said Lady Tanagra, without the vestige of a smile. "Mr. Triggs is elemental."

"To be elemental is to be either indelicate or overbearing," murmured Elton, "and Mr. Triggs is neither."

"Love, me dear?" said Mr. Triggs, not in the least understanding the trend of the conversation. "I don't think I've got any ideas about it."

"Surely you are not a cynic, Mr. Triggs?" demanded Lady Tanagra.

"A what?" enquired Mr. Triggs.

"Surely you believe in love," said Lady Tanagra.

"Me and Mrs. Triggs lived together 'appily for over thirty years," he replied gravely, "and when a man an' woman 'ave lived together for all that time they get to believe in love. It's never been the same since she died." His voice became a little husky, and Elton looked at Lady Tanagra who lowered her eyes.

"I'm sorry, Mr. Triggs. Will you tell us about—about—," she broke off.

"Well, you see, me dear," said Mr. Triggs in an uncertain voice, "I was a foreman when I met 'er, and she was a servant; but—somehow or other it seemed that we were just made for each other. Once I knew 'er, I didn't seem to be able to see things without her. When I was at work—I was in the building trade, foreman-carpenter," he explained, "I used to be thinking of 'er all the time. If I went anywhere without 'er—she only had one night off a week and one day a month—I would always keep thinking of how she would like what I was seeing, or eating. It was a funny feeling," he added reminiscently as if entirely unable to explain it. "Somehow or other I always wanted to 'ave 'er with me, so that she might share what I was 'aving. It was a funny feeling," he repeated, and he looked from one to another with moist eyes. "Of course," he added, "I can't explain things like that; I'm not clever."

"I think, Mr. Triggs, that you've explained love in—in——" Lady Tanagra broke off and looked at Elton, who was unusually grave.

"Mr. Triggs has explained it," he replied, "in the only way in which it can be explained, and that is by being defined as unexplainable."

Mr. Triggs looked at Elton for a moment, then nodded his head violently.

"That's it, Mr. Elton, that's it. It's a feeling, not a thing that you can put into words."

"I shall always remember your definition of love, Mr. Triggs," said Lady Tanagra with a far-away look in her eyes. "I think you and Mrs. Triggs must have been very happy together."

SCREECH, A FAIRY DOG

Screech was so thin he was flat,
And he longed to be terribly fat;
How hard he would toil
To get lots of oil—
He'd heard there was fattening in that.

I've heard some people boast that they have never seen a fairy. I surely hope that you don't belong to that class. If you really haven't you should be ashamed to own up to it. It's nothing to boast about.

But I suppose there are lots of people who have never seen fairy dogs, and I suppose, too, that it isn't altogether their fault. I know from experience that they really are dreadfully hard to see.

In most respects, however, fairy dogs are just like ordinary dogs. They are much, much smaller. And Screech was small even for a fairy dog. He was so small that he often hid in the eye of a needle and made Nurse wonder why the thread wouldn't go through.

Now, Screech's one desire was to become big and strong. For that reason he was very fond of oil. He had read some place that it was very good for fairy dogs. He licked up every bit of machine oil that he could get his tongue on in the sewing machine drawer. Nurse kept a little can of machine oil.

Every once in a great, great while she would pour a little of the oil on the big machine wheel. Then Screech was happy. He would quickly lick up every bit of it and then rush to weigh himself. He weighed himself by hanging onto the thread of the sewing machine and seeing how far down his weight pulled it. It was his greatest ambition to get so fat that he would break the thread.

But poor Screech did not make progress. Nurse oiled the machine so seldom. He was becoming desperate. The knot he had tied in the thread was heavier than he. All the poor little doggie had had to eat for ever so long was chalk dust and basting threads, and neither of these is very fattening. After all, a sewing room isn't a very good place to live, if you want to get fat.

But Screech had a wonderful idea. "I'll make her oil the machine," he thought to himself. "Every time she runs it, when she hasn't oiled it, I'm going to howl and screech so loud her ears won't be able to stand it." And that's just exactly what Screech did do. The very next time Nurse tried to sew, he opened his little mouth and screeched so that Nurse had to cover her ears. "Mercy, this needs oiling badly," she cried.

Screech immediately gobbled up the oil as fast as ever he could. The next time Nurse tried to sew he howled and screeched some more. "I never heard of a machine that takes so much oil," she complained as she poured on more than ever before. And ever after that Screech got all the oil he wanted.

CORRECT BREATHING.

(This is the fourth of a series of eight articles by Pierson L. Maxwell, a swimming expert who has tought boys and girls to swim at municipal beaches ocean beaches and private pools. Mr. Maxwell has been a lifeguard and a racing swimmer for a number of years. He knows what he is talking about when it comes to swimming. Clip these articles and follow them if you want to become a good swimmer.)

Do not attempt these breathing exercises until you have a fairly easy action with your arms and legs, keeping the leg kick fast and the arm movement slow.

BLOW BUBBLES.

To start the breathing exercise, get in the water, take a deep breath of air, put your head under the water, and blow bubbles, forcing the air out of the mouth and nose. Do this until it does not cause any particular effort—three or four times will probably be enough to get the hang of it.

Now comes the real test. Start the dead man's float, legs and arms. Blow bubbles under water. Here is the way to get a new breath, after the old air has been blown from the lungs. Just as the right arm is finishing its stroke and is alongside and parallel to the body and the left arm is just beginning its stroke, turn the head sharply to the right and grab a breath of air, THROUGH YOUR MOUTH, not through the nose.

DON'T SHIP WATER.

The only way to keep from shipping water in the first several attempts at breathing, is to have a powerful leg kick and a smooth arm movement while you turn your head. When you get your breath, turn the head back to its normal position and blow bubbles again. Every time the right arm gets in the position just described, the head should turn and get a new breath of air, through the mouth.

If the arms are moving too fast, it will be impossible to breathe on every stroke, so keep the arm action slow and the leg movement fast. Don't get discouraged if you ship a few mouthfuls of water.

CROW'S NEST.
ON THE WAY TO CROW'S NEST—THE HIGHEST WOODEN BRIDGE IN THE WORLD.

Rolling up to the Crow's Nest Pass are olive green foothills without a tree upon them—natural cattle runs clothed with succulent short grass. Here are seen occasional outcrops of rock, which in their four or five feet of height show all the characteristics of a mountain range; miniatures of the Rockies, with crag and precipice and col reproduced on the smallest scale. With a bag of salt one could lay on glaciers, touch the peaks with white and have a toy range which any Eastern schoolteacher could set up in her classroom with advantage to herself and her pupils. Canadians east of Medicine Hat know too little about the construction of this Continent and about the glorious engineering of Nature.

Consider the Crow's Nest itself. The name brings before some of us a schedule of railway-rates; to others, a series of coal mines. These are derivative impressions. The original Crow's Nest is a mountain rising to 9,000 feet and more above sea level and visible for many miles. The rock-peak, as one looks from the foothills is set like a fuzzy, round crow's-nest on the sky-line. Leading up to it are the olive-green billows fading into a soft, blue haze.

In the distance near the peak is a snow-white precipice, which they tell us is two miles wide and a mile high. It is all excellence and loveliness until one travels twenty miles farther. Then it gleams like the fangs of a wolf. It is the rock-face of Turtle Mountain, cleft from top to bottom in 1903 to the destruction of the mining town of Frank.

To-day the whole valley, two miles wide, is a tempestuous chaos of white stone blocks, some of them as big as a house, all with jagged edges and sharp corners. They are piled from fifty to one hundred feet high above the original valley level. The railway line climbs over the debris. Beneath it lies the broken city. On either side of the avalanche stand a few deserted houses, windows out, glaring like skulls upon the newer town. The whole valley spells terror and tragedy. Even yet people talk of Pompeii and Herculaneum, but they are like to forget the more terrible fate of Frank when rock by millions of tons fell a mile out of the sky.

Of Interest to Women

By HEDDA HOYT

(Fashion Editor of the United Press)

Written for the United Press

New York, N. Y.—July 6.—(United Press).—Do you remember when you were a little girl living in the land of "Make-Believe?" We "made believe" we were grown ladies with servants galore and huge estates and when we grew up without the servants and estates, perhaps, we had the business of "make-believe" THRUST upon us. We had to MAKE over our old clothes and BELIEVE they were the latest models out.

The woman who can get away with this little job of make-believe is a wonder!

I want to suggest a few little things that can be done with the left-overs of last summer. First, there is that fringed cape made of black silk crepe which many of us had. They are completely out of fashion this year and unless we cut off the fringe and add a piece of material placing it on with a tuck so that it makes a straight, long cape with a little gray squirrel collar at the neck, we won't wear it.

A SHOPPING GOWN

I saw the prettiest shopping gown for warm afternoons that could be made out of the old black cape. Of course some new material had to be brought, as the cape formed only the skirt portion.

The long upper bodice was made of white silk crepe with huge squares outlined in black. A narrow strip of black monkey fur finished the joining of the skirt to the bodice and drew the two materials together.

The bodice had a square neck line and very short sleeves which were also finished with monkey fur. This was worn with a tiny black mushroom shaped hat faced in white chiffon and ornamented with a white waterlily on the front brim with green leaves falling to one side.

Another thing one can use the old cape for—the bathing suit with the long bodice and three tiered skirt and bloomers.

REMODELING SUMMER DRESSES.

Perhaps you have a lovely summer dress that is too short for this season. It may be a little organdy with a ruffled skirt, an embroidered skirt or some lovely material that you hate to throw away. Try taking the best of the skirt and making side panels. It matters not if the panel is pieced to give it length, as this can be done in some unnoticeable way. It is very simple then to buy enough material for a plain little underslip of the same shade.

If the frock is faded, wash the new material and place it in the sun until it has lost it's brightness. I have already said in previous articles that skirts may be lengthened by means of pleated flounces. These are very new. Sports skirts may be lengthened by sewing them on a long bodice. They need not extend as high, as the normal waistline as the sweaters hide them anyway.

There's a hat box full of last season's hats. Their brims are somewhat awry and their crowns are bent beyond recognition. The wetting the crowns and shapping them over an inverted bowl of the required head-size. When dry, paint with a hat dye in any darker shade. Wire the brim and bind with grograine or velvet ribbon. Ribbon or flower trimming can be used. As a certain Irishman said, "It's not the age of the hat, but the way it is cocked that makes it."

Geysers on the Job for Yellowstone Opening

Yellowstone Park, Wyo., July 5.—(United Press).—With the official opening of Yellowstone National Park, intense activity in the Norris Geyser Basin is reported by rangers. This activity has culminated in the appearance of a new geyser. Recently this new geyser has been erupting to a height of 75 feet, and there are indications that it may continue to erupt indefinitely at intervals of about twelve hours. Its eruptions are followed by great steam displays and loud roaring.

The Crater Geyser, sometimes called the Mud Geyser, also of recent origin, has been very active during the winter and has enlarged its career.

During the spring rangers have been taking note of the famous Semi-Centennial Geyser, fifteen miles south of Mammoth Hot Springs in the Roaring Mountain region, which first erupted with extraordinary violence on August 14, 1922. This Geyser is still inactive and it is uncertain whether it will erupt again this year.

MISSING FROM HOME

Believed to be in Toronto, the police have been asked to locate Essie Viola Gibbons, missing from Edmonton since June 24. Miss Gibbons is described as twenty-three years of age, five feet three inches, fair complexion, light brown hair, wearing dark green suit with a three-quarter length coat heavily embroidered with grey chenille, with beaver collar.

PATRICIA BRENT SPINSTER

ANONYMOUS

"God bless my soul, I didn't," cried Mr. Triggs earnestly, "I've been looking forward to his ever since I got your wire yesterday afternoon."

"Now he has given me away," cried Lady Tanagra. "How like a man!"

"Given you away, me dear!" cried Mr. Triggs anxiously. "What 'ave I done?"

"Why, you have told these two people here that I made an assignation with you by telegram."

"Made a what, me dear?" enquired Mr. Triggs, his forehead corrugated with anxiety.

"Anyway, I'll forgive you anything, Mr. Triggs, as you have come," said Lady Tanagra.

Mr. Triggs's brow cleared and he smiled.

"Come. I should think I would come," he said.

Lady Tanagra then explained her meeting with Mr. Triggs and how he had striven to avoid her company at luncheon on the previous day. Mr. Triggs protested vigorously.

During the tea the conversation was entirely in the hands of Lady Tanagra, Elton and Mr. Triggs. Patricia sat silently listening to the others. Several times Lady Tanagra and Mr. Triggs exchanged meaning glances.

"Why ain't you talking, me dear?" Mr. Triggs once asked.

"I like to hear you all," said Patricia, smiling across at him. "You're all too clever for me," she added.

"Me clever!" cried Mr. Triggs, and then as if the humour of the thing had suddenly struck him he went off into gurgles of laughter. "You ought to tell 'Ettie that," he spluttered. "She thinks 'er old father's a fool. Me clever!" he repeated, and again he went off into ripples of mirth.

"What are your views on love, Mr. Triggs?" demanded Lady Tnagra suddenly.

Mr. Triggs gazed at her in surprise. Then he looked from Patricia to Elton, as if not quite sure whether or no he were expected to be serious.

"If I were you I should decline to reply. Lady Tanagra treats subjects flippantly," said Elton. "Her attitude towards life is to prepare a pan-cake as if it were a souffle."

"That proves the Celt in me," cried Lady Tanagra. "If I were English I should make a souffle as if it were a pancake."

Mr. Triggs looked from one to the other in obvious bewilderment.

"I am perfectly serious in my question," said Lady Tanagra, without the vestige of a smile. "Mr. Triggs is elemental."

"To be elemental is to be either indelicate or overbearing," murmured Elton, "and Mr. Triggs is neither."

"Love, me dear?" said Mr. Triggs, not in the least understanding the trend of the conversation. "I don't think I've got any ideas about it."

"Surely you are not a cynic, Mr. Triggs," demanded Lady Tanagra.

"A what?" enquired Mr. Triggs.

"Surely you believe in love," said Lady Tanagra.

"Me and Mrs. Triggs lived together 'appily for over thirty years," he replied gravely, "and when a man an' woman 'ave lived together for all that time they get to believe in love. It's never been the same since she died." His voice became a little husky, and Elton looked at Lady Tanagra who lowered her eyes.

"I'm sorry, Mr. Triggs. Will you tell us about—about—" she broke off.

"Well, you see, me dear," said Mr. Triggs in an uncertain voice, "I was a foreman when I met 'er, and she was a servant; but—somehow or other it seemed that we were just made for each other. Once I knew 'er, I didn't seem to be able to see things without her. When I was at work—I was in the building trade, foreman-carpenter," he explained, "I used to be thinking of 'er all the time. If I went anywhere without 'er—she only had one night off a week and one day a month—I would always keep thinking of how she would like what I was seeing, or eating. It was a funny feeling," he added reminiscently as if entirely unable to explain it. "Somehow or other I always wanted to 'ave 'er with me, so that she might share what I was 'aving. It was a funny feeling," he repeated, and he looked from one to another with moist eyes. "Of course," he added, "I can't explain things like that. I'm not clever."

"I think, Mr. Triggs, that you've explained love in—in——" Lady Tanagra broke off and looked at Elton, who was unusually grave.

"Mr. Triggs has explained it," he replied, "in the only way in which it can be explained, and that is by being defined as unexplainable."

Mr. Triggs looked at Elton for a moment, then nodded his head violently.

"That's it, Mr. Elton, that's it. It's a feeling, not a thing that you can put into words."

"I shall always remember your definition of love, Mr. Triggs," said Lady Tanagra with a far-away look in her eyes. "I think you and Mrs. Triggs must have been very happy together."

SCREECH, A FAIRY DOG

Screech was so thin he was flat,
And he longed to be terribly fat;
How hard he would toil
To get lots of oil—
He'd heard there was fattening in that.

I've heard some people boast that they have never seen a fairy. I surely hope that you don't belong to that class. If you really haven't you should be ashamed to own up to it. It's nothing to boast about.

But I suppose there are lots of people who have never seen fairy dogs, and I suppose, too, that it isn't altogether their fault. I know from experience that they really are dreadfully hard to see.

In most respects, however, fairy dogs are just like ordinary dogs. They are much, much smaller. And Screech was small even for a fairy dog. He was so small that he often hid in the eye of a needle and made Nurse wonder why the thread wouldn't go through.

Now, Screech's one desire was to become big and strong. For that reason he was very fond of oil. He had read some place that it was very good for fairy dogs. He licked up every bit of machine oil that he could get his tongue on in the sewing machine drawer. Nurse kept a little can of machine oil.

Every once in a great, great while she would pour a little of the oil on the big machine wheel. Then Screech was happy. He would quickly lick up every bit of it and then rush to weigh himself. He weighed himself by hanging onto the thread of the sewing machine and seeing how far down his weight pulled it. It was his greatest ambition to get so fat that he would break the thread.

But poor Screech did not make progress. Nurse oiled the machine so seldom. He was becoming desperate. The knot he had tied in the thread was heavier than he. All the poor little doggie had had to eat for ever so long was chalk dust and basting threads, and neither of these is very fattening. After all, a sewing room isn't a very good place to live, if you want to get fat.

But Screech had a wonderful idea. "I'll make her oil the machine." he thought to himself. "Every time she runs it, when she hasn't oiled it, I'm going to howl and screetch so loud her ears won't be able to stand it." And that's just exactly what Screech did do. The very next time Nurse tried to sew, he opened his little mouth and screeched so that Nurse had to cover her ears. "Mercy, this needs oiling badly," she cried.

Screech immediately gobbled up the oil as fast as ever he could. The next time Nurse tried to sew he howled and screeched some more. "I never heard of a machine that takes so much oil," she complained as she poured on more than ever before. And ever after that Screetch got all the oil he wanted.

CORRECT BREATHING.

(This is the fourth of a series of eight articles by Pierson L. Maxwell, a swimming expert who has tought boys and girls to swim at municipal beaches ocean beaches and private pools. Mr. Maxwell has been a lifeguard and a racing swimmer for a number of years. He knows what he is talking about when it comes to swimming. Clip these articles and follow them if you want to become a good swimmer.)

Do not attempt these breathing exercises until you have a fairly easy action with your arms and legs, keeping the leg kick fast and the arm movement slow.

BLOW BUBBLES.

To start the breathing exercise, get in the water take a deep breath of air, put your head under the water, and blow bubbles, forcing the air out of the mouth and nose. Do this until it does not cause any particular effort—three or four times will probably be enough to get the hang of it.

Now comes the real test. Start the dead man's float, legs and arms, blow bubbles under water. Here is the way to get a new breath, after the old air has been blown from the lungs. Just as the right arm is finishing its stroke and is alongside and parallel to the body and the left arm is just beginning its stroke, turn the head sharply to the right and grab a breath of air, THROUGH YOUR MOUTH, not through the nose.

SHOCKED WALL STREET

EX-GROCERY CLERK CAUSED A MILD SENSATION.

Here Is Another Example of the Financial Coups Which Have Caused Some Persons to Describe New York as Hicksville-by-the-Hudson—Experienced Brokers Caught in Well Arranged Trap.

Hickoryville-by-the-Hudson is a slang name that New York reluctantly answers to. It is celebrated for the number of clever criminal or almost criminal coups that are achieved there and also for being the residence of the victims of these coups. O. Henry's bunco artists had the idea that New York was of all towns the easiest to work, especially by the impresario from the west, and this is probably true. At any rate the city that prides itself upon its sophistication figures more prominently than any other American cities in news of which the general moral is that a fool and his money are soon parted. Now and then the victims of the parting process are not properly to be described as fools. Sometimes they are among the shrewdest in the city. A year or so ago, for instance, Allan Ryan laid a neat trap for the stock exchange brokers who bought Stutz motor stock without being able to deliver it. Their failure to make delivery was due to the simple fact that Mr. Ryan already had the stock in his possession, and he would not sell.

Something similar occurred on the stock exchange a few week's ago. The outcome remains uncertain, but it would appear that Clarence Saunders, founder of the famous Piggly-Wiggly stores, has caught a lot of speculators who have been recklessly selling stock in the concern. He says that of the 200,000 shares, only 2,000 are not in his possession, whereas many thousands have been sold. Scores, or perhaps hundreds of speculators have sold stock that there is no possibility of them being able to deliver unless they buy from Mr. Saunders, and, of course, Mr. Saunders does not want to sell. He seems to be in a position in which he can make those who were selling stock settle with him for whatever figure he chooses to demand. He has indicated that he will accept some settlements at $150 a share, and others at $250. His friends say that his profits will run into the millions. His enemies, on the other hand, say that most of the stock is pledged to the banks for loans, and that he is likely to have trouble in getting hold of it.

For some time the antics of this stock have been puzzling the market. There were strong indications that somebody was trying to form a corner. Recently the stock jumped 52 points, and the shorts were without any stock to cover their nakedness, as one writer expresses the situation. The next day the stock was struck off the list at the Exchange. So now the matter is between Mr. Saunders and the brokers who have contracted to deliver stock at a certain price and find that no stock is available, except at a price that Mr. Saunders dictates. What usually happens in these cases is that when a settlement is reached, no stock changes hands. The stock remains in the possession of the man who has it, and he merely accepts a sort of ransom from the rash sellers. The amount of this ransom, of course, has no relation whatever to the real value of the stock.

If Mr. Saunders is able to make the wise men of Wall Street jump through his little hoop it will be one more added to the triumphs of the farmer boy when pitted against the brains of the city. Even without this sensational climax, Mr. Saunders' career has been sensational enough. His has been a swift climb to fame and fortune. He was born in Virginia about 50 years ago, or less, and was brought up in Tennessee, working in the local grocery store on holidays and after school hours. When he was fourteen he was earning $4 a month, and when he was nineteen he had become salesman for a wholesale grocery house. Later on he got a better job with a Memphis firm. When making his rounds taking orders he made a study of the little practical problems of the grocery business. He did not advertise himself as an efficiency man, but he had the quickperceptive faculties that efficiency men should have, and was able to make dozens of valuable suggestions to his customers, mostly of the time and labor saving kind. He would suggest that articles most greatly in demand should be kept nearest to the clerk's hand; that space might be saved by moving the cashier's desk, and similar little improvements that might not occur to the grocer who did not visit other grocery stores.

Then he organized 21 of his customers as The United Stores, Inc., for the purpose of co-operative buying for the group, and opened a store of his own through which they could buy, his profits coming in increased sales. This project was a success, and in 1915 he went into the grocery business for himself, and the next year opened the first Piggly Wiggly store in Memphis, with fixtures and arrangements which he had patented. The chief point about this store and the other Piggly Wiggly stores that soon sprang up in different parts of the country was that they saved labor. Customers served themselves. The innovation swept the country, and Saunders sold the Piggly Wiggly name and method to New York and other eastern cities for a large sum a few years ago. The purchaser was Business Builders' Inc., which is now bankrupt, and it is said that the men who sold the Piggly Wiggly stock were deceived in that they supposed the Piggly Wiggly company of which Saunders is the head had some connection with the stores that failed in New York, and drew from this misapprehension disastrous inferences.

EXAGGERATION.

Peculiar Habit That Is Found Among Young Girls.

"Why must girls exaggerate?" asks a writer in the Woman's Magazine." "Take, par example, Theodora. She is a friend of mine, and I hate to criticize her; but honesty compels me to say that you have to winnow down her assertions till not one quarter of their original exuberance remains. Only by so doing can you get somewhere near the truth.

"Janette is another example. She bicycled to see me the other day, and the shy sun of 1923 peeped coyly at her. She rode quietly, and the distance was a short mile. Her verdict on the excursion would have suited a frenzied scaling—without a halt—of the Dent du Midi. The refrain was, 'I am dying—absolutely dying!'

"Such damsels are prone to speak of an ordinary breeze as 'a positive cyclone,' and to describe the rich fiance of a friend as literally kicking in money—a million a week, my dear, at least!' Now, none of these 'fact embellishers' are consciously dishonest.

"Bella, whom I know pretty intimately, is a meticulous truth teller—quite Washingtonian in her dislike of the whitest lie. This, however, did not prevent her from declaring in my presence that all her front teeth were decaying, when I happened to know that a microscopic suspicion of caries was the extent of the damage.

"In all the professions absolute exactitude is demanded, if the ambitious girl would go far. The business girl, too, should particularly beware of florid statements. To tell her employer that 'a hundred people have called in his absence,' or that one of them was 'green with rage at finding him out,' is not the way to keep a situation. It strains the confidence to breaking-point.

"Perhaps the warning most likely to be heeded is this. Men—the right kind of men—detest exaggeration. Sometimes, it is true, they draw the fair exaggerater out, but only to see what heights of verbal folly she will soar."

Cruel Nursery Rhymes.

Are nursery rhymes cruel? Some people think they are and wish to have them altered.

For instance, it is said that "Three Blind Mice" encourages cruelty to animals. Nothing is said about the pain the mice suffered as the result of having their tales cut off by the farmer's wife, and children naturally conclude from the rhyme that it is the correct thing to do with mice. It is suggested that the rhyme should be altered in this fashion:—

Three blind mice,
See how they run;
They all run after the farmer's wife,
Who cut them cheese with a great big knife.

Another alteration is:—

There was a little man,
And he had a little gun,
And he hung it up over his bed,
bed, bed.
He went to the brook,
And saw a little duck,
And he gave it some nice brown bread, bread, bread.

Even Baby Bunting has offended some people. A revised version would read:—

Bye, Baby Bunting,
Mummy's gone a-hunting,
Hunting shops for bright sateen
To wrap her Baby Bunting in!

Other nursery rhymes which are said to be cruel are "Tom, Tom, the Piper's Son," "Little Miss Muffet," "Ding, Dong, Bell," all of which deal with accidents to animals.

The Egg.

From the very earliest times, long before the Christian era, the egg was regarded as a symbol of rebirth and immortality. The Druids of Ancient Britain considered the serpent's egg to be sacred, and therefore adopted it as a symbol of mystery and occult knowledge.

The Greeks, Persians, and Egyptians also looked up the egg as a symbol of hope and resurrection, and thus we see how it came to be associated with this Christian festival of joy, when nature once more awakens from her sleep and everything seems reborn.

The fish was always regarded by early races as a symbol of the coming Saviour of mankind, and so, naturally, the first Christians adopted it as a sign of their faith.

The hare had a place in the very earliest mythology, and the Goddess of Dawn Ostera is said to have possessed a sacred hare. This animal is said to have laid colored eggs, thus explaining the origin of the custom, which still survives, of painting eggs at Eastertide.

Princesses as Waitresses.

Its waitresses are almost without exception princesses, duchesses, countesses, and other titled women. The proprietor is a negro, who, before the war, ran a smart restaurant in Petrograd, and his assistants are Russians refugees who patronized his establishment in the old days.

These refugees reached Constantinople with little but their lives, and they had to find work or starve. They went to the negro and begged him to employ them. He did so, and is scoring a great financial success.

Some of the titled waitresses have found husbands among the customers at the restaurant. Other refugees are employed as singers and dancers.

The Changes of Time.

"You never can tell what is going to happen."

"What now?"

"The young fellow I fired for incompetency two years ago has just married my daughter and I've got to take him back and give him a better job."

TAKING REFUGE IN BED.

How Some Persons Learn to Face the Inevitable.

"It is in bed that we learn to bear the Inevitable," says Mr. J. E. Buckrose in "Good Housekeeping." "We are learning this all the time while we lie with our face turned to the wall thinking we are doing nothing. And we wait until those silent hours to realize some great happiness, because we know for a certainty there will be nobody watching to see how we take it.

"An aspect of the question more entirely feminine is conjured up by the words, 'Breakfast in bed!' which implies at once that the breakfaster is in the habit of rising early, and is simply lengthening by two or three hours her time of refuge before she must get up to face the usual swarm of little gnat-like cares. For 'breakfast in bed' is not only a tray with a teapot, but a sign of a freemasonry which exists between all women, high and low.

"If a wife loses her husband, or a mother her child, or a girl is jilted by her lover, some other female—if there be one in the house, should it be only the youngest 'tweeny' with a kind heart—will feel this is the most delicate consolation that can be offered.

"Men do not seem to share this point of view, excepting one of whom I heard years ago, who lost his lady-love in some fashion unknown, and retired to bed for life. This seemed to me, even at that early romantic period, to be carrying the thing too far; and I can still see the picture formed in my mind at that time, of a poor gentleman sitting up in bed wearing an unbleached calico night-shirt, and eating bread and milk with a metal spoon. I do not know why I imagined him thus, but I suppose that bread and milk and unbleached calico must have been in those days my idea of the fitting accompaniments to such a situation.

"To the ordinary person, therefore, bed seems to be a restorer of courage as well as a refuge. And, as a farmer's wife said to me the other day—'I'm like this—at night I can't even stand up to a little servant lass with her hair down her back, if she comes in late and cheeks me, but of a morning I can face a regiment!' I thrilled responsive, because I also know exactly what it is like to feel even one little care too much for me on the way upstairs, and to wake after a night bed—safe, restful, delightful bed—with a sense of being equal to anything that Fate can bring.

"But in addition to all this, there is a plain reality which bed affords that makes it actually the modern substitute for sanctuary. The most persistent enemy or bad newsmonger, when told outright that their prey is in bed, must go away until a more convenient season; at least, this is the broad rule of human-kind, though I have heard of persons who could force a way in past maids or relations, making an excuse of kindness to do their worst with the poor wretch who lies there at such a disadvantage."

Mouths and Matrimony.

Before you marry study the mouth of your wife-to-be! It will tell you quite a number of interesting things.

Beware of the rosebud mouth! If a girl has one you may be sure she is vain, frivolous, and untruthful. Select a wife with a mouth that is of medium size, with full, well-proportioned lips which form an almost straight line when closed. Anyone with such a mouth is almost certain to be truthful, loyal, firm, and just. Even a large mouth is better than the rosebud variety. It may not look as pretty, but it denotes good qaulities.

Chins should also be considered by those about to marry. The best kind is the square, good-sized chin with an indentation in the centre. The girl with such a chin will be a reliable, affectionate, and a good manager.

Noses are even more important. Above all things, do not marry a girl with a snub nose! All the great women criminals of history have had snub noses. Of course, if the other features are good, a snub nose may mean nothing. But if the rest of the face is not strong or tender, a snub nose means trouble.

The best kind of nose is the one with a little hump on it; this means that its owner is shrewd and capable. For beauty it may not compare with the straight nose, but it is the nose of wealth!

Mosaic Gold.

In the cheaper jewellers' shops one often sees a trinket advertised as 18-carat Oriode gold. This is simply a compound of copper and a very little gold.

The person who buys such an article under the impression that Oriode is the place where the gold came from has no redress whatever when he is disillusioned, because the article is exactly what it is described to be. Then there is Mannheim gold which has no trace of the precious metal in its composition; while Mosaic gold is another metal of the same sort.

Nuremburg gold, now beginning to make its reappearance in this country, looks very like the genuine article. It does not tarnish, and is the same color throughout, but it only has two per cent. of real gold in it, the rest being copper and aluminium. The sovereign contains eleven parts of gold to one of copper, while the coins of the United States have nine parts gold to one copper

English Conductor Is Coming to America

Rochester, N. Y., (United Press).—Rochester is "all het up" over the announcement that Albert Coates, noted British conductor, will assume the post of director of the Rochester British Orchestra in the fall. Coates made a hurried visit to Rochester and after wiggling his pen at the bottom of a contract, dashed right back to England, persumably to complete arrangements for his relief. He will return here late in the fall. Eugent Goosens, another noted conductor and composer will come to Rochester in the early fall, whip the orchestra into shape to successfully tackle and throw for a loss such stumbling-blocks as Wagner and Tschaikowsky, conduct a short series of concerts and then turn over the reins to Coates.

The Rochester Orchestra was founded by George Eastman, of the family which made kodaking a popular outdoor sport It has hitherto been operated in conjunction with the Eastman Theatre and the Conservatory of Music but now plans on stepping out in real big league fashion. Eastman has done much for the development of music and are appreciation of the community.

Speaks Highly of This Home Made Cough Remedy

Says It Acts With Unusual Speed—Loosens the Mucus—Relieves the Irritation and Stops the Cough

Costs Next to Nothing—for a Big Supply

Whenever anyone in my family catches cold and begins to cough and sneeze, and hawn and breathe heavy, it doesn't take me many minutes to fix up a remedy that will drive away any such troubles in double quick time.

It's no secret—anyone can make a half pint of the finest cough medicine in the world for a trifling sum.

Get from any druggist one ounce of Parmint (double strength)—to this add a little granulated sugar and enough water to make one half-pint—that's all there is to it.

But now you've got a real medicine—mind you—the first spoonful you take acts directly on the membrane of the throat and nose, the tickling ceases almost instantly—the inflammation begins to disappear—up comes the stubborn mucus and often in 24 hours every trace of the cough that frightened you is gone.

It's really remarkable how this home made remedy acts on the mucus membrane and that is one reason it is so helpful to thousands of Catarrh sufferers.

SEEK WITHDRAWAL OF MILITIA UNITS

Montreal, July 6.—Declaring that "they are sick and tired of making and paying for brass hats and militia joy-riders," District Lodge 82, of the International Association of Machinists, asked the Montreal Trades and Labor Council last night to go on record in favor of a demand for the withdrawal of the military from Sydney, N.S., where 10,000 miners are on strike.

The resolution, which the Trades Council was asked to endorse, reads as follows: "This district demands the withdrawal of the military from Sydney, as we are sick and tired making and paying for brass hats and militia joy-rides." The resolution was passed at the last district lodge meeting, and the business agent, H. A. Spence, was instructed to bring it forward at last night's meeting of the council with a view to its adoption by that body.

The Montreal section of the Canadian Labor party, also, passed a resolution last Sunday against the employment of militia in the strike area and demanded the immediate withdrawal of the troops. The resolution included an expression of opinion that the militia should never be employed until the resources of the civic authorities had been completely exhausted.

SHIFT OF TRUNK-PETE GAME TO MORNING OF JULY 18, URGED

Civic Holiday Picnic and Diamond Contest Dates Clash — Kingston Here Wednesday.

On July 18 Peterboro and Belleville are scheduled to clash at the agricultural park. That day is the local civic holiday when the Grand Trunk employees in this city have arranged to hold their annual picnic. With a ball game and a picnic on the afternoon of civic holiday the crowd will naturally be divided and consequently neither will be a financial success.

Now both the officials in charge of the picnic and the management of the Belleville ball team desire to have the game played in the morning at ten o'clock. Thus the citizens would be able to attend both the game and the picnic.

It is to be hoped that the Peterboro management and President Dedman of the C.O.B.L. will be favorable to this proposition and that the game will be played on the morning of the holiday.

Kingston plays here next Wednesday and Batstone's crew have always put up a good brand of ball in Belleville and the fans will no doubt be out in full force next Wednesday.

Ireland to Have A Real Election

By Charles M. McCann, United Press Staff Correspondent.

(Copyright 1923, by United Press)

Dublin, July 6.—Ireland, mother of politicians, is to have her first real election within the next four or five months.

Some time between September and November, candidates of four political parties will meet their fate at the polls.

On the result of the election may depend the future of the Free State.

The National Party—the government party—has at present a strong majority and claims, apparently modestly, the sympathy of most of the electors.

The Labor Party has a strong group in the Dail and with the return of Jim Larkin is expected to gain strength.

The Farmers' Party is being organized in preparation for the election, and will have candidates for the Dail in many agricultural districts, pledged mainly to work for the farmers.

THE REBEL PARTY.

The fourth party will be that of the De Valeristas—the rebels. No one knows yet what they intend to do. It is expected that they will put candidates in the field who, if elected, will refuse to take the oath of loyalty to the King and consequently will not sit in the Dail.

It looks now as if the parties will run in the order mentioned above—the National Party obtaining a strong working majority, the Labor Party gaining, the Farmers' Party electing a small number and the De Valeristas returning, if any, a few non-sitting members.

Though the date of the election has not been set, the campaign is well under way. Cabinet ministers and ordinary members of the Dail are addressing week-end meetings. Incidentally it was when the first were held during the latter part of May without any stray shots being fired or bricks thrown, that both government and people, through the newspapers headlined the end of the revolution.

Jim Larkin has stepped right into the centre of the arena. He is a hero to the ordinary working man. And for the time being at least he has shed his coat of red for the mantle of peace. In all of his speeches—all of them cheered to the echo—he has urged peace and hard work.

LARKIN A BIG FIGURE.

He will undoubtedly be one of the two or three biggest figures in the next Dail—he is sure to be elected to it—and despite some current friction with the present Labor Party headed by Tom Johnson, is destined to be the future leader of Irish workingmen.

A fifth group in the Dail will be the former Unionists. They hardly form a party. But though they represent those who opposed separation from England, they have been of tremendous assistance to the government. Most of them are experienced legislators, and have saved the comparatively inexperienced government from several blunders by well-placed motions.

It is expected that at least one of them will be in the cabinet after the election.

If Irishmen run true to their American form as politicians, the campaign is going to be heated. But it will be the heat of words and of ordinary sociable fights.

Irish citizens are beginning to apologize for the recent rebellion. They are ashamed of it and thoroughly fed up with it and its leaders.

REBELS LOSE SYMPATHY.

Three months ago when a rebel was executed the man in the street spoke of the "poor boy." Two farmers' sons, members of the rebel "army," were executed a few days ago—after the rebellion had ended—for holding up a bank. The comment in the street was an unsympathetic "serve them right," and the incident had no more effect than an execution has in any state of the Union.

The rebellion has died, unhonored and unwept. If there is any singing about it, it will be by the De Valeristas. It is being forgotten already in the excitement of the campaign, which is becoming a house-warming celebration for the new Ireland.

$1-a-Year Men in New Germany

By CARL D. GROAT

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Berlin (By mail to United Press).—Germany is developing in peace times a new army of "dollar-a-year" men.

They are the owners of big apartment houses, who before the war were comfortably situated. Now, under the socialistic dwelling law where renters have their apartments virtually free except for certain taxes to the city, the income to the house-owner averages not over $1 a year.

The landlord nowadays feels himself fortunate if the tenants obey the law and have repairs made at their own cost.

Experiences of Man Who Knows Something About China.

Tales of the smugglers who supply China with opium are told in the book, "The Charm of the Middle Kingdom," just published by James Reid Marsh, who for many years was an official of Chinese customs and an extensive traveller in parts of China hitherto unknown to the outside world.

Concealed in the thick, abundant hair of Japanese women, in bales of cotton, in the muzzles of rifles, in coffins and in the trunks of pompous Chinese generals, the drug evades the long arm of the law and 90 per cent. of it reaches its destination without detection.

Japanese cotton is shipped to India, pressed into bales by machinery there and thence is sent to China. This cotton forms the chief vehicle for carrying the forbidden drug into China. Indian cotton, by a treaty stipulation, enter certain ports of China baled. This, according to one of the smugglers Mr. Marsh quotes, means that it is practically exempt from examination, because a machine pressed bale of cotton is impervious to probe.

"Did it ever strike you as odd that so much Japanese cotton is transhipped to India, rebaled there and finally consigned to treaty ports?" asked Marsh's informant, a Russian named Kochalski, who was in the smuggling business, but was concerned with a lesser route which was run as a blind. "Every one of those bales carries opium or worse," he continued. "But that is the big method. The lesser ones are more amusing. Hardly a coal tender goes through but what contains buried far beneath the coal a bit of coagulated poppy juice. We give the engineer and stoker a number of pieces of silver. Nature does the rest—human nature, I mean.

"Why do so many Japanese women travel up and down the line? Because they have such a gorgeous sufficiency of hair. Being accustomed to carrying burdens on their crowns, a mere matter of a few ounces of the drug is easily met. Soldiers with rifles have many advantages. The muzzles can be plugged so as to cut off the smell. Opium is pugent. Give me a windless night and a pound of opium within a quarter of a mile and it is mine.

"Of course, there are a hundred ways of concealing the stuff. You can figure out most of them yourself. But the great lubricant of the trade is silver, much fine silver."

Marsh says, however, that the extent of the opium trade is greatly magnified by the missionaries. "Had the opium trade ever been half so bad as the missionaries picture it," he writes, "China would long since have been lulled to a dreamless sleep."

He tells the story of an adventure while accompanying one of his chief Chinese officers. They captured two coffins full of opium aboard an incoming junk one night. Bribery in this case hard worked both ways, as one of the coolies aboard the vessel betrayed the cargo by hanging a yellow light in the bow.

Pearls From Herrings.

A new kind of imitation pearl will shortly be launched for which we have to thank the humble herring.

The process is secret, and has lately been investigated by a commercial mission from America which has been visiting the Scottish ports. Fish-scales are used, and the substance produced from them is called "chitin."

The artificial pearls are treated with this preparation, and the result is said to give not only the exact phosphorescent glow found in real pearls, but the same velvety feeling. Our North Sea herrings have proved themselves the best for this purpose.

If this discovery proves to be a really exact imitation—so exact, that is, that even experts will not be able to tell the difference—what will happen to the genuine pearl?

Will people still pay huge prices for merely knowing that the pearls are real, without gaining any additional advantage of glow and appearance?

Meanwhile, the imitations are getting so good that one lady is reported to possess three necklaces—the genuine one, the valuable imitation, and a third less valuable imitation which she wears perpetually, lest the better imitation should be stolen!

What is a Blue-Stocking?

We often hear the expression, "Oh, she's a blue-stocking," used in reference to a woman who is unusually learned; but probably not one person in ten knows what it really means.

The blue-stocking movement was started by a number of women, chief amongst whom were Mrs. Montagu and Mrs. Trimmer, who prided themselves upon being unconventional. In their day no man could enter a drawing-room wearing anything but ceremonial clothes and the shiniest black silk stockings.

Priding themselves upon their broad views, they received all and sundry—Mrs. Montagu gave a breakfast every year to chimney-sweeps—and in order that none of their male guests should feel awkward or badly dressed, the rule was that all should come in rough clothes and wearing the coarse stockings of blue wool worn at that time by workmen.

The blue-stockings, then, were originally the guests of learned women. Later the name was applied to the women themselves.

Old New Orleans.

In New Orleans, during the carnival season, many of the old dances are still practiced on Claiborne street in the French section. This is across the old basin which was dug from Bayou St. John, and many of the older Creoles of this section boast that they have never been across Canal street on the American side of the town. Also, far up the river, on St. John's night in mid-June, the old hoodo rites are still kept up in isolated places.

Wireless control of a cotton goods loom was featured in a fashion show held in Baltimore.

GOSSIP OF THE MOVIES

By Robert A. Donaldson, United Press Stag Correspondent.

Los Angeles, July 6.—Filming of "The Winning of Barbara Worth," Harold Bell Wright's popular novel has been postponed until autumn to allow further research work made necessary by the elaborate scale on which production will be conducted by Principal Pictures Corporation. It is said these producers will try to make "The Winning of Barbara Worth" the equal of "The Covered Wagon."

Instead of filming "Barbara Worth" the company has turned to another of Harold Bell Wright's novels "When a Man's a Man," which will be produced this summer. By a lucky chance practically all of the players engaged to produce Barbara Worth will be available in "When a Man's a Man," and work will start immediately at the United Studios.

• • •

Richard Walton Tully has completed the filming of Du Maurier's "Trilby," featuring Andree Lafayette young French actress, said to be the "most beautiful girl in Hollywood," and Arthur Edmund Carew.

Tully is under contract to produce one more picture for First National and then will probably start independent production on his own successful stage play, "The Bird of Paradise."

• • •

Principal Pictures has just finished the filming of George M. Cohan's "The Meanest Man in the World." The film's premier will be held early in the fall at Cohan's Broadway Theatre, New York, under the author's personal auspices. Bert Lytell plays the part of the "meanest man"—the part originally played by Cohan himself. Blanche Sweet and Bryant Washburn are also featured.

• • •

Rumors persist that Theda Bara will take the leading role this summer in Goldwyn's production of Elinor Glyn's "Three Weeks." Theda's husband, Charles Brabin, Goldwyn director, was firm on the point that she was not going to re-enter the films. Theda was just as positive that she was seriously considering it. Whether Goldwyn's would make it a nice little domestic party by having Brabin direct his wife is not known. Theda is very likely to stage a come-back in the films this summer.

• • •

Gosta Ekman, idol of the Swedish stage, will arrive in Los Angeles late this month to make a picture for Goldwyn's. He will only remain two months, having theatrical engagements in the fall in Sweden. It is rumored he may play the part of "Paul" in "Three Weeks."

Victor Seastrom, noted Swedish director, is already at the Goldwyn lot preparing to produce Hall Caine's "Master of Man," which, by the way, will be given a new title. Seastrom's wife, Edith Erastoff, one of the most popular actresses of the Swedish stage, will arrive in Los Angeles this summer, but in all probability will not appear in the films. She and Seastrom will make their permanent home here.

Joseph Schildkraut, who has been starring in "Peer Gynt" at the Theater Guild in New York City, has arrived here to play the principal male role in the "Master of Man." Mae Busch will play the lead opposite him.

MINE LEADERS UNDER ARREST

Officials are Charged with Unlawfully Publishing False Reports

STATUS UNCHANGED

Mine Votes Vote to Continue Hold-out Policy After Mass Meeting

United Press Despatch, Exclusive To The Intelligencer.

Sydney, July 7.—Dan Livingstone, President and James McLauchlaw, Secretary of the United Mine Workers were arrested at Glace Bay last night on charges of unlawfully publishing false tales, whereby injury and mischief will likely result. The strike situation is otherwise unchanged.

Sydney Mines, N. S., July 7.—Following a mass meeting of miners, which lasted for over two hours and a half here yesterday, it was decided that the strike would continue in the northern collieries, but the men employed in the power plant, which supplies the town with light and water, would not be asked to join in the walkout.

President Dan Livingstone and Secretary J. B. MacLachlan, of the United Mine Workers, were among the speakers, and the former was given a stormy passage during the course of his address, and interruptions were frequent.

Mayor Nicholson told the miners that their tactics had been accepted as a challenge to the Dominion of Canada. He further declared that the government was apparently ready to make it a fight to a finish. Some of the miners at the meeting asserted that they had been railroaded into a strike and were not being kept properly informed of the state of affairs in the Glace Bay and New Waterford sub-districts.

Forty per cent. of the miners in the Little Bras d'Or mine are working but the mass meeting decided that a showdown would have to be made at this mine the men being ordered to strike 100 per cent. At New Waterford a mass meeting of the strikers decided to instruct the men at work in the power house, supplying the town with light and water, to remain to work.

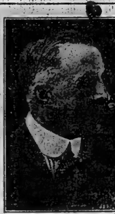
J. R. COOKE NAMED MEMBER OF HYDRO BOARD IN NEW MINISTRY



J. R. COOKE.
Member for North Hastings, named to Hydro Board.

No selection by Hon. G. H. Ferguson will prove more popular than that of J. R. Cooke for the Hydro Board. Hon. Robert Cooke is not only deservedly popular in North Hastings, which constituency he has ably represented in the Legislature for some time but equally so throughout Hastings County. "Bob" as he is familiarly called, has been in public life for some time. He was for a number of years the deputy Reeve and Reeve of Rawdon township, in which township he was born and has lived all his life. Hastings County Council never had a more popular or one who had the best interests of the County at heart. Previous to engaging in municipal and provincial politics Mr. Cooke was a successful agriculturalist.

It will be recalled that at the recent and last session of the Legislature that Mr. Cooke came prominently to the fore as a critic of the policy pursued by the Drury regime in regard to educational matters. That he is a champion of sane government cannot be gainsaid. Mr. Cooke is a fluent and beautiful speaker and his ability to marshal facts and place them before his hearers in an interesting manner is one of his many faculties. His address given at the last sittings of the Legislature, upon the budget debate, was most favorably commented upon by the Toronto Globe, which paper stated that it was one of the ablest addresses given during the debate. His personal magnetism is such as to win for him many warm and true friends.

In 1911 Mr. Cooke was first elected by acclamation as the representative for North Hastings in the Legislature, and he has once since had no opposition. Twice he has been opposed but the opposition was not of a serious nature as his majority in both instances had to be recorded by four figures.

Barriefield Camp To Strike Tents Today

Tents were struck at the Cadet Camp at Barriefield today and the Belleville contingent will leave for home on the noon train today.

Barriefield, July 6.—The cadet corps that left this city for a weeks training at Barriefield Camp, Kingston, are making wonderful progress in their duties as soldiers under the command of Major D. McManus of the 15th A.L.I. They have one of the most efficient and best soldiers of a long military career to instruct them in their respective duties. Cadet Captain D. McManus is acting as Adjutant for the battalion here and he is one of Belleville's most promising young soldiers of to-day and ranks high in the cadets his imperial training standing in his favor.

The Cadets are to be congratulated on the neat appearance of their camp. for they have without a doubt the cleanest and tidiest lines in the camp.

Our young lads are also showing the ability and markmanship at the ranges. Fred Lazier had the remarkable score of 45 out of 50, with over 1,000 cadets competing. In recognition of same Major McManus promoted him to the rank of sergeant. Adjutant D. McManus is also showing his ability as a marksman with having two possibles, this is the kind of shooting that put Belleville on the map last year when the A.L.I., won the Dominion championship. Well citizens watch the Cadets, give them every encouragement for they well deserve it, and you may need their protection in the future.

BOYS LIVE "LIFE OF REILLY" AT MOIRA LAKE COMMUNITY CAMP

Sports And Communion With Nature Vie With Each Other as Attractions

Note.—The following article was submitted to The Intelligencer by Cecil Facer, one of the Belleville boys at the Boys' Community Camp, Moira Lake.

• • •

Moira Lake Camp, July 6.

Camp Community is now in full full swing. The solitudes of Moira Lake were suddenly disturbed by the whoops and shouts proceeding from the lusty throats of some twenty boys.

The denizens of the woods cowered and slunk back into their lairs. Their lives would now be miserable; the boys had arrived at camp.

After a splendid dinner prepared by the unbeatable cook, Mr. Fitzgerald, the boys were organized into groups under the various leaders The tents had not yet arrived so they were forced to sleep in the pavilion

It was the first night in camp and sleep was very elusive that night. The strange night sounds of the woods, the hoot of an owl, the laughing cry of the loon fell upon the alert ears of the campers.

The night was filled with music, the unwelcome hum of the 'skeeters. Those little demons succeeded in making that night miserable, but it's all in the game.

On Tuesday the whole gang visited Madoc and "painted the town red," besides bothering all the newspaper stands for the score in Monday's ball game That night the Twilight Base ball League was started and two teams battled till dark in the first game of the series.

After, came the crowning event of all—the camp fire. The flames soared high and the good old pitch pine sizzled and roared, giving off grateful heat. Songs were sung and many a wierd story told while the leaping flames painted the eager faces of the listeners. The fire died low, prayers were said, and all retired, this time to sleep the sleep of the healthy.

Thus the time is passed at Camp Community. Eating, swimming, playing, fishing and loafing—that's the routine at camp.

Wednesday afternoon Mr. Brockel Mr. and Mrs. Walters, Mrs. Finkle Mr. and Mrs. Lewis and Mrs. Hobson were visitors at the camp.

TREASURE HUNT.

The program of the camp is being carried out without a hitch and everyone is enjoying themselves to the utmost. On Thursday night the Bel team from the camp beat the boys from the camp across the lake by the score of 7-2.

Today (Friday) a treasure hunt is to be held. Somewhere in the fastnesses of the forest around Hogg Lake is hidden a treasure and that must be found.

England and France are at the Parting of the Ways

Owner of the London Outlook Says France Using Reparations Problem as Excuse for Staying in the Ruhr—England's Duty Plain.

Editor's Note: England and France have reached the parting of the ways, in the opinion of Sir Charles Ross, Bart., owner of "The Outlook," of London, writer of the following article or the United Press, in which he discusses the aftermath of the latest German note. He accuses France of desiring to keep the reparations problem alive as an excuse for her remaining in the Ruhr, and says that unless "the insane arrogance manifest in Paris be abated," Britain must seek new friends.

"We are being subjected to such humiliation as Britain has never for centuries endured at the hands of any foreign powers," Ross declares.—The United Press, London.

By SIR CHARLES ROSS, Bart.

(By arrangements with "The Outlook" London. Copyright, 1923, by the United Press.)

London, July 5.—If France did not exist, and the reparations dispute were one between Great Britain and Germany, it is clear that a settlement would be at hand.

The Bonar Law scheme called for a total payment by Germany to the Allies of fifty milliard gold marks.

Germany has definitely offered thirty milliards, payable in annuities, and has explained, as she never did before, how she intends to pay. On the whole the German scheme has been well received here.

But Berlin clearly does not mean Germany's latest memorandum to be taken as her final word. She is keeping in reserve further concessions, to be brought forward as the price if getting the French out of the Ruhr.

With the German demand for a conference there can be no possible issue taken in this country. Such a conference, were the settlement of reparations left to Great Britain and Germany, could almost certainly, in very short time, arrive at a figure in the neighborhood of forty milliards of gold marks as the total German bill, and then agree without impossible difficulty upon the method and dates of payment.

With this settled the stabilization of the mark and the recovery of Germany, would be no less rapid than in the case of Austria. And with the withdrawal of foreign armies from German soil, and the return of Europe to peaceful habits, the clogged channels of international trade would be reopened and prosperity be again within our grasp.

FRANCE AN OBSTACLE.

The one obstacle to a final liquidation of the war, and the real commencement of economic recovery in France. It is easy to summarise the proceedings of the French Government, since it became known that Berlin was about to seek a genuine accommodation with her creditors.

First, there was the Belgian reparation scheme. That provided for a total payment of forty milliards, and after round-table bargaining might easily have been accepted by the Germans. Therefore it would not suit the French, and so M. Poincare hurried to Brussels, compelled the Belgians to give unwilling assent to remaining in the Ruhr until every penny of an astronomic indemnity has been paid, and refused to discuss the Belgian plan. The German memorandum followed. The British Government took the stand that here at least is a basis of negotiation. The method to be followed was plain, and fair to all. We asked only for discussion.

The Paris Conference ended in disaster, M. Poincare refused even to examine Mr. Bonar Law's plan, a breach between the allies followed and France entered the Ruhr.

The French are in the Ruhr. M Poincare has ever since maintained to seize "productive guarantees" that will ensure payment by Germany, Now that Germany has at last proposed to pay. M. Poincare may claim without audible contradiction from England, if he chooses, that his Ruhr policy has produced a German capitulation.

Let us grant so much to save the face of France. The course now to be followed in the British view, is clear. Our diplomats have suggested Paris and Rome that the "interrupted" conference of last January between the Allies be resumed. There, let the German offer be thrashed out and a common Inter-Allied policy agreed on.

The next step would be the long-postponed Brussels Conference between the Allies and Germany, thus meeting the German request for discussion over the table. From this

Music & Drama

"THE WHITE FLOWER" A NOVELTLY.

A real novelty filled with mystery, thrills and charm is the latest Paramount production, 'The White Flower" starring Betty Compson, which is the feature attraction at the Regent Theatre to-day, matinee and night. Edward Lowe plays the leading masculine role opposite Miss Compson. Arline Pretty, Edward Martindel, Sylvia Ashton, Arthur Hoyt, Leon Bary and Reginald Carter complete the cast. The picture which is filled with mysticism and thrills has created a profound impression.

A Bruce Travel-Tale, a new Campbell comedy, and Eddie Polo in a gripping two-reel drama complete an entertaining program.

"HOOT" GIBSON AT REGENT

It was a middle western town where they grew cyclones, circuses and boobs, principally boobs. The principal boob in town was so dumb he thought a paper called "The Morning Post" was something the milk-man hitched his horse to. Hoot Gibson plays in the boob in "Single-Handed", the Universal screen story at the Regent theatre, today, matinee and night and beautiful Elinor Field is leading woman.

Pathe News, an amusing Century comedy, and Kinogram are being exhibited on the same program.

RICH SCENES ABOUND IN DOROTHY DALTON'S

A most cosmopolitan assemblage is seen in Dorothy Dalton's new Paramount production, "Dark Secrets", which comes to Griffin's this Monday to Wednesday.

The scene is a gorgeous hotel in Cairo, Egypt, with its picturesque courtyard and terraces, its lily-pond and statutary, romantic looking balconies and distant palm trees. This exotic atmosphere is enhanced by the presence of birds of gorgeous plumage and tropical plants and flowers. The scene is rich with the color of interesting costumes and unusual uniforms as contrasted with the conventional garments of the Americans.

In addition to Miss Dalton's party of American tourists are seen English army officers, one of whom, Lord Wallington, is her sweetheart; then there are Arabs in full desert regalia, gay ladies from Spain, Hindus, Egyptians, Mussulmans, Orientals and attaches of various legations. Small page boys and waiters, barefoot and swarthy of skin, their heads swathed in turbans, dart in and out among the pleasure seekers, performing their duties. Here, too, the sinister Dr. Ali, an Egyptian physician, uses his poisonous influence to gain the confidence of Ruth Rutherford, played by Miss Dalton.

A new Sport Review, William Clifford in a thrilling wild animal story, entitled 'The Trap", and Larry Semon in, a highly amusing comedy, "The Counter Jumper", are announced for presentation on the same program with the above feature offering.

ZANE GREY'S "WHEN ROMANCE RIDES" AT REGENT MONDAY

A new Zane Grey Goldwyn picture titled 'When Romance Rides' founded upon Grey's most popular novel "Wildfire" is coming to the Regent Theatre, Monday to Wednesday, matinee daily. The picture is a thriller interspersed with lively comedy. The great horse race alone will give spectators their money's worth, but not satisfied with that, Goldwyn has staged for the film one of the most desperate struggles between a girl and a man ever filmed.

A half-witted man, Joel Creech, thinks Lucy Bostil has injured him and kidnaps her. To feed his revenge, he ties her to the back of a horse and sends the horse straight for the precipice. He himself is caught by the dangling rope and dragged to his death and the girl is rescued by Carl Gantvoort in the hole of Lin Slone, a rancher.

Prominent in the cast of this Goldwyn offering is beautiful Clair Adams, Carl Gantvoort, Jean Hersholt, Frank Hayes, Tod Sloan, the jockey and little Mary Jane Irving.

A Two-reel Torchy comedy titled "Torchy's Ghost", "Unmasked", a two-reel society drama, and Fox News will be exhibited on the same program.

A Mother's Health Needs Great Care

Care of Home and Children Often Causes a Break-down

The woman at home, deep in household duties and the care of motherhood, needs occasional help to keep her in good health. The demands upon a mother's health are many and severe. Her own health trials and her children's welfare exact heavy tolls, while hurried meals, broken rest and much indoor living tend to weaken her constitution. No wonder that the woman at home is often indisposed through weakness, headaches, backaches and nervousness. Too many women have grown to accept these visitations as a part of the lot of motherhood. But many and varied as her health troubles are, the cause is simple and relief at hand. When well, it is the woman's good blood that keeps her well; when ill she must make her blood rich to renew her health. The nursing mother more than any other woman in the world needs rich blood and plenty of it. There is one way to get this good blood so necessary to perfect health, and that is through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Mrs. W. T. Riley, R. R. No. 1, Apple Hill, Ont, has proved the great value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to mothers, and tells her story as follows:—"Two years ago, after the birth of my boy, I became very weak and run down. Gradually I lost weight and energy until I was unable to do my housework. I could not sleep, my nerves would twitch and jump so that I arose in the morning with heavy aching limbs and head. Indigestion helped to make the misery worse, and my heart would palpitate terribly. I doctored steadily for a year without getting better, but just dragged along feeling that I would never be well again. But one lucky day, on the advice of a friend, I began treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I have taken only six boxes, but I wish you could see the difference. I am now able to do my work, go about and enjoy myself. I feel so entirely like a new woman that I advise every weak or ailing woman to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I know they will get beneficial results."

If you are ailing, easily tired or depressed, it is a duty you owe yourself and your family to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial. What this medicine has done for others it will surely do for you. You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Fatal Lure of Arsenic Has Produced Black Chapter In the History of Crime

More than one murderer died on the scaffold last year because he believed that he had found in arsenic the perfect poison, impossible to detect.

They staked their lives against the natural law which says "Murder will out," and they lost. They proved that there is no perfect poison. The secrets of the Borgias are secrets no more. Even arsenic, tasteless, odorless, and soluble, leaves a trail that leads to the detection of the poisoner.

Throughout the ages this poison has had a fatal fascination for criminals, and has not become the commonest poison without the exercise of judgment by the offenders. From the days of Hippocrates (460-357 B.C.) to the hanging of Armstrong, the wife murderer of Hay, arsenic compounds have been used to cure and to kill.

What is the secret of this fatal fascination? Why has arsenic written so black a chapter in the annals of crime?

The reason is that arsenic seems to offer the criminal a means of killing without risk. Criminal history, however, proves that it deceives not only its immediate victim, but also its user, who sooner or later pays the penalty.

Arsenic can be mixed with food without arousing suspicion. A couple of grains may prove a fatal dose. Any chemist will supply it in the form of weed-killer.

It is interesting to recall that arsenic was supposed to be the agent used by Pope Alexander VI. and his son, Cesar Borgia, who removed their opponents by poison. At least five cardinals were poisoned between 1495 and 1503, and then the Pope himself was handed a cup of poisoned wine intended for one of his victims.

Modern scientific discovery has rendered the way of the transgressor much harder than it was a century ago.

There is a remarkable advance in the delicacy of the analyst's method. The rate at which arsenic is excreted by the various organs of the body is known. The discovery of the Marsh test for arsenic in 1836 was a sad blow to criminal poisoners. The poison can be found in the body years after death.

Mrs. Maybrick was convicted of poisoning her husband by the administration of arsenic. She was convicted on such grounds as the finding of arsenic on her dressing-gown and handkerchiefs and the purchase of fly-papers, from which she distilled arsenic. She said she bought fly-papers to use as a cosmetic for her face and arms. But it was the presence of a third of a grain of arsenic in the husband's liver that was the the convicting factor.

The Seddon case in 1911 made the world shudder. Seddon was an insurance agent in whose house lodged Miss Barrow, a wealthy woman.

Three months after going to reside there Miss Barrow transferred to Seddon $8,000 of India stock, in return for which Seddon agreed to pay her an annuity of $250. She afterwards withdrew other moneys from her bank and paid them to Seddon.

Miss Barrow was taken ill and died a few weeks later, after making a will appointing Seddon her sole executor. No intimation was given to relatives of Miss Barrow's death. This fact and her hasty burial aroused suspicions, and the body was exhumed. A post-mortem showed that death was due to poisoning by arsenic.

"Murder! Poisoning by arsenic!" exclaimed Seddon on his arrest. "What a charge! Of course, I have had all her money affairs through my hands. And this means police-court proceedings and trial before a jury, but I think I can prove my innocense!"

But Seddon, despite a strenuous fight by Sir (then Mr.) Marshall-Hall, K.C., was found giulty and paid the death penalty in April, 1912.

The Black case last year, when the Cornish insurance agent poisoned his wife, and the Armstrong case are too recent to need any detailed analysis.

The interest of the Armstrong case lies in the fact that arsenic would never have been suspected in the death of Mrs. Armstrong, who had died a year previously, unless the solicitor had attempted to poison his rival.

A remarkable case is given by Dr. Willcox of a Government official in a tropical country, who consulted him on account of an illness which had been difficult to diagnose.

The patient consented to some hair being removed for purposes of analysis. This was submitted to the electrolytic Marsh-Berzelius test. A considerable amount of arsenic—one twenty-second part of a milligramme in three grammes of the hair—was found.

The diagnosis of the case was clearly that of acute arsenical poisoning, and in reply to a question by Sir William Willcox the patient told of considerable trouble with a native cook, who had been discharged. The diagnosis was made ten weeks after the poison had been administered. So exact is the scientist's knowledge.

The male African elephant in the New York Zoological Park has given convincing evidence of his strength that it most surprising. One day, says the "Zoological Bulletin," he attacked a partition fence made of iron, and actually broke the top rail in two, and tore one of the pieces from the post to which it was attached. The broken iron, which formed the top of the fence, was a railway rail four inches by four and a quarter.

Red Hot July Days Hard On the Baby

July—the month of oppressive heat; red hot days and sweltering nights; is extremely hard on little ones. Diarrhoea, dysentry, colic and cholera infantum carry off thousands of precious little lives every summer. The mother must be constantly on her guard to prevent these troubles or if they come on suddenly to fight them. No other medicine is of such aid to mothers during the hot summer as is Baby's Own Tablets. They regulate the bowels and stomach, and an occasional dose given to the well child will prevent summer complaint, or if the trouble does come on suddenly will banish it. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BRITISH LABOR UNIONS SUFFER; FEWER MEMBERS AND LESS CASH

By P. M. SARL

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

London, July 6.—(United Press)—Possessing the largest Parliamentary representation the party has ever had, recognized as the official opposition at Westminster, and spoken of as the possible next government, the British Labor Party is yet much worse off to-day than it has been for many years—worse off, that is, from the point of view of organization, finances and membership.

Arthur Henderson, M.P., secretary and vice-chairman of the party, states that during the last two and a half years trade union membership has fallen from six and a half million to something just under five millions, and accumulated funds which stood as sixteen million pounds have been exhausted by the heavy drain of unemployed payments, strikes, etc., as well as the reduction in membership subscriptions.

During the war the government readily met labor's demands about the employment exclusively of unionists and the trade union membership naturally jumped tremendously, exceeding the six and a half million mark. After the war many ex-unionists, released from the army, did not rejoin their old unions, while many new unionists fell away with the introduction once more of "free" labor.

DISASTROUS STRIKES

Then the disastrous miners, railway and other strikes caused many secessions and much sectional strife. Funds became exhausted and disgruntled members resigned from the unions. Many new sectional unions were formed, but many of the seceders did not join any organized labor body. The big labor representation in the House of Commons was elected by a score or more diverse branches of the labor movement and does not necessarily represent trade union labor.

Farseeing labor leaders recognize that the present Parliamentary strength is largely unstable and transient and unless the organization can be stabilized, the party will suffer many reverses at the next election, or whenever the conservatives and liberals can settle their own party differences. Accordinly a big "back to the union" campaign is being organized, with a view to drawing all members of the "working class" into the unions.

Statisticians calculate that there are some fourteen million "workers" in Britain, and the idea is to draw them all into one great solid movement.

The subject of forming "One Big Union" has naturally been re-introduced, and it is admitted that logically this must be the obvious eventual aim of the trade union movement, but the idea is not at present looked on very favorably in this country.

BIGGEST UNION OBJECT

The strongest opponents of the "one big union" scheme are the biggest and most highly organized unions, such as the railwaymen, engineers, miners and other technical crafts, which object to using their funds—usually very large—and organization for the benefit of the poorer and looser federations in labor disputes which do not appeal to the "aristocracy of labor."

Even the "aristocracy of labor" is not always unanimous and certainly cannot always count on the support of the "unskilled" trades. Railwaymen, engineers and miners secured most favorable terms during the war, and this was the cause of the collapse of the port-workers' strike in support of the great projected railwaymen's and trans-miners two years ago. The unskilled rank and file stood aside because they could see no benefit to themselves.

So far the "Back to the Unions" campaign has not been strikingly successful, thanks to the misguided zeal of several sections of the movement. The South Wales Miners Federation called a strike to force all non-federation miners back into the ranks, but it was a fiasco.

The national union of teachers has done a great deal of harm to the "one big union" idea by its arbitrary and generally unsuccessful attempt to hold up the education authorities.

The "back to the union" slogan is to be peaceful persuasion, for very few of the unions to-day can afford to resort to strikes to enforce their demands.

A quiet marriage took place at the home of Mrs. W. McCay, College street, when Miss Gertrude Dalton of Belleville was married to Mr. Bert Ostrom of town. Rev. (Capt.) Clark tied the nuptial knot.

The charming bride wore a bridal gown of blue silk. The bridesmaid was the bridegroom's sister and wore a gown of the same material. The best man was Mr. Ed. Weiss. Immediately preceding the wedding supper the bride was presented with a shower of presents. The happy couple afterwards motored to Belleville and other points on their honeymoon. On their return they will reside in Trenton.—Trenton Courier-Advocate.

W.C.T.U. NOTES

"It is the best fellow whom it gets hold of. It is not the narrow, closed-fisted, unsocial, earthworm type of fellow; it is the genial spark, the live wire, the fellow with the open heart, and the open hand, the good comrade. That is the worst point about alcohol. Just as it goes in each of us first and foremost for the finest part of our nature, our higher nerve centres, so in society it goes straight for the nobler type of man. Once it gets a footing it drags him down, coarsens his nature, puts out the fire fuddles his thinking, and makes him a clog, a bad workman, a bad father, no use to his class, no use as a citizen. J. L. Paton, High Master of Manchester High School.

It is often said that the Drug Traffic increases when the people are denied free access to intoxicants. Last summer this very evil was giving the authorities in London, Eng., the utmost concern, and drinking there is free and open enough to satisfy bacchus himself.

REWARDING THE WARRIOR

Back in the days of feudalism when large landowners usually minor war lords, were virtually sovereigns of their domains controlling the lives of their "people" as well as the affairs of the district over which they ruled, the spoils of war were of no little importance.

Successful warriors were rewarded in proportion to their services and the amount of the plunder. The meanest warrior, thus was recompensed according to the degree of his prowess. This was a mercenary practice and has long since gone out of vogue.

Today men who are ruthlessly torn from a peaceful environment and who are obliged to abandon their business affairs to face the dangers and hardships of war are considered deserving of recognition for their services as a matter of plain justice.

Few men, who have served their country in uniform in time of war, have escaped irreparable financial loss or some degree of impairment of their health. This is especially true in the case of the veterans of the World War.

These veterans are wholly justified in the expectation that they will receive consideration at the hands of their government and their fellow citizens, who were not called upon for war service.

Reasonable preferences in the matter of employment is certainly a conservative demand. The Great War Veterans' Association, in convention at Vancouver, has passed a resolution favoring preference in employment to ex-servicemen, employed on Canadian railways. The resolution stresses the relationship of ex-servicemen and unnaturalized aliens in this regard.

Certainly, there is no logical argument which can be advanced to compute the implied claims of the veterans. Sentiment may be disregarded altogether and sound business reasons alone would support the stand of the ex-servicemen. They did their bit and risked their all during a great national crisis, now they ask fair treatment—nothing more. The Canadian people collectively or severally cannot afford to deny their requests.

THE STRIKER'S AND THE PUBLIC

While the interests of the striking dock workers of Britain and the coal miners and steel workers, who have walked out in Cape Breton are but remotely related, the situations in the two strike areas are naturally similar from a physical as well as from a psychological standpoint.

Both groups demand concessions on the part of their employers. While the wage scales and working conditions involved are dissimilar, the ultimate objectives are obviously alike and the courses adopted in the effort to attain these objectives are strikingly similar.

Another conspicious instance of similarily is the effect in both cases upon the public. In London, the food supply is seriously threatened, while at Sydney the city water supply was, for a time at least, at the mercy of the strikers.

It is an unfortunate circumstance that the public and the strikers are first seriously affected, the latter chiefly retroactively. The operators usually are not directly hit by the disturbance of the economic routine. The public, then, although a neutral party, is the chief sufferer. It is this fact that causes the average strike movement to appear manifestly unfair and illogical.

The effect is that of warfare in a lesser degree. The masses, who make possible the existence of the industries and the resultant employment, are ignored in the conflict between the workers and the employers. Even although sometimes only a minor technicality is involved the public suffers keenly.

This fact naturally react unfavorably upon the striking workmen and dampens the ardor of those, who might be inclined to espouse their cause. For this reason, if for other (and there is a legion of others) the "strike" system of adjusting differences between employes and employers is unsound. The resulting economic waste and industrial stagnation is too costly—the price is too high.

Every economic move should be gauged in accordance with a prognosis of its probable effect upon the general welfare—any change or readjustment of the social or industrial scheme, which benefits a small group at the expense of the great majority, is unsound. The game is not worth the candle.

Then the question obtrudes itself: "How can the rights of the workers be protected without infringement upon the rights of the general public? The answer is, 'by legislation' Industrial leaders and statesmen in the United States realize this fact and are making belated efforts at readjustment by the enactment of statutes and the creation of commissions. Canada, confronted with a far less complicated situation, is in a position to check the evil by legislation and to lay the foundation for a statutory system which would develop effectiveness at a ratio commensurate with the growth of industry.

The rights of the workers, whose demands paradoxically enough, are invariably well founded, MUST be protected, but let the government assume the responsibility and relieve the workers of a burden, which they are but illy equipped to bear.

Wives and Husbands Share Mutual Benefit

For the Tranquil Autumn of Life

HAPPINESS, love, affection and the precious things of life cannot be insured. But insurance helps to protect these priceless things from the wear and tear of worry and anxiety.

Some sensitive women shrink from the idea of life insurance. It suggests dire possibilities which they cannot face. They do not realize that insurance nowadays is not necessarily concerned with death, "Insure to live."

The Mutual Life of Canada issues policies in the benefits of which husband and wife may both share as beneficiaries. A husband and wife may take out a Mutual policy payable in five, ten, fifteen, twenty, or more years. At the end of the period named in the policy, if both are living, its face value will be paid in cash, together with any available surplus. This form of policy is called a Profit-participating Joint Endowment. Of course, if death did intervene, the survivor, whether wife or husband, would receive the amount due from the company.

There are other endowment policies issued by the Mutual Life of Canada in which you as a wife would be interested, and in the benefits of which both you and your husband would share. Talk it over with him and encourage him to make this wise provision for your future. We will gladly send you full information about Mutual Life insurance, and our different endowment policies.

Write our head office now, while the matter is in your mind.

DODGE BROTHERS
TOURING CAR

If there is one word which will sum up the average owner's impression of Dodge Brothers Touring Car, that word is dependable.

If there is a word to express the quality which Dodge Brothers have striven, above all else, to build into the Touring Car, it is —again—dependable.

Indeed, it is not too much to say that the word dependable has come to be definitely associated, the world over, with Dodge Brothers Touring Car—and the other vehicles bearing their name.

Nor have Dodge Brothers built this enviable reputation through advertising. They have built motor cars, so dependable in fact that the word has presented itself automatically to the public mind.

Does a Quality Tire Pay the Light Car Owner?

A tire, built the Firestone way, is one of the best investments the owner of a light car can make. Such a tire gives the greatest mileage for the least cost, protects your car, cuts gasoline consumption and gives you the easy riding qualities of a heavier vehicle.

Firestone Cords are noted for a resilience that cushions driver and mechanism from road shocks and roughness. This cushion effect is noticeable at the end of a few thousand miles of driving; your motor performs better—there are fewer annoying squeaks or rattles.

The powerful gripping angles of the Firestone tread take a sure certain hold on any road surface. They give maximum safety. There is no slipping and wastage of power—Firestone Cords save gas.

The blending and tempering of rubber, air bag curing and other special Firestone methods followed in Canada's most modern tire plant multiply mileage to a degree that make Firestone Cords the final word in tire economy.

The ever-increasing number of Firestone Cords on the road, the ever-increasing number of cars coming from the manufacturer Firestone equipped is evidence how Firestone quality has impressed the car owner who demands the ultimate in mileage, safety and comfort.

Firestone Tubes give the same reliable, economical service. They are steam-welded, a Firestone process that prevents air leakage and flat tires because even extreme heat won't break down the splice. Ask your dealer.

PUBLIC LINKS PLAYERS GET INTO ACTION

By Paul R. Mallon, United Press Staff Correspondent.

New York, July 7.—The Poor Man's golf championships get under way in Washington today, when public links players from all over the country tee off on the East Potomac course in the qualifying round.

There is something more interesting about a public links championship than about the great professional tourneys. The contestants for the most part have learned their game themselves. They don't belong to million dollar clubs and they represent the true golf playing public of the country.

The matches haven't been given the wide publicity given to stars. But they will some day.

The Potomac Park course is beautifully laid out. It is on a peninsula that reaches out along the Potomac River. The lay is level and there is little rough. The hazards all are small bunkers and sand traps. The course has no peculiarities that will give the capital golfers an extraordinary advantage.

A number of young players in the American League are coming along fast.

Willie Kamm, the $125,000 Frisco boy, made good from the start. He is slugging the American League pitchers for an average of more than .300 and he was never considered a brilliant hitter on the coast.

Dick Reichle, from the University of Illinois, is right up among the best batsmen in the league. Frank Chance got him for the Red Sox for nothing, but it would take J. P. Morgan to buy him now.

Wid Mathews is hustling along for Connie Mack, and some of the boys think he is the fastest fielder in the American League.

New thunder is breaking out of the west and rolling through the boat houses from Annapolis to Cornell.

The information has come that the 1923 Washington eight is better than the crew of last year. If that is so, the eastern coaches say it 'must be good', and there is no over-confidence as to the outcome of the Poughkeepsie regatta next Thursday.

Navy has been considered a favorite for the three mile pull. Cornell shows great improvement the last few days before the race. Syracuse has its usual power. Columbia lost a lot of prestige when defeated by Yale. The Pennsylvania boat holds nothing wonderful and there are fears that the scenery is propitious for a dark horse.

Washington is a dark horse.

Last year he won 13 games for the Reds. That isn't usually considered a very lucky number. He lost 23—and that's considered worse. The hunch believers said 13 meant tough luck and 23 meant good-bye.

But the sun-tanned veteran walked into the Red camp in Florida this year and started winning ball games. He won seven out of his first eight starts of the regular season.

No. 13 last year certainly meant at least temporary ill fortune, for Luque was listed as fifth pitcher in the National League on the efficiency basis of earned runs. But he was twenty-third in the won and lost standing.

Manager John McGraw of the Giants spent a lot of money for Jack Bentley, and nobody has yet been able to find out whether he made a good or bad investment.

TRUNKS LEAVE TO BATTLE COBOURG

Jack Williams Slated to Hurl For Railroaders.

The ball team left at ten o'clock this morning for Cobourg where they play Dick Turpin's crew this afternoon. Jack Williams is slated to take the hill against the lake shore crew and after his rather bad start last Saturday he should be going great guns. Stan. Hagerman will of course do the receiving and Harry Mills will be at the initial sack. A win today for Belleville will tie with either Peterboro or Kingston for second place. George Sullivan of Kingston and Theroux of Bowmanville will be the umpires.

Heckman and Gallagher will in all probability oppose each other at Riverside Park and from past performances between those two teams today's game should be a hum-dinger.

GERMAN PROFITEERS OBJECT OF ATTACK

By CARL D. GROAT

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Berlin, July 5.—(United Press)—With all the thoroughness of "German organization talent," the Teuton, government is waging, with a veritable police army, a sharp battle against profiteers.

The police, the courts, and expert price-fixing commissions are locked together into an organization that is making life miserable for the greedy. Woe unto the shopkeeper who charges too much for his sugar, his butter, and his meat! Woe likewise to the coal dealer who holds back his supplies in the hopes to higher prices.

The shopkeeper and the coal dealer, the big meat dealer at the central cattle market and the little trader at the open-air markets can be—and are—fined for their delinquencies, or, as it sometimes happens, they go to jail and have their places closed for three months after they emerge.

The "Wucher" police group is an out-growth of the tremendous profiteering which, arising during the war, has now become an almost general evil. In the first place, there is a price-fixing commission — the "preispruefungsstelle" —composed of merchants, manufacturers and representatives of the public. This commission takes into consideration prices paid originally, the overhead costs, the devaluation of the mark between the time of purchase and sale, and then establishes what percentage of profit may properly be taken for each branch.

Once this profit is set, the Wucher police task is mapped. They "go get" profiteers, turn them to the courts and the courts fine or imprison offenders.

PRESS OPINIONS

DIGNITY OF MARRIAGE

(St. Louis Watchman)

A short time ago one of our presumed radicals came out with an objection against all the fuss and ceremony attached to the fact of getting married. No doubt there was some foundation for the objection, but inasmuch as it was based on an attempt to belittle the importance of marriage it was all wrong.

For those who look upon the matter as a mere whim of passion, it is indeed a mockery to make much ado about the ceremony whether performed by judge or parson. If, however, the Christian idea is to continue, the event should be made impressive by a fitting amount of outward fuss and celebration merely for the sake of showing its importance in the lives of those who are united by these intimate and indissoluble bonds.

Barnyard ethics on the subject of marriage may be gaining in influence but a higher conception of the relation has not yet been wholly destroyed and dignified, if joyous, weddings are still in order.

IRELAND SIMMERING DOWN.

(Winnipeg Free Press)

Only a few months ago northern Ireland had its share of crimes and disturbances, some of them of a shocking nature, but it is now claimed that northern Ireland is as peaceable and law-abiding as any part of the world. The record of crime shows the development of a much better order.

During the month of April not a murder nor an attempted murder was reported. During the same month a year ago there were 193 such cases. Charges of housebreaking declined from 150 in April of 1922 to 56 last April; robbery, from 130 to 9, and so on. Ulster, it is claimed, is normal again.

CHURCH UNION.

(Hartford Courant)

To those who feel that the world is growing ill-tempered and bigoted we command the fact that a Protestant Episcopal parish in Norwich has turned over a Sunday collection to its Roman Catholic neighbors whose church was recently burned.

AN INVIGORATED PARTY.

(Guelph Herald)

All signs indicate that the Conservative party has entered the election contest with a vim and enthusiasm that are invariably the preliminary of success. Realizing that the defeats of the past were not due to any defects in their Government record, but rather the result of the unrestful temper of the times, and feeling that the time is ripe for a restoration of responsible Government in Ontario, the party which has given the finest and wisest legislation to his province, and which led Canada during the most trying years in its history, is full of vigor and optimism over the result of the appeal which Conservatives are making to the people this month.

TOURISTS' PARADISE

An American exchange is responsible for the following: "More than 70,000 motorists from this side took machines into Quebec during the past fishing season. Back in 1915 there were only 3,433 cars visiting the Province of Quebec from the states. These tourists left $14,000,000 in Quebec in 1922. Ain't fishin' a great excuse?"

It is not only a great excuse. It is a great luxury as we have it in Quebec and cannot be beaten anywhere. And there are other luxuries too! Come and see!

INEQUALITY BEFORE THE LAW.

Prohibition, inefficient as it is, has been more successful here, so far as these aloons go, than anybody could have expected. What is really "appalling" is the fact that the people we all know, our friends, relatives acquaintances—too often our sacred and virtuous selves—persons ordinarily law-abiding, intelligent, snap their fingers at the Volstead Act.

The well-to-do classes—and their ability to evade the law breeds just irritation among those not fortunate enough to be lawbreakers—are always able to get their supply.

LINIMENT FOUND TO BE POWERFUL GERMICIDE

Originally, Absorbine Jr. was sold only as a pain reliever and an embrocation. It was quickly discovered that the liniment was positive death to all forms of germ life, and it is now used as a mouth wash, for wound dressing and for all disinfecting purposes.

Another surprise was yet in store. A Wm. Pratt of Springfield, Mass., applied Absorbine Jr. to a varicose vein to relieve the intense pain. Not only did the pain leave, but he noticed every day the swollen vein becoming smaller. The treatment was kept up and, today, Mr. Pratt's legs, though he has never used anything else on them, are as smooth as when he was a boy. It has now been proved that Absorbine Jr. is an actual specific for varicose veins, leg ulcers, boils, pyorrhoea and a number of other ailments and injuries besides that for which it was first prepared. Nothing serves so many every day purposes and nothing is better entitled to its place in every home. When it is needed, it will be needed in a hurry. Don't wait for someone to be hurt. Beautiful Hands From Dishpans

This is the advice of beauty specialists and household economists to all women who seek the "carved white hands" of which the poet sang.

"Don't have the water too hot or the soap too strong," Mme. Louise, a director of the Illinois and Chicago Hairdressers' Association, warned in proclaiming the dish-pan as the secret to beautiful hands.

"After the dishes are washed, apply lotion while the pores are yet open. Then mold the fingers so they will taper. Soft, lovely hands are sure to result."

"Dishes can be done so daintily that it is a pleasure," Mrs. Wilbur E. Erily, state chairman of the home economics department of the Illinois Federation of Women's clubs, declared. "Use mild soap and apply a lotion afterwards," she advised.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

SUMMER DIET.

Perhaps a thought or two about what you eat in the hot summer months might be of interest.

As I've said before one can always talk about food because it is really the most important thing in the world as far as that body of yours is concerned.

You are just what you eat—nothing more—nothing less.

And another thing—The work in which you are engaged should be the determining factor in the choice of foods.

For instance, if you work entirely with your brain through the day either in commercial or professional life, you must do one of two things at lunch time. That is, eat a light lunch of salad, some whole wheat bread and a vegetable or two, or, else eat a real full sized meal from soup to desert, and take a little time for reading or resting for a short time afterwards You can't go back to close mental work immediately after a heavy meal. Then a light meal at night of course. I know that it is almost useless to talk to many business men about trying to use a little common sense about the noon lunch.

With some men lunch time comes at twelve o'clock one day, and about two-thirty the next day. You can readily see that in a case of this kind the light lunch is the safest proposition, with a real dinner at night.

If you work with your body, you must get plenty of food, and the proteids, (lean meat or eggs) are absolutely essential. If you are opposed to meat the ordinary vegetables are insufficient. You must eat peas, or beans to balance things.

If eggs agree with you, they are a wonderful food to repair worn out tissue. So in thinking about food for the summer, remember that in a general way less food is necessary than in the winter time, but that is about the only difference you need to make in your diet—that it be less in quantity.

You see if you do without meat or eggs, your blood will get thin, if without fresh fruit and vegetables the blood will be without necessary salts, and wasting and weakness will ensue.

With too much fats and vegetables you may get eczema or pimples on the skin. So the wise thing is just to eat the ordinary foods, cutting down a bit on your fats.

And remember, if you are engaged in athletics in the summer, you will need the repair foods—meat—eggs—peas or beans.

THEY TELL THEIR NEIGHBORS

Women Tell Each Other How They Were Helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Woodbridge, Ont.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for female troubles. I would have headaches, backaches, pains between my shoulders and under my shoulder-blades and dragging down feelings on each side. I was sometimes unable to do my work and felt very badly. My mother-in-law told me about the Vegetable Compound and I got some right away. It has done me more good than any other medicine I ever took and I recommend it to my neighbors. You are welcome to use this letter as a testimonial if you think it will help some poor sufferer."—Mrs. EDGAR SIMMONS, R. R. 2, Woodbridge, Ont.

In nearly every neighborhood in every town and city in this country there are women who have been helped by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in the treatment of ailments peculiar to their sex, and they take pleasure in passing the good word along to other women. Therefore, if you are troubled in this way, why not give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from roots and herbs, has for forty years proved its value in such cases. Women everywhere bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

How Do You Walk?

How do you walk? Do you proceed in a straight line or zigzag from side to side?

If you watch a number of pedestrians you will find that nine out of ten bear the right, return to their proper course, and then start swerving to the right again.

This is because our right leg is more fully developed and stronger than our left. A left-handed person usually swerves to the left in walking, for in his case the left side is the more powerful.

If a man is slightly deaf in his left ear he will swerve to the left. If his other ear is affected he will go in the opposite direction. This is because the deaf stoop slightly on the side on which they can hear least.

Short-sighted people will swerve to the side on which they have their worst eye. Even people who are perfectly well physically and whose bodies are evenly developed zigzag in their walk. This is because their thoughts wander and their legs have not sufficient guidance.

The First Mausoleum.

The first structure of the sort that that one designates as a mausoleum was built by the love of a woman. In the remote and dim past, Queen Artemista of Caria, so deeply mourned her husband, King Mausolus, when he died that she spent a great deal of treasure in building a splendid tomb over his remains. The memorial structure was named after the king whom it commemorated—Mausolus. In the Latin language the word was modified to mausoleum, and the English language borrowed it directly from the Latin.

A Rainy State.

From the women's point of view, the province of Bergen, in southwest Norway, is in one respect the least desirable place of residence in the world. It rains there 300 days in the year, and, owing to the moisture of the climate, hair will not stay in curl.

Best to Face Danger.

It is better to meet danger than to wait for it. He that is on a lee shore, and foresees a hurricane, stands out to sea and encounters a storm to avoid a shipwreck.—Colton.

PATRICIA BRENT SPINSTER

ANONYMOUS

"'Appy, me dear, that wasn't the word for it," said Mr. Triggs. "And when she was taken, I—I——" he broke off huskily and blew his nose vigorously.

"Suppose you were very poor, Mr. Triggs," began Patricia.

"I was when I married,' interrupted Mr. Triggs.

"Suppose you were very poor," continued Patricia, "and you loved someone very rich. What would you do ".

"God bless my soul! I never thought of that. You see Emily 'adn't anything She only got sixteen pounds a year."

"But suppose, Mr. Triggs," persisted Patricia, "suppose you loved some one who was very rich and you were very poor. What would you do? Would you tell them?"

For a moment Patricia allowed her eyes to glance in the diretcion of Elton, and saw that his gaze was fixed upon Mr. Triggs.

"But what 'as money got to do with it?" demanded Mr. Triggs, a puzzled expression on his face.

"Exactly!" said Patricia. "That's what I wanted to know."

"Money sometimes has quite a lot to do with life," remarked Elton to no one in particular.

"With life, Mr. Elton," said Mr. Triggs; "but not with love."

"You are an idealist," said Lady Tanagra.

"Am I?" said Mr. Triggs, with a smile.

"And he is also a dear," said Patricia.

Mr. Triggs looked at her and smiled.

Lady Tanagra and Elton drove off, Patricia saying that she wanted a walk. Mr. Triggs also declined Lady Tanagra's offer of a lift.

"She wanted to bring 'er with me," announced Mr. Triggs as they strolled along by the Serpentine.

"Who did?" enquired Patricia.

"'Ettie. Ran up to change 'er things and sent out for a taxi."

"And what did you say?" equired Patricia.

"I didn't say anything; but when the taxi come I just slipped in and came along 'ere. Fancy 'Ettie and Lady Tanagra!" said Mr. Triggs. "No," he added a moment later. "It's no good trying to be what you ain't. If 'Ettie was to remember she's a builder's daughter, and not think she's a great lady, she'd be much 'appier," said Mr. Triggs with unconscious wisdom.

"We all love to have you just as you are, Mr. Triggs, and we won't allow you to change," said Patricia.

Mr. Triggs smiled happily. He was as susceptible to flattery as a young girl.

"Well, it ain't much good trying to be what you're not I've been a working-man, and I'm not ashamed of it, and you and Lady Tanagra and, Mr Elton ain't ashamed of being seen with me. But 'Ettie she'd no more be seen with 'er old father in Hyde Park than she'd be seen with 'im in a Turkish bath."

"We all have our weaknesses, don't you think," said Patricia.

And Mr. Triggs agreed.

"Me, me dear!" exclaimed Mr. Triggs in surprise.

"Yes," said Patricia, "it's no good denying it. Don't you like knowing Lord Peter and Lady Tanagra, Mr. Elton and all the rest of them?"

"It's not because they're in Society," began Mr. Triggs.

"Oh, yes it is. You imagine that you are now a very great personage. Soon you will be moving from Streatham into Park Lane and then you will not know me."

"Oh, me dear!" said Mr. Triggs in distress.

"It's no good denying it," continued Patricia.

"Look at the way you made friends with Lord Peter." Patricia was priding herself on the way in which she had led the conversation round to Bowen; but Mr. Triggs was not to be drawn.

"God bless my soul!" he cried, stopping still and removing his hat, mopping his brow vigorously. "I don't mind whether anyone has a title or not. It's just them I like. Now look at Lady Tanagra. No one would think she was a lady."

"Really, Mr. Triggs! I shall tell her if you take her character away in this manner. She's one of the most exquisitely bred people I have ever met."

Mr. Triggs looked reproachfully at Patricia.

"It's a bit 'ard on a young gal when she finds 'er father drops 'is aitches," he remarked, reverting to his daughter. "I often wonder whether I was right in giving 'Ettie such an education. She went to an 'igh School at Eastmouth," he added. "It only made 'er dissatisfied. It was 'ard luck 'er 'aving me for a father," he concluded more to himself than to Patricia.

MAKING FRIENDS IN THE CITY

The city can be very cold
To one who is "funny" and old;
But sometimes the city
Knows kindness and pity—
And this in the story is told.

I hadn't been living in the city a day before I knew I wouldn't like it. It's bad enough to be an old maid any place, but there are lots of things worse than being an old maid in a town like Gompers, where all the children run in to see you and call you Aunt Sarah.

The second day I took a walk in the park and passed hundreds of children. But instead of running to their Aunt Sarah, every one of them sailed past me. They all ignored my friendly smiles when I spoke to them.

At last I became desperate. I longed to talk to one of them. I spied a very ragged little boy standing on the corner. How could I make friends with him? I fumbled in my purse and brought out a quarter, which I offered him. But my chosen friend merely looked at me, stuck out his tongue, and walked away. I followed him. He had not understood that I meant for him to have the money.

"Say, are you nuts?" he demanded. "I don't want it. Le' me alone!"

"But I want to help you," I begged. "Can't you get some of your friends and come to see me? We'll have ice cream and cake, and I'll tell you a nice story." I racked my brain trying to think of something that would interest him. Why I had picked out this dirty little rag-a-muffin is more than I can say.

Making a grinding motion around his ear, to indicate that he plainly thought I was "nuts," he stalked away. I do not know why I took it so much to heart. Perhaps I was homesick for Gompers and all my little adopted neices and nephews. Perhaps it was just because I had never before been treated that way by a child. Anyway, I just couldn't help it —I sat down on a park bench and began to cry.

I didn't care who saw me. There wasn't a single person in all that big city who would talk to me. I was utterly miserable. Above my own sobs I heard an embarrassed cough at my ear. "What's the matter?" It was the voice of my ragged but independent friend.

"Oh, no one will be my friend," I said, "and I'm so homesick and lonely——"

"Well, gee! Why didn't you say so?" he demanded. "Say, if you're lonesome, I'll get the gang and we'll all come to see you this afternoon." A dirty little hand took mine. "Don't cry——"

"Aunt Sarah," I prompted.

"Aunt Sarah," re repeated, "don't cry."

NEW CHURCH BEING DEDICATED TO GOD.

The opening and dedication services of the United Christian Workers Gospel Tabernacle is looked forward to with great enthusiasm and delight by the members of that body.

It is now one year since Rev. T. J. Logan the Irish Evangelist took charge of the work only a few members and the work has steadily grown until now the building in which they worship is much too small to accommodate the congregations who assemble week after week to hear the simple gospel message.

During the past months much prayer has been offered for a larger building and the time has now come when God has graciously answered prayer and a splendid Tabernacle seating somewhere between four and five hundreds persons has been built on Front street, opposite Sloan's wholesale warehouse and south of Queen's Hotel.

This Gospel Tabernacle is interdenominational and is built in one of the most central locations of the City so that any or all who desire to attend will find it convenient.

The Rev. A. Sims, Toronto, and Rev. W. S. Barker, Stirling, both well-known Evangelists and teachers in North America for over fifty years will be the special speakers at the opening ceremonies and four days gospel campaign. Special singers from different centres are expected.

ANGUS McFEE'S

Feels Like He Could Do Twice as Much Work Now

Long Standing Digestive Troubles Yield Readily to the Corrective Influence of Dreco, the Famous Herbal Remedy.

Another Toronto citizen, Mr. T. G. Lusted, of 107 York Street, has found health in Dreco. Mr. Lusted's ailments were all traceable to that common source of human ills—the stomach and intestines. Neither of these important organs was working properly, resulting in a gradual weakening of the other organs and a distressingly poor state of health generally. Mr. Lusted's description of his symptoms and the beneficent effect of Dreco on them, follows:

"My troubles has been one of long standing weakness of kidneys, stomach and liver, brought about through chronic constipation. My bowels never acted regularly and I always had to be taking laxatives. My food would not digest properly, everything seeming to sour, causing gas. The pains in my back were so bad at times that I could hardly bend over and my work seemed ever so hard. My liver was sluggish and spots floated before my eyes, while I often had dizzy spells. My food never seemed to taste good and I finally lost my appetite altogether.

"I have taken but one bottle of Dreco and my troubles have greatly improved. I feel like I could do twice as much work without getting tired. My wife has noticed a big change in me and I am getting a good, healthy color in my face again. I intend to complete the full treatment and would recommend Dreco to anyone."

Dreco scientifically compounded from roots, herbs, bark and leaves of known medicinal value, quickly tones up these vital organs and restores them to normal functions. Spring finds everyone more or less run-down and in need of a good tonic and regulator. Get a bottle of Dreco to-day. It is pleasant to take and prompt in action and contains no mercury, potash or habit-forming drugs.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Belleville by The Belleville Pharmacy, and is Sold by a Good Druggist everywhere.

ENGLISH MARRIAGE SYSTEM.

Woman Wants to Know If It Is Practical.

Discussing the English and French marriage systems in her book, "The Disadvantages of Being a Woman," Miss Grace Ellison says—

"The English marriage system may be idealistic, but is it practical? The French system, with the bride's dowry, has often been criticised and condemned, but there can be no question that on the whole it is far better for the bride. It is said that in France a man marries a woman for her dowry; which is sometimes true. In England, however, he often cannot marry for lack of it, which is worse. Just one or two hundred pounds a year which the French mother begins to collect when the daughter is born, and scarcely misses herself, would scarcely tempt mercenary suitors, yet it makes all the difference to the girl.

"The provision of a dowry is rightly considered a sacred duty. To allow a daughter to marry without something of her own is looked upon as a disgrace, and even the poorest concierge finds the wherewithal for her girl's dot. But apart from the fact that this small standby is an encouragement to early marriage, it raises the wife to the position of a 'partner,' and as a partner she naturally has a right to know exactly how the household works.

"The French system differs from the English because money is given at the time of the daughter's marriage instead of at the parents' death, when it is often only half as valuable as it would have been in early life. Either the couples have married and set up for themselves, struggling along in a crippled way for want of a little extra money, or the young man, not daring to risk life for two on his first earnings, has married less happily than he would have done in earlier manhood.

"Above all, a sense of humiliation prevents many women from marrying. Rather than be utterly dependent on a man, they prefer to work for themselves. 'You feel so cheap taking a salary as if you were a housekeeper.' In a struggling or unhappy marriage, where too often the man resents every penny he doles out, the position is heartrending for a woman. Some, ashamed of not contributing to the home and unable to make ends meet out of their small allowance, supplement it by adopting a profession. This may help, but as already suggested, it often leads to all sorts of complications.

"Girls should be encouraged to marry young, though not too young. It is dangerous for them to have gone too far on the road of independence, for success may make them so 'difficult' in their choice that they wait too long and do not bother to marry at all. The Turkish proverb: 'Friendless still he remaineth who demands a perfect friend,' may prove a wise warning in the matter of choosing a husband.

"In the British Empire, where many of our young men have to emigrate, and cannot afford to take a wife out with them, there would be many obvious advantages in some system of dowries."

Behind the Scenes.

"I heard Granville Baker tell a delightful story when speaking of the ignorance of the public about behind-the-stage matters," writes "The Stage Cat" in "From the Wings." "He was producing one of his own plays at the Court. Rehearsals were at their last frantic gasp before the first night. Strong men were falling exhausted upon the stage, actresses were being revived in the wings, when a dear old lady, who had known Barker as a boy, came up from the country and wanted to see him.

"She called upon his mother and said she was sure Gran must be getting quite a great man, for she had read about his new play in the local paper and when could she see him? Mrs. Barker replied that she feared that to see him would be out of the question, for he was busy night and day rehearsing.

"'Dear me,' said the old lady; 'and do they run through the thing beforehand, then?'"

Famous as Raconteur.

The new Financial Secretary of the British Treasury, Major A. B. Boyd-Carpenter, is celebrated amongst his friends and acquaintances as a raconteur.

One of his best stories concerns a man who considered himself the last word in public speakers, and was never tired of telling his friends of his triupmhs.

"Only the other day," he remarked to a long-suffering acquaintance, "I was the third speaker at a meeting. The first speaker got up, and after his speech, was hissed; the second met with same fate.

"I confess I was distressed, but I screwed up my courage and spoke. My platform oratory was so good that when I had finished the audience began hissing the first two speakers all over again!"

Commoner Who Made Many Lords.

William Pitt, the younger, when he first became Prime Minister of England, found 250 peers in the House of Lords. In nineteen years he created 140 more.

"He made peers of second-rate squires and fat graziers," Disraeli said of him. "He clutched them from the counting houses of Cornhill and caught them in the alleys of Lombard street."

Pitt rarely rose before noon and it is said that he often did not work after dinner, because he was intoxicated. He arrived at the House of Commons drunk on the day when war was declared between England and France in 1793.

Cutty Stools.

The creepie of cutty stool was a stool once used in the Scottish church for punishment of offenders against chastity. The sinner was required to sit in full view of the congregation, and at the close of service, rise for reprimand by the minister.

GLADSTONE ON THE PSALMS.

Grand Old Man's Opinion of Hebrew Poetry.

In a very interesting chapter entitled "Prime Ministers I Have Known," in Lady Battersea's "Reminiscences," she tells of an evening spent in the "Temple of Peace" at Hawarden. She says—

"Mr. Gladstone had just brought out and arranged a 'Concordance of the Psalms,' a copy of which I had with me at Hawarden. In this work he had grouped certain Psalms and exceptions from Psalms under special headings, such as 'The Creation,' 'The Messiah,' 'The Angels,' also under 'Mortality' and 'Life to Come.' With the aid of a Hebrew Bible and dictionary I had tested some of these deductions, especially those dealing with a future life, and I was not quite in agreement with Mr. Gladstone. I had ventured to mention this to Mary in the afternoon, and she had said, 'You must tell my father; he would be much interested,' which almost sent me into a fit of alarm, but I suddenly found myself in the 'Temple of Peace,' and I was confronted by the great man, who asked me to state my objections.

"Mr. Gladstone said much more to tribute too distinct a belief in a future life, as we now picture it, to the old Hebrews. I do not see it as clearly defined in the Psalms as you do.' Mr. Gladstone: 'Pardon me, the question is a very big one. Shall I tell you what I think of it?' Of course I murmured my assent. Mr. Gladstone: 'At first amongst the old nations there was merely an idea of the survival of something connected with the body, not the actual body, but the idea of eternity was scarcely understood; it was too difficult to grasp; it was only survival. This was probably the case among the Hebrews, but still they did believe in some shadowy future existence, viz., Enoch, who walked with God; Elijah, who rose to Heaven in a chariot of fire; David, who mentions going to his child. Three distinct proofs. The old Hebrew did not think with any rapture of a future life. It did not appeal to him as it does to the Christian, to whom the belief of the resurrection of the body is part of his creed; but we may take it for granted that the idea always existed.'

"Mr. Gladstone said much more to the same effect, and then burst into a wonderful rhapsody on immortality adding: 'It is far better not to try to define what eternity means, or we shall be drawn into all the difficulties of eternal punishment. But,' he continued, 'I maintain that the Hebrew of old did believe in a future state, and that to them "Sheol" was not merely the grave, the pit.' I may have had my doubts, but I did not say so."

India's Sacred River.

The Ganges is the sacred river of the Hindus. On its banks are many temples and holy places such as Benares, Allahabad, Hardwar and Gangotri. According to the legend Princess Ganda, a Hindu goddess, of long ago, turned herself into this great river, that she might enrich and purify the country. Devout Hindus bathe themselves in its sacred waters and pray to die beside it. It is their desire that their bodies may be burned upon its water and allowed to float on down to the sea. The length of the main stream of the Ganges is 1,557 miles, and its every bend is sacred. Pilgrims walk from its source and back again, taking six months or more for the pilgrimage. Before the Juggernaut car which rolled in the procession along its banks, fanatics used to throw themselves, to be crushed to death amid the applause of the worshippers. This is now forbidden by law as is also the burning of widows on the funeral pyre of their husbands, and the casting of babes into the sacred river.

Snubbed By King Edward.

Two characteristic mots of the late King Edward are given by Douglas Ainslie in his "Adventures Social and Literary." The first was in connection with Constantine Phipps, "great at racing and grand duchesses," and at that time British Minister at Brussels he was always dashing over to England for some race meeting or other, and I remember his appearing in the royal enclosure one Ascot week and manoeuvring himself under the eye of King Edward. "Well, Phipps, why aren't you at your post?" was all the conversation he enjoyed, for the king, having thus recognized his minister to Belgium, turned on his heel to converse with somebody else. This remark is paralleled for brevity with another he made at Doncaster, in the ladies' stand, to a friend who had dared to appear on Leger Day in a bowler hat instead of the orthodox topper: 'Hullo, Raikes, been ratting?'"

The Marriage Portion.

That brilliantly witty playwright and novelist, Mr. Israel Zangwill, is telling a new story about a "Shadchan" (marriage-broker).

He called on a prospective client. Taking some photographs from his pocket he said: "I have some nice eligible girls waiting for husbands. Now this one"—showing the photograph—"is rather pretty. Her marriage portion is $250. This one here—she is a little plain. Her dowry is $500. This third one—maybe she is a little ugly, but she brings $1,000 for a husband.

"No matter," retorted the client. "I can well imagine it!"

Wrote First Modern Novel.

Who was the first modern English novelist? Samuel Richardson (1689-1761) is credited with that distinction. From early youth he was a printer. When he was fifty some publishers desiring a letter writer for people who could not express themselves asked him to prepare it. He made these letters tell a connective story. The result was the first modern novel, "Pamela" (1740).

Waterspout Wonders.

A remarkable experience recently befell the crew of the steamship Carston, off Guantanamo, Cuba.

One afternoon the vessel was caught in a tropical thunderstorm, which lasted for about three-quarters of an hour. Then the wind dropped suddenly and the low clouds began to send down a number of long, tapering arms towards the water.

These arms were constantly changing their shape and size. Sometimes some of the smaller ones would revolve rapidly round a larger one. All were spinning at an almost incredible speed. When a larger spout was formed it would absorb all the smaller ones around it. At one time no fewer than nine waterspouts were visible at the same moment.

Waterspouts are fairly common in the course of the Gulf Stream, and one is occasionally seen round the British coast. But to encounter them in such numbers is an almost unheard-of occurrence.

They are caused by small swirls of air, which are brought about by conflicting currents in the atmosphere. These swirls suck up the water from the sea, sometimes in the form of spray, but more often in the form of a great swaying column of solid water. As the spout reaches the clouds, which are always low at such a time, it spreads out and breaks into drops, which are scattered through the body of the clouds.

Oldest Dress in Europe.

What must be the oldest garment in Europe has just been found in Sweden. Some peat cutters were at work in Gerum Fen, near Skara, when they discovered a voluminous cloak just a few feet under the surface of the peat. The preserving qualities of the fen water had kept it intact since the bronze age, about a thousand years before the Christian era. Several noted professors have examined the cloak and all agree as to its antiquity. The state geologist of Sweden, Dr. L. von Post, has no doubt as to its age. Prices of material handwoven in the same period are tabulated in the British Museum. These were taken from the Swiss lake dwellings, and the officials in charge of the bronze age department say there is no reason why the new find should not be perfectly genuine. It is thought that the peat areas of Ireland probably cover and preserve much that would throw a great deal of light upon the little-known race of the bronze age period of Northern Europe.

STREET OF ABUNDANCE.

Important Discoveries Recently Made in Pompeii.

Pompeii has been overshadowed by recent discoveries in Egypt, but Rome correspondents have been telling of important revelations this spring in the Street of Abundance in the ancient Italian city. Every schoolboy is familiar with the fate of the Italian city which, a few years before the time of Christ, was overwhelmed with the outpourings of Vesuvius, and remained buried to the world for many centuries, though the object of intermitten excavations since 1763.

Recent diggings have thrown a flood of light on the life of the Pompeiian middle-class and common people. Shops alternate with the villas of the new-rich, and the innumerable bars and inns stand cheek by jowl with the shrines of the Lares, exactly as in Southern Italy to-day, where every church has its tavern alongside.

Here is a large outfitter's establishment; the proprietor was Marcus Caecilius. In place of a shop window the front of his premises is adorned by a series of frescoes illustrating the business done within. The proprietor and his wife appear in these frescoes engaged in buying and selling, with a troop of employes around them. Many election and theatre notices are to be read on the front of the villa of Aulus Trebius Valens. They announce that great gladiatorial combats will take place at Puteoli. "Muneribus Augustorum" (at Caesar's expense); that there will also be fights between wild beasts, and hunting, and that the public will be protected from the sun.

"Nature, in this case," says the Manchester Guardian, "has embalmed for us a whole city with more efficiency than a Pharaoh's experts could his royal body. The ash with which Vesuvius overwhelmed Pompeii yields its secrets now almost unimpaired. There is no need for skilled and laborious deduction and inference from this or that isolated relic. The whole jolly, active life of the place is patent and vivid as the spade reveals it.

"A dozen or so temples in various styles, a big theatre and a little one, a stadium that gave 20,000 citizens a good view of the game, some first-rate baths, an elegant forum, dignified accommodation for the local authorities, good shops and charming villas on well-made roads—all are there to show why the well-to-do Romans made of it a favorite resort. It is easy to see Cicero strolling meditatively down its Street of Abundance, which is now being cleared, and pausing in the composition of a philippic to contemplate the highly attractive shop signs of M. Caecilius, outfitter, and to wonder if, after all, he might not indulge in a new toga this summer."

Footbinding.

The habit of footbinding among Chinese women, while dying out of the cities, countinues with little change in the country districts.

International Crooks Rounded Up to Protest Paris Visitors

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Paris, July 6—(United Press)— Organized international outlawry is engaged in the battle of its life against the constituted authorities of civilization, represented by the French police.

Fourteen men and women, the keenest minds in thievedom, are temporarily reposing in the antechamber of the penitentiary, while all the astuteness and limitless resources of the Paris police Department are being employed to make their stay permanent.

It isn't an easy job, this of trying to prove to the satisfaction of a jury that a certain man, although his police record in several countries would amply justify the conclusion, was actually guilty of taking two, or three, or ten thousand dollars away from a confiding gentleman from Indiana or a couple of thousand pounds sterling from a visitor from the Australian bush, on the assumption that the said money was to be placed on an enigmatical horse who couldn't possibly lose, or to be distributed among the poverty-stricken refugees of an earthquake rocked region in South America or Central Asia.

Is William Warren, sleek and suave, well groomed and prosperous, owner of automobiles, race horse and villas, spending his winters on the Riviera and his summers at Deauville, identical with William Warren, known to the Australian and English police as "Bludger Bill," sentenced in 1901 as Sydney, N.S.W., to eighteen months imprisonment at hard labor for robbery with violence and the unwilling guest thereafter on half a dozen occasions of the prison guardians of England, Belgium, Germany and America?

BANKNOTES UNDER SEAT

When this question is answered the problem of the French police will be much simpler. For William Warren is supposed to be the head, the brains, the directing genius of the greatest band of international crooks that has ever been pulled in by one sling from the police dragnet. They got him, with his wife, a friend and a woman who is supposed to be the wife of one of his chief lieutenants, as his luxurious automobile was entering Paris after a trip from Nice. Under the cushions of the car the police found French, Spanish and English banknotes amounting to about two hundred thousand dollars, while in front of Milady Warren reposed a pair of prize puppies valued at two or three thousand.

Warren protested that he was simply a wealthy tourist," enjoying life as he saw fit, but the reason of the arrest was that Paris Police authorities had reason to suspect that he was the leader of a gang of malefactors, eleven of whom had been captured a few days previously in half a dozen of the most select hotels of the city. Of their record there was no doubt. Their photographs and finger prints at the prefecture on the Quai des Orfevres could not be gainsaid.

There was Dan Norton, the "Man with the Cauliflower Ear," known to crime hunters from Pekin to Parguay; O'Brien, whose specialty was "knocking down" American of Celtic ancestry; Jimmy Ford, a prison pall of "Bludger Bill' from Australia; Jack Donovan, from Russell Square and Soho; Hollway, an American who once was physical instructor at a Pacific Coast University—he has since been released on bail; Harry Evans, "a good mixer" in the bars frequented by American visitors in Paris, the wives of Evans and Donovan and half a dozen lesser lights in the "Come on Stock Company."

SUCKERS THEIR PREY

They had nothing new, these exploiters of gullibility. They merely proved that Barnum's dictum which probably hit the mark in the United States a generation ago still goes for Americans when they come to Europe. The Old "con game"; the "sure tip"; the gentleman who remembered that he has forgotten his pocketbook when the "sucker" is cashing a fat check; the man who has a friend in the telegraph office to tip him off before the result of the race is known there were the weapons used by the band. Everybody in the American and English colonies in Paris knew them on sight. They always looked prosperous. They lived at the best hotels and ate the best fare. They inspired "confidence."

Their methods are simple. They deal with simple folk. Therefore the traces of their crimes are hard to find. When the victim wakes up to find that his roll has disappeared, that the "sure winner" never ran, or that the man who was going to see the Pope about the charity bequest couldn't tell a church from a synagogue he usually goes home and says nothing about it to the neighbors. Therefore Warren and his gang were comparatively safe.

Enough evidence has been adduced to enable the Paris police to detain "Bludgeon Bill" (or Warren) and his company while the examining magistrate probes their histories. But there are few specific crimes which can be imputed to any of them. Practically all of the men and women arrested have criminal records, but the most that they can fear now is expulsion from France.

Warren declares he never heard of "Bludger Bill" until the police mentioned that sobriquet. The English police have proved that "Bludger Bill's" real name was William Warren and that his history coincides with that of the man detained here, but Warren calmly asserts that that is nothing but coincidence.

ENGLAND AND FRANCE

attitude, it is difficult to see how the British Government can recede with honor. But out tentative has been rejected with scorn.

THE FRENCH ATTITUDE.

How has France behaved to us, since the German memorandum was received? First, there were immediate suggestions from Paris that no answer should be dispatched by any of the Allies, as the German proposals were unworthy if consideration. We soon made clear, that this would not do. Therefore, the Conut de Saint Aulaire presented at the Foreign Office the conditions upon which France would graciously consent to consult with Britain about a subject that involves the prosperity, perhaps the very existence as an industrial nation, of Great Britain. As the first condition, we are told, we must argue our German friends into ceasing "passive resistance" in the Ruhr.

What constitutes "passive resistance" was clearly defined to make certain that the German capitulation would be as humilating and compete as possible.

The Count in his interview with Lord Curzon took care to scotch that scheme. No concessions, undertakings or agreements of any kind, he stated, will be entered into by France in consideration of German surrender. France in this way does he best, of set purpose, to prevent a reparation settlement.

If any doubt of this remains, consider the dumbfounding reparations demands put forward by the French Ambassador. France, he declared, will accept no reduction of her full claims against Germany under the 1921 agreement, even if England and America forgive every penny of the French debt to those countries.

REPARATIONS AN EXCUSE

Here we have the clock set back two years—a naked claim to the 6,600,000,000 pounds which every authority in the world knows Germany cannot pay. France proposes to stay in the Ruhr, and wants the reparations problem kept in being as an excuse. From that conclusion there is now no escape.

What are we to do now? France by her attitude ranks this country with Germany. Considering the magnitude of our interests involved, we are being subjected to such humiliation as Great Britain has never for centuries endured at the hands of any foreign power. Mr. Baldwin (the Premier) has only three courses open to him.

He can surrender to France; he can, like his predecessor, do nothing, and let things drift from bad to worse. We are confident that neither the path of surrender nor of negation will be chosen.

There remains only an active policy, fraught with difficulties, but worthy of the traditions of our people. When France sees we are in earnest the insane arrogance manifest in Paris may be abated.

If not, we must seek new friends, we must play our lone hand, in the knowledge that the sympathies of almost all the world are with us. We shall be fighting for sanity against ignorance and prejudice, for reason against passion, for fair play against injustice, for a world of peace and order, against a new and imminent holocaust, in which what is left of the civilization of Europe must be swallowed up.

HANDWRITING OF ABBE ANALYZED

Fifteen Individual Characteristics are Found by Expert.

Montreal, July 7.—"There are fifteen individual characteristics of the abbe's handwriting repeated in the small amount of writing on the box. If there were one, one would say it was a coincidence. If there were two, one might still say it was accidental, but when one finds so many of the distinctive personal writing habits in this document it is a certainty. It removes the matter from question and makes the identification sure."

Such was the concluding part of the testimony given at the trial of the Rev. J. Adelarde Delorme by Charles Hazen, vice-president of the Milton Hersey Company and an expert in handwriting. Mr. Hazen was called to the stand when the court resumed to continue his examination which had started Thursday afternoon. He showed the various characteristics of the writing on the box in which Raoul's watch was returned to the police to the judge and the jury and then finished his testimony with the quotation given above.

Alleyn Taschereau, K.C. counsel for the defense, objected to such a statement going on the record and at his request his answer was re-read to the jury. Finally the testimony was admitted when R. L. Calder, K.C., crown prosecutor, pointed out that Mr. Hazen was only expressing his own opinion as an expert.

NEW POLITICAL PARTY PLAN FAILS

Split-up Spells Doom of Third Party in U. S.

Chicago, July 7.—America's third political party split yesterday a few hours after it was organized.

Communism and Henry Ford were the issues on which organizers could not agree.

The "minorities coalition conference," sponsored by the Farmer-Labor party in an effort to amalgamate scattered political minorities into one strong unit, resolved itself into the "Federated Farmer-Labor" party at a hot session which started Thursday and lasted until early yesterday morning.

Conservative delegates objected to the communistic flavor of the new organization. C. E. Ruthenburg, and William Z. Foster, communists, led the Liberal majority that forced through the plan. Soviet Russia and communism were cheered during the debate.

The Conservatives and Liberals also split over mention of Henry Ford, as a capitalist.

ORANGE ORDERS ATTEND SERVICE

Rev. George Marshall at Emmanuel Church, Delivers Sermon

DISTRICT LODGES

Pastor's Sermon Touches Upon Theories Relative to Origin of Man.

The local Orange Orders, Number 274 and 2519, attended divine service at Emmanuel Church yesterday afternoon at 2.30 p.m. They were accompanied by the Royal Black Preceptors the Sons of England and True Blues, all of whom were attired in their regalia. Besides these were many members of various Oranges lodges throughout the district. The auditorium and gallery of the church were both well filled and it is said to be the largest turn-out in some years.

Rev. Geo. Marshall welcomed the Orangemen and the other fraternal societies on behalf of himself and the wardens and vestrymen. He said that he had not prepared a sermon along the lines of an Orange nature because he had many opportunities of placing those matters before them in their lodge rooms. He added that he intended to preach to them upon the fundamentals of their various organizations, in fact the foundation stones upon which they were built.

His text was taken from Psalms 100,3: "Know ye that the Lord, He is God. It is He that hath made us."

"This verse of the Psalms with many other passages of the inspired volume not only admit the possibility of man obtaining a knowledge of his maker and God but calls upon him to acquire such a knowledge," he said:

"This text indicates to men two great duties of supreme importance. Firstly, that of knowing God and secondly the duty of knowing himself and God. It in the privilege and duty of every man to know God and himself. God has placed within man an unerring light which if faithfully pursued will lead him into an acquaintance with his maker. The most illustrous personages that have ever lived have been believers in God and have recorded in history. Sacred and profane their faith in the doctrine of a great first cause."

"Many misguided men," he continued, "believe that God designed and constructed this world with such admirable skill and wisdom and has thrown it out of his hands as neglected work and now suffers the affairs of its inhabitants to proceed by chance. May the gracious spirit, the Divine Luminary of the soul take of the things of God and reveal them with us and to all the believers."

"That is as man's duty to know himself. Many theories have been introduced as to the origin of man, most of them humiliating and degrading and the only authentic account is continued in the Book of Genesis, God said, let us make man in our own image."

The testimony of God exhibits man in an originally exalted condition and traced him downward until Divine mercy intercepted and provided what was necessary for redemption.

"Let us not even the humblest amongst us be satisfied till he be assured that his whole being, Body and Soul, is functioning in complete harmony with the will and possibilities with which the Great Author of his existence has endowed him. You are members of societies whose most vital principles are the Fatherhood of God and Brotherhood of men."

Rev. Marshall's sermon was heard with rapt attention throughout. The choir rendered an anthem in a pleasing manner.

SEVERAL HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Link's Mills Girl Injured in Crash Near Deseronto

MRS. TICE HURT

Occupants Narrowly Escape Death When Cars Collide Near Cemetery

As a result of a Sunday evening motor car crash, one mile west of Deseronto, John Mac Henry was arrested, and Miss Laura Hagardorn of Link's Mills passenger in one of the motor cars is painfully injured. The accident occurred on the wooden bridge, this side of Deseronto at 8.45 p.m. yesterday.

Mac Henry, who was arrested, by Provincial Constable N. Maker, appeared in police court this morning at Deseronto before Magistrate H. R. Bedford, and was further remanded.

Mac Henry was driving a Ford touring car travelling east, and Kenneth Marrow of Napanee was travelling in the opposite direction, in charge of an Overland touring car, carrying three passengers besides himself. The two cars attempted to pass on the narrow bridge, and the smash-up was the result.

Both cars were badly damaged, the Ford being severely shaken up and the engine shifted out of position. The axle of the Overland was twisted and bent, the wind shield broken, and other lesser damages suffered.

Miss Hagardorn was the only passenger who was badly injured, the flying glass being the cause of most of her injuries. Her lips, one hand and one knee were lacerated and she suffered abrasions of one ankle.

Dr. C. T. Wallbridge of Deseronto attended the injured girl. With Marrow in the car, were James Fulen, Laura and Luva Hagardorn, sisters.

On Saturday afternoon about one o'clock an automobile accident occurred on the Provincial highway, adjacent to the Belleville cemetery which, fortunately, was not of a fatal nature, the occupants of one car escaping death miracuously.

Mrs. Geo. O. Tice of this city was severely bruised and others were slightly injured. It appears that Mr. Tice was driving westward, enroute to Cobourg to witness the ball game, when the accident took place. He was in a McLaughlin car and was accompanied by his wife, his son Claude, "Skit," Vandervoort and Mr. C. K. Kemp of Toronto, stock salesman for the Federal Financial Corporation.

The three latter were in the rear seat. Mrs. Tice being in the front seat with her husband. As they approached the cemetery a 6-cylinder McLaughlin car owned and driven by Mr. Clayton Stanberg was also proceeding westward driving rather leisurely. The latter car was somewhat in the centre of the road and Mr. Tice desirous of passing, sounded his horn two or three times. Just as a lane was reached west of the cemetery property, Mr. Stanberg turned off the high way to enter the lane debouching from the road to his cottage on the bay shore. Mr. Tice who was in close proximity to the other car, in order to avoid a collision steered off the highway and went over a four-foot culvert. The car missed a pole, but hurled against a tree and overturned. As quickly as possible the occupants of the car were released and it was ascertained that Mrs. Tice was more seriously injured than the others. The three occupants in the rear seat escaped injury. Mrs. Tice was severly bruised about the body but fortunately no bones were broken. Mr. Tice also sustained painful bruises. The latter's car was damaged to a considerable extent. All the parties with the exception of Mr. Claude Tice returned to the city and Mr. and Mrs Tice were given medical attention.

PORT HOPE CHILD STRUCK BY AUTO

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. McDowell Run Down in Street.

Jean, three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. McDowell of Port Hope, met with an unfortunate accident Friday afternoon. Playing at the corner of John and Walton streets, the little girl stepped in front of an automobile driven by Will Carruthers and before he could stop the car it had passed over the child. The little one was badly cut on the forehead and also had several severe bruises about the body. Jean is still in the hospital and according to the last report, was resting quite comfortably. Those who witnessed the accident state that the driver of the car was travelling very slowly and that he did everything possible to avert the trouble.

Paris, July 9.—It will be England's fault if there is a break with France, declared a Quai D'Orsay official, outlining today's situation.

Berlin, July 9.—An official statistical statement by the finance ministry, obtained exclusively by the United News, charges France with wasting reparations in gold, already paid, in building up a "military camp" behind which "French imperialism seeks" to hide evil annexation plans and attempts to create a situation, justifying her procedure.

THIEVES STRIP CAR WRECKED ON ROAD

Machine Owned by Geo. T. Woodley Plunges Into Ditch.

A broken fence rail, about five feet in length, and lying on the Madoc road, was disastrous for a Ford touring car last evening, when it threw the machine into a ditch, tearing off a front wheel. The car which is owned by Mr. George T. Woodley, furrier, of this city, was being driven towards Madoc by Rollie Woodley at the time of the accident. Although on the right side of the road travelling north, the car was thrown into the ditch at the left side of the road. No one was injured.

The car was left there over night, the accident occurring about 9.30 o'clock, and during the night thieves stole all four tires, coil, headlight bulbs, radiator cap and oil caps, besides a lady's woollen coat.

This morning Mr. Woodley notified the Provincial police and they are investigating the case today.

The accident occurred about one mile and a half north of this city.

PAVING BY-LAW TO BE CONSIDERED TONIGHT

The city fathers will meet in regular session this evening and the session promises to be an interesting one. No doubt the by-law to pave Station street will be brought up and discussed in committee.

At a regular meeting of the Council it was given its first reading by the necessary two-thirds majority, but at an adjourned meeting held a few evenings ago, the second and third reading was defeated as only eight members voted for it, whereas it required nine members to support it. At tonight's meeting it is expected that all members of the Council will be in attendance including Alderman Foster, who has returned to the city from Hamilton to attend the meeting and who, it is understood, is in favor of paving Station street.

Supporters of the by-law contend that, since the C.P.R. has been provided for in the way of an approach the Canadian National is deserving of the same treatment. They also assert that other sections of the city which have benefitted by paving projects should favor the proposal.

CADETS RETURN FROM TRAINING

Belleville Contingent Makes Excellent Showing at Barriefield Encampment

LAZIER GETS CUP

Wills Takes Second Prize—Battalion Wins Cup and Second Company Award

The Belleville Cadets after a weeks training at Barriefield Camp returned home on Saturday afternoon, the Belleville Cadets formed part of No. 3 Company of the 3rd. Battalion which was made up of the following:

Cadets from—Campbellford, Trenton, Picton, Stirling, Bowanville and Peterboro, the Company was placed under the command of Cadet-Major C. Tyres of Belleville with Cadet-Captain Summerville as second in command.

Cadet-Captain D. W. McManus was selected for the appointment of Adjutant of the 3rd Battalion.

The Belleville boys more than held their own in all the competitions which took place in camp.

Cadet-Sergeant Fred. Lazier won the silver cup in the Service Rifle & Judging Distance competition, while in the Service Rifle part of the competition he actually tied for first place with two Ottawa Cadets and was only beaten in the end by a few points which was a grand achievement in a competition where 700 Cadets from Eastern Ontario took part. Fred has a great future as a rifle shoot and should continue his practice.

Cadet Jack Wills won the second prize in the same competition of the same Company, while the Battalion to which the Belleville Cadets belonged won a Silver Cup presented by the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire, for the cleanest and most orderly lines in camp.

In the competition for the best all-round company in the battalion, after a weeks keen competition and under the able supervision of Cadet-Major C. Tyres assisted by Cadet-Capt. Summerville of Bowmanville and Cadet Officer F. Croft of Belleville the second prize was won by the company in which the boys from Belleville were incorporated.

Cadets John Wallbridge and Farley Faulkner entered the checker tournament which was keenly contested, after a well fought game Farley Faulkner lost to an Ottawa Cadet but John Wallbridge was more successful by defeating his opponent and thereby securing a prize.

The conduct of the boys was all that could be desired and the health excellent, good wholesome food was provided (in plenty), by the well known caterer Marshall Reid of Kingston.

The success of the company was due, in a great measure to the untiring energy of the Commander Cadet-Major C. Tyres, who was loyally supported by his Officers and Cadets.

Only 26 Cadets from Belleville were present at camp this year and with such a small showing the results speak well for the future of the Cadet Movement in our city.

It is the intention next year to endeavour to have Belleville represented at the camp (wherever it may be held) by whole Battalion.

On Friday a general inspection took place with the finals in the athletic competition completed. Prizes were then presented by the various donors and the "end of a perfect day" terminated with a grand Military Tattoo in which all the Cadets took part, there were 4 bugle bands and the brass band of the Kingston Regiment all carrying lighted torches.

Kingston to Observe 250th Anniversary

Kingston, July 9.—Kingston will celebrate its 250 anniversary on July 12, that being its natal day. By a curious co-incidence the anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne and the founding of Kingston fall upon the same day. Kingston was founded on July 12, 1673.

A monster parade will be a feature of the celebration. Speeches will be made by Dr. Edwards, General Ross and others. Refreshments will be supplied by the Ladies' Orange Lodge of Kingston. Arrangements have been made for the inspection by visitors of the Royal Military College, the Portsmouth Penitentiary and other buildings. The Kingston War Memorial will also be on exhibition. Invitations have been sent to Orangemen of all Eastern Ontario and Northern New York.

BANK OFFICIAL AT WHITBY ARRESTED

Fred Ward, Bank Teller, Charged With Embezzlement of $16,000.

Oshawa, July 9.—Fred Ward of Whitby, former teller of the Standard Bank of Canada here, has been placed under arrest upon information supplied by the bank officials, and charged with embezzlement of bank funds to the extent of $16,000.

He was released on bail amounting to $21,000. The case will come up for preliminary hearing in the local police court on Thursday of this week, it having been remanded until that date.

The information was laid by the manager of the local branch, representing the bank, although it is understood the bonding companies are pressing the case. Ward had been with the Standard Bank for many years before entering the service in Whitby.

SECRETARYSHIP GOES TO GOLDIE

Premier Will Retain Portfolio of Education in New Ministry

NEW MAN NAMED

West Hamilton Member Will be Minister Without Portfolio

Toronto, July 9.—The official announcement of the personnal of the Ferguson cabinet shows no changes in the list published Saturday, except for the addition of Mr. Lincoln Goldie as Provincial Secretary and Dr. Leeming Carr as minister without portfolio, and the announcement that Mr. Ferguson will retain the portfolio of Education.

Although no mention of the Hydro Board is made in the announcement, it is expected that Mr. J. R. Cooke of North Hastings is definitely slated for a place on the Board.

ATTORNEY-GENERAL

The record of William Folger Nickle leaves him eminently qualified to serve as Attorney-General, as, in addition to his early training in law, he has had a varied experience in Parliament. Mr. Nickle, who was born and educated at Kingston, was a director of a number of business organizations in that district before he took up active parliamentary work. He was called to the Bar in 1895, and became a K.C. in 1908. He was first elected to the Legislature for Kingston in 1908; and then in 1911, at the time of the reciprocity fight, he was returned as the Kingston member for the House of Commons. He was the Government Commissioner appointed in 1909 to investigate the milk supply; and he represented Ontario at the International Milk Conference. He resigned later from the House of Commons on principle, and returned to the Ontario Legislature where he put up a strong fight against the extravagances of the Drury Government.

PUBLIC WORKS-HIGHWAYS.

Hon. George S. Henry is not new to the political circles of Ontario, as he was Minister of Agriculture under the old Conservative Administration which went down to defeat in 1919. At that time Hon Mr. Henry was regarded as one of the strong members as he was one of the few members of the old Cabinet who survived the storm. During the past four years, on the Opposition benches, Hon. Mr. Henry has been a strong supporter of Hon. Mr. Ferguson, and now that he becomes Minister of Public Works and Highways, the public may rest assured that there will be much greater judgment displayed in the expenditure of public funds than has been shown during late years.

NOTABLES ADDRESS ROTARIANS IN CONVENTION AT ST. LOUIS

"Were Rotary established in every community, there would be universal tranquillity and unparalled progress." That was President Harding's idea of the powers of Rotary, as told to the Rotarians at the International Convention of Rotary held at St. Louis. Rotarian Jack McFee was Belleville's delegate to the convention and he addressed the Rotarians today at their luncheon, on his experiences at the big convention. President Harding is a Rotarian and jocularly stated that his classification was "greatest consumer of film."

Right Hon. Arthur Meighan was another interesting convention speaker there who made a powerful extemporaneous speech. Another speaker was Sherman Rogers, self-confessed ex-rough neck sailor, lumber jack and I.W.W., now engaged in literary work in New York City. "Radicalism," he stated is always due to wrong information, for there are three sides to every question—your side my side and the right side.

At the Cubs-Cardinals baseball game, Art Nehf, pitcher and a Rotarian was presented with an elaborate tablet by the delegates. It proved to be his jinx. He was driven to the showers in the third frame. Edward Guest, poet, also addressed the convention.

The convention opened with a gorgeous pageant in which Miss Columbia, the central figure, was surrounded by a bevy of beautiful girl dancers, supporting a garland of flowers. Boy Scouts, following carryed flags of the various countries, which they later planted in the floor.

The reception to the "Rotes" at St. Louis was a most enthusiastic one, not only from the Mayor but from the club, and the reception at Detroit was also a rousing one. The Rotarians were met at the train at Detroit, taken for a three-hour tour of the city, where hey visited the General Motors Ford plant and Bell Isle Park. St. Louis was described as being historic but hot.

Belleville's average monthly attendance for the year was 78.1 per cent, the Niagara Falls club leading with an average attendance of 95.47 per cent. Three Belleville's were represented at the International Convention.

A MESSAGE TO FATHERS.

The letter from a member of the Belleville contingent at the Moira Lake Community Camp, published in Saturday's issue of The Intelligencer, is crisply newsy, but it possesses a significance, which transcends its importance as a mere news medium. It is a message to the world in which boyish philosophy is frankly bared. The writer paints a vivid picture of the advent of the boys and the attendant interruptions of wild life routine. He is careful to mention the cook, an important adjunct to a boys' camp. No sleep the first night. Then the discomfort occasioned by the presence of mosquitoes—"But it's all in the game," says the writer. "On Tuesday the whole gang visited Madoc and 'painted the town red',"—a delightful revelation of the boyish sense of values.

The crowning event—the camp fire—Songs and weird stories "while the leaping flames painted the eager faces of the listeners". And hopes of treasure trove! Shades of Huck Finn! Huck, despite his vicarious fame, was nothing more or less than a typical boy. Remember this?

"The sun was up so high when I waked that I judged it was after eight o'clock. I laid there in the grass and the cool shade, thinking about things and feeling rested and rather comfortable and satisfied. I could see the sun out at one or two holes, but mostly it was big trees all about, and gloomy in there amongst them. There was freckled places on the ground where the light sifted down through the leaves, and the freckled places swapped about a little, showing there was a little breeze up there. A couple of squirrels set on a limb and jabbered at me very fiendly."

The writer of the letter is not a Penrod in years, but his pen was guided by the spirit of boydom and he has, subconsciously perhaps, written a sermon, which should appeal to every father, who has a "Huck Finn" or a "Penrod Schofield". For every boy is a Huck or a Penrod and, after all there is little difference in the make-up of these two youngsters of fiction.

A JANUS-LIKE POLICY

Warren G. Harding, President of the United States, in a recent public address, said:

By The Side Of The Road

The bridegroom in Alberta, who was pursued by bloodhounds when he left home two days after his marriage will never be able to get out at night. The bride has taken a determined stand at the outset.

* * *

* * *

Motorists had a good time on the paved thoroughfares Sunday. There were quite a number of accidents, but that is all a part of the game.

* * *

Some day insurance companies will compile actuaries on the motor menace to pedestrians and drivers as a basis on which to adjust premium rates.

* * *

Alderman Foster is "the man of the hour". His vote will assure passage of the Station Street paving by-law. The zero hour is approaching. What will Mr. Foster do?. We await the result of the balloting with baited breath, (whatever that means).

"It is not enough to seek assurance for ourselves. I believe in a God-given duty to give of our influence to establish the ways of peace throughout the world. We cannot guarantee, but we can promote the peaceful adjustment of disputes, we can aid in the establishment of the agencies of peace, we can be influential in committing the world to the triumphs of peace and make hateful to humankind the spoils of war. . . . This is a world relationship we cannot avoid and will not avoid in the spirit of the America of which we rejoice to boast."

About the same time, William Howard Taft, Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court, made the following pronouncement:

"I believe with unspeakable faith that science and peace will yet triumph over ignorance and war, and that the peoples of the world will seek knowledge not to destroy but to create. To accomplish this is, I think, America's interest in the affairs of Europe and the world."

These men are Republicans. One occupies the highest public office in that country and the other formerly was incumbent of that office. Hence their opinions may be considered to be in consonance with the views of the Republican party as a whole.

In the presidential campaign of 1920 and the congressional campaign of 1918 the Republican leaders viciously assailed the League of Nations proposal and sharply criticized former President Wilson's advocacy of the League plan. The Republican premise at that time was that the United States severed all ties with Europe in 1776 and was committed by principle and tradition to a policy of isolation insofar as Europe was concerned.

The Republican landslide in 1920 was largely due to this attitude on the part of the Republican party or, rather, the leaders of that party. Yet, shortly after his induction into office, President Harding began to gesture toward international associations, these gestures soon developing into illy-camouflaged endorsement of most of former President Wilson's pronouncements on foreign relations policies. Republican leaders quickly took the cue and, with the best grace possible under the circumstances, proceeded to reverse their positions. The disarmament conference was one of the highlights of the abruptly altered program.

But, during the past few months, whenever the question of actual participation in Old World councils has been projected, the party whips have precipitately retreated to their former position. Thus they endeavor to appear before the electorate as true to their pre-election doctrines and yet seek to occupy the only logical position on internation affairs in the eyes of the outside—endorsement of participation in world power councils.

Because of her position as a world power, the co-operation of the United States is desired in Europe. She should assume her responsibility and take her place at the council table.

Canada is a great democratic commonwealth. Her position is closely analogous to that of the United States. Yet her interests are irrevocably interwoven with those of Europe and she is the better for it. As long as the Republican party in the United States persists in its stupid and selfish course, the advancement of world welfare will be handicapped, and the United States will be directly affected. President Harding, Chief Justice Taft and other Republican leaders, who realize the unsoundness of their party's policy should preach to their party members the gospel of commonsense as applied to international affairs and rescue the party from an impossible position.

PRESS OPINIONS

SERVANTS OF PUBLIC

(Flint Journal)

Already there are rumors, if not signs, of the possibility of a coal strike. With the demand for coal beginning to increase in earnest by the middle of August, this is not very encouraging. In view of the situation the United States Coal Commission has been requested to expedite its report, including findings and recommendations, on the investigation of the mining industry.

Mine operators and workers are serving the public. They are producing a natural resource, which is a public necessity. The people and business absolutely need fuel. It is advisable that the operators and workers should realize fully that the government cannot allow them to take any action detrimental to public welfare.

The radical element in the miners' union is said to be stronger. The operators, it is intimated, are not altogether fair in fixing prices. In substance, the outlook begins to appear a trifle cloudy.

WATCH YOUR TREES

(Providence Journal)

The tent caterpillars have wrought havoc along the New England roadsides. They have spread their tents on every wild cherry tree and are a threat to the farmers' orchards. Some systematic attempt should be made to destroy them, either by cutting the infested branches or by burning the nests with kerosene torches.

Here is a good work for the Boy Scouts. The farmers themselves, moreover, might devote some portion of their energies to the task, though just now they are, of course, in the midst of other engrossing labors.

It seems to be a great caterpillar year. In Oregon the Southern Pacific Railroad is having a hard time with an army of the pests that has been seriously interfering with traffic on the Albany-Newport branch. The army is a mile long and has moved five miles in a few days, stripping trees and bushes in its progress. The railroad is using crude oil in combatting the worms, and everybody will hope that it will literally wipe them out before they get much farther in their ruinous advance.

ATIONAL GOODFELLOWSHIP.

(New Orleans Times-Picayune)

The world is better off because America and the British commonwealths are in good relations. It is far better off, because there is a United States of America, and because there are states such as England-Scotland-Wales, the Irish Free State, Canada, Australia, New Zealand, with which Americans can trade and visit in all amity. Those who would fawn on Britain are as contemptible as those who cringe for social favor or money or political aid.

But those who would needlessly and for petty ends, put our good relations in jeopardy, play with such fire as that which lights world wars and wrecks civilizations. For when America and the British commonwealths come to blows, the hope of western civilization and our modern white man institutions will flicker low in its socket.

POSTPONED COAL PARLER.

PATRICIA BRENT SPINSTER

ANONYMOUS

"I am perfectly willing to adopt you as a father, Mr. Triggs, if you are in want of adoption," said Patricia.

Mr. Triggs turned to her with a sunny smile.

"Ah! you're different, me dear. You see you're a lady born, same as Lady Tanagra; but 'Ettie ain't. That's what makes 'er sensitive like. It's a funny world," Mr. Triggs continued; "if you go about with one boot, and you 'appen to be a duke, people make a fuss of you because you're a character; but if you 'appen to be a builder and go about in the same way they call you mad."

That evening Patricia was particularly unresponsive of Mr. Bolton's attempts to engage her in conversation.

CHAPTER XVI

Patricia's Inconstancy

Patricia's engagement and approaching marriage were the sole topics of conversation at Galvin House, at meal-times in particular Bowen was discussed and admired from every angle and aspect. Questions rained upon Patricia. When was she likely to get married? Where was the wedding to take place? Would she go abroad for her honeymoon? Who was to provide the wedding-cake? Where did she propose to get her trousseau? Would the King and Queen be present at the wedding?

At first Patricia had endeavoured to answer coherently; but finding this useless, she soon drifted into the habit of replying at random, with the result that Galvin House received much curious information.

Miss Wangle's olive-branch was an announcement of how pleased the dear bishop would have been to marry Miss Brent and Lord Peter had he been alive.

Mr. Bolton joked as feebly as ever. Mr. Cordal masticated with his wonted vigour. Mr. Selton became absorbed in the prospect of the raising of the military age limit, and strove to hearten himself by constant references to the time when he would be in khaki. Miss Sikkum continued to surround herself with an atmosphere of romance, and invariably returned in the evening breathless from her chaste endeavours to escape from some "awful man" who had pursued her. The reek of cooking seemed to become more obvious and the dreariness of Sundays more pronounced. Sometimes Patricia thought of leaving Galvin House for a place where she would be less notorious; but something seemed to bind her to the old associations.

As she returned each evening, her eyes instinctively wandered towards the table and the letter-rack. If there were a parcel, her heart would bound suddenly, only to resume its normal pace when she discovered that it was for someone else.

Of Lady Tanagra she saw little, news of Bowen she received none. Her most dexterous endeavours to cross-examine Mr. Triggs ended in failure. He seemed to have lost all interest in Bowen. Lady Tanagra never even mentioned his name.

Whatever the shortcomings of Lady Tanagra and Mr. Triggs in this direction, however, they were more than compensated for by Mrs. Bonsor. Her effusive friendliness Patricia found overwhelming, and her insistent hospitality, which took the form of a flood of invitations to Patricia and Bowen to lunch, dine or to do anything they chose in her house or elsewhere was bewildering.

At last in self-defence Patricia had to tell Mrs. Bonsor that Bowen was too much occupied with his duties even to see her, but this seemed to increase rather than diminish Mrs. Bonsor's hospitable instincts, which included Lady Tanagra as well as her brother. Would not Miss Brent bring Lady Tanagra to tea or to luncheon one day. Perhaps they would take tea with Mrs. Bonsor at the Ritz one afternoon? Could they lunch at the Carlton? To all of these invitations Patricia replied with cold civility.

In her heart Mrs. Bonsor was raging against the "airs" of her husband's secretary; but she saw that Lady Tanagra and Lord Peter might be extremely useful to her and to her husband in his career. Consequently she did not by any overt sign show her pique.

One day when Patricia was taking down letters for Mr. Bonsor, Mr. Triggs burst into the library in a state of obvious excitement.

"Where's 'Ettie?" he demanded, after having saluted Patricia and Mr. Bonsor.

Mr. Bonsor looked at him reproachfully.

"'Ere, ring for 'Ettie, A. B., I've got something to show you all."

Mr. Bonsor pressed the bell. As he did so Mrs. Bonsor entered the room, having heard her father's voice.

THE MISTAKE THE ROMANS MADE.

The Roman soldier stood supreme in fighting power, so long as he lived on simple, natural foods. When he took to pampering his palate, he became as other men, full of ills and weaknesses. Then he failed.

Perhaps he was not to blame, for in those days strengthening foods meant unpalatable eating. But a delightful, vigor-building food has been prepared for us that is at the same time a treat to the palate in any of the many forms in which it may be served. Roman Meal is that food.

In hot weather Roman Meal is of distinct advantage. Most foods of civilized races, white flour, refined cereals, meats, and sweets, are "Excess Acid" and make the blood acid. Acid blood causes that hot, "all in" feeling so common on a hot day, to civilized men only. These sensations are unknown to simple races who live upon natural, non-acid foods.

Roman Meal is 400 parts in each 1,000 "Excess Alkali." It keeps the blood alkaline (opposite of acid) and thus keeps the body energized and vigorous on the hottest day.

Cold foods may seem cooling "going down" but, if refined, they will be "heating" in the blood. The acids in them make them so. The blood must be non-acid to be invigorating. Any hot Roman Meal preparation is more "cooling" than any cold, modern grain food but it can now be served icy-cold in three new ways, BROSE-O, CHOCOLO-O and JELL-E. Any one a palate delight and prepared in ten minutes. See summer recipes on package. At grocers.

Could Do Nothing But Suffer Says Mrs. Steep

Toronto Woman's Case Typical of Wonderful Help Offered by Dreco, the New Herbal Remedy.

Men and women who suffer from disorders caused by poor digestion can read with profit, the statement of Mrs. D. Steep of 371 Keele Street, Toronto.

"For two years I suffered intensely from stomach trouble. My stomach was in such shape that for months I lived on almost nothing but milk. Gas would bloat me up and I weighed about 50 pounds more than I should. I couldn't do my housework. In fact I could do nothing but suffer.

"I couldn't sleep or eat I often had terrible dizzy spells and my nerves were on edge all the time. Gas would press against my heart and it seemed that I would smother at times. My entire system was poisoned from this gastritis trouble. No medicine helped—only perhaps for a few hours and then I'd be back as bad as ever.

"Thanks to Dreco, I'm feeling like an entirely new person now. While I still have to be careful as to what I eat, I am able to eat food that gives me nourishment. I'm nearly back to normal weight, can do my work and never have that tired out feeling. I sleep fine and the world in general looks very much brighter. My entire system is greatly improved and I have Dreco to thank for it. It is wonderful how it goes to the bottom of your troubles and simply makes you feel like new."

Helping cases of this severe nature has won for Dreco its reputation as a corrective for indigestion, gastritis, acid risings, sourness, etc. Dreco contains no mercury, potash or habit forming drugs being a scientific blending of medicinal roots, herbs, leaves and bark. Why suffer from disorders when this reliable tonic is at your door?

Dreco is being specially introduced in Belleville by The Belleville Pharmacy, and is Sold by a Good Druggist everywhere.

Values are dependable here

Every article in the store from the lowest price to the highest, carries the greatest possible value at the smallest outay to the purchaser.

To our way of thinking that policy is the basis of a successful Jewelry Store.

No matter what you may want nor when, nor how little or much you pay for an article, it evidences high-grade material joined to skill in design and care in making.

And that is what we mean by dependabe values.

Henley on Thames, July 9.—M. K. Morris of Great Britain, won the Diamond Sculls here Saturday. Morris defeated D. H. L. Gollan in the final heat the trophy.

SEEK POSITIVE CURE FOR PLAGUE OF TUBERCULOSIS

Santa Baabara, Calif., July 7 (United Press).—At the opening of the nineteenth annual meeting of the National Tuberculosis Association today, Dr. Lawrason Brown, Saranac Lake, N.Y., president of the association, stated that one of the greatest needs of the tuberculosis campaign is more extensive research for the purpose of discovering a positive cure for tuberculosis. The long search and the scantiness of financial reward have discouraged many brilliant scientists from entering the tuberculosis field.

Dr. Brown declared that "a complete eradication of tuberculosis must follow along one of two lines. First by vaccination or by some other method which will prevent tuberculosis completely as smallpox is prevented today. If such a method fails, some method of treatment which is as successful as the administering of quinine in malaria must be discovered.

Another possibility is that pulmonary tuberculosis, like leprosy and typhus, will gradually recede until in countries with a high hygienic civilization it will be of slight importance."

At the present time public education in disease prevention, increased sanatorium facilities, and adequate after care in order to prevent a relapse, are the best available means of still further reducing the mortality and case rates, the speaker said.

"I am convinced," said Dr. Brown, "that in a few years we shall see established in America, in one of the large centres of population such as Chicago, Denver, Cleveland, New York, San Francisco, Los Angeles, a foundation that will do for tuberculosis what the Rockefeller Institute and other foundations are doing for general medicine."

"In our endeavor to find some therapeutic agent that will cure tuberculosis or tend to eliminate certain of its disagreeable symptoms, we are bidding fair to bury the patient under an avalanche of drugs and serums," Dr. LeRoy S. Peters, Medical Director of Saint Joseph Sanatorium, Albuquerque, N. Mex., told the physicians in attendance.

"I would like to show," said Dr. Peters, "the uselessness of drugs and the advisability of treating tuberculosis by the application of common sense. I shall not attempt to convince the profession that drugs have no place in the treatment of tuberculosis but I wish to argue for their saner application and use."

Dedication Services are Largely Attended

The dedication services of the United Christian Workers Gospel Tabernacle will not soon be forgotten by all present, especially in the evening, when a large congregation filled the Tabernacle and a day of great rejoicing and much spiritual blessing was enjoyed. Rev. A. Sims, Toronto, a well known bible teacher and evangelist, also Rev. W. S. Barker, of Stirling, both of whom have been in the ministry for over fifty years, gave stirring addresses both morning and evening.

The morning subject, taken from Acts 4:29-31, "A wonderful Prayer with a most remarkable Answer." Rev. Sims described the persecution of the apostles at that time, and pointed out their heroic faith in God and the marvelous way God delivered them. "Almighty God still lives today," declared the preacher. The subject of the evening sermon was, "How to have another Revival like the Pentecost." "Such a revival is coming as all over the land God is reviving his people," said Rev. Sims, who added that he believed and prayed that this same revival spirit would yet sweep Canada.

Rev. W. S. Barker gave the closing message of the day on "Have Faith in God." Mr. Harry Crissy of Kingston, a well known gospel singer, rendered a beautiful solo entitled "Open the Gates of the Temple."

TRUNKS TRIM COBOURG BY SCORE OF 7-1 IN INTERESTING GAME

Playing wonderful ball all the way the Grand Trunks defeated Cobourg on Saturday by a 7 to 1 score. The team played faultless ball and no team in the "Big Four" could have trimmed them on Saturday afternoon. They worked like the proverbial clock and gave Jahren a very rough passage and Turpin was forced to send in "Punch" Derry to stop the avalanche. The Trunks scored six runs during Jahren's regime but Derry proved much more effective and held the locals to one run during the remaining three innings.

Jack Williams hurled a nice game and held the homesters to seven scattered hits. He had six strike outs as did Derry and Jahren combined. The team played pretty ball behind him.

The crowd did not take kindly to Theroux's decisions and one of the spectators struck the arbiter. He was however, taken in hand by the police who will dispose of his case. Such rowdyism will not be tolerated in the Central League and the sooner the spectators learn this, the better.

Kingston play here on Wednesday and the Trunks go to Peterboro on Saturday.

Jake's boys walloped the Limestoners on Saturday to the tune of 10 to 0. Solmon's crew will have to travel at top speed to trim the Trunks if they continue to dish of Saturday's brand of ball.

SPORT IS BIGGEST U. S. BUSINESS

PAUL R. MALLON.

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, July 9.—(United Press).—An analysis of the gate receipts of football, baseball, tennis, racing and minor sport events show that they are outdrawing the United States Steel Corporation or the Standard Oil.

Harry F. Sinclair, oil magnate, went into horse racing for sport. But he has made more money out of it than he will get out of Teapot Dome—more money than anyone else during the season.

A tabulated result recently showed earnings of $194,000 for the Rancocas stable, of which he is owner. The amount is being swelled by new winnings every day.

Zev. the king of the 3-year-olds, contributed the largest amount, winning five first places—up to the time of this tabluation—for a total of $144,966. Grey Lag won four first places and one second for $36,000. Mad Hatter contributed $8,200, Little Chief $7,700 and Tester, Flying Cloud, Outline, Rigel, Whirlwind, Knobbie, Alladin, Bud Lerner and Sheriden turned in purses from $5,000 down to $1,500. Total $191,000.

Add to this the winnings of the other stable owners, the gate receipts at the various parks, the amount taken in at the hundred or more professional baseball games every afternoon of the season, the paid admissions at the Yale, Harvard, Princeton and other football games, the big fight crowds and the amount paid to witness other athletic events and you have a figure that reaches hundreds of millions for the year.

The prestige of American women in international tennis championships is rapidly being swamped.

Molla Mallory, the American champion, has bowed to the superiority of Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, French star, who specializes in poodle dogs and flashy photographic poses when she is not proving she is the best women's tennis player in the world.

Miss Mary Elizabeth Ryan, while proving herself among the best in Britain can no longer be considered an American, because her residence is established in London, even though she came originally from California.

The experts who are getting quite worried over the failure of American women to measure up to the international tennis standard believe too few women are playing in this country today. In England almost every woman, rich and poor, plays the game. More tournaments are held in England and on the continent, arousing greater interest.

Then, during the winter months, the best players find ideal indoor courts in London, something of which the United States cannot brag.

Because of all the rumpus over intentional bases on balls being issued every afternoon in both major leagues, the experts are seeking new remedies.

A suggestion has been made seriously by a competent American League pitcher that a rule be established whereby a penalty be enforced if a batsman is walked more than once in the same game. This pitcher says candidly there is no reason in the world why a batter should be walked more than once, unless the pitcher is attempting to pass him wilfully.

A new municipal golf course has been opened in Richmond Park, London, and the golfers there hailed it with delight.

The Prince of Wales himself opened the course by slicing the first ball from the tee into the crowd of four thousand persons watching him nervously.

The prince in his inaugural address said there would be many more courses opened soon.

There are lots of great open spaces in towns all over the United States which could easily be reconditioned and opened to public play for beneficial exercise and the development of the game.

PETERBORO TEAM BLANKS KINGSTON

Peterboro, July 8.—Kingston proved easy for the Peterboro Central League team on Saturday, going under by a score of 10 to 0. Gallagher did the gunning for the visitors, and was far from good. He was derricked after the sixth frame, when the Petes scored five runs on four hits. In the six innings that he worked he walked five and fanned five. Moore, who relieved Gallagher at the start of the seventh, did not do much better than his predecessor.

Heckman was the mound artist for the Petes. Though he allowed ten hits they were kept well scattered, and he was at his best in the pinches. On four occasions the visitors got men as far as third base, but the necessary punch to send the runner home was lacking. Heckman fanned five and walked one.

CLAIR ADAMS NOW AT REGENT IN ZANE GREY STORY

Zane Grey has never written a more powerful story of the west of today than "Wildfire". This has been made into a motion picture by the B. B. Hampton productions that promises to prove one of the most thrilling offerings of the year. Two big elements in the story are a horse race in which a girl rides the winner and her kidnapping by a half-wit and her rescue in an amazing manner. "When Romance Rides" is the screen title of Zane Grey's "Wildfire", which is the feature attraction at the Regent theatre tonight to Wednesday, matinee daily.

Clair Adams, who has the leading female role is well fitted for the part in which she rides the horse "Wildfire", to victory. Miss Adams was raised on an immense ranch just west of Winnipeg, Canada. In fact it was her remarkable proficiency as a rider that contributed greatly to the readiness with which she was welcomed to the screen. She has been largely identified with out-door productions.

A two-reel Universal drama, a funny Torchy comedy, and Fox News are being exhibited on the same program, and in this class belongs "When Romance Rides."

Packed with thrilling incidents from start to finish, the various roles portrayed by thorough artists in their line, "Dark Secrets," a Paramount picture starring Dorothy Dalton, will be the feature attraction de luxe at Griffin's theatre tonight to Wednesday. According to announcement by Manager Forhan, this photoplay is one of the strongest attractions booked by him in some time.

The story deals with the wilful daughter of wealthy parents who falls in love with a British army officer and who, through an accidental fall from a horse, becomes paralyzed and is thrown into the hands of an Egyptian physician who precipitates a struggle for her love and honor between the army officer and the doctor. The picture has an exotic background, the locale of the story being divided between Cairo, Egypt, rich in oriental color, and Long Island with its fashionable homes of the rich.

Robert Ellis was selected to play the role of Lord Wallington, the British officer, and Jose Ruben is seen as Dr. Mohamed Ali, a sinister Egyptian physician. Other well known players appearing in the photoplay are Ellen Cassidy and Pat Hartigan.

Larry Semon in a very funny comedy, a two-reel wild animal story, and Sport Review, are announced for exhibition on the same program with the above feature offering.

Kidney Sufferers

REGARDLESS OF SEX OR AGE

NOW is a good time to use ENURESOL TABLETS for your Kidney or Bladder trouble, for weak, lame back, for cystitis, nervousness, for days of pain and weary, sleepless nights, for headache, loss of appetite, for painful bladder ENURESOL TABLETS are man's greatest discovery.

GETTING UP time after time is one of the most annoying of kidney troubles, and one of the most dangerous, as many people bothered this way never seem to realize that this is only a warning of kidney trouble. The loss of sleep is another drain on the nervous system, and the chilling of the body from rising so often is another shock for the system, which is already overworked.

BED-WETTING takes about the same position in kidney troubles that backache, and other warnings do. It is simply a warning that kidneys or bladder are affected if only from nervous shock, but is doubly dangerous because the bed-wetting may stop for years, then come back as any of the troubles at first mentioned of which the cause is the same. ENURESOL TABLETS overcome this cause.

This theory has been proven correct by the uniformly good results obtained with ENURESOL TABLETS in young and old, as the following typical cases from our records show, names of which will be furnished upon request:

R. D., Minnesota: Girl, age 14 years, had always been a bed-wetter, although apparently well otherwise. Her parents tried many treatments, medical and mechanical, without benefits. Seven weeks after beginning to use ENURESOL TABLETS she stopped wetting the bed, but continued the treatment six weeks longer and she has had no return of the trouble.

R. G., Wayne, Michigan: Boy, 11 years. Three years ago his mother ordered four boxes of ENURESOL TABLETS and four months later reported the boy had not wet the bed for six weeks, and since reports the trouble has not returned.

Mrs. W., Milwaukee, Wis.: Age 44 years, has never had a full night's sleep, having to get up four to eight times a night. Visited Hot Springs, mud baths, sanitariums, and was operated on twice in two different hospitals without benefit. Six weeks of ENURESOL cured her completely, three years ago, and has had no return of the troublesome nuisance.

F. J., Minnesota, 75 years old, is no less interesting. For over 25 years F. J. suffered with incontinence of urine, day and night. As he grew older the trouble increased, having to pass water every half hour or oftener. Had a stroke of paralysis which increased the trouble to such an extent that only a few drops of bloody urine could be voided with intense pain, causing surgeons to suspect cancer of the bladder. Being placed on ENURESOL at the dose of two tablets every two hours with a glass of cool water or milk, the tenesmus disappeared in twelve hours and had a good restful sleep the next night, and fully recovered perfect health in the next three months. Mr. F. J. is now 85 years old and at last report was still alive and well.

It is important to regulate the diet, and overeating, coffee, and acid foods should be used sparingly.

ENURESOL TABLETS are absolutely safe and harmless, being a tonic for the kidneys, bladder and nervous system.

It is dependable for weak, nervous, restless, slow-growing, languid children. A fair trial of ENURESOL TABLETS will convince you of their value.

THINGS TO DO

THE BOYS AND GIRLS NEWSPAPER

LOADS OF FUN

A HELPLESS SISTER

"Girls are so helpless, you know,"
Said Bob, as they started to go;
"When trouble cuts loose,
They're of no earthly use,
For everything frightens them so."

• • •

"Girls are always so helpless," Bob complained, as he fished in his pocket for his knife. "They never can do anything for themselves. Well, where did I put that knife, anyway? Oh shoot; I must have left it in my every day clothes."

Alice looked her disgust as she set the little bottle of olives on the window sill of the fast-moving train. "You and your knife are a great help I must say," she remarked.

Bob and Alice were on their way to the Bartram summer camp. They had persuaded their parents to let them go on ahead, to open the cottage. Mr. and Mrs. Bartram were to come the following day in the machine.

"Well, I'm not going to do without olives for my lunch, anyway." Alice reached up and pulled a hairpin from her hair. Bobby hooted. "You don't think you can," he began, but in a second she had the cork pried out and was blissfully chewing away at an olive.

"There aren't any paper cups," Bob volunteered. "What are you going to do? A fellow can drink out of his hand, but girls—" Alice said nothing but calmly tore a page out of her magazine and folded it to make a cup. Bob complained that it tasted of printer's ink, but she noticed that he used it, just the same, in preference to his hand.

Bob and Alice climbed off at the little station and started for their cottage. They had decided to leave their heavy suitcase at the station for their mother and father to bring out in the car.

"Well, here we are, at last." Alice set down her bag and wiped her steaming face with a very dirty handkerchief, which she lent to Bob for the same purpose. He had left his on the train. "Where's the key?"

Bob dragged his bag on the step and looked blank. "It's in the other suitcase," he gasped; "I forgot all about it. What will you do? I'll have to go back after it. I suppose you're too tired to go along."

"No, wait a minute!" His "helpless" sister again fished around under her hat for a hairpin. "I've heard of people unlocking doors with hairpins." They soon had the door unlocked, entered the dark cottage and pulled up the shades.

Alice looked at Bob. "Do you still think girls are so helpless?" she asked.

"I'm sorry, Sis. I take it all back. If a burglar came, I'll bet you'd strangle him with a hairpin while I was looking for a gun."

Haw! Haw!

Two farmers met on a country road and pulled up their teams. "Si," said one, "I've got a mule with distemper. What did you give that one of yours when he had it?"

"Turpentine; giddap."

A week later they met again. "Say Si, I gave my mule turpentine and it killed him."

"Killed mine, too; giddap."

PETER PUZZLE SAYS—

"You can form a word square by rearranging the following groups of letters to form words and placing them in the right order: Elum, adol nupo, send."

Answer to today's word puzzle: The word square is mule, upon, load, ends.

SWALLOW 'EM WHOLE

"See the sword swallowers! Right this way!"

You watch the circus performers swallow knives and swords, and no wonder your eyes open. Here is a little sword swallowing trick of your own which will make your audience gasp, and, if worked cleverly, will deceive them.

Take the knife, a dull one, which you are going to "swallow", allow the audience to look at it, and when you get it back, take a position so the audience gets a view of you from the left side. Put the knife in your mouth once or twice, as though trying to test it out.

Now, tilt the head back, and grasp the hilt of the knife with the left hand and the blade with the right. Instead of really putting it into your mouth allow it to pass down by the side of your right cheek. If this trick is practiced it can be made to look quite realistic and will fool your audience. Never repeat it a second time.

"No," replied the floor walker. "If I did, I'd lose my job."

EDUCATIVE FILMS

(Cape Argus)

Too high praise cannot be given to those producers who, at great expense, have given the public representations of great historical episodes, and have thus made a living reality of scenes of bygone days. Such films are not only a recreation, but an education, provided there is not too great a departure from historical fact. There are such enormous possibilities of both innocent amusement and useful learning in the cinema that one cannot help regretting that more is not done to exploit them.

LIONS WITH A KICK

Green was always spinning yarns about his experiences in Africa and usually he wound up by saying he never yet saw a lion he feared. One night after he had finished yarning, he was taken aback by one of his audience who said:

"That's nothing. I have thrown myself down and actually slept among lions in their wild, natural state."

"I can't believe that," said the bold hunter.

"It's the truth, though."

"Can you prove it? Were they African?"

"Well ,not exactly African lions. They were dandelions."

"Money isn't everything in this world."

"Not when you have it, but when you're broke it's about all that will do you any good."

SAYS BELLEVILLE RIVALS SUNNY CALIFORNIA IN BEAUTY AND CHARM

Editor Intelligencer:

Many people ask me whether California is more lovely than Belleville. I do not know any portion of California more lovely during the summer time than the "City of the Bay." The wealth of flowers, the magnificent avenues of lordly elms, maples and other trees in full leafage cannot be approached in California, wherever I have travelled. California, however, exhibits her beauties during the entire year. The many parks afford shade, water sports, games of all kinds, museums, conservatories filled with all kinds of flowers and plants, menagerie, crocodile and ostrich exhibitions.

The mountain ranges, many of them snow-capped the entire year, outlined against the azure sky, are most attractive. The sea coast is about one hour by rail distant. Sundays are fairly well observed, so far as the stores are concerned; the churches well filled. Games of all kinds are permitted.

The cities along the coast are thronged by many thousands, who watch the great breakers tumbling upon the beach, and listen to the music of the Italian bands and enjoy bathing in the surf.

There is little difference between the winter and the summer; some cold days, also occasional fog in the mornings.

Avenues in California are frequently lined with eucalyptus, magnolia and pepper trees with scarlet berries. The eucalyptus was imported from Australia. When fully clothed with bark it begins to strip off the bark and continues to do so until trunk and limbs are entirely nude. At night these white gleaming trees in the moonlight afford a rather ghostly spectacle.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

LIKE A HOUSE—YOUR HEATING PLANT.

Every house has a heating plant of some kind. It may be a stove, a hot air furnace, a hot water furnace or even steam.

You know how the heating is done. The fire is built, air is allowed to get to it, and it burns away, the heat going directly to the rooms in the case of hot air, or by means of hot water carried to the radiators. The waste or burned out coal—ashes—is then taken away from the furnace.

Similarly in that body of yours, you take food into your system which burns in the air breathed in by the lungs, and the heat is thus created for the needs of the system.

Now what type of heating is your body system? You can guess all right because you know it is the hot liquid blood coursing through your blood vessels that carries heat to every part of the body. You see every bit of tissue right down to your toes has to be nourished and warmed, and it can only be done by the blood. It reaches every part—a perfect system.

Nothing invented by man gives the heat for the amount of fuel used that you get from your food.

Now if some parts of your body, your feet for instance are not as warm as they should be it is because the pump that sends the blood or heating fluid along is not as strong as it might be. That pump is your heart.

Thus if you are going to get a good fire in your house that will give you plenty of heat, you try to get good coal, and a good draught. Similarly with the heating of your body, you want good fuel—food—and a good draught—that is good air into the lungs.

That's why a man living outdoors even if he does little work, gets his food well burned up by the good supply of air.

I've talked so much about the dire effects of leaving "ashes"—waste matter in the body that I'll forego saying anything about it this time. So remember that you have a heating system unequalled for effeciency in that body of yours.

U. S. Sanitary Men Attend Conference

Toronto, July 9.—President Heeley, of the Chicago District Sanitary Committee, and several members of the committee, were in the city Saturday on route for Montreal, where they are holding a conference with the Dominion Marine Commission to discuss the construction of the proposed compensating dams in the Niagara River. This proposition has been under consideration for a number of years because of the lowering of the level of the Great Lakes due to the water which Chicago is talking out at the southern end of Lake Michigan for sanitary purposes. The committee held an informal discussion with Commissioners Lewis, Couzens, and Day, of the Toronto harbor commission this morning, pending their formal conference which will take place towards the end of this month.

ADVOCATE SANE "FOURTH"

Buenos Aires, (By mail to United Press).—Argentine is waking up to the necessity of a "sane Fourth of July"—on the 25th of May. Belated reports from the interior indicated that patriotic noise-lovers on the Argentine Independence Day, "25 de Mayo", spread death in their wake. At Mendoza a bomb exploded prematurely, killing three people and wounding a score.

U. S. CASH IN CANADA

Amazing Facts Given By Mrs. Ruth Thornton

"Since taking Tanlac I've regained the thirty-five pounds I lost while sick and five pounds besides," declared Mrs. Ruth Thornton, 717 Asumption St., Windsor, Ont.

"At the time I got Tanlac a case of the 'flu' had brought me down to where I was only a shadow of my former self, and so weak I could hardly walk across the floor. My stomach caused me more misery than words can tell. My nerves were so completely unstrung I just dreaded to go to bed, for I couldn't sleep. Even to sweep the floor was a burden to me.

"But Tanlac has made me so well and strong my housework is like play to me. My appetite is enormous, my food digests perfectly, and I sleep the whole night through and never hear a sound. My friends tell me I am the picture of good health. I never can praise Tanlac enough for the good it has done me."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

SECRETARYSHIP

ularly during the past two or three years, that it has been recognized for some time that he had earned a place in the new Administration in the event of a Conservative victory. Col Price has a long record at law, as Police Magistrate and in many other capacities, including the formation and leading of a battalion overseas during the Great War.

MINISTER OF MINES.

Perhaps one of the most popular appointments which Hon. Mr. Ferguson could have made in the selection of his new Cabinet was that of Mr. Charles McCrea of Sudbury as Minister of Mines. This announcement is far from new, as during the election campaign in Northern Ontario Hon. Mr. Ferguson made the public declaration that if he were returned with sufficient strength behind him to form a Government, the North would have as representative on the Cabinet a man of strength who sympathized with that portion of the province, who understood its needs, and who would have as his premier aim the development of the district north of the French River.

LABOR AND HEALTH.

Dr. Forbes Godfrey steps into the portfolio of Minister of Labor and Health with a wide parliamentary experience behind him, having been one of the staunch supporters of Hon. Mr. Ferguson during the fighting years in the Opposition. Dr. Godfrey was the natural choice for this post as he has become known in the Legislature for his interest in medical advance. He has presented a number of bills before the Legislature, some of which he championed from session to session even while on the Government side.

MINISTER OF AGRICULTURE.

In selecting Mr. John S. Martin, of South Norfolk, as his new Minister of Agriculture, Hon. Mr. Ferguson will have one of those young men who, though untried in parliamentary halls, has taken a prominent part in municipal and provincial life. Mr. Martin steps into his office as Hon. Mr. Henry stepped in several years ago, straight from the farm, with farming and business experience behind him, and will, no doubt, be able to guarantee a satisfactory administration to the farming element of Ontario. In his own line he had had outstanding success, so great as a poultry breeder in particular, that he is known all through the province as the "Wyandotte King."

PROVINCIAL SECRETARY.

In addition to recognizing the claims of the central portion of Western Ontario for a representative on the Cabinet by the appointment of Mr. Lincoln Goldie as Provincial Secretary, Hon. Mr. Ferguson has picked an eminently qualified business man who will beyond doubt, lend great stability to the administration of that portion of provincial affairs which come under his jurisdiction. One of the faults of the late Government was its inability to place on the Cabinet any outstanding man of business ability; but now, with the selection of Mr. Goldie of Guelph, whose success in his private enterprises has qualified him to handle public affairs, that gap has been filled in the new Administration.

LANDS AND FORESTS.

With the addition of a second Minister from the North in the person of Mr. James Lyons of Sault Ste. Marie, who probably becomes Minister of Lands and Forests, Hon. Mr. Ferguson has strengthened the position which that portion of the province will take in the general advancement of Ontario. The importance of the North in relation to the progress of the whole province has become generally recognized, and it is Mr. Ferguson's conviction that too much attention cannot be paid to the wonderful resources of that part of Ontario. In choosing Mr. Lyons to devote his interests to that work, Mr. Ferguson has a man with wide experience in municipal as well as in business lines. Mr. Lyons is still a young and energetic man, having been born at Virginia in 1878.

Mine Workers' Head Disapproves Strike

ABBE DISGUISED WRITING, CLAIM

Montreal, July 9.—A third handwriting expert, this time A. S. Osborne, of New York, was called by the crown in the Delorme trial. Mr. Osborne gave it as his opinion that the writing on the package which contained the watch missing from the body of Raoul Delorme, was disguised.

During the session there were several lively interludes between the lawyers in the case, and there was evidence of the irritability which the chief justice had hoped would not creep into the case.

"In what way do you, in your mind, distinguish between a writing which is written to disguise the handwriting of the author and handwriting which is written by one person to imitate the handwriting of another" he was asked on cross-examination. "I examined those three documents, not having formed an opinion that the address on the package was in a disguised handwriting. But when I found so many personal handwriting characteristics present in such a small quantity of handwriting as was on the package, and I found the same characteristics present in the admitted handwriting submitted to me, and found that the handwriting on the package had been written slowly and very methodically, and that it was not the natural handwriting quality which was shown on the other two documents; and, further, when I found that that handwriting on the package was at a different angle to the other writings, and was practically a vertical writing—which is a usual method of disguising writing—I then came to the conclusion that it was a disguised handwriting."

SABOTAGE MUST BE ENDED FIRST

Paris, July 9.—It is reported here that the French government has informed the British it would be willing to withdraw 70,000 troops of the present garrison—of 90,000 from the Ruhr if Germany ceases her passive resistence policy.

The French would not guarantee to hold the occupational forces at the reduced figure unless the resistance ceased.

While seriously considering the British threat of a separate understanding with Germany, French leaders declare that they are unable to see how the British can carry it out effectively.

If Britain makes a separate agreement with Germany she must first, they say, denounce the treaty of Versailles. As the German indebtedness devolves wholly upon this treaty, the British in denouncing it would virtually release Germany from responsibility for Great Britain's share of the debt.

It is considered that separate action hinted at by the British would tend to prolong these conditions of tension and uncertainty in Europe which underlie British persistence in Britain's most urgent economic problems. For all these reasons it is believed here that, while the situation is serious, no decisions inimical to France are imminent. Lloyd George made the same threat of reversing alliance at the Genoa conference, but the only concrete result of the threat was the Russo-German treaty.

HEAR, HEAR.

Greene—"Did you ever hear an after-dinner speech that was really worth while?"

Dean—"Only once. Last night I dined with an old acquaintance and he said: 'Waiter, bring me the check.'"

FOR BY-LAW

French, Thompson, Adams, Donohue, Patterson, Robinson, Gardiner, Treverton, Foster Greenleaf.

AGAINST BY-LAW

Bennet (Mayor), Lynch, McCreary.

The Station street paving deadlock was broken at the City Council meeting last night when the by-law, authorizing the paving of the thoroughfare passed its third reading by a vote of 10 to 3.

The by-law, which definitely ended a controversy which has been agitating the Council and the citizens generally for several months, was adopted after a lengthy and somewhat heated discussion. Mayor Bennett and Aldermen McCreary and Lynch constituted the forces arrayed against the proposition, the former two leading in debate. Those supporting the by-law were Aldermen French, Thompson, Adams, Donohue, Robinson, Greenleaf, Treverton, Gardiner, Foster and Patterson.

After the usual routine business had been transacted, on motion, the Council went into committee of the whole on the consideration of by-laws. The by-law, relative to paving Station street, was the only one for consideration. It called for an asphaltic concrete pavement from the upper bridge to the west side of Bettes street.

Ald. Robinson said some time ago he was opposed to paving Station street, as proposed. He was in favor of a cheaper pavement being laid on that street at the time. The Ontario Municipal Board had designated the amount that the ratepayers on the street had to pay, also the taxpayers generally would have to pay. He felt it was his duty to support the paving of that street and especially as it meant a saving of $1,700 for the paving of that street and especially as cheaper amount being made possible by the laying of the two pavements as one undertaking.

Mayor Bennet said he had listened to Ald. Robinson's remarks with attention. He asserted Ald. Robinson was supporting the Station street pavement because it was helping Highland avenue, which would benefit Alderman Robinson to some extent.

Ald. Robinson: I did support the scheme to put down a waterbound macadam pavement on Highland avenue. My course has been systematic and true in every particular.

Mayor Bennett: Ald. Robinson is looking out for himself in this matter.

His Worship referred to the material on Station street at present. He said there was considerable macadam there, also rock. It could be made a good road at much less expense than the proposed pavement.

WANTS IT REFERRED.

Ald. McCreary moved that the matter be referred back to the committee for further consideration. He (the speaker) had changed his attitude in regard to Station street pavement since the mayor and the city engineer had returned from the good roads convention at Hamilton and had given valuable information relative to street paving. If a roadway was built on Station street the same as on Moira street east it would be a good road and cost much less. The gross debenture of this city is not to be sneered at. It will be a serious hardship on some ratepayers if the street is paved. There are other large expenditure looming up. Make a good road, at a much less cost.

Ald. Lynch seconded the motion to refer the matter back.

Ald. Robinson: We have fooled with this matter long enough. Let it be settled tonight.

Ald. Donohue: There are in some places on Station street six or seven feet of soil. It is not all rock. It is a conglomeration of rocks and clay. It is not a broken up macadam road. How could a macadam top be put on that would wear. Is it worth while to keep on patching? The majority of the citizens are in favor of putting down a permanent pavement on that street. The G.T.R. is a great asset to this city and that corporation wants it and why not put it down. Some years ago people were against sewers and granolithic walks but today they cannot be built fast enough. Anything that benefits the city benefits the people and the ratepayers in general. Build what the people want.

Ald. McCreary: He was as much interested as any person in the old G.T.R., now the Canadian National Railway, and he was also interested in having Station street made a good road. A saving of many thousand dollars a year can be effected if a cheaper road is made. This is worthy of consideration.

Mayor Bennett: Where has the macadam gone from Station street which has been put on for many years? He (the speaker) was a friend of the G.T.R. and he desired to give a good road, but not an expensive pavement. He would oppose the pavement proposed because it would be a hardship on the poor people of that street and a burden to other ratepayers of the city.

Ald. Adams: There are only three ratepayers on that street who do not want the pavement.

Upon a vote being taken, three voted to refer the by-law back for further consideration, namely, Mayor Bennett, Aldermen McCreary and Lynch.

Mayor Bennett wanted to know the Minutes of last meeting and special meeting were read and confirmed.

Reports of committees, communications, etc., were laid on the table and Council went into Committee of the whole on reports, etc., Ald. Greenleaf in the chair.

MAJ.-GENERAL SIR A. C. MACDONELL DISCUSSES IDEALS IN SPORT LIFE

College Head Urges Straightforwardness and Fairplay in Sports

Belleville Kiwanians were honored today at their luncheon by the presence of Maj.-Gen. Sir A. C. Macdonell, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., commandant of the Royal Military College of Canada at Kingston. Major-General Macdonell was the speaker of the day, and his subject was "Ideals in Sport".

Sir A. C. Macdonell is a Kiwanian, and has been an athlete and soldier all his life. He believes that the greatest accomplishment of any boy is the realization of constituted authority, and the decided advantages of civility over servility, where straightness and fairness have been woven into the very fabric of his being. When a boy appreciates these qualities, he is then able to go on the play field and treat his opponents fairly, though his blood may be up, he said.

"These accomplishments cannot be realized by allowing boys to run without teaching," explained the speaker. "He must be taught or else he will be later found guilty of some blackguard trick."

To explain the point, the speaker spoke of the dear old British Empire prior to the great world war, as being tired of militarism and adopting the attitude "to-morrow will do". The British finally blundered into a war, which called their troops to three countries and six fronts, and all because their name was signed at the bottom of a document. There was British sportsmanship, for though the U.S.A. had her name at the bottom of the document also, she did not come in for three years. The British idea is to hit hard and often, but always above the belt, and retain no hard feeling afterwards.

"A true sport", continued the General, "will not let his side down in the heat of a strenuous game, and in so doing learns the fortitude which soldiers learn". This was what caused Wellington to say that Waterloo was won on the campus at Eton. In this way, too, the real sport and real soldier, exhibits real discipline and does just as effective work when the leader is not in sight. To such an extent have sports been recognized as a necessary adjunct to military training that since the great war sports are obligatory at West Point.

"Umpires in games to-day should watch carefully for fouls, whether they be unintentional or deliberate, and in the case of deliberate fouls the man guilty of the foul should be banished for the remainder of the game, as in polo.

As to the whispering agitator, usually a sport fan who cannot play himself who misinforms players by telling them that an opponent is going to "get" him, the heavy boot for him.

By the way in the R.M.C. fouls are watched for with eagerness and with them go the strictest penalties, together with a loss of points and the invariable ragging of the fellow members of the company in which the offender is stationed.

The speaker was introduced by Major "Dick" Ponton, who described him as being the best loved officer in the Canadian army, as commander of the First Canadian "red patch" Division in France.

All Kiwanians were called upon to "sing" out their names and classifications to-day, two or three of which were fictitious. Kiwanian J. J. B. Flint gave his classification as "tramp" and Bob Gorman's was "dirt".

Guests to-day were George Niblock of Los Angeles, old Belleville boy on a visit to his mother here. George left Belleville 37 years ago, but still has the warm spot in his heart. Reg. Hinchey, Earl Graham and Major D. T. McManus, all of this city, were also guests.

Harold Holton had his Bridge Street Orchestra at the luncheon to-day, and they made things "hum" all the time. Sing songs were strong to-day. Friday evening at 7-30 p.m., the Kiwanians are putting on a sing song at the St. Agnes school grounds. It will be some garden party.

DIES ENROUTE TO HOSPITAL HERE

Henry O'Hara, 78, Fatally Injured When Team Bolts in Hayfield

THROWN FROM LOAD

Death Occurs as Train, Bearing Victim Reaches Corbyville—No Inquest

Henry O'Hara, aged 78, a farmer residing near Madoc, died on a Grand Trunk train, enroute from Madoc to Belleville yesterday afternoon as a result of injuries sustained yesterday morning while working in a hay field on his farm. He was being rushed to the General Hospital here on the train which arrives at 4.25 p.m., and expired while the train was stopped at Corbyville.

The Police Department here received a telephone call from Dr. Locke of Tweed, who is deputizing for Dr. Eagleson of Madoc, asking that the Police ambulance be sent to the train. The ambulance was awaiting when the train pulled into the depot here, but Dr. Locke, who accompanied the man on the journey, reported that O'Hara had expired.

On learning that the injured man had passed away, the police officers notified Coroner Dr. W. W. Boyce, who drove to the depot, and learned the details of the accident. It was deemed unnecessary to hold an inquest as death was purely accidental. Dr. Locke was given permission by Coroner Boyce to take the body back to Madoc, where preparations for burial will be made. The body was taken back on the same train, leaving here at 5.40 p.m.

O'Hara was drawing hay, and was building the loads. At 10.30 a.m. when the load was about half on, the horses, a spirited team, became frightened and bolted. After a mad race across the hay field, they upset the load and O'Hara was forcibly thrown to the ground. One hip was fractured, and he suffered painful scalp wounds as a result of the fall. Dr. Locke was hurriedly summoned, and on arrival rendered first aid, and did everything possible for the man, prior to removing him to the train, enroute to the Hospital here.

Hugo Stinnes Becomes Giant of International Finance

His Ruhr Holdings Comprise Small Part of the Interests —Branches Into Other Fields

Editor's Note.—The richest man in any country has an interest of his own. The richest man in Germany is especially interesting at this time when the finances of Germany are under fire. There is, therefore, a good deal to say about Hugo Stinnes and his policies and personality. Gus M. Oehm, one of the United Press staff men in Berlin, has contributed a series of two stories regarding Stinnes, which are released consecutively and which we regard as very timely.—The United Press, New York.

CHAPTER I.

Berlin, July 10.—Such an economic disturbance as naturally resulted from the occupation of the Ruhr by the French meant little or nothing in the sum total of Hugo Stinnes' activities.

Hugo Stinnes—no longer merely a German industrialist but an international business giant, the network of whose interests stretch around the world—merely turns the business lost in the Ruhr into his other holdings and quietly but regularly collects his dividends just the same.

Hugo Stinnes owns at least seventy big foreign enterprises, has heavy interests in at least seventy more and through them and other agencies has indirect interests in many more, not only in Europe, but in America and the Orient as well. In London, Zurich, Madrid, Vienna, Christiania, Cape Town, Johannesburg, Bucharest, Stockholm, Valparaiso, in Japan and the United States, Stinnes' money is invested and Stinnes' influence is felt. The Ruhr is but a tiny bit of what Stinnes has to worry about—if he ever worries.

When his Ruhr holdings were made impotent by the French occupation, Stinnes' concerns in other sections of Germany, in Austria and elsewhere—holdings which up to that time had been doing only normally well—branched out into honest-to-goodness concerns, increasing their output, taking on new employes and adding materially to the profits which go into the pocket of Hugo Stinnes.

UNWORRIED BY BLOCKADE

And this internationalization of Stinnes' money made it possible for him to continue practically untouched by the French blockade of his Ruhr properties. For instance, the Austrian Alpine Mining and Smelting Company, owned and operated by Stinnes, took a new lease on life when the Ruhr competition was nullified by the French. Instead of operating only nine or ten Martin ovens as last year, the concern today operates sixteen. The number of workers, last year greatly reduced, today totals 16,400, which compares favorably with pre-war days. And the business of these concerns for the first four months of 1923 totals 783,000 English pounds, 100,000 pounds—or nearly half a million dollars—more than during the same period of 1922. And the bitterest part of it, from the German point of view, is that the Austrian mine holdings of Stinnes are connected through other connections with the Schneider Crenzots, known as the "French Krupps."

"Every disturbance automatically balances in one section the damage which it does him in another," one expert declares, pointing out the danger to Germany and to the world of such a situation.

BUSINESS AND POLITICS.

"This situation would be less dangerous if it were merely a business man who did not seek to influence political affairs," he writes. "The leader of the Stinnes bloc, however, is in fact a political component whose power can scarcely be over-estimated. It is a fact that it is pure fiction to regard Stinnes merely as a German industrialist. He is international and as such is outside the realms of German financial restrictions and regulations.

This writer points out the inability of any German laws or rules connected with the stabilization of the mark in any way to effect such an international financial power as Stinnes, whose money is in all parts of the world—in all shapes and forms.

And Hugo Stinnes apparently is only beginning his world-wide activities. Since the war he has stretched his holdings everywhere. No branch of industry is without his influence. Electric enterprises, shipping, mining transportation by land, river and sea newspapers, news agencies, hotels, oil concerns—in fact practically all lines of human endeavor have Stinnes money and Stinnes connections mixed up in them somewhere.

One can mention only a few Stinnes enterprises. Trifle interests like hotels, newspapers, banks, press agencies, etc., may be merely mentioned without going into details. Their number are really unknown. But bigger interests—international in their aspect and operation—in which Stinnes is alleged to have an interest, include:

WORLD-WIDE INTEREST.

Valparaiso, Chile, tramway.

Electric works in Spain and South America.

Electric appliance works throughout the world.

Alpine Mine and Smelting Works in Austria.

Import company in Vienna.

Business branches, including Liptak and Co., in Budapest and Ferro A.-G. in Bucarest, and Feter & Co at Sofia.

Hugo Stinnes, Rotterdam.

Piebl & Fehling in Copenhagen and Helsingfors.

Hugo Stinnes, at Christiania.

Oeresundwerft, at Landskrona.

Julius Schoch and other at Zurich.

Promontana, at Zug, with half a million Swiss francs capital working in connection with the Alpine concerns of Austria, with Castiglioni and with the Italian Fiat works.

Greinitz A.-G., at Trieste.

Hugo Stinnes trade bureau for import, in New York.

Farming enterprises and oil fields in Argentina.

Polish Upper Silesian works, Bismarck mines and Kattowitz mines, newly acquired and operated by Stinnes. This is tied up with the Vienna Anglo-Bank which is largely under British control.

RANKS WITH BEST

A screen production ranking with the best can fairly be said of Dorothy Dalton's new Paramount picture "Dark Secrets", now at Griffin's theatre. Miss Dalton is superb in the stellar role and she is finely supported by Robert Ellis as Lord Wallington her fiance. Ruth Rutherford (Miss Dalton) unwillingly becomes involved in an affair with an Egyptian physician, Mohamed Ali (Jose Ruben) who by his wonderful healing power, has miraculously cured her of a spinal injury resulting from a fall from horse.

The untanglement of the affair and the reuniting of Ruth and Lord Wallington is the main theme of the production. How this is accomplished constitutes a thrilling story. The work of Jose Ruben as the exacting Egyptian doctor is especially commendable. "Dark Secrets" may well be classed as the screen success of the month, and it will be on view until Wednesday.

CLAIR ADAMS IN ZANE GREY RACING DRAMA AT REGENT THEATRE

A racing picture that should appeal to every person who likes horses and rapid action melodrama is now being exhibited at the Regent theatre. It is called "When Romance Rides" and is a Goldwyn picture founded upon Zane Grey's most widely read novel, "Wildfire." Thickly studded with thrills this excellently acted photoplay which boasts a cast including Clair Adams, Carl Gantvoort, Jean Herscholt, Charles Arling, Harry L VanMeter, Frank Hayes and Tod Sloan, the famous jockey, and two of the most wonderful horses which have ever appeared on the screen.

The horse race at the rodeo when Clair Adams rides Wildfire in the free-for-all to beat the villain at his own game, is almost as good and as thrilling as the real thing. But the race fades in power before the big climax in which the kidnapped Lucy is tied to the back of a horse by a half-witted man and would have been killed in a plunge over the precipice had not Carl Gantvoort rescued her in the nick of time.

"Torchy's Ghost," a very funny Torchy comedy, "Unmasked," a thrilling Art Accord Western story, and Fox News are also being exhibited on the same program.

HARVESTING ALFALFA HAY

(Experimental Farms Note)

The number of farmers in Canada who are growing alfalfa is gradually increasing as its value as a hay crop becomes more generally recognized. At this time of year the best method of making it into first quality hay are of prime importance to the alfalfa growers.

The first point to be considered is time of cutting. The methods or time vary widely with different growers and each method has something to recommend it. Most growers gauge the proper time to cut by the stage of blossoming of the alfalfa plants and, while this may be an indication the really proper indicator is the commencement of growth of the young shoots from the crown which will furnish the second or third growth as the case may be.

If the alfalfa is cut before these small shoots start at all the second growth will be slow in starting and will, as a result, take considerably longer to make a second cut than when the first crop is cut just as these new shoots appear in the crowns. If, on the other hand, these shoots have started and made sufficient growth to be cut off by the mower, the second cut will be even more delayed. The proper time to cut, therefore, is just when the shoots of new growth are first noticeable at the crowns.

The length of time the hay should be left in the swath will depend both on the heaviness of the crop and the weather at cutting time. Care should be taken, however, to rake the hay into windrows while it is still a little tough, so that the largest possible percentage of the leaves will remain on the plants, as these are by far the most nutritious part of the hay. After curing slightly more in the windrows the hay should be put up in coils that are small in diameter in proportion to their height. This permits the hay to cure much more quickly than if put up in large bulky coils, as the air can get through them better and there will be less danger of moulding.

Occasionally it will be possible to haul the hay direct from the windrow to the barn or stack, or, in stacking in very dry climates, direct from the swath to small stacks; but over a large portion of the country sufficient improvement in quality will be obtained by coiling to justify the expense.

Sufficient time should elapse in the coil to allow the hay to cure thoroughly, particularly if a large quantity is to be put into one mow in the barn. Otherwise, there is serious danger of the hay heating considerably in the mow and damaging the feeding value of it, as this heating almost invariably results in a dusty, rather unpalatable hay which is injurious to stock, particularly horses.

Embarrassing Hairs Can Be Quickly Removed

Hairs can be easily banished from the under-arms, neck and face by this quick, painless method: Mix into a stiff paste some powdered delatone and water, spread on hairy surface and in 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and it will be free from hair or blemish. Except in very stubborn growths, one application is sufficient. To avoid disappointment, buy the delatone in an original package and mix fresh.

ISLANDERS FACE RUIN

THEY HAVE HAD NO RAIN FOR THREE YEARS.

Predicament of Small Section of West Indies Purchased From Denmark by United States—Chief Industry Was Ruined as Result of the Volstead Act.

"Rum and rain" instead of "rum and ruin" is the battle cry of the inhabitants of the Virgin Islands, a West Indian group that the United States purchased from Denmark when the German Government seemed about to make it a pivot for depredations in the western hemisphere. There are no unhappier Americans anywhere than the 25,000 inhabitants of the Virgins. They have had no rain for three years and the Volstead Act has destroyed one of their chief industries. A writer in the New York Herald who visited them recently says that the population is decreasing from year to year, and that those who remain would also desert if they had the money or the initiative to do so. With the best will in the world the American Government cannot supply the islanders with the rainfall necessary for their crops and it is not likely to permit a relaxation of the Volstead Act in order that the islands may again become a popular port of call for vessels, and the old bay rum industry be revived.

The United States Government paid Denmark $25,000,000 for these islands, perhaps the largest sum ever involved in a single deal. Denmark needed the money and the inhabitants no doubt thought that they would be as well or better off as part of the United States, but they reckoned without Andrew Volstead. St. Thomas, one of the islands, has no agriculture, nothing but a beautiful harbor. Once upon a time it was a port of consequence, but now its glory has departed. It is 1,400 miles from New York, 1,000 miles from Panama and 3,500 miles from Liverpool. It had no coal itself but imported great quantities and ships used to call there to the number of ninety every month for bunkering. Now the increase of oil burning vessels has interferred with this trade, and other vessels whose passengers or crew desire liquid refreshment go to other ports not so beautiful but equally convenient. The result is that about twenty-five ships a month stop to take on coal and at the earliest possible moment the engineer gets the signal for full speed hence. Yet on this island 11,000 people made a living, since it was the distributing point for rum in the Caribbean. In a petition to President Harding it was said that the application of the Volstead Act to St. Thomas was equivalent to the establishment of a cruel blockade which must inevitably bring about the extermination of the people.

The Island of St. Croix which used to be the garden of the Windward Islands has had no rain to speak of for three years. The result is that the production of sugar cane for which it was famous has dwindled until it now averages about ten and a half tons to the acre. This same drought has had even more serious consequences on the island of St. Thomas where the people, with their other troubles, are hard put to secure the necessary drinking and cooking water. St. Croix is well adapted by nature for the production of cane and long, staple cotton, and the lack of water might result in the extinction of these industries. If they were destroyed there would be no alternative but to move the inhabitants somewhere else, and then treat the islands as Heligoland is being treated. Of course rain will come sooner or later, but if such a crisis as the present is not to recur large sums of money will have to be spent on the islands by the United States Government.

Secretary Denby visited the islands not long ago and everywhere met the same tale of impending desolation. He said that the Government would take up immediately the question of ensuring the Virgin Islanders a water supply. Engineers will be sent to make experiments with artesian wells. Those heretofore sunk have yielded a quantity of brackish water unfit for human consumption but which the cattle will drink. He will also recommend to Congress that funds be voted for the establishment of dams and reservoirs which will store up the rainfall. Now when rain falls it is usually in tropical violence, and is drained off into the sea before it sinks into the soil. This, of course, is a condition that has always prevailed, but the despondent Virgin islanders are showing a tendency to blame Mr. Volstead for it. Formerly they had rum and rain. Now they have neither. But rain without the rum would do little for St. Thomas though it would profit St. John.

The United States has already sunk $25,000,000 in these islands, and while the investment seemed in the nature of a wise precaution at the time, it now takes on the glittering hue of a gold brick. More expenditure looms in the immediate future. Therefore some members of Congress are in favor of approaching Denmark with a view of disposing of the islands to her. As matters now stand, the islands are worth a good deal more to Denmark than to the United States, and she might easily make an advantageous deal with Uncle Sam. The islanders would welcome this transfer. Others think that the wisest course to pursue would be for the United States to grant independence to the islands with the proviso that it would have the right to go in again if the islanders failed to manage their own affairs. The islanders would probably welcome this proposal also, if they could be assured of a sufficient loan to thoroughly establish themselves. The general view, however, is that Uncle Sam should not abandon his expensive war baby, but that he might relax some of the Volstead restrictions in order to permit the revival of an industry by means of which the islands flourished.

One way to make summer weather enjoyable is to fill the winter coal bin early.

Values are dependable here

Every article in the store from the lowest price to the highest, carries the greatest possible value at the smallest outay to the purchaser.

To our way of thinking that policy is the basis of a successful Jewelry Store.

No matter what you may want nor when, nor how little or much you pay for an article, it evidences high-grade material joined to skill in design and care in making.

And that is what we mean by dependabe values.

ANGUS McFEE'S

Some Turkish Proverbs.

The eastern languages are noted for the subtlety of their metaphors and expressions, which add to their charm and interest, but almost defy translation. In the Contemporary Review, however, Zabelle C. Boyagian has succeeded in conveying some of the meanings to English readers:

"The equivalent of the proverb 'To kill two birds with one stone' is a thought or two stronger in the eastern language. The Turks talk of 'cleaning the candlestick to butter the rice.' Not only is the same action made to serve two different purposes, but a sermon is also preached on economy, with a reflection on its frequently unpalatable consequences.

"A touch of irony is to be found in many eastern proverbs. The Englishman says with pride that 'every Englishman's house is his castle,' but the Turk prefers the other variant, 'every cock crows on his own dung-hill'—a variant which is also prevalent in some parts of England. The Turks have been shrewd enough to discover also that 'the fish begins to stink at the head'—doubtless through their own particular experiences of national and political life.

"'If the thief is strong enough he will arrest the householder'; that is, a clever enough culprit can justify himself by incriminating the innocent. And 'he of the mountain comes and drives off him of the vineyard'—another proverb which is much more effective in the original on account of its consciseness and rhymes."

When Money King Loses Out.

When Rufus Kayne has come his cropper in frenzied finance, in Arthur Train's novel, "His Children's Children," he unburdens himself to young Maitland:

"'And the queerest part of all is that since that time, ever since I've been down and out, I've had a sense of being in luck—of relief—silver-lining-to-the-cloud sort of business.'

"Maitland had lit his pipe again and was leaning back against the wall.

"'If you really feel that way,' he said, 'there must be a reason for it.'

"'Of course there's a reason!' answered his client eagerly. 'If you knew the whole story you'd understand it—just as I do. We're all of us walking the tight rope—every man jack of us. The ones who have learned to keep their balance go right along, as a matter of course—no danger atall! The others fall off. Well, I didn't have the balance. Over I went!'"

Of course the case of Kayne in fiction points a moral in fact.

But it's the kind that no climber will heed and every man on top regards with contempt.

Ancient Walls of Tiberias.

Part of an ancient wall and columns belonging to the ancient city of Tiberias, on the Sea of Galilee, have been recently recovered. As soon as the ruins were discovered expert archaeologists will be carried out under scientific control. It was near this city that the Sermon on the Mount was preached, and Mary Magdalene is believed to have come from a near-by town.

Social and Personal

Mrs. Wilbur Gerow, Pope Street will leave in the morning for Peterboro and Lindsay from thence to Niagara Falls, returning by boat to Cobourg.

Dr. C. B. Coughlin, Superintendent of the O.S.D., left for Cleveland Ohio, on Thursday after the closing of the A. I. D. convention.

BAROTSELAND.

An African Tribe Where Men Do Women's Work.

Like most African tribes, the Barotse have their peculiar customs. Some of these customs are referred to by Mr. D. W. Strike, Native Commissioner, Northern Rhodesia, in his recently published book "Barotseland."

The Barotse "Kotla," or parliament, it may be stated without making any invidious comparison, "sits daily." There is also the Chief's Privy Council, the "Sikalu," which sits in two shifts, by night and by day. Privacy is carried almost to extremes, since "conversation is held entirely in whispers."

In the parliament the "junior member of each division speaks first," and the "Ngambela," or Prime Minister, winds up the debate. Agreement is signified by clapping hands. When a matter is settled "word is sent to the chief, who sends word back by the same man as to his approval or otherwise." In the event of disapproval the prime minister "goes to the chief and explains the matter and urges his acceptance of the ruling of the Kotla." It all sounds rather like our own parliamentary manœuvres in the time of, say, George the Third.

"Triplets," says Mr. Strike, "are very rare and are considered bad. One is killed and two left alive, the reason being that the mother has only two breasts."

The usual division of labor between the sexes is reversed among the Alunda tribe. "These people will often admit they are the slaves to their womenfolk," says Mr. Strike. "The average Lunda woman's daily work is fishing, which they do by wading along the sides of streams, pushing a large wicker basket in front of them. The Alunda men use the hoe as well as the axe, and tend their gardens, grind meal for porridge, plaster their huts, and do all the work that is generally suposed by other African tribes to be women's work only."

If very close relatives in Barotseland meet, in addition to shaking and kissing hands, they "spray each other with spittle." Men seldom eat with their wives, as a man who does so is considered greedy, on the principle that being stronger than his wife he will "grab the largest and best portions."

A remarkable fact about the Barotse language is that it is to-day an "almost artificially manufactured tongue which had come into existence during the last fifty years—Sikolo." The real Sirezi or Siluyi language—which the original Bechwana invaders of a hundred years ago brought with them—is, Mr. Strike says, "gradually dying out, and to-day is known to but a few of the blood royal, sons of indunas (officers of state) and the like."

Anglo-Saxon Umbrellas.

Umbrellas were used to keep off the rain by our Anglo-Saxon forefathers long before the Norman Conquest. An old Saxon M.S. in the British Museum has the accompanying picture of a servant holding an umbrella over his crowned lord. It is stated that when Queen Matilda reigned for a short troubled time umbrellas were in common use. In Queen Anne's reign the use of the umbrella was confined to two women. Jonas Hanway who died in 1786 re-introduced the umbrella into England for general use, whence its use spread to Europe and the world over.

City Engineer Campbell stated that he had carefully prepared a plan, which had been approved by the Municipal Board. The average excavation was 13.6 inches and .5. It would vary at some places. From the upper bridge to Memorial Park the roadway would be 30 feet in width, and 27 feet from the park to Bettes street.

The by-law was then read, clause by clause, and each clause was adopted by a vote of 10 to 3.

Mayor Bennett: We are told in a clause in the by-law that the work is to be done by some party or parties or company. Who will get the tender?

Ald. Adams: The tender of the Standard Paving Company has been accepted for the work. This was done last year.

Mayor Bennett: I was not in the Council last year and I have not read the contract or the tender.

Several aldermen: We have, and the Mayor could have read it if he so desired as it has been in the city building for months.

Ald. Donohue: A lot of this talk is for the back benches. The Standard Paving Company put in three distinct tenders and theirs was the lowest by a considerable amount. There was a specification in the tender in reference to the company doing Highland avenue and Station street as a combined job.

Every clause in the by-law was carried, on division, those voting for the adoption being Aldermen French, Thompson, Adams, Donohue, Patterson, Robinson, Gardiner, Treverton, Foster and Greenleaf. Against: Mayor Bennett, Aldermen Lynch and McCreary.

The committee rose and reported. The report was received and on motion that it be adopted, Ald. McCreary moved an amendment that it be not now adopted but referred back for further reconsideration. The amendment was lost. The yeas and nays were called, resulting as follows: Yeas, Mayor Bennett, Ald. McCreary, Ald. Lynch. Nays, Aldermen French, Thompson, Adams, Patterson, Donohue, Robinson, Greenleaf, Gardiner, Treverton and Foster.

The by-law was passed through its various stages and numbered, 2484.

CALLED BY DEATH

EDWARD W. LOWERY

Last evening Mr. Edward W. Lowery, a well known and much respected resident of Holloway, Thurlow Township, passed away at the hospital here. Appendicitis was the cause of death. Deceased was in his 52nd year and had been for some time a section man in the employ of the G.T.R. He was, in religion, an Anglican, and a member of Holloway Lodge L.O.L. No. 251. A widow survives.

HELEN SMITH

Mrs. Helen Smith, wife of Mr. James H. Smith, passed away last night after a rather brief illness. Deceased was 31 years of age and was a daughter of the late Mr. William Calberry. She was born at Foxboro, but had spent the greater portion of her life in this city, where she had many friends. In addition to the husband, a daughter, Miss Mildred survives, also her mother, Mrs. Wm. Calberry.

The call echoed over Cedarvale, Ontario, one hot day this week and the answer was several score of youths, mostly clad au natural, enjoying a dip in an excavation for a residence, which had become filled with water.

PAGING BY RADIO

An illuminating example of the vast field of usefulness open to the radio was furnished in the New England States, a few days ago, according to the New York Times.

"A young man who was away on his honeymoon was wanted at home at once. His mother had been taken desperately ill, and was pathetically eager to see him, perhaps for the last time. All that was known about the young couple was that they were "somewhere in New England," for, after the manner of their kind, they had veiled in deep secrecy the destination of their nuptial journey. They went away in an automobile and purposed to do all their traveling in it, stopping wherever fancy decided and staying there only as long as they pleased.

"With no fixed address, even in their own minds, the prompt finding of the honeymooners would have been, until recently, impossible. Now it could be done simply and easily, and was. Nothing more was required than the "broadcasting" of a message to the bridegroom, telling him the facts. It reached without delay the secluded inn at Lost River, N. H., where he happened to be, not because it was sent there, but because it was sent out of Boston in every direction.

"This," says the Times, "is paging of a sort not even imaginable a few years ago, and obviously in the same way practically anybody in the more civilized parts of the world who wants or is willing to be found can be told without much loss of time that somebody desires to see him. Such calls will reach the far expanses of the ocean as well as of the land, for there are few of either, nowadays, that do not contain at least one instrument for receiving radio dispatches.

"And before long, probably, the paging message can be an audible summons—one of spoken words, directly understandable and with the speaker's voice recognizable by the receiver. Then will the once all-conquering element of distance receive a stunning blow and give up the fight."

TRADE MARGINS

The Canadian trade summary published in the latest issue of the Toronto Financial Post, shows an encouraging condition. The total of exports (exclusive of foreign exports) for the 12-month period ending May, 1923, was $958,844,577. The imports for the same period totalled $841,094,801, leaving a balance on Canada's side of the ledger of $117, 749, 776.

The export figures for the 12-month period ending in May, 1922, were $738,470,730 and the imports were $727,808,246, the margin in Canada's favor being only $10,662,484. Two years ago, when higher prices prevailed, the exports and imports reached higher figures, but the balance is on the wrong side of the ledger. The exports for the year ending in May, 1921, totalled $1,161,298,358. The imports were $1,162,360,362. The imports for that period, it will be noted exceeded the exports by $1,062,004.

The fiscal curve for the three-year period is pronounced, but the margin of exports over imports for the year just ended is approximately ten times that for the year ending in May, 1922.

Business stimulation and industrial development, which secured their impetus several years ago are reflected in these statistics, the results being appreciable, despite hampering governmental tactics.

The importations of agricultural and vegetable products for the past year totalled $168,992,596, while the exports in this group for the same period were $405,283,961. The difference, $236,291,365, is just about $2,500,000 under the difference for the year ending in May, 1921, which was $238,721,256, but values were far higher during that period. The agricultural group exports for that period were $491,169,806. With the total export in this group at $317,221,328 for the year immediately prior to May, 1922, the margin over imports was $158,004,869, a far poorer showing than that made for the year just ended.

Among other groups, which show an increasing margin of exports over imports for the past 12-month period are: Wood and paper, margin, $4,148,685; non-ferrous metals, margin, $10,515,118 (the imports exceeded exports in this group in the two preceding); animal products, margin, $90,095,571.

Fibres and textiles, iron and iron products and non-metallic-minerals show a widening margin of imports over exports.

Trade statistics are an accurate and infallible gauge of commercial and industrial activity. These statistics prove conclusively that Canada has forged slowly ahead despite handicaps and they are rich in promise of results during the next few years.

A Montana judge has ruled that the United States Congress may not limit the number of whiskey prescriptions or the quantity prescribed so long as physicians are empowered to write whiskey prescriptions. The judge presumes that physicians are better qualified to determine the needs of their patients than is Congress. A one-way ticket to Montana, please.

PRESS OPINIONS

LOVE OF ANIMALS.

(London Chronicle)

The modern Englishman is, as a rule, humane to animals. Even the modern boy often learns in childhood to like animals of all kinds, taking one egg only from a bird's nest, and feeding squirrels rather than pelting them.

RAGTIME OF LIFE

(London Times)

After all, youth is the appointed ragtime of life, the period of a blithe, if cacophonous, syncopation of the even flow of things, breaking up their too smooth rhythmn into a staccato series of stimulating shocks. It is not wholesome to go on doing or being the same thing for ever without a break, not even to go on being good.

ENOUGH A FEAST

(Detroit News)

At times grave fears must be expressed for the originality of this American race. When it happens to get hold of a good publicity racket it proceeds to run it into the ground; hence the "Week" idea is now enjoying a disfavor which grows in direct porportion to the frequency and inconsequence of its occurrence.

The difficulty sometimes is that its object is laudable enough, though the occasion is nothing imperative. It is customary then to say a few words of approval with an unspoken hope that this will be the last.

AS OTHERS SEE US.

(Buffalo Express)

Prohibition probably never has been so stringently enforced as in Ontario in the last four years. Still it was possible to get a drink. The defeat of the Drury-Raney government is proof positive that the public is heartily tired of the extra-legal methods of enforcement, if not of prohibition. The attorney-general sincerely believed that the end justified the means and it mattered not to him and his adherents if every great principle from Nagna Charta down was nullified.

LOVE OF COUNTRY

(Christian Science Monitor)

No instinct is stronger or more enduring than the unquenchable love of country which is instilled into the consciousness of every human being. Call it patriotism, or what you will; call it primitive and old-fashioned; deny, if you choose, that you, less than others, are influenced by it, yet there comes times when you, perhaps paraphrasing the familiar line, say with justifiable pride, "This is my own, my native land!"

No matter what may be the country of your origin; no matter where wandering feet may have taken you, memory paints and repaints, faithfully and realistically, some familiar scene, or reproduces with marvelous fidelity some half-forgotten song, and in retrospect the listener is translated while the scroll of the years is turned backward.

AN ENCHANTED GARDEN

I rambled in a garden fair,
  Enchanted it appeared to be,
The gentle winds were whispering,
  Flowers seemed to speak to me.

"I'm love," said a beautiful rose,
  "And for lovers bright and gay
From my blushing crimson heart
  A message to them I convey."

Then I saw a scarlet geranium,
  Gleaming like fire in her bed.
Said she, "I am consolation,
  That's why I'm glowing and red."

"I am thought," confided a pansy;
  "Contemplation is my desire,
Just listen to my wisdom,
  Great thoughts you will acquire."

The lily spoke so sweet and low,
  Lifting up her gentle head,
"Sweetness, I am always called,
  And sweetness around I shed."

"I am innocence," said the daisy,
  "I stay near my Mother Earth.
Nothing there can harm me.
  She has cared for me since birth."

"I'm the emblem of friendship,"
  Piped the ivy from the wall.
"That is why I cling so tight,
  And never have a fall."

I left the enchanted garden,
  Pondering deeply as I went,
While the gentle breezes wafted
  To me the flowers' sweet scent.

They give to us sweet messages
  Clothe in beauty all the earth,
I really think that first in heaven
  They must have had their birth.

KINGSTON VS. TRUNKS TOMORROW GAME WILL BE CALLED AT 4 P.M.

Hour Changed Because of Death of Mrs. James Smith Wife of "Cap" Smith Prominent Ball Player.

Kingston team plays here tomorrow in a Central League fixture at the fair grounds. Owing to the death of Mrs. James Smith, wife of "Cap." Smith, a prominent local ball player, the game has been called for 4 p.m. instead of 3 p.m. as advertised. Kingston and Belleville are now tied for second place with Peterboro topping the list and Cobourg holding down the cellar position. Saturday's win in Cobourg puts the locals on easy street, although they play in Peterboro on Saturday, which should prove a nip-and-tuck game.

Who manager Batstone will start tomorrow is not yet known. After Gallagher's rough passage at Peterboro it is doubtful if that gentleman will get the call. Both Moore and Cherry are in excellent fettle and either of these two are prepared to take up the burden. Manager Gerow will likely choose Oulette to do the flinging and Jack is prepared to halt the easterners. Alex. Kay, one of the best "umps" in these parts, will officiate behind the plate. Who the base arbiter will be has not been announced. Cliff. Boundy of Cobourg was scheduled to umpire but has made himself ineligible by his appearance as a player.

On July 12th, Peterboro and Cobourg play at the big celebration in the lake shore town. But who will officiate down there? The ups. are not too willing to work in Cobourg, but Saturday's incident capped the climax.

Peterboro are evidently of the opinion that Belleville are the team to beat in the second half as shown by the following extract from the Examiner:

"The Petes' greatest rivals and the team to beat for the second half honors, the Belleville outfit, will be here on Saturday for their first local appearance in the second section of the Big Four race and there promises to be fireworks when they clash with the Petes. With the assistance of Umpire Si Dell and some shaky fielding by the Petes, Belleville won their last game here by a one run margin, but the Solomon outfit have apparently hit their stride since then and have played snappy ball in their last three fixtures. They realize that they cannot afford to drop any home game to Belleville and the next win registered by the Trunks in Cobourg Saturday shows that the Solomon crew will also have to grab off the odd game on foreign fields as well to be in the running for the second half. At present the Petes are a game in front as follows:"

Counting the games on Saturday, the standing of the second division is as follows:

	Won	Lost	P.C.
Peterboro	2	0	1.000
Kingston	1	1	.500
Belleville	1	1	.500
Cobourg	0	2	.000

Don't forget the game starts at 4 p.m. instead of 3 p.m.

Kingston are somewhat shaky as to the result of tomorrow's game. Says the Standard:

"On Wednesday next the locals will play in Belleville, the second engagement in a row away from home, and already the fans are beginning to believe that the jinx which has attended the team all through the first division, that of being unable to get a game away from home, is again camped on their trail. It looks as if there is some justification for the belief, and unless the team bucks up and gets busy on some real baseball some of the other teams will be so far ahead that it will be impossible to catch them. Belleville has now the jump which gave Peterboro the edge in the first division for a time. They have won away from home by defeating Cobourg on Saturday, and they have all their home games to play yet, their first at home in this division being that of next Wednesday afternoon when they line up against the locals. That will be the only game for that day, but on Thursday Peterboro will play at Cobourg the game being part of the big Twelfth celebration there, and on Saturday Belleville will play in Peterboro while the locals are battling at Cobourg."

Do You Know?

What is the Navy's record in lacrosse? B.K.

The Navy hasn't lost a lacrosse match in seven seasons. The nearest the midshipmen came to a reverse in that time was this season when Syracuse held them to a tie.

Did Willie Kamm lead the Coast League in batting last year? M.D.T.

No. Kamm ranked sixth among batters participating in 100 or more games with an average of 342. Paul Strand, of Salt Lake, with .384 led the league.

Has the Giants' feat of scoring in every inning in a recent game with the Phillies been duplicated in the past? ROOTER.

Scoring in all nine innings of a major league game was something that had not happened since 1897 until the Giants did it early in June. Teams scoring in every inning in which they batted were the Pirates in 1901, and the Red Sox in 1903, but inasmuch as they were the home team on each occasion, they went to bat only eight times.

Striking of Umpire Causes Controversy

A heap of controversy has been started around the circuit regarding the Cobourg incident when Umpire B. D. Menzies was struck by a spectator. The play came up when Harry Mills went after a slow roller and Meagher covered first. Allan caught the ball, but immediately a Cobourg coach and the runner were debating the decision. Meanwhile a number of spectators gathered around. Mr. Menzies was jostled about and finally requested that a police officer be stationed at the particular place on the field for the remainder of the game. This had the effect of stopping any further demonstrations.

The Kingston Standard says:

The Cobourg incident and the experience of the locals at Peterboro brings to the fore the whole question of umpiring in the C.O.B.L. Every team, and hundreds of spectators have been "kicking" at some time or other during the first division over the work of some of the umpires, and there must be some reason for it. Local fans who have seen most of them in action agree that it is time that some of them were "jacked up" by the executive and that others of them were fired from the staff. Much of the success of the League in the immediate future depends on what action it taken by President Dedman and the rest of the executive in the matter of umpires for the balance of the season. Spectators, that is the best of them, will not continue to attend games and see teams robbed of their just rights by umpires who are not competent or not fair, and there has been too much of this catering to home feeling by some of the officials.

JOE DUGAN SEEKS 3RD SACK HONORS

By PAUL R. MALLON

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, July 10.—(United Press)—Jumping Joe Dugan is out after the title of the best baseman in the history of baseball.

The fuss he is raising up at the Yankee Stadium these hot afternoons approximates a riot. He is snagging blistering drives with a cool, calm glove, running down bunts like a keen-eyed deer, shooting them over to first base as fast as anyone ever did before and socking the ball for a snappy .280.

The New York sport writers claim he is better than Willie Kamm, who cost the White Sox $100,000; Walter Lutzke, the $35,000 star of the Cleveland Indians; the veteran Kid Foster, or the youthful Haney of the Tigers.

There is no doubt that the old Athletic star is playing the best ball of his career and getting better every day. There is no doubt that he is the best fielder around the hot third corner.

His style of covering ground revives visions of Bill Bradley, the old Cleveland Blue star, and Collins of the Boston Bean Eaters. He kills many drives that would be hits if they were sent down to some other third basemen of the league.

One thing that strengthens his claim to the title is the fact that McGraw has switched Frankie Frisch over to second base instead of letting him play at his old stand.

Ed Leader came to Yale last winter none-too-easy task of making a championship crew. The first thing he did was to sweep out the English system that had long been in use and show them how he rowed when he went to school out at University of Washington.

They call it the 'Leader system" now that his crew has defeated Pennsylvania, Columbia, Cornell, Princeton and Harvard.

The new stroke which supplanted the English technique has its main feature in the apparent rigidity of the body with the power in the leg drive and the strong arm pull. There is little movement of the body.

Some of the best Yale oarsmen who could not adapt themselves to the new style were shipped back to the second crew.

The practice of conceding putts has reached a point where sensible golf students are demanding a change. In many matches the play has been spoiled by too freely conceding putts at distances from the cup which might have caused a miss.

The great howl of those defending the practice is that they will be considered unsportsmanlike if they do not preserve this ridiculous "etiquette" of golf.

Francis Ouimet, one of the finest sportsmen in the game, never concedes anything. He shoots out all his holes and expects his opponents to do likewise. Nobody ever has accused him of action unbecoming a sportsman in following out his practice.

The object of the game is to play each hole in the least number of strokes and anyone who knows golf knows that six-inch putts have been missed on some occasions. To concede any putt is to defeat the object of the game.

Do Men's Looks Matter?

"It all depends on the sort of looks a man possesses, and the sort of girl who regards them," writes Miss Violet Quirk in the Royal Magazine.

"No woman could look at Earl Beatty and despise him; few could look at him without admiring him. He would not adorn the Russian Ballet or a picture of the pre-Raphaelite school. You could criticize his features and their proportions. But what woman thinks about trifles like that? See what his face suggests—oceans, wide spaces, ships, battle, invincible strength, all of which things are entirely unfeminine, and that leads us back to wise Darwin, who said—'The sexes like best in each other what is most different from themselves.'

"Then why do women adore the Prince of Wales, who is short, slight, and not aggressively masculine? Merely because to them he is still boy. They love him with the maternal part of their nature. Also his face is good, and that makes an added appeal, for the maternal, too, is so good. They understand the wistfulness which comes from his intelligence; he realizes to the full his tremendous responsibilities.

"A woman wants a man to be masculine in essence, but she wants him as well to posses just a streak of the feminine in his nature. It must be big enough to enable him to understand her weaknesses, but not big enough to over-ride his virility. Because she likes a man to look what she thinks he ought to be, she passes over the slender being whose appearance expresses his effeminacy, and she shrinks from the hard, bull-necked, loud-voiced male whose appearance expresses his brutality; but she gazes long at the man whose looks are all masculine, but whose eyes and mouth reveal that little streak of understanding of the feminine which she needs.

"A woman cannot separate a man's looks from the man himself. This admiration of manly instincts colors all a woman's likes and dislikes with regard to man."

English Language Puzzles.

The English language is still a puzzle to many Japanese wireless operators. As an illustration, an American operator on an Alaskan steamer heard a Japanese operator working and asked for his position and who he was. The reply came back that he was Taki somebody and that he was working in the radio room. Another American operator inquired regarding the report of a great typhoon in mid-ocean, and the Japanese replied that it was an ill wind that blowed no one any great favor. Another questioner asked whether the Chinese had instituted a boycott on certain American-made goods. The Japanese operator answered that so far as he knew there had been boys captured by the Chinese for some time.—Radio News.

Sweet Bread Patties

Parboil one pair sweetbreads in boiling, salted, acidulated water 15 minutes. Drain and cut in half inch cubes or small pieces. Add half the measure of small mushrooms heated in the liquor in the can, drained, cooled and sliced, and 1 tablespoon pimento cut in bits. Reheat in 1½ cups of Bechamel sauce, and serve in puff paste patty shells. Pass the filling to each guest that more moisture may be added to patties.

Some Useful Recipes

Kidney-Stuffed Onions

This may sound like one of those "fussy" elaborate dishes which no really busy housekeeper has time to prepare; but, actually it is an easily prepared luncheon (or supper) dish. Buy from your butcher two sheep's kidneys, wipe and skin them, then slice them finely. Season the sliced kidneys with one-half teaspoon of salt and a pinch of pepper, and use them as filling for four large onions which you have previously boiled (skinned) for 15 minutes, and then hollowed out in the centres. Place the stuffed and par-boiled onions in a baking dish, add one cupful of either brown gravy or canned clear soup, and bake for two hours in a moderate oven. Serve hot. They will taste good to the school child or business person, for they are very nourishing.

Strawberry Short Cake

2 cupfuls flour.
2 teaspoonfuls baking powder.
1 teaspoonful salt.
2 rounding tablespoonfuls butter.
2 rounding tablespoonfuls granulated sugar.
1 cupful Bordens St. Charles milk, undiluted.

Sift all the dry ingredients together, work in the butter as you would for pie crust, add the milk, beat with spoon (it will be very stiff) and bake 30 minutes in an oblong pan. Split the cake with a hot knife, butter the two sides and put them together again with two quarts of strawberries which have been cut into small pieces, sweetened and allowed to stand before placing in cake.

One-Egg Cake.

¼ cupful vegetable cooking oil, scant.
2-3 cupful sugar.
1 egg.
⅓ teaspoonful salt.
1½ teaspoonfuls baking powder.
1½ cupfuls sifted flour.
½ teaspoonful vanilla.
½ teaspoonful lemon extract.

Beat the egg light and cream it with the sugar, salt, and flavoring. Combine the milk, diluted with the cooking oil. Sift together the dry ingredients and add them alternately to the first mixture with the milk. Beat thoroughly, turn into a lined, medium-sized pan and sprinkle nut meats, chopped raisins or cocoanut over the top. Bake in a moderate oven for thirty minutes.

TODAY I AM REAL WELL

So Writes Woman After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Jamestown, N.Y.—"I was nervous, easily excited and discouraged and had no ambition. Part of the time I was not able to sit up as I suffered with pains in my back and with weakness. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, both the liquid and tablet forms, and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash for inflammation. Today I am real well and run a rooming house and do the work. I recommend your medicine to every woman who complains, and you may use my letter to help any one else. I am passing through the Change of Life now and I keep the Vegetable Compound in the house, ready to take when I feel the need of it."—Mrs. ALICE D. DAVIS, 203 W. Second St., Jamestown, N. Y.

Often some slight derangement may cause a general upset condition of the whole system, indicated by such symptoms as nervousness, backache, lack of ambition and general weakness.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will be found a splendid medicine for such troubles. In many cases it has removed the cause of the trouble.

PATRICIA BRENT SPINSTER

ANONYMOUS

With great empressment Mr. Triggs produced from the tail pocket of his coat a folded copy of the Illustrated Universe. Flattening it out upon the table he moistened his thumb and finger and, with great deliberation, turned over several leaves, then indicating a page he demanded:

"What do you think of that?"

"That," was a full-page picture of Lady Tanagra walking in the Park with Mr Triggs. The portrait of Lady Tanagra was a little indistinct; but that of Mr. Triggs was as clear as daylight, and a remarkable likeness. underneath was printed, "Lady Tanagra Bowen and a friend walking in the Park."

Mrs. Bonsor devoured the picture and then looked up at her father, a new respect in her eyes.

"What do you think of it, 'Ettie?'" enquired Mr. Triggs again.

"It's a very good likeness ,father," said Mrs. Bonsor weakly.

It was Patricia, however, who expressed what Mr. Triggs had anticipated.

"You're becoming a great personage, Mr. Triggs," she cried. "If you are not careful you will compromise Lady Tanagra.

Mr. Triggs chuckled with glee as he mopped his forehead with his handkerchief.

"I rang 'er up this morning," he said.

"Rang who up, father?" enquired Mrs. Bonsor.

"Lady Tan," said Mr. Triggs, watching his daughter to see the effect of the diminutive upon her.

"Was she annoyed?" enquired Mrs. Bonsor.

"Annoyed!" echoed Mr. Triggs. "Annoyed! She was that pleased she's asked me to lunch to-morrow. Why, she introduced me to a duchess last week, an' I'm goin' to 'er place to tea."

"I wish you would bring Lady Tanagra here one day, father," said Mrs. Bonsor. "Why not ask her to lunch here to-morrow?"

"Not me, 'Ettie," said Mr. Triggs wisely. "If you want the big fish, you've got to go out and catch 'em yourself.

There was a pause. Patricia hid a smile in her handkerchief Mrs. Bonsor was deep in a speech upon the question of rationing fish.

"Well, A. B., what 'ave you got to say?"

"Dear fish may mean revolution," murmured Mr. Bonsor.

Mr. Triggs looked at his son-in-law in amazement.

"What's that you say?" he demanded.

"I—I beg your pardon. I—I was thinking," apologised Mr. Bonsor.

"Now, father," said Mrs. Bonsor, "will you come into the morning-room? I want to talk to you, and I'm sure Arthur wants to get on with his work."

Mr. Triggs was reluctantly led away, leaving Patricia to continue the day's work.

Patricia now saw little of Mr. Triggs, in fact since Lady Tanagra had announced that Bowen would no longer trouble her, she found life had become singularly grey. Things that before had amused and interested her now seemed dull and tedious. Mr. Bolton's jokes were more obvious than ever, and Mr. Cordal's manners more detestable.

The constant interrogations levelled at her as to where Bowen was, and why he had not called to see her, she found difficult to answer. Several times she had gone alone to the theatre, or to a cinema, in order that it might be thought she was with Bowen. At last the strain became so intolerable that she spoke of Mrs. Craske-Morton, hinting that unless Galvin House took a little less interest in her affairs, she would have to leave.

The effect of her words was instantly manifest. Wherever she moved she seemed to interrupt whispering groups. When she entered the dining-room there would be a sudden cessation of conversation, and everyone would look up with an innocence that was too obvious to deceive even themselves. If she went into the lounge on her return from Eaton Square, the same effect was noticeable. When she was present the conversation was forced and artificial. Sentences would be begun and left unfinished, as if the speaker had suddenly remembered that the subject was taboo.

Patricia found herself wishing that they would speak out what was in their minds. Anything would be preferable to the air of mystery that seemed to pervade the whole place. She could not be unaware of the significant glances that were exchanged when it was thought she was not looking. Several times she had been asked if she were not feeling well, and her looking-glass reflected a face that was pale and drawn, with dark lines under the eyes.

One evening, when she had gone to her room directly after dinner, there was a gentle knock at her door. She opened it to find Mrs. Hamilton, looking as if it would take only a word to send her creeping away again.

Why a "Burning Glass" Burns a Piece of Paper

When you see a magnifying glass or "burning glass," burning a piece of paper, can you tell how it does it or why? This is the way it happens.

The sun, as you know, gives off light and heat. Both of these travel in straight lines, as long as possible. However, when a light or heat ray falls on the surface of a burning glass it is bent, just as you might bend a wire. The place at which the ray touches the burning glass determines how much it will be bent. The rays which pass through the center of the lens are not bent at all, but those which touch upon the outside edges are bent a great deal.

All of these rays are bent in such a way that they all get together in one point, the focal point, and that partly explains why they can burn a piece of paper. None of these little rays, alone, can burn, but when many of them are concentrated in one spot they can and do burn.

You can measure the "focal length" of your lens by allowing it to get the image of a lighted electric light and cast it on a piece of paper. When the clearest image is cast, measure the image on the paper to the center of the lens in a direct line and the length of that line represents the focal length of your burning glass and tells what distance from a piece of paper the glass must be held to burn most effectively.

VIN SELLS TO HIMSELF

Vin thought his luck couldn't be worse;
He felt just as gay as a hearse—
His luck was all wrong,
And it lasted so long
He thought he was under a curse.

Vin Garrett and his little sister Thelma were both broke and a very long way from home. They came from a little town in Illinois, but now they were on a several acre plot in Oklahoma, where Vin had taken his little sister for her health.

Little Thelma had been successful, her fight to get well and strong, but it had taken all their money and the two had no way of getting back to their home town, where Vin could get a position selling automobiles. The only thing in all the world they owned was their several acres of good-for-nothing land.

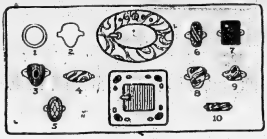
One day one of their neighbors came by and said that he would give Vin his old automobile and two hundred dollars for half interest in his land. Vin snapped at the chance and made all preparations to go back home.

Several weeks later he was back in his home town at his job, selling automobiles. He wasn't making very much money because the farmers hadn't sold their crops and didn't have enough to buy new cars. In fact business was so poor that Vin's boss told him that he would have to let him go at the end of the week, and there wasn't any more work to be found anywhere around.

The boy was discouraged. It was Saturday and he was to be fired that day. A boy came into the sales room with a telegram for him. It was from the neighbor who had bought a half interest in his place in Oklahoma. The telegram read. "You are rich. Big oil strike on your place. Am wiring you $10.000, first payment.

The first thing Vin did with the money, which he received several hours later, was to buy one of the cars he had been trying so hard to sell.

Summertime Jewelry Making



"Rings on my fingers" and—well maybe not "bells on my toes" in these modern times, but there are buckles that you can make with sealing wax to put on your slippers which will be prettier than bells.

For a foundation for your ring get a little brass ring at the hardware store to fit your finger loosely. Cover it with gold or silver wax. Draw a design for the top of the ring and cut two patterns of it from thin cardboard (Fig. 2), leaving tabs at the sides the width of the ring. Cover one pattern with wax and while still soft press the second one squarely on top, bending them to sides well with wax and press into place on the ring. Hold over the flame until the wax is smooth at the joining places.

For decoration you can dot the top here and there with melted wax of contrasting colors and heat until blended. The ring in Fig. 7 is black with an imitation diamond in the corner. The buckles are made with a foundation of a cheap metal buckle covered with wax and decorated with small stones.

(If you have never worked with sealing wax before, this is the way it is done: First, get regular stick of sealing wax of the colors you like, and a small piece of glass for the table to catch any wax that might drip when it is melted. Hold the tip of a stick of wax over the flame of either a gas burner, alcohol lamp, or "canned heat", and when it begins to run daub it on the foundation you are using. When blending colors, do not let the wax get too hot. Dip the article in cold water once or twice to cool, but be sure to dry it thoroughly before returning to the flame, or the wax will blister. The illustrations suggest a number of designs that can be worked out in any color combinations you choose.)

Not a Gift.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

SUNSTROKE AND HEAT STROKE

Perhaps you have never thought that there was any difference between sunstroke and heat stroke.

But sunstroke is usually where one is working hard out in the hot sun and the rays simply cause a sudden collapse. There is no marked rise in the temperature, and the recovery takes place in a short time under the ordinary treatment of a shady spot and cold applications to the head.

But the real heat stroke is not necessarily due to the direct rays of sun but more to the actual high temperature, with that other big thing humidity. Humidity is really at the bottom of the trouble.

And what is humidity?

Just what its name implies—moisture.

You see if the air around you is full of moisture it really doesn't want the moisture from your body, it will not take it up. Thus the evaporation from your body is so small that you can't get rid of the heat. Your heat regulating centre gets put out of balance. It is the hot quiet moist day that is so trying on that body of yours.

So if you feel the slightest signs of headaches, sleepiness, giddiness, and a feeling of oppression, either look after yourself or get somebody else to do so at once.

You see you've got to get the body cooled off, and you must also see that your strength is maintained.

So get a cool, shady spot and get cold water to the head, chest, and back of the neck. This will lower your temperature which is the first thing necessary. Then you must follow this with the same treatment as a person rescued from drowning—You remember the treatment—heat. You see in applying the cold water to reduce your temperature your systems gets a severe shock. To overcome this shock hot bottles to abdomen, spine, and feet is the best treatment.

If under this treatment the skin begins to perspire you will soon be all right again. Sometimes artificial respiration becomes necessary. Remember then in the ordinary sunstroke a shady place and cold water. A heat stroke is a real serious condition requiring a physician's care. If a physician is not available treatment as above is absolutely essential.

MACARONI WITH TOMATOES AND GREEN PEPPERS.

Cook ½ pkg macaroni broken in 1 in. pieces, in rapidly boiling salted water, with an onion stuck with 2 cloves until tender. Drain and rinse with cold water. Butter a baking dish cover bottom with a layer of macaroni, then a layer of strained canned tomato pulp, strew with finely chopped green peppers and grated onion, a slight sprinkle of salt and paprika. Repeat until macaroni and 1 can tomatoes are used, having last layer tomatoes, cover with a layer buttered crumbs. Pour over 1 c. chicken broth and bake ½ hr. in a hot oven. Omit grated onion and use grated cheese if cheese flavor is preferred.

American Praise For Bonar Law

Bonar Law is one of those men whose merits are not fully appreciated until it is found necessary to appoint their successors. He was the very antithesis of his predecessor in office. The few months of his administration were long enough to impress the world with the quiet greatness that lurked in him. Woodrow Wilson's message to him is only typical of what American papers are saying. They could hardly be more sincerely regretful if they were taking leave of an American president in similar circumstances. They feel that they know Bonar Law as well as his own countrymen know him, and his qualities are as greatly esteemed on this side of the Atlantic as on the other. the New York World says:

"Mr. Bonar Law did not stir men. He reassured them. He gave them no slogans, he gave them no policies. But he gave them confidence. He settled nothing of any great importance to Europe or to the empire, but somehow he managed by the force of his personal example to restore a badly shaken faith in Parliamentary politics. For people care more about men than about measures, and they value transparent honesty and simplicity a great deal. Having dined continuously on caviare and cocktails and peacocks with Mr. Lloyd George, the British people were more than ready for a little plain living."

"It is a notable tribute to Bonar Law's statesmanship that his retirement excites as deep concern abroad as it does at home. When Lloyd George was forced out of office there was a sigh of relief. He had kept Europe in hot water. His passion for theatricalism in diplomacy and his amazing inconsistencies had destroyed confidence in his leadership. Bonar Law came in with a program of tranquilization. And in the few months of his premiership Europe made more substantial progress toward political stability and recovery than was made, perhaps, during the whole post-treaty period of Georgian spectacularism.

"Bonar Law stood out as an embodiment of common-sense moderation. He was hampered in many ways by the foreign policy which he had inherited. But he was determined to show good will. Bonar Law inspired faith because of his sincerity and steadfastness. After all, character is the greatest asset, even in politics. The retiring Premier was gifted with the two sterling qualities of simplicity and modesty. Lord Beaverbrook said of him that 'his curious combination of intellect and character really sustained the Lloyd George coalition. When he laid down the burden of floor management in the House of Commons the coalition began to crack. Yet no drop of the sparkling wine of victory touched his lips so long as his chief was there to drain the flagon.'

"Before the war leadership of this sort lacked appreciation. Now the world acclaims it and is honestly grieved when a statesman who displays it is obliged to drop the reins of power."

The New York Times says:

"Mr. Bonar Law's resignation, based on imperative reasons of health, evoked tributes which had more than a personal significance. From his political opponents—all except Mr. Lloyd George—came expressions of heartfelt regret at his being compelled to lay down the Premiership after having held it for so short a time. He was never credited with an overweening political ambition such as has afflicted many English public men of his generation, yet his rise to the leadership of the Government was of a sort to satisfy the aspirations of any man. His promotion was won by substantial but not showy qualities. No one ever thought of him as a genius, but the country came to regard him as a leader at once sagacious and safe. When the taunt was flung at his Government that it was made up of men of 'second-class brains,' he quietly replied that he would not mind that, provided only they had first-class character. He himself was generally believed to have it, and the loss of the high position which he gained owing to it has sorrowful and even tragic personal aspects upon which it is needless to dwell."

The New York Herald is particularly warm in its regard for Mr. Bonar Law as the following extract attests:

"Bonar Law has never been a proud man or a selfish man; but decent ambition and profound respect for sound craftsmanship in politics have been primo animating motives in his life. Defeat of ambition because the tools of his craft have become broken or bent must strike deeper into his honest heart than into one bolstered by pride and hardened by selfishness. Testimony to his personal worth is already ample from the lips of his own countrymen, political foes no less than political friends. Those without the borders of his country may well join in praise of virtues that are not limited by partisan lines or international borders, because they are human, universal virtues."

What other statesman when he passes from the political stage will receive from political opponents and foreign observers tokens of more sympathetic regard and admiration than those that have been tendered to Mr. Bonar Law on his retirement?

New Zealand Sheep.

Owing to the diminution of flocks and unseasonable weather, it is expected that at least 750,000 fewer sheep than usual will be killed in New Zealand this season, and thus shipments to England will be considerably affected.

ADVERTISE IN THE INTELLIGENCER

SCENT.

Even King Tut Had a Liking for Sweet Smells.

Jars of face cream used in the days of King Tutankhamen of Egypt have been discovered in the royal tomb. A faint odor still comes from the substance, and when this has been analysed it is possible that similar perfume may be made and used by women of to-day.

The use of scents dates back to the earliest times, and had it origin in religious observances. Perfumes and ointments were extensively employed in eastern countries over three thousand years ago, and anointing with various oils was an established custom among those preparing for banquets and ceremonies.

The methods now adopted in making scent do not differ greatly from those employed in the earliest days.

Roses, jasmine, the acacia, bergamot, tuberose, orange trees, and violets are grown in Italy and southern France especially for perfumery. There are many flower farms on the continent devoted to the cultivation of blooms used in scent manufacture, while in England there are the lavender fields of Surrey and Hertfordshire.

In the manufacture of scents we are not far behind continental countries. We import great quantities of scent-producing flowers, and many of the perfumes we make are exported and sold in markets near the original flower fields.

The chief perfumes exported are those made from ambergris, castor, and musk, all of which are obtained from tropical lands

Various methods are employed in obtaining and storing the essence or "ottos" of the different flowers. The four principal processes are expression, distillation, maceration, and absorption.

The process of distillation, though largely employed, involves the application of heat, which is injurious to many delicate perfumes; in fact, the scent obtained by this method sometimes differs considerably from that exhaled by the living flower.

In cases where flowers of very delicate perfume are used, the scent is generally obtained by enfleurage or absorption, a process in which no heat is necessary.

Layers of fat are spread over sheets of glass in frames, and blossoms and buds are sprinkled over the fat. Every seventy-two hours fresh flowers are introduced, the operation sometimes lasting two or three months.

Plain Ordinary People.

"It is not the very clever people who attract us most on our workaday round," says a writer in the Woman's Magazine. "We may sit and listen to them, and say how much we admire their brilliant intellects and their original remarks, but somehow we can't imagine ourselves creeping away to them in our sorry-hours and telling them the trifling frets which jade our bodies and souls.

"It is here the homely people come in. They listen to our scraps of drab-time talk, and they don't look superior; they've had drab times themselves—so they let us talk on. And they don't despise little comfortings. They know the value of a cheery fire and a cup of tea and a new book. They pick us a bunch of violets, and the very first rose of the year, and make the hour a gala hour because they know we need it.

"Their houses may not be grand; they may even be a bit shabby, with thread-bare carpets and faded walls. People seek them so often that they haven't much time for prinking the place; besides, much calling makes worn rugs. It doesn't matter, though, even if the place is shabby, no one cares, because the glamor of cosiness is over everything, and aggressively new things would jar. There's such a warmth of sympathy about the spot that we don't stop to ask ourselves if the hostess really cares about our headaches, and heartaches, and footsore moods.

"Of course she does! Hasn't she made us draw the old comfy armchair up close to the blaze? Hasn't she smiled when we meant her to smile and frowned when we meant her to frown, and soothed us by her words or by her silence?"

Red Hair.

"With apologies to any male friends of mine (I cannot remember many) who may have been entitled to the name of Rufus, I am bound to say that I never knew any man who would not have looked better with hair of any other color," says Prof. Saintsbury in "A Scrap Book."

"On the other hand, red hair in girls and women is often—I think much more often than not—perfectly charming. Brick-dust red, with no gloss, is ugly enough, no doubt; but then all hair—except a very peculiar kind of black—requires gloss. Every other shade, from the lightest nasturtium to the darkest auburn chestnut, can be beautiful. This Venice knew, and, long before it, I think, the Greeks. 'The Romans, Mr. Feeder,' did not like red hair, but the Romans were people of very doubtful taste in many points of aesthetics.

"There were probably never prettier girls, or kittens, or roses than there are at present; I do not believe that there ever were braver men than those who fought at Ypres and Zeebrugge; and (rash as this may seem) I doubt whether there ever were greater fools than those we have with us."

Potato Row Ten Miles Long.

The world's longest potato field, with rows ten miles long, is believed to be in Union County, Oregon. The owner of the elongated patch leased the right of way from the Oregon-Washington railway and plants his crop, four rows on each side of the track. It requires a farmer one whole day to make a round trip of cultivating two rows, or 20 miles of plowing.

Aside from the money this potato field brings its owner, the railroad profits somewhat in that the green vines in midsummer are a fire preventative and serve as a fire break for those started elsewhere.

Dancing Craze Is Ancient

Dancing is an invention probably preceding the development of music, and when aspiring man first developed the religious idea it was expressed in the dance. In the Bible, dancing is recorded and approved, indeed enjoined. David among others expressed his religious ecstacies by means of the dance. In his time there were various musical instruments and the dancer no doubt kept time to the tune, or illustrated the music with his feet and body. That a dance can create or sustain illusions and emotions was early discovered. This led to the establishment of the Moslem order of Dancing or Whirling Dervishes, called originally the Mevlevites. The Dervishes were set apart from their fellows, being esteemed of a superior holiness. When they danced they continued until they fell exhausted and perhaps frothing at the mouth, partly as a result of the exercise and partly religious mania. Frequently as they bounded about they nourished themselves on live snakes, coals and glass.

The dancing mania spread from the Dervishes to the Moors at the time when they were the rulers of Northern Africa. The Moorish horsemen to celebrate a military victory would throw themselves from their horses and dance in the desert. They found that they could produce a barbaric sort of music if they tore the metal trappings from the saddle and clashed them together. It was from the Moors that the Spaniards got their distinctive dance, which spread through Europe and was known as the Moorish or Morisco dance. When it reached England it was modified by the native dance and took its place in history as the Morris dance. The only music for the Morris dance was provided by bells that the performers attached to their legs. It had no longer any religious or military significance, but was performed as an entertainment of strolling players. Among them the competitive idea sprang up and various star performers sought to outdo each other just as the Marathon dancers are doing to-day. Some years ago Max Beerbohm wrote an article about one of the celebrated dancers of Queen Elizabeth's time, one William Kemp.

William at the age of seventeen attained some fame by dancing all the way from Norwich to London, Eng. There he educated himself as an actor, but not a distinguished one, we gather, because he reverted to the Morris dance, and danced his way home again. He has left a quaint record of the event in a pamphlet entitled "Kemp's Nine Daies Wonder, performed in a dance from London to Norwich. Containing the pleasures, pains and mind of William Kemp, between London and that city, in his late Morrice." His dance was rather a pleasant one than not, for he was entertained by the nobles at night and in the daytime the peasants would keep him company in his dancing. In Sudbury he relates that "there came a lusty tall fellow, a butcher by his profession, that would in a Morrice keep me company to Bury. I gave him thanks, and forward wee did set; but ere ever wee had measur'd half a mile of our way he gave me over in the plain field, protesting he would not hold out with me; for, indeed, my pace in dauncing is not ordinary. As he and I were parting a lusty country lasse being among the people cal'd him faint hearted lout, saying, 'If I had bogun to daunce I would have held out one myle, though it had cost my life.' At which words many laughed. 'Nay,' saith she, 'if the dauncer will lend me at least of his belles I'le venter to treade one myle with him myself.'

"I lookt upon her, saw mirth in her eies, herd boldness in her words, and held her ready to tucke up her russat petticoate; and I fitted her with bels, which she, merrily taking, garnisht her thicke short legs, and with a smooth brow, bade the tabor begin. The drum strucke; forward marcht I with me merry Mayde Marian, who shook her stout sides and footed it merrily to Melford, being a long myle. There parting with her (besides her skinfull of drinke) and English crowne to buy more drinke; for, good wench, she was in a pitious heate; my kindness she requited with dropping a dozen good courtsies, and bidding God blesse the dauncer. I bade her adieu; and, to give her her due, she had a good care, daunst truly, and wee parted friends." Kemp, you perceive, wrote as well as he danced. It seems that he never wrote anything but this one delightful pamphlet. He died three years later in the thirtieth year of his age—died dancing, with his bells on his legs, in the village of Ockley.

The dancing plague struck England in the middle of the fourteenth century and it is related that in London people danced until they fell unconscious in the streets. Many of them died. The present craze is therefore a revival, having for its object publicity, though the normal person must wonder that value is set upon such publicity. Most of the American lunatics who have been breaking continuous records have not even been paid for their toil. Miss Cummings, a New York girl, who danced twenty-seven hours, received nothing for it, but when she found a week later that her record had been broken she got $25 for staying on her feet for fifty hours. The craving for sleep, we learn, is the chief obstacle to the establishment of new dance records. The performers dance as slowly as possible, just dragging their feet over the floor. The dance can give them no pleasure, and must be infinitely boring to watch. The danger is that it may permanently impair the heart or spine, injuries not noticed at the time, but likely to appear unexpectedly a few years later.

Laziest Women on Earth.

The laziest women on earth must be those of Asir, the almost unknown country beyond the Red Sea. Mrs. Rosita Forbes has just returned from visiting them, says the Yorkshire Post.

"The women are in an extremely primitive state," she said," and never come out of the house except to be married or to be buried. When I asked them how they amused themselves, they replied, 'We don't. For us there is no work."

"I said I quite understand, but would like to know what they did when they were tired of eating and drinking. One pretty girl looked up and said said brightly, "We sit.'"

Mrs. Forbes describes a narrow escapes from death while visiting a harem.

"I was a guest at Yemen harem," she says, "where all the women bathe together in one room. I accepted the offer of a bath, and while chatting, mentioned the word Christian. One woman said fiercely that if a Christian woman came there they would kill her. They took me, fortunately, for a Moslem, as I was disguised.

"It was only when we reached the bathroom that I recalled, to my horror, that the rest of my body was not stained dark brown, like my face and arms! Fortunately I made the excuse that I had forgotten my favorite soap, and thus escaped exposure."

The Silver Penny.

Honor is due the penny for its antiquity. The first emperor of the Franks used as the basis of his coinage the pfennig of which 240 were coined from one pound of silver. The silver penny was the first silver coin struck in England. At first it was made with a cross cut in so deeply that it could easily be broken in halves (halfpence) and fourths (farthings). Copper pennies were first coined in 1797. At one time there was a gold penny in England. It was introduced by Henry III., and was worth 25 silver pennies.

Fossils Found in Spain.

On a farm at Detortello, Spain, have been found large deposits of animal fossils, reports the Scientific American. One complete, measures 76 feet; another is a detached head measuring about 38 feet. Scientists have inspected the find and regard it as most important.

U. S. Money Stops Revolt Is Halted

Republican Movement in Recent Months Has Been Kept Alive by Boys and Girls.

(By Charles M. McCann, United Press Staff Correspondent)

Dublin, July 10.—The civil war just ended in Ireland died of anemia when Irishmen in the United States ceased to furnish it with money, the lifeblood of revolution.

Eamon De Valera, titular head at least of the rebels, signed the death warrant of the Republican revolt when he recently sought peace negotiations with the Free State authorities.

And the government having refused to negotiate, De Valera wrote the rebellion's epitaph when, a few weeks ago, he ordered unconditional laying down of arms by his followers.

But for weeks previous, the Republican movement had been a head without a body. The head itself was much smaller than it had been, with many leaders among the 15,000 Republicans whom the Free Staters had arrested and most of whom are still in prison.

De Valera and a bevy of faithful women had composed the head. The body itself was made up largely of boys and girls, most of them between the ages of 11 and 18.

An indication of the Republican's straits was given in a recent Republican statement, repudiating a letter which, Free State authorities claimed, showed De Valera was not acting in good faith in seeking peace.

WRITTEN BY A BOY.

The letter, purporting to come from a Republican leader, urged maintenance of Republican aims and activities. The Republicans, in giving their version, confessed it was written by a fifteen-year-old rebel, and stated naively that both he and his mother had written explaining it.

For weeks the sometimes spectacular "attacks," burnings and shootings had been mainly for revenge or gain by ordinary highwaymen and thugs, operating under the Republican banner.

De Valera's followers have repudiated all recent attacks. British soldiers who during the Anglo-Irish fighting kept themselves awake at night by shooting at cats, would probably accept the truth of the Republicans' explanation of one of them, published after the usual exhaustive investigation:

"On Thursday morning, at 2.45, Free State soldiers at Portobello and Wellington barracks were firing their rifles into the air. There was no attack, one of them admitted, 'but we take an old bang now and then just to show we're alive'!"

Those two incidents—the "Republic of Ireland" explaining a letter by a 15-year-old "leader," and the "old bang" party that was prominently played in Dublin newspapers as an "attack", show to what state the rebellion had come.

The many new gravestones of brave young Irishmen on both sides will remain as a memento of the earlier stages.

RESCUED WITH SASH

Trenton, N.J., July 10.—Joseph Kanzean fell off his bicycle into a canal. He yelled. Fourteen-year-old Lauretta Burroughes whipped off her sash, threw one end of it to the floundering man and then pulled him ashore.

SHE ONLY BORROWS.

Mrs. Flatbush—Who is that woman you just bowed to?

Mrs. Bensonhurst—Oh, she's my next door neighbor.

"But she didn't return your bow."

"No; she never returns anything."

COUNTESS MARA IS HELD 3 DAYS

New York, July 10.—Concealing her identity while immigration officers worked on the theory that she had entered America in violation of the contract labor law, Countess Mara de Liller Steinhill, from Russia, spent three days in the crowded detention quarters of Ellis Island, where, she said, she found conditions worse in many respects than in the Bolshevik prisons.

Her gentle birth and aristocratic bearing, education and refined manner formed a marked contrast to the background of the detention wards of Ellis Island.

Mme. Steinhill, as she wishes to be known, but a countess in her own right before she married the baron, said:

"I did not mind the confinement at Ellis Island, because, while I have been in more pleasant places, I have been through quite a little hardship since our downfall in Russia. I have been through worse things than Ellis Island's Tower of Babel. The prisons conducted by the Soviet government are not more favorable for diseases than the hall where I was conned with a thousand men and women. We were not even allowed to go out in the fresh air."

WARNS CONSTABLES AGAINST FIRING

Toronto, July 10.—"Constables must not fire after speeders, and imperil the lives of men who are not criminals," said Magistrate Brunton in police court this morning, when Ernest Jukes, charged with reckless driving, was fined $5 and costs. Constabe Sutton said that he had ordered the man to stop at the Langstaffe Barricade on Yonge street, Jukes put on speed and traveled along the jail farm road at the rate of 55 miles an hour. Jukes said that he was afraid they were highwaymen as he had been stopped before. After the car passed the jail farm Constable Sutton fired three shots and when the car went around an S curve it turned turtle and Jukes was arrested.

A new car is always sure of being washed once.

Empress of Scotland Leaves for Cherbourg

Quebec, Que., July 10.—The Canadian Pacific steamer Empress of Scotland, in command of Captain J. Gillies, left Quebec Saturday, for Cherbourg, Southampton and Hamburg with 460 passengers, including 200 first class, 140 second and 120 third class. The Scotland carried in its saloon prominent people from every center of the United States and Canada as well as prominent officials from Japan, China, New Zealand and Australia.

Among the prominent saloon passengers were the Earl and Countess of Lanesborough, returning to London after an extended visit to the United States and Canada.

Quebec, July 10.—The Canadian Pacific steamer Mont Laurier, in command of Capt. J. Turnbull, arrived at Quebec at 2.20 a.m. Sunday and came to anchor in the middle of the stream until 5 o'clock, when she lifted anchor and moved into the St. Charles river and docked at the Canadian Pacific's new terminal dock shed No. 28. This is the first trip this season to Quebec of the Mon Laurier, which will remain in Quebec until she makes her return trip to the other side.

Inquest Procedure Changed at Toronto

Toronto, July 10.—Hereafter jurymen sitting on inquests will not be required to view the body of a victim of an accident or will relatives be called upon to go to the morgue to identify the body except in special cases where the coroner or crown attorney decides it is necessary, Chief Coroner Graham announced.

This will in future eliminate the holding of preliminary inquests which were chiefly for the purpose of the jury viewing the body, and relatives to make identification and will save the city of Toronto thousands of dollars a year in coroner's, jurymen, and witnesses fee, it is said.

HEARING IS ADJOURNED.

Halifax, N.S., July 10.—The application for bail in the case of Dan Livingstone and James B. MacLachlan, the U. M. W. leaders charged with spreading false tales was continued this morning before Stipendiary Magistrates S. M. B. Archibald, and the hearing further adjourned until Thursday of this week. The men were returned to jail.

THE MIDDLE CLASS.

An Attempt to Define a Familiar Phrase.

"What is the middle class? It is not, as many have assumed, a group of individuals bound together by some peculiar quality which separates it from common humanity, like the fabled aristocracy of the revolutionary orators," says Mr. Wilbur C. Abbott, in a recent article in the Yale Review."

"Unlike that aristocracy it depends little on birth and less on tradition. It has, indeed, been the bitterest foe of mere birth and outworn tradition; for it has been the pioneer of the movements which destroyed them. It is not a closed group, for no other class, neither aristocracy nor proletariat, is such a shifting body, continually recruited from above and below; and within it are a hundred grades from capitalist to artisan.

"In the denunciation of its enemies it has been identified wholly with its product, capital. But capital is not the touchstone of the middle class; it is rather that this is the class which has something to sell besides its muscles or its birth: it is composed of that element which is accustomed to rely upon itself rather than upon extraneous circumstance, of birth or wealth or charity or state aid; capable, energetic, ambitious, independent, self-respecting, and thinking for itself rather than subject to mass emotion.

"It is this class which has, in large measure, made us what we are. It has painted the pictures and written the books and brought forth the new ideas of the world. It has furnished the discoverers and the leaders of thought and action, the inventors, and now the capitalists. It has carried on the business of life. It has converted the dream of democracy into a reality. Moreover, above all, it is the time-binding class, not the time-bound nor the time-destroying element; for it is not obsessed by the past, as was the old aristocracy, does not seek to abolish the past, as does this 'proletariat.'

"With all its faults, it is not only the most intelligent, most self-sacrificing, the most constructive, but the most numerous group in evidence today—for it includes every man who believes in the old-fashioned virtues, the so-called platitudes of experience; and it reaches out at the same time to the new."

This action was the aftermath of an arrest made in Deseronto Sunday evening last, when a man was found intoxicated, and told the officers he secured his liquor at Picton. At 3 p.m. on Friday, at Deseronto, Jack McHenry will appear on a charge of criminal negligence, the charge arising from the accident at the wooden bridge, one mile west of Deseronto, on Sunday evening. The three passengers who were in the car with MacHenry at the time of the accident, and who jumped when they saw that the accident was inevitable, are alleged to have disappeared. Their names are known to the officers.

Profusion of Floral Tributes Feature of Ceremony

Funeral services for the late Charles Kelso, who died at his home in Chicago during the week were held here yesterday noon. Services were held in St. Thomas church, the body being removed from the train directly to the church. Interment was in the Belleville cemetery.

At the cemetery the profusion of floral tributes was a feature of the service. The casket was literally buried beneath a bank of wreaths and floral designs.

Mr. and Mrs. Moor of Chicago, the latter, a niece of Mrs. Kelso, accompanied the funeral party here. Mrs. Moor's mother was Mrs. Murray of this city and until her marriage Mrs. Moor resided with Mrs. Kelso in Chicago. Two brothers-in-law of the deceased, Mr. Murray and Mr. Kirkwood of Toronto attended the services.

Mr. Kelso had gone to California in the hope of benefiting his health, but died two weeks after his return.

Intoxicated Spouse Is Lodged in Jail

A Coleman street resident was arrested at 1 a.m. to-day in front of his home, charged with being intoxicated in a public place, after he had followed Police Sergeant D. Boyd and P. C. Booth out of his home as they were leaving, having been called to quell a disturbance.

This morning in police court before Magistrate Masson, the accused pleaded guilty to the charge as read, "providing his verandah is a public place." He was remanded to jail for one week on request of the Crown, and when he requested bail, it was refused.

It appears that the man, on coming home intoxicated, sought to engage in a fight with his wife and mother-in-law, who called in a neighbor, the foreman under whom the accused is employed. The peacemaker also was mixed up in the fracas, and the police were called by the mother-in-law. On their arrival, the "storm" had more or less subsided, and the peacemaker had returned home. The accused was advised to go to bed, but when the officers left, he followed them outside and was taken into custody.

For the benefit of those of the curious mind, the reason that this man's name does not appear, is because The Intelligencer was personally requested not to use the name by both Magistrate Masson and Chief Kidd, for the sake of the man's wife.

CHINA REPUBLIC CAME TOO SOON

Only One Million of 400 Million Population Can Read and Write

Toronto, July 11.—That the general feeling among foreigners in China is that the republic came three generations too soon, especially when out of a population of 400,000,000 only 1,000,000 can read and write, is the statement of H. C. G. Vander Feen, of 35 Dunn avenue, to the press.

Mr. Vander Feen, who had previously served in the Royal Air Force during the war, went out to Hong Kong about three years ago in service of an American bank, and is home on vacation. In 1922 he experienced the inconveniences of a real general strike the kind of thing he said "that is unknown in the American continent."

STORAGE HOUSE IS DAMAGED BY FIRE

Truck Owned by Coco-Cola Company is Practically Ruined

UNKNOWN ORIGIN

J. B. Ives' Estimates his loss at $600 or $700, Partially Insured

Fire of unknown origin which broke out in a wooden building in rear of the Coca-Cola factory on Great St. James street last evening, did considerable damage, the principal loss being a Reo truck, owned by the company. The building is used as a store house for empty bottles and cases and also as an office for Mr. J. B. Ives lime merchant. The building was partly owned by the Coca-Cola Company and the remainder by Mr. Ives. The latter estimated his loss in the vicinity of six or seven hundred dollars, which is partially covered by insurance. The Coca Cola Company was unable to make an estimate of their loss. There was one hundred and eighty-seven cases containing four dozen bottles, two hundred and sixty cases of three dozen and twelve hundred cases of two dozen.

The truck was badly burned and will be of little further use. The building was gutted and will have to be torn down and rebuilt. The dry wood burned quickly and made a great blaze which attracted people from some distance around.

Mr. Ives' offices in the north end of the building were equally damaged. He was unable to state whether the lime could be utilized or not.

Mr. George Lane's house which stands but a few feet from the building had a very narrow escape and was only saved through the heroic work of the firemen. Had the dry shingles become ignited it is probable that the house too would now be totally consumed.

The firemen rendered splendid service and were on the scene of the conflagration a few minutes after the alarm had been sounded. About a quarter past ten Mr. Chas. Mackenzie, standing on the Upper Bridge notified the fire-fighters who immediately hastened to the burning building. How the fire started remains a mystery. The local officials had left the office but a few minutes previous.

The local representaive, Mr. Leroy Keene stated that one of the company's officials from Toronto would be in the city to-day.

The loss, however, will not hamper the company's business to any extent.

"Liniment" Has Too Much Recoil for Nursery Salesman

When Sam Cole returned a horse and rig to John Lafferty's home livery, Pinnacle street last evening before 7 p.m. the buggy was damaged. Cole refused to pay hire or damages, according to Lafferty, and so the latter called the police. Detective J. Truaisch and Sergt. D. Boyd went in search of Cole and found him on Bridge street, in an intoxicated condition, and on his person found a bottle which contained some alcohol. Cole was taken into custody. The livery bill is $7.50.

This morning Cole "told the Judge" the story of the affair in Police Court. Cole, who hails from Cataraqui, near Kingston, has resided in Belleville since June 19 last, from which centre he canvases for the Dominion Nurseries. Yesterday he was in Deseronto, and at noon secured a scrip for six ounces of alcohol from a Deseronto physician, and cashed it at a Deseronto drug store. The liquor was for a bath for rheumatism in the left wrist. Armed with the "liniment" Cole boarded a bus for Belleville. Enroute, Cole said he purchased some "two percent" with which he diluted a quantity of alcohol, and drank it. He also bathed the wrist; but when arrested had almost half a bottle. On arrival here Cole hired the livery outfit and drove out on a business visit, but evidently instead of selling trees, he was in condition to climb trees. On his return, he got into trouble.

"I never drank that stuff before", volunteered Cole, "I just tried it, but I am not drinking any more of it".

Several of the court officials withdrew the cork and took a whiff, and all agreed that it was the kind of stuff to knock cold those who dared to try it.

Cole was assessed $10 and costs or 21 days. Costs were $9. He promised to secure the amount of the fine.

STEAMER FAILED TO STOP, ALLEGED

Accusation Follows as Aftermath of Balloon Race Tragedy.

St. Thomas, Ont., July 11.—An inquiry will in all probability be made into the alleged negligence of the captain of the steamer Colonial, plying between Cleveland and Port Stanley, last Saturday morning, when the wrecked United States naval balloon, A-6698, was sighted in the water about 20 miles off shore.

Discussing the matter, Crown Attorney Angus McCrimmon of this city, who is conducting the inquest in collaboration with Coroner Dr. Jackson of Port Stanley, stated that he intended investigating a report that the Colonial had not stopped. It is suggested that had a boat been sent out to the balloon the basket containing the two aeronauts, Lieut. L. J. Roth and T. B. Null, might have been found, and their lives saved.

REV. H. B. KENNY GIVEN WELCOME

Pastor's Return to Tabernacle Methodist Church, Popular Move.

In the Sunday School rooms of the Tabernacle Methodist Church last evening a pleasing affair took place, when a welcome was given Rev. H. B. Kenny, who for the second time has been selected as pastor of that Church. About 12 years ago Rev. Kenny was pastor and during his term in that capacity his worth was much appreciated. For the past four years he was pastor of the Methodist Church at Campbellford and accepted an invitation to return to the Tabernacle Church, which was sanctioned by the conference recently held at Whitby, Rev. W. Elliott, who was pastor of the Tabernacle Church, replaces Rev. Mr. Kenny at Campbellford.

Many were present at the reception last evening, which was presided over by Mr. R. C. Sidenius, who extended to Rev. Mr Keeny a hearty welcome and promised to united co-operation of the congregation and the church societies. An excellent programme was rendered. Greetings to the pastor were extended by Mr. W. F. Ashley on behalf of the Quarterly Board; by Mrs. T. S. Wardner, President of the Ladies Aid; by Mrs. G. S. Sharpe, President of the Missionary Society; by Mr. J. W. Mallers, one of the four class leaders; by Mr. J. E. Walmsley Superintendent of the Sunday School, by J. Kelly, past president of the Alpha Club; by T. G. Bell, teacher of the Ladies' Bible Class, by T. F. Wills on behalf of the Social Society and Cecil Lent, past president of the Epworth League. To these greetings the Rev. Mr. Keeny responded, expressing his pleasure at returning to the Tabernacle Church and the pledge of loyalty accorded to him.

Features of the program were a vocal solo by Mrs W. J. Knapp; piano solo by Miss Vera Kindred; piano duet by Kathleen Palmer and Muriel Greenleaf; vocal duet by Mrs. J. M. Brown ond Mrs. M.P. Duff, and selections by the choir, with solos by Mrs. C. H. Nicholson and Mrs. M. P. Duff. The hymn "Take Time to be Holy," was also sung. At the close of the proceedings refreshments were served.

MINERS DISCUSS POLICY TODAY

Meeting of Executive Committee Called to Pass on Lewis Order

STRIKE AREA QUIET

Troops Occupy Mines in Cape Breton District Near Glace Bay

Sydney, N.S., July 11.—The District No. 26 Executive meet today at Glace Bay to consider instructions from International President John L. Lewis that the Cape Breton miners should return to work.

Vice-President, McIntyre said today that he had received other communications on the subject, but would not be at liberty to divulge them before tomorrow.

Sydney, July 11.—Armed invasion of the strike-controlled coal mining areas of Cape Breton commenced yesterday morning at dawn when two companies of infantry and a squadron of cavalry seized the strategic points around mines numbers 2 and 9, near Glace Bay, subsequently taking control of the pit mouths, the coal dumps and the power houses.

The move took the pickets of miners completely by surprise and constitutes the initial action toward the reassertion of constituted authority since the Cape Breton miners left their work more than a week ago.

The officers of the British Empire Steel Corporation have been unable to either maintain the properties in their charge or to move coal since the strike commenced, but with the soldiers entrenched at two of the largest mines intend to operate the pumps and fans, keep the lower levels clear of gas and water, and eventually to move coal into Sydney for domestic and commercial purposes.

Calgary, July 11.—Representatives of labor organizations of western Canada will meet Friday or Saturday, probably in Winnipeg, to take sympathetic action with striking Nova Scotia coal miners, William A. Sherman, president of district 18, United Mine Workers of America, announces, adding that plans were proceeding rapidly.

Hon. Jas. Murdock, federal minister of labor, in answer to a telegram from Mr. Sherman, wired that the department of labor's representative in Glace Bay had advised him that the situation at the mines was improving. One mine, the Blooming, began operations Monday morning, Mr. Murdock said, also stating in his wire that he understood that the executive committee of district 36 was to meet Tuesday to consider advices from international President John L. Lewis, that the strike was illegal and contrary to the principles of the U.M.W.A.

WOMEN OF OLD EGYPT SEEK EMANCIPATION

Movement Assumes Proportions Which Alarm the Moslem Press—Feminists Organizing

Cairo, July 11.—A movement for the emancipation of Egyptian women from the strict seclusion in which they hitherto have been kept is developing vigorously throughout Egypt.

The President of the Egyptian women's delegation which attended the recent international women's conference in Rome in an interview this morning said the movement's two primary objects were to consolidate the branches which were enthusiastically forming throughout Egypt, and also to obtain the most radical reforms in the education of women, which she said at present was pitifully inadequate to allow native women in Egypt to take their proper place in the social and public life of their country.

The Moslem press is boycotting the movement, as some of the desired reforms run counter to Koranic injunctions, but the feminists disregard this fact, arguing that conditions today necessitate a flexible interpretation of the Koranic texts.

The movement has now assumed proportions which compel Egyptian men to face it, though for the present they are carefully ignoring it.

UNFIT TO READ

Concerning the story, dealing with the legal action against Rev. T. J. Logan in County Court in Belleville under the Unmarried Parents Act, in a recent issue of Jack Canuck, the Intelligencer wishes to call attention to the fact that reference to the alleged unsavoury details associated with the case was avoided because it is a policy of the Intelligencer to bar from its columns all news that is not fit for consumption in the home.

The management in charge of the news department is new to the city and unfamiliar with local conditions. The stories of Rev. Logan's religious activities were printed in good faith as church news, the copy being prepared and submitted to the editor.

Rev. Logan's name was not used in the court case story because the details were not fully revealed to the editor of the Intelligencer and the policy of disposing of the matter briefly was followed.

The Intelligencer certainly holds no brief for persons of the character attributed to Rev. Logan by Jack Canuck in its article. We believe that men of that type should be banished from every decent community. This is the attitude of the Intelligencer in the matter. Yet, we are of the opinion that such cases belong properly within the province of the courts and public officials, that widespread publicity in connection with them is offensive to respectable persons and that little good can be accomplished by carrying in the newspaper columns, matter unfit to read.

THE BANK OF ENGLAND RATE

New York Times

Yesterday's advance in the Bank of England's official rate from 3 per cent. to 4 is noteworthy as the first change in an upward direction made by a great European State bank, outside of Central Europe, since the credit inflation period of 1919 and 1920. The present marking up of the London rate, which had been left nearly a year at the 3 per cent. level, is not a consequence of returning stringency in the European market; neither is it, directly at any rate, a sign of misgiving over the political situation. The London bank rate very rarely rises on the basis of political influences, except when the political situation has translated itself into adverse economic movements which a higher bank rate might check.

Before the war a large outflow of gold from England, drawing down the central bank's reserve, was the usual signal for the advancing of the rate. That cause can hardly be said to have operated at present, because, in the existing peculiar situation of international finance, all of the gold received by England from the Transvaal is re-exported and export of gold drawn from the Bank itself is prohibited. But the influences which in pre-war days expressed themselves in a large gold export and a falling London bank reserve have now found expression in a reaction of sterling exchange at New York that brought the rate from $4.72½ in February down to $4.56 this week.

This movement against London, coming in almost immediate sequence to the talk of a few months ago regarding the probable rise of sterling to the normal par of exchange, or $4.86⅝, has been discussed as something of a mystery. Yet the main cause is plain enough. It is true that, while the usual export balance in our own foreign trade has been turned to an import surplus, the surplus of imports in Great Britain's foreign trade has been reduced to the monthly pre-war figure—facts which ordinarily would have advanced the sterling rate. But as against that consideration the investment of American capital in foreign securities, new and old, which was the notable influence in the international market a year ago, has completely ceased.

This year our markets have taken hardly any new European securities, and there is reason to believe that many of the purchase made during 1922 have been sold back to Europe. This very sweeping change in the "invisible balance" has naturally been emphasized by England's payment of some $80, 000,000 for semi-annual interest on the British Government's war indebtness to our Treasury, and both of these influences making for a lower exchange rate have undoubtedly been reinforced during recent weeks and months by the disparity between the money rate at New York and London. While open market discounts here ruled at 5 per cent. or higher, under the influences of our very active trade, they ranged between 2 and 2½ per cent. at London, and the consensus of Lombard Street opinion has been that during our period of active trade large amounts of floating capital were transferred from London to New York in order to command the higher rate.

It is undoubtedly with the view of checking this particular influence that the London bank rate has been advanced. The effect on other markets, British and foreign, will be an interesting economic study.

By The Side Of The Road

The Rubicon has been crossed. The Station street by-law has been passed. The theatre of local interest will now be shifted to another quarter.

The intrinsic worth of the Ferguson Cabinet should be enhanced by the including in its membership of a nickle and a Goldie.

"Canada Will Act as Guide to Ireland," says a Kingston paper headline. Good gracious! Let us hope that the two nations do not elect to reverse their relative positions!

It is reported that the Dempsey-Gibbons bout has wrecked a bank at Great Falls. The redoubtable Jack can now experience a thrill similar to that experienced by the man "who broke the bank at Monte Carlo." Lest the reader should assume that we are not familiar with the atmosphere of Monte Carlo, we hasten to explain that the Monte Carlo bank is not a depository for frugal persons.

A Belleville resident, who slipped on a banana peeling on a municipal walk, seeks to recover from the city for injuries sustained. Everybody join in the Council chorus, "Yes, We Have No Bananas!"

John D. Rockefeller, sr., celebrated his 84th birthday by giving away nickles instead of dimes. If he lives to be 100 years old, the oil Croesus may yet outlive his spendthrift habits.

A press despatch says the officials of Washington are worrying about the liquor supply problem. Well, they needn't feel uppish. They're not the only ones who are worrying.

EXTREME BAD TASTE

(Montreal Star)

After a period of quiet, four members from Glasgow and its neighborhood, Messrs. Maxton, Wheatley, and Buchanan, with Rev. Campbell Stephen, repeated that violence of language which has disgraced the conduct of their fellow members in the past. The repetition of these scenes in the House on Wednesday was a challenge to discipline as well as an example of bad taste.

The matter of discipline raises a far larger issue. If a man cannot control an unruly tongue, curb an irritating temper and, more important yet has not learned the basic lesson of discipline, he is not fit to govern in any community, however small.

The Scottish Labor members have given Britain one more lesson by their childish petulance and by the loss of temper that at least some of them are not fit to take a responsible share in the counsels of the country.

PATRICIA BRENT SPINSTER

ANONYMOUS

"Come in, you dear little Grey Lady," cried Patricia, putting her arm affectionately round Mrs. Hamilton's small shoulders, and leading her over to a basket-chair by the window.

For some time they talked of nothing in particular. At last Mrs. Hamilton said:

"I—I hope you won't think me impertinent, my dear; but—but——"

"I should never think anything you said or did impertinent," said Patricia, smiling.

"You know——" began Mrs. Hamilton, and then broke off.

"Anyone would think you were thoroughly afraid of me," said Patricia with a smile.

"I don't like interfering," said Mrs. Hamilton, "but I am very worried."

She looked so pathetic in her anxiety that Patricia bent down and kissed her on the cheek.

"You dear little thing," she cried, "tell me what is on your mind, and I will do the best I can to help you."

"I am very—er—worried about you, my dear," began Mrs. Hamilton hesitatingly. "You are looking so pale and tired and worn. I—I fear you have something on your mind and—and—" she broke off, words failing her.

"It's the summer," replied Patricia smiling. "I always find the hot weather trying, more trying even than Mr. Bolton's jokes," she smiled.

Are you—are you sure it's nothing else?" said Mrs. Hamilton.

"Quite sure," said Paricia. "What else should it be?" She was conscious of her reddening cheeks.

"You ought to go out more," said Mrs. Hamilton gently. "After sitting indoors all day you want fresh air and exercise.'

Patricia could not explain the absurd feeling she experienced that she might miss something if she left the house. It was all so vague, so intangible. All she was conscious of was some hidden force that seemed to bind her to the house, or, when by an effort of will she broke from its influence, seemed to draw her back again. She could not analyse the feeling, she was only conscious of its existence.

From Miss Brent she had received a characteristic reply to her letter.

"Dear Patricia," she wrote,

"I have read with pain and surprise your letter. What your poor dear father would have thought I cannot conceive.

"What I did was done from the best motives, as I felt you were compromising yourself by a secret engagement.

"I am sorry to find that you have become exceedingly self-willed of late, and I fear London has done you no good.

"As your sole surviving relative, it is my duty to look after your welfare. This I promised your dear father on his death-bed.

"Gratitude I do not ask, nor do I expect it; but I am determined to do my duty by my brother's child. I cannot but deplore the tone in which you last wrote to me, and also the rather foolish threat that your letter contained.

"Your affectionate aunt,

"ADELAIDE BRENT.

"P.S.—I shall make a point of coming up to London soon. Even your rudeness will not prevent me from doing my duty by my brother's child.—A.B."

As she tore up the letter, Patricia remembered her father once saying, "Your aunt's sense of duty is the most offensive sense I have ever encountered."

One day as Patricia was endeavouring to sort out into some sort of coherence a sheaf of notes that Mr. Bonsor had made upon Botulism, Mr. Triggs entered the library. After his cheery "How goes it, me dear?" he stood for some moments gazing down at her solicitously.

"You ain't lookin' well, me dear," he said with conviction.

"That's a sure way to a woman's heart," replied Patricia gaily.

"'Ow's that, me dear?" he questioned.

"Why, telling her that she's looking plain," retorted Patricia.

Mr. Triggs protested.

"All I want is a holiday," went on Patricia. "There are only three weeks to wait and then——"

There was, however, no joy of anticipation in her voice.

"You're frettin'!"

Patricia turned angrily upon Mr. Triggs.

"Fretting! What on earth do you mean, Mr. Triggs?" she demanded.

Mr. Triggs sat down suddenly, overwhelmed by Patricia's indignation.

"Don't be cross with me, me dear." Mr. Triggs looked so like a child fearing rebuke that she was forced to smile.

"You must not say absurd things then," she retorted. "What have I got to fret about?"

Mr. Triggs quailed beneath her challenging glance. "I—I'm sorry me dear," he said contritely.

"Dont' be sorry, Mr. Triggs," said Patricia severely; "be accurate."

"I'm sorry, me dear," repeated Mr. Triggs.

"But that doesn't answer my question," Patricia persisted. "What have I to fret about?"

AGNES AYRES AND MAHLON HAMILTON HERE TOMORROW

Filled with thrills from start to finish, Agnes Ayres' new Paramount picture, "The Heart Raider," will be on view at Griffin's tomorrow to Saturday, with a matinee Saturday. Mahlon Hamilton, a popular young screen and stage player, is leading man and heads an excellent supporting cast.

The story deals with a headstrong young woman of wealth who has advanced ideas and rather too much independence. She boasts that she will cause a rich bachelor and woman hater to take her in his arms, and she has a difficult time in making good her boast. Before the bachelor realises that he loves the girl, there is an exciting runaway, a thrilling pageant, a night swim to a yacht, a storm and exciting rescue at sea. Of course all ends happily, but until the final climax, the fate of the heroine, played by Miss Ayres, is in doubt. It is just such a picture as the average screen fan will enjoy. The supporting cast is excellent.

American business has been called the most fascinating game in the world. It is full of thrills and adventures that are all a part of the daily work. This has been written into a story for the screen called "The Phantom Fortune." It is a Universal twelve-chapter attraction, the first instalment of which will be exhibited at Griffin's tomorrow to Saturday. William Desmond appears in the stellar role and he is ably supported by Esther Ralston, Lewis Sargent, George Nichols, Cathleen Cahoun and others.

"Sweet and Pretty," an original and amusing Brownie Wonder Dog comedy, and a Travelogue will also be exhibited.

DOROTHY DALTON AND LARRY SEMON AT GRIFFIN'S TO-NIGHT

If you haven't seen Dorothy Dalton's latest Paramount picture, "Dark Secrets," now on view at Griffin's theatre, you have missed a thrilling treat. As the heroine of the story "Dark Secrets," Miss Dalton falls from a big Bedouin horse "Untamable" that she is riding at a horse show. Miss Dalton, as Ruth Rutherford, is thrown and seriously injured. The ensuing scenes showing Ruth's cure by an Egyptian surgeon, Mohamed Ali, which provokes a thrilling tragedy, makes up an interesting evening's entertainment. In the supporting cast are Robert Ellis, Jose Rubin, Ellen Cassidy, Pat Hartigan and Warren Cook.

"The Counter Jumper," a very funny Larry Semon comedy, "Trapped," a thrilling jungle story, and "Fore!" showing Walter Hagen and other celebrated golf players on the links, are being exhibited on the same program.

GLADYS WALTON IN "GOSSIP" AT REGENT THEATRE TOMORROW

The evil productive of the most harm in modern life is "gossip." That is one of the things learned from "Gossip," the Universal photoplay, showing at the Regent theatre, tomorrow to Saturday, with a matinee daily.

The star of "Gossip" is Gladys Walton, whose flapperizations on the screen have established her as a popular figure but who is cast this time in a role that is anything but a flapper role.

"Danger", a good Jack White Mermaid comedy, a Kinogram, and Pathe News are announced for presentation on the same program.

CLAIR ADAMS IN ZANE GREY STORY NOW AT REGENT THEATRE

As big as the great outdoors, as clean as nature itself, as pulsing with life as creatures of the wild, and with such a background an amazing love story, aptly describes the new Zane Grey picture, "When Romance Rides," founded upon Grey's most popular novel, "Wildfire," which is being exhibited for the last time at the Regent theatre tonight. The picture is a thriller interspersed with lively comedy. Besides the great horse race scene, Goldwyn staged for the film one of the most desperate struggles between a girl and a man ever filmed.

"Torchy's Ghost," one of the best yet of the funny Torchy comedies, Art Accord in a Northwest Mounted Police story titled "Unmasked," and Fox News complete an entertaining bill of screen entertainment.

JOSEPH DORRICOT.

Never to have had an accident attributed to him during the forty-two years in which he occupied the cab of Canadian Pacific locomotives is the record of Joseph Dorricot, Toronto, just retired from active service. He was born in Wolverhampton, England, sixty-five years ago and at the age of 15 began his career as fireman out of the Union Station, Toronto, his duties consisting of keeping the fire grate covered with a plentiful supply of wood. Eight years later he joined the Canadian Pacific at Winnipeg, during the construction of the western lines of the Company. After service on various divisions he was given the run from Toronto to Smiths Falls when that line was opened in 1884, and he kept to that run until his retirement. For some years, and until the general cancelling of the privilege, he had his name on the side of his cab, and he thus became known to travellers from all parts of the Dominion and the United States. His first engine was a wood-burner.

An ounce of prevention

Well, it is especially applicable to visual defects. Instead of enduring, prevent.

Instead of putting up with nerve-destroying eye strain, remove it for good and all, and learn the joys of comfortable vision.

Be far-sighted in the matter of your eye welfare, and have us look your eyes over.

ARE COLD FOODS COOLING IN HOT WEATHER

That depends upon their composition. A cold food, after it is digested, may be very heating to the blood and a very hot tasting food may be very cooling to it, depending on whether food is acid forming or alkaline in nature. There is no difference in the blood temperature from either but acid-forming foods give one a hot, "all in" feeling, while alkaline foods give one the clear brain and erect, energized body that disregards the hottest day. That is because the blood is naturally alkaline and alkaline foods keep it so, while acid foods turn the blood acid, which burns up and destroys the vitalizing elements of the blood and mental and physical energy must run down. Acid foods are white flour, refined cereals, meats, fats and white sugar, sweets. Alkaline cereals are whole grains, milk, beans, peas, green vegetables and fruits.

Roman meal is 400 parts in each 1,000 parts "Excess Alkali." White flour and other cereals run from 50 to 200 parts "Excess Acid." Roman Meal, therefore, maintains normal alkalinity of the blood and keeps you cool and fit upon any kind of a day. Hot Roman Meal porridge or baked products are more cooling shortly after eating than any other grain food eaten cold. But delicious, icy-cold Roman Meal BROSE-O, CHOCOL-O, or JELL-E, can be prepared in ten minutes, served with milk, cream, whipped cream, honey, preserved or fresh fruits. These are a hot day treat, unequalled by any other food for breakfast, luncheon or supper. Prevents indigestion. Relieves constipation. At grocers.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

LIKE A HOUSE—THE VESTIBULE.

In likening that body of yours to a house I can only compare your mouth to the vestibule. I mean the average house.

When somebody calls he is first admitted to the vestibule. If you know him, or he looks all right he is admitted to the house.

Once past the vestibule and he is in your household. Similarly with food. If you know the food, or have satisfied yourself that it is all right, you allow it to pass out of the mouth and down the throat. Thus while it is in the mouth you can do your own choosing and considering. Once it passes through it is beyond recall and enters the tube leading to the stomach. Thus if food doesn't taste just right, has a musty or "bad" flavour you can expel it before it does any damage to that body of yours.

And situated in the mouth are the teeth that grind up the food and saliva to moisten it and make certain change in it chemically. I like to think of the teeth and saliva as servants who interview the food coming in. They say to the food "Well, you may look all right, but no matter how good you look, all food looks alike to us, and we've got to make you presentable before you get past the vestibule (mouth).

You see food in it's natural state cannot be digested and so the teeth and saliva get busy, the teeth grinding and grinding away on the food until it is very small particles.

Meanwhile the saliva has been softening it with its liquid portion and changing the starchy parts of the food into sugar. Thus if you do not chew your food, and get it moistened and changed in the mouth, you let it pass down into the stomach in an unpresentable condition.

Thus your poor stomach in an effort to get the food ready to go further along and be in a presentable condition tries its best to make up for the lack of work done in the mouth. But you see the stomach hasn't any teeth and can't do it as well as the mouth.

So let each part do its bit. Let your mouth do the work it was intended to do.

DRECO TOOK HOLD OF HIS TROUBLES

Splendid results in the way of improved health accrue to Toronto man, although he has taken but one bottle.

Dreco has come to the aid of another Toronto family. Here is Mrs. Lyons' story of the help it gave her husband, Mr. G. Lyons, of 100 Weston Road, South, Toronto.

"My husband had pains all over the body and every joint would ache. He had taken a good many remedies, but Dreco has taken hold of his troubles and is giving him great results. His appetite was very poor and he seemed to lose all strength.

"He has taken but one bottle of Dreco, but feels like a different man altogether. He has no more pains through the body and his food digests properly, giving him plenty of nourishment and strength. Dizzy spells that formerly bothered him have ceased and his bowels act regularly. He can now go about his work in comfort and without that depressing, tired out feeling. He tells me he feels like a new man.

"Mr. Lyons is continuing the Dreco treatment, so that his entire system and every organ will be brought back to normal condition."

All the organs of digestion benefit from the medicinal herb, root, bark and leaf juices contained in Dreco. It tones and regulates and quickly restores them to normal functioning. Stomach, bowels, liver and kidneys may all be helped with this reliable corrective. Dreco contains no mercury, potash or habit forming drugs.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Belleville by The Belleville Pharmacy, and is Sold by a Good Druggist everywhere.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Editor, Intelligencer:

In last night's issue re account of the proceedings of the City Council Alderman Adams is quoted as stating that only three of the property owners of Station street opposed the pavement.

Where does this Alderman get such stuff?

In fairness to the circulator of a certain petition, to the subscribers of that petition and to correct the uncalled for statement of Ald. Adams here are the real facts.

On June 16, 1923 a few days after the rather exciting session of the city council a petition was circulated amongst the property owners of Station St., who opposed the pavement and resulted in thirty-five signatures of bona fide property owners of that street, after the circulating of the petition ceased six more phoned expressing a wish to also sign, making a total of forty-one out of a possible fifty-nine or sixty.

I have the petition in my possession.

This is a vast difference from three as claimed by Ald. Adams. He must consider the other thirty-eight as of no account. The reason why the petition was dropped was on account of a communication from the chairman of the Ont. Ry & Municipal Board to the effect that as far as they were concerned the matter was now, "Defantus office o". This last is not copyrighted and is not intended as an insult to anyone.

Yours sincerely
HOPE McGINNIS.

Mothers Advise Their Daughters to Rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to Keep Them in Health

A Mother's Advice Restores Mrs. Hall to Health

Lindsay, Ontario.—"I had very poor blood and was bothered with pains in my side and back. I took kidney medicine for a while without success. I got pale, weak and nervous. My mother, who has used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a number of years with very good results, advised me to take it and I did. It did me worlds of good. I have gained twenty pounds and have not felt so well for a long time. You may use this letter as a testimonial to help others if you think it worth it."—Mrs. MARY E. HALL, R. R. 5, Lindsay, Ontario.

A Sickly Child

Mahoningtown, Pa.—"I would like to say a few words about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. About a year ago I thought it would be necessary for me to take my daughter out of school. She was losing weight, was nervous, and when she would come home from school she would drop into a chair and cry, and say, 'Mamma, I don't believe I can go to school another day!' I gave her Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and now she is a healthy, happy, hearty, strong girl and weighs 120 pounds. She has no difficulty in doing her 'gym' work and she works at home every night and morning, too. I am a mother who can certainly praise your medicine, and if it will be of any benefit you may use this letter as a reference."—Mrs. GEORGE E. WHITACRE, 621 W. Madison Avenue, Mahoningtown, Pa.

Every girl wants to be healthy and strong, and every mother wants her daughter to do well in school and to enjoy herself at all times.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine for young girls just entering womanhood. Mothers may depend upon it. Remember it is prepared from roots and herbs, contains nothing that can injure, and tends to tone up and strengthen the organs concerned, so that they will work in a healthy and normal manner.

For nearly fifty years it has been used by women of all ages, and these women know its great value. Let it help your daughter and yourself.

EVERY SPORT AT A GLANCE

TY. COBB THE REAL B. B. SUPERMAN

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, July 11.—(United Press) Tyrus Cobb, more or less successful trainer of a fiery bunch of real Bengal Tigers out in Detroit, probably will be breaking baseball records when all the sport writers are in the old men's home.

Cobb came up to Michigan from the Georgia pines eighteen years ago. Since that time he has coralled the following records:

Most home runs, 1,741.

Most games played in the American League, 2,304.

Most years played in the league, 18.

Greatest number of hits, 3,206.

Greatest American League number in total bases, 4,506.

Highest lifetime American League batting average, around 375.

Batted 300 or better for three consecutive seasons.

Batted 400 or better for three seasons.

Made 200 or more hits per season for 17 consecutive seasons.

That's not a bad record for a man to retire on. He has smashed previous marks held by Willie Keeler, Honus Wagner, Jess Burkett and other famous stars. But Cobb isn't preparing to retire. Some days ago he was batting 335, and enjoying it.

There have been remarkable records for time and endurance, but Cobb seems to have broken most of them. Old timers like Joe McGinnity, Jess Willard and Fred Merkle have staged "come-backs" but Cobb never went anywhere he could come back from.

A new record in sport stadiums is established by the new Wembley Hall field, near London. On the date the big stands were opened to the public, 200,000 persons crowded inside the gates.

The arena itself has a seating capacity of 120,000, but the others managed to push their way in somehow or another.

That crowd of 200,000 which went to see a soccer game is 110,000 larger than that at the Dempsey-Carpentire fight, which previously was looked upon by all Americans as the largest assemblage ever to witness a sporting event.

The nearest approximation to anything of the kind in the United States is the new Yankee Stadium, which seats 75,000. The Yale Bowl will hold 60,000, and Braves' field in Boston 48,000.

There does not seem much chance that the United States soon will go beyond what it now has. Big promoters believe the top notch in attendance for boxing was reached at the Dempsey-Carpentier affair. They say there will never, in many years, again be such a gathering.

Hence arrangements now are being made to conduct big athletic events within the facilities already available here.

This is a story of the four great milers who shattered the four-mile relay record in Chicago recently. The quartette shaved 24 seconds from the previous mark.

Joie Ray ran his mile in 4: 13 3-5, but that was not the best time. Ray Watson did a 4;15 1-10; Ray Bulker, 4:30, and Krock, a University of Chicago man, 4:28.

Only a few years ago men who could run a mile under 4:20 were so scarce the world could be combed and the result counted on the fingers of one hand. Now everybody's doing it. Ray has run faster than 4:20 at least forty times.

Luis Angel Firpo scents more pesos.

The Argentinian wild man picked up a few thousand sheckels on his recent excursion down to Havana and Mexico City. He bowled over two set-ups and made much money. Now he is getting set for Jess Willard in mortal combat, scheduled for July 12 in the monster arena in Jersey City.

Firpo is always worth a bet if he can set the right shade of green in front of his eyes, and a victory over Willard would mean that he could start a counter organization to J. P. Morgan and Company.

KINGSTON TEAM IS RE-ORGANIZED

Executive Will Replace Present Players by Recruits From City League.

Kingston, July 11.—Kingston's team in the Central Ontario baseball league is due for a good shaking up. This was apparent yesterday when members of the executive of the local team in the Big Four spent several hours trying to sign up players from the City League teams. It is stated that the executive will make almost a clean sweep of the present players. They are not at all satisfied with the showing the team made at Peterboro on Saturday and feel that in order that Kingston may be able to make good in the second half of the series new blood must be put into the team. So far the managers of the teams in the City League have made no announcement as to their decisions. As far as can be learned the city league executive is strongly opposed to giving over any of their players.

In referring to the action being taken to secure new players, the British Whig says:

"Billy" Hughes, the Queen's University trainer, is the man the Kingston baseball players need to put them in shape to win the second round of the Central Ontario League. "Billy" made a championship rugby squad and he could put ginger into the baseballers.

HARRY BATSTONE QUITS AS MANAGER

"Flat" Walsh is Appointed Manager of Kingston Team.

At Monday night's meeting of the executive of the Kingston Amateur Baseball Association held in the Board of Trade rooms the members accepted with regret, the resignation of H. L. Batstone as manager of the "Big Four" team and appointed James "Flat" Walsh to that post.

In the letter asking that his resignation be accepted Harry Batstone gave the assurance that his every effort would continue to be directed towards the success of the team.

In accepting the resignation every member of the executive expressed regret that Mr. Batstone was withdrawing, and pleasure at the determination to continue to help the team along till the end.

The selection of "Flat" Walsh as manager was unanimous and he was given a free hand to go on and handle the team. The executive members went on record as having the greatest confidence in his ability and determination.—Kingston Standard.

Q. What is the modern record for errors made in a single game by a major league club? By a single player?

A. The Chicago White Sox hold the modern record for the most errors in a game, making 12 against the Tigers on May 6, 1903. Five errors in a game constitutes the modern record for errors by a single player and this has been done numerous times during the last 25 years.

Q. What is the highest major league season batting average ever recorded?

A. J. E. O'Neill, St. Louis American Association, in 1887, hit for .492. The records give no details, with the exception of noting that he played in more than 50 games.

PORT HOPE GUIDE CHAMPIONS ALLEN

President Dedman Seeks to Secure 'Chuck's' Services

(Port Hope Guide.)

President Dedman of the Central Baseball League, was in Toronto Thursday night in the interests of the Cobourg Baseball Club, along with members of the Cobourg Club, asking permission of the O.B.A.A. to allow "Chuck" Allan to play the second half of the season with the Cobourg Club. Allan is at present summering at Port Hope where he has charge of a dance pavilion. The Ontario Association, however, refused to give the permit. It must be apparent to the Ontario Baseball Association that the Port Hope Baseball Club had nothing whatever to do with Allan locating in Port Hope. In fact the local club had withdrawn from the league before Allan had been engaged by the Parks Commission to take charge of the pavilion. Allan is an amateur in good standing and should not be deprived of the privilege of playing ball. Issuing a certificate to Dainty of Oshawa and turning down "Chuck" Allan will require some explanation from the Ontario Baseball Association.

BANK IS WRECKED BY SHELBY FIASCO

Great Falls Institution Involved in Prize Fight Finances.

Great Falls, Mont., July 11.—The Stanton Bank and Trust Company of this city has closed its doors. George H. Stanton, President of the institution was said to have advanced $50,000 on June 16 to make up the second $100,000 payment due Dempsey on his bout with Gibbons, putting up the money at the instance of Mayor James Johnson of Shelby, who gave personal property as security.

The Stanton Bank, with $250,000 capital and deposits of $600,000, opened as usual this morning, but closed its doors voluntarily after 11 o'clock. It was said the bank was unable to take up the morning clearings.

Stanton could not be located today. He was said to have left the bank after issuing a statement that the institution was solvent and that every dollar would be paid depositors.

PRESS OPINIONS

BRITAIN WILL NOT ARGUE.

(Buffalo Times)

Shouting for what they call a "principle," prohibition propagandists are eager to barter their alleged principle for the advantage they conceive they would gain from a twelve-mile limit at sea.

Marquis Curzon, speaking for the British government, refuses to accept the twelve mile limit. Clearly, prohibition is going to get no sanction from that quarter of the hypocrisy back of the twelve-mile proposal.

HELP.

(Gananoque Reporter)

"Daddy," young Benjamin asked one day, "is today tomorrow?"

"No, my son; of course, it isn't tomorrow," was the reply.

"But you said it was," murmured Benjamin.

"When did I say today was tomorrow?" asked the father.

"Yesterday."

"Well, it was. Today was tomorrow yesterday, but today is today, just as yesterday was today yesterday, but is yesterday today, and tomorrow will be today tomorrow which makes today yesterday and tomorrow all at once. Now, run along and play."

SISTERS LIKE TO BE KISSED.

An Ohio State student was recently rejected in his proposal for marriage in such a manner as to give him some surprise.

"No, Robert," the object of his affections said, "I can only be a sister to you."

"Very well," he replied, reaching for his hat, "If that's the way you feel there's no more to be said, but I expected a different answer. Good night."

"Oh, Robert," she breathed tremulously. "Aren't you going to kiss your sister good night?"

THE COOTIES

No insect ever got as much publicity and was as little known to folks as the "cootie," which was the worst enemy of all the soldiers in the Great War. Everybody knows, from hearsay, that the cootie is disagreeable but why?

Cooties have been in constant association with men so long that they cannot live unless they live upon men. A newly hatched cootie will die within twenty-four hours after his birth if he does not get fed on human blood. No other food will do. Adult cooties are able to exist for twelve days without human blood, but after that time they, too, would die if deprived of their ration.

Despite his ugliness and his mean disposition, the cootie is a very sensitive insect where temperature is concerned. Cooties will promptly desert a man if he gets a slight fever or if the body temperature drops slightly below normal.

In his eating habits, Mr. Cootie is a model of regularity, eating three meals per day and taking twenty minutes to consume each meal. After the meal, the little pests usually crawl out and expose themselves for a little exercise and then retire to their favorite resting place, the seams of an undershirt.

At the age of seventeen days, Mrs. Cootie starts laying eggs at the rate of one dozen per day. It takes about a week for these eggs to hatch into cooties.

There are plenty of native cooties in Canada, but not a single one of them was brought back by the returning soldiers. The government took great care to get the men rid of all foreign cooties before allowing them to be discharged from service. The reason for that was that the foreign cooties are infected with virulent typhus germs and might have caused a severe plague had they been allowed to get a lease on life in this country.

OUTWITTED THE MORMONS.

Men were much more numerous than women in the State of Colorado, U.S.A., when it was first opened up by the cattlemen. But over the border, in the neighboring State of Utah, where the Mormons dwelt, were women in plenty. Some among them, having been decoyed thither from English homes by what they rightly deemed false pretences, were none too well satisfied with their lot.

So it came about that the Colorado ranchmen took to raiding across into Utah for wives, "cutting out" their willing captives from under the eyes of their jealous guardians, the Mormon elders, and making off with them.

It was dangerous work, though, for both of them. Eloping couples had to run the gauntlet of the Mormon mounted police, the terrible Danites, or "Destroying Angels" as they were termed, and if these succeeded in catching the runaways death was the invariable penalty.

The true story of one such elopement—happily successful—as told by the rescued girl's husband, is set down by Mr. R. B. Townshend in his newly-published book, "A Tenderfoot in Colorado."

The girl—she was a Lancashire lassie—was "married" to an old Mormon Elder who had a dozen wives already—and she didn't like it.

Then one day there came along a certain Jake Chisholm, a Colorada frontiersman, who offered to aid her to escape and marry her properly according to the laws of the United States; for, of course, these laws did not recognize polygamy, and her so-called marriage with the Mormon, therefore, was not legal.

Chisholm scraped acquaintance with her while he was at Salt Lake on business, and what followed is best told in the plucky frontiersman's own words, as related to the author sitting by his (Chisholm's) fireside, with his rosy-faced English girl-wife seated opposite and smiling approval.

"Some army friends of mine," he said, "got me a suit of soldier clothes that I guessed would fit her. And I went of a dark night and dropped 'em into the yard of that old elder's house, so she'd be able to get 'em; 'course, we fixed it all to rights first very careful.

"I dunno how she worked it to hide the things in the house, where, of course, there was the other wives watching her. But she managed it. And then the next night she slipped out, and got into the soldier clothes, and got over the fence and into my arms that was waiting for her.

"I took her up in the saddle, me sitting on the crupper behind, and we rode like Old Harry through Echo Canon and into Wyoming, eighty miles, and then another twenty miles on top of that. It was the devil's own ride for a young woman. But she was clar' grit, you bet; grit clar' down to her boots."

But the lovers dared not stop there. The Danites, they knew, would be hot on their trail, and Chisholm wanted to put one thousand miles and not one hundred between him and them.

So as soon as the girl was a little rested they hit the trail again, nor stayed still they rode into Virginia City, Montana. There they felt they were safe from their pursuers, and there they got married.

Geography in Names.

Many things we use every day are named after the towns from which they originally came.

For instance, probably you have a pair of worsted socks, which were once made at Worstead, but which nowadays come principally from Huddersfield; or a Panama hat, which comes from Ecuador instead of the place from which it took its name. Cambric handkerchiefs are so-called from the town of Cambrai, in France.

Tweed suits, Inverness capes, and Leghorn hats are examples of the same thing. The connection between damsons and Damascus is not so obvious, but damson is really only a contraction for Damascene plum. Currants got their name from the fact that originally they were made from small grapes, which still grow near Corinth, in Greece; they were formerly called Corinthians.

Cherries came from the city of Cerasus, which once stood in Asia Minor, while chestnuts preserve the name of Castana, another city of the past, whence the trees first came to Europe.

The names of two cheeses, Cheddar and Stilton, come from two villages, one in Somerset and the other in Huntingdonshire. Worcester, Dresden, and Eevres have all given names to different kinds of china, and Delft, a small Dutch town, is remembered by Delft pottery.

Tell-Tale Thumbs.

How large is your thumb?

If it is big, you possess a sign of intellectual strength, good judgment, and a firm character. But if your thumb is small, it indicates that you are one of those people who act first and think afterwards, and who are ruled by the heart and not the head.

The thumb is the most important part of the hand. Without it the hand is almost useless. Consequently, it is not surprising that occultists attach such value to it. The ruling impulses of man, judgment and passion, are to be found in it.

Successful men of business, scientist, tool-users, and so on have large thumbs, while poets and singers have small ones.

In old days the thumb was recognized as an important member, and it has always had a special significance. In the Roman duels upturned thumbs were a sign that the vanquished gladiator was to live, while if they were turned down the beaten man was killed.

USEFULNESS OF COVER CROPS

(Experimental Farms Note.)

Cover crops in an orchard are an essential part of good orchard practice. As the maintenance of humus or organic matter in the soil is necessary to retain proper physical condition, and as manure is becoming more difficult to obtain, and can be used probably to better advantage on other parts of the farm, cover crops fill a very useful purpose in this direction alone. Crops that will make a good growth serve to increase the humus in the soil, but by selecting a leguminous crop such as clover, vetch or pea, not only may humus be added, but also it may be possible to increase the nitrogen content of the soil, thus obtaining a two-fold advantage from the cover crop.

In the colder part of the country, where well ripened wood of the tree is necessary to ensure a chance of proper wintering, it is considered necessary to utilize a cover crop in conjunction with the clean cultivation system. For this purpose the crop is sown about June 30th, allowed to grow all summer and fall, and ploughed under the following spring. The cover will thus draw upon the soil for moisture and food at a time when the tree should be ripening its wood, and will also serve as a means for holding snow, thus assisting in protecting the roots of the trees from severe conditions.

The use of cover crops in connection with bush-fruit plantations has not been developed to any appreciable extent, but with the growing scarcity of manure there seems to be no reason why a combination of fertilizers and cover crops could not be adopted as good practice on areas where raspberries, currants, and gooseberries are being grown at proper distances. Such a combination offers many advantages, where cost of regularly applying manure is becoming prohibitive.

Following are some of the more important crops used for this purpose—Leguminous: red clover, crimson clover, summer vetch, field pea; non-leguminous; buckwheat, rape.

FASHIONS CHANGING

By HEDDA HOYT, Fashion Editor of the United Press.

New York, July 11—Some physicians claim that an ill person sometimes grows a little "worse" just before getting better. It is the same way with fashions.

There is always a turning point, when fashions, changing from one extreme to another, grow decidedly "worse." Some of us are in the "worse" state at present. The change from the long, graceful skirt back to the short skirt has left us in a quandry.

Like Gaul, New York is divided into three parts, as far as dress and styles are concerned. There are the styles of Fith Avenue, which are worn by the best dressed women in New York; the loose-flowing gowns and low heeled shoes of the Greenwich Villagers and the odd mixture of these two which are worn by many of the up-town flappers and the young suburbanites who are still in the "worse" stage, before getting better.

SKIRTS AND HEELS

We will pass Fifth Avenue as the women of that street seldom are in a quandry as far as dressing is concerned. But one look at Upper Broadway or at certain outlying towns adjacent to New York would drive a fashion critic to a soda. There we see bobbed haired girls with long trailing dresses that are made with matronly lines, cavorting about in flat shoes, as heel-less as the slippers of a year old babe. Their heads and feet look young, while their dresses are as mature as an old woman's. They are still clinging to the flat heels which they wore a year ago with the knee-length skirts. Long skirts simply demand high heels or heels high enough to give the ankle and instep graceful lines. If one must wear flat heels, one must turn up one's hems.

Then, as to the makeup, one sees one goes off the main highway. Make up is permissible only if it is pretty and becoming to the wearer. In an outskirt of New York I noticed several school girls with blond hair and childish faces who were made up with yellow ochre powder that would do credit to a South Sea Island siren. Their lips were painted a brilliant orange, their faces dark ochre with orangish cheeks, while their necks were left white like pale stalks to dark flowers. In their desire to be bewitching the girls have overlooked their necks.

ADVICE TO BLONDES.

Blondes should keep to the light makeup; light flesh powder, light rose rouge and a lip-stick the color of one's gums.

A brunette with regular features and an olive complexion can sometimes get away with the "sunburn" make-up, but usually she looks neither sunburned, wholesome nor alluring, but merely as though she had been on a long trip over a dusty road. A brunette can stand more makeup than a blonde providing she does not use too bright a rouge and too white a powder. Blended powder or a regular brunette powder, dark rouge and a dark lipstick deftly applied will be more becoming to her than light colors.

The trouble with makeup is that most of us never know when to say "when."

How to Make Delicious Cherry Jelly

Stem and crush well about 3 lbs. of ripe sour fruit. Remove and crush 2 heaping tablespoons of pits, and add to cherries. Add ½ cup water, stir until boiling, cover pan, and simmer 10 minutes. Place prepared fruit in cheese-cloth bag, and squeeze out juice. Measure 6½ level cups (2¾ lbs.) sugar, and 3 cups of juice into large saucepan. Stir and bring to a boil. At once add 1 bottle (scant cup) Certo, stirring constantly, and bring again to a full boil for ½ minute. Remove from fire, let stand 1 minute, skim and pour quickly.

MANITOBA TURNS DOWN 'WET' BILL

Beer and Wine Proposal Loses by Over 20,000 Votes

MAJORITY GROWING

Result Accepted as Definite Indication of Attitude of Electorate on Bars

Winnipeg, Man., July 12.—Manitoba yesterday rejected the proposal of the Beer and Wine League, which had the backing of the Hotelmen's Association, for the sale of beer and wine with meals in licensed hotels, almost as emphatically as three weeks ago the Province adopted the plan of the Moderation League for sale by the Government of all liquors for beverage purposes. In a total vote of 165,000 the Moderation bill got a majority of 40,000. Yesterday, in a vote of about half that figure the "dry" forces have a majority of probably 25,000.

By midnight the majority against the Beer and Wine Bill had gone to 20,000 and was still increasing. In 210 country polls out of 770 there was a dry majority of 12,187. It appeared that the final majority would go to 25,000, or even higher.

The city of Winnipeg went against the bill by 7,530 in a total vote of 32,772, which is less than half the vote cast at the Moderation referendum on June 22. There were 20,151 opposed to the bill, and 12 618 for it. In June, 66,017 persons voted in Winnipeg, of whom 45,954 were "wet" and 20,093 "dry". The dry vote, therefore was unchanged while 33,000 of the votes which went for the Moderation bill were not cast yesterday.

Official Opening of Rifle Range is Set for Wednesday

Shooting on the rifle range by the A.L.I. Rifle Association has been in process for the last three weeks and the boys are busy making themselves fit for the forthcoming events at Toronto and Ottawa which takes place on Longbranch Ranges from the 6th of August to the 11th of August, 1923 inclusive and Connaught Ranges Ottawa, from the 13th of August, 1923 to the 18th of August, 1923, inclusive.

At Ottawa the marksmen have the opportunity of qualifying for the Bisley Team which represents Canada at the Empire meet where the most coveted prize "The King's Prize," is shot for. Canada has won this prize four ties already and it is hoped that with perseverence that the Belleville marksmen may be able to place Belleville further on the map in the line of sport by bringing the prize to Belleville by the Bay.

Practice shooting is taking place every Wednesday and Saturday afternoon, conveyances leave the Armouries at 2 p.m. and the Range will be officially opened on Wednesday, July 18 when a big prize shoot will be staged and competitions will be shot off under the classification system.

It is suggested by those in charge, that all those wishing to compete, whether members or not, should get in some practice at once.

The prizes and conditions of the various competitions that are to take place will be decided by the executive committee at the general meeting of the Association which is to be held in the Armouries at 8 p.m. on Monday, July 16.

Special matches will be staged for Cadets of the High School and Public Schools, and it is thought that Trenton will be invited to compete.

BRITISH DIVINE ATTACKS BETTING

London, July 12.—That betting tends to developing criminals, and that everybody who bets commits a moral wrong in the same sense as a person who lies commits wrong, was the opinion expressed by Rev. R. C. Gillie, minister of the Marylebone Presbyterian Church, London, and a former president of the national council of the evangelical free churches, in giving evidence before the special parliamentary committee inquiring into the question of betting taxation.

Orangemen Celebrate Battle of the Boyne

BELFAST, July 12 (United Press). The anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne (when the Protestant forces of King William III defeated the Catholic army of James II in 1690) is being celebrated with characteristic enthusiasm by all good Orangemen today. "The Twelfth" is Ulster's national festival, and this year the celebrations are intensified, owing to Ulster's political separation from Catholic Southern Ireland.

The principal festivities were in and around Belfast, where the members of the Orange Lodges mustered in force and marched in miles-long procession through the city and suburbs. Colonel Robert Hugh Wallace, grand master of the Orange lodges, was in supreme command, but the principal speakers at mass meetings were Premier Sir James Craig, the Marquis of Londonderry and other members of the Cabinet, while the Duke of Abercorn, governor-general of northern Ireland, also participated.

While the Orange celebrations are official and practically universal as far as Ulster is concerned, troops and police had to be held in readiness to deal with possible disorders in the Catholic—Sinn Fein or Free State—districts, for the Protestant Ulsterman is not very considerate with regard to other folks' religious feelings when celebrating the "Twelfth."

Several provocative processions planned for the Catholic quarters of Belfast, Londonderry and other centers were banned by the police.

LOCAL ORANGEMEN VISIT OTHER TOWNS

The Orangemen in this city and district were favored with perfect weather conditions for the annual celebration and anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne.

The local organizations, Benjamin Belleville, accompanied by the True Blues and the fife band and kiltie band, together with representatives of the Ladies' Orange Benevolent Association, boarded the 7.45 train this morning for Cobourg where they will take part in the demonstration. At Cannifton, Bayside and Consecon the followers of King William are holding celebration.

From early morning numerous conveyances have passed through the city, bound for some near-by celebration.

SUNDAY GOLF UP IN TORONTO CLUB

Toronto, July 12.—A section of clause 4 in the agreement between the city and the Humber Valley Golf Club, of June 30th, raised a heated discussion at the board of control meeting yesterday.

K. F. MacLaren, managing director of the Home City Estates, Limited, and H. E. Rooney, secretary of the company, appeared before the board. C. Cowling and [illegible] L. Cummer represented Mr. Ralph Connable

The clause provides that the lessee will not, either directly or indirectly take any steps that will prohibit the playing of golf on Sunday during the term of the lease.

KIWANIS STARS TO FIGURE IN PARTY

Club Entertainers Will Enliven Affair To-morrow at St. Agnes School

Tomorrow evening there promises to be a big time at the St. Agnes school grounds where a garden party is to be held. One of the features of the event will be a sing-song which will be given by the members of Belleville Kiwanis club, who will "hold the boards" for more than half an hour with a brand new musical act de luxe.

Kiwanis here, is graced with a bevy of singers and musicians which are hard to beat, and one of their joys of life is exhibiting their wares. They hear one another once a week. Tomorrow evening the public will have an opportunity of hearing the songsters. All Kiwanians will wear the club caps.

They say that the Kiwanians have new songs prepared besides the popular "Banana" and "Google nut" songs, and doubtless they will open with the Kiwanis prolude ensemble. Kiwanian Harold Holten will be in charge of the "builders" and promises that when he gets the boys down to work, they may sing music which has not yet been written.

The public are kindly asked to try and get into the school grounds and in any event to keep off the thoroughfare, as the traffic will be heavy. Parents watch your children.

Stinnes No Angel; He Admits the Fact

Personal Organ of Great German Financier Defends His Policies—Says People Are Dissatisfied

By GUS M. OEHN

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Copyrighted, 1923, by the United Press

Berlin, July 12.—(United Press).—Hugo Stinnes admits he is no angel.

"The German people demand a devil of flesh and blood; one they can lash and hate like the entente lashes and hate the Germans," his own paper, the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, avers and that man, it says, is Hugo Stinnes himself.

In a sarcastic editorial article, the paper declares that everybody in Germany seems to think everybody else is perfect—all except "poor old Hugo." He never does anything right, never has any altruistic motives, thinks of nothing but himself and his money. This doesn't seem to please the German financial wizard, his paper declaring:

"The Germans are angels and Herr Stinnes is none, either."

Pointing out the unrelenting manner in which everybody everywhere attacks Stinnes, the D.A.Z. declares:

"The German Beelzebub is named Stinnes. If one is to believe caricatures even his features show diabolical lines. At the mention of his name class-conscious persons cross themselves Stinnes is against everything and is always on hand except when good is to be accomplished. Unnumbered persons tramp around the stock exchange—the only profiteering crook is Stinnes. One nicks the other in this blessed business—only Stinnes exploits. Everybody everywhere applies himself working until late at night out of pure love of humanity, only Stinnes earns and renders nothing. What sort of pathological ambition must this man possess?

"The Germans are no Angels and Herr Stinnes is none, either. The only question is whether they can permit themselves to be seen, Stinnes among the Germans and the Germans among the family of nations.

"Which leads to the question why should one really be angry at them. The answer is: One needs scapegoats on account of one's own bad conscience. There may be other reasons but this one suffices."

NOT A SOLUTION

Stinnes believes the Republic in Germany is not a solution, but a product of a dilemma, if one is to believe his paper reflacts his own ideas—and such is usually the case.

"The Hohenzollerns left behind a vacuum. The American wind blew away the crown—the frightful baldpate is called 'Republic,' the paper avers in its tirade against those who use Germany and Stinnes as subjects for their hate.

"The Republic in Germany is not a solution, but a product of our dilemma—and it certainly looks it.

"The mass of the people is very dissatisfied—and rightly. It is a bitter dose to live in a nation which is being plundered by the entire world—hindered by force to bring itself in order.

"It is really a wonder that nothing more has happened. Persons of intelligence know that our misery comes from outside. But one can not ask that all Germans be intelligent. One must have one's inner Beelzebub on whom to cool off his political force. The German people demand a devil of flesh and blood one they can lash and hate like the entente lashes and hates the Germans."

And that man Stinnes' own paper avers, is Hugo Stinnes himself. And, it concludes, "that's all there is to it."

BURGLAR TOOLS FOUND ON PAIR

Youths Arrested at Oshawa Have Suspicious Equipment in Possession

ONE BELLIGERENT

Pair Lodged in Jail to Face Trial on Several Charges

James River, aged 21, of New Brunswick, and William Dubriel alias Miller, aged 22, of Manchester, New Hampshire, U. S. A., were arrested at the Oshawa Canadian National depot on Tuesday evening at 8.30 p.m. by special officer B. B. Harris of the C.N.R.

Both men appeared before Police Magistrate Hind, of Oshawa, Wednesday and were remanded to the Whitby jail until July 19, when they come up for trial on four charges. In the meantime the finger prints of both men will be taken, and sent to the Dominion Government Bureau at Ottawa, and to the corresponding bureau in the United States, in order to prove their past records.

When searched, each man carried a revolver, one a 32 calibre, and the other a 38 calibre. Both were well supplied with ammunition, and they also carried a kit of burglars' tools, along with newspaper clippings telling of meetings of pick pockets and other unlawful meetings. The men were fairly well dressed one being partly attired in soldiers clothes.

Officer Harris, who travels throughout this district daily on the main line watching for persons who ride the trains was on a passenger train Tuesday, which was on the grade between Port Hope and Newtonville, when he noticed the two men board the train, and climb to the top. When the train stopped at Oshawa, the men descended and stood close to the track on the ground, apparently waiting for it to leave the station Harris approached and questioned them They denied riding the train, but their explanations were unsatisfactory and the officer placed them under arrest One of the pair reached toward his hip the officer said, but Harris seized his wrist and handcuffed him, at the same time grasping the second man. After they were handcuffed, the men were truculant, and it was necessary for Officer Foster of Oshawa to aid officer Harris in removing the handcuffed pair to the police station at Oshawa.

After their arrest, the men informed Harris that he deserved credit for having landed them, but stated that had they seenhim first, he would never have succeeded.

The men will be charged with breach of the Ontario Railway Act, carrying concealed weapons, carrying burglars' kit, and vagrancy.

Music Means Business

Detroit, July 12 (United Press).—A never-failing prosperity barometer lives in a little restaurant on the east side, here. It is a diminutive canary bird, with a very musical whistle, the property of Alonzo Galdias, owner of the restaurant.

"Chiquita" hangs from the ceiling of the little restaurant, directly over the cash register. When the bell in the cash register chimes. "Chiquita" sings. The faster the bell, the happier the bird.

"Chiquita never fails," Galdias confided. "Lots of whistle, lots of business. No canary singing, business punk."

Lindsay Physician Is Disqualified For Infraction of O.T.A.

Lindsay, July 11.—Great indignation is being expressed by all classes of the citizens as a result of the action of the Ontario Medical Council in disqualifying one of the town's leading physicians from practising his profession for a period of six months as a result of an infraction of the Temperance Act.

Last fall two spotters, who were in the employ of the Attorney-General's Department, visited Lindsay and called on a number of physicians. They stated they were members of a theatrical party and as a result of their deception succeeded in procuring scripts. Informations were laid against three physicians and all were fined, $1,000 being imposed on the physician referred to. On Thursday he received information to the effect that because of this offence he was barred from practising his profession until January, 1924.

This announcement has called forth vigorous protests and the opinion is freely expressed that an injustice has been done the physician who stands high in the community and whose practice covers a wide territory.

It is understood that an appeal will be made to the government, although it is claimed that it has no jurisdiction in the matter.

FUEL BOARD URGES PURCHASE OF FUEL SUPPLIES BEFORE SEPT. 1ST

Demand for Wage Increase May Result in Anthracite Coal Shortage

The following letter has been received by Mayor Bennett from Chairman Camsell of the Dominion Fuel Board at Ottawa:

His Worship the Mayor,
Belleville, Ont.

Your Worship:—

The Dominion Fuel Board wishes to call your attention to a matter of urgent public importance. In view of the uncertainty that exists in the the anthracite coal industry in the United States because of the difference between operators and miners which will require adjustment before a new agreement can be reached, it is considered particularly advisable for you to urge the people to secure their supplies of fuel before the 1st of September, on which date the agreement expires. The miners are making demands for substantial increases in wages and there is no assurance that we may not be faced with another period of acute fuel shortage. At any rate, there is no reason to expect a drop in price, and postponment in buying would only be attributing the price increase and congestion in transportation.

Your attention is also directed to the fact that Welsh and Scotch anthracite, both high grade fuels, are coming into the country in fairly large quantities; also a considerable quantity of coke, a fuel which we believe will replace anthracite in the future, is available.

While a decided prejudice exists against our own bituminous coal for household purposes, it is a fact that many of the causes of dissatisfaction disappears when this fuel is properly fired. We are convinced that much larger quantities could be used as a domestic fuel, with satisfaction, and would, be pleased to supply, on request, a pamphlet of instructions on the proper method of firing soft coal in domestic furnaces.

I feel sure that it is not necessary to recall to you the worry and inconvenience of last winter to enlist your aid and influence in taking steps to bring this matter before your people and in endeavouring to obtain the co-operation of both coal dealers and the public in making a particular effort to obtain and store coal in the coal-bins of consumers at once. We would also urge that substitutes for United States anthracite be purchased whenever obtainable.

Yours very truly,
(Signed) Charles Camsell.
Chairman.

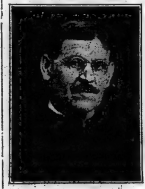
I AM NOW A DIFFERENT MAN

So Says Retired Salvation Army Officer, Who Regains Health After Ten Years Suffering—Claims Dreco a Wonderful Remedy.

"For the past ten years I have suffered from neuritis and a general run-down condition of the system." states Mr. Philip Lewis, a former Salvation Army Major of the Junior Sunday School, Maidstone, Kent, England and now a well-known citizen of Toronto, residing at 493 Keele Street.



Mr. Philip Lewis.

"After my arrival in Canada twelve years ago I was taken ill with pneumonia, which resulted in a nervous, weakened condition of my system. Finally neuritis set in and the following four years I was in most of the time, gradually becoming worse, until it was almost impossible for me to drag one foot in front of the other. This necessitated the use of a cane when trying to walk.

"I tried many medicines and spent hundreds of dollars without getting results. Since June, 1922, I had been unable to do any work, my entire system being so very weak. I had just about given up all hope of recovering when I happened to read how much Dreco was doing for others, so I decided to try it.

"After taking Dreco only one week, the results were so surprising that I decided to continue the complete treatment, which I have done and I am now a different man.

"Dreco is a godsend and I gladly recommend it to anyone. I am one hundred per cent. better in every way and have started working again.

"I have no more terrible aches and pains through my limbs and back, and the use of the cane is no longer necessary. This improvement I feel is really wonderful for a man of 60 years of age to receive in so short a time. My health in general is greatly improved and I feel much stronger."

Dreco is a natural remedy prepared from roots, herbs, bark and leaves, and tones and regulates all the organs of digestion, up-building the general health. It contains no mercury, potash or habit forming drugs. Long standing, obstinate digestive complaints yield readily to their reliable corrective.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Belleville by The Belleville Pharmacy, and is Sold by a Good Druggist everywhere.

DOGS TRIED IN COURT.

Canines Are Expected to Maintain Standard of Morals.

A dog in a sheep country has a high standard of morals to live up to. He is not just a dog and, therefore, like the famous curs of Constantinople, merely to be tolerated. His name and character are as well known as those of any shepherd. If he protects sheep, his master loves him and makes him a member of his family far more intimately than he does a cat or any other domestic animal. But woe unto him if the master catches him worrying sheep! Even though he may have grown old in blameless devotion, he must pay the death penalty.

A story comes from Winchester, Kentucky, of a famous foxhound that was recently put on trial in that town for killing sheep, and of two puppies that "were implicated."

The whole proceedings were marked with the solemnity and regularity that attends a trial of human beings. The prisoner at the bar, well known as Old King, was allowed two attorneys for his defence. Witnesses were called to testify to his good character, but the evidence of his enemies was too strong, and the judge remitted the death penalty only because of the many appeals for mercy that poured in to him from all over the state. The final judgment was that the old dog should suffer exile from Kentucky for life.

In the Scotch Highlands, the scene of that famous dog story, "Bob, Son of Battle," there is perhaps no formal trial when a trusted dog kills a sheep; the execution of justice follows the swift processes of lynch law. Still trials of dogs are not so rare as you might suppose. In Paris a few years ago a ladies' pet terrier was summoned before a police magistrate for a serious canine misdemeanor and mulcted a considerable fine, which, fortunately, his mistress paid for him.

There is no doubt that the ordinary dog has eaten a bit of the bark, if none of the fruit, of the tree of knowledge. He knows very well when he has done wrong and is most abject when his master summons him for punishment. On the other hand, when he has done a clever thing his desire for approbation passes all bounds. Persons who dislike dogs are not slow sometimes to accuse them of crimes and misdemeanors of which they are guiltless. It is quite right, therefore, that they should have the benefit of trial by those who are not prejudiced against them.

Another thing: it might not be amiss at times if men were tried for certain offences by dogs. It is hard to believe that a man who has the affection of a dog is really disreputable or wicked, though it is true that there have been such cases—a circumstance that may have given rise to the North of England saying that mother nature put hair over a sheep dog's eyes so that the animal could not see the faults of those who loved it. In the old days a man's guilt or innocence rested upon far shakier testimony than the evidence of a dog's affection or dislike and it is not at all certain that to-day a wise dozen of dogs might not in some cases determine more clearly a man's guilt or innocence than twelve stodgy individuals of the human species would.

ADVERTISE IN THE DAILY INTELLIGENCER.

Increase in Farm Mortgages Shown

Madison, Wis., July 12 (United Press).—Interest rates on farm mortgages are lower in eastern Wisconsin than in any other part of the nation and highest in Texas, New Mexico and Montana.

These are the findings of the institute for research in land economics of which Prof. R. T. Ely, University of Wisconsin economist, is director. Figures of the 1920 federal census were used in the compilations.

"In east central Wisconsin, where the rate is from 4.6 per cent. to 5 per cent., there is found an intensive dairy section inhabited by a thrifty class of farmers of foreign descent," the institute comments. "Further study reveals the fact that from 70 to 90 per cent. of the money borrowed comes from the community, indicating a surplus of local capital.

In the southern part of Texas, the interest rate ranges between 6 and 10 per cent. In most of New Mexico, from 7.6 to 9 per cent.; in Montana and parts of Wyoming and Idaho, from 7.6 to 9 per cent., the report says. The rest of Wisconsin, all of Iowa, the upper half of Illinois and the southeastern corner of Minnesota are included in an area in which the interest rate on farm mortgages ranges from 5.1 to 5.6 per cent.

New York state, the eastern half of Pennsylvania, Vermont, New Hampshire and most of Massachusetts range between 5.1 to 5.5 per cent.

Alabama, Georgia and South Carolina range from 7.1 to 8 per cent. Florida's rates are from 7.1 to 9 per cent.

The Pacific coast seaboard of California, Oregon and Washington are in an area calculated at from 6.1 to 6.5 per cent.; the eastern half of these two states averages between 6.6 to 7 per cent.

Louisiana ranges from 7.1 to 7.5 per cent.; Arkansas from 7.5 to 9 per cent.

RAIN AND INTEREST RATES.

"Physical conditions, such as soil, climate and rainfall are influential, as direct correlation is observed between interest rates and amount of summer rainfall in corn and hay crop regions, and also between annual precipitation and the interest rate in wheat regions," the institute says.

The study of interest rates is being carried further to work out with exactness the factors governing interest rates, with particular reference to the connections of rates with the value per acre of land and amount of available local capital.

The institute also announced new totals from the 1920 census which show that the number of farms in the nation operated by their owners has been increasing during the last thirty years, and that the number of these "owner-operated farms" which are mortgaged has been increasing even faster.

The number of "owner-operated" farms in 1920 was 3,923,000; in 1910 it was 3,943,722; in 1900 it was 3,638,403; in 1890 it was 3,142,746.

MANY ARE MORTGAGED.

In 1890, 28.2 per cent. of these owner-operated farms were mortgaged; in 1900, 31 per cent. were mortgaged; in 1910, 33.6 per cent. were mortgaged; and in 1920, the percentage jumped to 41.3.

The number of farms operated by the owners in New England dropped from 165,455 in 1890 to 140,160 in 1920; the "middle Atlantic states" showed a similar drop, and the "east-north central" did not change perceptibly.

The largest increase was shown in the mountain states, where the number of owner-operated farms jumped from 53,142 to 202,515 in this period, and in the Pacific coast states, which increased from 84,375 to 180,144.

The increase in the number of mortgages on farms operated by owners was acute in the pacfic coast, mountain, west-south-central, and east-south-central states. On the Pacific coast, the average percentage of such farms mortgaged hopped from 28.7 per cent. in 1890 to 52.1 per cent. in 1920; in the mountain states from 14.1 to 52.2 per cent.; in the west-south-central, from 4.8 to 40.7 per cent.; in the east-south-central, from 4.5 to 26.9; in the south Atlantic states, from 7.4 to 22.4 per cent. The New England, middle Atlantic, east-north-central and west-north-central showed small increases.

An ounce of prevention

Well, it is especially applicable to visual defects. Instead of enduring, prevent.

Instead of putting up with nerve-destroying eye strain, remove it for good and all, and learn the joys of comfortable vision.

Be far-sighted in the matter of your eye welfare, and have us look your eyes over.

Royal Family Set on Policy of "All-British" Marriages

By P. M. SARL

London, July 12 (United Press).—The British royal family is now definitely British royal family is now definitely set on a policy of "All-British" marriages, and no foreigners need apply.

Such is the interpretation generally placed on the announcement of the betrothal of Princess Maud, daughter of the princess royal and niece of King George, to Lord Carnegie, heir to the ancient earldom of Southesk.

The pre-war weddings of Prince Arthur of Connaught to the Duchess of Fife (Princess Maud's sister) and of Princess Patricia of Connaught to Captain Alexander Ramsey, were regarded as interesting incidents, but not necessarily precedents.

But since the war all British royalties have taken British brides or bridegrooms, greatly to the satisfaction of the British public. There have been no fewer than four such weddings. Princess Mary set the pace by marrying Viscount Lascelles; Lord Louis Mountbatten, King George's cousin, married Miss Edwina Ashley; the Duke of York "hitched up" with Lady Elizabeth Bowes-Lyon, and Lady Mary Cambridge, Queen Mary's niece, married the wealthy young Marquis of Worcester, heir to the dukedom of Beaufort.

There may have been financial reasons for some of these matches, but the bethrothal of Princess Maud has a double significance in that, although not one of the best known members of the royal family, she is an extremely eligible heiress. Her father, the late Duke of Fife, was of extremely ancient and almost royal blood and, moreover, he was a millionaire. Her mother is King George's sister and princess royal of Great Britain, hence Maud was in every way the kind of girl to be quickly married off to foreign potentates for dynastic and diplomatic reasons. Not many kings have such eligible kinswomen to place on the marriage market.

It is true that the princess royal kept away from court, diplomacy and foreign politics immediately she stepped outside royal ranks to marry the Duke of Fife, but she is a woman of considerable determination and by no means inclined to be made a pawn of in the diplomatic game of dynastic chess. Princess Maud has selected the man she wanted, regardless of rank or money, and the fact that she was allowed to do so confirms the suggestion that hereafter royal foreigners are not wanted in the British reigning family.

Now for the Prince of Wales—is the general cry. "Eddie" is surely booked for an English girl.

Princess Maud is one of the merriest members of the British royal family. She it was who dubbed her mother "Her Royal Shyness," and she irreverently called her cousin, the Duke of York, "the Lobster." Maud keeps things lively in spite of her thirty years.

SINGLE LADIES DEFEAT MARRIED SISTERS IN FAST PICNIC GAME

Mrs. G. Nayler Hits Home Run—Prizes Awarded in Racing Events.

On Wednesday afternoon the fourth annual picnic of the members of Quintena Rebekah Lodge No. 133, I.O.O.F., was held at Hillcrest, Consecon Lake. Transportation for the picnickers was provided with autos of all description, trucks, buses and numerous private cars. On arriving at Hillcrest the first attraction was the ball game between the married single ladies. Charlie Kline acted as manager of the married ladies and "Duke" Smith managed the single ones. Geo. Naylor umpired on bases and Dick Ketcheson umpire at the home plate.

The teams were as follows: Married—Mrs. Jordan, H. Naylor, Cole, Brower, Frost, Soales, Cornish, G. Nayler and Rutherford. Single—Misses B. Cornell, G. Bunnett, L. Mikel, S. Johnson, J. McIntosh, L. Moore, R. Twining, C. Hall and L. Parry.

The batteries were Mrs. H. Naylor and Mrs. Jordan; Miss R. Twining and Miss L. Parry.

The first innings resulted in five runs for the single ladies. Duke Smith brought out a southpaw pitcher, Miss Twining who pitched a la Jack Williams' style. In the second innings the single ladies succeeded in driving Mrs. H. Naylor from the box and she was relieved by Mrs. G. Nayler, but 11 runs were scored before the side was finally retired. The game was called at the end of the third innings as the married ladies could not stand the pace set by their younger sisters with the score 18 to 10 against them. Mrs. G. Nayler proved the champion hitter by scoring a home run.

Duke Smith then played a men's team against Ed. Cherry's nine and was again victorious by 7 to 2. The following races were then run off and the winners were as follows:

Children under 12—1st—Grace Lindstrom; 2nd—Lillian Naylor.

Needle and Thread race—1st—Miss L. Mikel; 2nd—Miss S. Johnson.

Free for all, ladies—1st—Miss C. Hall; 2nd—Miss B. Cornell.

Consolation, ladies'—1st—Miss G. Bunnett; 2nd—Mrs. Beal.

Frank (Duke) Smith was the champion sport as he managed two winning ball teams, captained the winning tug-of-war team and came in first in the fat men's race.

Supper was then enjoyed, the good things provided by the ladies being very quickly put away. The presentation of prizes was the cause of more fun as some were very original, one lady winning a skirt hanger which eventually proved after considerable unpacking to be a three-inch nail.

The Belleville Orchestra under direction of Mr. Clark Dickens, supplied music for dancing, the dancing pavillion being filled to capacity.

HOUSECLEANING TIME

Housecleaning is underway in the Parliament Buildings at Toronto. Those who have directed the affairs of the province during the past four years are preparing to make way for the new administration, which will officially come into being on July 16.—The housecleaning, in a larger sense, occurred, however, on June 25, when the new administration was chosen by the electorate of the province. It is during housecleaning time that dark corners are exposed to the light, household skeletons are brought forth from their hiding places and carefully guarded secrets are liable to become public property.

This has already happened at Toronto and much that has been revealed has furnished additional proof of the wisdom evidenced by the voters of the Province in effecting a change of administration.

In this connection the action of Mr. Drury in collecting his "back pay" is rich in significance. His "renunciation" in the matter of stipend as first minister was a choice topic for eulogists of the administration. But Mr. Drury's plebian gesture has exposed the clay feet of their idol. Other revelations associated with the housecleaning activities provide further proof of the existence of other formerly hidden shortcomings.

When the out-going administration officials have removed their political Lares and Penates and have vacated the governmental premises, the people of the province will be at once wiser and thankful.

Premier-designate Ferguson has gathered about him, men who are known to the voters of the province. Most of them are experienced in the affairs of government and others are qualified because of experience in other fields. Those of the latter group have achieved prominence through success and their records warrant their selection for cabinet posts.

With a competent, Conservative majority in the House, Mr. Ferguson will be able to administer the affairs of government in a manner that will fulfill the promises of the Conservative party.

HIGHWAY PERILS

The frequency of automobile accidents in Belleville and in the vicinage of the city during the past few days seems to indicate that motorists are not piously observing the safety regulations devised to reduce the number of such accidents.

Railway crossing collisions are, as a rule fraught with the greatest peril and in these the motorist is nearly always at fault. Sheer recklessness and foolhardiness are generally the contributing causes of such accidents. Inexperienced drivers misjudge speed and distance, but this fact does not mitigate the fault. Every person at the wheel of a motor car to whom are entrusted the lives of fellow passengers should exercise extreme caution at all times. Those who fail to do so, are guilty of criminal negligence. Experienced drivers, however, are guilty of recklessness frequently. It is they, who are responsible for the greater number of accidents.

When railway crossings are properly equipped with safety devices and drivers exercise reasonable caution the menace will be materially lessened. It is the duty of every municipal and community government to enforce or insure the enforcement of all laws pertaining to safety devices on railway right-of-ways and public highways.

In public thoroughfares, the fault in collision accidents often rests with the driver of one car. Thus, not infrequently several persons are killed or maimed because of the carelessness of one person. On Sundays and holidays the accident toll is heaviest. This is due in part to the heavier traffic, but there are other reasons. One motor party, delayed in starting the homeward journey, perhaps, desires to overcome the time handicap on the road. The result is a dangerous degree of speed and reckless swerving to pass or to avoid other cars. Young people, heedless of the danger, frequently come to grief in this manner. Moreover, these speeding parties jeopardize the lines of all travellers on the highway. Other motorists speed on well paved highways to "show off" their cars or to convince others of their prowess as drivers. Such persons should be severely punished when found responsible for accidents.

In the main, it would seem that the exercise of reasonable care and observance of the traffic regulations would greatly diminish the danger. When broad and smoothly surfaced highways serve to encourage speeding and other forms of recklessness their attractiveness is lessened. It must be borne in mind also that motor cars are rapidly increasing in numbers, thereby aggravating the situation. "Exercise caution at all times "should be rule No. 1 for motorists.

By The Side Of The Road

Many a charming young lady, who married a man to reform him, is now assisting him to make moonshine.

The Battle of the Boyne will be fought again in retrospection in many places in Canada today.

The Firpo-Willard match at Boyle's Thirty Acres today should draw a good crowd. There is something about the name of the arena that suggests a good scrap.

A Philadelphia man, who had invested his life savings in German marks, committed suicide. He probably became mentally deranged trying to compute his wealth in marks.

In Detroit the other day a young lady was seriously injured in a motor accident. No wonder,— the driver's name was Philip Quigley (say it fast).

If Great Britain should decide to play a "lone hand" in the German reparations game, she will have the advantage of having an "ace in the hole"—and several more up in the air.

Over in England, silk toppers and straw hats are rivals for supremacy as sartorial crowns, the toppers, of course, having the edge. In Belleville a good straw lid is always fashionable—in the summer.

PRESS OPINIONS

FORCE NO SOLUTION

(Omaha Bee)

Mere force has never yet permanently solved a world-wide problem, and men are not made perfect by legal enactment. Not until the mind and heart are turned toward righteousness is man regenerated, and this is to be accomplished only by lifting up to Him who said, "And I if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto Me."

The Lord was not in the great fire that appeared. He was not in the tempest that swept over the land. He was in the still, small voice. And it is that still, small voice that shall lead the nations to the new day, and not the fulminations of statesmen nor the flash of warring swords.

AN OBJECT LESSON

(Montreal Le Canada)

The farmer government, having the most exclusive tendencies, did not know how to satisfy the wants of the population as a whole, who have therefore found it necessary to return to the old parties which gave better results.

Moreover, the farm group had no experience of government, just as is the case of the other provinces of the West, where uneasiness is showing itself more and more.

The result of this inexperience is that the debt in Ontario has been increased by $150,000,000, in only four years of farmer government, a record said someone, which has never been equalled in the annals of British parliaments. It is an experience which has thus cost the people of Ontario dear and a lesson to those provinces which have not yet launched out on a similar adventure.

FOR FUTURE GENERATIONS

(Natal Advertiser)

Whether we are to have another war, "twenty, thirty or forty years on," is in the lap of the gods. Whatever is done today will not bind the unborn generations. But this is certain.

He will do the unborn generations the best of all services by ensuring them conditions which will secure them peaceable employment, food, shelter, education and leisure for contemplation without the shadow of the sword falling athwart their paths wherever their feet are turned.

HARD ON DOBBIN.

Before our agrarian population had taken so enthusiastically to the automobile two farmers drove into town in an old spring wagon pulled by a very bony nag. The little burg had just been incorporated, and among the evidence of this was a brand-new sign at the town line: "Speed limit, 10 miles an hour." Observing this, the driver began whipping up his steed vigorously.

"What's yo' hurry?" demanded the companion in mild astonishment.

"See that sign?" returned the other. "But I dunno if I can make it or not."

VITAL QUESTIONS OF TODAY

(New York Evening Post)

Two big questions have divided the American people. One group wants to know how to get the most miles out of a gallon, and the other wants to know how to get the most kicks out of a quart.

THE ACID TEST

(Cleveland Times-Commercial)

We see no way to determine who the ten greatest living American women are without conducting a few tests in the kitchen.

DETERMINANT FACTORS

(London Post)

The determinant factors in the destiny of a nation are temperament and economic conditions. If, as in the United States, there is every variety of temperament, and an economic condition in which the problems of production and exchange still present immense difficulties, what will be the ultimate development of America?

It is a question which touches the British Empire; and Dr. Butler's lectures will serve to help both countries towards its enlightened consideration.

PRIZE RING OR GOLF GREEN!

(Montreal Star)

Less than seven thousand people visited the Shelby fight. The satisfactory feature about this crowd at Shelby is that it was a mere handful compared with the packed masses of former fights, while at Kanawaki the crowd was larger than in previous years. Is it possible that men and women are beginning to see through the tinsel of these prize fights, to rub below the surface so skilfully larded over by propaganda and to catch a glimpse of this tawdry battle in its true light, its commercialism, its vaudeville and its bestiality?

Which was the better game to watch, Shelby or Kanawaki.

RECOGNITION OF BANTING

(Montreal Soleil)

The Prime Minister has consecrated, by this action, a principle dear to his heart, the recognition by the state of brain workers, of those who devote their abilities, their whole lives even, to toil both useful, and essential to the progress of society.

A career in the realm of science offers a thousand difficulties. A man engaged therein must shut himself up within his researches sacrificing worldly pleasures for the ideal which he has created for himself. Perseverance will often bring him results, having a wonderful benefit for the world.

Unfortunately merit has not always had its recognition in this world. It has frequently happened in the course of history that men who have devoted their whole lives to the betterment of man's condition are left to a miserable and forgotten death.

POWER OF SUGGESTION

(Providence Journal)

During the hot wave there are many ways to keep cool or at least minimize one's discomfort.

We may eat non-heating food, avoid the sunny side of the street, use an electric fan, maintain a moderate pace in walking, refuse to be drawn into unnecessary controversies, think calm thoughts.

Or we may contemplate such refreshing news as this:

London, June 19.—Although it is past the middle of June, the country has been in the grip of a long spell of cool weather and many a British household gathers around the fire at night, as if it were Christmas. Even in the south of England, frosts frequently occur, working havoc with garden and fruit crops. "Oh to be in England," as the poet sings.

Wit and Humor

CAREFUL.

The cake had been passed to everyone at the table but Bobbie, 3½ years old.

Bobbie—I'll take a piece of cake, please.

Mother—No dear; banana cake is too heavy for little boys.

Bobbie (after several seconds of thought)—Well, I'll use both hands.

AXIOMS FOR ANGLERS.

The liar catches fish with his mouth.

The most elastic fabric is the trout yarn.

Even fishermen will not believe each other's fish stories.

An ideal spot at this season of the year is a place where mosquitoes don't bite and fish do.

WHY SHE DIDN'T

Doctor—Your wife is in a very critical state, and I should recommend you to call in some specialist to consult on the case.

Husband—There, you see, doctor, I was right again! I told my wife long ago to get proper medical advice; but she thought you would be offended.

STICKING TO IT.

He had just returned from a convival evening with some friends, to be met at the door by his wife.

"Where have you been?" she demanded.

"I've been at the Smith's party, my dear," he replied, beaming at her.

"You have not."

"I say I have."

"I am sure you have not," she insisted; "I've been there myself, so I know you were not there."

"Well, anyhow," he answered, in resigned tones, "it's the tale I've made up, and I'm going to stock to it."

HEIRLOOM, PERHAPS

"Now, young man, are you sure that these shoes for my little baby are well made?"

'Madam, they will last him a lifetime."

DOMESTIC AMENITIES

"Haven't I made you what you are?" asked the wife proudly.

"My dear," he answered, 'have I ever reproached you for it?"

KISS THEIR MONEY GOOD-BYE

From an exchange—"The Mongolians do not know either the kiss of friendship or that of politeness. With them the kiss is reserved to lover, to finances or man and wife."

HOW TO RUN A RAILROAD.

The story is told that a certain ambitious young man went to the president of a certain university and said:

"Sir, I desire a course of training which will fit me to become the superintendent of a great railroad system. How much will such a course cost, and how long will it take?"

"Young man," replied the president "such a course would cost you twenty thousand dollars and might require twenty years of your time. But, on the other hand, by spending perhaps three hundred dollars of your money and three months of your time you may be elected to Congress. Once there, young man, you will feel yourself quite competent to direct not only one, but all the great railroad systems of our country."

HOW THE WATCH DISAPPEARED

A judge was pointing out to his court that a witness was not necessarily to be regarded as untruthful because he altered a statement he had previously made. "For instance," he said, "when I entered this court to-day I could have sworn that I had my watch in my pocket. But then I remembered I had left it in the bathroom at home."

When the judge got home that night his wife said, "Why all this bother about your watch—sending four or five men for it?"

"Good heavens," said the judge, "what did you do?"

"I gave it to the first one who came—he knew just where it was."

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

THE "EFFICIENCY EXPERT" OF THE BODY

Did you ever stop to realize that some physical work seemed to leave you completely tired out mentally as well as physically.

The explanation is that perhaps it called for the use of the brain more that some other work.

However after a week of this "new" kind of work, you notice that you are not as fatigued as you were when you began it.

Why is this?

Well when a piece of work is to be done, that is by the muscles of the body, a number of parts of your body get busy.

First your will (whatever that is) that decides to perform the movement, then the part of the brain where the impulse must start, then the nerve that conducts the impulse to the spinal cord, then from spinal cord to the muscles that actually perform the act.

You can see how much like electricity it is, the storage battery, wires and so forth.

Well, the movement is done so often in just the same way, that the nerve centre in the brain doesn't find it necessary to act, and the movement actually originates in the spinal cord, freeing the brain from work.

When a youngster is learning to walk, the little brain is alert in putting one foot forward and balancing itself on the other, with nearly every muscle in the tiny body taking part in the movement forward. Soon it learns to walk without any thought of balancing or care in the placing of the feet.

Similarly, when you began to learn to dance, to ride a bicycle or a horse, your brain entered into it until the exercise was perfected. Thereafter you were able to glide along without any conscious thought in the matter.

And so that wonderful brain in that body of yours does the exercise until one of its servants in the spinal cord can do it for you, and the brain rests or learns new movements thereafter.

Is Your Corn Crop Infested?
The European Corn Borer leaves no question of doubt as to its presence in a field of corn. Guard carefully against the infestation of your crop.
Beware of These Signs
The first easily observed sign of the infestation is the breaking over of the corn tassels.
Later the feeding of the "worms" begins to show on the stalks, which, being greatly weakened, break over.
Finally the cobs and shanks become infested and the entire stalk collapses to the ground.
The borer then seals itself for the winter in corn stubble or corn stalks, which must either be burnt up or ploughed under before June 1st of the year following.

RAILROADERS EASILY TRIUMPH OVER KINGSTON PONIES BY SCORE OF 7 TO 1

OULETTE OUT-HURLS GALLAGHER; TRUNKS EFFECTIVE WITH WILLOW

Visitors Tally Four Errors, While Belleville's Score Sheet Shows But Two.

Kingston Ponies were pie for the Grand Trunks here yesterday afternoon, for the Trunks defeated them 7-1, in a game which never seemed in doubt. Trunks out hit them, getting nine safeties to the visitors one, and Jack Oulette, speed ball hurler for the railroaders, outpitched Ted Gallagher Ponies' southpaw, who managed to stay in for the whole journey, due largely to the good support given him. Trunks had but two errors which were not costly to Ponies' four. Jack Oulette struck out nine and Gallagher had but three strike outs.

"Wickie" Ross topped the heap as "king of slug," with two singles and a double, Weir got two singles, and "Jackie" Williams pounded the cleanest home run of the season, in the second frame with two down, nicking a single in the sixth also. Casey's double in the fourth sent over a run, and Brownscombe also singled. Twigg got the visiter's lone clout in the sixth. Batstone played a nice game in the field, but was helpless on the willow.

Kingston played a fair game in the field, but were powerless to stop the railroaders getting to Gallagher as they did get to him. On the other hand, the Ponies could not figure Jack Oulette's steam ball, and connected but once all afternoon. Besides hitting the ball on the nose, hard and often, the Trunks played a stellar game in the field having but two errors.

The first innings was a snappy stanza three men only facing both hurlers, and each having a strikeout, but the Trunks tallied their initial run in the second, when with two down "Jakie" Williams lifted the pill to the cars in centre plot for the cleanest home run hit on the diamond this year. Just four batters faced Gallagher in the third, and Oulette struck three out in his half of the third. In the fourth the Trunks squeezed number two over, when Weir who got first on being hit by a pitched ball, sent home on Casey's two-base clout. Another run in the fifth, the result of three clean singles, set the score 3-0. Then came the big innings for the railroaders.

In the sixth, a two-bagger by Ross, a single by "Jakie" Williams plus two fumbles by the Ponies' infielders, netted the locals three runs, and in the seventh one hit and one error sent their seventh and final run over.

The Ponies got their one run in the sixth, when a hit by Twigg and an error on a long outfield fly to Casey, by Batstone meant a tally.

"Jakie" Williams and Weir were two of the most useful men in uniform yesterday, Williams accepted all kinds of chances, had an accurate throw, and made no errors. He hit one home run and one single. Weir also hit well accepted numerous chances and came through every time but once during the game.

For the visitors Harry Batstone played a nice game in the field, as did Bill Evans at short, until the dying stages, when he lost pep. Nicholson stopped some hard ones and fumbled a couple of easy ones. The outfielders had rather an easy day yesterday.

Stan Hagerman who has been doing the receiving for the moguls since Bill Mills was injured, played a heady and steady game in behind, making at least two lovely pegs to second although few Ponies tried to steal. The manner in which he held up Oulette's steam ball pitching is worthy of comment.

In the matter of control Oulette and Gallagher broke about even. Gallagher having the edge. Jack passed two, and Gallagher no one, each hitting one batsman.

The line-up in batting order:

Trunks—Ross, c.f; Meagher, 2b; Brownscombe, l.f; Weir, s.s; H. Mills, 1b; J. K. Williams, 3b; Casey, r.f; S. Hagerman, c; Oulette, p.

Ponies—Nicholson, c.f; Twigg, r.f; Batstone, 3b; Somerville, 2b; Cherry, l.f; Daley, 1b; W. Evans, s.s; J. Evans, c; Gallagher, p.

Umpire at plate—Dick Butler, Lindsay.

On bases—Emmerson Barnes, Cobourg.

WIFE OF VETERAN HURLER IS DEAD

A sad death occurred at Cannington on Monday last when Mrs. Harry Kealick passed away as the result of gangrene poison. The funeral took place at Cannington yesterday.

The late Mrs. Kealick was formerly Miss Woodward, one of the most popular young ladies of the village. For some time since her marriage to Mr. Kealick, who is well and favorably known, she has resided at Peterboro, where he was engaged as a representative of the Imperial Tobacco Co. Lately, however, Mr. Keslick has been working with the Woodward Biscuit Co., of Cannington.

Harry is well known as a ball player, playing with Peterboro C.O. A.B.L. team last season. Some years ago he was a high class baseball pitcher, with Cannington, in the old time Big Four League, and later with Haileybury in the Northern Ontario League.

HAVERS, YOUNGEST WORLD'S GOLF CHAMP

By PAUL R. MALLON

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, July 12—(United Press)—Arthurs Havers, who beat the best that United States had to offer and won the British open golf championship—which is just about the same as the world championship these days—is only 25 years old.

Havers, it develops, is the youngest competitor to hold the honored distinction in the last thirty years. He won it by outplaying Walter Hagen and five other leading golf stars from the United States in the recent Troon struggle.

Havers is a plodder. For a long time he has been recognized in England as one of the most promising of younger players. In 1914, when he was 16 years old, he qualified for the open. Then, in 1921, he finished fourth. He represented Great Britain against America in the matches of 1921, but drew no particular attention or comment.

His triumph returned to England a title which had been sojourning in the United States for two years. His brilliance is now hailed throughout the empire. He plays hard, sound golf, takes few chances and his style more resembles that of some of the older heads than the younger generation.

Ross Youngs, the Giant outfielder, is another one of those persons who go around carrying baseball teams on their shoulders and never let anyone know about it.

When Young hits—and he usually does—the Giants win ball games. When Young slumps, the Giants slump. It seems he steers their destiny and insomuch as they are leading the league by a safe margin, Young's power is easily calculated.

What he, Max Carey and a few other unheralded stars need is a good press agent, who would spread their fame.

Walking Babe Ruth is a popular pastime in the American League, but it's not always strategically successful. Ed. Rommel, the Athletic star, threw him four wide one's in a crucial moment of a game up at the Polo Grounds recently. Wallie Pipp then walked up and slapped one into the great open spaces out in centrefield and the Yanks won the game.

Defeat of Vincent Richards by William M. Johnston in the Wimbledon championships took the life out of the play. The spectators and fans throughout the world wanted to see the kid from Yonkers got into the finals at least. He was a "second-thought" favorite to win.

Johnston's superior experience and speed, however, broke down Richard's game, and now he will have to wait another year at least before he reaches the top.

The practice of insuring boxers against accident before championship bouts is a refreshing development of sport, even if it is done for publicity. Benny Leonard, light-weight champion, and Lew Tendler, his most frequent rival, are insured for $200,000 to protect the promoters of their scheduled July 23 bout. Perhaps there was a personal motive in that instance because both Leonard and Tendler proved themselves unusually susceptible to injuries and such things while they prepared to meet each other previously.

America still is woefully weak in tennis doubles play. When Pat O'Hara Woo dand Gerald Patterson administered a sound drubbing to William Tilden and young Vincent Richards last season, there was great commotion over the situation and an effort was made to link up some new and more formidable combinations.

But so far nothing has developed to grow excited about. Theonly strong team seems to be Francis T. Hunter and Richards.

American stars are developed with only the singles in mind and little attention has been paid in the past to team-play, though this is a strong factor in the Davis Cup matches.

Tilden doesn't seem to have any star in prospect to team with him, unless Richards deserts Hunter, which is believed unlikely.

KENNY APOLOGIZES FOR HIS ACTIONS

Was Requested to do so by Pres. Dedman Before Playing Any More Ball.

Feeling that in the best interests of the Central Ontario League Saturday's fracas at Cobourg ball park, in which Umpire Menzies was assaulted by a fan, should not be allowed to go unheeded, President Dedman yesterday despatched a letter to the Cobourg Club demanding that certain apologies be made. He decreed that Capt. Kenney, of the Cobourg Club, should make an apology to Umpire Menzies, before he be allowed to play in any further games, and that the Cobourg Club should in the future provide ample police protection.

This morning President Dedman received an apology from Capt. Kenney, for the language used on Saturday, and word has also been received that the assailant in the case who took a poke at the Umpire, has been fined in police court.

Cobourg Club was in no way to blame for the incident and deeply regret that it happened. They have ample police protection and have assured the President of the League that such an affair will not take place again.

SOFT BALL LEAGUE MOVE SUPPORTED

The Intelligencer is in receipt of a letter from the Tiger Tire relative to forming an outdoor soft ball league. The tire boys are anxious that such a league should be started and they are ready to enter a team. Other clubs or companies interested in a soft ball league will please communicate with the Sporting Editor of The Daily Intelligencer. At least four teams are needed to round out a fast loop. If a league is to be formed we must get busy immediately.

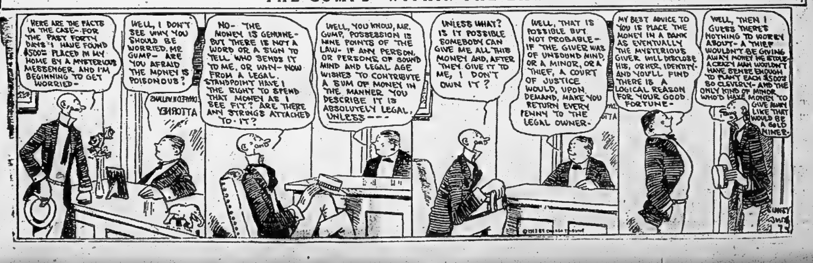
THE GUMPS—WITHIN THE LAW



HERE ARE THE FACTS IN THE CASE- FOR THE PAST FORTY DAYS I HAVE FOUND $500.00 PLACED IN MY HOME BY A MYSTERIOUS MESSENGER AND I'M BEGINNING TO GET WORRIED-WELL, I DON'T SEE WHY YOU SHOULD BE WORRIED, MR GUMP- ARE YOU AFRAID THE MONEY IS POISONOUS?
ATTORNEY
NO- THE MONEY IS GENUINE- BUT THERE IS NOT A WORD OR A SIGN TO TELL WHO SENDS IT TO ME, OR WHY- NOW FROM A LEGAL STANDPOINT HAVE I THE RIGHT TO SPEND THAT MONEY AS I SEE FIT? ARE THERE ANY STRINGS ATTACHED TO IT?
WELL, YOU KNOW, MR. GUMP, POSSESSION IS NINE POINTS OF THE LAW- IF ANY PERSON, OR PERSONS OF SOUND MIND AND LEGAL AGE WISHES TO CONTRIBUTE A SUM OF MONEY IN THE MANNER YOU DESCRIBE IT IS ABSOLUTELY LEGAL, UNLESS--- UNLESS WHAT? IS IT POSSIBLE SOMEBODY CAN GIVE ME ALL THIS MONEY AND, AFTER THEY GIVE IT TO ME, I DON'T OWN IT?
WELL, THAT IS POSSIBLE BUT NOT PROBABLE- IF THE GIVER WAS OF UNSOUND MIND, OR A MINOR, OR A THIEF, A COURT OF JUSTICE WOULD, UPON DEMAND, MAKE YOU RETURN EVERY PENNY TO THE LEGAL OWNER-
MY BEST ADVICE TO YOU IS PLACE THE MONEY IN A BANK AS EVENTUALLY THE MYSTERIOUS GIVER WILL DISCLOSE HIS, OR HER, IDENTITY- AND YOU'LL FIND THERE IS A LOGICAL REASON FOR YOUR GOOD FORTUNE-
WELL, THEN I GUESS THERE'S NOTHING TO WORRY ABOUT- A THIEF WOULDN'T BE GIVING AWAY MONEY HE STOLE- A CRAZY MAN WOULDN'T HAVE SENSE ENOUGH TO PLANT EACH $500 SO CLEVERLY- AND THE ONLY KIND OF MINOR WHO'D HAVE MONEY TO GIVE AWAY LIKE THAT WOULD BE A GOLD MINER-

AN AID TO WEARING THIS SEASON'S FASHIONS
(Helps to Beauty)

Here is a simple, unfailing way to rid the skin of objectionable hairs: With some powdered delatone and water make enough paste to cover the hairy surface, apply and in about 2 minutes rub off, wash the skin and every trace of hair has vanished. This is quite harmless, but to avoid disappointment be sure to get the delatone in an original package and mix fresh as wanted.

Stuffed and Baked Black Bass

Have a bass weighing about 4 lbs. Scale, clean, wash and wipe. Sprinkle inside with salt and pepper. Fill with stuffing made by mixing 1 c. soft bread crumbs ½ c. cracker crumbs, ⅓ c. melted buttered, 1 tbsp. minced onion, 1 tsp. chopped olives, ½ tsp. chopped green pepper, 1 tsp. each minced parsley and basil, 3-4 tsp. salt and 3 chopped fresh mushrooms. Stuff and sew. Cut 3 diagonal gashes on each side of backbone and insert thin strips of fat salt pork. Arrange thin slices of fat salt pork on a tin fish sheet in a dripping pan, brush fish over with melted butter, sprinkle with salt and pepper. Bake 1 hr. in a hot oven, basting often with fat in pan. Serve with Hollandise cucumber sauce.

Some Useful Recipes

PRUNE WHIP TOPPED WITH RED JELLY

1 cup prune pulp, currant or other red jelly, 2 egg-whites.

Wash the prunes well and soak overnight in enough water to cover. In the morning add enough sugar to sweeten—about half-cup to a pound of prunes is enough. Simmer slowly until tender, then strain, and pass thru a coarse sieve or mash with spoon. Beat up the whites of the eggs very stiff and add to the prune-pulp, and whip up. Place in pretty cups and top with a spoonful of jelly, and on top of this may be placed a small portion of whipped cream or a part of marshmallow.

STRAWBERRY CREAM PUFFS

In a sauce pan place one cup of water and one-half cup of butter, put over the fire and bring to the boiling point. Then add one cup of flour all at once and cook, stirring constantly until the mixture leaves the sides of the pan. Remove from fire, add four unbeaten eggs, one at a time, beating well before the addition of each egg. Drop by spoonfuls on a buttered sheet and bake 40 minutes in an oven quite hot at first, with the heat reduced the last 20 minutes.

Beat one pint of cream until stiff, add one-fourth cup of powdered sugar and one-half teaspoon of vanilla. Hull and mash one box of strawberries, sweetening to taste.

When the cream puffs are cool, split and fill with cream and strawberries mixed. Sprinkle tops with powdered sugar.

VEAL PIE.

1½ pounds veal (any cut), a little celery, or a sweet pepper, 2 cups flour, ¼ cup shortening, 2 teaspoons baking powder, salt, 1-3 teaspoon soda, 1 cup sour milk.

Flour the veal and brown it in fat; add water to make gravy. Let the veal cook slowly for at least half an hour. When nearly done, put into a baking dish and fill two-thirds full. Make a biscuit dough exactly after the receipt here given, beginning with the flour. Cut the shortening into the flour. Add the salt, baking-powder and soda to the flour, and use just a cup of sour milk for mixing.

This will make your dough just right to drop with a spoon over the top of the meat and gravy in the baking-pan. Add the minced celery or pepper just before covering with the dough. Put in the oven and bake until the crust is brown. This dropped dough makes a much better and lighter pie than the rolled dough.

Any meat may be used in place of veal.

Potatoes or other vegetables may be added to beef or ham pie. Meat that has been cooked may be used if you add sufficient left-over brown gravy to it to make the pie appetizing.

PUTS HEALTH AND VIM INTO WOMEN

So Says Mrs. MacPherson of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Brantford, Ont.—"I was always tired and the least exertion would put me out for a day or two. I had a pressing pain on the top of my head, pain in the nape of my neck, and when I stooped over I could not get up without help, because of pain in my back. I did not sleep well and was nervous at the least noise. I keep house, but I was such a wreck that I could not sweep the floor nor wash the dishes without lying down afterwards. A friend living near me told me what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for her so I began to take it. With the first bottle I felt brighter and got so I could wash dishes and sweep without having to lie down. Later I became regular again in my monthly terms. I have taken ten bottles all told and am now all better. I can truly say that your wonderful medicine cannot be beaten for putting health and vim into a woman."—Mrs. JAMES H. MACPHERSON, 300 Greenwich St., Brantford, Ont.

tender and dry; then wring small pudding cloths in hot water and spread a layer of rice half an inch thick in the centre of every cloth. Chop the rhubarb and place three tablespoonfuls of it on each layer.

Boil the rice in water until it is rice. Sweeten the snowballs, tie them up tight in the cloths and team them for twenty minutes. Then turn them out of the cloths, place whipped cream on the top of each one, and sprinkle sugar on the whipped cream. Serve the snowballs in individual dishes.

Rub each lightly with a cut clove of garlic, brush over with melted butter, sprinkle with salt, pepper and sugar, dip in fine cracker crumbs, egg, and crumbs. Arrange in a well-greased broiler and broil until cooked through and crumbs are brown (about 8 minutes), turning several times while grilling (broiling).

"We got'ta sleep somewhere. What are we going to use? I didn't bring any bed along with me."

"That's easy," the old timer said to the gang, "here's what you want to do and you'll have the best bed in the world.

"First, clip a large number of balsam 'fans' and place them on the floor of your tent or lean-to. Clip enough so that there will be plenty for a thick layer. Be careful to have the convex surfaces upward and the stems toward the foot of the bed.

"When you have a nice, thick layer fixed in this fashion, get some more balsam fans and thatch them with the ones already in place by thrusting the butt ends of the stems in the prepared layer, at a slightly downward angle, and with the stems pointing toward the head of the bed.

"Always have the head of this kind of a bed away from the opening of the tent and the foot toward the opening. When the thatching is completed, throw a cover or a rubber blanket over the whole thing and it is ready for occupancy. It is the softest, springiest and most fragrant bed to be found anywhere.

"Such a bed is as good for a long stay as a short one, because the balsam will last for weeks and will become more and more fragrant."

"Do you know Fat Burns? No? Well, it does, all right!"

PATRICIA BRENT SPINSTER

ANONYMOUS

Mr. Triggs mopped his brow vigorously. He invariably expressed his emotions with his handkerchief. He used it strategically, tactically, defensively, continuously. It was to him what the lines of Torres Vedras were to Wellington. He retired behind its sheltering folds, to emerge a moment later his forces to reorganized and rearrayed. When at a loss what to say or do, it was his handkerchief upon which he fell back; if he required time in which to think, he did it behind its ample and protecting folds.

"You see, me dear," said Mr. Triggs at length, avoiding Patricia's relentless gaze, as he proceeded to stuff away the handkerchief in his tail pocket. "You see, me dear——" Again he paused. "You see, me dear," he began for a third time. "I thought you was frettin' over your work or something when you ought to be enjoyin' yourself," he lied.

Patricia looked at him, her conscience smiting her. She smiled involuntarily.

"I never fret about anything except when you don't come to see me," she said gaily

Mr. Triggs beamed with good-humour, his fears now quite dispelled.

"You're run down, me dear," he said with decision. "You want an 'oliday. I must speak to A. B. about it."

"If you do I shall be very angry," said Patricia; "Mr. Bonsor is always very kind and considerate."

"It—it isn't——" began Mr. Triggs, then paused.

"It isn't what? "Patricia smiled at his look of concern.

"If—if it is," began Mr. Triggs. Again he paused, then added with a gulp. "Couldn't I lend you some?"

For a moment Patricia failed to follow the drift of his remark, then when she appreciated that he was offering to lend her money she flushed. For a moment she did not reply, then seeing the anxiety stamped upon his kindly face, she said with great deliberation:

"I think you must be quite the nicest man in all the world. If ever I decide to borrow money I'll come to you first."

Mr. Triggs blushed like a schoolboy. He had fully anticipated being snubbed. He had found from experience that Patricia had of late become very uncertain in her moods.

They were interrupted by the entrance of Mr. Bonsor.

"Ere, A.B.!" cried Mr. Triggs. "What do you mean by it?"

"Mean by what?" enquired Mr. Bonsor, busy with an imaginary speech upon street noises, suggested by a barrel-piano in the distance.

"You're working 'er too 'ard, A.B.," said Mr. Triggs with conviction.

"Working who too hard?" Mr. Bonsor looked helplessly at Patricia. He was always at a disadvantage with his father-in-law, whose bluntness of speech seemed to demoralise him.

"Mr. Triggs thinks that you are slowly killing me," laughed Patricia.

Mr. Bonsor looked uncertainly at Patricia, and Mr. Triggs gazed at Mr. Bonsor. He had no very high opinion of his daughter's husband.

"Well, mind you don't overwork 'er," said Mr. Triggs as he rose to go. A few minutes later Patricia was deep in the absorbing subject of the life history of the potato-beetle.

"Ugh!" she cried as the clock in the hall chimed five. "I hate beetles, and," she paused a moment to tuck away a stray strand of hair, "I never want to see a potato as long as I live."

That evening when she reached Galvin House she went to her room, and there subjected herself to a searching examination in the looking-glass. She was forced to confess to the paleness of her face and dark marks beneath her eyes. She explained them by summer in London, coupled with the weariness of Arthur Bonsor, M.P., and his mania for statistics.

"You're human yeast, Patricia!" she murmured to her reflection; "at least you're paid two-and-a-half guineas a week to try to leaven the unleavenable, and you mustn't complain if sometimes you get a little tired. Fretting!" There was indignation in her voice. "What have you got to fret about?"

With the passage of each day, however, she grew more listless and weary. She came to dread meal-times with their irritating chatter and uninspiring array of faces that she had come almost to dislike. She was conscious of whisperings and significant looks among her fellow-boarders. She resented even Gustave's cow-like gaze of sympathetic anxiety as she declined the food he offered her.

Lady Tanagra and Mr. Triggs never asked her out. Everybody seemed suddenly to have deserted her. Sometimes she would catch a glimpse of them in the Park on Sunday morning. Once she saw Bowen; but he did not see her. "The daily round and common task" took on a new and sinister meaning for her. Sometimes her thoughts would travel on a few years in the future. What did it hold for her? Instinctively she shuddered at the loneliness of it all.

The Tadpole's Wish

"I wish I could live on the ground,"
The Tadpole said, swimming around.
"I'd chortle with glee
If a frog I could be
And travel along with a bound."

* * *

Benjamin Tadpole swam listlessly across the pond. He looked with envy at the frogs playing on the bank. "Oh, how I wish I were a frog," he sighed. "My, wouldn't it be lovely to be able to live on land, as well as in water! All my life I have longed to be able to hop. It is so common just to be able to swim around in a pond."

Benjy could think of nothing else. One day he was swimming along when he met old Mr. Bass. Now, Mr. Bass taught a school of fishes, and Benjy imagined that he must know a terrible lot. I guess I'll ask him what I can do to become a frog," thought Benjy.

Mr. Bass scratched his scales and thought deeply. "Well," he said, "I have heard of cases in history where just wishing hard enough has brought about the thing desired. I would advise you to wish and wish every day to be a frog. In the morning when you crawl out of bed you must pat your head three times and say, 'Every day and in every way I want to be a frog.' After three weeks of such wishing, there ought to be some result."

Benjy did as Mr. Bass suggested and, sure enough, in even less than three weeks he turned into a frog. My, but he was happy. He decided to tell others of the wonderful miracle that happened to him just because he wished so hard.

Now Benjy Tadpole had a little friend, Carmen Minnow. Carmen had no desire whatever to become a frog. But she longed with all her might to be a bird. She hated the water. She wanted to fly through the clear blue sky. Benjy knew of this wish of his little friend, and after he had become a frog he did not forget her. He told her of how he had worked the wonderful change.

Carmen decided to try the same. So every morning Carmen repeated: "Every day and in every way I want to be a bird." Then she patted herself on the head not only three times, but six times! But poor little Carmen! It had no effect. Three weeks passed and she was still the same little minnow. Six weeks passed and still she hadn't changed a bit. At last she gave up hope.

"Oh, it's just because you don't wish hard enough," sniffed Benjy, not the least bit sympathetically. "Look at me—I got what I wished for. I'm sure if I wanted to be a bird I could be."

AGNES AYRES' LATEST STAR PICTURE MAKES BIG HIT EVERYWHERE

That Agnes Ayres is one of the most popular stars of the screen is amply evidenced by the great success of her new Paramount picture, "The Heart Raider," which is the feature attraction at Griffin's tonight to Saturday, with a matinee Saturday, with Mahlon Hamilton as leading man. The story is one of absorbing interest and there is much relishable comedy. At Palm Beach, Muriel Gray, played by Miss Ayres, is making an effort to create a favorable impression on John Dennis, a bachelor, portrayed by Mahlon Hamilton. But the latter believes that Muriel is rather frivolous, and his indifference wounds Muriel deeply. She is determined, however, to force Dennis to take her in his arms and makes this her boast. Muriel at first is a miserable failure as a vamp but finally makes good her boast.

There is an excellent supporting cast which includes Charles Ruggles, Frazer Coulter, Marie Burke and Charles Riegal. "The Heart Breaker" is a picture that no admirer of Miss Ayres can afford to miss.

"The Phantom Fortune" is a title which sounds interesting, and perhaps most struggling young men in business think that fortune is a "phantom." "The Phantom Fortune," however, is the title of the Universal chapter play of romance in business, beginning with the first instalment at Griffin's tonight to Saturday. William Desmond is the star and Esther Ralston, Lewis Sargent, George Nichols and Cathleen Calhoun support him. "Sweet and Pretty", an amusing and original Brownie Century comedy, and a Travelogue are being exhibited on the same program.

DEADLY EFFECT OF GOSSIP MADE BASIS OF DRAMA

"Gossip is the thing that can destroy any state of happiness, no matter how secure it may seem. Harmony will turn into discord at the breath of "Gossip" and contentment will develop the flavor of sour acid.

"Gossip" is the vice that is exploited in satirical fashion in the picture of that title which comes to the Regent theatre tonight to Saturday, matinee daily, as a Universal attraction. Gladys Walton is the star of "Gossip", and it is said to present her with a more extreme characterization to play than in any of her preceding successes. She has been associated with flapperizations as the heroine of delightful romances of youth most of the time. This role is that of a girl of the old South, charmingly unaware of the advance of the times and quite out of place in the jazzy whirl of modern social and business life.

"Gossip" is based on Edith Barnard DeLano's novel, "When Carey Came to Town," scenarized by Hugh Hoffman and directed by King Baggot, the director of many recent Walton successes and of "Human Hearts" and "The Kentucky Derby."

Opposite Miss Walton, Ramsey Wallace will be seen in the romantic masculine leading role, although the public knows him chiefly for his screen "villainies." Other players are Freeman Woods, Edith Yorke, Albert Prisco and Kate Kent.

QUEBEC AND ITS RESORTS

The opportunities offered by the Province of Quebec for a vacation are set forth in a beautifully illustrated and well-written folder entitled 'Resorts in Quebec' published by the Canadian Pacific Railway and distributed by its Agents.

Montreal can be reached overnight from Belleville, and one has a choice of two night trains or the noon train. From Montreal, it is but a few hours ride to many resorts, including the Laurentian Mountains with their many beauty spots, or to the old world City of Quebec with its traditions dating back to 1535.

A visitor to Quebec, especially to its rural sections, will find many reminders of the old regime and be charmed with the old world manners of the 'habitants'.

Ask the nearest Canadian Pacific Agent to mail you the 'Resorts in Quebec' folder—you will be surprised at the wealth of information it contains and you will be better acquainted with your neighbors Province after reading it.

THE WOODEN NECKTIE

Sweater Coats, Stocking and Neckties from Spruce Trees.

Wood Cellulose Furnishes the Lustrous Thread—Dyed and Woven Like Silk—Man and the Silk Worm—Chemically These Products Are Much the Same.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

We all wear silken ties, and think or care little of the source of the material from which the tie was made. You may doubt the statement that the tie you are wearing came largely from a poison gas, carbon di-oxide, a compound that is ever present in the air in which we live and breath. Silken ties should be beautiful, since such are born of a remarkable parentage, an invisible compound for mother and a sunbeam for father. If we walk into the spruce forest where the tall trees reach toward the sky, we pause with wonderment and ask how did it all happen. We can spend an interesting moment in tracing the development of the trees.

Much So-Called Silk Comes From Spruce Trees.

The tiny seed of the spruce, nursed by mother earth and bathed in the warmth of the sun, springs to life and pushes its tiny stem and leaves out to the light and air, out to the air that contains the carbon di-oxide from which our tree will draw most of its substance for growth—out to the sunlight that activates the chlorophyll green of the tiny leaves, setting to work the chain of processes that make wood growth. Layer upon layer, the wood cells are added as the tree develops. Every new leaf increases the growing capacity of the little tree, doing its part in the transformation of the carbon di-oxide gas to sugar starch and cellulose, the compounds in wood cell structure.

Wood Cellulose Furnishes the Lustrous Thread.

Wood cellulose is the tree material used by the manufacturers of silk, the lustre silk of commerce, to make the silken threads that we all like to touch. The lumber-jack cuts the tree, the pulp-maker by chemical processes reduces the wood to flakey white cellulose. The next is nitration. This is done by treating the cellulose with a mixture of nitric and sulphuric acids in solution, taking care not to overdo the digestion process, and then thoroughly washing the pulp free from the active acid agents. The nitrated cellulose is then mixed with alcohol and ether, reducing it to the condition of viscous collodion. Next it is filtered carefully and forced through minute orifices in a glass plate and on into a water bath where the fine threads solidify. As the threads solidify such are passed on over a roller and into another bath containing a reducing agent known as ammonium sulphide.

Dyed and Woven Like Silk.

Passing on from this bath our silken threads go over heated drums and spindles to be dried and twisted into larger threads. To have the silken threads we must give them color, so into the dye bath they go. This done, over the drums the colored threads pass to dry, by a route that leads to the spool or spindle. Deft fingers operate the knitting or weaving machine, an artist's mind controls those human fingers, which in turn control the forces that unite the colored silken threads into articles of wearing apparel such as sweater coats, neckties, and stockings.

Man and the Silk Worm.

What is the connection between artificial silk and natural silk. It is very close; so very close that the expert chemist is frequently called in to decide on samples and determine if the product of man's art and industry or that of the silk worm. Man goes to the tree for his raw material, so does the silk worm. Man uses chemical agents and a machine of his own invention; the silk worm can't help it since nature gave it a body structure and a digestive system that would convert the green leaf of trees to silken cocoon covering threads.

Chemically These Products Much the Same.

Chemically the product of man's endeavor and the silk-worm's work are much the same. Few will know at first glance if your wooden stockings, wooden necktie or wooden sweater coat were made possible by the arts of a man or the green crawler so much loved by the people of the Orient.

Keep the trees growing, boys, that we may never want for silken clothes.—L. Stevenson, Director of Extension, O.A.C., Guelph.

Needful Minerals in Feed.

The common dairy feeds containing the most lime are the legume hays, cowpea, clover, alfalfa and soy bean, that from cowpeas containing the most. Those which contain the most phosphorus are wheat bran, wheat middlings and linseed meal in the order given. None of the concentrates contain as much lime as the legumes do, and no roughage contains as much phosphorus as the concentrates named.

Essential to Milk Cow Dry.

Milking cows dry is essential. When milk is left in the udder after each milking, the glands will gradually slow up on secreting milk and ultimately the cow will dry up. It pays to spend a few extra minutes stripping the udder to make certain that all the milk has been extracted.

Roots Desirable for Cows.

Mangels or roots make a very desirable feed for dairy cows. The greatest objection is the labor involved in growing, harvesting and storing them.

Good cream is clean cream, kept cool.

ROUP AND CHICKEN POX

These Contagious Diseases of Poultry May Be Cured.

Prompt Treatment Will Save the Birds—Can be Cured in Ten to Twenty Days—Not Communicable to Men or Other Animals.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

In the last few years the treatment of disease among poultry has received much study and many of the older ideas have been revised. Birds respond well to proper medicinal and hygienic treatment; in fact in many cases they show remarkable powers of reserve and resistance, thus comparing very favorably with other domesticated animals. The idea that it is useless to try and treat a sick fowl is erroneous.

Last winter the Ontario Veterinary College carried out a number of experiments regarding the treatment and cure of roup. These tests established the fact that in many cases the disease could be controlled and the birds returned to usefulness in from 10 to 20 days.

Roup a Contagious Disease.

Roup is a contagious disease that attacks the mouth, nasal passages, and eyes of fowl. The causative agent or germ has not yet been certainly demonstrated. The disease spreads rapidly through the flock, being favored by damp, cold, dark quarters, and for this reason roup is most prevalent during the winter months. The lesions in the mouth take the form of masses of yellow cheesy material which has a characteristic offensive odor. The nasal chambers and nostrils become plugged with exudates so that the bird is forced to breathe through the mouth, hence the bill remains open and breathing is often difficult. The eyes become inflamed and filled with a liquid discharge which later becomes thick and cheesy and completely fills the eye cavity. Often the whole side of the head is swollen and when both eyes are involved the bird is blind.

The sick birds must be removed from the flock and placed in dry, light and moderately warm quarters. It is useless to try and carry out any treatment unless this is done. Give opening medicine such as Epsom salts dissolved in the drinking water, about a quarter of a pound for every twenty-five birds; give for one day and repeat in a week. Catch each bird and proceed as follows: Remove all cheesy material from mouth and throat using a small pair of forceps or tweezers, scrape the sore places well. Don't be afraid of a little blood, but be sure and get down to healthy tissue. Dress mouth with a three per cent. solution of iodine; swab out well. If bird swallows a little of the solution it will do no harm. The nasal lesions should be treated by injecting a warm solution of boracic acid, about one teaspoonful to a teacup of water. Use a small syringe to force solution up nostrils. The eyes should be treated with the boracic solution. Wash out the eyes well and open up the lids if they are stuck together. Sometimes the whole eye cavity is filled with a thick cheesy material; remove this by pressure and the aid of the forceps. In severe eye cases a few drops of iodine solution may be used without ill effects. These eye lesions are often difficult to treat.

The above treatment is somewhat drastic and will take a little time, say three minutes for each bird, but if followed out faithfully and given a trial in suitable quarters it will be found to clear up most cases of roup, in two or three treatments which should be given every other day. It has been found that the average case of roup will clear up in about ten days and that soon thereafter the birds will commence laying again. Birds that have recovered from roup do not take the disease again.

Chicken Pox May Develop.

Another condition which may appear along with roup, or as an independent disease, is the so called chicken pox, in which scabs and sores form on the wattles, combs and eye lids. The lesions are often about the size of a five cent piece and commence as small light raised areas that exude a thin discharge and soon become converted into crust like scabs. This condition is quite contagious and requires prompt treatment to control. Catch the bird, and with a small rather dull knife scrape off the lesions until healthy tissue is reached. Don't be afraid of blood. Scrape well, then dress with iodine solution rubbed in well over entire head and wattles. Three or four treatments every other day will clean up most cases. Give birds opening medicine and remove from flock during treatment. Birds that recover from chicken pox are immune from further attacks. It is most essential to remove any ailing birds from the flock and it should be remembered that the discharges from the lesions carry infection so that all soiled litter and dead birds should be burnt.

Those Diseases Spread by Contact.

Roup and chicken pox spread from bird to bird by actual contact. Often the first case is introduced into a flock by the purchase of birds from infected premises or by handling of birds by a person who has recently been in contact with affected birds, or on the shoes or clothing. The best way to prevent roup is to preserve cleanliness in poultry runs and houses; to watch the flock carefully and at once remove and treat sick birds. It is advisable that the person who treats the sick fowls should recognize that he is dealing with a very contagious disease and should change outer clothing, clean boots and wash hands thoroughly before going among the flock, especially young chicks. Neither roup or chicken pox are communicable to man or any other animal.

RIDDING HOGS OF LICE

Keep the Colony House and Swine Vermin Free.

Crude Oil Will Bring Certain Relief—Protecting the Farm Well and Its Water From Contamination—Shade and Fresh Water Aid Pork Production.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Vermin cause considerable annoyance to swine, and their presence in large numbers is destructive to profits. If the swine have a good wallow hole they can free themselves of the pest during the summer, but without the assistance of a wallow, some other aid must be given or the lice will flourish. The pigs will be annoyed and the fences and pens racked through the rubbing of the swine in their attempt to free themselves from their tormentors.

Crude Oil Will Bring Relief.

The application of crude oil to the pig's skin will make the lice let go. The crude oil may be applied through the use of a rubbing post equipped to deliver oil when the pig rubs against it, or it may be applied with an oil can in the hands of a handy man. If an oil can is used, the spout is drawn along the pig's back from the ears to the tail and sufficient oil released to moisten the pig's skin all over. A good time to apply oil is when the pigs are standing at the feed trough.

Colony houses should be well sprayed with a two per cent. solution of creolin in the autumn and again in the spring.—L. Stevenson, Director of Extension, O.A.C., Guelph.

KEEP WELL WATER PURE.

There are thousands of shallow wells and cisterns on farms that are poorly protected against contamination. Most of them are poorly protected by boards with cracks between them that allow the surface drainage and filth to get in. A good concrete top that will protect the water supply can be made by anyone with only a little effort and at a small expense. It only takes one sack of cement, two cubic feet of sand, and three and a half cubic feet of screened gravel to make a circular top four feet in diameter and four inches thick.

The shape of the top would depend on the well, its location and the taste of the owner. If it is to be circular, lay out a circle on a smooth, level piece of the ground, the exact size of the top desired. Carefully excavate inside the circle to a depth of four inches, this to be the form and is much more easily constructed than one of wood. Cut out a cylindrical block of wood and place where the the pump pipe will pass through. Provide four bolts to fasten the base of the pump to concrete top, and pieces of woven wire for reinforcing across and two pieces of smooth wire for the edge of the top.

How to Handle the Concrete.

Provide a platform and mix the concrete to a quaky consistency, not too wet. Use a proportion of one sack of cement to two cubic feet of sand and three and a half cubic feet of screened gravel or crushed rock. Sprinkle the form so it will not absorb much moisture from the concrete, fill the form about half full of concrete, place the reinforcing and set the bolts, and then fill the form with concrete. Finish the surface so that it is slightly higher where the pump will be placed and with a slight slope to one side so that no water will drain back into the well.

To cure or season the top, after the concrete sets, cover with a layer of sand and keep wet for a week or ten days. After about two weeks it may be taken out and set in place on the curb. Where the curb is watertight below the ground surface and it extends a foot or eighteen inches above the surface with a concrete top such as described, the danger of surface contamination will be reduced to a minimum.

How to Purify the Water.

If the water is offensive to sight, smell or taste, it is in all probability unsafe, or at least highly objectionable, for domestic use. In such cases boiling all the water required for drinking purposes is a great safeguard, for it will kill any disease germs that may be present, but it will not make the water a good one. Half a small teaspoonful of hypochlorite (chloride of lime), rubbed up with a little water and well stirred into a barrel of the water, is another precaution for the destruction of germ life, that is nowadays advocated. But a water impure from the presence of excretal matter is not to be recommended, even when one or other of these precautions is carefully carried out.

Fresh Water and Shade Aid Pork Production.

Good live stock men agree that plenty of fresh water and shade are important factors in the successful propuction of pork. Hogs will drink often if water is available. Water helps digestion and promotes fat production. A mineral mixture of charcoal, hard wood ashes, air slacked lime or ground limestone and salt in front of the hogs will keep them in better tone.

If a herd of good cows could speak, it is quite likely they would claim as theirs the farm which they so nearly paid for.

Cows need an abundance of fresh air, but it is unnecessary to expose them to the north side of a barb-wire fence during cold and inclement weather in order to get it. Cow comfort demands that fresh air be brought into a warm and well lighted barn. A warm barn may contain pure air and a cold barn may have impure and vitiated air.

PASTOR LEAVING TABERNACLE AND STOCKDALE CONGREGATION HONORED

Stockdale, July 11 (Contributed).—One of the many events which take place in our little village came off on Friday evening, July 6, when between one and two hundred of the men, women and children of Tabernacle and Stockdale communities met at the parsonage in a farewell surprise to the pastor, his wife and family, who left on the 10th of July for their new field of labor at Enterprise, after a two years' pastorate here with a fair measure of success especially in the building of a new place of worship, which building had been, in its work, talked of for several years by former pastors, but now, with the pastor's push and energy, linked with a live building committee, is in the course of erection and but a few weeks more will see one of the most beautiful church buildings seen in many miles, ready for worship, a lasting tribute of praise to the pastor's leadership. It would have seemed to be best could Rev. Merriam have remained at least another year and thus been ready to occupy and complete the church started, but some planned otherwise.

After a very social time in the curse of the evening order was called and the following address and presentation was read:

Dear Mr. Merriam:

We are met on this occasion to speak a word of appreciation and to say farewell. We are well aware that the clergyman's life is not an easy life, nor do we envy the clergyman who makes it an easy life. We believe that a minister should be a live one, a true man, a simple man, great in his love, great in his life, great in his work, great in his simplicity, great in his gentleness. We believe you have striven to give us your best service in the work of the ministry. You have been sincere and surely that preaching which comes from the soul works most on the soul. Your great work is to bring the individual souls of men to Christ. As you leave our field of labor for another, we assure you that you have our sincere prayers for your success in this great work. As a small token of our love and appreciation for you, your wife and family, we would ask you to accept these two chairs and table that you may prize them not for their intrinsic value but for the memories of kindly associations which they will in the future convey. Our prayer is that you may have richest blessing abiding in you and yours and the Master's work in your new field. In Byron's words:

Fare thee well,
And, if forever,
Still forever
Fare thee well.

Signed on behalf of Tabernacle and Stockdale,

Mrs. J. S. Powell.
Mrs. W. J. Johnson.
Mrs. N. Simmons.
Mrs. A. E. Wood.

The pastor and his wife replied, voicing their sentiments in words of fitting thought for the occasion. An excellent program followed this address. Rev. J. R. Bick spoke also. Rev. I. Snell, in words of commendation, wished the pastor's family great success in the new outlook and expressed the hope that their work may be of great good.

Montreal Business Man Says Tanlac Has No Equal

Thomas C. Lyte, 309 Notre Dame Street, sales manager for the Montreal Towel Supply Company, is another widely known Montreal business man to praise Tanlac, the medicine which has proved so beneficial to him.

"Tanlac proved to be just what I needed," said Mr. Lyte, "and today I'm as healthy as a lumberjack. When I got Tanlac I was so thin I was only a shadow of my former self. I had such pains in my back I couldn't stoop over to lace my shoes, my kidneys bothered me and I got so bad off I thought I would have to resign my position.

"But I've picked up so much weight now my friends all comment on the improvement. My kidneys never bother me, I sleep like a log and have a good appetite. Tanlac hasn't an equal."

Tanlac is for sale by all druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

Late Sporting News

Lacrosse practice will be held to-morrow evening on Ann street grounds and the management requests that every juvenile player will please turn out. A good practice has not been held for the past two weeks and the following are asked to be on deck: Facer, Weir, Crozier, Curry, Donahue, Barlow, Scott, Wallbridge, Faulkner Cole, Oakes, Colling, Ross and any other juvenile whose names have been omitted.

The juveniles play in Deseronto against the leaders on July 21st, thus it is essential that everyone should be out for practice on Friday night.

The local midgets play in Trenton on Saturday.

The juveniles have two more games with Deseronto before the group is ended. A win or two for Belleville would tie Deseronto and Trenton with the odds for Trenton winning the league.

Jack Dale, who has been employed on the Deseronto Post for the past year and a half, leaves this week for Rochester, N.Y., where he has secured a position. In Jack's removal, the Leaders will lose a defence player that will be hard to replace.

Trenton juveniles walloped Napanee in the eastern town last night by a score of 8 to 2. The game was a reproduction of the Leaders-Napanee game of June 11th, with a lot of rough work being pulled off by the home gang. By their victory, Trenton is assured of second place in the league and right here we congratulate them—they have done well and did it creditably.

MINE PICKETS ARE INCREASED

Sydney, N.S., July 12.—Striking Cape Breton coal miners are drawing their cordons tighter around the pitheads, power houses and coal dumps at Glace Bay which are guarded by forces of soldiers and barbed wire. This has been accomplished through a marked increase in the strength of the usual pickets posted at each entrance to the property which now comprise from 50 to 200 men each. In many cases the men are armed with axe and pick-handles and according to the provincial police reports, seem in fairly determined mood.

This course on the part of the miners was evidently decided at a meeting held during the night hours, and is the first phase of their answer to the sudden seizure of mines two and nine by the military and provincial police forces.

WISCONSIN ADOPTS NEW TRAINING PLAN

Madison, Wis., July 12.—(United Press).—Wisconsin school kids will get bodies trained, as well as minds, starting next fall.

A new law just signed by Governor J. J. Blaine requires in all public schools above kindergarten, a minimum of two and one-half hours a week of "physical education," which is defined to mean "practice in the art of physical exercise and hygiene."

Recesses don't count, so the time will have to be taken out of the class hours. The law provides that medical examination shall not be included in physical education.

All state schools training teachers for the public schools will hereafter be required to give courses in playground exercises and games, to prepare the teachers for the new work.

ALBERTA MINERS DECLARE STRIKE AS SYMPATHY MOVE

Britain Demands That Occupation of Ruhr Valley Be Ended

PREMIER'S STAND HELD OMINOUS

Official Statement is Interpreted as "Funeral Sermon" of Entente

LEADERS CURIOUS

Nature of New Note to Germany Cause of Speculation

United Press Cable, Exclusive to The Intelligencer.

London, July 13.—Relief that Premier Baldwin had not definitely forced a break with France and Belgium over the reparations problem was mingled today, on part those allies, with curiosity over the terms of British note to Germany.

London, July 13.—Great Britain, through Premier Baldwin in Commons and Marquis Curzon in the House of Lords yesterday, demanded that occupation of the Ruhr come to an end, that the allies unite in fixing a fair amount for reparations and asking Germany to pay it.

This was the gist of the long-awaited statement of British policy towards the reparations problem. Stanley Baldwin was cheered to the echo as he pleaded for allied co-operation as well as an end of the Ruhr venture.

A break with France is considered averted if the French government returns a favorable answer.

"The essential factors of settlement of Europe's ills," Baldwin told a crowded house, are:

"First, payment of reparations.

"Second, settlement inter-allied debts.

"Third, security of Europe."

Italy, the prime minister said, is understood to be in accord with Britain on these points.

The import of Premier Baldwin's statement in the Commons, held by many to be the Entente's "funeral sermon," might be roughly paraphrased thus:

"The French are destroying Germany and the result must be chaos and war. French methods are already devastating our industry as the Germans devastated France, and the French should withdraw from the Ruhr, permit Germany to recover and pay.

"Germany has made an offer containing the germ of a settlement. We insist upon accepting their proposal to carry out the award of an impartial commission as to what they can pay. We want France to agree with us, but if she does not, we with Italy will act notwithstanding.

"We desire most earnestly to maintain the Entente, but we can not let European civilization fall to pieces for its sake."

Voicing the belief in the House of Lords that France will not accept the British proposal and that the move to meet Germany must be made against French wishes:

Lord Curzon said:

"If the French Government draws apart, if they find it impossible to co-operate, I see nothing for the future but growth of suspicion and distrust—one nation or group of nations preparing to make itself secure against group—and finally another war, which must be more terrible than the last."

Mr. Baldwin announced Britain herself will draw up a reply to the German reparation offer of June 7. It will then be sent to Paris, Brussels and Rome, in the hope, the Premier said, it can be made the basis of an inter-Allied reply.

CAR GOES INTO DITCH

What might have proved a serious accident occurred at Gibson's Crossing last evening about 10.45, when five young men from Trenton were driving in a Chevrolet car which was thrown into the ditch. The two front wheels were smashed badly and the radiator was bent. Luckily the occupants of the car escaped. Cars coming in either direction were unable to pass and a congestion of traffic resulted. The car was later towed to the city for repairs.

FRENCH TROOPS IN CITY OF BARMEN

United Press Despatch, Exclusive To The Intelligencer.

Ex-Serviceman Seeks To Commit Suicide

At 8 a.m. today Police Sergeant Harman received a telephone call from Police Magistrate Casement of Madoc, asking that an officer be immediately sent to Millbridge, where a man had attempted to commit suicide by leaping from a train near that village.

Provincial Police headquarters was immediately notified, and an officer was sent to Millbridge.

The man refused to give his name, but said that he was a returned soldier, and though painfully injured insisted upon walking to Trenton. He intimated that he would again try to destroy himself, and it was with difficulty the officers were able to detain him.

CHICAGO TO TEACH HER YOUTH TO FLY

Chicago, July 13 (United Press).—The Air Board of Chicago believes that airplanes will be as common as automobiles in ten years and in August will open a flying school for boys and girls.

The youngsters will be instructed in flying and building model airplanes. Torrence Vincent, director of McKinley park, Chicago will be in charge. Several playgrounds organizations and a yacht club will co-operate.

"The youngsters will learn fundamental scientific facts about aviation." Vincent said, "This will be through work with models. Since most of us will fly to and from our vacations—maybe to and from our work—in ten years, it is well that we so teach these boys and girls who will be the users of airplanes."

Girls make just as good pilots as men and are equally skiful in modeling planes, Vincent asserted.

15,000 INVADE COBOURG ON 12th

Celebration Largest of the Kind in Town's History

CANNIFTON LIVELY

Pomp and Heraldry of King William's Followers Lend Carnival Air

Cobourg, July 13.—The largest celebration of the anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne ever held in Cobourg took place here yesterday. Over forty lodges were in the parade, including Rochester lodges and two bands and lodges from Lindsay, Oshawa, Bowmanville, Port Hope, Peterboro, Belleville, Brighton and intervening points, also Cobourg's three lodges. There were also between twenty and thirty bands here. It required one hour for the parade to pass. It is estimated that there were 15,000 people in the town. The Rochester boats brought large crowds. The parade formed at Victoria Park and arrived back there. Interesting addresses were made by district and Rochester Orangemen. The streets through which the parade passed were properly decorated.

At the village of Cannifton yesterday an Orange celebration to commemorate the Battle of the Boyne was held and it was a decided success. This was the first celebration ever held in the neighboring village and those who were instrumental in its conception have every reason to congratulate themselves. It was held under the auspices of L. O. L. No. 2320 of the village and the Methodist Church. Banners and flags stretching across the street at intervals presented an inviting appearance. From the hour of noon until 1.30 p.m. dinner was served in the grove at the north end of the village and hundreds partook of the good things provided by the ladies. Shortly after one o'clock a parade was formed and was witnessed by a large crowd of spectators. It was headed by the Foxboro brass band and there were also three additional fife and drum bands. All on parade presented a most creditable appearance. Lodges represented in the parade were as follows:—

Marshalls—Frank Pound, District Master and D. Carl, District Director.
Shannonville, L.O.L. No. 242;
Moneymore, L.O.L. No. 838.
Holloway, L.O.L. No. 251.
Plainfield, L.O.L., No. 179.
Tyendinaga, L.O.L., No. 295.
Foxboro, L.O.L., No. 3.
Cannifton, L.O.L., No. 2320.
Members of Ladies Orange Lodge in Tyendinaga and elsewhere.

After parading through the village the procession returned to the grove where speech making was indulged in for some time and the addresses were listened to by many.

Mr. Wm. Cole of Cannifton in a few well chosen remarks extended a hearty welcome to all present and expressed the pleasure at seeing so many in attendance at the first celebration of the kind held in the village. He formally introduced the chairman Mr. T. H. Thompson, M.P. for East Hastings.

The chairman upon rising to speak was well received and in his opening remarks he expressed his pleasure at being present on such an occasion. We are gathered here today to commemorate the Protestant reformation, a God-given rite in religious liberties. We rejoice that we lived in a democratic country. All enjoy civil and religious liberties in this country. In speaking of the Orange Order the speaker said, its object was defence not defiance. We do not seek to deprive any person of its religious belief. The unity of the Empire and an open bible were some of principles of the Order. It is a religious institution which admonishes its members to attend divine service in the church of his choice. The Order is opposed to interference of the hierichy in certain matters. It is not a political organization. It is called the Loyal Orange Society because it is loyal to the Empire. During the recent crisis thousands of its members were true to the Empire and fought for that Empire. The speaker referred to the Separate School and said they had

Deseronto Mayor Dies Suddenly at Toronto Of Apopletic Stroke

Stricken on Street—Coincidence Seen in Similar Death of Predecessor

Toronto, July 13.—The death of W. J. Malley, Mayor of Deseronto, in his room in the Queen's Hotel last night, brought to an end the final phase of a singularly grim coincidence. Mr. Malley was stricken by an epilectic fit after filling the mayorty office for only a few months, following the decease of Mayor Dalton, whose death was due to the same cause. Thus, within a very short time. Deseronto has lost two mayors through apoplexy.

Since the year 1887 deceased has been in the drug business in Deseronto, and apparently in the best of health, and came to Toronto on Monday last to attend the convention of druggists held here this week. He attended all the sessions, and not till yesterday morning at a few minutes past midnight, when returning alone to his hotel, did he experience any illness. At that time he was suddenly stricken at the deserted corner of King and York Streets and was carried to his hotel. At six o'clock yesterday morning he lapsed into unconsciousness, from which he never recovered. Death took place at 9.55 last night.

The news was telephoned to relatives early in the morning, and Mrs. Malley was placed under the care of a physician C. W. Malley, a son, at once came to the city, but found his father unconscious.

Besides his widow and the son mentioned, deceased leaves another son, A. L. Malley, who is employed in the customs offices in Belleville, and also three sisters, Mrs. Margaret Campbell, of Belleville; Mrs. Annie Reid, of Shannonville, and Miss Mary Malley, of Flint, Mich., in which State the Malleys once made their home.

He was born in Lennox and Addington Counties, sixty years ago, of Irish descent, was reased on a farm near Shannonville, and served his apprenticeship to the drug business in the village of Pakenham. Previous to the election of the late Mayor Dalton, deceased was for several years Mayor of Deseronto. Mr. Malley was an Anglican, a Mason, and a member of the Canadian Order of Forsters, and in politics a Conservative.

Mayor Malley was Past Master of Craig Lodge No. 401 A. F. & A. M.; manager of the Bell Telephone and C. P. R. Telegraph offices. He had been in the drug business for the past 38 years.

His Alberta ranch is one of his particular interests, and he has been discussing his plans with expert agriculturists.

MOVE OPPOSED

It is rumored that the Standard Paving Company plans to remove its steam shovel, now on the Highland avenue job, to Lindsay. The move is opposed by Council members and citizens as the new Station street project is supposed to be started in six days after the awarding of the contract.

LIQUOR CASES ON TRIAL HERE

Deseronto Boy Testifies He Sold Bottle of Liquor to Defendant

GRANDFATHER'S BOOZE

Herbert Maracle Swears on Stand Deal Was Not Consummated

Herbert Maracle, William J. Stainton and John Mosher, all of Deseronto, are being tried here today at the court house before His Honor Judge Wills, on charges of purchasing liquor illegally. The trial of Maracle occupied the whole forenoon, and was not concluded at 12.30 noon.

Maracle is charged with purchasing a bottle of liquor from a fifteen year old Deseronto boy, on the morning of June 4, last, for which he is alleged to have paid $2. The boy is alleged to have stolen the liquor from a clothes closet leading from the bed room occupied by his grandfather, with whom he resides. The boy admits the sale, also the sale of five other bottles of liquor to the other two men, but says he sold them only after he was asked by the men to get the liquor. The accused admitted talking about a bottle of liquor with the boy, whom he says asked $9 for the bottle, and was told it was too much money. Later the boy returned he said, and stated that he would let him have the bottle for $2. Accused said that he would take it at that price, he testified, and told the boy to leave it under a box in the shed at the rear of the hotel. When he looked for the bottle, it was not there, he claimed, and later when the boy returned for the $2, he would not give him the money as he had not received the liquor.

The boy testified that the first sale was made about 10.30 in the morning, but Maracle claims he was shingling a barn on the farm of Tom Dowlin, who lives one mile east of Deseronto, and did not return to Deseronto until after 11 a.m. where he had dinner at the Stewart Hotel there. He claims that the boy talked with him in the afternoon about 2.30. The boy stated that, though the weather was very hot, all deliveries were made personally by him, on a bicycle, and the liquor was carried one bottle at a time in the pocket of a winter weight overcoat which he wore.

"Were you trying to imitate Santa Claus?" the youth was asked by Counsel for accused, C. A. Payne.

The boy intimated that he did not feel warm, and that his winter garb did not attract undue attention. He claimed that Maracle offered him $5 for the bottle, but he told him that he could have it for $2 and that he delivered six bottles one at a time that day to Maracle at the rear of the Stewart Hotel, and received some of the money. "Maracle put the third bottle in his hip pocket", declared the youth.

The boy's grandfather, who owned the liquor, was unable to swear as to the exact number of bottles of liquor which he had in his clothes closet, but said he did know that there were perhaps five or six missing. He was not certain as to the amount.

A sister of the youthful vendor, told of seeing the boy with bills in a pocket book shortly after the 4th of June, but she could not swear how much money he had. He told her that he had $4 which he had been paid for working in the garage for one day. She testified. This is alleged to be the money he received for liquor which he sold.

G. A. Wilkins, of Deseronto, while at work in the street on June 4 saw the youth with one bottle of whisky on his person.

Inspector Francis Naphan told of the arrest of Maracle near Adolphustown, and the bringing of him to Belleville where he made a statement ,which he signed. He stated that he was tending bar at the Stewart Hotel on June 4 and while he was on the verandah, the boy wheeled up and asked him if he'd like to get a bottle of good stuff.

"I said 'Is it good stuff'", testified the witness. "He said, yes."

"How much, I asked."

"Nine dollars."

"Oh that is too much money."

"The boy wheeled away and later returned, saying that he would sell it at $2 per bottle, Maracle stated, that he then told him to leave the bottle under a box in the outer shed at the rear of the hotel. Later on going out to locate the cached crock, he found nothing and when the boy returned for the money, he refused to pay him for non delivery. Officer Norman Maker corroborated the evidence of Inspector Naphan.

Tom Dowling, farmer, testified that Maracle did work on his barn on the morning of June 4 until about 11 a.m. Witness testified that the youth, who is supposed to have sold the liquor, visited his home on the evening of June 4 and told of stealing whiskey from his grandfather, adding that he sold a bottle of water to an unknown man at the Stewart hotel for $2.

When asked by C. A. Payne if he regarded the statements of the youth as truthful, witness, stated that he would not place much confidence in the boy.

Mayor of Glace Bay Appeals to Premier For Withdrawal

MUST ASK COURT

Department of National Defense Declares it Has no Jurisdiction

United Press Despatch, Exclusive To The Intelligencer

Edmonton, July 13.—Miners at Drumheller went on strike in sympathy with the Nova Scotia Miners because, they say, government is making no attempt to withdraw troops from Cape Breton.

Ottawa, July 13.—In a telegram to Premier King, made public yesterday afternoon, Mayor Morrison, of Glace Bay, asks the government to withdraw the troops in the strike area, and declares that the city will repudiate the expense of their maintenance.

The mayor's message was turned over to the department of national defense, and the acting deputy, J. C. Desbarats, sent the following reply:

"In reply to your telegram to the prime minister which has been referred to this department, we desire to point out that the responsibility of withdrawing the troops does not rest with this department but upon his honor, Judge Finlayson, on whose requisition they were called out. We would suggest that you make representations to Judge Finlayson accordingly and, if you satisfy him of the conditions stated in your telegram, we should be glad to comply with his request that they be removed."

NURSES RESCUE PATIENTS IN FIRE

Hospital Inmates at St. Catharines Saved by Heroic Efforts

St. Catharines, July 13.—In order to save their lives patients had to be hurried out of the old wing and into the new of the St. Catharines and General Marine Hospital, this city, when fire broke out at 10.30 yesterday morning. Through the prompt and heroic efforts of nurses and attendants of the institution the imperilled sick were saved from more than the severe shock which the conflagration and the removal to other wards caused.

The fire started in what is known as the old section of the hospital and which in years is one of the long established hospitals of Ontario. The flames first broke out in a maid's room on the third floor and spread rapidly. An immediate call was sent in and the fire brigade rushed to the scene. Every human effort was made at once to save the patients and with quick presence of mind the nurses who were in the old wing rushed to the wards and succeeded in getting the sick to the large new wing to the east.

REPORT OF CROP CONDITIONS BY ONTARIO AGRICULTURE DEPARTMENT

The following is a summary of returns made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

Haying is general all over the Province. Frequent rains during the week have affected both the cutting and the quality of the cut. Many farmers also have been caught by lack of help.

Fall wheat is coloring rapidly, and will soon be ready for harvesting. Complaints of the presence of Hessian fly come from several counties.

York: Alfalfa is averaging from one and a half to two tons per acre; red clover, one to one and a half tons per acre. Old meadows are running a little light, but a good average crop. Sweet clover is somewhat late this year, but considered an average crop considerable being ensiled.

Victoria: In a number of cases sweet clover is again proving a nuisance in grain crops, particularly where last year's seed was ploughed under. Most of the sweet clover is killed in this way, but even a few stalks left make the grain in the fields not only unsightly but extremely bulky and hard to handle.

Peterboro: There is more red clover in this county this year than there has been for ten years. Considerable has been cut early to allow for second crop for seed.

Prince Edward: Sweet clover and alfalfa are progressing favorably, and an occasional farmer is ensiling sweet clover. Alfalfa and red clover are generally heavy crops. Those who have yields of Grimm alfalfa are leaving all or some of the first crop for seed. Some who cut the fields early are taking a chance on obtaining seed with the second crop. A good many growers commenced harvesting peas for the canneries, and the yields are reported good. Many fields were injured or suffered from rains early in the season, and occasional fields from the blight or root rot.

Prescott and Russell: Large fields of clover have been cut these last two weeks by farmers who are intending to make seed out of the second growth. In some instances, farmers intend to use as high as 25 acres for red clover seed production. This is especially due to the placing of clover hullers in this district this spring.

Brant: The Canning factories are busy handling the pea crop. The crop appears to be very good this year except in some sections where the drought lessened the yield.

Halton: This county states that many heavy cattle will be shipped to Great Britain this year.

North Simcoe: Drovers report very few hogs in the country, but expecting a good run in the fall. Hogs and beef cattle are now about the same price, a very unusual condition.

Peterboro: Live stock marketed this week consisted of a heavy run of calves, some pigs, lambs and a few steers. The following prices were received by the farmer: Hogs, $8 a cwt.; calves, $7 to $8; lambs, $10 to $13; cattle, $5 to $7.

Prince Edward: There have been very few sales of cattle except locally. Hogs are selling around 8 cents. There is an increase in the number of sheep breeders marketing their wool co-operatively. A combing mill at Trenton offers to purchase wool outright or to take it on consignment and have it graded and make settlement later.

The Napanee Creamery reports a make of 13,000 to 14,000 pounds of butter per week. The Farmers' Dairy receive daily around 120,000 pounds of milk. The prices for June are $1.35 per cwt. for milk testing 3.3 per cent.

Peterboro: The milk flow is still pretty heavy. This week cheese brought 17 cents on the Peterboro Cheese Board, butter fat 31 cents a pound, and farmers who are selling whole milk for city delivery the receiving 5½ cents a quart.

Carleton: Dairy cows are selling well. At a recent auction sale good grades sold for as high as $200 and purebreds as high as $250.

Victoria: Some farmers are right up against it for labor as there is none to be had. These are the men who decided they would get through with the spring work themselves and depend on short time help for the haying and harvest.

AGNES AYRES HAS CATCHING COMEDY IN "THE HEART RAIDER"

"The Heart Raider," a Paramount picture starring Agnes Ayres, with Mahlon Hamilton in the leading man's role, caught on in great shape at its premier presentation at Griffin's theatre last night.

Things must be coming to a fine state of affairs when a man is forced to take out an insurance policy to protect himself from possible damage suits due to the exploits of his ultra-modern daughter in her search for something novel in the way of entertainment. This is the last resort of Reginald Gray, father of Muriel (Miss Ayres). The policy holds good until the girl marries, and the insurance company, discovering that they are likely to lose a fortune on the risk, set one of their clerks, Gaspard McMahon, on Muriel's trail, with instructions to marry the girl as quickly as possible. But Muriel has other plans and how she adheres to them makes a worth while picture.

The story was adapted by Jack Cunningham. The strong supporting cast includes Charles Ruggles, Fraser Coulter, Marie Burke and Charles Riegal Wesley Ruggles directed.

William Desmond in the opening chapter of "The Phantom Fortune," a good Century comedy titled "Sweet and Pretty," and a Travelogue were exhibited during the evening.

YOUTH AND AGE BATTLE FOR SUPREMACY IN "GOSSIP"

A little Miss of the South, raised to believe in the simplest ideals, was suddenly thrown into contact with life fifty years in advance of those ideals. She was taken from her protected home in the South to become the ward of a rich manufacturer in a northern city. What happened there illustrates the differences in principles of the world of business and the simple, restricted world she had known.

This presents the story embodied in "Gossip", the Universal attraction at the Regent theatre. "Gossip" has for its star pretty Gladys Walton, and its supporting cast includes Freeman Woods, Edith Yorke and Ramsey Wallace.

Ramsey Wallace has usually been seen in roles of "villainy" but in this he is the leading man in the sympathetic role opposite Miss Walton.

Strike troubles affecting the interests of the manufacturer, the plans of agitators to bomb the plant, the miscarriage of the plans of one of them at the peril of his own family when his infernal machine is carried to his own home, and the difference between peaceful strikers who make a straightforward demand for their money without any threats of violence and the kind who talk in red language and throw up good chances for the privilege of standing on soap boxes and ranting.

An interesting Pathe News, a Mermaid comedy, and a Kinogram also proved entertaining.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

IS YOUR BODY EDUCATED?

In a former article I spoke of reading a story regarding a junior college professor who kept himself in necessary funds by engaging in prize fighting under an assumed name, always at some distance from his college.

His method of training had been to educate his muscles to act to his call a little faster than that of his opponents. He nearly always landed his blow, and he nearly always eluded the blow of his opponent. Now that training of the nerves and muscles can really be the training of that entire body of yours.

What do I mean?

Well, you can train it insofar as it is humanly possible to train it to do the things you want to do. To do them faster and with less exertion.

For instance if you have seen Joie Ray run, Weismiller swim, Dempsey or Carpentier box, you saw speed without loss of motion. None of these men attained their proficiency without training. They had natural ability of course, but training made them champions. If you accustom your lungs, your heart, to do extra work at regular intervals they will take care of you should the extra work come upon you suddenly.

You must run for your life, you must jump a stream, avoid a motor car, your chances of safety will be what you were given naturally plus the training you have done.

Similarly you can train that stomach of yours to eat a variety of foods, vegetables necessary to your health, but repugnant to your appetite. You can likewise train a morning after breakfast movement by drinking a glass of cold water before breakfast. Thousands have done this.

People with injuries which have confined them to bed sometimes for weeks have so educated the intestine that it continues to act as regularly as when they were on their feet.

You remember how you learned to control your tongue, temper, and restlessness when you attended school.

Well, other centres in the body get the habit similarly, and you derive great benefit thereby.

So why not educate the body as well as the brain?

Oh, Mr. Gallagher! Oh, Mr. Gallagher!
Did you hear of the bumper crop last fall,
How every east-bound train was packed jam full of grain?
There's plenty now, they say, for one and all.
Yes, Mr. Shean, yes, Mr. Shean,
They are wealthy as they've never been before.
And they wear a great big grins as they rake the money in.
Who, the farmers, Mr. Gallagher?
No; the SHIPPERS, Mr. Shean.

Oh, Mr. Gallagher! Oh, Mr. Gallagher!
They are raising cattle now as well as wheat;
Every farmer has a steer which he hopes to ship this year,
And hogs, and nice fat sheep for wool and meat.
Yes, Mr. Shean, yes, Mr. Shean,
With ready hand they've opened wide the door
And they'll let the poor things in and they'll shear them to the skin.
What, the fat sheep, Mr. Gallagher?
No; the FARMERS, Mr. Shean.

No Pay For Experts In Delorme Defense

Montreal, July 13.—The attorney-general does not feel he is called upon at this time to pay for the hiring of experts to help the defense in the trial of the Rev. J. A. Delorme. Such was the announcement made when the court convened for a short session prior to making visits yesterday afternoon to the Delorme home, the place where Raoul's body was found, and the other places mentioned in the evidence.

DROWNED IN BURNT RIVER

On Wednesday afternoon last, a man by the name of Hoxie, among a number of other employees on the drive, fell off a log near Irondale and was drowned. Mr. Hoxie never came up. He was just recently married and was a resident of Gooderham, Haliburton district.

Fine for Chest Colds Too, and Is Cheaply Made at Home

When you can make, in two minutes, a world beating remedy that acts directly on the membrane and often overnight causes stubborn coughs and even hard chest colds to disappear, why trifle with things that will probably disappoint?

Hawking and snuffling and also soreness of the mucous membrane go and you will feel fine in almost no time.

Just get an ounce of Parmint (double strength), add to it a little sugar and enough hot water to make a half pint and you've got an inexpensive remedy better than you can buy ready mixed.

Its soothing, healing action on the membrane is the reason so many people use it for Catarrh and acute nasal colds.

ZION PASTOR GETS FAREWELL PURSE

Rev. and Mrs. Merriam Honored by Church District

(Contributed.)

On Thursday evening last the congregation of Zion Church gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Osterhout to say farewell to their pastor, Rev. R. J. Merriam and family. The evening being especially fine everyone, young and old, was able to be present. After a short time spent in conversation, Jessie, little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Spencer, came out on the verandah accompanied by her parents and there received the sacred rites of baptism. At the conclusion of the very impressive service, Mr. and Mrs. Merriam were invited to be seated and Mrs. Blake Moran read the following address and Jessie Spencer made the presentation of a gift of money.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Merriam:—

"We, the members of Zion appointed, have invited you to be present with us tonight that we might spend a few hours together before you leave us for your new field of labor.

It was with feelings of deepest regret that we learn of your intended removal from this circuit. We have grown to know you and to respect you and to feel your interest in us all and we would have been glad to know you were remaining longer. Your excellent sermons have meant much to us, your calls in our homes have been helpful and while we have not seen as much of you socially as we might have desired, we have realized that your little family have left you with very few spare hours. And now that you are leaving us we feel that we cannot let you go without, in some small way expressing our appreciation of you and your services and we ask you to accept this gift from us that you may be reminded many times of the friends you leave in this neighborhood and we hope that some time in the future we may have the pleasure of meeting you again. Our prayer for you as you go from us is that God may bless you and yours and give you health, strength and courage to enable you to carry on the good work in whatever field you are called to labor.

"The Lord keep watch between us
Keep watch in tenderest love
Until our praises mingle,
Around the throne above."

Signed on behalf of Zion appointment of Stockdale circuit.

W. Spencer,
R. Locklin.

Several of the men present spoke briefly of their appreciation of Mr. Merriam on behalf of Mrs. Merriam and himself replied thanking the people and speaking for a few moments in his usual pleasing manner. A verse of "Blest be the Tie that Binds" was sung then the ladies served ice cream, cake and lemonade bringing to a close a very pleasant evening.

A MULTITUDE OF WOMEN RECOMMEND IT

The strongest recommendation possible for any medicine to have is the sound testimony borne by the vast multitudes of women who have used it. It has been proved that 98 out of every 100 women once ill with ailments that caused suffering and despair have been restored to the joys of health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. This marvelous record shows its power over the ills of women, and the letters of recommendation we are continually publishing in this paper should induce every ailing woman to try it.

PORT HOPE SCHOOLS HANG UP A RECORD

(Port Hope Guide)

The record for results on the entrance examinations throughout the Province of Ontario is likely to be Port Hope's for a long time to come. During Mr. Somerville's six years as Principal of the Central School and teacher of the entrance class 282 pupils have passed through his hands for entrance examinations and in this large number there has only been one failure. That is a record that Port Hope is proud of and are pleased to extend hearty congratulations to Mr. Somerville and his efficient teaching staff.

HOW TO SAVE COAL

(Industrial Intelligence, Ltd.)

In these days of costly coal, the problem of economising in its use is of interest to every class of the community, and particularly to those who employ steam boilers for power or manufacturing processes. Recognizing that the first step towards saving coal is the perfection of some reliable means of measuring the rate at which it is consumed, a British firm has developed a simple but effective "coal meter." This device is designed for use on boilers with machine stokers, in which the rate of admission of coal to the furnace is regulated by the position of a shutter or door. All that is required to measure accurately the rate at which coal is supplied, is a pointer connected to the admission door of the stoker and moving over a scale which is calibrated according to the speed of the grate. This combination has the advantage of showing continuously the rate of coal consumption at the moment, and it is thus an invaluable guide to the stoker. Though the coal is actually measured by volume, it is found that the instrument can be calibrated in terms of weight, and that its readings agree with the known total weight of coal consumed during a period. The meter is equally reliable for all the classes of coal used in practice and experience in a number of British boiler installations shows that the use of this meter leads to very important reductions in costs.

DISTINCTIONS IN MANITOBA

To the uninitiated the attitude of Manitoba on the liquor question must appear enigmatic. Three weeks ago Manitoba adopted a bill, providing for the sale of intoxicating liquor by the Government, by a majority of 40,000. On Wednesday the province rejected a proposition to make legal the sale of beer and wine by licensed hotels in their dining rooms by a majority of approximately 25,000. The majority against the bill in Winnipeg was approximately 7,000, while that city's majority for the measure adopted in June and known as the Moderation Bill, was 20,000.

Western hotel men are accredited with the explanation that the people of the province have secured what they want and are not interested in the desires of the Manitoba bonifaces. That may or may not be true, but the fact remains that the people, by their vote, three weeks ago, have made possible the purchase of liquor for consumption in the home without the inconvenience and restrictions imposed by the previous regulations.

A logical explanation of the vote in Manitoba on Wednesday, however, would seem to be that the people of the province do not welcome a return to the days of the open bar and fear that any recession from the stand taken at the time of the adoption of the original prohibition law may invite further liberties. The open bar or saloon was always the target of prohibition and temperance workers and to the atmosphere of the bar and saloon have been attributed most of the evils of pre-prohibition days.

The Moderation Bill appears to have been rightly named, as it embraces in its implication the Beer and Wine measure, negative action on the latter apparently being held a necessary corollary. The people of Manitoba evidently feel that they should be able to use liquor with moderation in their homes, but do not subscribe to the revival of the practice of public sale and consumption of beer and wine. In other words, Manitoba has definitely spoken against the return of the hotel bar, or saloon.

CO-OPERATION IN EUROPE

Premier Baldwin of Great Britain and Lord Curson, Foreign Secretary of the British Empire, in their pronouncements yesterday before the House of Lords and the House of Common, respectively, urged international co-operation as the only effective agency by which chaos may be averted in European affairs.

It will be recalled that Lord Curson interpreted the French ultimatum that French troops would occupy the Ruhr Basin until Germany ceased her policy of passive resisteuce to mean that "France would remain in the Ruhr forever".

The differences which have arisen over the reparations problem are unfortunate. But the dogged persistence of France in pursuance of her policy of coercion appears to be the basic cause and this cause can be removed when France adopts an open-minded and less selfish attitude. Britain has as much at stake as has France, if not more, and she is entitled to respectful and conscientious consideration of her views.

France knows this and she also knows that Britain, as the leading world power has borne the burdens of Europe too long to be thwarted in her attempt to follow a sensible course.

The great obstacle which now confronts Britain is the fact that the international co-operation theory has been worn thread bare in Europe without any tangible results. It has been the cry of statesmen for a quarter of a century, but few sincere gestures toward practical application of the policy have been made. The formation of the League of Nations was, of course, the most momentous move in this direction, but selfishness and material interests have seriously interfered with its functions. It is to be hoped that Premier Baldwin and Lord Curson can evolve a practicable policy, which shall, by its merit and promise, enlist the co-operation of all nationals of Europe and of the United States.

By The Side Of The Road

Mr. Drury says that he will consent to continue in the position of leader of the United Farmers' Organization only on the condition that he be permitted to follow his "broadening out" policy. We presumed that he had already been neatly flattened out, politically speaking.

Fortunately, if Mr. Drury does lead the remnant of his shattered forces, his "broadening out" tactics will be rendered practically ineffective.

Speaking of tests for prospective immigrants devised by the United States government, one recalls the experience of a large New York brokerage firm which applied to Simon-Bonet test to its staff some years ago. This test was the one then used in determining the qualifications of immigrants for citizenship.

The manager of the firm failed dismally in the test and the office boy passed with flying colors!

A few days ago they rejected a Scandinavian youth because he did not appreciate the type of feminine beauty recognized by the examiners as the standard type. It was the injection of just such commonsense as was exhibited by this youth that vitalised American society in the early days. He simply preferred the natural attractiveness of glowing health and innocence to the appeal of the chemically reinforced and blase beauties of modern society. More power to him!

The people of Manitoba have eliminated the middleman in connection with the liquor traffic in that province. They may now secure their intoxicants directly from the government and it remains to be seen what financial advantage will accrue to the plan.

Wit and Humor

UNLUCKY SUGGESTION

A countryman went to London to visit some relatives and to see the sights. He remained until patience upon the part of his hosts, a married couple, had ceased to be a virtue.

"Don't you think, my dear fellow," remarked the husband one day, "that your wife and children must miss you?"

"No doubt. Thanks for the suggestion, I'll send for them."

SPORTS AND BOOKS

WASN'T HURTING IT.

A little colored boy, clothes removed, was splashing around to his heart's content in a public reservoir. "Hey! come out of that, you young rascal!" shouted the keeper. "Don't you know that the people in town have to drink that water?"

The youngster dived under, came up and innocently replied: "Oh! dat's all right, mister; I ain't usin' no soap."

THE BARGAIN SEEKER

A small girl of eleven entered a London toy shop.

"Have you, please," she asked, "a nice toy for birthday present for my little sister? About eightpence?"

"Here," said the shopkeeper, "is a doll. It's really a shilling one, but you can have it for eightpence."

"Oh,no, thank you, because if you're knocking fourpence off everything I'd like one of those fourpenny picture books."

LONG FLIGHT STARTS

Port Arthur, July 13.—Following test flights after slight repairs, government seaplanes Yep and Et left yesterday, for Lake Winnipeg. The planes are going to the lake for forestry patrol. It is planned to make the trip in one flight without alighting at Kenora.

PRESS OPINIONS

THE RETORT COURTEOUS

A London weekly replies to criticism of Britain's $200,000,000 annual bill for fox-hunting by pointing out our, chewing-gum total. Furthermore foxes aren't chewed up and thrown on the sidewalk.

SUCCESS MAY BE WON

(Toronto Star)

Those who look for short-cuts to wealth learn that they are few, that they cannot be found by seeking, but are stumbled on some-times, but seldom and in unexpected places by unlikely persons. Success, however, is a different matter and may be won by resolute and intelligent effort.

THE FINEST FAME

(H. Addington Bruce)

He need not be a great warrior or statesman, a great ecclesiastic scholar. He may, in fact, be quite unknown outside his circle of personal acquaintances.

But let him live life bravely and hopefully, let him feel keenly and think vigorously and clearly; above all, let him give himself to his friends generously and helpfully, and he may count on winning the finest fame any man can crave.

NO EXCUSE FOR MISUNDERSTANDING

(Christian Science Monitor)

It is incontrovertible that the close proximity of neighbors without a proper understanding militates against peace and friendliness, so that it is no surprise that in Europe, where every country has more than a score of neighbors, in most instances speaking different languagus, there should be many misunderstandings.

Canada and the United States are extraordinarily fortunate in this respect, so that there really is no excuse for any lack of understanding between them. Indeed, the 3000 miles of unguarded border and the 100 years of unbroken peace present in themselves a strong rejoinder to those who would argue that great armaments and mighty armies and navies constitute necessary factors in the maintenance of peace.

BOON FOR THE SHUT-INS

(Buffalo Times)

One of the most interesting developments in wireless is the announcement of the installation of a radio apparatus and more than on hundred and fifty headpieces in the Beth Israel Hospital at Jefferson and Cherry streets, New York.

Superintendent Frank of the Hospital is quoted as follows: "Night after night patients in the hospital can only stare at blank walls, and their minds brood on their illnesses. It is hard for them to fall asleep, and in consequence it often is necessary to administer opiates. Recovery of patients will be facilitated by installation of the radio."

Music as an aid to cure is an idea almost as old as the art of medicine. Of late years it has received some notable applications; one of them being the use of music as a remedy for the sleeping sickness. Possibilities of the kind are increased a thousand old by the invention of radio.

At no distant date radio outfits may become a regular part of the equipment of hospitals.

TRUNKS-PETES CLASH TOMORROW IS HERALDED AS CRUCIAL TEST

A Win for Peterboro Will Advance That Team in Second Leg of Pennant Race

The game which will perhaps be the crucial engagement to decide a winner in the second half of the schedule will take place at Riverside Park Peterboro, to-morrow when the Grand Trunks tackle the Petes. A great deal hinges on the result of this struggle. Should Peterboro win they will then be on a fair way to cop the laurels in the second half and the play-off for the Johnston Cup. But if the 'Moguls' turn the trick things will assume an entirely different aspect. On their last appearance in Solomonville the champs humbled the homesters for their first defeat on their stamping ground in two years. It was a great game and was not decided until the last man was out. They did it once and can do it again and what's more they are going to do it.

Jakie will of course rely on Al Heckman to hold the Grand Trunks in check while Manager Gerow has Jackie Williams cocked and primed for the encounter.

Jack ran into some hard luck on June the 30 but to-morrow will be different. With a nice warm day and getting a fair share of the breaks the port-sider should not experience a great deal of trouble in order to bring home the bacon.

The team are going like a house a-fire right now and are hitting the old apple right on the nose as the Cobourg game show and Heck' will have to be on his best behaviour if he is to defeat Belleville. The personell of both teams will be practically the same as in previous engagements. "Hap" Harrison will likely guard the initial sack as Comolli has been moved to second to fill 'Shiner' Johnston's shoes.

George Sullivan will probably officiate behind the bat. President Dedman has not yet appointed the base umpire.

Kingston, whose pennant aspirations have been somewhat shattered will play in Cobourg and the lake shore laddies won in the last game and there is no reason why they shouldn't do it to-morrow.

Kingston Sport Writer Concedes Trunks' Victory

The sporting editor of the Standard comes out with the usual wail of rather poor umpiring in Wednesday's game. He, however, admits that the Kingston team was beaten at every point:

"By a sterling brand of ball from start to finish, splendid pitching backed up by fine support at all stages, Belleville won from the local "Big Four" team yesterday afternoon by the score of seven to one. It was a dandy battle all through, with the home team having the edge all thrugh, both offensively and defensively, and with the Kingston team fighting all the way but unable to make a satisfactory dent in the run column. Outside of two bad decisions at second base, both against the locals, there was nothing much to complain about as far as the umpiring went.

"Oulette pitched a nice assortment of slants, the locals connecting with nineteen of them during the afternoon and of these only two fell safely. The Trunks seemed to have almost an uncanny way of knowing about where the locals' blows would go and they were right on the job to gather them in. Outside of one error teir handling of the ball was right up to the mark.

"On the other hand the Trunks hit Gallagher's offerings thirty-three times, nine of them falling safely, despite good fielding by the locals. The slips made by the locals were not directly responsible for runs, the tallies being mostly the result of timely hitting and sacrifices."

OHIO GROUP BUYS BOSTON RED SOX

Sale Price Said to be in Excess of $1,000,000

Boston, July 13.—The Boston American League baseball club Wednesday was sold to a syndicate of Columbus, Ohio, men by Harry H. Frazee, owner of the club, since 1918. The completion of the sale and the signing of the contract, which has been reported and denied for several months, was announced by Robert J. Quinn, former business manager of the St. Louis American League club, representing the Ohio syndicate.

Mr. Quinn announced that the sale contract had been signed after a long conference at the office of Pittsburg, Dana and Young, attorneys. President Ban Johnson of the American League, was present, as were Edward M. Schonborn and Palmer K. Winslow of Columbus, members of the purchasing syndicate, and others.

It was also announced that legal steps in connection with the contract would not be completed until August 1. Mr. Quinn refused to make public the price, but said it was "over $1,000,000." He said that Robert Quinn would be president and treasurer of the company to be formed as owners, and that Palmer K. Winslow of Cincinnati would be vice president. It was said that a board of five directors would be formed, two of whom are expected to be Edward M. Shoenborn and Dr. Robert Drury of Columbus.

CANADIAN PLAYERS MAY GO TO STATES

Milwaukee Team Hopes to Recruit Stars from Ontario

Milwaukee, July 13.—If present plans materialize Milwaukee will be represented in the United States Amateur Hockey Association next winter by one of the strongest teams in the sport. "Stan" Burgoyne, noted in Canada as a successful coach, will handle the Milwaukee team, and he has rounded out a starry collection recruited mainly from Ontario.

Local officials are averse to discuss the matter, but the news has leaked out that long before the snow flies four of the star players of the Hamilton team of the Ontario Hockey association will be heading this way. These players are said to be Carson Cooper, Clarence Day, Jimmy Herberts and "Spider" Brackenborough. All are said to be high-class performers and good enough to make places on any senior hockey team.

Other Canadian players will be brought here and Milwaukee will be right in line for the championship.

The four players referred to in the above paragraph were with the Hamilton O.H.A. team last year. The Tigers went as far as the play-off series, being eliminated by Granites.

It is known that Milwaukee officials have been seeking Canadian players, and it will occasion no surprise if some players depart for the United States city.

Cooper originally played for Cornwall, Herberts for Collingwood and Welland, Day for Midland and Brackenborougr for Nort Bay.

FIRPO KNOCKS OUT WILLARD IN 8TH

Big Kansan Again Takes Grand Flop

Ringside, Jersey City, July 13.—Jess Willard, the man-mountain from Kansas, went back to fistic oblivion last night, but he staged the last, though futile, act of his comeback before a vast throng of more than 100,000, the greatest in ring history, that filled Boyle's Thirty Acres to overflowing. Louis Angel Firpo, the dark-browned mauler from the Argentine, closed the door to Willard's attempted return to fistic fame by knocking out the giant former champion, after one minute and fifty five seconds' fighting in the eighth round of a slashing battle—one of the greatest in recent heavyweight history. Incidentally he reached the goal at which he has aimed for the past year of his meteoric rise to prominence—a match for the title with Jack Dempsey.

SANDY LOCKINGTON AGAIN 'STIRRED UP'

Port Hope Guide Scribe Worries About State of Central League Affairs.

Sandy Lockington is incensed over the state of affairs in the Central League. In the latest edition of the Port Hope Guide he says:

"Everything goes in the Central League this year and team managers are in control rather than the officers. On Saturday during the game with Belleville a decision of the base umpire's displeased one of the Cobourg fans and he immediately hopped over the fence and let his right fist fall heavily on the ump's jaw.

"The same afternoon at Peterboro, Umpire Butler called a Peterboro man safe at third and there was a storm of protests from the Kingston fans. Manager Solomon immediately rushed to third base and ordered the players to the bench. Of course the score was 10 to 0 in favor of Peterboro and this was an easy way to gain cheap notoriety.

"Is President Dedman going to allow such actions to pass unnoticed? Cobourg team must be held responsible for the protection of league officials and Manager Solomon must be taught that the umpire is the man in charge during a ball game. If such glaring offences as these are allowed to pass it is hard to say what will develop before the end of the season. League officials are not responsible for the brand of ball but they must accept full responsibility for the observance of all rules and regulations."

PICTON 12, PT. ANNE 4

Point Anne journeyed to Picton last Thursday in high hopes of duplicating their feat of three weeks before— defeating Picton—but the dope was mixed wrong and after the third innings they never had a look in. The game was close for the first part but later developed into a walk away for the locals. A sparkling double-play brought the game to a dramatic final. Rusty picked up a grounder near the initial sack and whipping to Welsh caught the runner at second. Meanwhile the play was reversed and the ball came back in time to get the batter. Sunny Green then flied out to Croft and it was all over—Picton Gazette.

WASHINGTON'S VICTORY TRIUMPH OF WILL

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, July 13 (United Press).—Courage—the kind that made David whip Goliath, Daniel brave the lions' boathouse and Napoleon fight forever—is the heading on the chapter in rowing history which records the recent victory of the University of Washington in the inter-collegiate regatta at Poughkeepsie.

The crew from Puget Sound made a 3,000 mile trip across the Continent to the Palisades, only to find a few days before the big race that fate was working against them. Dow Walling, the start stroke, got a scratch on his knee. The doctor's scented blood poison. There were hasty consultations and it was finally decided that he might row, though his knee was pained and stiff.

Walling rowed all right. He pushed his boat ahead at the opportune moment in the second mile, kept it there and then fought off the Navy in a desperate finish.

It was a fitting setting for the great scene. A misty, discouraging rain blew from the east and the gloom of night was settling over the giant palisades which shadow the Hudson. Just before the race Washington was not considered to have more than a ghost of a chance.

But that didn't worry the westerners. It seemed they had planned to win this particular race and they didn't care much whether the fates were with them or not. They were going to win anyway.

They planned every move out in detail. They fixed it so the coxswain would wave a little red flag when they held the lead and avoid the situation which developed last year when they were unable to hear the coxswain and let the Navy steal the race from them in the last few yards. The signal worked perfectly and helped them immeasureably when the Navy crew started its sprint down the stretch.

But all the plans and red flags in the world wouldn't have done them any good, if they didn't have the red-blooded determination of thoroughbred sportsmen to fight all odds and win.

Their feat will live forever in rowing history as an example of what a man can do if he wants to.

Luis Angel Firpo and Jack McAuliffe II, who fought so ferociously against each other at the Polo Grounds milk fund exhibition, now are buddies. They have been training together down at Allenhurst, N.J., sleep at the same place, eat at the same table. box together at exhibitions and yet neither of them can understand a word the other says.

Firpo's rugged intelligence has not yet been able to master the English language, and MacAuliffe knows not one word of Spanish.

But they have breeched the chasms which might have separated them when Firpo pounded MacAuliffe to a pulp.

Thirteen-year-old Helen Briscoe is the latest girl sport prodigy. She flashed into the aquatic limelight recently when she defeated six star mermaids in the final heat of the 100-meter race at Madison Square Garden. Her margin of victory was six inches.

• • •

Frankie Frisch is well on his way to making 200 safe hits this season. He was the first player in the big leagues to make 100 hits.

His great feat is to beat the ball down to first. He would probably be able to steal a few bushels of bases every year because of his tremendous speed, if it were not for the fact that he can't slide.

Frisch still dives head-first for the bag on a close play the way he used to up at Fordham University a few years ago, before he went to the Giants.

He is studying the book, however, and if he masters it he may develop into the best man in the majors on the bases.

A LONESOME LITTLE GIRL

Said Anna, "I'm sorry for me:
I'm lonely and sad as can be—
There's nobody near me
To comfort and cheer me—
And nothing to do or to see."

Big tears rolled down Anna's cheeks and splashed on her worn copy of "Alice in Wonderland." Even Alice could not cheer Anna up today. Mrs. Fisher had been called to the country to care for an old school friend of hers. Anna was very lonesome, and just a little jealous, too. Never before had her mother gone off and left her all alone, and for some one that Anna didn't even know, too!

"But what shall I do, all alone?" she asked, when the news came.

"Oh, you're big enough to get along," her mother had answered. "And Daddy will be home early." Then she had grabbed her hat and rushed out to the taxi, forgetting in her haste even to kiss her little girl. Poor Anna decided her mother must not love her like she used to.

And then, at noon, Daddy had called to say he couldn't possibly get home early. He had to go out of the country on business and he might as well drive on out after Mother. It might be after eight before they got home?

"B—but, Daddy, what will I do?" gasped Anna, the lump in her throat getting bigger and bigger. It wasn't as if they knew any one in the town. The Fishers had just moved there and they were still unacquainted.

"Surely you're not going to be a baby about staying alone," Daddy had said a little impatiently. "Try to show Mother and Daddy what a fine, brave girl they have. You know, you're growing up." Anna hung up the receiver, feeling that both her parents had turned against her.

Suddenly the doorbell rang. At first Anna was almost afraid to go, but she decided that it would be better to let in a tramp or a burglar than to stay there in that empty house alone a minute longer.

"How do you do. I'm Lucille Evans," her visitor announced, "and it's my mother that's sick. Your mother said for me to come in and spend the day with you while she took care of Mother. I think your mother is just lovely. She let me come all alone and treated me just like a grown-up. I brought you a box of chocolates that Daddy gave me."

Just then the telephone rang. "Is this Anna Fisher?" a pleasant, deep voice asked. "This is an old college friend of your father's. Your father said maybe you'd give me the pleasure of going out to dinner with me tonight. I've got tickets for the 'Blue Bird,' too. Don't you have a little friend who might like to go along?"

"Oh, isn't it wonderful to be grown-up!" Anna cried.

HOW TO BUILD YOUR OWN RAFT

Get busy, fellows, and build yourselves a regular swimming raft that will hold together and give you a lot of real fun. It is easy to do if you'll get the gang together. Build your raft by the water's edge.

First, gather up some good, dry logs, about fifteen feet long and eight inches in diameter. You'll need six of them. With them, lay out a frame as shown in the picture, using the method illustrated in the drawing to get them "hitched together" so they will stay.

Now the planking must be put on this frame. In the centre of the raft, a trap must be made which can be removed. This trap must be large enough to allow a barrel to be dropped through it, because that is exactly what it is to be used for—to drop barrels through.

GET OIL BARRELS.

The next part of the job consists of getting a number of old oil barrels or any other kind which are not likely to leak water. About ten or fifteen should be procured, and they should then be tarred and painted to make them absolutely water-tight. Of course a little plug is put in one end of each barrel so that the water can be emptied out if it does leak in.

When these barrels are dry and ready to put in the water, float the frame of your raft. It will be pretty heavy, and can be moved more easily if logs or rollers are put under it. When it is floated and temporarily anchored, take one barrel at a time, drop it in the hole in the centre of the raft, and shove it under the raft. Do this until you have as many barrels under the raft as there is space for. These barrels will buoy your raft up so that it will be quite a steady affair and will hold great weight without sinking.

REPLACE TRAP.

With the barrels all stowed away, replace the trap and paint the surface of the raft with deck paint. After the paint dries, put a diving board on your raft. If you have put enough barrels under it, the diving board will be steady and will give a good spring.

One group of boys who made such a raft placed a little bath house upon it without much trouble, and also a six-foot diving tower. If you have all three of these features, place the bath house in the centre, the spring board on one side, and the diving tower on the side diametrically opposite.

This sort of a craft is good for about ten years of service if any care is taken to keep it in shape. Paint it every year.

REAL HARD LUCK.

"Just my luck," said the prisoner, as he threw the magazine across his cell in disqust. "Nothing but continued stories, and my execution's fixed for next Friday."

PATRICIA BRENT SPINSTER

ANONYMOUS

One afternoon on her return to Galvin House, Gustave opened the door. He had evidently been on the watch. His kindly face was beaming with goodwill.

"Oh, mees!" he cried. "Mees Brent is here."

"Aunt Adelaide!" cried Patricia, her heart sinking. Then seeing the comical look of indecision upon Gustave's face caused by her despairing exclamation, she laughed.

When she entered the lounge, it was to find Miss Brent sitting upright upon the stiffest chair in the middle of the room. Miss Wangle and Mrs. Mosscrop-Smythe were seated together in the extreme corner, Mrs. Barnes and two or three others were grouped by the window. The atmosphere was tense. Something had apparently happened. Patricia learned that from the grim set of Miss Brent's mouth.

"I want to talk to you, Patricia," Miss Brent announced after the customary greeting.

"Yes, Aunt Adelaide," said Patricia sinking into a chair with a sigh of resignation.

"Somewhere private," said Miss Brent.

"There is no privacy at Galvin House," murmured Patricia, "except in the bathroom."

"Patricia, don't be indelicate," snapped Miss Brent.

"I'm not indelicate, Aunt Adelaide, I'm merely being accurate," said Patricia wearily.

"Cannot we go to your room?" enquired Miss Brent.

"Impossible!" announced Patricia. on it all the afternoon. Besides," continued Patricia, "my aaffirs are public property here. We are quite a commune. We have everything in common—except our toothbrushes," she added as an after-thought.

"Well! Let us get over there."

Miss Brent rose and made for the corner farthest from Miss Wangle and Mrs. Mosscrop-Smythe. Patricia followed her wearily.

"I've just snubbed those two women," announced Miss Brent, as she seated herself in a basket-chair that squeaked protestingly.

"There were indications of electricity in the air," remarked Patricia calmly.

I want to have a serious talk with you, Patricia," said Miss Brent in her best it's-my-duty-cost-it-what-it may manner.

"How can anyone be serious in this heat?" protested Patricia.

"I owe it to your poor dear father to——"

"This debtor and creditor business is killing romance," murmured Patricia.

"I have your welfare to consider," proceeded Miss Brent. "I——"

"Don't you think you've done enough mischief already Aunt Adelaide?" enquired Patricia coolly.

"Mischief! I?" exclaimed Miss Brent in astonishment.

Patricia nodded.

"As your sole surviving relative it is my duty——"

"Don't you think," interrupted Patricia, "that just for once you could neglect your duty? Sin is wonderfully exhilarating.

"Patricia!" almost shrieked Miss Brent, horror in her eyes. "Are you mad?"

"No," replied Patricia, "only a little weary."

"You must have a tonic," announced Miss Brent.

Patricia shuddered. She still remembered her childish sufferings resulting from Miss Brent's interpretation and application of The Doctor at Home. She was convinced that she had swallowed every remedy the book contained and been rubbed with every linament its pages revealed.

"No, Aunt Adelaide," she said evenly. "All I require is that you should cease interfering in my affairs."

"How dare you! How——" Miss Brent paused wordless.

"I am prepared to accept you as an aunt," continued Patricia, outwardly calm; but almost stifled by the pounding of her heart. "It is God's will; but if you persist in assuming the mantle of Mrs. Grundy, combined with the infallibility of the Pope, then I must protest."

"Protest!" repeated Miss Brent repeating the word as if not fully comprehending its meaning.

"If I am able to earn my own living then I am able to conduct my own love affairs."

"But——" began Miss Brent.

"I am sorry to appear rude, Aunt Adelaide, but it is much better to be frank. I am sure you mean well; but the fact of your being my sole surviving relative places me at a disadvantage. If there were two of you or three, you could quarrel about me, and thus preserve the balance. Now let us talk about someting else."

For once in her life Miss Brent was nonplussed. She regarded her niece as if she had been a two-tailed giraffe, or a double-headed mastodon. Had she been American she would have known it to be brain-storm; as it was she decided that Patricia was sickening for some serious illness that had produced a temperature.

Some Useful Recipes

CHERRY AND RICE SALAD

Mold cooked, seasoned rice, moistened with a little cream and butter, in a shallow dish, and when firm cut in small dice. Remove the stones from a pint of sweet oxheart cherries and place in the pit cavities half a walnut meat. Add to the cherries a small cup of grated fresh pineapple and a half-cup of large strawberries cut in halves. Then mix in lightly the diced rice heap in lettuce cups and dress with a honey cream dressing. If the fruit is very tart, sprinkle with powdered sugar, and chill for several hours in the ice chest. Be sure the fruit is thoroughly drained before blending the salad.

FROZEN RICE PUDDING

Have ready one cup of rice cooked until very tender and seasoned with salt. Cool and mix with half a pint of thick, boiled, sweetened custard flavored with a teaspoon of vanilla extract. Chill on the ice and fold in half a pint of double cream, whipped solid, with half a cup of powdered sugar. Turn into a chilled freezer and when the mixture begins to congeal stir in three-quarters of a cup of chopped seeded raisins boiled until tender in a lemon syrup and two tablespoons of minced candied orange peel that has soaked over night in maraschino cordial or the cooled lemon syrup. Continue to freeze until firm and smooth.

Macaroni and Cheese.

Break the macaroni into inch lengths, enough to fill one large coffee cup, cook in salted boiling water for 25 minutes, or until most of the water has boiled away, drain. Butter a casserole dish, and put in a layer of macaroni, salt, pepper, and a little butter, then cover well with grated cheese. Put layers of macaroni and cheese alternately until dish is almost full, then pour over this a thin white sauce. Grate the cheese plentifully over the top, bake in a moderate oven for 20 minutes. Kidney Sufferers

REGARDLESS OF SEX OR AGE

NOW is a good time to use ENURESOL TABLETS for your Kidney or Bladder trouble, for weak, lame back, for cystitis, nervousness, for days of pain and weary, sleepless nights, for headache, loss of appetite, for painful bladder ENURESOL TABLETS are man's greatest discovery.

GETTING UP time after time is one of the most annoying of kidney troubles, and one of the most dangerous, as many people bothered this way never seem to realize that this is only a warning of kidney trouble. The loss of sleep is another drain on the nervous system, and the chilling of the body from rising so often is another shock for the system, which is already overworked.

BED-WETTING takes about the same position in kidney troubles that backache, and other warnings do. It is simply a warning that kidneys or bladder are affected if only from nervous shock, but is doubly dangerous because the bed-wetting may stop for years, then come back as any of the troubles at first mentioned of which the cause is the same. ENURESOL TABLETS overcome this cause.

This theory has been proven correct by the uniformly good results obtained with ENURESOL TABLETS in young and old, as the following typical cases from our records show, names of which will be furnished upon request:

R. D., Minnesota: Girl, age 14 years, had always been a bed-wetter, although apparently well otherwise. Her parents tried many treatments, medical and mechanical, without benefits. Seven weeks after beginning to use ENURESOL TABLETS she stopped wetting the bed, but continued the treatment six weeks longer and she has had no return of the trouble.

R. G., Wayne, Michigan: Boy, 11 years. Three years ago his mother ordered four boxes of ENURESOL TABLETS and four months later reported the boy had not wet the bed for six weeks, and since reports the trouble has not returned.

Mrs. W., Milwaukee, Wis.: Age 44 years, has never had a full night's sleep, having to get up four to eight times a night. Visited Hot Springs, mud baths, sanitariums, and was operated on twice in two different hospitals without benefit. Six weeks of ENURESOL cured her completely, three years ago, and has had no return of the troublesome nuisance.

F. J., Minnesota, 75 years old, is no less interesting. For over 25 years F. J. suffered with incontinence of urine, day and night. As he grew older the trouble increased, having to pass water every half hour or oftener. Had a stroke of paralysis which increased the trouble to such an extent that only a few drops of bloody urine could be voided with intense pain, causing surgeons to suspect cancer of the bladder. Being placed on ENURESOL at the dose of two tablets every two hours with a glass of cool water or milk, the tenesmus disappeared in twelve hours and had a good restful sleep the next night, and fully recovered perfect health in the next three months. Mr. F. J. is now 85 years old and at last report was still alive and well.

It is important to regulate the diet, and overeating, coffee, and acid foods should be used sparingly.

ENURESOL TABLETS are absolutely safe and harmless, being a tonic for the kidneys, bladder and nervous system.

It is dependable for weak, nervous, restless, slow-growing, languid children. A fair trial of ENURESOL TABLETS will convince you of their value.

SALT FOR LIVE STOCK

Considered Necessary for Practically All Farm Animals.

Be Careful Not to Salt Too Heavily—Live Stock Grow Unthrifty Without It—Milking in Holland—Kindness and Cleanliness Strictly Insisted Upon.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Salt the cattle, salt the sheep, and salt the horses. Why do we practice it? You stockmen have been doing it all your life, and your fathers did so before you. But why did they do it? No doubt it was observed that the stock liked to lick anything that had a salty flavor—a fish cask, or soil where salt had been spilled or a natural salt deposit. Like all our animal feeding practices, the feeding of salt has developed through years of observation, until it is now regularly practiced by all the best herdsmen and feeders.

Salt For Animals a Necessity.

Animals must get salt from some source if their bodies are to function with full efficiency. If no salt is available to the animal through the food medium or minerals given, the digestion is impaired. Large quantities of salt are as harmful in practice as no salt at all. But a little is absolutely essential in that it supplies the chlorine so necessary in forming a minute part (the hydrochloric acid portion) of the digestive fluid. The quantity of salt given to farm animals should not exceed one-half ounce per day for fully grown horses and cattle, small animals in proportion.

Do Not Salt Stock Too Heavily.

Many people make the mistake of salting the stock heavily once a month during the summer, and forgetting to do it at all during the winter period. The live stock kept by people who neglect this work usually develop the appearance of neglect. The use of blocks of rock salt, in troughs or mangers erected in either the stable, yard or field is a good practice that will pay good returns for the expense or effort. Just remember that the stock must have salt from some source, and that the salt that you give them supplies the chlorine essential in the formation of hydrochloric acid in the animals digestive system.

Animals that have been kept without salt for a year become very unthrifty, and animals that are given an overdose of salt do not thrive. Half an ounce a day is about right. It is not a food, but it helps to make the food materials available during the process of digestion.—L. Stevenson, Director of Extension, O.A.C., Guelph.

MILKING IN HOLLAND.

Milkers Carefully Trained to be Clean, Kind and Thorough.

In Denmark and Holland the milker starts his future profession at the age of 12 or 14 years. He then enjoys the privilege of being allowed to milk such cows as are in the drying off period, although it is done under the severe supervision of his father, who fears that his son or pupil may spoil the animal. I remember well my first lessons in milking on our Holland farm, and how proud I was of being allowed to milk. Before jumping on the stall with my bucket and stool (the Holland stalls are some 2½ to 3 feet above the regular stable floor) the cow was given a little warning of my coming by a couple of caressing words, then the bucket was put between the knees, the bottom on the inside of my right wooden shoe. The two front teats were milked first, and if one of the teats milked out sooner than the other I was inclined to take one of the back teats. This was not allowed because it might result in an unusual development and decreased stimulation of one of the quarters. The two front teats had to be empty before going over to the back teats. These were the preliminary instructions. After being able to milk several drying off cows I was allowed to follow with the second class. This was another important step, and I believe it cost me still more sweat than the first lessons, for now I had to milk rather quickly and with the full hand, as stripping of the teats between thumb and forefinger was never allowed on our farm. Aside from the rather quick milking, we were not allowed to make strippers of our cows. Still there was a third class, and that was the milking of fresh cows and heifers. My father was always milking these, because he had the idea that nobody else but himself could break them. The milking of the fresh cows, thrice a day, was not such a hard job, but to milk those stubborn heifers and never lose one's temper was a difficult job. Instead of milking first two the front quarters empty and afterwards the rear quarters, with the heifer a front and a rear quarter were first milked and afterwards the other two opposite quarters. This was done for the purpose of obtaining an equal development of all four quarters in the future cow.

We were then called fully skilled in the milking science, but let me add that we had to receive a good many side instructions, such as not to talk or be noisy during milking, never to be rough to any animal, never to lose one's temper, to milk always one's own cow and in the same order and at the same hours, and so forth.

The best method of paying for the farm is to make it exceptionally productive, and the way to do this is to keep the right kind of dairy cattle thereon.

Sometimes hoeing is hard work, not because the ground is especially weedy, but because the hoe is not set at the right angle or is dull and rusty. Bright, sharp tools make the work more easy.

MOULDY SWEET CLOVER

May Cause Disease or Death to Live Stock.

Symptoms of the Trouble—Cattle May Bleed to Death—Preventing the Mould—Good Sweet Clover Harmless.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

Reports of serious sickness occurring amongst the cattle being fed upon sweet clover have been received at the Veterinary College. The disease which is now frequently spoken of as "sweet clover disease," or "sweet clover poisoning," made its first appearance, as far as is known, during the winter of 1921-22.

The Symptoms of the Disease.

The presence of large and small swellings in different parts of the body is usually the first thing which attracts attention. These swellings are generally located along the back, over the shoulder joints or between the thighs. They vary much in shape and size and may form quite slowly or with marked rapidity. They are rarely painful, and when opened are found to contain either blood or a watery yellow fluid. The affected animal does not appear to be very sick and either stands or lies in the accustomed way. Food may be taken in small quanities, but the appetite is not good. The outer part of the eye is very pale, so also is the lining membrance of the nose. The swellings which are so characteristic of the disease are due to an escape of blood from the vessels. The small arteries and veins have become weakened by the disease so that rupture is made easy.

In another form of the disease the blood loses its power of clotting so that animals may bleed to death after giving birth to their calves. In one instance a farmer had branded his cattle by clipping a strip of skin from the border of each ear. All of the animals would have bled to death had not the hemorrhage been stopped by ligatures.

Damaged Sweet Clover Dangerous.

In all the cases investigated the sick animals had been fed sweet clover hay or ensilage which had been damaged by excessive heating or moulding. Sometimes the change produced in the hay has been so slight that the farmer has either not seen it or has thought it to be of no consequence. It is frequently difficult to make the owner believe that such slightly damaged food is responsible for the serious disease of his animals.

The Prevention of Mould.

Whether the mould which is so generally found in the damaged feed is the ultimate cause of the disease is not a matter of great importance. Its presence is a danger signal which must be heeded. It can be said with certainty that if the hay shows no mould in the mow, and the ensilage no mould in the silo, that either can be fed with safety. How then can the mould be prevented? For the most satisfactory methods of cultivating and harvesting the reader is referred to Bulletin 296 of the Ontario Agricultural College. Apart from the moulding which may occur in the field due to damp weather, or in the mow due to insufficient curing, there is another way which must be considered. It is the development of mould due to the moist air rising through the ceiling of the cattle stable below and settling out on the hay in the mow. This, I feel sure, has been the cause of mouldy hay in several cases. It must be prevented by either a tight ceiling or putting a straw bottom in the mow. Common salt seems to be of real value in checking the growth of moulds in the hay mow. From fifty to one hundred pounds is required for each ton, and this must be sprinkled uniformly through the hay while it is being spread in the mow.

Good Sweet Clover Harmless.

Many experiments have been conducted in the feeding of samples of good and bad sweet clover to calves and rabbits. The animals receiving the damaged food almost always became ill and died. In no case has there been any sickness in the animals fed upon good sweet clover hay or ensilage. In one experiment two calves were fed an exclusive diet of good sweet clover ensilage over a period of six weeks and both remained well. Rabbits have been fed on samples of bad sweet clover hay which were taken from the same hay mow. Those which received the good hay lived while those which received the bad died.

In Conclusion.

The use of sweet clover for hay is risky, because if moulds and other organisms grow in the hay it may become a highly poisonous food.

The ten cent instrument, so frequently peddled at the country fairs, which is supposed to serve half a dozen purposes from opening tin cans to drawing a three inch screw, rarely does more than two things well, and that is all that should be expected for the money. Sweet clover has proved to be an excellent soil-builder, a good ensilage crop, and to make valuable pasture. Why endanger the reputation of a useful plant by requiring it to accomplish that for which it was apparently not intended.—Frank W. Scofield, D.V. Sc., Ont. Veterinary College, Guelph.

The Horse Remains.

It is true that the horse will never again occupy the same position in the world's economies as he did in the past. Motive power has changed rapidly in the past century and it is well that it has, for transportation improvement has been the greatest known stimulant to civilization. It has annihilated distance, and brought peoples together and in doing this it is bringing about a greater human understanding.

SEED DRILL AND PLOW

How to Properly Care for These Useful Implements.

Watch the Bearings and Attend to Oiling—Cover the Plow's Bright Parts With Thick Oil or Grease—How to Tell the Bushels of Grain In a Bin—"Holding Up" Milk.

(Contributed by Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto.)

The seed drill shows the result of neglect in a way so impressively as to deter the owner or operator from abusing this machine to the same extent as he may practice with the plow or harrow. A warped seed box, or rusty and clogged grain runs, leave tell tale evidence over the field that even makes the neglectful man repent. With many moving parts, the drill requires frequent careful oiling. Disc and double disc drills have many more moving parts than the shoe or hoe type of drill, and with the disc bearings subjected to dust and sand, considerable trouble will develop if there is any neglect to keep the bearings properly adjusted and oiled. When once the bearings become worn, it is impossible for the disc to function properly and renewal of the parts that have become worn is the only remedy if the drill is to give best service. All bearings should receive attention and be kept smooth and free from grit. This is best done by a frequent application of light mineral oil. The grain drill bearings are not the easiest to get at; a long flexible stem oil can is generally the most useful type of oiler.

Keep the Oil Can Constantly at Hand.

An oil can should always be with the seed drill. The large wheels turning slowly may not need oiling more than once each half day, but the discs may turn 15,000 times in a day under considerable pressure, hence the need of frequent oiling. The seed box mechanism turning slowly can generally be well served by oiling twice a day. The grain drill should not be exposed to the weather when not in use. A canvas cover sufficiently large to fully protect the grain box should go with this machine for use over night or idle periods if it is not desired to move the drill back to its proper storage in the implement shed until the close of the seeding season. The matter of keeping bolts tight and everything in adjustment is just as important with this machine as with any other. If the drill gets proper care, it will last the lifetime of the operator, and the original cost of paint will carry it througn.

When the plow is not in use its bright surfaces should be protected by a layer of thick mineral oil or grease. Heavy machine oil or good axle grease rubbed over the mould board, share, coulter and jointer point will save a plow from the ravages of rust. The rusting of one winter period may injure a plow more than a long season's service in the field. Rusty plows lose a lot of time for man and team in the spring, through delay caused by halts to clear and scrape a mould board that will not scour. All braces and bolts should be kept tight, the points of share, coulter and skimmer sharp and of proper shape. The plow wheel and axle should be kept well lubricated and packed in such a way as will prevent sand reaching the wearing surface of wheel hub or axle. The small wheel of a plow will turn 40,000 times in a day plowing two acres. If the wheel is to last and do good service, the axle should get a little heavy oil every hour. An oil can holder should be attached to every plow, so that the oil supply will always be at hand and screeching prevented by its timely use.

Watch the Plow Point.

If the plow point becomes worn the inclination of the mouldboard is changed; the plow tends to run on the point, the work becomes heavier on both the horses and the plowman, and poorer work is done. The heel of tie share wears nearly as quickly as does the point. With the dulling of the heel the plow will wing over to the land and require more exertion on the part of both man and team. Keep the plowshare sharp and in proper form. A coat of paint applied to the handles, beam and all other parts that do not come in direct contact with the oil will do much to keep up appearances and prevent weathering. —L. Stevenson, Sec., Dept. of Agriculture.

Bushels of Grain in Bins.

To compute the number of bushels in bins multiply the length by width and depth, and divide the number obtained by 1¼. This gives the number of bushels.

If figuring on ear corn, divide by 2½ instead of 1¼ as for small grain or shelled corn.

A common farm waggon box, 10 feet long and 3 feet wide, will hold about 2 bushels of grain for every inch in depth, that is, a box 18 inches deep will hold approximately 36 bushels.

When Cow "Holds Up" Milk.

The suppression of secretion of milk is the reflex result of irritation of the nervous system. Shock, chill, fright, pain, rough milking, sensitive teats, weaning of a calf, etc., are some of the causes. If possible have the cow milked by a woman. Try the effects of placing a young calf at her head before starting to milk. Massage the udder gently for a few minutes before milking. If the teats are tender apply some melted lard each evening. An old-fashioned treatment is to lay a sack of grain on the cow's loins at milking time. This is expected to detract her attention so that she will "let down her milk." We cannot vouch for the efficiency of this plan as we have not tried it in practice. In stubborn cases it is best to let a calf nurse.

When cutting in the woodlot, think twenty years ahead.

LIGHT FRUIT CROP IS INDICATED HERE

The present indications throughout Ontario, according to the July report of the Department of Agriculture are that the crop of the various kinds of tender fruits will be slightly less than that of last year. The prospects are that the peach crop of the Niagara District will not be more than 75 per cent of 1922, with the early varieties 50 per cent, Yellow St. John and early Crawfords 100 per cent, Elbertas 40 per cent and the later varieties 70 per cent of last year. The crop of sour cherries will be about 90 per cent of 1922, while the sweet cherries will be equal to that of last year, the Japanese plums are very light while European plums are estimated at 70 per cent. It is yet too early to give any estimate of the grape crop but the present prospects are approximately equal to those of last year. Milton—Sweet cherries light, sour cherries average, plums light, pears average. Niagara-on-the-Lake — Sour cherries 125 per cent of 1922, Sweet 90 per cent, Japanese plums a failure European plums 85 per cent over last year, pears 30 per cent, peaches 85 per cent of 1922, apricots a failure. Queenston—Cherries, sweet, equal, sour, 40 per cent less than last year. Plums and pears 35 per cent, peaches 50 per cent. There is considerable leaf curl in the peaches where orchards were not well sprayed early in the season. Late fall spraying with lime sulphur seems to have controlled this disease. St. Catharines—Japanese plums light, other plums variable, peaches not as good as bloom indicated, but may be an average crop. Grimsby—Cherries 90 per cent, peaches 85 per cent, plums 50 cent and pears 40 per cent of the crop of 1922. Norfolk and Elgin Counties—Montmorency cherries 150 per cent, Early Richmond 125 per cent, sweet cherries 100 per cent of last year. Plums all varieties, full crop, pears, all varieties, 50 per cent less; peaches 25 per cent better than 1922. Ingersoll—Cherries equal to last year but plums and pears not over 40 per cent of the crop of 1922. Arkona—Cherries and pears much lighter than last year peaches not much grown but showing an average crop. Plums fair to medium crop. Forest—Cherries light, plums and peaches 10 per cent in excess and pears equal to last year. Port Elgin—Cherries and plums better than 1922. Georgian Bay District—Cherries show a heavy bloom but a very small percentage set. Plums and pears will be 25 per cent lighter than 1922. Brighton; Trenton—Cherries light, not more than 40 per cent of 1922, plums and pears fair to medium crop. Wellington—Cherries 80 per cent of the crop of last year. Pears and plums equal to last year. Bloomfield—Richmond cherries complete failure. Montmorency 10 per cent of a crop. Cobourg, Port Hope—Cherries, plums and pears very light. Newcastle Bowmanville—Early Richmond cherries light, other varieties fair. Pears fair to good.

constitutional rights. In conclusion Mr. Thompson made an appeal to all Orangeman to live up to its principles

Mr. J. F. Hill, M.P.P., for East Hastings was cordially received and made a fine address. He would urge all Orangemen to live up to the principles of the Order. In 1795 the first Orange Society was formed in Ireland and since that time it has prospered and grown to large propotions. The Orange Society is by no means a bigated society; it is incorruptable and cannot be bought. He paid a tribute to the Ladies Orange Lodge and were doing good work. In 1812 the first Orange Lodge was formed in Canada and its growth has been phenomal. There are at present 10 pronatal Grand Lodges and 3,000 primary lodges. We will after next Monday have a Premier in Ontario who will look well after the educational policy of this province. All will be fairly dealt with. All should get out and take a stand and show their colors. The Orange Society has done good in this country.

Other speakers were Rev. A. H. Creggan of Deseronto, Rev. E. Farnsworth of Cannifton and Mr. W. C. Mikel, K.C., of this city The singing of the National Anthem brought the proceeding to a close.

BASEBALL

In a field adjoining the school premises two baseball games took place and were interesting to a large crowd of pectators. The first game wes between Cannifton and Blessington teams and the G. T. R. junior team of this city and Point Anne.

NOTES

The days proceedings were brought to a close by a concert held in the evening and was well attended.

Many from Belleville were in attendanre and took part in the days proceedings.

Nothing occurred during the day to mar the pleasing proceedings.

BAYSIDE CELEBRATES

At Bayside, Sidney Township a celebration was held yesterday afternoon and many were present to participate in the activities of the day. Lodges in this district were well represented in the parade held after the noon day luncheon. The event was under the auspices of the Bayside and Wallbridge Lodges and was held in Wilson's grove. Dinner was served to many during the noon hour. A good programme of sports was carried out during the afternoon. Booths about the grove were liberally patronized.

12,000 AT TORONTO.

Toronto, July 13.—Twelve thousand followers of the Orange and Blue yesterday celebrated the two hundred and thirty-third anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne in Toronto.

Never was the "Glorious Twelfth" more glorious. Old Sol, traditional friend of the Orangeman, beamed his kindliest from a cloudless sky. Not a hitch occurred to mar the success of one of the largest and most spectacular Twelfth of July parades in the city's history.

ATLANTA HOSTS TO CONVENTION OF ELKS LODGES

By DON H. HINGA

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Atlanta, Ga., July 13 (United Press)—From fifty to seventy-five thousand of the "Best People on Earth" are expected to visit Atlanta during the Fifty-Ninth Grand Lodge and Reunion of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks which convened here yesterday. The reunion will continue through July 14. From every state in the Union and even the island possession of the United States, representative "Brother Bills" will gather to attend what is planned to be the greatest reunion of the Fraternal Order ever held.

Overshadowing all other business of the convention will be the election of new officers. A new Grand Exalted Ruler to succeed J. Edgar Masters, and other officers, will be chosen.

Scores of questions of interest to Elks which have come up during the past year will be threshed out on the floor of the convention or settled in committee meetings.

Past Exalted Ruler John S. McClelland, of Atlanta presided over the opening meeting. Governor Clifford Walker, of Georgia and Mayor W. A. Sims, of Atlanta, both members of the local lodge, addressed the meeting. Exalted Ruler J. Edgar Masters will make the response.

CARING FOR GUESTS

Atlanta, known throughout the country as the "Convention City of America," is preparing to outdo all previous efforts to entertain the horde of Elks. Members of the local lodge have been busy arranging accommodations for the visitors. A house-to-house canvass for rooms in private homes is being made. Every available hotel room, even in the smallest of hostelries, has long since

For those unable to secure other accommodations, a huge tent has been constructed in a park in the residence section of the city. Hundreds of cots, running water, and other accommodations is provided for those desiring to "camp out."

A fleet of Pullman cars will be switched on tracks located as near as possible to the downtown section. The railroad yards are but a few blocks from the heart of town.

Miles of purple and white bunting—official Elks' colors— are draped on more than seventy blocks in the business district. The National and Elk emblems hang from practically every building. Homes in the residence sections are also decorated.

HAVE BIG PARADE

Through these multi-colored streets a mammoth pageant arranged for the entertainment of the delegates will move. Including delegations from every chapter in the country, the parade will be several miles long. A reviewing stand, holding 2,000 persons, has been erected from which Exalted Ruler Masters, Governor Clifford Walker, of Georgia, Mayor W. A. Sims, of Atlanta and other dignataries will review the pageant.

An immense typically southern barbecue, three grand balls, and 18 hole medal play golf tournament and other diversions will entertain the delegates. The Atlanta Woman's Club has prepared a round of social functions for women visitors.

The initial event of the big convention was an impressive patriotic ceremony given in Piedmont Park on Sunday, July 8, on the eve of the opening of the national meet. The annual competitive drill in which crack teams from the different chapters competed for prizes was one of the most colorful affairs of the week.

RACING SWIMMING

(This is the fifth of a series of eight articles by Pierson L. Maxwell, a swimming expert who has taught boys and girls to swim at municipal beaches, ocean beaches and private pools. Mr. Maxwell has been a life-guard and a racing swimmer for a number of years. He knows what he is talking about when it comes to swimming. Clip these articles and follow them if you want to become a good swimmer.)

There are several little tricks in the racing swimming game which can be given to the fair swimmer to make him much more efficient. If you are going to do free style racing and wish to meet with any success, you must swim the American crawl, which has been described in the preceding articles.

The start of a race is one important thing. The starting dive is a shallow, fast dive, in which the body barely goes under the water. The shock of the dive is absorbed by the chest and hands, not the stomach.

MAKE SHALLOW DIVE.

When a starter says, "Swimmers ready," have your feet about eight inches apart, be standing on your toes with toes clamped over the edge of the pool, hands swung in back of the body, and eyes watching the starter. When he fires the gun or says "Go", you go, getting as much spring as you can and making a shallow dive. Just as soon as you leave the bank, start the legs moving, but coast for a few feet before starting the arm movement.

One of the best ways of developing yourself into a good racing swimmer if you have a fair stroke, is to enter races. Enter them even if you know the other fellows are much older and much better than you are. Competition is the fastest way in the world of seasoning up a racer.

USE LEGS ALONE.

Another thing which will improve your speed is to swim with your legs alone, using the crawl kick, keeping the hands out in front of you and breathing when necessary. This is really hard work, but is an efficient way to gain endurance and speed.

NO CAMOUFLAGE.

The Indian in America used to eat pine bark. But nobody sold it to 'em for breakfast food, sagely observes the New York Tribune.

The instruments that Optometrists use

Are among the most exact that have ever been devised and perfected.

As these instruments work in harmony with natural laws, they never vary in their accuracy.

By their use the smallest errors of vision are detected, which is one reason why the Optometrist has such uniform "luck".

Best possible results in all cases where glasses are needed is what we promise our patients.

Two-Minute Tours

(By United Press)

Runnymede, scene of the signing of the historic Magna Carta, on June 15, celebrated the 708th anniversary of that signing.

Runnymede lies only five miles down the Thames from Windsor, the town which holds the most sumptuous of the palaces of the British kings, and which gave its name as an English family name to the present monarch when, during the World War his German name became unacceptable.

The meadow is only some 12 or 15 miles upstream from London.

There is a conflict of opinions as to whether Runnymede or Magna Carta Island, just off shore, was the site of the signing of the Great Charter. A generally accepted version of the historic incident states that the army of barons encamped on Runnymede, that King John's followers remained on the opposite bank of the stream, and that meetings between the monarch and the leading barons took place on the little island. A cottage on the island houses a stone slab on which it is asserted that the document was signed.

THE EYES OF THE BLIND.

I have a friend, the sweetest friend
That ever you could find.
And, though he lights the way for me,
They tell me he is blind.

But, oh! I know my friends can see
Much more than I or you;
We are the sightless: he is blessed
With visions ever new.

So quiet, so serene his face,
His smile so quick, so bright—
He sees beyond the things we touch
And needs no earthly light.

His spirit bears him on, although
He knows not night from day;
The shining beauty of his soul
Lights all the darkened way.

Our fleshly eyes that have not seen
The glory yet to come.
Can never follow such as he
When he shall reach his Home.

The joys to us so new and strange,
The radiance and the song.
To him will be but old-time things
That he has loved so long.

Soul blind and groping for the peace
That he—who sees—has won.
We know when we would guide his steps
'Tis he who leads us on.

Earned Education in the Prize Ring

Kansas City, Mo., (United Press).—Dr. S. A. Scimeca, who has built up a large medical practice in Kansas City since coming here in 1918, has revealed that previous to that time, he was known in fistic circles as "Al Schumacher"

Dr. Scimeca fought his way through Maryland university, earning money in the ring under the nom de plume.

During his college life, Dr. Scimeca fought Benny Leonard, Ritchie Mitchell, Leach Cross, Harry Stone, Jimmy Barrie and Eddie McAndrews.

"I was after money in those days—not glory," the physician said. "I fought a ten round battle with Paul Edwards one night and seven with Benny Leonard the next night. Leonard got the decision over me on a technicality. Sometimes my share of the purse would be as high as $2,500—more money than I get for many nights' work now. But I love my present work and wouldn't go back to fighting for any amount of money."

GERMANY ACCEPTS LIABILITY FOR LUSITANIA SINKING

ONE CONVICTED UNDER O.T.A. ACT

Deseronto Man is Found Guilty of Buying Liquor From Boy

TWO ACQUITTED

Youth Tells of Brisk Business in "Old Rye" Sales

Herbert Maracle, carpenter, and William J. Stainton, fish packer, both of Deseronto, were found not guilty on a charge of illegal purchase of liquor, at the conclusion of their trial here at the court house, before His Honor Judge Wills, yesterday. John Mosher, also of Deseronto, who appeared on a similar charge, was found guilty, and assessed the minimum fine $50 and costs.

C. A. Payne appeared for the accused men and Acting Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan conducted the prosecution.

"In the case of Stainton," said Judge Wills, in giving judgment, "the boy may have been mistaken in the identity of the man to whom he sold the liquor, and sufficiently so to allow this case to be dismissed." In Mosher's case, however, the evidence is too strong against him, and I must find him guilty. With regard to Maracle, it is a case of perjury, either on the part of boy or man, and though the perjurer has evaded punishment now, he will certainly pay for this hereafter. With a great deal of diffidence and doubt I give the accused the benefit of the doubt."

The boy, who sold the liquor, told of riding on his bicycle to the Stewart Hotel in Deseronto about 2-30 p.m. on June 4 with a bottle wrapped up in his rain coat. This bottle was for Maracle, although Maracle had not asked him to deliver it.

"I asked Mosher if he had seen Herb Maracle," continued the boy," and he said he had not. "Then he said I'll take that bottle off you if you like, and he told me to follow him up to his room in the hotel. I followed him up to his room, and gave him the bottle for which I received $2."

The boy spent the money on candy.

Mosher, on the stand denied every word of the evidence of the boy, and stated that he had never at any time purchased or received any liquor from the boy.

To Mr. Donnan, witness admitted taking a drink now and again, but had nothing to drink on June 4. He also admitted wearing a blue coat and khaki trousers on June 4, and being about the Stewart Hotel, and this was the description given by the boy of the man to whom he sold.

Harold G. Watson, clerk at the Stewart Hotel was called to prove what room Mosher occupied at the hotel.

Tom Dowling, when called, told of a conversation, which he had had with the boy last Tuesday, when the boy stated that he was told by Chief Constable Bowen of Deseronto, that if he did not say that it was Mosher to whom he sold, that he would be locked up. Robert Dowling, son of Tom Dowling, corroborated the evidence of his father, having been present at the time.

In the Stainton case, the boy stated that he came down from school at recess on Tuesday, July 5. and saw Stainton standing between the Stewart Hotel and the billboard. This was about 10-30 a.m. He further states that Stainton asked him if he could get him a bottle of liquor, and after telling him he could rode home and got a bottle, followed him into the wash room, and gave it to him for $2. He paid with two one dollar bills, the boy said. The whiskey was old Rye. No one else was present and Stainton put the bottle in his hip pocket. The boy, who denied having told the Dowlings the story to which they swore, said that he always came down to the hotel at recess, to have a look around.

Stainton said on the stand that the whole statement was an untruth, that he was not around the hotel that day until evening and was packing fish until 12-30 noon for Mr. Thomas McWain, who corroborated his evidence on the stand.

MAN WHO SOUGHT TO END LIFE IS REMOVED TO HOSPITAL HERE

Has Relatives at Ottawa—Was Injured Sometime ago and Unable to Talk Intelligently

Provincial Police officers returned to this city last evening, with Charles Mackie, the man who attempted to take his own life near Millbridge, early yesterday, by jumping from a moving train, and later by gashing his throat on both sides. Mackie was taken to the General Hospital here, and will recover. When he fell from the train, several of his ribs were fractured and his collar bone was broken.

Mackie, who is 54 years old, is a returned man, and his last post office address was Hartsmere, Ont. On June 5, last, the man figured in an accident of some sort, so he stated, but it was impossible to ascertain from him, the nature of the accident. He had applied to the Workmens' Compensation Board, and the claim number found on his person was 289308. This was the number on forms which the Board official had sent him.

Questioned by the startled villagers, he said he wished to walk to Trenton, and he also stated that he could inflict wounds on himself if he wished. The man was taken to Bannockburn, where he was given every attention, while the Provincial officers here were called by Magistrate Casement of Madoc.

Sergt. of Provincial Police T. Atkins called Dr. A. T. Embury at Bancroft in an endeavour to learn more details regarding Mackie's history. Dr. Embury stated that Mackin or Mackie (it is believed that the correct name is Mackin) fell off a high lumber pile in the yards of the Hamlyn Lumber Mills at Hermon, Ont., on June 27, last, and fractured 7 ribs. Dr. Embury attended him.

When Mackin was searched, there was a blood-stained letter which he had received from 28 Plymouth Avenue, Ottawa, a time sheet, and a disjointed story of his injury on June 27; also a newspaper clipping evidently taken from the Toronto Star, containing a query about mills at Trenton, wages paid and other information.

Dr. Embury says that the man has relatives at the Ottawa address, and verified the man's statement that he had applied to the Workmens' Compensation Board at Toronto after the accident. The man is subject to fits of insanity, the physician adds.

Dr. J. Faulkner dressed the man's wounds last evening when he arrived in this city with Provincial officers, and he is being watched night and day at the hospital by a provincial officer. He talks at times, but his speech is usually incoherent. He tells of the numbers of Indian and Mounted Police he killed in the earlier days, and when asked how he was injured, he sometimes says he fell off "That C.N.R. train" and other times says that the Indians stabbed him.

He told officials that he offered to dig his own grave for the Indians and then they could shoot him, but that was the only form of death he would accept from them.

When found yesterday morning by a man named Armstrong, Mackin was wandering about, his hair matted with blood, and one arm swinging behind his back. He was taken to Bannockburn where Dr. Lumb dressed his injuries and sent him to Madoc by Motor. While enroute to madoc, the man leaped from the automobile, in an effort to escape but was recaptured, having suffered further injuries in the fall. When he arrived at Madoc, he was placed in the Madoc jail. Provincial officers took him from Madoc to Belleville. Two physicians will examine the patient to determine his mental condition.

TORONTO'S SCHOOL FINANCES TIED UP

Principal Says "Shot Guns Await Board Members at City Hall"

Toronto, July 14.—There is something seriously wrong with the building finances of the Board of Education, according to information given out by Chairman John Wanless at a meeting of the School Finance committee yesterday. The city architect is holding up last year's report pending the untangling of former years' financing in the building departments.

"Aren't you going down to the City Hall for money?" asked Principal Smith.

"Well, they are waiting for us with shotguns," said the chairman.

O.T.A. VIOLATORS PAY HEAVY FINES

Oshawa, July 14.—Steve Bussin, Harry Greenburg and John Green, all of 650 Euclid avenue, Toronto, appeared before Police Magistrate Hind in police court charged with transporting liquor contrary to the Ontario Temperance Act. Bussin and Greenburg were convicted and fined $200 and $500 respectively. The case against Green was withdrawn for lack of evidence. The men were apprehended the night previous in a car by License Inspector C. A. Maxon, assisted by the local police. When the car was searched it was found to contain ten one-gallon tins of alcohol of the highest grade.

Mont Pelier, Vt., July 14.—Senator William Paul Dillingham, governor of Vermont from 1889 to 1890, aged 80 died during the night, it was announced at his home here.

ANOTHER MYSTERY STIRS KINGSTON

Bloody Clothing Found by Children Suggests Murder Theory

Kingston, July 14.—The provincial police have a mystery on their hands which they are trying to solve.

On Sunday, a party of children playing north of Spafford's Corners, on the Wilmur Road, discovered some blood-stained clothing on the side of the roadway.

The clothing consists of two men's shirts and a suit of combination underwear. All the clothing was found to be drenched in blood.

There were holes in the underclothes, which gives every evidence of being bullet holes.

The clothing has been taken in charge by Constable Clark. It has the stamp of the T. Eaton Company, Toronto.

1,200 ARE HOMELESS IN FIRE IN IDAHO

(United Press Despatch)

Wallace, Idaho, July 14.—Twelve hundred are homeless as a result of the great fire which destroyed the towns of Mace and Burke near here.

The Hercules Mine, the largest silver producer in the West, was damaged. The total damage will reach one and a half million dollars.

TWO TORONTO CITY OFFICIALS TANGLE

Toronto, July 14.—Immediately after the adjournment of the city council, early yesterday afternoon, Controller Thomas Foster walked over to Alderman Risk in the members' room and struck him a violent blow over the right temple, cutting him with a ring which he wore on his right hand.

"I hit him because he would not apologize," said Controller Foster last night, when asked regarding the reported trouble between himself and Ald. Risk, following the adjournment of the morning session of the city council.

The charge laid by Ald. Risk against Controller Foster was one of assault and the papers were signed by Magistrate Cohen. The case will probably be heard on Tuesday next.

HOSPITAL SHOWS $20,000 DEFICIT

Report to Council Shows Monthly Expenditures Exceed Receipts by $2,000

$12,000 SOUGHT

Council Members Hold That County Should Contribute Larger Sum

An adjourned meeting of the City Council was held last night the object of which was to pass a number of debenture bylaws, also to hear a deputation of the Hospital Board relative to needs of that institution and the amount the city council should provide this year. After over two hours of discussion pro and con, the matter was left with the Council to decide when the estimates were struck. Speakers on behalf of the hospital were somewhat at variance as to the amount required, ranging from $12,000 to $18,000. It was clearly shown that the receipts were by no means adequate to meet the expenditures, and the Council will no doubt make a larger grane than last year which was $9,000.

Mr. Tannahill stated that it costs the hospital $2,000 more per month than the receipts were.

Ald. McCreary asked what were the liabilities of the hospital.

Mr. Tannahill—The total liability is in the vicinity of $20,000.

Mrs. Mikel explained that the hospital year ended on the last of September being the government year. Of the $9,000 which the statement shows, $2,000 has been the grant of this year's council. There are a number of bills outstanding from patients who were in the hospital for a few days.

Mrs. Vanbuskirk presented a report which showed expenditures and from whom supplies for the hospital had been purchased.

Ald. Robinson suggested that the hospital Board ask of the Council the smallest sum that they require from the city this year.

Mrs. Mikel—The expenditures of the hospital are standardized according to the Government requirement. Nurses have to be sent to Montreal and Toronto to receive certain training and this means additional expenses. Surgical instruments for the operating room the past year cost $1,500 and there were other expenditures which could not be avoided.

Ald. Thompson—The Council is criticized by some on account of the grants made to the hospital being increased

Hon. Sir Hugh John Macdonald to Aid U.E.L. Celebration

Hon. Sir Hugh John Macdonald of Winnipeg has joined the U. E. L. Celebration Corporation and consented to act as Vice-President. Hugh John, as he is usually called, says he will be here next June to help make the celebration a success and meet his old friends on the Bay of Quinte.

It will be remembered that his illustrious father, the Rt. Hon. Sir John A. Macdonald, started his career at Adolphustown to which place he was brought a little immigrant boy of five years old by his parents from Scotland, 103 years ago. Sir John attended the old log school house and grew up among the families of the U. E Loyalists who had landed in that same place [illegible] years before. For a third century Sir John A. was the leading figure in the public life in Canada. He derived his inspiration among the Loyalists on the Bay of Quinte, practiced law, and had his fiercest political battles in this district.

It will be a great pleasure to have his son, the Hon. Sir Hugh Macdonald who spent much of his childhood and youth on the Bay, return to help our celebration.

FRANCE SILENT ON RUHR POLICY

Paris, July 14.—The British note, which is expected shortly, will be examined "with the utmost desire to concur with the conclusion in it," said one of the cabinet members at the conclusion of the cabinet council. He added that the impression created, would be much more favorable had the British prime minister opened his remarks by declaring that the debtor should pay his debts, so that this would have prefaced his criticism of the Ruhr occupation.

The French government cordially welcomes and endorses the British government's insistence upon the necessity of the Anglo-French alliance and is understood to be prepared to make some further concessions to the British viewpoint, but deems it "essential that the vital interests of France be safeguarded."

This was declared to be the trend of discussion in the cabinet council although no official information of what had taken place in the meeting was forthcoming.

So far French comment has tended to ignore any references to Premier Baldwin's denunciation of the Ruhr occupation.

Kiwanis Sing-Song at St. Agnes School Party, Great Success

A delightful garden party was held on the spacious grounds of St. Agnes school last evening when the Kiwanis Club put on a sing-song. An orchestra of twenty pieces rendered the musical selections during the evening. A crowd of four hundred people were present and liberally patronized the ice-cream booths on the grounds. The grounds were prettily decorated with flags and bunting. The programme began at 7.30 and continued until 10 o'clock. The Kiwanis Club's first out-door sing-song was voted a howling success Bob Gorman, Harry Bryant and other members were called upon to give impromptu and were each encored several times.

Harold Holton had charge of the entire song programme and is to be congratulated. The Kiwanis injected a heap of pep into proceedings and there was not a dull moment in the whole affair.

Mrs. Gibson, Miss Reeves and Miss Edna Farley were in charge of the affair. A goodly sum was realised for charitable purposes.

An Impression and Appreciation —The Instructors of the Deaf

The Editor Intelligencer,

Sir: Dr. Coughlin has written a letter of graceful appreciation of hospitality extended and attention shown to the cultured and congenial visitors who made Belleville their sojourning home during the past week. It appears to me that Belleville citizens should thank Dr. Coughlin and his efficient staff for giving us the opportunity of showing a little courtesy to, and of being for all too short a time associated with such delightful people as were the guests of the Ontario School for the Deaf in the spacious halls which are a credit to the hand, head and heart that designed and constructed them for the beneficent, philanthropic, and educational purpose for which they are intended and so admirably adapted. The Province and this city are indebted to Dr. Coughlin and his colleagues for such good outstanding progressive work well done in the past at this School, and for his diplomatic persuasiveness, so that the magnetic lure of Belleville proved irresistible and the Convention which has passed into history after accomplishing so much good, was held here, under such auspicious auspices—with such satisfying results.

How time flies! How the river races under the bridge! One of my earliest recollections was the housing of the contractors' horses in my father's barn and stables during the erection of the first building, in 1870. Stimulated by that step in progress in the township, we for the next ten years with varying but ultimate success, planted and cared for the rows of now stately elms and maples along the Trent Road, making an avenue of shade and of handsome approach to the Provincial property. And last year I had to fight the Highways for the existence of these trees! Will nothing stay the hand of the modern vandal.

I can well remember my first boyish realization of what the 'Crown' meant, when I saw the deed of the Institute land executed in favour of Her Majesty the Queen. Every fence post on the property immediately assumed a new significance to us boys—it was Royal domain!

In those days of Dr. Palmer and Mr. McGann and Professor Coleman (still with us as teacher emeritus, still with his cordial southern greeting, still with his intellectual acquisitiveness and reservoir of knowledge) it was called the Deaf and Dumb 'Asylum"—then the D. and D. Institute—and now properly and fittingly, a part of Ontario's great educational system, the School for the Deaf. Yet the old wharf where so many hundreds learned to swim, will always be traditionally and colloquially known as the "Dummy Dock"—by no other name would it be recognizable to us of the 'Old Brigade.'

There were swimmers and sailors in and on the Bay in those days—we appreciated—we 'lived with' our great asset. Our shore line had not been the subject of barter and sale to subsidized railway promoters, and Zwick's Island had not been then disembowelled by the grasping and adroit expediency of successive Councils, who cared nothing for the rights of the people, so long as they could camouflage a budget. Still it's a good old place and Municipal Councils can't spoil it quite, or so over burden it as to entirely prohibit property ownership.

And there are mellow memories and associations, many of them connected with the O.S.D. Do you remember that most handsome of men, Professor Greene, and his fleet of ice-boats and their tragedy? Do you remember the gentle lady, Mrs. Terrill, and her children? Mrs. Keegan and her talented daughter Dr. Lister and Dr Hope and Dr. Burdett, and before them Dr. Ridley, and Canon Burke and Mgnr. Farrelly, and Mr. Maclean, all of whom were interested in the early days in Institute life and work. And afterwards Mr. Matheson with his able coadjutors—a skilful administrator.

Sir Gilbert Parker trudged out to his teaching duties every morning early there for two years, and then as now, was interested in the psychology of thought transmission and dramatic expression; for the deaf are taught by ideas and symbols and thoughts and gestures. The letter killeth, the 'spirit' giveth life. The hearing ear is good but the understanding heart is better, and the devoted men and women who have made this noble task their life work, are turning out good citizens, well educated pupils, skilled vocationally in mind or hand, able to take their place and hold their own in life's laboratories and vineyards despite there handicap. Here and in all other schools represented at the Convention, the instructors have transformed disability into ability, adaptability and reliability; culture and agriculture combined for the farmers, constructive skill for the carpenters and manufacturers, and where in the art preservative can better printers be found than those who first pied type on "The Mute" and "The Canadian". And the girls are taught the science of domestic bliss, how to make home happy and to fit themselselves for presiding in their future homes; and also artistic accomplishments.

A characteristic of all deaf pupils is their demonstrative courtesy, and having met the teachers in convention assembled, and in charming social intercourse, one can realize that this quality is derived from the chivalrous men and gentle women who instruct, develop and evolve the precious young lives committed to their care. Always those privileged to meet these intellectual and delightful delegates were struck with their earnestness, their glowing intent, their rapid grasp of conditions and of information, their ease of manner and expression, their pride in their labour of love, and their ability at a moment's notice to unbend from grave to gay, and realize together the joy of life. They were themselves happily. They were quick to kindle, and evidently are men and women who warm both hands at the fire of life. And how discriminatingly generous they all were in recognizing superior experience and ability, and placing their leaders of thought in the fore front of the Convention. There was no jealousy there; rather was it a mutual admiration society and justifiably so.

It is to be hoped that the Proceedings will be printed and that the public of Belleville will, through the Library, have the opportunity of reading the thought-producing and analytical and constructive addresses which were delivered with a prolific profusion and versatility which must have been the despair of reporters and even of the most acquisitive minds.

And 'internationally' who can compute the benficent effect of this interswitching and interlocking of minds and hearts, this clearing house of ideas and ideals, between two great nations of which the best elements in each respond to the best elements in the other, and who share between them the best of this world's civilization. "If we don't hang together we'll hang separately," said wise old Benjamin Franklin. And 'personally', the down right, stable, steadfast, confident English minds, the wise and canny and reasoning Scottish characters (thank heaven our old friend, Mr. Forester, has not yet lost his accent—or his smile!), and the subtle, evanescent, warm blooded and wholly charming Southerner from the Dixie lines of cotton and of flowers, the modernism and poise and knowledge of New York; the overwhelming numbers and companionable affability of Illinois, the vibrant virility and breeziness and tonic enthusiasm and freedom of the Western States; the motor power and light of Michigan, the want-to-know-the-reason-why of Missouri, the conscious and becoming dignity of Washington, the mental and spiritual status of Massachusetts; the philosophy of brotherly love of Pennsylvania, the moving pictures and moving hearts of New Jersey, the penetrating eloquence of the Carolinas, the neighborly tete-a-tete of Minnesota; the different points of view but striking identities with us of India and Japan, and the innumerable other places and states, traits of character and of capacity (all illuminating and sympathetic), together made a composite picture of sterling manhood and gracious womanhood which will not soon be forgotten either by themselves—for they were a happy family—or by those who esteem it a great honour and pleasure to have met and mingled with them all.

"Better lo'ed ye canna be, will ye na' come back again?"

Yours,
W. N. PONTON.

NAUGHTY CHILDREN

(London Daily News-

It is no new thing for children to be naughty—it is simply a part of their problem in adjusting themselves to a world which is largely fashioned on the principles, sometimes arbitrary, of their parents. But the child in whom naughtiness has become acute even to the stage of criminality is now far too common.

Some recent cases have displayed the alarming depths of depravity to which children will sink for no apparent reason and with no cause that even the most sympathetic observer can discover. As life becomes more complicated and puts into the hands of children and youths greater power for doing physical and moral damage the naughty and criminal child increasingly demands care and attention.

HOSPITAL SHOWS

every year. There was nothing in the report to show why the expenditures have increased every year. The County should pay its proportion of expenses.

Mayor Bennett — Apparently the County Council in the past year has not done what it should, but he has taken up the matter with the Warden of the County and no doubt it would be taken up at the next meeting of the County Council.

Dr. Connor—The nurses must be properly trained. As far as the purchasing of supplies is concerned, they are purchased in the city to a great extent.

Mrs. Mikel—It costs about $1,000 a year extra to send nurses to Montreal. The Hospital Board is doing what it can to keep down expenses. We have to treat our nurses well and they get no luxuries. Last year over eighty-four thousand meals were served and it costs much to prepare these meals.

Mrs. Mikel—We have decreased the mortgage in the past year by $4,000. The mortgage now is some $11,000.

Dr. Faulkner—The doctors are not asking something for themselves but the poorer people who go into the hospital. It costs over $3 a day for every patient in the hospital and some only pay $1.50 per day. The doctors of the city represent an assessment of over $150,000. Equip our hospital with X rays and the best physicians in Toronto will come here to give their services free. The good women of this city are devoting their time and means without any remuneration. Citizens are at fault if they do not take more interest in the hospital.

Ald. McCreary said he would not support the proposition that the city council should pay $9,000 a year and the county pay only $1400 a year. It should not be suggested that the city should give $9,000 this year.

Mrs. Mikel—We get $000 a year grant from the County Council and an extra grant of $1000. We feel the county is not paying its full share, but the members of the County Council say the merchants of Belleville get the benefit of purchasing of goods, and county merchants are not benefitted, and this is the argument.

Ald Patterson desired to know what the hospital Board wants from the council. He did not like the remarks.

Mrs. Mikel—I do not know of a hospital that is out of debt and she desired the City Council to give the hospital board $12,000 this year.

Mr. Mikel—The Board cannot make necessary improvements and add somethings for $12,000. The Government reports show that it costs 85c per day for each patient even with free doctoring. The County Council should be educated in this matter and fully see their responsibilities. The situation is that the poor people have got to be told to stay out of the hospital or pay the shot. We are building good schools and thoroughly equip them but the hospital is of more importance. He did not believe in extravagance, but we should try to run it to benefit the poor people of the city.

Ald. McCreary—He had in his mind a case of a local physician who was not allowed to administer an anaesthetic in the operation room.

Mrs. Mikel—We followed the custom of other hospitals.

We must protect our public ward patients. A physician is on the staff after being 1 year in the city. In some hospitals a physician has to be 2 years in the place?

Dr. O'Brien—The Council of the hospital have rules and they should be lived up to. In some hospitals doctors have to be years in a place before they are members of the staff.

Mr. H. W. Ackerman—For some time the ladies have been carrying the burden of the hospital. He would be free to bear as a taxpayer his share in regard to the hospital grant.

Mayor Bennett could not see how the Board could get through even with $12,000 considering the expenditures and the present debt. He would do what he could to get the County to increase its grant.

Mr. C. W. Springer spoke in support of the Council giving a liberal grant to the hospital.

Dr. Branscombe said that since he came to Belleville he had been interested in the hospital. For years the ladies have carried a heavy burden and now they are asking the council to pay a respectable share, which in the past has not been paid. We want a hospital properly equipped. The money so spent is a financial asset to the city.

Ald. McCreary—If the County Council would give a grant of $5,000 he would support a grant of $10,000 from the city.

Dr. Blakslee said if the Hospital Board should ask for $16,000 as they will need more than $10,000. Who is going to lift the mortgage off the hospital? No corporation can be maintained that is running behind each month as the hospital is.

Mayor Bennett advised the Board to get together and let the Council know the definite amount it requires.

Mrs. Mikel thanked the Council for their kind attention to this matter.

BY-LAWS.

The only other business transacted at the meeting was the passing of a number of debenture by-laws through their various stages and numbered.

TOWN PLANNING

There is considerable discussion among city officials and citizens interested in civic affairs of "civic attractiveness". One suggestion, which has received marked support concerns intensifying the city's attractiveness to tourists. It has been pointed out that many tourists, equipped for leisurely travel pass up Belleville because of lack of accommodations.

Supporters of a proposal to provide a tourist camp in Belleville assert that the natural beauties of the community fully warrant moderate expenditure of money and effort to enhance its attractiveness and provide a more welcome atmosphere.

More ambitious exponents of improvement plans along this line embrace a number of projects in their program. One provides for conversion of Zwick's Island into a U.E. Loyalist park. Another provides for the creation of an athletic field and a third movement contemplates the construction of a municipal golf course.

These projects naturally within the province of the Parks' Board, but public interest and co-operation are essential to the success of the undertaking.

Belleville as the foremost urban centre of one of the most charming districts on the continent should certainly be recognized as an important stopping place along the lane of tourist traffic. Natural beauties alone can not accomplish this. It is necessary that a physical welcome in the shape of a suitable tourist camp be provided.

This plan, as has been proven by the experiences of other cities, would not interfere with nearby resorts maintained for profit, but would on the contrary increase their patronage, merchants in the city would profit materially and summer business would be gnerally stimulated. It has been suggested that the providing of tourist camps deprives hotels of a certain amount of custom, but in the case of Belleville those who would not take advantage of the conveniences of the camp would undoubtedly pass up the city entirely.

An athletic field and a municipal golf course are desirable for obvious reasons, but perhaps all three projects could be best advanced by incorporating them in a town-planning movement.

The modern town-planning movement has nothing in common with the extravagant city beautiful movements of ancient Europe. Its object is to give the average citizen a larger share in the benefits of life. Where town-planning has been given an opportunity to express itself infant mortality rates have been lowered and a much higher standard of health has been attained. Wholesome recreation is systematically provided and the beauties and comforts available to the humblest citizen. An important feature, also, is the discouragement of vicious activities on the part of the youth of the cities, whose pleasures and interests are found in an unwholesome atmosphere.

The Belleville Parks Board, with the co-operation of the City Council, the Chamber of Commerce, Rotary and Kiwanis Club, other civic organizations and the churches and schools could accomplish a great, comprehensive undertaking, by applying the town-planning system to a general civic improvement movement.

The cost to the ratepayers would not be excessive under the financial system upon which such systems are premised and the advantages accruing would be proportionately far in excess of the added cost.

The Parks Board is entitled to the proceeds of one mill levy in the municipality and additional appropriations could undoubtedly be readily secured from other sources.

A carefully prepared program would materially assist in the promotion of the plan.

The U.E.L. park scheme would fit neatly in the plan, although the conversion proposed would not necessarily alter its status as a civic property. The Island could be improved and the City Council could still control it, reserving the right to use the gravel on the Island for road ballasting. Who is willing to encourage this proposition?

By The Side Of The Road

The enterprising youth, who sold Rye at Deseronto at $2 a quart, should prove an asset to any city which desires to achieve publicity without being hampered by legal restrictions or ethics.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture are offering one cent a piece for bed bugs. Some people would pay as much as 10 cents a piece to get rid of them. But most people, troubled in this way, have more bed bugs than cents (or sense, we mean either one).

The Bishop of Zanzibar says London is as pagan as Zanzibar. He should consider that most of the present customs and amusements of modern society originated in such places as Zanzibar.

If somebody would invent a device by which politicians could be influenced to keep their promises the millenum would be brought considerably nearer.

A Kingston man remained in bed all day on Friday the 13th, and failed to elude the "jinks". He should have know better, many persons have died in bed.

PRESS OPINIONS

SAUCE FOR THE GANDER.

(London Morning Post)

Up to the present we have given American commerce the most extraordinary freedom in our markets. The Americans have replied by continually raising their customs on British goods, to say nothing of irritating incidents like this crusade against British ships ,and the recent interferences with the time-honored customs of our cotton trade. We believe America might respect us a little more, and treat us a little better, if we acted strictly on the principle of behaving to her as she behaves to us.

DISTURBING ELEMENT

(Flint Journal)

The plan of the United Mine Workers to rid the coal-mining industry of radical socialists is one of the best things they could do for the good of their organization. The radicals have been a disturbing element in the miners' camp for a long time, and the public will have a higher regard for United Mine Workers for having had this house cleaning.

FOOLISH PRINCIPLE

(Toronto Telegram)

Canadian senators say that public ownership of steam railways is an experiment and that attempts to remodel and extend the National system are therefore to be discouraged, since they involve the expenditure of large sums of money. If Toronto's city council had been as foolish as that, the T.T.C. would still be operating the old outworn system which it took over from private ownership.

WE SHOULD WORRY!

(Detroit Free Press)

Just as all worry about coal disappeared, the railroads announce an impending car shortage, thereby initiating the season of worry about next winter's supply.

BOYS WILL BE BOYS.

(Cape Argus)

A good deal of claptrap is often talked in regard to the pernicious influence (so-called) of blood-and-thunder talks, and pictures too. Boys will be boys. A healthy-minded boy will take no harm from the wildest and most improbable tale of adventure, or even crime. The evil, if it exists, goes further back—in the earlier training of the child-mind.

Still, it is in every way to be desired that due precautions should be taken to excise from the pictures whatever is obviously objectionable, or what may be calculated to be harm. Whenever vice is dressed up in false colors, there is a real danger of its inciting to evil.

HE HADN'T COUNTED ON THAT.

Young Man (to Jeweller)—"Will you take back this engagement ring?"

Jeweller—"Doesn't it suit?"

Young Man—"Yes, but I don't."

RADIATING out from our six great oil refineries are more than 1,300 bulk distributing stations entrusted with the responsibility for serving, adequately and economically, districts largely dependent upon them for petroleum products.

New units, as required, are constantly being added to round out this vast, well-knit distributing organization. Stations now under construction in the west and north answer the challenge of unclaimed tracts; throughout the grain-growing belt our stations rival in frequency the local elevators which dot the prairie; in the more densely settled east station after station is continually going up to meet the ever-growing demands for our products in these territories.

Imperial Oil bulk distributing stations constitute a dependable "service of supply" which alike benefits the dealer and the consumer.

"Facts Worth Knowing" is a booklet which tells more fully of Canada's oil industry and deals particularly with the subject of gasoline. If you have not already received your copy, address IMPERIAL OIL LIMITED, 56 Church Street, Toronto.

U.S. TRACK AND FIELD STARS IN ENGLAND

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, July 14 (United Press).—Twenty-three American athletes next Saturday will swarm into the Queens Club, London, and show the best track and field stars of Oxford and Cambridge how good the United States is.

The American team, composed of 13 Yale and 10 Harvard track stars, is the best that the United States ever sent over the combination clash. The only possible weak spots in the team are the two-mile run and the running high jump, but the Oxford-Cambridge team is not any better off in these two events, and that makes matters even.

Two former American athletes are starring with the Oxford-Cambridge gang.

Billy Stevenson, former Princeton quarter-miler and national champion at that distance in 1921, will compete in both the furlong and the furlong and the quarter.

Tevis Huhn, entrant in the hurdles is an old Princeton man, too, and the British are enthusistic over his form.

Abramson, the English sprinter, is one of the best developed there in recent years, the London sport writers say. In the recent Oxford-Cambridge dual meet he defeated Stevenson in the 440-yard run, after winning the 100-yard and the broad jump.

Milligan, another Englishman, is always good for 1:56 in the half-mile and close to 4:20 in the mile.

The Americans are led by Chapman and Gage, quarter milers; Hulman and Durant, hurdlers; Comins, Rusnack, Eastman, Scholpp and Douglas. The latter five are expected to do most of the scoring.

The Scene of the Olympic game of 1924 will be finished soon at Colombes, France. The seating capacity of the stands wil lbe 70,000 the French Olympic committee announces.

Special arrangements are being made in the construction work to care for the scores of athletes gathered from all over the world.

American professionals and amateur got an opportunity to use those corrugated clubs in the American open championships which have been running this week at Inwood.

From London has come the word that regret is being expressed over the dissatisfaction of the American entrants with the treatment they received at Troon in the British open. They are even talking of a new rule which would enable all the American stars to qualify, without going through the qualifying round.

Gene Sarazen and Jim Barnes, two of the best American professionals, made tre trip to England and then failed evo nto qualify for the tournament.

It is possible the system may be vised for next year out of courtesy to the Americans.

Well, it looks like another private world series will be staged within the haughty confines of New York City. It's great for the subway fans who can ride to every game in the series on a nick carefare, but it isn't doing anything to help the game of baseball in the United States.

The hack-driver in Omaha, whose representative judgment is highly respected in every newspaper office, will not die of heart failure or swallow his cigar watching the scoreboard if the Giants and Yankees win again.

The western magnates are promising to do something about it, but apparently everyone is helpless before the smooth machines built up on the dollars which have accumulated from record crowds both at the Polo Grounds and the Yankee Stadium.

New York is so blase and shortsighted that it doesn't realize there is anything out there beyond the Palisades but great open spaces. No metropolitan sport writer believes, or will say, that the game is in jeopardy because New York is monopolizing all the pennants.

But it won't be long now. New York cannot continue to stage its own private world series many more years—if baseball is to continue as the national game—and there is a belief among some of the boys that when the tide turns it will stay turned for a considerable length of time.

The quicker it turns and the longer it stays turned the better it will be for the game.

AGNES AYRES AND MAHLON HAMILTON NOW AT GRIFFIN'S

The Paramount production of "The Heart Raider", with Agnes Ayres in the stellar role, is being shown with marked success at Griffin's this week end.

The story deals entertainingly with an ultra-modern girl and her seemingly endless search for new thrills. Mahlon Hamilton plays opposite Miss Ayres in the role of John Dennis, a bachelor whom the girl is determined to win. But Dennis is one who must be pursued, and she does all the pursuing necessary. She has made up her mind to land him, and land him she does in a most interesting humorous manner.

A good Century comedy, William Desmond in the opening chapter of Universal's new adventure play "The Phantom Fortune", and a interesting Travelogue are being exhibited on the same program.

GLADYS WALTON IN "GOSSIP" AT REGENT THEATRE TONIGHT

The most extreme characterization of Glady's Walton, a foremost "flapper" star of the screen, will be seen in "Gossip", a Universal feature offering at the Regent Theatre to-night.

Her role is that of a southern girl who is so far behind the times that she doesn't even know flapper exist. She is "too good to be true", or so at least it seems to the man of the world played by Ramsey Wallace, who believes her some sort of "fake".

Pathe News, a two-reel Mermaid comedy titled "Danger", and a Kinogram are being exhibited on the same program.

MARY MILES MINTER IN "DRUMS OF FATE," AT GRIFFIN'S MON.

Charles Maigne, Paramount director has proved himself a disciple of William DeMille's policy of "making pictures without destroying literature, in his direction of "Drums of Fate", a new paramount picture with Mary Miles Minter, which comes to Griffin's this Monday to Wednesday. Very few alterations of the original novel "Sacrifice", by Stephen French Whitman, which is one of the most recent contributions to American fiction, had to be made. This was due to the fact that the story had excellent screen possibilities—in fact, its situations were all capable of picturization and its characters strong, picturesque and highly interesting.

So suitable was this particular story for screen adaptation, that the author's original manuscript was purchased by the producers, before the book went to press, early in 1922.

The distinctive features of this story are an unusual love interest, hinging on the romance of the man and the girl each of whom has fallen in love with the other's photograph two years before their meeting; their cruel separation when the man is called away to Africa on an exploration expedition the morning after their marriage and the fate that keeps them apart and makes their reunion seem impossible when the girl, thinking the man dead, remarries at the insistence of her guardian.

There is also a prophecy of the death of the man by his arab servant Hamoud. These elements create a strong suspense which holds the story up in tenseness and dramaticquality to the end, when a logical happy ending gives a very pleasing finish to the story.

Miss Minter is surrounded by a very strong cast including M. B. Flynn, George Fawcett, Robert Cain, Casson Ferguson, Bertram Grassby, and Noble Johnson.

"Bright Eyes" a funny Mack Sennett comedy, Tom Santschi in a two-reel Western drama titled "Seeing Red", and a Topical reel are announced for exhibition on the same program.

ELLIOTT DEXTER AND CLAIR WINDSOR AT REGENT MONDAY

Can a woman's love be stolen? Are her emotions for sale to the highest bidder? These questions are propounded in the new Goldwyn picture, "Grand Larceny", the feature attraction at the Regent theatre, this Monday to Wednesday, with a matinee daily. That many men believe that this is so may be gleaned from our daily newspapers. But do women agree to this attitude on the part of some men?

At last, the woman's side of the question has been presented in Albert Payson Terhune's thrilling drama of two men who loved the same woman. She loved one, but he blindly accepted the property idea of woman's love and so was unable to believe in the fidelity of his wife when circumstantial evidence made it appear that another had stolen her affections. The woman, swept along in the current of misunderstandings, took a long time to realize that she belonged to no one but herself; but her final announcement of the fact that her heart could not be stolen but only given freely, brought both men to a new evaluation of women's affections.

"If you can steal her from me," says the husband to his friend, "she can be stolen from you". All this, without even taking the woman into consideration as a human being. Her resentment at the injustice done her, and her reactions to the attitude of both men who love her, are ably presented by Clair Windsor. The role of the doubting husband is played by Elliott Dexter.

Fox News, a two-reel Jungle story, and "Excuse Me Sheriff" a two-reel Sunshine comedy have been arranged for presentation on the same program.

Draw matchlike lardoons of fat salt pork through upper side of a calf's liver. Put the trimmings in a large frying pan when the fat is tried out. Lay in the liver and brown first on one side then turn and brown the other. Remove the liver to a well greased casserole. Add 3 tbsp. flour to fat in pan, stir until smooth, then add gradually 3 c brown stock, stirring constantly until boiling point is reached. Season with salt, pepper and f. g. cayenne. Pour sauce over liver, add 2 c. small carrots, cut in thin slices crosswise, 1 doz. small onions, cooked in butter 5 mins. and 1 stalk celery, sliced crosswise. Cover and cook [illegible] hrs. Remove liver to serving platter, surround with vegetables. Remove fat from sauce, add 2-3c tomato puree, reheat and pour over liver.

Why Babies thrive on 'Allenburys'

BABIES denied an adequate supply of nature's food, thrive on the 'Allenburys' Milk Foods. These foods are almost identical in composition with Mother's milk, and can be used alternately with breast feeding, without causing any digestive disturbance. WOMAN SUFFERED FOR MONTHS

Weak and Nervous. Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Webbwood, Ont.—"I was in a very weak and run-down nervous condition, always tired from the time I got up until I went to bed. Sleep did not rest me at all. My sister recommended Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to me and others told me about it, but it was from my sister's advice that I took it. It did not take long until I felt stronger, headaches left me and my appetite came back to me. I am a farmer's wife and have many things to do outside the house, such as milking, looking after the poultry, and other chores. I heartily recommend the Vegetable Compound to all who have the same trouble I had, for it is a fine medicine for women."—Mrs. LOUIS F. ELSASSER, Hillcrest Farm, Webbwood, Ont.

Another Nervous Woman Finds Relief

Port Huron, Mich.—"I suffered for two years with pains in my side, and if I worked very much I was nervous and just as tired in the morning as when I went to bed. I was sleepy all the day and didn't feel like doing anything, and was so nervous I would bite my finger nails. One of my friends told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it helped me so much that I soon felt fine."—Mrs. CHARLES BEELER, 501-14th St., Port Huron, Mich.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

LIKE A HOUSE—YOUR KITCHEN

In comparing that body of yours to a house you can readily see that the stomach is like the kitchen.

In the kitchen as you know, all the food you eat is prepared. There is the cutting up, the crushing, grating, peeling, baking, boiling and roasting before the food is brought to you from the kitchen.

Now why is all this preparation necessary? Some of it may not be necessary but most of it is, because it is found that food in this way is more easily digested by civilized man.

Now just in the same way that stomach of yours prepares the food for your dining room.

You see immediately that food enters it, the stomach juices get busy and mix with it.

And how is this "mixing done?"

Well, the stomach has muscular coats in its walls which run circularly, longitudinally, and obliquely, and when they all begin to work you can see what is going to happen to that food. For the first few minutes after a meal the stomach is fairly quiet, sort of gently stirring the juice amongst the food, and keeping its intestinal end closed so that no food can escape.

The "Jiggly apparatus" that they have in amusement parks is not in it with that stomach of yours when it endeavors to get the food well mixed up with the stomach juice and then thrown into the intestine. Now the point I want you to get just here is that while the stomach juice is a mighty important thing the "muscular" work of the stomach walls really brings the food in contact with the juice. Therefore a person in a generally run down condition is going to have weak stomach muscles which do not do their work properly.

In many people the muscles become almost like a piece of stretched elastic, and the stomach walls hang down low. It is really a hard job for this kind of a stomach to throw food into the small intestine. It was for just such cases that we recommended that they lie down on the right side four hours after each meal for a period of fifteen minutes and thus allow any food still lying in the stomach to be syphoned into intestine.

PATRICIA BRENT SPINSTER

ANONYMOUS

In all her experience of "the Family" never once had Miss Brent been openly defied in this way, and she had no reserves upon which to fall back. She held personal opinion and inclination must always take secondary place to "the Family." The individual must be sacrificed to the group, provided the individual were not herself. Births, deaths, marriages, christenings, funerals, weddings, were solemn functions that must be regarded as involving not the principals themselves so much as their relatives. Her doctrine was, although she would not have expressed it so philosophically, that the indivdual is mortal; but the family is immortal.

That anyone lived for himself or herself never seemed to occur to Miss Brent. If their actions were acceptable to the family and at the same time pleased the principles, then so much the better for the principals; if, on the other hand, the family disapproved, then the duty of the principals was clear.

This open flouting of her prides and her prejudices was to Miss Brent a great blow.

It seemed to stun. She was at a loss how to proceed; all she realised was that she must save "the Family" at any cost.

"Now tell me what happened when you came in," said Patricia sweetly.

"I must be going," said Miss Brent solemnly.

"Must you?" enquired Patricia politely; but rising lest her aunt should change her mind.

"Now remember," said Patricia as they walked along the hall, "you've lost me one matrimonial fish. If I get another nibble you must keep out of——"

But Miss Brent had fled.

"Well, that's that," sighed Patricia as she walked slowly upstairs.

CHAPTER XVII

Lady Peggy Makes A Friend

One Sunday morning as Patricia was sitting in the Park watching the promenaders and feeling very lonely, she saw coming across the grass towards her Godfrey Elton accompanied by a pretty dark girl in an amber costume and a black hat. She bowed her acknowledgment of Elton's salute, and watched the pair as they passed on in the direction of Marble Arch.

Suddenly the girl stopped and turned. For a moment Elton stood irresolute, then he also turned and they both walked in Patricia's direction.

"Lady Peggy insisted that we should break in upon your solitude," said Elton, having introduced the two girls.

"You will forgive me, won't you!" said Lady Peggy, "but I so wanted to know you. You see Peter has the reputation of being invulnerable. We're all quite breathless from our fruitless endeavours to entangle him, and I wanted to see what you were like."

"I'm afraid you'll find I'm quite commonplace," said Patricia smiling. It was impossible to be annoyed with Lady Peggy. Her frankness was disarming, and her curiosity that of a child.

"I always say," bubbled Lady Peggy, "that there are only two men in London worth marrying, and they neither of them will have me, although I've worked most terribly hard."

"Who are they?" equired Patricia.

"Oh Goddy's one," she said, indicating Elton with a nod, "and Peter's the other. They are both prepared to be brothers to me; but they're not sufficiently generous to save me from dying an old maid."

"I must apologise for inflicting Peggy upon you, Miss Brent," said Elton; "but when you get to know her you may even like her."

"I'm not going to wait until I know her," said Patricia.

"Bravo" cried Peggy, clapping her hands. "That's a snub for you, Goddy," she said, then turning again to Patricia, "I know we're going to be friends, and you can afford to be generous to a defeated rival."

"I must warn you against Lady Peggy," said Elton quietly. "She's a most dangerous young woman."

"And now, Patricia," said Lady Peggy, "I'm going to call you Patricia, and you must call me Peggy. I want you to do me a very great favour."

Patricia looked at the girl, rather bewildered and breathless by the precipitancy with which she made friends. "I'm sure I will if I possibly can," she replied.

"I want you to come and lunch with us," said Lady Peggy.

"It's very kind of you, I shall be delighted some day," replied Patricia conventionally.

"No, now!" said Lady Peggy. "This very day that ever is. I want to meet Daddy. He's such a dear. Goddy will come, so you won't be lonely," she added.

(To be Continued).

At the first sign of illness during the hot weather give the little ones Baby's Own Tablets or in a few hours he may be beyond aid. These Tablets will prevent summer complaints if given occasionally to the well child and will promptly relieve these troubles if they come on suddenly. Baby's Own Tablets should always be kept in every home where there are growing children. There is no other medicine as good and the mother has the guarantee of a government analyst that they are absolutely safe. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

SICKENING HEADACHES ENDED BY "FRUIT-A-TIVES"

Effect was splendid when she tried this Fruit Medicine

East Ship Harbour, N.S.

"For years, I was a dreadful sufferer from Constipation and Headaches, and I was miserable in every way. Nothing in the way of medicines seemed to help me and I was almost discouraged.

Then I tried "Fruit-a-tives" and the effect was splendid; and after taking one box, I can safely say I am well. I feel like a new person in every way and I am deeply thankful to have relief from those sickening headaches".

Mrs. MARTHA DE WOLFE.

"Fruit-a-tives" will always relieve Headaches due to Constipation because they act directly on the liver and cause the bowels to move regularly and naturally. This rids the system of impurities and keeps the blood pure and rich. "Fruit-a-tives" are made of fruit juices combined with tonics, are pleasant to take and mild and gentle in action.

RECIPES

Griddle Cakes.

2 cupfuls of Borden's St. Charles milk.
1 cupful of water.
2 tablespoons melted butter or butter substitute.
1 egg, well beaten.
3 cupfuls of white flour.
1 teaspoonful salt.
4 tablespoonfuls sugar.

Combine the milk and water, add the shortening, sugar and the egg, and beat in the dry ingredients which have been sifted together. Beat thoroughly and dry as usual on a slightly oiled griddle or on an unoiled aluminum or soapstone griddle. If very thin cakes the desired, add two more tablespoonfuls of evaporated milk and water.

Halibut Baked in Milk.

Order two pounds of halibut steak cut half an inch thick. Lay it in a dripping pan, or large shallow baking dish. Dust it lightly with a little flour, salt and pepper and a sprinkling of minced parsley and barely cover it with one part of Borden's St. Charles milk, diluted with one and one-half parts of boiling water.

Bake in a moderate oven until fish is tender—about 25 minutes. It should be somewhat browned on top and the liquid will be thickened by the flour and act as a delicious sauce.

Time was when he would beat her because he loved her, but to shoot her is quite the fashionable thing nowadays, it seems.

Made in Canada

First Cost or Last Cost--Which Counts?

Last cost, of course. It's the number of miles you get per dollar that determines whether a tire is economical or expensive.

The fact that Firestone Cords cost no more than other reputable tires to begin with is less important, we maintain, than the big mileage they are giving, means the maximum saving in the end.

Firestone processes—such as air-bag curing and rubber tempering, are more difficult and cost more to employ. Yet the thousands of miles of wear they add enables Firestone to offer more to car owners. By economies in buying, manufacture and well organized distribution, Firestone maintains these superior operations without increasing first cost.

Drive on Firestone Cords and you will soon realize the superiority of Firestone construction. They ride easier, for the carcass is more resilient as well as stronger; their thick, noiseless non-skid treads cling tenaciously to slippery streets, or grip powerfully in loose dirt, mud or on steep grades.

Not a single Firestone Tire on the four winning cars of the International Indianapolis Sweepstakes went flat. This speaks volumes for Firestone Steam-Welded Tubes. There was not even air leakage from heat breaking down the splice. Think what service these tires and tubes will give you when they can stand up under the terrific heat and stress of five hundred miles of steady grind. Ask your dealer.

WEAK DIGESTION DUE TO POOR BLOOD

Perfect Digestion Will Come if the Blood is Made Rich and Red

There is no tonic for the stomach that is not a tonic for every other part of the body. But the stomach depends, as does every other organ, on the blood for its energy.

There can be no perfect digestion unless you have rich, red blood. This is scientifically true. The way, then, to tone up the stomach is to enrich the blood.

Most stomach remedies try to digest your food for you. How much better it is to tone up the stomach so that it will do its own work, as nature intended. There is no pleasure in eating predigested food. Tone up your stomach and digestion will soon be normal.

If your digestion is weak and your blood thin, you need Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to restore the strength to your blood; in addition use care in the selection of your diet and your stomach trouble will soon pass away. Mrs. Charles La Rose, Fruitland, Ont., suffered severely, and tells what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for her. She says:—"I was a terrible sufferer from stomach trouble. The doctor called it nervous indigestion. Everything I ate distressed me, and I became so weak and rundown I could hardly walk. I had a pain around my heart most of the time, and I slept very poorly. I was afraid I would not get well, as the doctor's medicine was not helping me. In this serious condition Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were recommended and I decided to try them, and I can truthfully say that they made me feel like a new person. I will always give this medicine a word of praise when I get a chance for I think there is nothing to be compared with it for dyspeptics, or any one weak, nervous or rundown."

You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

OBITUARY

EDMUND LOWERY

Gloom was cast over this locality on Tuesday, July 11, when the sad news of the death of Mr. E. Lowery reached Halloway that he had passed away during the night at Belleville hospital after undergoing an operation for appendicitis but a few hours previous. There were many sincere expressions of sorrow and sympathy as the knowledge of his death became known. Mr. Lowery was born in the township of Sidney on June 3rd, 1872, and was the youngest son of the late Mr. and Mrs. H. Lowery. He had followed the occupation of farming until the passed fourteen years he had been engaged in railroad work.

On June 3, 1919, he was united in marriage to Miss Annie Kelly, youngest daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Kelly, of Thurlow and since their marriage of four short years had lived happily together in Halloway.

He leaves to mourn his loss his sorrowing widow, and four brothers, John, of Halloway; Alva, of Marmora; Maine, of Toronto; H. B., of Trenton; also one sister, Mrs. F. Duckworth, of Toronto.

In Politics he was a staunch Conservative and a member of the Anglican church. His remains were brought to Halloway and on the following Wednesday afternoon the service was under the auspices of L.O.L. No. 251 of which he was a member and were conducted at the home by the Rev. H. R. Pettum, of Roslin, and Rev. B. F. Byers, of Stirling; Rev. J. Butler, of the Methodist church, and Rev. H. Smith, of the Baptist congregation, were also present. Rev. Mr. Pettum preached a very impressing and inspiring sermon taken from 1st Thess. 4th Chapt. 14th verse. "For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with Him." The hymns lead by the Roslin choir were very feelingly rendered, No. 435, "Forever with the Lord"; 631, "All is well"; 600 "Peace perfect peace"

The interment took place in Roslin cemetery and was one of the largest ever held in the vicinity.

The bearers were—Messrs. W. Cadman, G. H. Rose, Rev. H. Smith, G. Townsend, H. Smith, C. Rose.

The many floral tributes contributed to the esteemed were as follows:—

L.O.B. 251, pillow; U. B. W., of W. E. & R. S. L. Lodge 83 Belleville, wreath; brothers and sisters, gates ajar; H. B. Lowery and family, Trenton, wreath.

WITNESSES FOR DEFENSE CALLED

Montreal, July 14.—Three witnesses who swore that in the early hours of the morning of January 7, 1922, the day the body of Raoul Delorme was discovered, they saw a blue McLaughlin touring car speeding along St. Catherine street, with what appeared to be a muffled body in the back, were called by the defense shortly after the crown concluded its case against Abe Delorme yesterday. All three witnesses declared that their attention was drawn to the car by a hand resting on the mudguard of the car, apparently stiff and immobile. They had reported the matter to the police, but this was the first time they had been called to give evidence of th eincident.

The defense opened with Miss Marie A. Morach being called to the stand for examination by Mr. Taschereau. She said she was directress of the charitable institution at which Father Delorme was chaplain. She testified that the accused had sung mass at the institution on the morning of June 6 and returned again in the afternoon between three and 3.15 for a service which lasted from fifteen to twenty minutes. He went out again immediately and returned the same night at about 6.30.

Witness said that the Abbe told her the next morning that he had fallen on the ice. It was not a long conversation and arose by chance.

STILL CAPTURED ON TRENT RIVER

Owner of Plant Near Humphrey's Bar Decamps.

Port Hope, July 16.—Last week, License Inspector Goodrich, Provincial Constable Boyd and Excise Officer C. A. Pringle visited Trent Bridge, where in a dense swamp they discovered the spot where a still had been in operation. The still had disappeared but the arch remained, covered with sheet metal, on which the still rested. There was also mash, a number of empty sugar bags, bottles and boxes, the entire apparatus being covered with tar paper to ward off rain, while a natty cedar hedge kept out prying eyes. The still was run by a foreigner, who had decamped to day previous to the officers' visit. The swamp was in the centre of a 200 acre farm of forest, and was near Humphrey's Bar, on the Trent River.

Frontier Days in Middle West Seen Again in Chicago

Chicago, July 16.—(United Press)—Frontier days in the middle west, the days of Indian battles. Conestoga wagons and the rush to the California gold field, are depicted in an exhibition opened for the summer by the Chicago Historical Society.

One of the relics is a covered wagon used by William Gladden and his family to come west from Baltimore to Deersville, O., in 1811 and again in 1840 to travel from the Ohio settlement to California.

The society has placed the wagon beifornia.

The society has placed the wagon before a reproduction of a pioneer cabin, standing "where the early settler might have left it for the night." In this frontier yard also are implements used by Illinois farmers, some of them dating as far back as 1830. Utensils of the housewife of 1840 are arranged on the cabin porch.

The collection of Adison Ballard, an early Chicagoan, also is included. Addison was the first to leave Chicago when news of the discovery of gold in California reached this section. His first diggings were saved and made into a ring, which the society acquired recently.

About 300 rifles, all of which were used in the middle west in pioneer days, are displayed. Other exhibits explain methods used by the early settlers to combat the Indians.

Remarkable interest in early history of the central section of the United States is being shown by the public, officials of the Chicago society say. This, they attribute to the large number of novels and motion pictures of early days.

TWO WOMEN HURT IN HIGHWAY CRASH

Auto and Buggy Collide on Provincial Highway

At about 8 o'clock on Saturday evening a collision occurred on the Provincial Highway, Kingston Road, two miles east of the city limits, in which an auto and a buggy figured. Mr. and Mrs. Greatrix who reside on the Kingston road, accompanied by a young lady, were proceeding to their home, driving a horse attached to a buggy. They were upon the right side of the road when the buggy was struck by a Chevrolet car driven by a Greek, named Edmund Shymymzlki of Point Anne. As a result of the impact the buggy was badly damaged and the occupants were precipitated to the roadside. The women were injured to some extent but fortunately not seriously. The horse was freed from the buggy and proceeded at a rather lively gait home. The car after hiting the buggy ran into the ditch. It was apparent from investigation by the Provincial police that the motorist was driving on the wrong side of the road and that this was due to the fact that his car was not running properly. Some damage resulted to the auto necessitating it being taken to a garage for repairs.

Rev. T. J. Logan Leaves City in Haste, Speeded on Way by Noisy Crowd

Local Preacher is Given "Warm" Farewell Reception Following Sunday Evening Service

Unique and uprecedented was the demonstration witnessed in this city last evening, when the usual quiet of a Sunday evening in Belleville, was marred by a mob scene which promised at times to devolp into a serious situation. The central figure in the episode was Rev. T. J. Logan, erstwhile pastor of The United Christian Workers Gospel Temple, Front street who was given publicity in the Press recently following trouble which he had, as a result a Court case here, in which a young Oshawa girl figured as complainant.

Following the evening service in that Temple last evening, Rev. Logan left the city, leaving a seething mob behind. He was taken to Trenton in a motor car about 10.30 p.m.

Shortly after the service began, it was evident that trouble was brewing for a considerable crowd gathered about the front and one side of the Temple

Curious youths climbed on lumber piles, and the running board of Rev. Logan's Ford touring car, which stood outside, to get a glimpse of the minister, as he addressed the members of the congregation. Occasionally uncomplimentary remarks were heard, and it was rumored in the crowd that they were going to "get Logan." Almost every pedestrian stopped out of curiousity, and cars which were parked along the street caused traffic to become congested. Rev. Logan addressed the congregation, and it is reported made denials of allegations as a result of the case, being frequently interrupted by persons who asked questions. A representative of Jack Canuck was among those present in the church.

With the singing of the final hymn, the congregation began to disperse, and the crowd closed in about the main entrance. Members who witnessed the proceedings, hesitated to come out, and the police were notified by telephone. Sergeant D. Boyd, P.C. Wm Evans and P. C. D. Morris immediately went to the scene of trouble, and cleared the crowds. Rev. Logan finally came out, in company with some three or four women, all of whom appeared to be very nervous. They clung to one another, and walked as far north as McAnnany street, where the crowd closed in, and amid the hisses and roars of the angry crowd, Rev. Logan awaited the police car, which hurried him and the party to his home on Octavia street. The crowd pursued, and in a few minutes the house was surrounded, but not before the man sought had disappeared within. On returning with the car to the police station, P. C. Evans reported the angry crowd about the house, and Sergt. Boyd and the two constables again went to the house in the car. On their arrival, they found that stones were being hurled at the doors, and one window had been shattered, while the crowd shouted for Logan. Logan was taken from the house to the police station in the police car, and as the car left, stones and rocks were hurled at it, five of which struck, causing four deep dents in the left rear door of the car, and the fifth went through the top, cutting out a patch about five inches square. The crowd followed to the station, and the officers cleared them away from the market square. Rev. Logan sat in the police station, and was extremely nervous. He awaited the plans of the officers who had planned to whirl him out of the city, without hurt to anyone if possible. In about ten minutes when all plans were ready, he was taken out of the station, and with two newspaper representatives, and Constable Morris sat in the rear seat. Sergt. Boyd, who conceived the maneuver, took the wheel, and officer Evans sat with him in the front seat, in readiness for the run through the crowd, and through the city. Just before the car started Rev. Logan bade farewell to a member of his congregation, who had come to the station, saying, "Good bye Ben. Good bye, My God, if you only knew all the truth of this

Bonds to be Floated in Canada to Provide Necessary Rolling Stock.

Ottawa, Ont., July 16.—Arrangements are being made for the issue, in Canada, of $22,500,000 bonds of the Canadian National Railway Company, it has been announced by Hon. W. S. The remainder will be represented by serial bonds covering a period of fifteen years. In this case the equipment to be acquired is costing $30,000,000. One quarter of this is provided out of the general appropriation made by Parliament for the railways. The remainder, $22,500,000, will be covered by bonds. The bonds will bear five per cent interest.

There are large loans maturing this year which necessarily engage the attention of the Minister, but it is understood that no further issue will be made in Canada before October first.

INSULIN—THE ICHOR OF THE GODS

A local physician tells the following story:

While driving from Trenton to Belleville recently, he met a man on the road, who accosted him and requested that he be taken into the car. The physician complied and incidentally asked the man where he was from and whither he was bound.

"Well," said the traveller, who was very corpulent, "I have been up at Toronto taking Dr. Banting's cure for diabetes. They have got me so fat that they said I must walk a great deal. When I departed for home, I asked them if I could make the journey on foot. They asked me where I lived and I told them my home was in Three Rivers, Que. So they said I could walk twenty miles a day."

Constable Morris Stars As Hero In Thrilling Episode

Constable Morris earned the compliments of Chief Kidd and the plaudits of a Front street crowd on Saturday afternoon when, in approved movie-thriller fashion, the effected a spectacular stop of a runaway horse.

The horse, the property of Mr. A. Stapley, became frightened at the corner of Victoria avenue and Front street and bolted down Front street through the congested traffic, miraculously avoiding collisions. Police Constable Morris, who was on traffic duty at Bridge street, acted promptly. He stepped into the path of the frantic animal and grasped the bridle. He was thrown to the pavement and narrowly escaped severe injury from the horse's hoofs. He pluckily maintained his grip, however, and succeeded in stopping the horse's mad flight. The damage was chiefly confined to the constable's uniform.

Constable Morris is a comparatively recent addition to the Belleville police force and the incident has served as his debut from a publicity standpoint.

Send Your Own Handwriting Over the Wire!

By JOHN O'BRIEN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Paris, July 16.—(United Press).—Absolute facsimiles of telegraph messages in the original handwriting of the sender are now being sent every day over the French Government lines by the Belin system, which is an adaptation of the inventor's method of transmitting photographs by wire.

The sender of the telegram writes it on ordinary paper which is placed on a revolving cylinder and by the play of lights and mirrors, as in the case of transmission of photographs, the exact script is sent over the wire. It is much cheaper than the ordinary telegram at least for messages of more than one hundred words, for the cost of the telegram is a flat rate of twenty francs, the number of words being limited only by the size of the writing.

For instance in one case a stenographer sent from Lyons to Paris a message of 1,453 words, in shorthand notes, which was written on the cylinder of about the same size as an ordinary telegraph blank. In this way about one column of a newspaper could be sent for about $1.25. The system is very fast. The operation of sending the stenographic message from Lyons only took six minutes.

If the telegram had been written in ordinary script and sent by a fast telegrapher it would have required twenty-five minutes, at the rate of sixty words a minute, and the cost, at the current rate, would have been about $16. This method of automatic transmission of telegrams is now open to the public, the necessary apparatus having been installed in the government telegraph offices of the larger cities. There is no reason why a person could not actually send his own photograph with an inscription in his own handwriting over the wire.

Nelson, B. C., July 16.—Hon J. H. King, federal minister of public works, was tendered a non-political banquet here by the board of trade. The minister declared immigration was Canada's crying need.

FRENCH ATTITUDE UNCONCILIATORY

Premier Raps England's Stand on Treaty of Versailles

TO HOLD RUHR

France Opposes International Commission Suggested by Premier Baldwin.

(United Press Despatch Exclusive to The Intelligencer)

London, July 16.—Premier Baldwin, in his recent Commons statement, left the door open to resumption of cordial relations with France. On the subject of reparations, Premier Poincare slammed it shut in Britain's face.

Paris, July 16.—Veiled condemnation of England for her lack of support in enforcing the Versailles Treaty marked the Sunday speech by Premier Poincare at Senlis where he dedicated a monument to the war losses of the village.

Paris, July 16.—Premier Poincare yesterday made a speech at Senlis, the tenor of which is taken as a polite refusal to budge from the position he has taken since January, in spite of British Premier Baldwin's recent declaration in the House of Commons.

First—France will not discuss reparations with Germany until Germany ceases passive resistance.

Second—France sees no reason to evacuate the Ruhr until repartions are paid.

Third—France opposes substitution of an international commission of experts for the Reparations Commission. Mr. Baldwin suggested such an international body to assess Germany's capacity to pay.

Fourth—France sticks to her determination to obtain 26,000,000 gold marks for herself, plus a sufficient sum to meet her own debts to Great Britain and the United States, unless these countries are prepared to accept the worthless German "C" bonds in place of the French obligations.

New York, July 16.—The Hearst newspapers, abandoning their customary hostile attitude toward Great Britain and all things British, on Saturday printed a lengthy editorial on the reparations problems, the Hearst writer interprets it through the recent pronouncement of Prime Minister Baldwin.

Incidentally, the editorial contains a bitter attack upon France for her Ruhr policy, which is termed an "imperialistic, bulldozing, swashbuckling policy," which is "devastating Europe and in the end means suicide for France."

COW AND CALF ARE IN DETROIT'S ZOO

Detroit, July 16.—(United Press).—An ordinary cow and calf are the prize exhibits at the Detroit zoo.

The cow and calf were given honored pens in the zoo when 1,750 children in three schools here declared they had never seen an honest-to-goodness milch cow. When news that so many children had never seen a cow was published, a kindly dairyman presented "Princess" and her month-old calf, both Holsteins, to the city.

Seeing that each student visited the zoo for a glimpse of the cow and calf is one of the duties of Detroit's school teachers.

BRICKS WITHOUT STRAW

Additional evidence of the puerile mentality of Ex-Kaiser William of Germany is furnished in an article by Herbert H. Asquith, former Prime Minister of Great Britain. The article, entitled "The Genesis of the War" is the first of a series of six, being written for the Saturday Evening Post by Mr. Asquith and was published in that periodical in its issue of July 14, last.

One point on which Mr. Asquith touches which is of especial interest, is the Ex-Kaiser's reference in his memoirs to a book, The Problem of Japan, which, the Ex-Kaiser explains "appeared anonymously at The Hague in 1918."

The author incorporated in the volume a work of an American, Professor Usher of Washington University, St. Louis, Missouri, published in 1913.

The former War Lord of Germany in seeking to make secure his untenable position as the champion of a worthy cause, attributes the great European cataclyson of 1914-1918 to a policy of "encirclement" chiefly fostered by Great Britain and predicates this alleged policy upon an "agreement" referred to by Usher in the chapter of his book, quoted in The Problem of Japan. Usher infers that a concurrence of opinion existed between Great Britain, France and the United States in the spring of 1897 in respect of the menace of Pan-Germanism. He qualifies his statements, however, by saying: "It does not appear that any official undertakings of any kind were exchanged; and any promises or engagements would have been useless, for no American Government could bind its successors, according to the Constitution."

The Ex-Kaiser baldly asserts that Usher declared a treaty actually existed and elaborates his assertion in the words:

> "Usher in his book, published in 1913, made known for the first time the existence and contents of an agreement, or secret treaty, between England, America and France dating from the spring of 1897. In this it was stipulated that, in case Germany or Austria or both of them should begin a war for the sake of Pan-Germanism, the United States should at once declare in favour of England and France, and go to the support of these powers with all its resources."

Mr. Asquith produces documentary evidence to show that no such agreement existed and furthermore, that Usher did not claim that an agreement existed, his reference to the matter being chiefly an expression of his personal opinion.

The absurdity of the Ex-Kaiser's contention is accentuated by the extreme fallacy of his position in the matter. During the quarter century prior to the outbreak of the World War, Germany had built up an elaborate and highly complicated system of international espionage and esoteric intercourse. Those in charge of this ambitious undertaking spared neither time or expense in the attainment of their objectives and it was not until the war had been in progress for some time that the astounding extent of the ramifications of the system was revealed. It was found that by carefully devised camouflaging, German agents had established intimate connections in high official circles and had, in some instances, especially in America, acquired the open sesame to important deliberations.

Yet in spite of this fact the former monarch of Imperial Germany blandly asserts that a secret treaty of tremendous importance in international affairs, especially so far as Germany was concerned, existed for 21 years before he or any one of his ministers or agents learned of its existence!

It was possible, frequently, for Germany to learn of important plans of statesmen of other nations, formulated with the utmost secrecy, even before the plans were matured, yet an American professor, prompted by a purely academic interest and, with only the resources of the average individual at his command was able to acquire information, of which Germany's highly-trained army of secret agents remained in absolute ignorance.!

Moreover, Usher did not lock his "dark secret" within his breast. On the contrary, he broadcasted it to the wide world a year before the World War began.

The Ex-Kaiser's claim is preposterous. Usher's book was accorded reasonable publicity; if its import had been of the nature attributed to it by the Ex-Kaiser, the other governments involved would have become interested in the matter and the press of the United States, especially, would have given it prominence. More probable still, if the book had contained the vital message the Ex-Kaiser now reads in it, his agents would have bombarded Wilhelmstrasse with copies of it before the ink had become dry.

No, this effort of the former War Lord to extenuate his crime against humanity, like all of the others, will not "hold water".

By The Side Of The Road

A LAMENT

The Station street row has been settled,
The by-law has at last been approved;
The Councilmen, once sorely nettled,
Have decreed that the street be improved.

The city has awarded the contract
And work was to start very soon,
But all are awaiting the next act
In the movement long hailed as a boon.

Now that the means are provided
And 'twas hoped there'd be no more delay,
The contracting firm has decided
To take the steam shovel away.

The demonstration staged here on Sunday night might be termed a "religious upheaval".

The Governor of New York said to the Governor of New Jersey, "It's a long time between drinks."

The Drury Government is no more. Although the Ferguson regime will not officially start until tomorrow, the personnel of the former administration have departed from the Parliament Buildings bag and baggage.

Various points in the province will be the direct destinations of the retiring Government officials, but their political destination will undoubtedly be that crowded retreat, "Oblivion".

The Ex-Kaiser has gone to the seaside with frau. If he "cuts as sorry a figure" there as he did as a monarch, he certainly won't capture any prizes.

TIME FOR ACTION

In a Belleville court room last week a 15-year-old Deseronto boy testified under oath that he had sold liquor to men at Deseronto. The boy is a public school student and he testified that he had solicited his orders during intermissions and had delivered the liquor after school hours. The fact that the youth appropriated part of a private stock legally acquired and not preserved in violation of the law, eliminates the bootlegger or moonshiner as the source of supply, but the boy's story furnishes proof of the demand for liquor, which, in this instance, happened to be genuine whiskey, but which might have been the poisonous contraband now generally manufacturered in "stills".

It was not proven to the satisfaction of the court that liquor was sold to more than one man, although another admitted having participated in preliminary negotiations with the boy in connection with a proposed purchase. The youth said he had sold six bottles to 3 men for $2.00 each.

The incident merely shows that the profit realized from illegal liquor sales proves a temptation difficult to resist. Men who purchase liquor in an illegal way are culpable, of course, but when the vendor is a minor the offense is more serious.

No one, besides those who may have purchased liquor from him are responsible for the boy's illegal acts, but the case predicates an alarming situation. A certain percentage of the populace will persist in violating the Temperance Act and will purchase liquor through any source without compunction. In emergencies they will pay enormous prices for poisonous concoctions, which are highly injurious to health and might even cause death.

A more profound respect for the majesty of the law on the part of the citizenry generally and a more thorough system of enforcement are necessary if the Temperance Act is to be saved from emasculations by promiscuous liquor traffic. When school boys are lured into the industry it is time for drastic action.

NATIONAL LUNACY

Buffalo Times

Surely the scrambling of international laws and all other laws for the special enforcement of one law, would indicate not alone feebleness of mind, but dangerous national lunacy. The hideous feature of this whole business is its undisguised hypocrisy.

There are other elements,—such as graft, discrimination, degrading espionage, the agent provocateur, the deluge of perjuries engulfing our courts, the "plants and the "frame-ups,"—any of which strikes with a poisoned stiletto at the heart of ideal justice, and therefore at the permanence of government itself.

As the Days Go By.

Modern life moves so rapidly that the triangle, so popular in novels and plays a short time ago, will have to broaden at least to a rectangle if it is to meet latter-day requirements . . . with an octagon not so far off.—New York Sun and Globe.

PATRICIA BRENT SPINSTER

ANONYMOUS

"I'm afraid I've got——" began Patricia.

"Please don't be afraid you've got anything," pleaded Lady Peggy. "If you've got an engagement throw it over. Everbody throws over engagements for me".

"But——" began Patricia.

"Oh, please don't be tiresome," said Lady Peggy, screwing up her eyebrows. "I shall have all I can do to persuade Goddy to come, and it's so exhausting."

"I will come with pleasure," said Elton, "if only to protect Miss Brent from your overwhelming friendliness."

"Oh, you odious creature!" cried Lady Peggy, then turning to Patricia she added with mock tragedy in her voice, "Oh! love I've languished on that man, the gladness of the eyes I have turned upon him, the pressures of the hand I've been willing to bestow on him, and this is how he treats me." Then with a sudden change she added, "But you will come, won't you? I do so want you to meet Daddy."

"If the truth must be told," said Elton, "Peggy merely wants to be able to exploit you, as everybody is wanting to know about you and what you are like. Now she will be a celebrity, and able to describe you in detail to all her many men friends and to her women enemies".

Lady Peggy deliberately turned her back upon Elton.

"Now we are going to have another little walk and then we'll go and get our nosebags on," she announced. "No, you're not going to walk between us"—this to Elton—"I want to be next to Patricia," she announced.

Patricia felt bewildered by the suddenness with which Lady Peggy had descended upon her. She scarcely listened to the flow of small talk she kept up. She was conscious that Elton's hand was constantly at the salute, and that Lady Peggy seemed to be indulging in a series of continuous bows.

"Oh! do let's get away somewhere," cried Lady Peggy at length. "My neck aches, and I feel my mouth will set in a silly grin. Why on earth do we know so many people, Goddy? Do you know," she added mischievously, "I'd love to have a big megaphone and stand on a chair and cry out who you are. Then everybody would flock round, because they all want to know who it is that has captured Peter the Hermint, as we call him". She looked at Patricia appraisingly. "I think I can understand now," she said.

"Understand what?" said Patricia.

"What it is in you that attracts Peter."

Patricia gasped. "Really," she began.

"Yes, we girls have all been trying to make love to Peter and fuss over him, whereas you would rather snub him, and that's very good for Peter. It's just the sort of thing that would attract him". Then with another sudden change she turned to Elton and said, "Goddy, in future I'm going to snub you, then perhaps you'll love me".

Patricia laughed outright. She felt strongly drawn to this inconsequent child-girl. She found herself wondering what would be the impression she would create upon the Galvin House coterie, who would find all their social and moral virtues inverted by such directness of speech. She could see Miss Wangle's internal struggle, disapproval of Lady Peggy's personality mingling with respect for her rank.

"Oh, there's Tan!" Lady Peggy broke in upon Patricia's thoughts. "Goddy, call to her, shout, wave your hat. Haven't you got a whistle?"

But Lady Tanagra had seen the party, and was coming towards them accompanied by Mr. Triggs.

"Found whom?" enquired Lady Tanagra.

"Patricia. The captor of St. Anthony, and we're going to be friends, and she's coming to lunch with me to meet Daddy, and Goddy's coming too, so don't you dare to carry him off. Oh, Mr. Trigge! isn't it a lovely day," she cried turning to Mr. Triggs, who, hat in hand, was mopping his brow.

"Beautiful, me dear, beautiful," he exclaimed, beaming upon her and turning to shake hands with Patricia. "Well, me dear, how goes it?" he enquired. Then looking at her keenly he added, "Why, you're looking much better".

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

WORRY AND EATING.

In a former article I spoke about the importance of clean linen, table and flatwear when you were eating. Not only does the mouth water at the sight of food but the stomach actually does the same, thus making digestion that much easier. Similarly the soiled cloth or table wear actually prevents the flow of stomach juices.

But that is not all that stops the flow. Any severe depressing emotion, the loss of friends, of money, anything that worries you has the same bad effect. You know this yourself, because you have come home some [illegible] and a [illegible] meal is spread before you, perhaps a favorite meal, and you can scarcely eat a bite. The [illegible] immediately ask you if you are sick. You say' Why no; why?

"Well you're not eating anything Has anything happened?"

Sometimes you say no, because you have no desire to worry others, but you know that something has happened.

Now should you eat under such circumstances?

That's just a question.

If the cause of your lack of appetite is due to some little thing that has angered you and you've lost your temper for the time being, it would be just as well to avoid eating until you cool down. You see your anger through your brain has upset all your juices. Some of them that you need for digestion being manufactured in insufficient quantities, and others that lessen your digestive powers being manufactured in larger quantities.

However, if your worry, grief, or other depressing emotion is to be of long duration you would do well to try and take hold of yourself and try eating plain but tempting things to retain your strength. I believe it was John Temple Graves who said: "There are only two things to worry about: The things you can't help, and the things you can help. If it's something you can't help, what's the use of worrying about it If it's something you can help, use your worrying time in trying to help it."

I give this for what it is worth to you.

matter." The car shot through the market square, and up Front to Bridge street. The crowds hooted and shouted but no missles were directed at the fleeing machine. At the entrance to the exhibition grounds, the two officers stepped out, and were instructed to stop every car which attempted to follow. Several cars were speeding up, but the officers stopped all of them and sent them back, while the police car sped out the road to the Marshall road, where a Ford touring car belonging to Mr. Jonothan Elliott was in waiting. George Delina drove the car, and another man sat in the rear seat. Rev. Logan was hurried to the waiting car, which lost no time in speeding down the Trent road toward Trenton. Before leaving, Rev. Logan thanked the officers for getting him safely away from the angry crowd, and extended his hand. Those in charge of the Ford car were nervous and asked for a gun, but were not given one. They feared that possibly a mob awaited them on the Trent road.

When the car left the station, Rev. Logan sat on the right side of the right seat, but immediately after it started, he exclaimed, "Hide me boys I'll get down, and you sit about me, so they cannot see me" He exchanged seats with one of the newspaper men and one of the constables sat in front of him. Rev. Logan has friends in Trenton.

On the way out, Logan remarked that "his ministerial career was ended." In the station, Logan stated that he did not believe he could continue his work in Belleville, though he loved the people of this city. He said that there was but a few hundred dollars yet to pay on the new Temple. He was advised to inform influential members of his congregation that he felt that he could not safely carry on the work here any longer. He asked that his trunk, and all his personal effects be sent him.

The crowds, thinking that the police officers had taken the man to his home again, rushed to the Octavia street residence of the pastor, but, when informed by the officers that Logan had gone to Trenton, they seemed satisfied, and dispersed quietly.

The many women who took an active part in the demonstration, were very pronounced in their views. Some ladies of Rev. Logan's congregation wept bitterly and pitied the man. One lady cried, "What does this crowd mean? Go home." Another woman, on hearing a man make a remark about Logan, became very angry, and almost created a scene in the street. Another woman weeping bitterly, exclaimed, "Oh boys, isn't this an awful affair?"

It is rumored that about seventy five persons from Oshawa were in the city Sunday night.

A broken wagon tongue was the only damage.

TORONTO MECHANIC PROFITS

Use of Dreco pays Mr. Bell dividends of Health after other remedies fail, "I think it is a wonderful medicine," he says.

Mr. John Bell, a machine tender, of 164 Bellwoods Ave., Toronto, found his work greatly impeded by severe dizzy spells, rheumatism and general internal disorder, brought by a weakened digestive system. How Dreco speedily rectified this condition by toning and regulating his stomach so that it properly nourished and strengthened the other organs, is outlined by Mr. Bell in the following statement:—

"For many years I have suffered stomach, and liver trouble. My case was a serious one and caused me untold suffering. Every time I'd bend over or look up, I'd almost fall from dizziness. Things I ate never agreed with me. Gas would form in my stomach and I would get a sour, bitter taste in my mouth. I often had pains around my Heart. My appetite was also very poor and I had pains across my back. My joints and muscles ached with rheumatism.

Mr. Bell's symptoms are common to those whose digestive organs get out of hand. Dreco is prepared especially as a corrective for this condition. Compound from medicinal herbs, roots, bark and leaves, it restores the whole system to proper working order. Dreco contains no mercury, potash or habit, forming drugs and is a reliable spring tonic and restorative.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Belleville by The Belleville Pharmacy, and is Sold by a Good Druggist every where.

Detroit, Mich., July 16.—Federal prohibition agents assisted by representatives of the treasury department, have seized 200 motor boats off Ecorse, Wyandotte and Trenton in the down-river district. The operations were conducted in the face of an angry mob, who, according to the officers, attempted at one time to dynamite a small bridge giving egress to a boat well.

TRUNKS-PETES GAME CALLED IN 5TH-RAIN, BELLEVILLE WINS 1-0

Williams Allows but 3 Hit—H. Mills and Meagher do Brilliant Work.

The Trunks waltzed out to Peterboro on Saturday and hung a 1-0 defeat on the Homesters at Riverside Park in five innings of exciting baseball. The game was called at the end of the fifth on account of rain. The boys waited for one hour and a half for the drizzle to abate but finally Dicky Butler was forced to call the game and Belleville were declared the winners. Despite Jake Solomon's pleas to continue the game Butler was urged and refused to make the boys perform in the downpour. Belleville had the best of the play up to this point and gathered six safe bingles from Heckman's delivery while Peterboro managed to obtain but a trio of safeties off Williams' hurling. The winning run came in the third innings when Meagher scored on Harry Mills' safety

To start the innings, Ross lined out to Legon, who made a pretty catch. Then Allan came to bat and got a single. Brownscombe flied out to Wolfe for the second out. Weir singled. Harry Mills came to bat and singled and Meagher scored from second. Harry was out try to make second on the play, but one run had been scored and the damage was done. Mills' hit came in the nick of time and eventually it was the means whereby the game was won. In the third and fifth the Petes had the bags cluttered but Jackie forced their mightiest hitters to tap weakly to the infield. It was a great game as far as it went and it was rather a tough argument for the Petes to lose—but such is baseball. A great deal was at stake and both teams needed a win. Belleville are now perched in a favorable position to win the second half with three home games in a row.

Peterboro play here Wednesday morning at ten o'clock and this game should attract a nice holiday crowd after Saturday's game. Oulette will likely do the twirling in Wednesday's game.

Cobourg are here on Saturday, while the Petes come back on the 25th. Should Belleville win these three games the going will be easy.

Dick Butler was for some reason or other given a rather severe pounding before the game started. Peterboro fans and the Lindsay umpire are at loggerheads.

In the third when the Petes had the bases loaded and "Hap" Harrison at the bat, the big first-baseman drove a line drive and Harry Mills made a beautiful one-handed catch which retired the side. In the fifth the Petes filled the runways and this time it was Meagher who made a nice running stop of Ansaldo's drive and the Petes' chances were gone. "Red" Legon pulled off a pretty bare-hand catch in left field.

The latest news in the baseball world says that Cobourg are dropping from the Central Ontario League. John G. Nott, secretary, received this information from Mr. C. R. Gummow yesterday. Thus the remainder of Cobourg's games will be forfeited. What their reason for dropping from the league is, is not known. They have been favoured with fair crowds this season.

The Petes will of course arrive in the city tomorrow night to play on Wednesday morning.

Batting order for Saturday was:

Belleville—Ross, c.f.; Meagher, 2b.; Brownscombe, l.f.; Weir, s.s.; Mills, 1b.; J. K. Williams, 3b.; Casey, r.f.; Hagerman, c.; J. H. Williams, p.

Peterboro—Legon, l.f.; Johnston, .f.; Swanston, c. Ansaldo, s.s.; Wolff .f.; Comolli, w.b.; Helson, 3b.; Heckman, p.; Harrison, 1b.

ANTI-BETTING LAW IN EFFECT TO-DAY

Official Entries From Canada and U. S. Tracks Not Affected.

Toronto, July 16.—Ontario Anti-betting Information Bill is in effect today and no publication can carry betting information in its columns without contravening the law. Attorney-General Raney states definitely that the law's application is to newspapers commencing with this morning's issues.

Canadian Press, Ltd., the official news-distributing agency of the Canadian Press, despatched information concerning odds on Saturday, but last night there was nothing of that nature carried on the wires. Today their published order of July 6, declaring that the Canadian Press would conform strictly to the law, goes into effect.

"Official entries from Canada and United States tracks," it says, "are not affected, and will be carried as at present."

Meeting to be Held in Intelligencer Editorial Rooms Tomorrow Night.

Some time ago The Intelligencer printed an article in regard to forming a soft-ball league played out of doors. This city, unlike other towns, has no city leagues, either hard or soft ball, and such a league would create clean, healthy sport. Several clubs and factories have expressed a desire to enter a team in the soft-ball league. A meeting will be held in The Intelligencer editorial rooms to-morrow evening at 7-30 sharp.

Those clubs desirous of entering a team will please have a representative present in order to discuss preliminary plans. The following are asked to have representatives present—Tiger Tire, 34th Battery, Shoe Clerks, G.T.R., Hydro Electric and any others who wish to enter.

COBOURG CLUB WITHDRAWS FROM CENTRAL ONTARIO LEAGUE TODAY

Oshawa, Ont., July 16.—Bowmanville Central Ontario Leaguers have been granted three permits for exhibition games. On Wednesday, July 18, they take on the Oslers of Hampdon Park, Toronto; Saturday, July 21st, they go to Port Hope, and at a date to be set Port Hope will play the return game. Leaside ask for the postponement of their engagement with Oshawa for next Saturday, but the Oshawa team declined, owing to the game already being advertised. Cobourg supplied satisfactory evidence as to playing players with no Central Ontario League certificates.

The Cobourg player who had an argument with Umpire Menzie wired an apology to the official in Lindsay, while the two fans who treated the same official roughly were summoned to court. Kingston supplied the information that Delaney of Gananoque had card No. 5625, registered with the Inter-County O.B.A.A. League and was properly released to Kingston. Letters with certificates enclosed bearing the postmark of July 14 or 15 received by secretary Monday morning will be forwarded along with all others of Central Ontario League to Secretary M. B. Dulmage, at Guelph, during the coming week.

Secretary Nott received the following telegram from Cobourg at 4.50 yesterday afternoon, signed by C. R. Gummow, sect'y of the Horse Show Town: "Cobourg withdrawing from Central Ontario League to-morrow, letter follows."

Mr. Newton Thompson, secretary of the Belleville C.O.B.L. team, announced to-day that he had been advised of Cobourg's withdrawal from the league.

SPORT GOSSIP

Major League teams are bidding for the services of Babe Dye, and it is reported that the New York Yankees have offered $22,500 for the star batsman of the Buffalo International team. Dye, who played with the Hillcrests of Toronto a few years ago, has been a big success as a baseball player, and is probably the greatest shooting forward in hockey. Those who saw him play football say he was as good as Conacher when a junior. It is to be hoped that if Dye goes up, his new contract will not sever his relations with the hockey world. He was a credit to the game and always gave his best. His rifle-like shooting was a feature of every game he took part in. Dye was one of the ornaments of professional hockey.

It is good to note that Oulette and Brownscombe, of last year's Lindsay Greybirds, are both making good with Belleville this year. They are good players, especially "Brownie," who besides being a good fielder is also a sure sticker and a good base runner. Oulette pretends to be a pitcher only, and his speed ball is the terror of the Central League. Our only regret is that Oulette and Brownscombe threw Lindsay down (after being used white) and left the town without a fast baseball team this season.—Post.

Surely Lindsay does not think that with Brownscombe and Oulette on the Greybirds' line-up that the flock would be strengthened to any great extent. What difference would two good players make with such a poor outfit as the 1923 Greybirds?

Benny Leonard and Lew Tendler are insured for $100,000 each against injury before their fight at the Yankee Stadium in New York city July 24. The stadium has been insured for $100,000 against fire.

BIG MONEY IN JOB AS H. W. CHAMP

By Paul R. Mallon, United Press Staff Correspondent.

New York, July 16.—Jack Dempsey has made an even million dollars out of four afternoon's work as heavyweight champion of the world.

Figured down in minutes, it is estimated that the Iron Man worked about two hours for his cool million. Of course, he had to spend a lot of time in training, but there probably isn't any worker in the United States or any sport champion who received anything near the sum he has cashed in.

Dempsey got one hundred thousand iron men for bowling over Billy Miske and a hundred thousand more for playing around a few rounds with Bill Brennan.

Then came Georges Carpenter, the French beau brummel, who wanted to get knocked out. Dempsey did it for 90,000 spectators for $300,000.

Then there was the Shelby affair with Tommy Gibbons, Jack Kearns, manager of the champ, after fidgeting around with the promoters for a while, whistled to himself, "My Gawd, how the money rolls in!" and plucked out $220,000.

Those four fights gave Dempsey $720,000. Movie rights and other concessions bring the total to an even million. A few exhibitions may have been necessary to swell the figure, but Jack Kearns attended to those. Dempsey and Kearns were just about broke when the fight with Jess Willard was arranged at Toledo four years ago.

It was a tough break of luck that kept Zev, the champion three-year-old, out of the Latonia Derby. That race was just what Zev needed to set a new record for cash earned during the season. It would also have made more certain the position he holds as king of his class.

The west cleaned up in the race, winning the first three positions at the finish. Without attempting to detract from his honor, it is only fair to say that it probably would have been a different story if Zev had run.

It looks as if a man can get kicked out of the United States and, without exertion, go down to Mexico and become a national hero.

Jack Johnson was the first to go down when authorities were hot on his trail. Sam Langford is the present heavyweight champion of Mexico, whatever that is.

Now, Hal Chase, the old first baseman of the New York Yankees, blacklisted by organized baseball because of questionable activities, is managing the Nogales team. For two years after he was kicked out, Chase worked for $3 a day in a California lumber yard and then sought fame in Mexico.

Connie Mack knows a ball player when he sees one. In his day—and it's been a long one—Mack, as manager of the Athletics, has had 400 baseball players come and go. Three years ago it was the joke of the major leagues. He would have his scouts go around and sign up young college players hardly more than half-way through their 'teens.

His perseverance has been rewarded, and he now has a ball club which will compare with any in the league.

And he grew it himself. He didn't pay a million dollars for it.

* * *

Benny Leonard is using golf in his training for the Lew Tendler match. Up in the Catskills these afternoons he is socking the little white ball around the course, thereby defying the traditions of old timers who say golf will prove the ruination of a ball player or fighter.

The old timers point to Jimmy Wilde, who played 18 holes the day before he met Pancho Villa, and was knocked out.

But it wasn't golf that beat Jimmy Wilde, it was Villa.

New York Gives Babies A Chance for Life

New York, July 16.—(United Press)—Babies in New York City have a better chance for life than the infants of Chicago, Philadelphia, Detroit, Cleveland, Boston, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Buffalo Milwaukee, Washington, Newark, New Orleans, Kansas City, Indianapolis, Jersey City, Rochester and Denver.

All these smaller cities have higher infant mortality rates than the largest city in the United States, according to the 1922 statistical report of infant mortality in 635 cities of the United States, just issued by the American Child Health association of which Herbert Hoover is the president.

Considering the dense population of New York City, the report says, New York has an infant mortality rate of only 75 while that of Chicago is 85. Philadelphia is 81, Pittsburgh is 96 and Boston is 93. Following are the cities over 250,000 with the lowest rates. Minneapolis, 53, Portland 56.

The cities with the highest infant mortality rates in the 250,000 or over class are Buffalo, N.Y., with a high mark of 103; Pittsburgh, with its 96 rate; and Boston with 93.

Germany's July 1 Will Be Aug. 11

By GUS M. OEHM
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Berlin, July 16.—(United Press)—Germany's 1st of July has officially been set for August 11.

After several years of discussion, the matter has finally been decided by the juristic committee of the Reichstag and August 11—the anniversary of the adoption of the Weimar republican constitution which made Germany a republic in fact—has been legally named as a national holiday.

Last August 11, the third anniversary of the birth of the republic, was only half-heartedly observed in Germany, practically all business going on as usual, though a very formal and pepless meeting attended by President Ebert and Chancellor Wirth was held in the Reichstag.

Both committee members of the right parties voted against setting aside this day.

Germany will also have an official national memorial day for soldiers who died in the World War, the committee setting aside the 6th Sunday before Easter for the purpose.

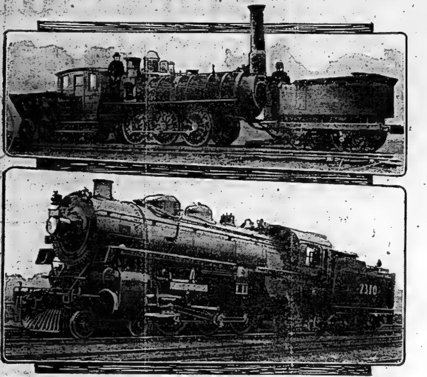
AIDS BY ITS PATRONAGE

(Lowell Courier-Citizen)

Once again one reads hopeful fulminations from Washington as to what is about to be done by getting after its supposed directors. But does anyone in the federal government, from the president down to the humblest law-clerk, really believe that bootlegging is going to be ended—or even sensibly minimized—by any possible act of the law officers and the courts, in the face of the fact that pretty nearly half the present population of the United States not only countenances bootlegging, but actually aids and abets it by its patronage?

The great trouble with this whole business is the public's own attitude; to wit, its lack of sufficient moral support to make feasible the enforcement of so drastic a law as now encumbers our federal statute books as well as those of a great many states.

Just a Comparison.

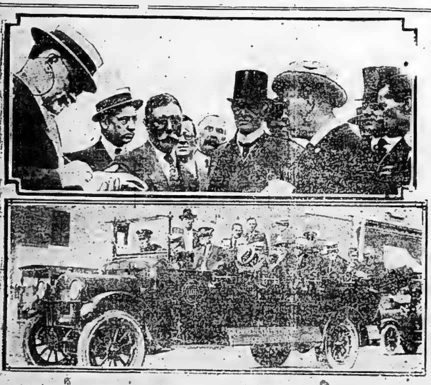


The First Locomotive in America and the Latest.

THIS picture might almost be entitled "Ancient and Modern." It shows the "Sampson," first locomotive in America which was first used at Albion mines in 1839, and one of the new Pacific type locomotives which have been placed in commission by the Canadian Pacific Railway on all main lines, and which are chiefly responsible for this company's "on time" feature of service. The Canadian Pacific Railway have now definitely adopted this design for their heavy main line service, as representing the most desirable and efficient locomotive for economy and reliability of service, as this particular design reduces to a minimum, consistent with capacity, the number of moving parts which is essential for reliability of service under the most exacting and severe conditions.

The capacity and weight of these locomotives rank them among the biggest of their type in the world, and the largest of this design in operation in Canada. The haulage capacity of the 2300 series is 42,600 lbs., which is obtained with 200 pounds boiler pressure, cylinders 25 inches in diameter, 30 inch stroke and with driving wheels 75 inches in diameter. The weight on the three pairs of drivers of engine is 180,000 pounds and the total weight of the engine and tender in working condition is 495,000 pounds, the tender having a capacity of 8,000 gallons of water and 14 tons of coal.

The design of these locomotives was given very careful study, a trial order of engines constructed in 1919 having been made, with tests under all Canadian conditions, which fully justified all expectations for reliability and economy of operation. The boiler has been carefully proportioned and the inter-relation of grate area, fire box volume, heat absorption capacity of different lengths of tube and gas areas more carefully thought out than is usual in most designs, which, coupled together with an extremely accurate distribution of steam by an improved type of Walschaert valve gear, has given exceptional economy for a locomotive of this size.



The upper picture shows the supreme court of Quebec in session at the spot where Raoul Delorme's body was found. Left to right, those shown are the official stenographer: Alleyn Taschereau, counsel for Abbe Delorme: J. Gravel, who found the body: Chief Justice Sir Francis Lemieux: R. L. Calder, crown prosecutor. The lower picture shows the jury in the charabanc which rammed the car in which the chief justice was riding. Later the charabanc ran out of gas, and the jur was stranded by the roadside.

Fellowship Spirit Rife at Moira Lake

Moira Lake, July 13.—(By Cecil Facer).—The days for the end of the first camp at Camp Community is now drawing nigh. Those who came out for two weeks are already preparing to pack their kits and reluctantly leave the good old camp Community. They leave covered with a coat of tan and with bodies filled with the glow of health. But they are taking something else away with them. Something that it was necessary to come to Camp Community to get and that is a real good fellowship.

Those two weeks far from home surrounded by nature in all its primeval forms have wrought wonder with those boys and they have learned many things, learned it from nature as we were intended to learn.

The series for the baseball championship have finally closed after a long hard fought competition. Last night the Whites led by Austin Walters clashed with the Reds piloted by Cecil Facer and after the full seven innings had been played and the shades of darkness were falling the score was a tie 4-4. This morning they battled it out to a finish and after a very exciting game the White pulled out a victory in the last innings by the score of 8-7.

On Tuesday the field day was held and those husky boys turned in some records. Yesterday and to-day the aquatics are being run off, punt races swimming races, dives and plunges feature on this program.

Mr. Sidenius is expected out on Sunday to take charge of the services.

Wednesday morning Madoc was visited for a second time and that night all paddled over in the war canoe to the south shore where a joint bon-fire was held with the campers.

Last night the leaders planned a little "bust up" party. Some ice-cream was purchased in Madoc and the cook was bribed to make a cake. But lo, when the time for the feed came that cake had disappeared. A search ensued and in the middle of this the ice cream also vanished. Then followed an hour of great excitement until at last both the articles were recovered and the feed went on uninterrupted.

Though the days of the first camp are over, there is still lots of time for one to come out and enjoy the spice of life,—a week at Camp Community.

ROMANTIC AND NOVEL IS MINTER FILM, "DRUMS OF FATE"

One of the best casts ever assembled for a motion picture will be seen at Griffin's tonight to Wednesday, when "Drums of Fate," a novel and romantic Paramount feature offering, will be the attraction.

The featured player is lovely Mary Miles Minter, for many years a favorite in roles depicting dainty, flowering womanhood. Miss Minter is a southern beauty and was last seen with Tom Moore in "The Cowboy and the Lady." Maurice B. (Lefty) Flynn is Miss Minter's leading man in "Drums of Fate." He is none other than the stalwart young man who used to crash through the line for the Yale football team some eight years ago. Flynn was seen a few months ago in another Paramount picture, "The Woman Who Walked alone," and is regarded as very promising. Others in the distinguished cast are the veteran actor, George Fawcett, a member of the Paramount Stock Company and long a favorite with Belleville screen fans; Bertram Grassby, "villain" in Ethel Clayton's "For the Defense", and many other pictures; Casson Ferguson, the well known juvenile, and Robert Cain, famous stage and screen player. The picture was directed by Charles Maigne and adapted from Stephen French Whitman's colorful story of New York society and the African "Sacrifice."

"Seeing Red," a two-reel Tom Santschi Western story, "Bright Eyes," a funny Mack Sennett comedy, and a topical have been arranged for exhibition on the same program.

CLAIR WINSOR AND ELLIOTT DEXTER IN GRIPPING DOMESTIC STORY

"Grand Larceny", a Goldwyn picture, is the new feature offering at the Regent theatre, tonight to Wednesday, matinee daily. It is a story of two men and a woman, by Albert Payson Terhunem, in which one of the men commits what the other calls an act of grand larceny in stealing the affections of the other's wife. A novel twist to this type of story is introduced by the attitude of the woman, who is the innocent victim of what is apparently a chain of evil-looking circumstances. She does not acquiesce in the theory that degrades her to the level of things that may be stolen; and in the end, forces upon both men recognition of the fact that she belongs to herself. The story, which was written by Albert Payson Terhune, is beautifully presented by an excellent cast, including Clair Winsor, Elliott Dexter, Richard Tucker, Tom Gallery, Roy Atwell and John Cossar.

"Excuse Me Sheriff", an amusing Sunshine comedy, a two-reel wild animal story, and Fox News are being exhibited in addition to the above feature attraction.

No merchants in the world have ready to their hands such an extraordinary aid to making sales as is afforded by the Long Distance lines in Canada and the United States.

CONVICTS ESCAPE IN PENNSYLVANIA

Philadelphia, July 16.—A group of convicts at the eastern penitentiary, variously reported to number from eight to twelve, overpowered a guard, and escaped by climbing over a wall, according to the police.

The prisoners were fully armed and after beating the guard into submission, secured a rope and scaled the prison wall. The convicts then leaped upon a passing truck, threw the driver out and speeded toward Fairmont Park.

The escape was one of the most daring in the long history of the institution.

Russia Is Becoming the Wonder Country of the World

Head of the Friends' Relief Committee Draws Rosy Picture of New Republic, But Says German Is in Despair

Editor's Note—The view Dr. Thomas takes of the future of Russia and Germany is very interesting. Few men have had a wider experience or closer view of the two European question marks. His attitude toward the new republic is especially important because he has been able to approach the problem without personal, political, racial or party prejudice.—The United Press, New York.

Philadelphia, July 16.—(United Press)—"Russia is on the road to prosperity, with industry increasing rapidly. Poland is recovering from internal strife. Austria is well started toward national reconstruction. Germany is in a state of chaos, as the result of the French occupation."

This is the view of Dr. Wilbur K. Thomas, executive secretary of the American Friends' Service Committee, who has just returned to the United States after a three months' investigation tour through Russia, Austria, Poland and Germany.

Dr. Thomas, who has charge of the Quaker relief work, made the investigation of the devastated countries so as to formulate plans of relief and reconstruction work in Europe during the coming year.

"Russia is fast becoming the wonder country of the world," Dr. Thomas said to the United Press. "The agricultural outlook is very bright and manufacturing of articles for home use is increasing.

"There is enough acreage planted to produce a bumper crop, unless there are severe droughts the latter part of this month. Manufacturing of tools and machinery have been revived. One train I rode on was hauled by a locomotive built in Russia.

"Very few Russian peasants are dying from starvation. Some of the poorer class in the old Volga famine district are still perishing for the want of proper food, because they are in an isolated section where it is difficult to transport necessities. As a whole, a very small percentage of the population is suffering from malnutrition.

PEASANTS ARE CONTENTED

"The peasants appear happy and carefree. They sing from morning until night, and appear perfectly contented. They do not need the luxuries we demand. A huge loaf of rye bread is sufficient food to last a laborer for a week. The people know there has been a revolution of some sort, but they do not appear interested in who won or why there was a revolution. They seem to be perfectly satisfied with the present form of government, which, in my opinion, is functioning fairly well."

The report of a national attack on religion in Russia is unfounded, according to Dr. Thomas, who believes that the fusion of church, school and state under the Czar led to oppression of the people and helped to keep them in ignorance.

"It is natural," Dr. Thomas said, "that an effort to introduce the American idea of separation of church from state and school from church should cause some of the political leaders to go too far in their zeal to free the people from superstition. On the other hand, it is to be expected that many of the priests and many of the people who were brought up in the old conception and who derived personal benefits from it, should be opposed to the introduction of new methods. These circumstances explain the present religious situation in Russia.

"Poland also is on the road to recovery and the morale of the nation is improving. Along the battle fronts peasants still live in dug-outs and mud huts, but this condition is being slowly remedied."

SOVIET AND EDUCATION

"The Soviet government is making great effort to introduce universal education along modern lines.

"Relief work is still needed in Russia, however. There will be no need of soup wagons in the near future, but the workers must be aided in securing farm animals. Horses will have to be shipped in to harvest the crops and cattle are an essential element in the reconstruction work.

"America can look upon Russia with optimism, but it is well to bear in mind that much still remains to be accomplished before that nation will be secure."

Dr. Thomas said that he found conditions far worse in Germany than in Russia because of the absolute lack of surplus food and clothing in Germany and the general feeling of oppression.

"The Germans seem to be living from hand to mouth. They are suffering from lack of food far more than the Russians. Russians do not need the variety of food required by the Germans and this accounts for the suffering.

GERMANY IN DESPAIR

"Of course, Germans have decent houses to live in, while the Russians live in hovels and the German morale are better. They appear oppressed, however, and everywhere there is a general feeling of despair," he said.

"Austria is an improved country today and reconstruction work is rapidly progressing. The rate of exchange has been partly stabilized and the country is on the road to progress if not prosperity."

RAILROAD MAN GIVES OUT SURPRISING FACTS

"If any in my family were sick with stomach trouble or run-down condition, I would rather have one bottle of Tanlac than all the other medicines put together," is the positive statement of F. A. Barrowcliff, 8 Locomotive St., Hamilton, Ont., well known yardman for the Grand Trunk Railroad.

"My wife's health was restored by the Tanlac treatment in such short order it was astonishing, for she suffered so terribly from nervousness, headaches, sleeplessness and loss of appetite that I thought she would break down completely. She went meal after meal without eating, and was so fearfully weak the care of our five children and the housework was more than she could do.

"After her first few doses of Tanlac my wife was like an entirely different person, and hasn't had a sick spell since she quit taking the medicine six months ago. Tanlac has certainly been a blessing in our house, and we are glad to recommend it."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

FERGUSON CABINET HOLDS FIRST SESSION

YATEMAN HELD TO HIGHER COURT

Driver of Car Which Fatally Injured Mrs. Loyst to Face Trial

BOND IS RENEWED

Court Holds that Evidence Warrants Trial for Criminal Negligence

Harold Yateman was held for trial at the autumn session of the new court of competent jurisdiction on a charge of criminal negligence by Magistrate Masson yesterday, when Yateman was arraigned for hearing.

The action grew out of the death of Mrs. Florence Emma Loyst, who was run down by Yateman's car in front of her home on the Trent road on June 30.

The Magistrate said that the evidence submitted did not entirely show that Yateman was not partially to blame in the fatality.

Dr. Robertson was the first witness called. He said that he had attended Mrs. Florence Loyst on Saturday night, June 30, between eight and nine o'clock, when she was brought to his office by Harold Yateman. Dr. Robertson stated that Mrs. Loyst suffered with fractured ribs and a badly lacerated face. The cause of death was puncture of the lung, which was penetrated by a broken rib. Dr. Robertson had been the family physician for some time past. He said she was a frail woman between forty and fifty years old. Dr. Robertson said that from outward appearances Mrs. Loyst had been struck by a tire of the car, as there was no distinct mark as if she had been struck by the fender or other part of the car. There was no evidence to show that Mrs. Loyst had been dragged any distance.

Fred Helm, who was talking to Mrs. Loyst a few seconds before the accident occurred, was summoned to the box. He and his wife were on the south side of the provincial highway chatting with the deceased. Mr. Helm said that he remembered seeing a car pass just after he had started down the road. The car, he thought, was travelling a little fast, considering the fact that the dangerous railway crossing was but a few feet ahead. He heard a scream and, looking about, he saw the accused lifting Mrs. Loyst into the car. The left front wheel was over the first rail. Mr. Helm noticed the skid marks in the gravel at the side of the road.

Mr. Charles Sweet testified that he was travelling east on the night of the accident and was at the time about fifty yards east of the scene. Mr. Sweet noticed a Star Durant car pass him which he thought was travelling in the neighborhood of twenty to twenty-five miles per hour.

Mrs. Dora Sweet was called and said that she was driving east with her husband in an Overland car. She remembered the car passing and estimated the speed to be from twenty to twenty-five miles per hour. She saw the car swerve to avoid something and then saw Mrs. Loyst lying in the road. The body was lying to the west of the driveway.

Harold Yateman was called but announced that he had nothing to say.

Magistrate Masson said that on the evidence submitted, Yateman would be held for further trial. The bonds of $4,000 were renewed.

The flames lit up the whole city and river front, and were followed by dense columns of smoke. A still containing thousands of gallons of oil, had caught fire at the top and only the fire-fighting ability of the company's fire department prevented heavy loss. A gas leak was the cause of the outbreak.

FORMER KINGSTON MAN DIES IN WEST

He also spent two years in the Yukon territory where he established the first court. WINNIPEG READY FOR ORANGE MEET

Imperial Grand Council to Meet for First Time in West

FERGUSON EXPECTED

Elaborate Preparations Made for Meeting—Session Will Open Friday

Winnipeg, July 17.—For the the first time in the history of the Orange Order the Imperial Grand Orange Council of the World is holding its triennial session west of the Great Lakes, opening in this city on Friday next. In conjunction with this event are the annual meetings of the Grand Black Chapter of British America the Grand Orange Lodge of British America and the Ladies' Orange Benevolent Association. The proceedings of these various bodies will naturally be followed with the greatest interest wherever Orangeism flourishes and, indeed, wherever Protestantism means and represents something more than mere adherence to and conformity with any branch of the reformed faith.

Nothing could exceed the effort apparent on every hand to make the visitors comfortable and the reception committee has been working double time for the past few days, meeting every train and transporting the delegates to their destinations for the time being. The ladies too have done more than their share in this respect and Saturday night there was quite a demonstration when the C.P.R. train pulled in from the east with M.W. Bro. W. D. McPherson, K.C., Grand Master; M.W. Bro. Fred Dane, First Vice-President of the Triennial Council; R.W. Bro. Joseph Cloughley, R.W. Bro. T. R. Lavery, M.P., and other distinguished brethren. They were given a rousing and enthusiastic welcome and this was repeated when Bro. Rev. David Ness of Scotland, President of the Grand Orange Council, arrived by the Canadian National.

It is estimated that between 1,200 and 1,500 accredited delegates will participate in the different meetings, some of which will have to be held simultaneously in order to get through the business in the time alloted by the programme.

It was hoped that the Ulster Premier, Sir James Craig, and Lord Carson would be able to pay Canada a visit this month but political developments apparently do not permit of their leaving the old country at this time. However, the representation from Great Britain is worthy of the occasion. It is expected that Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Premier of Ontario, will arrive in time to take part in the proceedings of Grand Lodge. Prominent Orange women in the L.O.B.A. have already arrived including Mrs. Flora Burrowes of Hamilton, Grand Mistress; Mrs. Jeanie Gordon, of Toronto, Grand Secretary; Miss Mary Collum, one of the founders and for several years Grand Mistress of the Order, Grand Treasurer of British America; Mrs. L. Roe, Grand Mistress of Ontario West and warm advocate of Juvenile lodges; Mrs. John J. Tulk, of Vancouver, Grand Mistress of British Columbia and Mrs. Stewart Adrian, Grand Mistress of Saskatchewan.

The opening session of the Grand Black Chapter begins to-morrow afternoon under the presidency of the Grand Master M.W. Bro. George B. McCready, and in the evening there will be an exemplification of the 4th degree by teams from King Solomon R.B.P., No. 777, Saskatoon and Winnipeg. On Tuesday afternoon the L.O.B.A. will convene. On Wednesday the Grand Lodge of British North America will be opened in due form by the Grand Master M.W. Bro. W. D. McPherson, K.C. and on the same day there will be a grand demonstration and parade to River Park which will be addressed by Bro. Rev. David Ness and other speakers. The parade will be the greatest ever seen in the west and is expected to give a wonderful impetus to the cause of Orangeism in this and the neighboring province.

Draft of British Reply to German Note to be Submitted to Cabinet Tomorrow

(United Press Despatch Exclusive to The Intelligencer)

Rome, July 17.—According to information received, Italy and Britain have completed plans for an international conference to discuss reparations in Rome, at which it is hoped to come to definite arrangements.

London, July 17.—Lord Robert Cecil, it is reported, held that eventually the League Council will have to be invoked in the reparations issue under Article Eleven of the Covenant. This empowers any member to bring up "any circumstance whatever affecting international relations which threatens to disturb international peace or the good understanding between nations upon which peace depends."

London, July 17.—Lord Curzon has completed a draft of the British reply to Germany on her latest reparations note. It will be submitted to the Cabinet Wednesday for approval or revision. Premier Baldwin yesterday declined to be drawn out regarding the contents of the note, declaring the last way to secure approval of the Allies to the document would be to publish even the main outlines of it in advance.

The note, as at present drawn up, accepts in principle the German note of guarantees to ensure reparations payments, but hints that more complete guarantees than those specified will be necessary.

Y.M.C.A. SECRETARY TALKS TO KIWANIS

Discusses Important Phrases In Boy's Life

Despite the holiday season there was a large attendance of members of the Kiwanis Club at the weekly luncheon to-day at the Queen's Hotel, presided over by President T. Collister. Visitors were Jacob Finkle of Toronto, Doug. Redner of Rednersville, and R. C. Sidenius of Belleville, who was the speaker of the day.

Mr. R. C. Sidenius in addressing the gathering, congratulated the members of the Kiwanis club for the interest they were taking in the boys at the Community Camp at Moira Lake. The boys were being well looked after due to the members of the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs. The speaker spoke of the foundation laying in boys' work. The best way to create a good community spirit is to get together and sing community songs. There are different view points on boys' life. The critical period in a boy's life is that between the age of 14 and 21 years. All should be back of boys' work. It is the period in life when the greatest growth of life is manifested. It is a period when impulses are rampant. The boy is very sensitive at this period of his life. Up to the age of 12 years he is a boy who thinks he is the only boy, but between the age of 14 and 21 he learns that there are others who are his equal. A boy at 12 or 13 years yearns for a leader. Nine tenths of boys' habits are settled before a boy is 21 years of age. It is a period of all questions and happy that boy who has his questions answered he asks. Religion is the social binder that ties us together as Canadians.

The boy can only be held by religious service. The boy hates hypocrisy. In concluding his address Mr. Sidenius impressed upon all present to assist in protecting the boys from evil influences.

After some discussion a committee composed of G. Griffin, C. Hanna and H. Holton were appointed to arrange for a sing song at some place in the city.

Accused denied the allegations of Mrs. Rossetti. The services of an interpreter were required to bring out the necessary evidence. At the conclusion the court dismissed the action.

Members of New Ministry Assemble in Initial Official Appearance

INDUCTION YESTERDAY

Preliminary Ceremonies Associated With Oath Taking Are Colorful

Toronto, July 17.—First meeting of the new Ferguson Cabinet was held at 9.30 this morning. The ministers, who took their oaths of office yesterday afternoon, assembled for the first meeting of the new Conservative government with little ceremony.

The question of issuing writs for the bye-elections, arising out of the appointment of nine ministers to office with emoluments attached, was considered. The four Ministers without portfolio are not required to go back to their constituents. The Cabinet also reviewed appointments made by the Drury Government since the election.

Toronto, July 17.—With all the ceremonial and dignity befitting the memorable occasion, the members of the new Conservative Administration of Ontario took their oaths of office at Government House yesterday afternoon. The Drury reign automatically expired, and Ontario is back once more to Conservative Government. The present is the ninth Ontario Administration, the first having been formed by Hon. J. S. Macdonald, July 16, 1867.

Hon. G. Howard Ferguson and his twelve Cabinet colleagues were received by His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor, Col Harry Cockshutt, at Government House. His Honor arrived with Mrs. Ferguson, and the Premier-designate accompanied Mrs. Cockshutt. A number of ladies were present to witness the historic function of administering the oaths, including the following wives of Cabinet Ministers: Mrs. Ferguson, Mrs. Henry, Mrs. Nickle, Mrs. Price, Mrs. Martin, Mrs. Forbes Godfrey, Mrs. Goldie and Mrs. Leeming Carr.

The new Ministers formed a group and first subscribed to the oath of allegiance, then to the one as member of the Executive Council, and third, to the one of their respective offices, Mr. Charles F. Bulmer, clerk of the Executive Council, and Mr. M. Curroy, assistant clerk, reading the necessary forms, while His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor witnessed the signatures.

The Ministers were sworn in in the following order: Hon. G. H. Ferguson, Premier and Minister of Education; Hon. G. S. Henry, Public Works and Highways; W. F. Nickle, Attorney-General; Col. W. H. At the conclusion of the ceremony the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Cockshutt entertained the new Ministers with their wives and friends to afternoon tea.

SPLIT IN BELGIUM THEATENED BY DISPUTE OVER LANGUAGES

By J. W. T. MASON

(Written for the United Press)

New York, July 17.—(United Press). —Disruption of Belgium, like the disruption of Austro-Hungary and Ireland, is being seriously threatened by a violent outbreak of language hostility between the Walloon and Flemish populations. The split is so grave that Belgium is becoming a dual kingdom, divided by language-loyalty to France by one-half of the population and the language-loyalty to the Teutonic races by the other half.

The break in Ireland between the southern and northern counties is being used by many Belgians as an argument for splitting Belgium into two areas, each professing loyalty to a single monarch, but otherwise independent. The Flemish population of Belgium speak a language closely akin to Dutch. The Walloons speak French. French also is the language of all Belgian intellectuals, while Flemish is a provincial tongue, and is not in common use among the Flemish intellectuals themselves.

The sharp division of culture and agriculture between the partisans of the Flemish and Walloon languages has increased the tension. The Flemish population declare an effort is being made to subordinate them as inferiors, to the self-patronizing Walloons.

Another grave complication is the fact that during the war, while the Germans occupied Belgium, they encouraged the Flemish people by every possible means. In return, German propaganda among the Flemish soldiers at the front was successful in many instances, though carefully concealed by the allies at the time. To the charge of disloyalty made against some of the Flemish pro-Germans, the answer is returned that the Walloons didn't do their military duty and left the Flemish troops to do most of the fighting.

There is just enough truth in this charge to make it hurt, for the Walloon area of Belgium was first overrun by the Germans, preventing the retreat of large numbers of Walloons; but allowing the Flemish people to get away.

BAR TO EDUCATION

The Flemish language partisans are now demanding that the curriculum of Ghent University be made Flamish. They declare that large numbers of Flemish people do not undertsand French and are kept from a higher education by the fact that all of the Belgian universities teach only in French.

Ghent is the centre of the Flemish area and it is declared that one-half of the Belgian population is entitled to control at least one of Belgium's four higher institutions of learning.

The Walloons assert it would be fatal to scholarship to make Flemish the language of a great university. Flemish isn't of value to research or intellectual development. Another language is absolutely necessary for proper educational growth, and among Belgians seeking a higher education, French ought to be compulsory.

The Flemish are answering that this attitude represents the superiority complex from which the Walloons are suffering. They declare they will not accept an inferior position for themselves or their culture. So strongly do they feel the slight put upon them by the intellectuals that the Ghent university questions threatens to become the gravest domestic question since Belgium became independent in 1831.

BAPTISTS OF WORLD AT STOCKHOLM

By DON Q. RIDDLE

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Stockholm, Sweden, July 17.—(United Press).—For the first time in eleven years, the Baptists of the world are to hold a world congress and this city has been selected as the place of meeting.

The congress is scheduled to convene here July 21-27. The last world meeting was held in Philadelphia in 1912. Plans were laid there for another world gathering in 1916, but this was cancelled because of the war, and post war developments have made it unwise to hold another congress until this year.

Approximately 750 Americans are planning to be in Stockholm for the convention, many of whom sailed from New York June 30 on the United States liner "America," known as the "official ship." The "America" carried the largest party of any going from the United States, but several other groups of 50 to 100 have been reported.

One of these was the Kungsholm sailing of June 20, when more than 100 delegates, mostly Swedish-Americans, embarked for Gothenburg. Another party of 60, most of whom were from Texas, sailed on the Berengaria, June 26.

THOUSANDS OF DELEGATES

Thousands of delegates are expected from the United States, Canada, South America, Central Africa, New Zealand, Japan, the Phillipine Islands, China, Burma, India, as well as from Great Britain, Sweden, Norway and the countries of Continental Europe, including the new states of Latvia, Esthonia, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Several topics of special interest of Baptist as well as significance to the world at large are scheduled for consideration. Internation peace, in which the League of Nations will doubtless be included, the need of help in Europe and relief work, and especially religious liberty and the separation of Church and State, will receive attention.

A special commission of which Dr. E. Y. Mullins, of Louisville, Ky., is chairman will present a report formulating a pronouncement of Baptist fundamental principles and a restatement of the Baptist position. The late Rev. Dr. R. S. MacArthur, for forty years pastor of Calvary Baptist Church in New York, who died February 23, 1923 was president of the Baptist World Alliance and was to have presided at the Stockholm meeting. A new presiding officer has not yet been appointed.

By special invitation of the Archbishop of Upsala, the congress will assemble for divine worship in the famous Cathedral on Sunday evening, July 22, where the sermon will be preached by the Rev. J. H. Shakespeare, D. D. of London.

MARY MILES MINTER MAKES HIT IN "DRUMS OF FATE"

Pictures of Africa and its jungles are interesting and exciting. Such was the case with the new Paramount picture "Drums of Fate", which had a highly successful showing at Griffin's theatre last night. Mary Miles Minter, supported by Maurice B. Flynn, George Fawcett, Robert Cain Casson Ferguson, Bertram Grassby and Noble Johnson, scored a triumph.

Miss Minter, as Carol Dolliver marries Laurence Teck (M. B. Flynn) an African explorer. Teck is supposedly killed on one of his expeditions and Carol, to please her guardian (George Fawcett), marries David Verne, a young musician. Teck returns to Africa, writing Carol that she may obtain a divorce on the ground of desertion. The news of Teck's return reaches David, and the shock kills him.

Carol goes to Africa in search of her husband. Her safari is attacked by natives, and she is taken a captive to their village. Here she meets Teck and both are happy.

In this production Miss Minter gives the best performance of her career. Charles Maigne, who directed Miss Minter in "The Cowboy and the Lady," also directed this picture. The story is based on a novel by Stephen French Whitman.

A thrilling Western drama with Tom Santschi in the stellar role, Fox News, and a Mack Sennett comedy were also exhibited.

SIR JOHN HENDRIE, former lieutenant-governor of Ontario, is seriously ill in Baltimore.

CLAIR WINSOR AND ELLIOTT DEXTER IN GRIPPING OFFERING

"Grand Larceny", the new photoplay at the Regent theatre, is a Goldwyn offering that presents a phase of modern life that many are all too familiar with. It tells the story of a social parasite who carries on his depredations outside the pale of the law. The robber of property can be put in prison, and the man he has injured can obtain some legal satisfaction. But what balm is there for the man who has been robbed of his wife's love

That is the situation raised in "Grand Larceny," and superbly presented by an excellent cast of Goldwyn players. Clair Winsor, a newcomer to Goldwyn pictures, is the woman who is made a plaything of two men. The role of her husband is played by Elliott Dexter, who also appears for the first time in a Goldwyn picture.

Albert Payson Terhune, the author of "Grand Larceny", has developed his story to an unusual denouement in which both men discover that their prey is not a piece of property that may be bought and sold, but a woman who emerges from her ordeal the mistress of her own soul.

Wallace Worsley directed the picture with much insight for the emotional values to be brought out. The many exquisite interior scenes were made from designs by Cedric Gibbons, the Goldwyn art director.

An interesting Jungle story, amusing Sunshine comedy and novel Hy Mayer Travelogue also proved entertaining.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

LIKE A HOUSE—YOUR DINING ROOM

In comparing that body of yours to a house I spoke of the mouth as being like the vestibule and the stomach like the kitchen. I can only think of the small intestine as being like the dining room of the house.

In the dining room the food that has been carefully prepared in the kitchen is "disposed" of as you sit at your table. Similarly your stomach has prepared your food by dividing it up into very small particles, softening it, and making preliminary changes in its composition.

Now in order to "dispose" of the food your small intestine calls to its aid a couple of juices that throw themselves upon the food immediately it leaves the stomach. These juices make an instantaneous change in the food, and this change enables the blood to draw the materials out of the food that it needs. If anything interferes with these juices which come from the pancreas and liver, then the blood doesn't get just what it needs or perhaps gets some things that are harmful.

You see this small intestine is lined with little processes like the "pile" of carpet, and the cells covering these little processes decide what food is good and what is not. They can actually "select" the kinds of foods as they pass along over their surfaces. Now the point for you and me to remember is this: Although this absorption of the food goes along by itself as it were, the rate at which the absorption takes place can be interfered with in many ways. Trying to eat combinations of food too rich for your particular body, eating too much, any shock or worry, will actually "check" the rate of absorption.

And yet on the other hand it has been found that massage of the abdomen will actually hasten the rate at which the food is filtered or absorbed into the blood.

However, a better scheme than massage for the person in average health is to take simple exercises like the bending and twisting of the trunk. You see you not only "massage" the intestine with your own muscles playing on it, but you develop the abdominal muscles also. This development of these muscles as you know, means an upright carriage and that your organs—intestines included—are in the right position in that body of yours.

Girl, Blind Can See; Deaf; Can Hear

Janesville, Wis., July 17.—(United Press).—In trials extending over a period of two years, Willetta Huggins, blind and deaf inmate of the Wisconsin School for the Blind here, has convinced scores of scientists that she can "hear" through her finger tips and "see" by her sense of touch and smell.

She has repeatedly identified, while heavily blindfolded, the color of yarns, neckties and dresses. She has understood long conversations through the vibrations which have been transmitted along a nine-foot pole. She has proved herself perfect in reading newspaper head-lines with her finger tips.

At a recent convention of the American Association of Workers for the Blind, the 18-year-old girl convinced the 300 delegates that she does hear and see, although blind and deaf. Wearing goggles stuffed with cotton. Willetta failed only twice in a long series of demonstrations to identify the color of yarns. Upon each occasion she corrected herself.

Given the picture of a nude baby to identify and asked how many were in the picture Willetta said:

"One, and I would like to be dressed like that on such a hot night."

She was 100 per cent. accurate in determining the denominations of American currency and traveler's checks.

"Development of a new means of communication is what makes Willetta's case so interesting," said Dr. Thomas Williams, specialist of Evanston, Ill. "After spending 75 hours in experimentation with her, we have just begun to realize her value as a scientific subject."

Willetta's sense of touch is so delicate that there are no instruments which can measure it, Dr. Williams told the delegates at the convention.

The Evanston specialist declared that he was firmly convinced that she is both blind and deaf. He believes that her case is without parallel in medical history.

ONE'S OWN BUSINESS.

(L'Evenement)

It is no business of the Americans if the Chinese only desire to drink strong tea at home or the Dutchmen appreciate a drop of gin or the people of the Argentine like a glass of wine. Nobody wants another man to lay down the law in his own house. Europeans, Asiatics and Latin-Americans will not stand the moral yoke of Puritan reformers much longer than the latter would consent to the ordonnances of Paris and Rome.

If they do not wish to make enemies, to become the subject of contempt and cover themselves with ridicule, Americans should make haste to repeal their latest rulings. They are weirdly mistaken if they think that by such manoeuvres they can make the world a better place or monopolize for their own personal profit all the sea-borne traffic which approaches their shores.

Belleville Charms Interest Ontario Lumber Dealers

The attractions of Belleville are very appropriately acknowledged in an article in the latest issue of the Canada Lumberman, describing the recent outing of the Ontario Retail Lumber Dealers' Association. The following is an excerpt from the article:

The travelling lumbermen and ladies spent night on board the boat in Kingston and at daybreak next morning set sail up the famous Bay of Quinte and en route passed Wolfe Island, the far-famed Lake-on-the Mountain, Glen Island, Deseronto, (the former scene of the lumbering and other activities of the Rathbun Company), the Indian Reservation in the township of Tyendinaga, Northport, Big Island, Massassaga Point, the huge cement works at Point Ann, and many other places of note until Belleville was reached. This was on Sunday morning and a large number attended the city churches, after which Mayor Bennett, J. O. Herity, of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce, Messrs. Angus and Keefer, the Belleville Sash & Door Co., and others, took the delegates for a motor tour around the City-of-the-Bay. The Belleville Country Club, the new buildings of Albert College now in course of construction, and other points of interest were visited.

The stay of four hours in Belleville was so attractive and the time passed so quickly that, when the 'Cape Trinity' departed at 4 o'clock it was found that two or three automobile loads had not returned. It was necessary for the vessel to back up to the wharf again in order to take on the belated sightseers. They had tried to view too much within a limited time and came nearly being separated from the others in the party, or having to catch the boat at Trenton. On arrival at the latter town where Gill & Fortune, lumber merchants, now operate, the business portion was inspected and a fine view obtained of the main section from the more elevated portions of the town. Many years ago Trenton was the scene of the vast operations of the Gilmour Company, which flourished for several decades. Very little now remains of the original mill site and yard. At Trenton also begins the system of that imposing waterway, the Trent Valley Canal, connecting the Bay of Quinte with Lake Simcoe and others in central Ontario.

LOGAN RETURNS TO "SCENE OF LABORS"

Evangelist, Who Left Belleville in Haste, Comes Back

Rev. T. J. Logan, who until Sunday was in charge of the services at the Christian Workers' Tabernacle here and who left the city in haste on Sunday night after a crowd had created a demonstration directed against him, returned to Belleville this morning. Members of his former congregation stated that their former leader had declared his intention of emaining in the city, temporarily at least.

Rev. Logan visited the police station and called upon members of the Tabernacle congregation. There has been no indication that any police or legal action is contemplated as a result of Sunday night's demonstration.

It was stated today by a former member of the Christian Workers that Logan planned to go to Scotland. The informant said that Logan told members of his flock when he came here in June, 1922, that he had come to Canada from Scotland, and that he was in possession of "diplomas" which qualified him for the position of evangelist. He was known here and at Oshawa, where he spent a year, prior to coming to Belleville, as the "Irish Evangelist."

He came here in 1922 to conduct an eight-weeks' revival campaign. It is reported that Logan did not go to Trenton when he left here, but went instead to the home of a farmer on the Trent road.

George Deline informed the Intelligencer today that he did not drive the car in which Logan left the city. Deline said he was requested by the police to procure a car in which to convey Logan out of town and that he requisitioned one, accompanying the driver to the point where Logan and the police were waiting, because the driver did not know the way. Deline asserted he left the car when Logan was transfered to it.

There have been no definite expressions as to the attitude of the Christian Worqers' congregation regarding Logan's retun.

Caution to Motorists

Aware that the summer season brings the peak of automobile travel and increased highway hazards, the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce has issued a warning to motorists.

The cautions total seven:

1. Would you willingly injure a child?
2. Drive reasonably.
3. Put your city on the Safety Honor Roll.
4. Remember you are at times a pedestrian.
5. "After you" is courtesy on the road, as well as in the doorway.
6. Keep the brakes in perfect condition.
7. Haste makes havoc.

A small percentage of the motoring public causes the thousands of motor accidents and fatalities which occur every season. It is the aim of the Ontario Safety League to make Safe Drivers of this havoc-making minority.

THEIR BEST CAREER

(Los Angeles Times)

Newspaper inquiry centered upon the sweet girl graduates indicates that 70 per cent of the college girls still consider matrimony as their best career. As between the home and an independent life in the business world 70 percent prefer the home with its children and lace curtains. Some figure that they can have both children and a career, but a majority of them prefer home life to a career—if they must decide between them.

Asked what they thought was wrong with the average young man, a good many of the fair graduates announced that he was all right. To those who found fault his outstanding failing was his conceit. Most of the girls agreed that there was too much conversation about flappers. They said that the social flapper was not vastly different from their grandmothers at the same age. A jazzy gasoline environment may have colored her life, but her heart was the same. The responses to the questionnaires would indicate that the college girl is still safe and sane.

SPORTING SKITS

Speaking of Umpires the Cobourg paper says: "One of the bad marks against the Central Ontario League this year has been the umpiring, and of the lot who have officiated here only Alex. Kay, of Peterboro, can be said to have earned the money paid him. The rest of President Dedman's staff are poor excuses. It has not been in the games that Cobourg has lost, but where they have won, that the decisions have been shown so poorly, and if the league is to be a success, there will have to be a set of competent umpires. A poor umpire, one who tries to "even up," gets any game into a series of turmoils that frequently results in unpleasant episodes, and that is what caused the jangle here Saturday. One thing that the league can be assured, and that is that the police force of Cobourg will give the official protection, and anyone who attempts an assault will be properly dealt with.

WAR ON TOY BALLOON

Los Angeles (United Press).—The toy balloon man is about to become extinct here. The City Council has passed an ordinance prohibiting the sale of toy balloons if filled with inflammable or explosive gas. Many children, it is said, have been injured by the explosion of this variety of baloon.

Searchlights to Guide U. S. Mail Air Pilots

Schenectady, July 17.—(United Press)—Thirty-seven searchlights to be installed along the "after dark section" of the trans-continental airplane mail route, to be established by the post-office department this summer, have just been shipped by the General Electric Company from its plant here to various places between Chicago and Cheyenne, Wyo. Each one of these lights has a rated illumination intensity of 5,300,000 candlepower.

These searchlights will constitute the beacon posts of the night by which the postal airplane pilots will be guided over the entire 800 miles of the night air route. At each town where the lights are to be placed an emergency landing field will be located, scientifically illuminated, to be used by the pilots if a landing is necessary.

Each light will be mounted on a steel tower 51 feet high, and will be operated automatically, by electric motors. The beams from these lights will illuminate an aerial path across Illinois, Iowa and Nebraska to the southeast corner of Wyoming.

Says Blonde in U. S. Faces Extinction

Chicago, July 17.—(United Press.)—The blonde, with the "large, baby-blue eyes," is going the way of the American buffalo, Dr. Harry C. Paul, optometrist, declared to-day.

Soon she will be a rarity in the United States, if she does not wear glasses that screen out the destructive ultra-violet and infra-red rays of sunlight, he said.

"It's because of the intense light in this latitude. Pigment protects the retina by screening out destructive light rays, and the blonde, with not enough pigment for our intense light, suffers accordingly."

The blonde, Dr. Paul pointed out, comes from northern Europe, where the light is much softer than in this country. The brunette hailed originally from the southern climes, and in the United States she has a distinct advantage over her fair-haired sister.

"The only thing that the blue-eyed baby-doll can do is wear glasses." Dr. Paul continued. "She can wear smoked glasses or a special glass invented by Sir Williams Crookes, inventor of the X-ray.

"But can you imagine a blue-eyed flapper trying to practice her wiles through smoked glasses?"

Scientists recommend a daily half dozen to aid blondes. They are:

Roll your eyes.

Look up from your work frequently.

Give your eyes plenty of fresh air.

Look at green grass, flowers and the blue sky.

Sit up straight.

Bathe the eyes in cold water when tired.

THE PETERBORO WAY

The community spirit evidenced in Peterboro is well worthy of emulation. In a news item, describing the park established at the site of the city's new filtration plant, the Peterboro Examiner says:

Beautiful shade trees, rolling green lawns, pretty terraces and interesting environment mark the new park which has been laid out for the citizens of Peterboro under the direction of Ross L. Dobbin, Waterworks superintendent. Very few have yet discovered this restful retreat, which is part of the property of the filteration plant, and parallels the river as far north as the pumping station.

In its present condition it makes a perfect camping place for an after noon's quietness for older people or a wholesome romp for the children. It is free, open twenty-four hours a day, has a pretty picket fence to keep children off the road, and is only a short walk from the end of the car line.

The gateway is always open to automobiles, and for those who walk from the end of the car line there is a smaller gateway giving access directly to the best spot for partaking of a picnic lunch. A giant elm spreads its shade over a corner of the larger terrace, and an apple tree not far away is laden with green apples, which give promise of improving as the summer progresses.

Belleville has an opportunity to outdo Peterboro and could in time become noted for the beauty of its parks.

DOLLAR WHEAT

Back in the "nineties" before the era of automobiles and before tractors and other motor-driven farm machinery had become commonly available "Dollar Wheat" was the slogan of the western grain farmer.

Dollar wheat, of course, meant a market price of $1.00 per bushel for the wheat sold by the farmer.

Wheat prices in the period between 1890 and 1900 often "soared" tantalizingly near the dollar mark, but invariably retreated several points when the grain was ready for market. But it was the hope of Dollar Wheat that spurred the farmer on in his work, buoyed his hopes and give him courage to endure the hardships and reverses, which played a conspicuous part in the western farm life of that period.

In those days the farmer literally "earned his bread by the sweat of his brow". Grain binders and harvesters had not wholly ceased to be novelties and self-feeding grain separators had not come into general use. Increase in the wealth of the grain farmer was due, as it is today, chiefly to advances in land values. The margins of profit were small.

Yet the values of all commodities were relatively low. A serviceable suit of clothes could be purchased in the average general store for $12 to $15. These suits would wear well,, too, frequently serving the wearer as his "best" suit for several seasons. A pair of shoes seldom brought more than $4, the average price being $3.00. Food costs remained at a corresponding level and hence Dollar Wheat meant a substantial value to the farmer of the "nineties."

The great grain farming industry of the Canadian West was in an embryonic stage, wheat raising in the West being confined chiefly to Manitoba, Eastern Saskatchewan and the Western States.

With the advent in the rural districts, of the automobile, motor-driven machinery, the telephone and other modern conveniences during the first decade of the twentieth century, farming, in the west especially, acquired a new aspect. Privations were lessened and the farmer and his family were brought into more intimate contract with "city-life."

During the period, 1900—1914, commodity prices steadily rose, the farmer's overhead increased, but prices of grain and other farm products slowly, although frequently tardily, mounted to keep pace with other costs. Depressions occurred, to be sure, but normal levels were soon regained.

This condition existed at the outset of the World War. Soon, however, prices began to pyramid, farm prices shot skyward and land values in established sections rose by leaps and bounds. It was not until at least two years after the close of the war that a downward movement became evident. Farm products began to drop, but other commodities stubbornly clung to war-time levels. It was not until farm products had fallen appreciably, that other prices began to evidence a perceptible downward tendency.

Foreseeing this, agricultural leaders during the past few years have bent their efforts toward stabilizing farm products values. Farm bureaus have been organized, grain boards and pools have been established and farm blocs have been formed in provincial legislatures and in the Dominion Parliament.

Yet here we are again with Dollar Wheat just above the price watermark. In the present instance, the situation is particularly distressing. With other values, in many instances, still abnormally high, the present day grain farmer is in a worse plight than was his predecessor of the "nineties".

The aim of the champions of the farmer in economic movements and in the political field has been ostensibly to protect farm product values from the influences of market gambling and prize juggling, but little appears to have been accomplished.

Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Dominion Minister of Agriculture, in a post-mortem treatise on the accomplishments of the recent Dominion Parliament session, asserts that the farmer has been materially benefited by legislation passed. He cites the adjustment of freight rates and the work of the Royal Grain Commission as examples of beneficial gestures in the interest of the farmer. The value of these activities can be ganged by present conditions.

The question of "a square deal for the farmer" should not be permitted to remain the pet subject of long-haired, theorizing economists or a political shuttle-cock. It is a paramount national issue, a subject which demands the study and conscientious service of Canada's most stalwart statesman. Fluctuations in farming conditions directly affect the entire economic and financial structure of the nation. Large yields and ridiculously low prices is an old story. The time for a new era in agricultural economics is at hand.

By The Side Of The Road

Mrs. Emma C. Bergdoll, mother of the notorious Grover Bergdoll, America's draft-dodging ace, wants a passport to make a voyage to Switzerland to visit her son.

Mrs. Bergdoll explains that Grover doesn't know she's coming and says she wants to "walk in on him and surprise him." That's what American secret service men have been wanting to do for a long time.

They should give her a passport and then park her in delightful Ellis Island when she seeks to re-enter the United States.

A sergeant in the French Army, named Rascalou, recently won a lottery prize of a million francs. Lucky Rascal, you!

A coke worker in Fayette county, Pennsylvania, has purchased an airplane, in which he proposes to ride to and from his daily toil. Sounds like the dream of a person associated with another kind of "coke."

Mr. Drury is still strong for "broadening out" but many a fashionable matron beyond the sylph-like period, is "stoutly" opposed to his views.

If present conditions continue certain medical colleges may find it advisable to establish "mixed drink" courses.

China proposes to purchase some second-hand airplanes. Surely, they're "up in the air" often enough over there now. But still with second-hand airplanes they will get back to earth quickly enough when they do get up in the air.

They can make hard cider in the States now, but they can't drink it. That's alright. Those who make it probably want to sell it. Prohibition intoxicants, like the peddlar's razors, are made to sell.

Times do change. Two hundred years ago, the Chinese Emperor would have remained secure from harm within the walls of the Forbidden City. Now at the first hint of danger, he scrambles over the sacred structure, which is little more imposing today than an ordinary garden wall.

ON TAKING OFFENCE

APPALLING POSSIBILITY

(London Morning Post)

"Great critics, like great lawyers, thrive on good wine. Without wine there may, indeed, be no law and no criticism—an appalling possibility to contemplate. The exigencies of modern life may compel us to avoid wine, and even beer, in the daytime; that is all the more reason why we should not permit Pussyfoot to invade our privacy at and after the one meal where leisure is still possible."

AIRSHIP UNIT.

Canada has tried to take her share in the burden of empire by providing a local navy, with not very satisfactory results. Should Canada alter her form of imperial contribution and provide an airship unit for work with the fleet her money would be spent to much better effect.

She has the only helium supply at present located in the Empire. Situated between the Atlantic and the Pacific, she is in a position to switch her air power from one ocean to the other in forty-eight hours for the assistance of the fleets operating in those waters.

GENUINE OPTIMISTS

(Detroit Free Press)

As is usual when a great volcano begins to erupt and bury farms and villages, the question why people risk lives and fortunes in such regions is being asked in connection with the eruption of Mt. Etna. There is a continuous history of eruptions from Etna running back to the fourth century before the Christian era. Single eruptions have been known to take as many as 60,000 lives and cities on the slopes of the mountain have been destroyed and rebuilt time after time.

But against that record of peril and destruction stands the fact that there is a zone of rich land several miles wide making a girdle ninety miles long around the base of Etna, while Catania, on the side of the mountain where it slopes down into the Mediterranean, is so well situated that it continues to be a prosperous city of more than 200,000, despite its liability to occasional visitations of molten rock.

The most of this rich region always escapes when Etna's inward fire breaks loose, so the people remain and take the risk. It is a pleasant place to live, and the chance that the next lava flow will go some other way is always good.

CLEAN MINDS IN SOUND BODIES.

(Buffalo Courier)

Though it is hoped that we shall never account for the winning of an actual Waterloo by the training our youth receives on municipal playgrounds, these fields for baseball and other sports appear to be destined to perform just as useful service, in building up our citizens of the future. Clean minds in sound bodies are as good an asset as any country has, and the records of playground associations show that this unity is resulting from the public recreation grounds.

Prevent Forest Fires

THERE were 1021 forest fires reported in Ontario last season. The vigilance of the fire rangers kept 53 per cent. of these down to a size not exceeding five acres. But yet the total area burned was over 346,000 acres—equal to a strip of forest one mile wide from Toronto to Cochrane.

Of the total number, only 52 were lightning fires. In other words, out of every 100 fires, 59 fires were due to man's carelessness and were preventable.

Accordingly, the problem of forest protection in Ontario calls for the co-operation of the whole citizenship of the Province. If reasonable care be exercised by everyone in the woods to prevent the start of fire, our forests will be safe. Railway officials, campers, prospectors, lumber firms, settlers, construction firms—all can help by being careful of fire in the woods, and by joining hands with the press, the leaders of public opinion, and the business men of Ontario, in prompting educational propaganda to reduce forest fires.

DEMAND REFORM IN RACETRACK BETTING

By Paul R. Mallon, United Press Staff Correspondent.

New York, July 17.—The cry is being set up by reformers for eradication of the "betting evil."

The "betting evil" is the gambling being done at racetracks throughout the country. In this age of civilization no such condition should be tolerated, they say.

Maryland and Kentucky have recognized the betting evil and have government regulations. Betting is done openly and the state gets a substantial tax. In neither of these states is there any income tax levied on the salaries of workers. But there is in New York.

The politicians of New York and Illinois and some other states have sidestepped the issue. At tracks in and around New York there is in practice what is known as "oral betting." The state law prohibits any betting whatever, but it has been so long since a bookmaker was arrested for violating that law that nobody seems to recall it.

Nobody in New York or Chicago believes that anyone is going to pay up to $5 entrance fee, merely to watch a few ponies run around the track.

As long as there is horse racing there will be betting. The authorities of New York state, just as in some other states, know that "oral betting" is being openly conducted at the tracks every afternoon.

The politicians of New York are afraid to remedy the conditions of crookedness caused by failure to recognize betting and install pari-mutuel machines as they have in Maryland and Kentucky.

They tell the reformers: "See, we have a law prohibiting betting; we have wiped out the betting evil."

But they know that betting is going on and they could arrest hundreds every afternoon, if they wished. But that would incite the race fans to vote against them.

Hence they permit the great farce to go on—playing both ends against the public.

If the reformers want to correct the "betting evil" they will have the backing of every racing fan in the United States, except the bookmakers, who are getting rich off the present conditions.

If the parimutuel machines were installed in New York tracks and the betting taken out of the hands of irresponsible bookmakers, the workers of New York state would not have to pay an income tax on their salaries.

If the reformers have an honest desire to correct the evil of betting on horse races, they can force the matter to an issue and make the politicians either abolish horse racing or conduct it properly.

Marble Shooting As a Major Sport

By JAS. T. KOLBERT
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
(Who reported the championship contests at Atlantic City for the United Press.)

New York, July 17—(United Press)—Marble shooting, long regarded as "just one of those boys' games," is taking on a new dignity—the dignity of a national institution. It is only a matter of time before it ranks in interest with the major sports of the country.

One year ago several newspapers conducted marble tournaments. Some 50,000 boys participated.

This year 40 newspapers, many of them metropolitan dailies, staged contests, and a rough estimate placed the number of participants at 500,000.

Last year no effort was made to crown a world champion. It was felt that the comparatively few cities and players involved could hardly be called representative. But this year the contests were pointed toward the world title.

All the ceremony and much of the enthusiasm and interest of an outstanding major athletic event surrounded the meeting of the 40 city marble champions for the world's championship on the sands of Atlantic City during the closing days of June.

When Harlin McCoy, 14, of Columbus, Ohio, took four out of six games from Sammy Schneider, diminutive 11-year-old marble star from St. Louis thereby winning the coveted championship, he gave the boys of America a new mark to shoot at. For this is something distinctly their own. They do not have to share it with grown-ups. Only boys under 15 may participate.

All of the participants in this year's contest are normal school boys, such as may be found in any public school or in any gathering of boys. The city champions were distinguished from their unsuccessful rivals by a somewhat higher intelligence, the power to concentrate and better self-control.

Sammy Schneider, a disciple of Coue, repeated the famous formula and talked of "the will to win"; others had rabbits' feet, pieces of shell old coins and the other magic trinkets of the boy world.

The winner, however, won by virtue of an unerring thumb. McCoy has an absolute contempt for fetishes and superstition. On the day before the finals he purposely walked under a ladder.

Tears were freely shed by some of the losers, who fought a courageous battle, tight-lipped and determined to the last, but were unable to stifle the tears of disappointment.

Sammy was the favorite in the betting. The amazing skill he displayed up to the finals was amazing. He won his way through with clock-like regularity, even taking a game from the champion in the semi-finals. Bets ranging from $1 to $800 were made on the boardwalk, the beach and the hotels. One theatrical man made the $800 bet on Sammy to win. One man stopped Sammy and announced he would give him $100 if he won the title.

Thousands of persons witnessed the matches daily. Promoters of the national tournament believe that next year nearly 100 cities will be represented. Reports indicate a steadily growing interest among the boys of the nation, and expectations are for more than 1,000,000 boys to participate.

The promoters believe that within three years the marble championship will be a recognized institution, and that most of the boys old enough to hold a marble will be fighting it out for the crown.

"Marble shooting gives the boys something to do that occupies the time ordinarily used for doing the things they ought not to do," one of the editors foremost in promoting the marble tournament explained.

Great Military Railroad to be Built Across Sahara Desert

France Has Gigantic Plan to Bring Her Dusky Army Recruits in at the Back Door.

By JOHN O'BRIEN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)
(Copyright, 1923 by United Press)

Paris, July 17.—(United Press).—Construction of a great military railroad across the Sahara, something like the Arizona Desert, only about ten times as wide, is now being studied by experts of the French war office and a project calling for the expenditure of several hundred million dollars will shortly be laid before the Chamber of Deputies.

The importance of the railroad, apart from its commercial advantages, lies in the fact that south of the Sahara is the French Congo, inhabited by many millions of dusky sons of the jungle, from which the colonial contingent of the French army is for the most part recruited. At present it takes about two months to bring the annual recruits to France for training. With the projected line the time would be reduced to about a week.

After long discussion the consensus of military opinion seems to have decided in favor of a line running straight down from Colomb Bechar, in Algeria, to the bend of the River Niger, east of Timbuctoo. This decision was arrived at in order to avoid the disadvantage of a railroad running close to Spanish territory on the west coast of Africa, or one bordering Italian territory in Tripoli. France wants a railroad all to herself, running entirely through French owned or controlled territory.

AIRPLANES AND CATERPILLARS

Surveys made by Gen. Estienne and more recently by engineers who accompanied the "caterpillar" automobile expedition across the desert will be utilized. Gen. Estienne is about to undertake another expedition in the district of Kanadsa, in the Hoggar region, where coal mines have just been discovered, to see whether it would be worth while to have the line pass through that part of the Sahara. He will utilize airplanes as well as "caterpillar" cars in his investigations.

A direct line across the Sahara would be about two thousand miles long. In case certain regions which give fair promise of commercial advantages are taken in the road would be five hundred miles or so longer.

The River Niger would be crossed at Tosaye, 150 miles east of Timbuctoo, and the southern terminus of the road is to be at Wagadugu, the centre of a fertile region inhabited by seven million people. It is hoped to be able to develop these black men into valuable assets in commercial undertakings as well as man power in case of a new war.

Just as Bismarck and the military leaders of the German empire forced the engineers engaged on railroad schemes to subordinate business to strategy, the prime movers in this scheme for a Sahara railroad are looking chiefly to its productivity as a means of replenishing the ranks of the army. It will have commercial advantages, too, but they are secondary.

"No!" exclaimed the other. "We shall have to wait for the lawyer now."

PICNIC PAPERS.

The flow'rs of the Springtime are dotting the woods
With color that's gorgeous and glowing;
And little skunk cabbages, rearing their hoods
Have long been awakened and growing.
But alas for the flow'r that may chance to appeal
To a party of folk in an automobile.

The shadbush and lilac are loaded with blooms,
Ubiquitous zephyrs perfuming;
The maples and chestnuts are flaunting their plumes,
And, somewhere, the dogwoods are blooming,
Which people bring home in their loaded sedans,
Simply leaving in trade littered papers and cans.

The trees are decked out in the newest of gowns,
The bushes are proud of their dresses;
The willows are nodding their tresses.
But picnickers always improve on the scene
By livening up the monotonous green.

AN HONEST BOY

"Blackberry shortcake and cream!"
Said Don, "That's the food for a dream!"
"You bet it sounds great;
I scarcely can wait,"
Said Doug, with a hungry-eyed gleam.

* * *

"Come on, Doug, let's go berrying," Donald cried, grabbing two shining pails from their hooks in the pantry. "I know where there are just loads of swell ones. We'll get enough for a shortcake for dinner."

"Yum, yum," said Douglas, curling up his tongue in anticipation. "Blackberry shortcake and cream! I could eat a bushel." The twins hurried down the lane, swinging their empty pails. They soon came to a fine patch of berries that Donald remembered having seen from a distance. It was even better than he had supposed. No one had picked there yet that season. The bushes hung heavy with the big, black, juicy fruit.

"Gee, isn't this great?" Douglas cried, as he set to work. After that, only the musical "thump, thump" of the berries, hitting the bottom of the buckets, broke the silence. Soon even that was heard no longer. It took very little time to cover the bottoms, where the berries were so abundant.

They quickly worked around the clump, gathering only the best. Their pails were nearly full when, suddenly, both boys stopped. There, right in front of them, was a large sign. "Positively No Trespassing" it declared in bold letters.

The twins crouched low behind the bushes, their eyes big with fright. "What are we going to do?" gasped Doug. "You're always getting us into some kind of a scrape," he added. "We'd better beat it before we get caught."

"But what will we do with the berries? We can't steal them."

"Well, we can't fasten them back on the bushes, can we And it would be silly to leave them here to spoil. Besides, we didn't see their old sign until after we had picked them, and I want a shortcake."

"All right, if you're a thief. But I'm going to take mine right up there to the house and give them to the owner. They belong to him," said Donald. Douglas grumbled that Don was crazy as he followed him to the farm house. However, he ate as many berries as he could on the way.

"We've just been looking for two honest boys like you to pick our berries," declared the jovial-faced farmer. "We'll pay you for all you pick. And, Mother," he turned to his wife, "what do you think about a nice blackberry shortcake for supper and two husky pickers to help us eat it?"

HAWKLIKE TERROR OF THE SKIES

By Chas. McCann, United Press Staff Correspondent.

London, July 17.—An aerial battering-ram, that will swoop down like a hawk from the skies to prey upon slow-moving "troop planes" and transports, is being constructed secretly in England, according to newspaper reports.

Described as the most fearful air weapon conceived, the new plane is to be a heavily armored, steel-nosed air-ram, a combination of airplane and javelin, which at the direction of its pilot would rush down to destroy larger, slower aircraft transporting soldiers or munitions.

The new machine is designed for use with the air leviathans that will act as mother planes to small battle flyers.

Its only weapon is to be a knife-like prow to disable its adversaries. It is a one-man affair.

The pilot will watch for enemy planes, and when one has been sighted detach himself from the mother ship and drop at tremendous speed. When certain of hitting his target, he will move a lever that will cause the wings to fold back under cover of the prow. After the blow has been struck, it is intended that equilibrium shall be restored by means of a peculiar rudder arrangement and a powerful engine that will operate previously-shielded air-screws. Then the wings are to be unfolded and the flight back to the mother ship begun.

The air-ram would not usually strike at the body of an airplane, but the wings, hoping to disable it.

Air experts say that a weapon against it must be sought indirectly—that the mother plane must be disabled.

But the fact that these are planned to fly at tremendous heights, out of the danger of attack, complicates the problem and leaves the air-ram the prospective terror of the skies.

Two-Minute Tours

Sofia, capital of Bulgaria, and recently in the limelight because of the coup d'etat that replaced the peasant government, is a city 500 years under subjection to Turkey. During all that time it was a struggling unkempt bunch of narrow, crooked alleys, mud and dust, with squalid buildings little better than hovels.

With Russia's liberation of Bulgaria From Turkey in 1887, however, a new era began for Sofia. Alleys were transformed into streets and boulevards, while modern structures crowded out ramshackle huts. The trend was steadily from the medieval village that represented the Turkish ideas of less important towns, to the modern western city. Recently freed Bulgaria set her face definitely toward the west and especially gave expression to her longings to be considered European through the reshaping of her capital.

The start toward the new Sofia was made by the first ruler of the principality, Alexander of Battenberg, who built the royal palace. Much more rapid transformations were made under King or Tsar Ferdinand during the last years of the nineteenth century.

Sofia was founded by Trajan as the Roman colony of Serdica, or Sardica, about the beginning of the second century after Christ. The Bulgarians later called the place Sredetz, but by the fourteenth century it had taken the name of an old church, which, in a ruined condition, exists to-day. This Bulgarian church was often called "Saint Sophia".

PATRICIA BRENT SPINSTER

ANONYMOUS

Patricia smiled, conscious that the improvement in her looks was not a little due to Lady Peggy and her bright chatter.

"You've become such a gad-about, Mr. Triggs, that you forget poor me," she said.

"Oh no, he doesn't," broke in Lady Peggy, "he's always talking about you. Whenever I try to make love to him he always drags you in. I've really come to hate you, Patricia, because you seem to come between me and all my love affairs. Oh! I wish we could find Peter," cried Lady Peggy suddenly, "that would complete the party."

Patricia hoped fervently that they would not come across Bowen. She saw that it would make the situation extremely awkward.

'And now we must dash off for lunch," cried Lady Peggy, "or we shall be late and Daddy will be cross." She shook hands with Mr. Triggs, blew a kiss at Lady Tanagra and, before Patricia knew it, she was walking with Lady Peggy and Elton in the direction of Curzon Street.

Patricia was in some awe of meeting the Duke of Gayton. Hitherto she had encountered only the smaller political fry, friends and acquaintances of Mr. Bonsor, who had always treated her as a secretary. The Duke had been in the first Coalition Ministry, but had been forced to retire on account of a series illness.

"Look whom I've caught!" cried Lady Peggy as she bubbled into the dinning-room, where some twelve or fourteen guests were in process of seating themselves at the table. 'Look whom I've caught! Daddy," she addressed herself to a small clean-shaven man, with beetling eyebrows and a broad, intellectual head. "It's the captor of Peter the Hermit."

"You must come and sit by me," he said in a particularly sweet and well-modulated voice, which seemed to give the lie to the somewhat stern and searching appearance of his eyes "Peter is a great friend of mine."

Patricia was conscious of flushed cheeks as she took her seat next to the Duke. Later she discovered that these Sunday luncheons were always strictly informal, no order of precedence being observed. Young and old were invited, grave and gay. The talk was sometimes frivolous, sometimes serious. Sunday was, in the Duke's eyes, a day of rest, and conversation must follow the path of least resistance.

Whilst the other guests were seating themselves, Patricia looked round the table with interest. She recognised a well-known Cabinet Minister and a bishop. Next to her on the other side was a man with hungry, searching eyes, whose fair hair was cropped so closely to his head as to be almost invisible Later she learned that he was a Serbian patriot, who had prepared a wonderful map of New Serbia, which he always carried with him. Elton had described it as "the map that passeth all understanding."

It embraced Bulgaria, Roumania Transylvania, Montenegro, Greece, Albania, Bessarabia, and portions of other countries.

"It's a sort of game", Lady Peggy explained later. "If you can escape without his having produced his map, then you've won," she added.

At first the Duke devoted himself to Patricia, obviously with the object of placing her at her ease. She was fascinated by his voice. He had the reputation of being a brilliant talker; but Patricia decided that even if he had possessed the most common-place ideas, he would have invested them with a peculiar interest on account of the musical tones in which he expressed them. He was a man of remarkable dignity of bearing, and Patricia decided that she would be able to feel very much afraid of him.

In answer to a question Patricia explained that she had only met Lady Peggy that morning.

"And what do you think of Peggy's whirlwind methods?" asked the Duke with a smile.

"I think they are quite irrestible," replied Patricia.

"She makes friends quicker than anyone I ever met and keeps them longer," said the Duke.

Presently the conversation turned on the question of the re-afforestation of Great Britain, springing out of a remark made by the Cabinet Minister to the Duke. Soon the two, aided by a number of other guests, were deep in the intricacies of politics. During a lull in the conversation the Duke turned to Patricia.

"I am afraid this is all very dull for you, Miss Brent," he remarked pleasantly.

"On the contrary," said Patricia, "I am greatly interested."

"Interested in politics?" questioned the Duke, with a tinge of surprise in his voice.

Gradually Patricia found herself drawn into the conversation. For the first time in her life she found the study of Blue Books and her knowledge of statistics of advantage and use. The Cabinet Minister leaned forward with interest. The other guests had ceased their local conversation to listen to what it was that was so clearly interesting their host and the Cabinet Minister. In Patricia's remarks there was the freshness of unconvention. The old political war-horses saw how things appeared to an intelligent contemporary who was not trammelled by tradition and parliamentary procedure.

(This is a little act that any group of girls can put on. It may be enlarged and added to, as you like. The actresses are six hat models, the saleslady, and three customers. It's fun for a dress-up play.

The scene is a millinery shop. A couple of counters are made of dry-goods boxes. The backs are knocked off and holes are made through the top. The hat models can sit inside the boxes and poke their heads through the holes. When scarfs are draped around the bases, they seem just heads on the counters.)

First Model: Not a hat's been sold today!

Second Model: The season's slack, I heard her say.

Third Model: I'd like to help. I wish we could.

Fourth Model: Let's show our heads are more than wood.

Fifth Model: I'll tell you what—let's smile, be gay.

Sixth Model: Attract the customers that way.

First Model: This looking solemn doesn't pay.

Saleslady: This one is very simple, still—

Customer (sees model wink): Oh, oh—I think—I must be ill!
I thought I saw (Model smiles)—I feel so queer;
I think I'd better go, my dear. (Hurries out).

(Enter fussy girl.)

Fussy Girl:
I'd like to see a dainty hat,
With frills and ribbons, all of that.

Saleslady: Now here's the very thing you wish. (Takes hat off model and turns to girl. The models all smile at the girl.)

Girl:
I shouldn't have had that other dish—
Too much ice cream, and all that cake—
Oh, I've a call I have to make!
(Rushes out.)

Saleslady: Now, what on earth! (Old lady enters.) You wish a hat?

Old Lady:
Of course I do. Let's look at that.
My land! My eyes! I knew that sun—
I don't believe I'll look at one.
(Leaves hurriedly.)

Saleslady (Catches model smiling): This awful heat! Oh, dear, my head! (Puts down hat and leaves the room.)

Models:
I'd like to find the one who said
It pays to smile. Now look at that Seems like she'll never sell a hat!

Milwaukee, Wis.—"I had a bad pain in my left side and I could not lift anything heavy without having a backache. I tried different things. Then I saw Lydia E. The Half-sock Appears With Hot Weather

By HEDDA HOYT

Fashion Editor of the United Press
(Written for the United Press)

New York, N. Y., July 17 (United Press).—

Said the little black shoe
To the little black sock
"Our marital bliss
Has sure struck a rock."

It looks as though the black shoe and the black stocking were permanently divorced. One never sees the together nowadays at smart social gatherings. Dame Fashion, who is a wise old gossip, says that the black patent shoe has fallen for the charms of the blond stocking.

Pale grays, sand, mauve, cinnamon and flesh stockings are worn so generally nowadays that when one wears a black stocking one is marked as old fashioned. Even red, blue and green shoes favor these pale stockings in preference to matching shades. Gray and tan shoes, however, are worn with matching shades of hosiery. The white stocking is doing its best to keep up with the light colored hosiery by using embroidered and open-worked clocks.

The Half-Sock Appears

The warm weather has made the half-sock more popular than ever this summer. The half-sock is far cooler than the stocking and with the double elastic band about the top it is held securely about the calf of the leg, thus doing away with the need of garters. This year we find them in the sheerest of silk for about one-third of the price of long stockings of the same material.

Half-socks are no longer considered a flapper style, but a common style for hot weather to be worn by matrons as well as by girls.

White hats are being worn about town in increasing numbers. White maline draped turbans are worn for evening wear with white frocks. For street wear one sees both large and small hats of white horsehair.

* * *

Chinese embroideries are seen on many of the newest of fall frocks. Mandarin styles are said to be gaining in popularity while the Egyptian tendencies are fast disappearing.

* * *

Younger Misses are wearing bouffant organdies for evening wear over slips of contrasting shades of organdy. Most of these frocks are sleeveless with rounding necks and long slender bodices. Many of them are very simple having no trimming save a narrow velvet sash of matching shade.

* * *

Paris advocates the hip length for cape for fall. It will be worn both as a separate garment and as a three piece costume combination.

* * *

A favorite silhoutte at the French races is the three-tiered taffeta frock with the sleeveless, snug-fitting bodice which the off-the-shoulder neckline. The three tiers which form the skirt are bordered in bands of wide velvet ribbon. Wide bracelets which fit snugly about the wrists and short throat necklaces are worn with frocks of this type.

* * *

Lingerie frocks and frocks of ecru lace are worn over changeable taffeta slips at the smart club houses about New York these warm afternoons. Rose and yellow are popular shades for these underslips and the sash which accompanies the lingerie frocks usually matches the shade of the slip.

"HECTOR" CELEBRATION AT PICTOU DRAWS MANY NOTABLE VISITORS

Vessel, Which Transported Pioneers to Nova Scotia 150 Years Ago, is Center of Interest

Pictou, N.S., July 17.—The "Hector" has weighed anchor and has swung out into the full stream. This quiet little town on the southern extremity of the Northumberland Straits is the mecca for thousands from all parts of Canada and the United States. Every train over the Canadian National lines running into the town carries many extra coaches filled with passengers. Warships loom grey up on the harbor, motors pour into the town, and the "white tent city" on the hill beside the town is filling up rapidly.

Among the most prominent visitors to the "Hector" celebration which opened Sunday, are a party of newspaper men from the press gallery at Ottawa, who with their wives and families left Ottawa by special Canadian National Railway train on Friday. It was Friday, the 13th; there were 13 cars on the train and 13 members in the party when the train left the capitol though more were picked up along the way, but only good fortune has attended them so far. In the newspaper party is Mr. T. M. Fraser of the press gallery. He is more than a visitor; he is an honored son, for his great-great-grandfather came over on the "Hector" and his great-grandfather was the first child to be born to the pioneers after they made their landing at Pictou, 150 years ago. Mr. Fraser is accompanied by his wife and daughter Mona. Mr. H. E. M. Chisholm is also another visitor of more than usual consequence, Mr. Chisholm, a veteran of the press gallery, who has with him a silver stirrup drinking cup which was carried through the battle of Colodden and presented to Mr. Chisholm's great-great-grandfather by Roderick Mackenzie of the Tower of Fairbairn, chief of the Clan Mackenzie, for services rendered him during that battle. Highlanders to whom this cup has been shown here have been most enthusiastic and declare it one of the finest specimens of cup they have ever seen.

The newspaper party are honored guests. Everything is being done for their comfort. Officers of the Canadian National Railways have combined with civic officials to make their stay a pleasant one, and they have been given the freedom of all the clubs and other places of recreation.

This morning Lord Byng and Lady Byng and the vice-regal party arrived by special Canadian National railway train. Governor Cox and gubernatorial party from Massachusetts will also arrive by special train over the Canadian National Railways and all Pictou county is assembling here to do them honor. British, American and French warships are steaming toward Pictou harbor and today Pictou will witness an event of almost equal importance to that which occurred here 150 years ago when that sailing ship "Hector" discharged the first Scottish pioneer settlers of Canada.

The press gallery party, who are being cared for in their special car parked beside the Canadian National railway station, include Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Fraser, Miss Mona Fraser, Mr and Mrs. H. E. M. Chisholm, Miss Marion Chisholm, Mr. P. A. Daviault, Mlle, Juliet Daviault, Mlle. Gabrielle Davaiult, Mr. J. A. Fortier, Mlle. Henriette Fortier, Mrs. Chas. Bishop, Mr. Wm. Eaton and Mr. G. H. Lash, publicity representative, Canadian National Railways, Montreal. Mr. Eaton is from Saskatoon. The remainder of the party are from Ottawa.

DRESS HINTS

By HEDDA HOYT.

Fashion Editor of the United Press (Written for the United Press)

New York, N. Y., July 17.—(United Press).—NO GIRL WEARS HER HEART on her sleeve these days. But the practical tennis girl wears her cute little handkerchief on her sleeve. She has a tiny pocket made in the sleeve of her crepe de chene dress, a dress, whose chief attractions are color, short sleeves, batteau neck and full skirt gathered into an elastic waistband.

Color has taken possession of the tennis court, as white has been declared taboo because it is unbecoming to most girls and because it soils so easily. The head bandeau matches the shade of the tennis frock this year and not hats are worn except, now and then, a soft little affair of white felt. Yellow, tan, jade and old blue are favorite colors of the tennis girl.

FEW YEARS AGO no one would have planned a trip without first planning the traveling suit and purchasing several white blouses. While the traveling suit is still worn by winter tourists it has no place in the wardrobe of the summer traveler. Nothing could be more uncomfortable than a tailored suit with a white blouse for traveling in the summer months. One needs clothes with loose lines and with sleeves loose at the armpits and the dark one-piece dress has both of these qualifications. Of course there must be an accompanying jacquette, a short cape or a topcoat as the wearer prefers.

For an ocean voyage should recommend a topcoat, two dark gowns, one of silk crepe and one of a light weight cloth material, two dinner dresses of lace or some equally uncrushable material, a dancing frock and two sport jacquettes with separate skirts for morning wear. This list can be augmented according to one's pocketbook but it should prove adequate for any ocean voyage of ten days.

• • •

FELT HATS ARE considered quite as smart if not smarter than straw hats this summer, but if the warm days continue it is hoped that we will see less of them. Any hat that heats the head is undesirable as nothing does more toward making the hair fall out. We are all inclined to lose hair more freely in summer than in winter months and we should do all that we can to prevent unnecessary falling of the hair.

IT IS TIME TO DROP THE HANDKERCHIEF! Aren't we getting just a little weary of the handkerchief trim? Dresses with handkerchief collars, hats with handkerchiefs drapes, blouses made of handkerchiefs, sashes made of handkerchiefs, bathing suits made of them, bathing turbans of them. Isn't it time to "drop the handkerchief?" Let it go back to it's old original duty!

SAVAGE MOVIE FANS.

How Pictures Shown to South Sea Islanders Affected Them.

The South Seas still are a great source of unusual experiences. Present-day tourists who visit the islands return with fascinating tales of coral seas, picturesque, palm-fringed shores and happy languid natives who once were cannibals. One of the most interesting accounts comes from Mr. Martin Johnson, who in "Asia" tells how the natives of Malekula acted when he showed some motion pictures that at considerable risk of his life he had taken of them two years before.

"The beach," he says "was crowded with savages; Nagapate, the chief, and all his men were there. I had thought that they would be curious about my machinery, but they scarcely looked at it; they merely squatted on the sands and clutched their guns tight in their hands. I saw that the show must begin at once; so I tested everything. Since I had no idea how the savages would act, I stationed armed guards at both sides of the screen and round the projector. Immediately afterwards the show began.

"A bright square flashed on the screen; then came a hundred feet of titles. The natives divided their attention between the strange letters and the rays of white light that passed above their heads. Jabbering all the while, they looked forward and upward and back toward me. Then suddenly Nagapate's face appeared on the screen. A great roar of "Nagapate!" went up.

"Amid an uproar that made it impossible for me to make myself heard I ran the reel to the end. Virtually every savage pictured on the screen was in the audience; in two years they had changed scarcely at all. As each man appeared they called out his name and laughed and shouted with joy. Among the figures that came and went on the screen was that of a man who had been dead a year. The natives were awe-struck. My magic could bring back the dead! Midway in the performance I turned the projection handle over to one of my own natives and joined the audience. My wife was crying with excitement; and there was a lump in my throat. When the show was ended a great shout went up, and the savages gathered in groups to discuss the performance, for all the world as people do 'back home.'

"While we packed our apparatus the natives cut bamboo and made rude torches. When all were ready they lighted their torches at the fire that burned on the beach and then set off in single file by the trail. My wife and I sat on the beach and watched the flares as they filed up hill and down dale the long eight miles to their village. The night was so dark that we could not see anything except the string of lights that wound up the hill like a fiery serpent. The head of the serpent disappeared over the top of the hill. Half an hour or so later the tail slowly wriggled out of sight."

Collective Singing.

"Collective singing is a civilizing influence that must be restored," writes Mr. R. Machell in "The Theosophical Path."

"Collective listening to music is not the same; for an individual, in listening may easily forget the other listeners, and enjoy the music selfishly; whereas in collective singing there must be co-operation. And, as the voices blend in harmony or unison, something awakens in the hearts of the singers, as well as of the hearers; a bond of union is established, that is a permanent civilizing influence, as well as a temporary joy. And when very large bodies of people sing together there is born a spirit of enthusiasm that is an awakening power, releasing in the song the soul of the assembly.

"The song becomes what it originally was said to be, magic, that could evoke spiritual powers in men unconscious of the forces that lies latent in humanity. Those who have assisted at a Handel festival with some three thousand singers singing the 'Hallelujah' chorus, will understand the power of song to arouse unusual qualities as well as deep emotions. And similar results can be attained in smaller groups according to the quality and character of the association."

Speaking to the Canadian Club in London, Eng., recently, E. W. Discovery of Oil May Start Alaskan Stampede

U. S. Geologist Certain Northland Has Gigantic Pools—Strike May Come While President Is Close

By FRASER EDWARDS

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, July 16.—(United Press)—Oil—magic builder of modern empires—may soon send the sons of those hardy Argonauts, who took the gold trail of '98, stampeding to Alaska.

President Harding, now among the scenes of the gold rush, tales of which thrilled him as a country editor, may be on the ground to witness the first big strike of oil in paying quantities.

Alaskan oil fields, so lately shunned, barren wastes, now teem with life and feverish activity, Geological Survey officials told the United Press. News of gushers, rivaling those of Texas and Oklahoma oil fields, is expected any day.

The Standard Oil Company and other large independent concerns are drilling wells in regions believed by their experts to contain gigantic oil pools. More than 750 oil companies and individuals have drilling permits in Alaskan fields. They are driving their men to the utmost while good weather prevails.

EXPECT MAD STAMPEDE

Once oil in quantities is struck, officials predict a mad stampede to reach and stake claims in the new El Dorado. Owing to the hazardous sea route that must be followed to reach the Cild Bay fields, on the Alaskan peninsula,—one of the richest oil regions—they said the spectacular Klondike rush over frozen trails would pale into insignificance for reckless disregard for human life.

Officials forsee a scramble for passage from Seattle. Old vessels driven beyond their speed in the wild race to Alaska would run the risk of bursting boilers. And then the battel for leaky, unseaworthy craft at any price to reach Cold Bay from Kodiak, the nearest safe harbor, 100 miles across the open sea.

Oil may do for the little Aleut village of Kanatak, with a winter population og 30 to 40 natives, what gold did for Dawson, Circle City and Nome—make it a city overnight. It may do even more. It may give civilization an impetus northward, which will result in the conquering of Alaska.

CERTAIN ALASKA HAS OIL

So certain are Geological Survey officials that Alaska holds a great oil reservoir that they have already issued a warning to investors to be cautious in plunging on wildcat oil stock, before investigating the character of the company. They see the danger of the stock swindler, who seizes upon all new fields as a means of mulcting the public of millions of dollars by the same method used by scores of alleged stock jobbers recently indicted in New York and Texas.

Although oil was one of the first minerals found in Alaska, difficulties of development delayed attempts at exploitation until the signing of the oil-leasing law of 1920. That was a signal for a small stampede. Over 3,000,000 acres of oil lands are now under lease.

Not to be left out in the cold when oil is struck, the government has set aside 35,000 square miles within the Arctic Circle as a naval oil reserve for six years. Surveys of that land are now under way.

SPEECH IGNORED IN BALDWIN NOTE

London, July 17.—Premier Stanley Baldwin referred in the Commons yesterday to the forthcoming note to Germany, announcing a copy would be sent to the United States.

The note is complete save for finishing touches to be administered by the cabinet.

British hopes of bringing about negotiations for a reparations settlement with Germany is considered here to have had a serious setback during the week-end by reason of the speech which Premier Poincare of France delivered at Senlis Sunday. Nevertheless, the British officials, who returned to Downing street early yesterday to resume the task of drafting a reply to the latest German offer were not sure that the situation was as gloomy as the news from Paris seemed to indicate.

The British attitude, as reflected in official circles, is that the least said about the Poincare address the better.

ABBE'S WRITING FORGED, IS CLAIM

Montreal, July 17.—"Simulated forgery," is the way G. A. Field, an expert in handwriting, called as a witness for the defense in the trial of the Rev. J. Adelarde Delorme, described the writing on the package in which the watch worn by Raoul on the day of his death was sent to the police. Mr. Field testified that in his opinion the writing was not done by the accused but by someone who forged or simulated his writing.

An interesting point not brought out before was Mr. Field's testimony to the effect that he found no trace on the wrapper of the package containing the watch that it had gone through the mails; there was no postmark of any kind on the wrapper nor any postage stamp, he testified.

Considerable progress was made with the hearing of the defense witnesses, particularly as the cross-examination by the crown was in all cases very short.

MRS. SMALL TO AID THEATRE COMPANY

Montreal, July 17.—Despite the fact that the estate of Ambrose J. Small is the holder of all the second preferred stock amounting to $675,000 in the Trans-Canada Theatres, Limited, Mrs. Small offered to advance more money to enable the firm to carry on operations, it was announced at the meeting of shareholders in Montreal before it was decided to voluntarily wind up the company and appoint Robert E. Meagher, provisional liquidator. It was understood, however, that, in consideration of this offer, a sum of $40,000 would have to be spent on renovating the Grand Opera House in Toronto.

U.F.O. Want Farmer on Hydro Commission

Toronto, July 17.—In executive circles of the U. F. O. it is learned that the appointment of Mr. J. R. Cooke to the Hydro Electric Power Commission is regarded as favorable to the interests of the rural communities. It is also stated that should the new government, which was sworn yesterday, place a member on the commission who is regarded as distinctly representative of the municipalities, the United Farmers of Ontario will press for the appointment of a five-man commission and for the appointment of some person who has one strong eye at least turned to the wants of the rural communities.

Kingston, Ont., July 17.—Mr. and Mrs. Lewis and party of Toronto, while motoring to Kingston met with a mishap at Westbrook, seven miles west of here. A bee stung one of the ladies of the party and her misfortune drew the attention of Mr. Lewis from the wheel, with the result that the car was ditched and badly smashed up. The occupants escaped with a few bruises and a shaking up, but this did not prevent them taking the steamer for Montreal.

President's Ambition to be a Farmer

By L. C. MARTIN

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

On tour with President Harding—July 17.—(By mail to United Press).—President Harding has revealed his ambition. Speaking in one of his intimate rear platform talks in Idaho to a group of farmer folk, Mr. Harding said:

"I want to own a farm. I've got one now, too. Some day I want to go there, and put a sign on the fence that will say: 'This farm belongs to W. G. H. Anybody that doesn't agree with me can drive right on and jump in the river'."

Mountain trout, caught by Idaho sportsmen, were presented to the Presidential party at Pocatello and Idaho Falls. Were they good? The answer was unanimous.

Just after Mr. Harding's train entered Idaho it stopped at Cache Junction. An Indian, who has heard that the Great White Chief was aboard, applied for free passage on the train to Salt Lake City. Told that it was going in the opposite direction, he then announced he wanted to go to Pocatello. He was turned over to Secretary of Interior Wor, who gave him 50 cents and put him on a train following the President's.

Mrs. Harding has been presented with enough flowers to date to keep a hospital supplied for a month. Her one regret is that she cannot send these blooms to soldier hospitals before they wither in the heat of the train. Whenever possible, she has sent the flowers to such hospitals.

President Harding has been just as much "on the job" while on his special train as though he were in Washington. A telephone in his car has kept him in constant touch with the White House. Whenever his train stops in a town for more than half an hour, the telephone is "plugged in" and in two minutes he can be talking to the White House.

Similar telephones have been provided for the press association correspondents. Members of the press accompanying Mr. Harding have called their homes in Washington, getting the connections within two minutes of putting in the call. This two-minute record was made from Salt Lake City, and the newspaper man who put in the call could hear his wife in their Washington home as plainly as though he had been sitting in the room talking to her.

America's children, as seen in the west, prove an inspiring spectacle to the President, Mrs. Harding and others in their party. The western country is chock full of boys and girls, and they are all healthy. Somehow, they look like Americans, too. The President said the other day the sight of these children was the greatest reassurance he ever had received of the security of America's future.

THE RITCHIE COMPANY LIMITED

Furniture Prices Will Remain Up, Dealers Admit

Chicago, July 17 (United Press).—Furniture of the Tudor, Queen Ann and Louis XVI periods will continue to hold popular favor for American bedrooms, while that of the Italian and Grecian periods will be used for living rooms, according to the Chicago Furniture Manufacturers Association, holding its summer show here.

The new year will bring out no changes in American furniture; no outstanding features are evident; as at most exhibitions in the past. Creation of "freak" furniture is also on the decline. The only contribution along this line is a "King Tut" table, made of mahogany and with Egyptian lines and legs representing old Egyptian vases.

No decrease from the present price of furniture is in sight. The cost of plate glass and other materials caused an increase ranging in some lines as high as 25 per cent, last spring, and there is little likelihood of a return to the old level within the next year, officials of the show said.

Chicago is now the leading furniture market in the world, the value of the annual output totalling $50,000,000.

SPORT GOSSIP

At a park where no admission fee could be charged the Cobourg baseball club a few years ago depended upon the generosity of their patrons and passed the hat. That year with a home brew team they didn't win a game but finished the season with a good balance in the Treasury. This year under a fifty cent admission and with several victories to their credit they have been obliged to withdraw and have notified Secretary Nott to this effect. There is a reason. If you dare mention professionalism the O.B.A. immediately calls an indignation meeting. Probably the O.B.A., since they object to our reference, can explain the reason of this marked change in conditions at Cobourg—Guide.

NUMEROUS CONTESTS

Merrymakers Prove Eager Contestants — Nearly 2000 Attend Picnic

The annual G. T. R. picnic under the auspices of B. of L. E. Division was held yesterday at Massassaga Park. The weather was ideal and nearly 2,000 swarmed the park. The steamer, Brockville, had been chartered for the occasion and carried a full load on every trip. From nine o'clock yesterday morning until twelve o'clock last night the boat made hourly trips to the point. A fine program of sports had been arranged and were carried out on the lawn to the rear of the hotel.

There was races for tots of four years and also contests for the oldest person on the grounds. The contests were staged under the direction of Mr. John Fitzgerald. He was assisted by other Grand Trunk committeemen all of whom worked hard for the success of the affair. A number of races created a great deal of amusement, especially for the spectators. Prospects of valuable awards made the entry list large in each race. The dinghy race occasioned a great deal of interest and was finally won by Nomad, sailed by Mrs. J. G. Caldwell, who wins the B. of L. E. trophy. The acquatic sports were run off under the direction of "King" Rodgers.

BALL GAME

The baseball diamond was the scene of a lively exhibition when the local Grand Trunk Intermediates of the Trent Valley League vanquished the York Nationals of Toronto by a score of 5-3. The Nationals are rated as one of the niftiest teams in East Toronto and great credit is due the local ball tossers. Errors were numerous at times but the opposing twirlers tightened in the pinches. Peeny Mills of the Grand Trunk Seniors umpired.

Batting order:—

Nationals—Robinson, l.f; Spence, r.f; Delaney, 2.b; Terry, 1b; Spence, 3b; Heckson, c; Gibbie, s.s; Matteson c.f; Gordon, p.

The baby show held on the veranda of the hotel was won by Miss Marion Clarke, whose smiles captivated the judges. About ten babies were entered in the contest. Mr. and Mrs. Farthing of Danforth Y. M. C. A. together with Mr. Delaney acted as judges.

The dance hall was filled to capacity last evening. The regular orchestra furnished delightful music. The dance broke up about midnight.

Mr. F. A. Pinkston the lively secytreas. was here, there and everywhere keeping things moving. He is indeed the right man in the right place. Jack Hall as chairman was on the job all day long.

COL, PONTON RECEIVES PORTRAIT OF SELF FROM MASONIC FELLOWS

Retiring Grand Master Receives Ovation at Toronto Meeting—Gift is Innovation.

Toronto, July 19.—An innovation was introduced at the Grand Lodge communication A.F. & A.M. here yesterday when M.W. Bro. F. W. Harcourt, D.G.M., sprang a surprise on Grand Master Ponton, by asking him to vacate the chair for a brief period. This he did, and V.W. Bro. J. W. Drope, D.G.M., assumed command.

Then V.W. Bro. John O'Connor stepped to the front, and addressing the Grand Master, said the brethren recognized that Col. Ponton was a master of the English language and that his period of office had been an inspiration to the craft. For that reason they had decided to ask him to accept a portrait of himself. Simultaneously Bro. O'Connor drew aside the curtains that had hidden the portrait up to this time and it revealed a splendid and life-like deposition of the Grand Master from the brush of J. W. L. Forster.

The silence had been tense during the few moments of Bro. O'Connor's remarks, but everyone rose and cheered so lustily that the Grand Master was visibly affected. Recovering his wonted composure, he conveyed his heartfelt appreciation of the honors bestowed upon him and expressed the wish that the portrait should be added to the collection of Past Grand Masters in the gallery at the Yonge street Temple.

Toronto, July 19.—The sixty-eighth annual communication of the Grand Lodge of Canada, A.F. & A.M., in the province of Ontario, was formally opened at Massey Hall at eleven o'clock yesterday morning with most worshipful Brother Col. W. N. Ponton, K.C., grand master, on the throne. Prior to the official opening an address of welcome was tendered to grand lodge by Brother C. Alfred Maguire, mayor on behalf of the city of Toronto.

Grand Master Ponton presented a statistical table showed that in the year 1855 there were forty-one lodges in Ontario, but no records of the number of members were available, and never have been. The first record of members is given for the year 1875, when the members numbered 15,034 and had total assets of $59,000. Last year's report shows that there are 100,900 members, with total assets of $425,000, and grand lodge benevolence amounting to $91,000, as compared with $5,606 in 1875. During the year 32 sets of by-laws were considered and 145 amendments proposed, of which 131 were approved. The number of dispensations amount to 675, and 25 new lodges have been consecrated, of which Grand Master Ponton personally officiated at 17. Nineteen lodges were dedicated during the year.

The Grand Master expressed the opinion that at an early date there should be erected by Grand Lodge a central temple where Grand Lodge could meet and where the business could be conducted without inconvenience. Every temple in the jurisdiction had become inadequate from a standpoint of accommodation.

A still closer bond of friendship between the United States and Canada, and that Canada is an indispensable part of the British Empire were keynotes of addresses given by the distinguished visitors who spoke at the Grand Lodge A.F. & A.M. banquet yesterday afternoon. More than a thousand Masons from every part of Ontario, Canada, the United States and the British Isles attended.

Before the close of the banquet Col. Ponton, K.C., the grand master asked for three cheers for three of the oldest Masons, in point of service, in Canada and to whom, he said, "we were all mere boys." They were W. R. White, Sir John Gibson and E. T. Malone.

Among the visitors seated at the head table were Rt. Hon. Lord Ampthill, Pro. Grand Master of the United Grand Lodge of England; Lt.-Col. H. Hamilton-Wedderburn, O.B.E., Past Deputy Grand Director of Ceremonies; A. E. Carlyle, Past Asst. and Grand Director of Ceremonies; Dudley H. Ferrell, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts; Abraham M. Beitler, Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Pennsylvania; Col. W. N. Ponton, K.C., J. H. Burrett; Thos. Forsyth; F. J. Perry; F. W. Hilton; R. B. Dargavel, Percy M. Lee, F. H. Harcourt, W. M. Logan, John A. Rowland and W. Drope.

Freight Conductor Stratton of This City Dies From Injuries Sustained While on Duty

Last evening, at Collins Bay, on the line of the old G.T.R., now Canadian National railway, Mr. Gordon Stratton of this city, a freight train conductor, sustained injuries which proved fatal. As far as can be ascertained, the train he was in charge of stopped near Collins Bay owing to some trouble, and Conductor Stratton was on the track when the train backed up and he was knocked down and severely injured. Death resulted shortly after. The body was subsequently taken to Kingston and was sent to Belleville today and taken to his late home, 325 Foster avenue.

The victim of the unfortunate accident was the eldest son of Mrs. Richard Stratton of Ottawa, formerly of Brockville. He was born at the latter place in the year 1885, where he resided until two years ago, when he came to Belleville to make his home. For some years Mr. Stratton had been engaged in railroad work and was a general favorite with railway men. Deceased was a member of Salem Lodge A.F.&A.M. of Brockville and was also a Shriner. In addition he was a member of the Ontario Railway Conductors. In religion Mr. Stratton was a Methodist. The body will be taken to Brockville for interment.

OUTINGS ENJOYED BY ORGANIZATIONS

Tiger Tires Company Employees at 12 O'clock Point and Nurses at Hillcrest

The employees of the Tiger Tire Company yesterday commemorated the civic holiday by holding a picnic at Twelve o'Clock Point. Three busses and a number of cars conveyed the party to the Point, which is an ideal place for such an event. There were about 85 in attendance. During the afternoon a programme of sports was carried out, which included a baseball match. A number indulged in dancing. The affair was most enjoyable in its detail and all arrived safely home at a reasonable hour.

A number of the nurses in connection with the Belleville hospital accompanied by a few friends yesterday enjoyed an outing at Hillcrest, Prince Edward county. This is a popular summer resort situated off Consecon Lake. During the afternoon, dancing and swimming were indulged in. Altogether it was a most pleasing affair.

CAR HITS 'PHONE POLE; GIRL HURT

Mrs. Jane Weech, of New Toronto, Killed Near Brighton

TO VISIT HERE

William Craig Formerly of this City, Driver of Car

Mrs. Jane Weech, of new Toronto was killed and her daughter, Hilda Weech, aged 13, was seriously injured at 4.30 p.m. yesterday when the automobile in which they were riding collided with a telephone pole four miles west of Brighton.

William Craig, whose mother, Mrs. M. J. Craig, resides on Lingham St., here, was the driver of the car, he explained that he lost control of the machine when he encountered a section of newly gravelled road. The girl suffered a fracture of the right leg and was severely bruised. She was removed to the General Hospital here.

The body of Mrs. Weech was taken to an undertaking establishment at Colborne. The dead woman's husband arrived at Colborne from New Toronto last night.

Mrs. Weech and her daughter were enroute to Belleville to visit at the home of Mrs. Craig. The Belleville G.T.R. ambulance brought the girl and Craig, who was considerably bruised, to Belleville. The latter went to the home of his mother.

Mr. Craig, the driver of the car is well-known in Belleville and was for some time employed in the G.T.R. round house here, but of late had been residing in New Toronto.

After the accident Miss Weech was taken to the home of Mr. Clayton Peacock, which is located near the scene of the affair. It was here that first aid was given the sufferer, and was later removed to this city.

Mr. Craig explained to-day that he was travelling at a speed of about 13 miles an hour when the accident occurred. The car skidded suddenly when the newly gravelled road was reached, he said, and swerved into a telephone pole, breaking it off about 3 feet from the ground. The pole struck Mrs. Weech who was seated in the front seat on the right side of Craig. She was instantly killed. The daughter was seated directly behind her mother in the rear seat.

Mrs. Weech's husband, Frank Weech, is assistant foreman in the Mimico G.T.R. Shops. A brother of Mrs. Weech William, of New Toronto, arrived here to-day, and visited his niece in the hospital, the extent of whose injuries have not been fully determined. An X-ray examination was made to-day. The body of Mrs. Weech was later taken to New Toronto.

The party left New Toronto, where Mr. Craig is in the employ of the G.T.R. at 10 a.m. yesterday, Toronto time, and was due here about 5-30. Mrs. Weech and her daughter had often visited at the Craig home and were known here. No announcement regarding an inquest has been made. Mrs. Weech was about 40 years old.

Firms File Action Involving Agreement

Toronto, July 19.—The Ontario & Finance Corporation, Limited, of Toronto, and the Chemical Products Limited, of Trenton, have entered action at Osgoode Hall against the Canadian Industrial Bond Corporation, Limited, Thomas P. Birchall, Robert J. Cluff and William J. Cluff, to recover payment of moneys alleged due under certain agreements.

Under an agreement of December 10, 1920, it is alleged the Canada Industrial Bond Co., agreed to purchase from the Ontario & Quebec Finance Corporation, 2,400 preference shares of Chemical Products Limited, for $240,000. The individual defendants, it is alleged, guaranteed the payment of the purchase price. The moneys payable were assigned by the Ontario and Quebec Finance Corporation to Chemical Products Limited.

An order for the sale of certain stocks deposited by the individual defendants as security for the carrying out of their guarantee is asked, the proceeds to be applied on account of the plaintiff's claim.

Excerpts From Address of Col. Ponton Delivered at Masonic Convention

Following are excerpts from the speech delivered by Col. W. N. Ponton, K.C., retiring Grand Master, at the Grand Lodge Communication, A.F. & A.M., in session at Toronto.

My Brethren,—

For two years, bearing the compasses of the Grand Master, I have passed in and out among you—in many of your houses—in all your Masonic Districts, in contact personal had by correspondence with all your Lodges, endeavoring to interpret and to communicate the unifying and vivifying spirit of our co-operative Commonwealth of Craftsmanship. Only once in a man's life can such a proud privilege—such a glad and golden opportunity be enjoyed—and I do trust that I have expressed by thought and action—by zest and zeal, by night and day, my grateful appreciation of your gracious kindness, my deep and abiding sense of the responsibilities as well as the productive potentialities of this Historic Office. Men may come and men may go, but Grand Masters go on forever, links in the golden chain of unity and continuity with which our Great Brotherhood of Solidarity cements and should adorn the earth. With all humility I recognise how little done, how much to do, but that little has been done with a will and has been made possible by the generous and assidous aid given ungrudgingly by my Official family—the Rulers of the Craft in office, and by those who have preceded and are to follow me, to whom I here and now extend by warmest thanks for their encouragement and helpfulness. We have carried on and handed down together, and we trust that the seeds sown, falling on the fertile and healthy soil fo human hearts, may germinate in flowers and fruit manifold—just as the days multiply into years—the tributary streams into rivers.

Masonry has a body as well as a soul, and our responsible officials charged with the administration of our "temporalities" are expected, and have proved, to be diligent in business as well as fervent in spirit, and true to their trust. The following statistical table of progressive increase in material blessings will prove interesting and give us confidence. We do not tabulate our resources with vulgar pride, but with a sincere sense of gratitude for that wealth of men and material and experience that enables us to do good and enjoy life together—part of the mission and ministry of Masonry.

In 1903 when the present Grand Treasurer took charge, the 373 lodges in the 20 districts had a membership of 30,485, who paid into the Grand Lodge aproximately $23,000 as compared with approximately $127,000 during the past year—a six-fold increase. Investments then were $93,000 now $405,000—a more than four-fold increase. Not a dollar has been lost in investments nor has a dollar been paid for procuring same.

19 Lodges have been dedicated during the year, at several of which it was my privilege to preside. I do not wish to discriminate, but would suggest that any Lodge Officers who contemplate building a New Temple (the House Beautiful) or remodelling an old one, should visit and inspect Brockville, Windsor, and Grimsby, which are perfect in their appointments and provision for both the social and ceremonial needs of the Brethren.

DANCING

In speaking of social needs. I do not include dance halls. The "light fantastic" has been a bit over-done in certain Lodges—do we Masons needs to 'chase the hours with flying feet?"

The Kingston Brethren have also recently purchased a stately edifice, which they are fitting out on a fine architectural scale for the uses and comfort of the Craft. It should be the ambition of all Lodges—or groups of Lodges—to own their own Masonic Home and feel the joy of a precious possession—the pride of permanent proprietorship. . . .

NEW LODGES

There are now on the register of Grand Lodge 536 Lodges, of which 522 are warranted and 14 are under Dispensation. Of these, four have had their Dispensation continued from 1922. I have granted Dispensations for the Institution of the following eleven Lodges:—

Birch Cliff, Birch Cliff; Fort Erie, Fort Erie; Adanca, Merritton; Dominion, Ridgeway; Perfection, St. Catharines; North Bay, North Bay; Thunder Bay, Port Arthur; Runnymede, Toronto; Bay of Quinte, Toronto; Lorne, Chapleau; Doric, Kirkland Lake. . .

VIOLATION OF SECRECY

There is a chorus of complaint as to the violation of secrecy and the leakage of transactions of the Lodges through divided allegiance and through thoughtlessness. Many of the gentle, philanthropic and altogether charming Ladies of the Eastern Star know within 24 hours who have been balloted for, what is the fate of candidates, and what the discussions at the meetings. It is not the fault of the Ladies who do not pry and probe, it is the men who unbosom themselves, and who must be disciplined. Brethren, again let it be repeated officially from the Throne that members of the Eastern Star, or any other female Order, dear as they are to us our kith and kin—are not and never can be Masons—and that males who associate themselves in Office with them, in their capacity as Masons and who are chosen as such by reason of their being in good standing in the Third Degree—(which not one outside the Craft has the right to know)—are defying the edict of this Grand Lodge passed at its last annual Communication.

There is too much rushing and grouping and team'ng in Degree Work. There is nothing worse than perfunctory Degree grinding. Degrees should be stately in their rhythmic dignity—and individual in contact. But what can be said of Masters and Past Masters who profess to have given the solemn Third Degree to each of 4 candidates in 15 minutes. The mills of God grind slowly. Let us call a halt or the grist will be spoiled by these high powered artists of milling legerdemain. They mean well by are mistaken. God knows we all make mistakes.

DE MOLAY ORDER

The price gift of youth is to be used, not abused or disused, and contact is glorious The Boys themselves invariably furnished the major part of the entertainment, glowed gleefully in the doing of it, and listened patiently and deferentially to the addresses of their elders. There is not universal, though there is general approval of the United States Order of De Molay for boys, which teaches or exemplifies the sevenfold virtues. It behooves us to consider at least whether this Grand Lodge should approve of a similar Canadian Order—omitting perhaps the spectacular degree and pruning and simplifying somewhat.

EDUCATIONAL SIDE

The Educational side of Masonry progresses apace, but why so many Papers and Addresses at Lodge meetings on subjects extraneous to Masonry? There is before us a whole ocean of undiscovered truth—a great uncharted tidal sea Let us honor the Pilots of Research. Let us cultivate intellectual curiosity. Past Masters' Associations and the Masonic Press (ably edited) are doing excellent and not sufficiently appreciated work. Let us support these organs of Craft life and thought. They are links on the anvil and keep us abreast of the times.

Some of the good deeds with which Grand Lodge may be credited this year are (1) The prompt remittance of $1,000 to our flame-stricken Brethren in the North (2) $1,000 to the Grand Lodge of Ireland for special cases. (3) $150 to the Red Cross for Cochrane Typhoid sufferers. (4) Several grants from the Emergency Fund established last year—which has served a very useful purpose. One additional field for the productive philanthropy and public spirit of the Craft is opened up by our Sister Jurisdictions in the West and I suggest that we should follow it by establishing 3 Educational Scholarships in our Provincial University for sons of Masons who [illegible] handicapped by straightened means.

And we Canadians God grant that we always "keep faith with the heritage by more than the word of mouth"—and that as a Highway of Empire—the Empire of a living spirit—and in amity and good will with our neighbors—the other great English speaking and radiant race—a Dominion of Rivers and Lakes and loyal and contented people a mari usque ad mare, we with heart and voice make this final invocation to the Great Architect of the Universe.

"Thus, as to all the earth the rivers' song
Is borne in happy cadences of peace,
And glad, full-volumed tones of joyous might;
So may our nations' anthem, pure and strong,
Proclaim that Canada shall never cease
To be the home of freedom, truth and right."

WORK—THE GREAT STIMULUS

I know that all of us at times feel that there are more beautiful words in our language than the word 'work'.

You have worked hard mentally or physically for some time and the very thought of it is repugnant to you.

At a time like this rest, mental and physical, is indicated and you would be wise to secure it.

But if you have not exercised regularly, a little exercise tires you, you feel sore and stiff, and you conclude that as far as you are concerned exercise is a mistake.

Now what happens?

Well, you call on that body of yours for work, the heart and lungs work faster, and you actually wear out some blood corpuscles. How Nature has an extra supply of blood cells in the bone marrow all ready when you make a sudden call of this kind, and throws them into your blood stream.

Another case you see where nature is just a little ahead of you and of your needs.

Now if you stop taking the exercise after this first attempt, your blood making department very gradually makes up the extra cells to keep in readiness should you ever have another fit and decide to take some exercise.

However, if you decide to take exercise regularly, and go at it every day, it seems to serve notice on the blood making department, and it gets real busy manufacturing blood cells for you in increased amounts. That is why a boxer, wrestler, oarsman, or footballer, soon attains real condition in a few weeks. Exercise seems almost like an electric stimulus on making the machinery turn out more cells.

For instance, a man like Dempsey or Carpentier should get into first class condition in from four to six weeks.

A heavy man like Willard, takes a great deal longer, but only because of the excess of fat which must be removed in addition to putting heart, lungs and blood into condition.

So you see simple regular exercise if only 10 minutes a day demands and receives more new blood cells for your body. It stimulates the factory to turn out a bigger supply in the twenty-four hours.

CANADIAN WHEAT TROUBLES

The following from the New York Times shows a remarkably clear insight in Canadian grain market conditions.

"October wheat has been selling for less than a dollar in Winnipeg. There is much talk about a co-operative handling of the crop in the prairie Provinces. The Canadian Council of Agriculture and divers associations of grain growers are ardent for a "wheat pool." According to an official of the United Farmers of Alberta, there is to be such a pool in that Province, but that isolated and restricted action could have little effect. The two most powerful grain marketers of the Canadian West, the United Grain Growers and the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Company, have conferred through their executives, but politics sticks its ugly nose betwen them, an Ottawa dispatch to The Montreal Gazette tells us:

"It is generally admitted by those intimately acquainted with the West-tween them, an Ottawa dispatch to able of handling at least 80 per cent. of the Western wheat crop could be organized and carried if the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator and agree to work together, but they will not. They are jealous of each other. Premier Dunning of Saskatchewan, who knows as much about the grain-handling business as any one in the West, is convinced that the export departments of these companies could handle the situation and he is prepared to place the credit of the Province at their disposal to see it through. But politics is a factor in the situation, and the very fact that Mr. Dunning favors such a scheme makes some others, influential in the elevator business in that Province, opposed to it, though their opposition is not openly expressed.

"Meanwhile, the Royal Grain Enquiry Commission is eliciting much interesting and some contradictory testimony. Thus at Lethbridge, Alberta, some farmers were sure that a wheat pool would have a tendency to lessen fluctuations and stabilize prices, and that there had been a glut on the market early in the season. "Too much meddling by armchair argicultural experts," said one farmer. Something radically wrong with the marketing system, another testified. Nothing wrong with it, most efficient possible, a miller believed. Then why do the farmers find it so hard to make money on their wheat? Because "the European buyer won't pay the price to which we are entitled", replied the miller. If the European could afford to pay more and freight rates were reduced, the farmers could make money.

"So the troubles of farmers both sides of the border are much alike. A farmer member of the Alberta Legislature said that 25 per cent. of the farmers of Southern Alberta deal in the wheat option market at Winnipeg and put more in their purses by those speculations than by their farm labors. This is mighty curious, if true."

OPPORTUNITY BECKONS

According U. S. immigration statistiscs a notable gain in immigration from Northern and Western European countries was evident during the fiscal year, which ended June 30, last. These statistics show that, except Germany, these countries have almost filled their quotas. The percentage of arrivals, based on t he quota, in the previous fiscal year was 46.4.

In a recent report Commissioner General Husband of the U. S. Iimmigration Department says: "There was a lot of skilled labor among the immigrants and WE KNOW THAT MANY OF THE NORTHERN EUROPEANS WENT WEST TO THE AGRICULTURAL STATES. He explains that the country is on the road to success in gettng back this type of immigrans.

This situation presents an opportunity particularly desirable to Canada. With the influx of Northern and Western Europeans to America greater to-day than it has been at any time during the past 30 years and in view of the fact that most of these people settle in a agricultural diarict it should not be difficult to divert the tide into Western Canada.

During the past quarter century there has been a heavy immigration movement from Southern and Eastern Europe to the United States and Canada. This class, however, usually becomes established in cities and does not put forth the constructive effort which marks the activities of the agriculturalist group. Moreover, immigrants from Southern and Eastern Europe don't, as a rule,, become definitely merged in the citizenry of their adopted country. They seldom absolutely divorce themselves from the associations and influences of their nativity. They frequently return to their native lands with accumulated savings.

On the other hand, those who come from Northern and Western Europe, because of similarity of customs and racial characteristics, readily adapt themselves to conditions in their new homes and become part and parcel of their adapted country.

European nations, as a result of the devastation of war, are sending out calls to their immigrants in other countries to return and aid in the work of reconstruction. Belgium, France and Germany has sent out calls to native sons in other lands.

Now, this fact is of especial signifance to Canada for the reason that U. S. immigration statistics show that the influx of immigrants from the United Kingdom during the past fiscal year was 77,343, compared to 42,670 for the previous year. In coming to Canada these immigrants would not be coming to an adopted country, but would simply become settlers in another part of the British Empire, their original status as British subjects being but nominally altered. Great Britain can spare thousands of her laborers and middle-class citizens. And Canada offers them ample room and a plethora of opportunities. Perhaps the new Ontario Government will find the means to further stimulate immigration to Canada from Grand Britain and Northern and Western Europe.

PRESS OPINIONS

WITH HOLIDAYS COMING.

(Montreal Le Canada)

It is above all among the children that the victims are most numerous; and with the holidays just about to commence, one cannot help asking if the black catalogue of victims of street accidents will not become even longer. It is, and we repeat this injunction at the risk of boring our readers, the duty of the parents to warn their children not to play games on the roadway, where danger is always present through the natural carelessness of children.

It needs the co-operation of all to avoid these frequent tragedies, of parents as well as conductors of vehicles, and of the police who should not permit children to play in the streets.

QUITE POSSIBLE

(Flint Journal)

The whole country is more or less excited about the movement against severe prohibition. So much so, that they forget the larger movement for prohibition. Did it ever occur to you that prohibition of tobacco is far from impossible? Students of mob psychology and mass social movements are in many cases, claiming that tobacco prohibition is an ultimate certainty. Maybe it seems a laughing matter now. But it's only a few years since the idea of national prohibition of alcohol, as a beverage, seemed equally ridiculous.

Tobacco prohibition would have, supporting it, the vast army of ethically-warped who are instinctively opposed to others enjoying anything they themselves personally dislike. Tobacco, however, would be a hard industry to kill. It is grown on four hundred and fifty thousand farms, with two million acres devoted to it. There are over sixty thousand American tobacco factories, employing one hundred eighty-three thousand people. And Uncle Sam collects from this industry three hundred million dollars a year.

SUMMER FURS AGAIN

(Trenton Times)

The Blue Cross society has started a crusade against the wearing of "summer furs" by women. Why oppose only summer furs? Make the crusade general. There is no special reason why furs should be worn at any season of the year by women or men.

Woolen cloaks, overcoats, scarfs and gloves are quite as warm in winter as are furs, and far more healthful and cleanly. The only excuse for wearing them is that owners regard the wearing of skins of animals as a sign of fluence. They are not, when the skunk, the cat, dog, squirrel, rabbit and muskrat furnish them.

But the absurdity of wearing a fur neck-piece when the thermometer registers in the eighties or nineties! It is almost as bad as the slovenly fashion of men going about without suspenders to hold up their trousers, and depending on the sailor's hitch to get them into position occasionally.

The Greatest Service—
The Least Attention

There's no piece of farm equipment that gives so much service over so long a period with so little attention as a good windmill. That's why I recommend the Toronto Self-Oiling Windmill so highly. Lots of Toronto Windmills have given from eighteen to twenty years' service with practically no attention outside an occasional oiling and are still operating satisfactorily every day.

n the Toronto Self-Oiling Windmill all gears operate in a bath of special oil affected by neither heat or cold—every bearing thoroughly and automatically lubricated. New oil is required "only once a year."

If you already own a Toronto Windmill, I can give you this self-oiling feature by merely interchanging the head and using your present wheel. Most Toronto Windmills, too, can be made absolutely self-regulating in operation.

The "Toronto" Tower will stand for a lifetime because it is the heaviest, strongest and best-braced one built for any windmill.

PETERBORO DEFEATS RAILROADERS, 6-5 IN HARD-FOUGHT TEN-INNING SESSION

VICTORY PUTS LIFT-LOCKERS ON TOP RUNG IN SECOND SCHEDULE

Belleville Chalks of Two Errors—Peterboro Has Three—Locals Secure 11 Hits—Petes 9.

The Belleville Grand Trunks lost a hard-fought game to Peterboro by a score of 6-5 at the agricultural field yesterday which went ten innings before the issue was decided. It was a great game to win and a hard one to lose. Coming into the ninth everything looked rosy with the home team one run up, but the Petes managed to tie up the score and shoved the winning run across in the tenth.

The Petes grabbed an early lead but in the sixth the home team shoved four big runs across, but they were not enough to cinch the game as the northerners came back with a vengeance. Two or three bad breaks, coupled with bad throwing to the bases, was responsible for the defeat. When Johnston's hit in the ninth took a bad bounce, scoring Comoli the break in the game came. Two men were down at the time and Vernon would have made an easy out and the game would have been tucked in the Trunks' bat bag. Collins hit to Harry Mills in the tenth and Meagher covered the bag. The latter made an excusable error but Helson had crossed the plate on the play. The Trunks out-hit the winners 11-9, and Peterboro had three errors while the Trunks were charged with but two misplays.

In both the ninth and the tenth the Trunks got a hit but failed to score the runners. Both Meagher's triple and Weir's single came at an opportune moment to score but no runs were forthcoming. A bunt would have advanced Weir to second and thus made a much better chance of scoring. The shortstop was forced at second and a minute later Jackie Williams hit into a double play and everything was over but the shouting.

Stan. Hagerman had a rather poor day behind the bat and made two or three wild throws which were rather costly. The chunky backstop has a great throwing arm and has a tendency to overthrow the bag, but he is coming along nicely and is an able substitute for "Peeny" Mills.

Yesterday's defeat puts Peterboro at the top of the race, but a defeat on Saturday against Kingston and a local victory against Cobourg will put all three teams on even basis. Yesterday's game meant a great deal to both teams. It was the first time Belleville has been defeated on the home lot in some time.

Jack Oulette started on the mound but was yanked in the tenth with the score tied. It was a bad hole in which to take charge and Jack Williams is credited with the loss. Oulette has been going fairly good up to this point and might have pulled out ahead had he remained in the box. The ex-Greybird has lost some tough games this season, his support wavering at times.

The standing in the second schedule including yesterday's games now is:

	W	L
Peterboro	4	1
Belleville	3	2
Kingston	2	3
Cobourg	1	4

He struck out nine and allowed a like number of scattered hits.

Heckman pitched a nice game, all through the piece. He whiffed ten and gave eleven hits. His bad innings was the sixth, when the Trunks got to him for four runs, on the same number of hits, plus two errors.

Some pretty fielding features were pulled off. Brownscombe, Ross and Meagher were much in the lime-light through their pretty fielding. Both Babe Casey and Weir did some great clouting. Allan Meagher, termed "the luckiest guy in the league", worked hard and was one of the most valuable men on the team yesterday. This boy has been playing great ball all season and has probably not got the credit due him. He has been covering second base in excellent style and now ranks with the best of 'em. We'll hear more from him before the schedule is completed.

Harry Mills played a whale of a game on first. He picked off a number of bad throws with the ease of a veteran. In the eighth the figured prominently in a double play. He injured his ankle, and was given a hand by the crowd when he took his place in the following innings.

Ansaldo made a bad error in the sixth when he bobbled Weir's grounder. Helson pulled a foolish play in the sixth, although it was not entirely his fault. Casey hit into the sun and both Ansaldo and Helson waited at third for the fly. They both failed to see the sphere, and Jack Williams scored when it landed a few feet from third.

Both pitchers issued one base on balls.

Jack Williams' timely triple in the sixth in the sixth scored Weir and Mills. It was a mighty clout and came at the right time.

In the second the visitors scored three runs on one hit, and nary an error. A wild throw to second meant a run.

Jakie was there in all his glory and was the happiest man on the field when the last man was thrown out. The Petes have trimmed the champs only twice in six games, which is an excellent showing for the local team.

Sullivan's umpiring was not as good as usual. Barnes gave first-class service on the bases.

About one thousand fans attended the holiday attraction and were naturally disappointed at the result. Cobourg will bring their rejuvenated team here on Saturday.

COBOURG DECIDES TO STAY IN LEAGUE

Will Play Trunks Here on Saturday

At the meeting held in Peterboro on Tuesday, the Cobourg team altered their stand and decided to remain in the league and play out the schedule. A group of the good sports in Cobourg have taken hold of the situation and are determined that Cobourg shall be represented in the Central League, whether the team wins or loses. This is the real spirit and the team may take on a new lease of life. Their win over Kingston yesterday upset the dope and they may be starting on a rampage and surprise the fans. They will be here Saturday for a game with the Trunks and the latter will have to be right on their toes. A six-team group was proposed had Cobourg dropped out. Several teams refused to adhere to these plans. The Central League race as far as the "Big Four" is concerned is real close and Peterboro's win from the Trunks and Cobourg's victory over Kingston were unexpected victories.

The Trunks have arranged a series with St. Pat's of Ottawa at the Capital and will probably leave Monday morning for Bytown.

SOFT BALL LEAGUE

The new softball league is coming along in great style. The representatives had their first meeting in the Intell. Office on Tuesday night. Four teams were represented at the meeting. If all goes well the schedule will be opened within a week or two. The games will probably be played on St. Michaels and High School Grounds.

It is to be hoped that the following teams will see fit to enter a team in the soft ball-league. Tiger Tire, Shoe Clerks, Grand Trunk Offices, 34th Battery, Printers, Knights of Columbus, Derby Club and the Hydro. Each will please have a representative at the meeting in the Intell. Office tomorrow night.

Officers elected are as follows:—
Hon. Pres.—R. J. E. Graham.

THE HIDDEN WILL

"Children," said Aunt Harriet, "we have just discovered that no one knows where Father kept his will. He has always kept it hidden away somewhere. It was one of his peculiarities that he always kept the hiding place a secret from everyone. He said he would let us know in plenty of time. Of course he never expected to die for years and years." Here Aunt Harriett stopped to wipe her eyes. The children looked at her, their eyes big with excitement.

"We have always suspected that there is a secret hiding place somewhere in this room. Father just the same as told us that there was. Of course the will is there. I want you children to help me find it. If we don't find it, it will be pretty serious. The estate will be divided among all the heirs and no one will ge enough to mention."

It sounded just like a book. The children had never heard of anything so thrilling. They almost knocked each other over in their anxiety to help Aunt Harriet hunt for the hidden will. It was much more exciting than a game. Aunt Harriet even let them open up the backs of the pictures! They tapped and punched every square inch of the room, searching under and behind everything for a hidden spring. But, as Bobby said, there wasn't even a suggestion of a hiding place.

"My, but I'm getting hot," Sarah sighed. "Bobby, please open a window, won't you?"

"Oh, don't bother me," said Bobby. Sarah crossed the room to the window beside Bob. She pushed and rattled the window, but it stuck fast. Finally she called to Fred to help her.

"Can't you let well enough alone," he grumbled, poking under the book shelves. "It's hot in here. Come and hunt for the will. We'll never find it at this rate. You can't get that open." But Sarah was determined to have the window open. At last she budged it a crack.

"Why, look," she cried; "how funny it works." Suddenly the window flew up. Sarah's sharp eyes caught sight of a little spring beneath it. Quickly she bent the window sill back and there before her were the hidden papers.

"Don't you wish you had opened the window now?" she laughed at her brothers. But they only grunted. They were looking in a dazed manner at a roll of bonds. Printed on the back of the package they read: "To the one that finds this secret hiding place."

Mrs. Holmberg Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her

Viking, Alta.—"From the time I was 15 years old I would get such sick feelings in the lower part of my abdomen, followed by cramps and vomiting. This kept me from my work (I help my parents on the farm) as I usually had to go to bed for the rest of the day. Or at times I would have to walk the floor. I suffered in this way until a friend induced me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I have had very satisfactory results so far and am recommending the Vegetable Compound to my friends. I surely am glad I tried it for I feel like a different person now that I don't have these troubles." — ODELIA HOLMBERG, Box 93, Viking, Alberta.

Letters like this establish the merits of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. They tell of the relief from such pains and ailments after taking it.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and today holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills in this country, and thousands of voluntary testimonials prove this fact.

If you doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Cobourg, Ontario, for Mrs. Pinkham's private text-book and learn more about it. C

PATRICIA BRENT SPINSTER

ANONYMOUS

Suddenly Patricia became aware that she had monopolized the coversation and that everyone was listening to her. She flushed and stopped.

"Please go on," said the Cabinet Minister; "don't stop, it's most interesting."

But Patricia had become self-conscious. However, the Duke with great tact picked up the thread, and soon the conversation became general.

As they rose from the table the Duke whispered to Patricia, "Don't hurry away, please, I want to have a chat with you after the others have gone."

As they went to the drawing-room, Lady Peggy came up to Patricia and linking arm in hers, said:

"I'm dreadfully afraid of you now, Patricia. "Why everybody was positively drinking in your words. Where ever did you learn so much?"

"You cannot be secretary to a rising politician," said Patricia with a smile, 'without learning a lot of statistics. I have to read up all sorts of things about pigs and babies and beet-root and street-noises and all sorts of objectionable things."

"What do you think of her Goddy?" cried Lady Peggy to Elton as he joined them.

"I'm afraid she has made me feel very ignorant," replied Elton. "Just as you, Peggy, always make me feel very wise."

In the drawing-room the Serbian attached himself to Patricia and produced his "map of obliteration," as the Duke had once called it, explaining to her at great length how nearly all the towns and cities in Europe were for the most part populated by Serbs.

It was obvious to her, from the respect with which she was treated, that her remarks at luncheon had made a great impression.

When most of the other guests had departed, the Duke walked over to her, and dismissing Peggy, entered into a long conversation on political and parliamentary matters. He was finally interrupted by Lady Peggy.

"Look here, Daddy, if you steal my friends I shall——" she paused, then turning to Elton she said, "What shall I do, Goddy?"

"Well, you might marry and leave him," suggested Elton helpfully.

"That's it. I will marry and leave you all alone, Daddy."

"Cannot we agree to share Miss Brent?" suggested the Duke, smiling at Patricia.

"Isn't he a dear?" enquired Lady of Patricia. "When other men propose to me, and quite a lot have," she added with almost childish simplicity, "I always mentally compare them with Daddy, and then of course I know I don't want them."

"That is my reason, Peggy, for not proposing," said Elton, "I could never enter the lists with the Duke."

"You're a pair of ridiculous children," laughed the Duke.

In response to a murmur from Patricia that she must be going, Lady Peggy insisted that she should first come upstairs and see her den.

The "den" was a room of orderly disorder, which seemed to posses the freshness and charm of its owner. Lady Peggy looked at Patricia, a new respect in her eyes.

"You must be frightfully clever," she said with unaccustomed seriousness. "I wish I were like that. You see I should be more of a companion to Daddy if I were."

"I think you are an ideal companion for him as you are," said Patricia.

"Oh he's so wonderful," said Lary Peggy dreamily. "You know I'm not always such a fool as I appear," she added quite seriously, "and I do sometimes think of other things than frills and flounces and chocolates." Then with a sudden change of mood she cried, "Wasn't it clever of me capturing you to-day? As soon as you're gone Daddy will tell me what he thinks of you, and I shall feel so self important."

As Patricia looked about the room, charmed with its dainty freshness, her eyes lighted upon a large metal tea-tray. Lady Peggy following her gaze cried: "Oh, the magic carpet!"

"The what?" enquired Patricia.

"That's the magic carpet. Come, I'll show you," and seizing it she preceded Patricia to the top of the stairs. "Now sit on it," she cried, "and toboggan down. It's priceless."

"But I couldn't."

"Yes you could. Everybody does," cried Lady Peggy.

Not quite knowing what she was doing Patricia found herself forced down upon the tea-tray, and the next thing she knew was she was speeding down the stairs at a terrific rate.

Just as she arrived in the hall with flushed checks and a flurry of skirts, the door of the library opened and the Duke and Elton came out.

Patricia gathered herself together, and with flaming cheeks and downcast eyes stood like a child expecting rebuke, instead of which the Duke merely smiled. Turning to Elton he remarked:

"So Miss Brent has received her birth certificate."

As he spoke the butler with sedate decorum picked up the tray and carried it into his pantry, as if it were the most ordinary thing in the world for guests to toboggan down the front staircase.

(To be Continued).

A WATERBALL RELAY

Here's a good water game for two teams of four or more boys to play. If four boys are playing, two from each team line up in shallow water, the lead off boy in each team having a cork ball in front of him. The other two members of each team are set, facing their team mates, about twenty yards away, also in shallow water.

At the word "Go" each of the boys with the ball must start swimming toward the other half of his team twenty yards away. The balls must not be held in the hands but must be pushed, or dribbled, by the head, body or arms.

When the first swimmer gets the ball to where his team-mate can touch it, this team-mate swims back to the third man on his team, dribbling the ball as before. Number three swims to number four, who finishes the race. The number four man crossing the finish line first wins the race for his team.

If you can get a water polo ball or a water basketball, the game will be better than when a cork ball or small rubber ball is used. The best way to dribble a ball is to swim with the arms wide and bat the ball with the upper part of the arms and the head as you are taking your strokes.

A stiff paste made with some powdered delatone and water and spread on a hairy surface about 2 minutes will, when removed, take every trace of hair with it. That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

LIKE A HOUSE—THE VENTILATION

When they were building us a new building at the University the architects kept stressing the point of a "double fan system for ventilation".

You can see what this means to the air of the building. A huge fan to draw all the impure air out, and another huge fan to drive the pure air in.

So many places heretofore had been ventilated simply by the exhaust fan which drew the impure air out.

And so as I thought of that body of yours and of the tremendous need for ventilating all its parts—every organ—every tissue—I realized how wonderful the Creator had fashioned your ventilating system.

As you know your system of ventilation is by the lungs.

If you are an adult in ordinary health you will breathe in and out about seventeen or eighteen times in the minute.

And what happens when you breathe in?

Why Nature sends in about thirty cubic inches of air almost pure, rich in oxygen—the life-giving element.

And what is breathed out?

Thirty cubic inches of air, rich in carbon dioxide which contains the poisonous products of the system.

This Nature since man's creation has been using the double fan system to ventilate that body of yours.

Now I've spoken of the lungs as the ventilating organs of course they make the bulk or large exchange from the outside world to you, and from you to the outside world.

But your faithful friend the heart with the assistance of all the blood vessels has been really doing the ventilating of the very smallest and remotest part of the body.

You see when blood with fresh air goes to an organ or any tissue it builds up that tissue and organ as it passes through it; likewise it takes away from that organ or tissue their worn out parts.

This blood loaded with the waste matter comes back to the lungs to get rid of said waste, and to take on fresh air for building purposes. So although that body of yours has the double fan system of ventilation by means of the action of the lungs, the real work of ventilating is done by the blood as it passes through the tissues.

ALL HUSBANDS SHOULD STUDY WIVES MOODS

What do wives want?

Husbands who have studied over that question without any apparent results may learn something of interest by attending a performance at the Regent Theatre Tonight to Saturday, matinee daily when the Universal all-star attraction, "What do Wives Want" is shown.

"What Wives Want" is an original story written around a problem that is largely responsible for the present clogged conditions of the divorce court calender.

The story centers around a young married couple who are ideally mated and who love each other. But the husband is so busy making money that he unconsciously neglects his wife and she searches elsewhere for the attention she craves.

That she finds but the timely interference of an outside influence would have given up all including honor. The tale reaches a most compelling climax. Foremost among the members of the cast are Ethel Grey Terry, Margaret Landis, Vernon Steele, Niles Welch and Ramsay Wallace, to none of whom does the picture-going public need an introduction.

"Home Plate" an amusing Baseball comedy, Pathe News, and other varied attractions are being exhibited on the same program.

'MISSING MILLIONS' BIG ALICE BRADY THRILLER

If Your Soul is Not Dead This Paramount Picture Will Rejuvenate It

Lives there a man with soul so dead who never has thrilled to the melodrama of a finely produced crook photoplay? Is there a picture lover in Belleville who after seeing Alice Brady in "Missing Millions," a new Paramount picture which will be shown at Griffin's tonight with a matinee Saturday will venture the opinion that crook films have no appeal? Not when such a star and such a picture are presented, we confidently predict.

Here's some of the story:

Mary Dawson, the heroine, is a crook and the daughter of a reformed burglar. Every time she makes a haul, however, her kind heart gets the better of her. She gives back the loot, be it diamonds or bullion cubes. Jim Cantwell, double-crossing financier, becomes mixed up in Mary's affairs. She steals his wife's diamonds with the aid of her sweetheart, Boston Blackie. The same night her father, returning from the farm, is arrested by mistake for an attack on Cantwell. Mary promises to return the diamond if her father is released. Cantwell gets the diamond but sends Dawson to prison. In revenge Mary plans to steal the bullion cubes which England is sending Cantwell to save him from financial ruin.

The trusting Purser falls in love with Mary, which permits her to get impressions of the strong room keys. This permits a clean-up. But the purser gets the third degree Mary gives away twenty-four thousand, all that remains in the dime savings bank, to her avaricious pals. She returns the gold—but what follows the picture reveals.

David Powell is leading man and Frank Losee is seen as Cantwell. Others in the cast are Riley Hatch, John B. Cooke, William B. Mack, Alice May, Cooper Cliffe, Sidney Dean, Beverly Travers and Sidney Herbert.

William Desmond in the second chapter of Universal new adventure play, "The Phantom Fortune," a funny Torchy Comedy, and a Travelogue are announced for presentation on the same program.

SHE WOULD NOT

If a girl knew how pretty she doesn't look when she cries she wouldn't do it.

Summer Time Jewelry

"I like the color of this one, but the style of the other is just what I want;" or, "I'd take this one if it were longer or wider."

If you are a girl who is not satisfied with "any old thing," but tries to have everything about her dress "just right," you will understand the troubles of this shopper who is trying to find a fancy girdle to match her new dress. The easiest way to have just the girdle you want is to make it yourself with sealing wax. The one illustrated is red blended with black and gold.

Make the slides according to directions below and fasten together by folding the ends of four-inch lengths of narrow ribbon through the holes and sewing on under side. Finish the ends with beads.

For the girdle slides cut 12 oblongs of thin cardboard 2 inches long and 1½ inches wide. Cut out small triangles ¼ inch from the edge in each corner. Melt a stick of red wax and daub it on one side of the cardboard, covering it completely, and press another pattern squarely on top. Now cover both sides with red wax in the same way. Dot one side with black and gold wax and turn and twist over the flame until the colors blend into a pretty design, and the surface is smooth and shiny.

(If you have never worked with sealing wax before, this is the way it is done: First, get regular sticks of sealing wax of the colors you like, and a small piece of glass for the table to catch any wax that might drip when it is melted. Hold the tip of the stick of wax over the flame of either a gas burner, alcohol lamp or "canned heat" and when it begins to run daub it on the foundation you are using. When blending the colors in the girdle slide, do not let the wax get too hot. Dip the slide in cold water once or twice to cool, but be sure to dry it thoroughly before returning to the flame, or the wax will blister.)

GOOD MONEY IN GOOD FARMING

"Let's Get to Work and Pay Off the Mortgage"

NINE years ago Canada's national debt was about one-third of a billion. It is more than two and one-third billions today.

Our debts have greatly increased—our revenues must also go up. The farmer has to bear his share of the increased burden. That means he must increase his revenue.

Complaint has been heard that farmers under present conditions in Canada cannot make farming pay. And yet many thousands of Canadian farmers do make it pay.

How Is It Done?

Patient and industrious "carry on" will do wonders, but something more is needed. Too often "patient industry" is coupled with "dull persistance" in poorly thought out methods.

Farmers today more than ever, must plan ahead, as well as "plug along"; indeed they have no option, if they wish to succeed.

Co-ordination of head and hand will mean real success. Farming in Canada has paid and pays now on many farms. It can be made to pay on almost every farm. Canadian agriculture has passed through many low profit-making eras successfully and can do so again.

With the increased cost of production, the present higher standards of living cannot be kept up by poor farm management, "boarder" milkers, scrub beeves, poor quality hogs or non-profitable hens.

Crop Returns Should Be Increased

On the Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa some crop costs and crop profits in 1922 as contrasted with all-Ontario average crop costs and crop profits are given below. The all-Ontario figures are in brackets.

	Cost per acre	Profit per acre
Hay	$21.13 ($13.50)	$11.21 ($5.09)
Corn for Forage	$47.50 ($33.75)	$10.38 ($2.86)
Oats	$26.47 ($19.32)	$ 7.33 (.04)

Experimental Farm crops are sometimes claimed to be produced at too great cost. Thousands of experiments, however, show that increased cropping costs wisely applied up to a reasonable point always increase crop profits. This is true on the Experimental Farm—it is also true on any and every farm

That even under present conditions profits may be made is testified by many skilful, observant and non-plunging farmers, who believe more in the policy of "slow but sure" and "pay as you go" rather than speed, with excessive borrowing and the often consequent disaster.

The results on our Experimental Farms also bear testimony to the value of thorough, skilful work.

The Farmer Must Manufacture

But crops alone are not enough. The farmer must change his crops into less bulky and more high-priced products—milk, pork, beef, mutton, poultry, etc.

With fair yielding cows dairying shows good profits in Canada. The average cow has increased her yield 25% in the last ten years. She can quite readily go up another 25% and more, and there's where the profit lies. Better feeding, better selection and better breeding will do the job—feed, weed, breed.

To do better feeding means better pastures and more generous supplies of palatable roughage. Short rotations including clover and ensilage crops (corn, sunflower, pea, oats, etc.) will provide feed in abundance for both summer and winter. The experiments and investigations which the Dominion Department of Agriculture have carried on prove that farming scientifically and systematically undertaken will pay profits. The records and particulars of such work in every province are available to the Canadian farmer.

Are you growing grain, or producing seed or interested in fruit? We can give you information that will help you. Do you breed live stock? Are you keeping dairy cattle? Are you interested in poultry or bees? Ask us for information. We have some that will help you.

We have published and have for free distribution 390 different reports, bulletins and circulars dealing with matters of interest to you. Ask for what you want, or for a list of our publications.

We shall have something more to say later. Meantime write the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, about your problems.

BYNG, FIGURE IN STRIKE CONCLAVE

Halifax, July 19.—The Halifax Herald yesterday carried a special despatch stating that a conference was held at Pictou at which the strike in Nova Scotia was discussed and at which Baron Byng of Vimy, governor-general of Canada, was the central figure. Others present were said to be Senator J. A. Macdonald, Mayor Morrison, of Glace Bay, local member for Cape Breton county, J. B. Maclachlan, deposed U.M.W. secretary in this district, and Daniel Livingstone, deposed president.

No statement was given out by any present beyond the assurance that some very important developments might be expected as a result of the deliberations, the despatch said.

STORM IN WEST DAMAGES CROPS

Regina, Sask., July 19.—At least one person has been injured, much livestock killed and dozens of houses and farm buildings wrecked, thousands of acres of crops laid low by hail, rain and wind and hundreds of miles of telephone wires put out of commission in a storm that swept the province from west of Dodsland to east of Wolseley, Tuesday night. The storm was the most severe of the year in Saskatchewan.

DEFENSE RESTS IN DELORME CASE

Montreal, July 19.—Mr. Taschereau, counsel for the defense, announced at the conclusion of yesterday morning's session of the Delorme trial that he had only one more witness. Mr. Calder informed the court that he had witnesses to call in rebuttal.

During the course of the evidence for the defense, Mr. Taschereau invited the crown to call Mr. Hamilton, who was denounced in court Tuesday, but Mr. Calder said he could do that after the defense had finished.

CUTTING WEEDS

At the present time men are about the city cutting down noxious weeds which grow upon the sides of several streets in the city. Whilst this is being done there are several vacant lots in the city and even in some gardens where noxious weeds are allowed to thrive. This is contrary to a city by-law and owners of these properties should see that the weeds are cut. Whilst the city is doing its duty in this regard it is incumbent that citizens generally should see that they do their duty in preventing the spreading of weeds which are no benefit, but rather a detriment to the city's appearance. It is the intention of the proper authorities to see that the low in this respect is enforced.

Happy is the man who works—providing he doesn't work the wrong party.

WHISKEY FOUND IN BERTH OF PULLMAN

Lindsay, July 19.—J. A. Cox, colored porter on the Pullman Car Company's sleeper "Salisbury," was arrested yesterday, and now faces a charge of having liquor for sale in his possession. He was taken off the sleeper at the C. N. R. depot by License Inspector Thornbury and Provincial Officers Storey and Hartnett. Forty bottles of whiskey in all were confiscated and were found in a mattress in one of the berths.

TORONTO MAN SPEAKS HIGHLY OF DRECO

Mr. Harry Hipkiss finds relief in Dreco when all other medicines fail. Now has splendid appetite

Mr. Hipkiss, of 2090 Dundas Street, West, Toronto, Ont., has suffered for a long time from a run-down digestive system. It simply would not function properly until toned and regulated by the corrective properties of Dreco, the famous herbal remedy.

"My stomach caused all sorts of trouble," says Mr. Hipkiss. "My food wouldn't digest and everything seemed to sour. My liver was sluggish and I would get billous and have dizzy spells. My joints ached with pain from rheumatism. My bowels never acted regular, and I didn't sleep well at night. My appetite was very poor, but now I can eat almost anything without suffering afterwards. I am certainly glad I heard of Dreco, for it has done away with my troubles. It seemed to hit the spot when everything else failed."

Sluggish action of the organs can be charged with causing suffering such as Mr. Hipkiss describes. Poor digestion causes a weakening of the other organs and speedily takes a toll on the general health. Dreco is made from roots, herbs, bark and leaves, which tone up these vital organs. It keeps them strong and healthy and acting as Nature intended.

Dreco is specially valuable at this season of the year to tone up a system run-down by the rigors of winter. It contains no mercury, potash or habit forming drugs.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Belleville by The Belleville Pharmacy, and is Sold by a Good Druggist every where.

TRIPLE TRAGEDY ON GRAND RIVER

Father and Friend Die in Futile Effort to Save Child

WADES INTO HOLE

Party Fishing in Grand River When Accident Happens

Caledonia, July 20.—Three members of a picnic party of six met their death in the Grand River one mile south of York, which is not far from Cayuga, about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

They are: Archibald C. Nichol, aged about 40, 42 Stirton avenue, Hamilton; his son, Bruce, aged 10; and Howard Gould, aged 30, of Stratford a nephew of Mrs. McKay of Stratford.

The triple tragedy was witnessed by Mrs. Nichol, the wife and mother; Mrs. McKay of Stratford, a sister of Mrs. Nichol, and a 14-year-old boy, brother of Bruce Nichol.

The men lost their lives in a vain effort to rescue the 10-year-old boy from drowning after he had waded into one of the treacherous holes at the bottom of the Grand River. According to statements of the distracted women, the lad was wading knee-deep close to shore, when suddenly he sank from view.

DELORME NOT USED AS WITNESS

Montreal, July 20.—The defense in the Delorme trial formally announced yesterday that Father Delorme would not be put in the witness box. The announcement was made in reply to a question by the crown prosecutor when the defense again declared its case closed after being permitted to call three new witnesses.

Mme. Turgeon, wife of the chief of police of St. Michel, one of the new witnesses for the defense, told of hearing a piercing shriek on the night after the murder shortly after a car had passed her house. She had told her husband, but when asked why he had not followed the matter up she suggested that it may have been because he was not on duty at the time.

C. E. Govinsky, manager of a St. Michel hotel, the first of the three new witnesses, had testified that Raoul Delorme had called at the hotel in a car with three other men at 11.30 on the night of his death. He was closely questioned by the crown as to why he had withheld this information, and had only given it to Mr. Roussain, a private detective, a short time ago.

Mr. Taschereau concluded his address to the jury last night.

League Commission To Probe Mandates

Geneva, July 20.—Permanent mandates commission of the League of Nations are meeting today to pass on the reports of all nations on mandated territories, assigned to them under the treaties of Versailles and Sevres.

To Insure Nations Against War and Other Calamities

By HENRY WOOD

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Geneva, July 1.—(By mail to United Press)—From mutual insurance societies for the protection of individuals the world have now progressed to a basis where it will soon have mutual insurance societies for the protection of nations. This is one of the international social outgrowths of the war.

Two progrets are now underway for the organization of international mutual insurance for nations.

The first of these is Lord Robert Cecil's project for an international guarantee pact, as an insurance against war. It is now under consideration by the League of Nations as an indispensable basis for disarmament.

Under its terms the nations signing it will not only pledge themselves not to attack each other, but to come to each other's assistance in the event they are attacked by others.

Just as each individual by reason of a mutual insurance protection is able to cut down his expenses for insuring the future of himself or his family, so by this international mutual insurance against war each nation will be able to cut down its expenses of self-defense from what it now costs to each nation to insure its own defense single-handed.

The second project of international mutual insurance for nations is that put forward by Italy. She demands an international treaty and organization pledging all nations in the event of great natural calamities, such as earthquakes, fires, famines, epidemics, cyclones, etc.

U. F. O.-LIBERAL MERGER SHUNNED

"No Surrender" to Any Group to be Liberal Slogan in House

HAY IS SILENT

Proposed Union of Forces Coldly Received at Toronto Meeting

Toronto, July 20.—Nothing was done at yesterday's conference of Liberals at the Parliament Buildings with respect to the leadership of the Ontario Liberals. That was one matter, it was stated afterward, that was left to a later gathering, which will convene several weeks hence. F. Wellington Hay, who was defeated in his own riding in the recent election, had no statement to make on that phase of the situation.

"A general talk on the whole situation was all that took place," was the description given afterward of the deliberations that proceeded behind closed doors for an hour or more at noon yesterday. "It was just a get-together affair with a little business discussion thrown in."

One feature of the conference, however, it was learned, was the determination of the dozen or more members present to stand solidly in the Legislature as the representatives of Liberalism. "No surrender" to any group or party was the watchword laid down.

SIR HALL CAINE LAUDS SAGUENAY

Noted Britisher Tours Canadian Wonderland.

Montreal, July 20.—Sir Hall Caine, M.P., of London, England was one of the guests travelling on the SS. Richlieu, during the week end to take in the Saguenay trip. He was accompanied by his wife and family who left the boat at Tadousac, where they will spend the summer at the Hotel Tadousac. Much has been written and said of the famous Saguenay but during an interview with a representative of the press, Sir Hall declared that he had travelled the world over, but in his opinion the Saguenay river scenery was the greatest wonderland of the world without exception, even the beauties of Norway and Sweden did not surpass it.

He said that he was on an inspection tour over the various extensive pulp mills which were in operation in the vicinity of the river, and in which he was personally financially interested. His firm belief was that it would not be long before Canada saw British capital again flowing into the country, as it was only more capital that was required to make the Dominion the greatest country in the British Empire. He often wondered what was beyond the Saguenay, for, when looking into the great depths at the extreme end of the steamer route no one appeared to know anything about it. Not even the habitants who lived in the region of Chicoutimi could say. They had no ambition. To them it was all the same. At the same time he intended to secure information and find out more about the great resources that are within the grasp of man towards the sources of the Saguenay at no distant date.

AVOID DEBT TANGLE.

World's Champion Butter Producer, Prince Edward County Product

The world's champion butter producer was bred at Bloomfield by Mr. W. J. Gerow when he owned a fine herd of Holsteins a few years ago. The queen of the dairy realm is De Kol Plus Segis Dixie. Dixie was sold by Mr. Gerow when he was six months old to Mr. A. D. Foster for $200. When she was a year old A. C. Hardy of Brockville, bought her by auction for $125. She began to make records and was sold at a reduction sale by Mr. Hardy for $400 to Dr. Harwood of Vaudreuil. Dr. Harwood's herd was sold to W. L. Shaw of Newmarket and Dixie was rejected on account of suspicious tuberculin test. As she was the only animal left, Dr. Harwood made arrangements with his neighbor, Donat Raymond, to take her off his hands at $200. Upon retest she passed without suggestion of trouble and has since been subjected to the triple test on four occasions, passing all with flying colors. At midnight, June 27, 1923, at nine years, Dixie finished her strictly official yearly record with 1349.2 lbs. fat (1686.5 lbs. butter), 33,477 lbs. milk. This is the most stupendous production ever recorded for a dairy cow.

Mail Flier Plans 24 Hour Flight From Coast to Coast All By His Lonesome

By FRANK A. CLARVOE

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

San Francisco, July 20. (United Press) —A solo transcontinental airplane flight, without a stop between Crissy field, San Francisco, and Mitchell Field, New York, is what Claire K. Vance, United States air mail pilot between San Francisco and Reno, Nev., plans to perform this summer.

In his proposed flight, Vance will use a plane built entirely by himself during the past year, based on plans selected from all known data on airplane construction, driven by a motor he purchased with his own funds. Every bit of wood, metal and wire which has gone into the plane's construction has been purchased by Vance with funds from his own pocket.

Vance describes his proposed flight with the air of a young father going over the points of a newly delivered son.

"I don't know where I got the idea, but it came to me about a year ago," he said, "that I'd like to hang up one record while I'm young and healthy. Ever since I was a kid in school I've wanted to be a first-class aviator. I suppose I have been flying-crazy.

TO CROSS IN 24 HOURS

"Transcontinental flying is the big thing now. Owing to the difference in time between the east and west coasts, the carrying of mail and other matter which cannot be sent by wire, is delayed in transmission, even with the relay system we use in the air mail. I thought it would be a good stunt if somebody could fix up a plane which would get across the country in one day of 24 hours. Then I got to thinking that maybe I could pull it off.

"The plane is the thing in a cross-country flight. Sufficient gasoline to run the motor for the distance to be traversed, a strong motor that will do its stuff, and an airplane so built as to curves as to help the motor as much as possible and afford the necessary speed are necessities. It's simple enough, but there's co-ordination needed that can be found now only in the large planes such as the T-2. The real problem of successful and speedy and economical flying, particularly transcontinental flying, lies in the development of the small plane."

So, in a shop on Greenwich street, Vance began the building of his plane. After pouring over a mass of data, Vance learned to Teuton construction for wing curves, designed his fuselage so that he could get in a gasoline tank of the necessary capacity, made arrangements for his motors and started work.

It was early this spring before he and a few volunteers mechanics, who helped in their spare time, could complete the building of the plane itself. The first flight proved successful, but two Salmson motors he had bought at a high figure developed ailments and it was found that grease smeared over the parts within the motor had hardened during their period of non-use and had to be cleaned out.

This was done with both motors and both were tested in the plane and found to work only fairly well. It is this motor trouble that has delayed a flight, which probably will not be held until August.

CARRIES 350 GALLONS

The plane itself is a peculiar-looking bird, but is a revelation in maneuvering in the air. Its wings are thick, the upper being of one piece, the lower of three pieces with the centre rigidly anchored to the fuselage. The fuselage itself has a prolate nose, keeping a long oval stream-line shape to its very tail. The big gasoline tank, to hold 350 gallons, will be placed in the forward part of the fuselage behind the motor and forward of the driver's seat.

The 9-cylinder Salmson motor develops 250 horsepower and a speed of 122 miles an hour when the plane is fully loaded, increasing its appetite for mileage as the load grows lighter with the consumption of gasoline. The motor is water cooled, the radiator, which sits between the spoke-like cylinders and the propeller, holding fifteen gallons of water.

Although clumsy as it appears on the ground, in the air Vance's plane is almost swallow-like in its movements and according to the builder and pilot handles with remarkable ease. Thorough tests which have been given it have all proven successful, Vance claims.

Vance places a value of $12,000 on the plane—which weighs 4,200 pounds gross, fully loaded, with the pilot in his place.

WAS IN WORLD WAR

Vance himself has had an interesting air career. He enlisted in the flying corps shortly before the United States entered the World War, and trained at several fields in the central west. From Chinook Field, Ills., he was sent overseas, where it was discovered that he possessed the unusual faculty of being able to fly any make of plane with little or no instruction. He was made an instructor at Tours, aiding American aviators in mastering the temperamental peculiarities of French planes. He held the rank of first lieutenant.

Thus he lost a chance to do any fighting or observation work, but after the armistice he piloted one of the photographic planes that mapped the entire front for army war college records.

Upon returning to the United States and receiving his discharge, Vance went into commercial flying and from that into the air mail service. He has flown over every leg of the air route west of Cleveland. He is only 26 years old and unmarried.

Only two near-accidents have occurred to Vance in his six years of flying. Once, when he was attempting to hop-off at Elko Springs, Nev., with Eddie Rickenbacher as a passenger, the planee slipped and was wrecked, but both he and Rickenbacher escaped without injury. On another occasion Vance was battling with a 90-mile gale high over the Sierra range in Nevada when he ran out of gasoline. He glided several hundred feet into a valley, landing his plane on a frozen lake coated thick with snow. The spot was only a few rods from a transcontinental line flag station at Soda Springs, so he transferred his mail to the limited and carried it into Reno.

Chicago, July 20.—(United Press)—American railroads would save $100,000,000 a year if the Inter-State Commerce Commission would simplify reports it requires, according to Slason Thompson, railroad statistician.

Two million dollars weekly must go to pay for clerical hire, stationery, stamps and printing necessary to prepare useless and indigestible information that goes to clutter up pigeonholes in Washington," he said.

"The files and storerooms of the commission are bursting with details for which it has not use," Thompson continued, "and, if it had, eternity would be too short a period to provide an intelligent summary."

Railroad executives have been studying this problem for the last few years, and some of them agree with Thompson that they are being loaded down with armies of clerks. Others contend the railways need the information these clerks prepare.

Thompson's figures, prepared following a requested analysis a year ago, have caused great interest in the Railway Accounting Officers' Association.

From 1916 to 1921 clerical forces grew from 164,398 to 220,674, the increase of 56,276 being "nearly all surplus," according to Thompson. In twenty-five years the increase has been 441 per cent.

"The railways are long on statistics and short on facilities equipment and dividends," Thompson said.

"Why waste enough millions to buy 2,000 locomotives or 70,000 freight cars or pay a dividend of 1.3 per cent on all outstanding railroad stock?"

"MISSING MILLIONS" A GREAT CROOK PICTURE

The famous Cyclops diamond, worn at a fashionable party by Mrs. James Cantwell and stolen by two clever crooks among the guests, starts a speedy cycle of vivid action in "Missing Millions," a new Paramount production starring Alice Brady, which opened at Griffin's theatre yesterday. An unscrupulous Wall Street broker, a thug, a reformed crook and several unreformed thieves are included among the characters. Injustice, vengeance, looting and fierce fighting follow in rapid and thrilling sequence, culminating in a big problem and a tremendous sacrifice. The picture is based on two of Jack Boyle's "Boston Blackie" stories and included in the strong cast are David Powell and Frank Losee.

Johnny Hines in a funny Sewell Ford Torchy comedy, an entertaining Travelogue, and the second chapter of Universal's "The Phantom Fortune" serial preceded the exhibition of the feature offering.

"WHAT WIVES WANT" STELLAR REGENT FILM

"What Wives Want", the Universal photoplay which opened at the Regent theatre yesterday, is a dramatic story dealing with that phase of domestic life so generally conceded problematic—by husbands and wives alike.

Austin Howard was a successful young business man and he devoted every interest to his business that he might provide his wife, Claire, whom he loved dearly, with the material things of life which were such a part of her existence.

In his workaday world he prospered and as he prospered he bought many beautiful things for his pretty wife. And his wife accepted these things as a matter of course from her husband, but they did not fulfill the desires that make for contentment and happiness. She was of an affectionate nature and for a time she lavished her affection on her husband when he returned each day from his work.

As he became more and more absorbed in his work he became less responsive to his wife's caresses. His wife, hurt at his indifference, sought attention elsewhere and had no difficulty at all finding it.

Jack Reeves, Howard's business associate and bachelor with considerable charm which appealed to women, was quick to take advantage of the situation and immediately became very attentive to Claire. It would not be fair to divulge the entire plot, but it is one that will hold you from start to finish.

"Home Plate," a funny baseball comedy, Pathe News, and Jimmy Adams in a good Cameo comedy are being exhibited on the same program.

THE WISE CROW.

I'll say this for the inky crow:
  Although his feathers may be dark
He never tries to sing, as though
  The Lord had meant him for a lark.

How different we humans are,
  Forever quarreling with our lot,
We'll quit the fields where we could star
  To try to be what we are not.

The dancer hoarsely tries to sing,
  The singer dares the heel and toe;
But he does no such foolish thing—
  Too wise for that is Mister Crow.

DO THE SAME THING.

The instructor in the medical college exhibited a diagram.

"This subject limps," he explained, "because one leg is shorter than the other." He addressed one of the students: "Now, Mr. Snead, what would you do in such a case?"

Young Snead pondered earnestly, and replied with conviction, "I fancy sir, that I should limp too."

Getting Rid of a Stubborn Cough is Childs Play Now

Make the Medicine Yourself at Home It's Cheap—but You Can't Beat It.

If you want to take care of that bad hang on cough and do it in a few hours, better get one ounce of Parmint (double strength) and mix a half pint at home.

You can do this in two minutes by adding a little sugar and enough water to fill a half pint bottle.

You'll travel the world over before you get a medicine that will act so surely and quickly on the mucous membrane of the nose and throat. It halts the inflammation, the tickling sensation, stops with the first spoonful, the heavy breathing goes and membrane free from irritation and mucus follows.

For Catarrhal conditions such as mucus dropping, clogged nostrils and watery eyes, it won't disappoint—ask for Parmint, (double strength). Speak plain so that the druggist will know exactly what you want.

Traffic through the Lachine Canal during the month of June showed an increase of two million bushels of grain and one hundred thousand tons of coal with increases in pulpwood, produce and passengers over the same month of the previous year

The wheat crop of Alberta and Manitoba has progressed so well on account of the abundant moisture of the early season that farmers, business men and railroad companies are preparing for a harvest in excess of the record one of 1915.

Prince Rupert, B.C., claims the world's best record for a one trip fish catch. A fishing schooner arrived at this port recently after being at sea 14½ days, with 38,000 pounds of halibut, which sold for a sum that netted each man of the crew of five $727.80.

In the Province of Ontario, it is estimated, the lumber cut in 1922 amounted to 309,000,000 board feet, and in addition 289,118 cords of pulpwood. The Province of Nova Scotia cut 125,000,000 feet, New Brunswick 210,000,000 feet, and British Columbia 273,146,000 board feet.

The Dominion Express has just effected a shipment from Hamburg to Kobe, Japan, in 32 days. The average time consumed between the same two points via the Suez Canal is 49 days, and the saving thus made by the Canadian route will be of great importance in helping make this country the road between Europe and the Orient.

The total value of the pelts of fur-bearing animals taken in the Dominion during the season of 1921-22 was $17,438,800, an increase over the previous year of $7,287,273, or 72 per cent., and the number of pelts of all kinds was 4,366,790, an increase over the previous season of 48 per cent. These figures comprise pelts of animals taken by trappers and pelts of ranch-bred animals.

Tests of ceramic clay resources in British Columbia are being planned this summer by the British Columbia Government. The tests will be made under the auspices of the Department of Education and the Department of Industries. There are many varieties of clays in British Columbia and some are reported to be particularly suited to the manufacture of high class pottery ware.

A reduction of express rates on westward moving business between Europe and Canada was announced by the Foreign Department of the Dominion Express Company recently. This reduction on westbound shipments follows a similar cut on shipments from Europe to Canada made a little while ago, and amounts to a reduction of approximately twenty per cent. on the trans-ocean trip. The rates came into effect on July 9 between all points in Canada and Europe.

The Banff-Windermere highway, the last link in the 6,000-mile chain of good roads which extend from the heart of the Canadian Rockies to California and return is now open to motor traffic, having been officially opened on June 30th by the cutting of a riband at Kootenay crossing in the presence of a number of Federal and Provincial Government officials, and a host of automobile tourists. The completion of this road has rendered accessible the most beautiful scenic country on the continent.

TWO SCOTCHMEN BUILD EXOTIC STRUCTURE AT HOLLYWOOD, CAL.

Editor Intelligencer:

Many visiting Los Angeles are delighted at seeing many attractive objects. There is a place to be seen in Hollywood that most visitors to California and Los Angeles fail to see. If you were to travel over the country I am convinced you would never see another place as attractive and beautiful as the one I am about to mention.

Two Scotchmen, brothers, unmarried, engaged in importing silk from Japan to New York, have thus acquired a large fortune. Travelling over Japan, they determined to build in Hollywood something which would be unique, picturesque and most beautiful. They brought a celebrated Japanese architect, landscape gardeners and workmen from Japan to Hollywood, having first purchased a mountain lying just west of Hollywood boulevard a short distance. A large Japanese mansion was embelished with ornaments and Japanese curios, wrought in gold. Gold was liberally used in covering the iron fence around the entrance. Many temples containing grotesque idols covered with gold and wonderful carvings were erected; flowers of all kinds and colors. Little streams were introduced along the terraced banks, filled with Japanese gold and silver colored fish; black and white swans, and many birds of beautiful plumage are there, and many statues. The banks are terraced with travelled walks. Groves of trees are planted and comfortable seats provided.

The views from the grounds are wonderful. In the distance, the ocean. At your feet, Hollywood. Far away, Los Angeles. Oil derricks in abundance, pumping oil, are in sight. Everywhere houses, gardens, flowers, trees—homes of the movie people, many of them of great architectural beauty. Five minutes' walk from the business street of Hollywood will take you to the road which leads to this terrestrial 'paradise.'

Visitors should visit Hollywood Bowl, which is simply a vast hollow torn from the mountain side, in which great attractions, such as "The Messiah" are performed. The Bowl comfortably seats 30,000 people.

PUT AFRICAN KING IN JAIL

TELLTALE SYMPTOMS OF WOMAN'S ILLS

Every woman who suffers from backache, headache, dragging-down pains, nervousness, irregularities, displacements, irritability, or despondency should recognize in such symptoms some derangement of her system which should have attention before some more serious ailment develops. These conditions are often evidenced by a sallow complexion, dark circles under the eyes, lassitude and sleeplessness. For nearly fifty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been preeminently successful in overcoming such conditions, and it is now recognized everywhere as the standard remedy for woman's ills.

HUMAN LIFE

An interesting illustration of the utilitarian service of science is furnished in the case of a negress in Louisiana. The woman was stabbed in the heart by her fiance. She was taken to a New Orleans hospital in a dying condition. An eight inch incision to the heart region revealed a cut one-half inch in length in the organ. Three stitches were made in the heart and about 2,100 C. C. of normal saline was injected with adrelin added from time to time to strengthen the action of the organ, which had become week from loss of blood. Blood transfusion was resorted to on the following day and for four weeks the woman fought for life, then began to improve rapidly. She recently returned to her duties in a kitchen restaurant, heart-whole physically, if not figuratively.

The incident gives emphasis to the fact that the wonderful life-saving powers made possible by modern medical science are available to the most humble when the circumstances are as they should be. A human life is a human life, whether the subject be a negress servant or a multi-millionaire to surgeons and physicians, whose views and methods are ethical and orthodox.

THE LESSON

The province of Quebec has made a definite move in the direction of more rigid motor traffic regulation. Licences of convicted speeders will be revoked and motor cycle police will patrol the highways of the province. Appalling increase the death toll from motor accidents has forced Quebec to take this step.

Similar measures have been adopted wherever heavy traffic has existed for an appreciable period. In practically every instance a shocking record of accidents influenced the action of the authorities.

The paved highways in this section are comparatively recent, but the death list from motor accidents is lengthening at an alarming rate. Many lives can be saved perhaps if we do not wait for "our lesson".

AQUATIC DANGERS

It is the plaint of the average youngster that everything he really derives pleasure from doing is either forbidden or so restricted, so far as his activities are concerned that the pleasure is virtually spoiled. The invariable answer, enigmatic to the childish mind, is —"Mother knows best."

Prominent in the category of youthful pleasures generally frowned upon by careful parents are hunting and swimming. The ban on the latter pleasure, or sport, however, is qualified. Bathing or swimming in properly equipped and supervised swimming pools is tabooed only, by over-anxious parents. It is the "old swimming hole" style with its frank simplicity that receives the full force of the ban. Youngsters usually exhibit an exasperating persistence in seeking out strange pools and creeks in which to develop their swimming capabilities, sans bathing habilements. These untried and sinister waters claim a heavy toll each summer, as statistics show.

In sections situated as is the Belleville district the average condition in this respect does not exist. The Bay of Quinte with its generous shoreline and the numerous tributary streams afford abundant opportunities to swimmers and for this reason, perhaps, the danger to youthful bathers is not fully appreciated by some parents in the district. This may not be true, but incidents, which have occurred at the government dock here during the past few weeks strongly support this opinion.

About a week ago three youngsters ranging in ages from 6 to 10 years, were fishing near the end of the long concrete structure. In his eagerness to "land" a fish, one of the smallest of the group fell into the water. Although the depth was at least 10 feet his comrades rescued him with little difficulty and still less "ado." He fell into the water twice after that during the afternoon and lingered, when becoming tired of fishing, to dry his clothing before going home in order to avoid parental wrath.

One of his youthful rescuers explained that "he looked funny when his head was under water." None of the group could swim.

A girl about 15 years old declared that she "had a lovely time" at Massassaga Park on Wednesday. "I was pushed off the dock once" she added nonchalantly," and my little brother fell in twice." Apparently she considered this information wholly unimportant and irrelevant.

There is no doubt that the youngsters are carefully watched or larger numbers would receive impromptu baths. More significant still there have been no drownings in the immediate vicinity this summer. But let's follow the example of the superstitions and—knock on wood.

By The Side Of The Road

The mayor of Hamilton has inaugurated a crusade to lower the retail price of pop in that city. The mayor solemnly asserts that "workingman when he wends his homeward way at eventide" enjoys a cool, refreshing draught, but finds his pleasure vitiated when he is called upon to pay 10 cents per bottle.

In other sections of the country they declare that the workingman can be satisfied only with real beer. Oh, workingman, what liberties are taken in thy name!

A cable story concerning recent activities of the Prince of Wales says:

> "The prince arrived at noon dressed in the uniform of a colonel of the Welsh guards and inspected the Officer's Training Corps. He changed into morning clothes to lunch with the headmaster, and then put on flannels for an hour at rackets. Afterwards he donned a lounge suit for tea but he kept this on when he drove back to the palace".

What do they think the Prince is, anyway—a fashionable summer girl or a popular cinema actress?

A Pittsburgh woman committed suicide because she became distracted by telephone calls. She was literally "rushed to death."

A man was shot to death in South Dakota in a row over the early morning crowing of a rooster. If the offense, that is, the rooster's offense, occurred on a Sunday morning there were undoubtedly extenuating circumstances.

Perhaps Attorney-General Nickle can evolve a system whereby only those racing tips which assure financial gain can be published. By such a step, Mr. Nickle can win for himself a place among the immortals.

PRESS OPINIONS

RUSSIA NO EXAMPLE.
(Christian Science Monitor)

Altogether, the Soviet system seems to be on the decline. It has not brought prosperity to the underdog, as it promised. It has only meant that everybody else has been reduced to the condition of the underdog. And it has led to this not merely because of its theories of distribution of wealth, but because it has destroyed production by forbidding private enterprise, and has misread the human mind by believing that mass suggestion could be used to make them destroy. In consequence, Russia is in a condition of dirt and slovenliness, disorder, and destitution, which can hardly recommend it as a model to be copied.

HEART OF ALL CULTURE.
(Montreal Star)

Christianity has not only offered the highest pattern of virtues, but the deepest incentive to its practice, and it has been the well-spring of whatever is best and purest in life. It alone has power to change and mould the world and to make it better. The influences emanating from it have transformed, regenerated, gladdened and elevated men.

The new commandment to love one another; the recognition that the greatest are those who serve, not those who are served by others; the reverence for the weak, and for little children, which is the foundation for chivalry and humanity; the saying, "He that is without sin, let him first cast a stone"; these, and similar noble moralities are at the very heart of all culture.

WHEREIN THE CHARM?
(Flint Journal)

Prize fighting is brutal, and it is hard to perceive why the masses of people take so live an interest in it. But they do. Every man and lad in the land is eager to hear the first news and all the news of every encounter.

Baseball, football, tennis and other sports are pastimes for physical development and the reason for enthusiasm for them is clear. They are popular. Prize fighting is not popular, as it appeals to none of the better human ideals, yet it attracts keen attention from millions of people. The interest is the same that is taken in any big gamble.

EVERLASTING KILLJOY
(Jacksonville Journal)

One thing more than any other, mars the joy of the automobile tourist. It is the everlasting detour. Just as he settles down to a good day's driving he finds himself confronted with a "Detour" sign, has to turn miles off the main road, over uncomfortable byways, with always a chance of breaking his springs on a bumpy stretch or getting stuck in the mud. The thing spoils the tourist's pleasure likeness, spoils the business and lessens the convenience of people living in the neighborhood who are obliged to use the roads regularly.

"They ought to be willing to go around for a while for the sake of getting a good, new road," say those who put up the detour signs. So they ought, if there were no other way to obtain good roads.

But the maddening thing about it is that in most cases these detours are unneccessary. Nearly always it would be possible for the contractors to build the new roadway one-half at a time, letting traffic go along the other side in the meantime, or to make a temporary passage along the side of the road.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

PRICKLY HEAT

Perhaps you are wondering why I am bothering about such a simple thing as prickly heat.

It is an innocent sort of thing, just a lot of very small elevation or pimples on the skin during the hot weather.

You see the excessive heat makes your sweat glands work so hard to get rid of the heat from your body, that they get swollen and inflamed. So that every one of those pimples is really the opening into a sweat gland.

Now the reason I want to talk about it is that it is not only a most annoying condition in itself with its itching, burning, and tingling, but because neglected treatment and careless scratching of these little eruptic points causes many cases of eczema, one of the most obstinate conditions known to physicians.

As to the cause.

Well, of course the heat is directly responsible, but the wearing of flannel next to the skin, and very hot drinks, are te most frequent causes in people subject to prickly heat.

So if you find yourself with the usual rash, your best plan is to get busy and combat it.

How?

By avoiding flannels, dressing in light cool clothes. By indulging in cool baths to keep the skin free from decomposed perspiration.

In drying the skin after the bath, just pat it dry with a soft towel, do not rub it at all. Then apply ordinary powdered starch to the affected parts. If you have a real honest-to-goodness attack covering the entire body, a bath in which you have thrown a couple of handfuls of baking soda will give you great relief. Dry, and apply starch powder as before.

In fact our old friend baking soda gives remarkable relief in all burning of the skin. Men in military and construction camps simply plunge their face, head, and arms into tubs filled with this "soda" water.

Editors of Canada's Weekly Newspapers Photographed at Halifax.

No annual convention trip which the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association has ever taken has been more memorable than that which has just been completed. Newspaper men from all parts of Canada—from as far west as Vancouver Island, B. C., and as far north as The Pas, Manitoba met together at Toronto to board the special Canadian Pacific train that was to take them by a series of easy stages to Halifax, Nova Scotia. The editors and their wives and some children numbered altogether about 180, and it took a train of twelve cars to accommodate them. The train was made up of eight standard sleepers, two diners, a baggage car, and a compartment observation car which added greatly to the comfort of the trip. The train was manned by a picked crew of operators and stewards and was accompanied by W. B. Howard, Assistant General Passenger Agent, and Mr. J. Harry Smith, Canadian Press Representative of the Canadian Pacific Railway. The success of the trip was to a large extent due to the organizing ability of E. Roy Sayles, Manager of the Association.

Pulled by one of Canada's finest locomotives the train made a special run to Montreal arriving there ahead of time schedule, and the party was joined by many Quebec members. The next stop was at Fredericton, N. B. where the citizens joined in a splendid welcome to the travellers. The Lieutenant Governor, and Premier Veniot of New Brunswick gave a reception and dance in the Legislative Chamber, and the party moved on to St. John where similar hospitality was enjoyed. On the Canadian Pacific steamer "Princess" the party enjoyed a delightful sail to Digby, N. S., from where the trip through the Annapolis Valley to Halifax was made over the Dominion Atlantic Railway. The wonderful orchards and dike-lands of the Evangeline country were looking their best and a stop was made to visit old Fort Anne at Annapolis Royal where much of the early history of Eastern Canada was made. Kentville's fine band turned out with the population to greet the newspaper people, and here as in most other places touched, citizens came with autos to give the visitors a glimpse of the surrounding country.

The ancient city of Halifax outdid herself in hospitality, and here the annual convention was held. At one of the meetings it was decided that the annual trip would next year be to England and France. The members will thus have a chance to visit the great Empire Exhibition at Wembly. The return trip was made via Canadian National to Quebec where the party was entertained by the Canadian Pacific at the famous Chateau Frontenac. The newly elected president of the Association is J. E. Fortin, of "L'Eclaireur," Beauceville, Que.

EVERY SPORT AT A GLANCE

YANKS DO WELL IN INTERNATIONAL SPORTS

By Paul R. MALLON.

(United Press Staff Correspondent).

New York, July 19—(United Press)—America has carried off the honors in early season international sport competition.

Yankee athletes who sailed to Europe this spring and summer to meet the best of the old continent in competition have returned with unprecedented laurels.

The American Walker cup team started things off when, with a brilliant spurt the U. S. golfers came from behind and downed the Britishers. It was a victory for Yankee coolness and courage

Then Charlie Paddock went to France despite the protestations of the A. A. U and smashed a few sprint records for French spectators. The American girl swimming champions also went over, but they heeded the demands of the A. A. U. and did not compete.

William M. Johnston borrowed a tennis raquet and cleaned up the hard courts at St. Cloud, France, defeating all comers for the championship of the world.

American golf professionals went to Troon and, although they lost first place to the brilliant Britisher Arthur Havers, they took the next three places and played the best collective golf of the tournament. In prize matches they carried the honors and won most of the money.

Then, for the climax, Johnston and Francis T. Hunter decided to stage an all-American finals in the All-England tennis tournament. They beat down the British men in the singles and won first and second place for America.

Only Vincent Richards, the youthful Yonkers star, fell below the mark that had been hopefully set for him, but the performance of Johnston and Hunter more than made up for this.

The matches at Wimbledon proved what already had been known—that the United States probably has the best three tennis players in the world. The three can be selected from William T. Tilden, the champion; Bill Johnston Francis Hunter and Vincent Richards.

With this array of stars there seems to be no doubt about who is going to retain the Davis Cup.

But it is also shown that America is woefully weak in the doubles, mixed doubles and women's singles. This is a situation that should be remedied, if someone could induce the stars to bend their efforts towards team play.

It is not enough that America should have the best players. She should have the best teams.

Georges Carpentier and Joe Beckett still are names with which to conjure money and publicity in Europe.

The farce they staged recently when they went through all the motions of being matched again in a new fight, occupied columns of the London newspapers.

It seems Beckett's hands are bad. The Englishman said he couldn't fight on July 19, the date first set for the contest. Carpentier then asked that the match be made for July 26, but Beckett frowned on that.

Then Carpentier went to a doctor and had his hands examined.

Carpentier's physicians said his hands were in worse condition than Beckett's.

So the only fight anyone could stir up between these two beaten ex-champions who were sought for a "consolation" match, was over the worst hands.

Contests for the ladies singles will take place shortly. Mrs. D. M. Waters is vice-president ofthe ladies club

The members of the mens bowling club have challenged the ladies to a game which will be played next Friday, providing the challenge is accepted.

The gentlemen of the local club are entertaining several rinks from Napanee tonight.

SPORTING SKITS

The Leafs tucked away another game yesterday, Preston being comparatively easy picking, although Nichols pitched a clever game. He may improve from now on, as he is a good hot weather pitcher, and may give the Terriers some trouble the next time he stacks up against them. Goyer showed some of his real form yesterday and is going right. Any pitcher who can make fourteen of his opponents strike out is doing nice work, even if they are not the strongest hitters in the world.—Herald.

Bowmanville, July 18.—Bowmanville White Sox of the Central League tied with Oslers of Toronto, 6 to 6, here tonight. After Mackay and Lewis had been chased from the mound by the locals. Spring had all he could could do to save his team from defeat.

Umpire—Large, of Bowmanville.

Jack Langtry, well-known in Eastern hockey circles, having played goal for Toronto University in 1921, when they defeated Brandon for the Allan cup, has arrived at Fort William to take up residence, and is expected to play for Fort William next winter.

George Peacock's Durant Motors crew from Leaside motored into town on the half holiday, met and defeated the Lindsay Central League nine, once noted as Greybirds, by the score of 11 to 1 and experienced very little difficulty in piling up the score. They were in good condition while the Greybirds were hopelessly beaten. All honor to the Lindsay team for sticking out the season and playing the scheduled games, but the game was surely a misfit. It was a half holiday and the citizens of Lindsay spent their time elsewhere than at the ball park. The attendance was very limited and mostly comprised of small boys. However, a number of loyal supporters witnessed the conflict and many enjoyed the game. For a time it looked as if the Birds would at least hold the score down to presentable figures, but it soon developed into a walk-away for the Leaside nine.—Post.

Lacrosse Juveniles Will Do Battle With Deseronto Tomorrow

The Belleville juvenile lacrosse team play in Deseronto on Saturday afternoon and although they have not been practising steadily in the past two weeks they hope to give the Green Shirts a battle on their home lot. It is hard to entice the lads out to practice in the hot weather, and next year the local management will bring up a motion to the effect that the schedule shall be completed by the end of June. The boys have not done very well this year but hope to cut a bigger figure next season in the race.

The Orange and Black should now have four straight wins, having lost three close games by a twist of the luck.

Stub Barrett has a good bunch of youngsters on his midget team and some of them will make good lacrosse players if they stick at the game.

Deseronto have a mighty nifty gang, both on the juvenile and midgets, and have both practically cinched the group. Here's hoping they bring at least one title east. Harry Moore of Deseronto has done excellent work in organizing the game in this district and is a real live wire. Fred Panter as manager of the Wanderers has been the man of the hour on several occasions. The local teams hope to put on an entertainment in the near future in order to gain a surplus on which to start next season.

In order to gain a friendly spirit between the four teams in this group we would suggest that a banquet be arranged at the end of the season, to which players on all four teams might be invited.

The Deseronto Post says:

"Belleville juveniles will make their last appearance in this town this season when they stack up against the Leaders on Saturday evening at 6.15 Belleville has the idea that they might be able to take a fall out of the green shirts and in the present condition of the latter the city boys may surprise everybody and do so. The Leaders have lost Jack Dale and his place at first defence is going to be hard to fill. Eric Provins will likely be moved back and Morris Maracle, who is one of the fastest runners hereabouts, will go on at second defence. It should be a game worth seeing in any event. A win for the Leaders and the league championship is ours with a chance to go up into the semi-finals against the winner of the Havelock-Hastings game at Norwood."

The following players will please meet at 1.30 sharp tomorrow at the Y.M.C.A. for the trip to Deseronto Colling, Ross, Scott, Lafferty, Facey Donahue, La Barr, Cole, Faulkner Moffat, Oakes, Weir, Ketcheson, Barlow, Wallbridge, and any other juveniles whose names have been omitted.

Four Local Boats to Try for Honors in Big Regatta Here

That the coming Lake Yacht Racing Association regatta to be held off Massassaga Point on August 1 to 3, under the auspices of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club will be one of the largest events of its kind ever staged in Canada. Boats from practically every yacht club on the Great Lakes will be here for the big event. Something will be doing every minute of the three days. Racing, dancing, sports and banquets will make up the daily features of the program.

Practically every yacht that took part in last year's regatta will be back again, together with many others. The citizens in general should put all efforts forth to aid the committees in charge in making the affair a success.

The local yachts, Temeraire, Helen, Thistle and Ripple will all take part in the regatta.

Mr. T. F. B. Benson, naval architect of the R.C.Y.C. and designer of the famous yacht Nayada, will be among the officials present.

The Lake Yacht Racing Association Council consists of the following: G. A. World, O.C.Y.C.; John T. Mott, O.Y.C.; L. A. Block, R.Y.C.; T. B. F. Benson, R.C.Y.C.; E. S. Lansing, C.Y.C.; J. Catchpole, N.Y.C.; W. E. Schuster, B.Q.Y.C.

Dr. Bruce Taylor, principal of Queen's University, with his two daughters, will sail the famous yacht "Scrapper," in the coming regatta.

Visiting yachtsmen will be the guests of the officers and directors of the Belleville Club on Monday, July 30. On Tuesday, July 31, a dance will be held at the Bay of Quinte Club. Invitations will be sent out this week for a ball to be held by the B.Q.Y.C. at Massassaga Point on Thursday, August 2.

Mr. Edward Lansing, commodore of the Crescent Yacht Club, will be among the celebrants present.

Among the features of the regatta will be a motor boat race between the Banzai of Watertown and the Condor of Hamilton. Both are Great Lakes express cruisers and are real fast boats. Dinghy races will also be included on the program.

JUDGES ANNOUNCED

The George Cup Committee has announced the names of the judges for the great International Yachting contest at Chaumont Bay, July 25th to 27th as follows:—

Dr. Borden, Crescent Yacht Club, Watertown, N. Y.

W. E. Schuster, Bay of Quinte Yacht Club, Belleville Ont.

Dr. Jammot, Kingston Yacht Club.

G. Ernest Macrae, Royal Canadian Yacht Club, Toronto, Ont.

J. E. Otis, Oswego Yacht Club, N.Y.

The yacht "Nayada" representing the Royal Canadian Yacht Club, Toronto dipped her ensign last night as she slipped away from her moorings and received the answering salute from the Club House, and as the big blue royal ensign was lowered as a good-bye signal, the booming of cannon and the cheers of the yachts well wishes made a very happy beginning to what all Royal Canadian Yacht Club members trust may have a successful finish.

Petes' Victory Is Hailed By Scribe "As Doubly Sweet"

(Peterboro Examiner)

Yesterday's win at Belleville was sweet revenge for Manager Solomon's Petes for it not only put the local crew out in front in the second section race but it atoned considerably for the tough break in Saturday's game here when the rain robbed the Petes of a chance to overcome the slender lead of one run set up by Belleville in the third.

It was Belleville's Civic holiday and a big crowd saw the battle, the finish of which they did not enjoy in the least. The final score was 6 to 5 for the Solomon crew, who won the game once, lost it again and then carved their way into the lead at the finish by nicking the tying run off Jack Oulette in the ninth and the winning marker off Jack Williams in the tenth. Williams was sent in to make the game safe for the Grand Trunks but one inning was enough to allow the Petes to win.

It was the first game Al Heckman has won in Belleville and coming after the 15-0 beating the Petes sustained on their last visit there was doubly sweet. And at that Heckman should have won by the shut-out route, . Belleville's first counter being the result of a bad throw by Johnston while their four runs in the sixth came after chances to retire the side had been lost and the last of the quartette was on a pop fly which Helson lost sight of completely in the sun and which dropped for a hit instead of an easy out. Up to that inning Belleville had only secured three hits, two of them decidedly lucky ones. The blow up in the sixth which put Belleville ahead after the Petes had secured practically a safe lead was a heartbreaker for the pitcher, but he worked on steadily blanking the enemy for the rest of the engagement and had the reward of having the game finally pulled out of the fire for him.

JACK WILLIAMS WILL HURL IN TRUNKS-COBOURG GAME TOMORROW

The Trunks entertain Cobourg tomorrow at the agricultural field in a game which should draw a large crowd. The lake shore laddies have built a practically new team and their win from Kingston on Wednesday causes a stir in the local camp. The Petes' win here on Wednesday puts them in an enviable position with excellent chances of winning the second half. Jack Williams will be picked for mound duty tomorrow and just now he is in excellent trim. Stanley Hagerman will be behind the bat, and if he'll just watch that throw of his down to second, everything will be fine.

Factory workers who have not thus far had a chance to see the boys in action will get their first glimpse tomorrow, as this is the first Saturday game of the season.

Williams will likely be opposed by Jahren, who generally pitches a fairly steady game.

The Trunks leave on Monday morning for Ottawa where they engage the famous St. Pats of the capital in a series of exhibition games.

Alex. Kay of Peterboro and George Sullivan of Kingston, the best two umps. that Belleville have had, will officiate in tomorrow's game.

Ginger Ale Punch

Make a syrup by boiling 1 cup sugar and 2 cups water 12 minutes. Add ½ cup lemon juice. Strain and chill. Dilute with 1 pint ginger ale. Serve in thin glasses half filled with cracked ice.

JELLIED FISH SALAD

2 pounds sole or any large fish
1 tablespoon gelatin
Hard-boiled eggs
Parsley
1 clove
1 blade of mace
1½ cups stock
½ cup cold water
Salt and a pinch of Cayenne
½ bay-leaf
Lettuce leaves
Mayonnaise

Cut the fish into small fillets. Place the stock and the spices in a stewpan and simmer for about twenty minutes, then strain, add the fish and simmer until tender in this; remove the fish carefully without breaking, and stir the gelatin that has been dissolved in cold water into the liquid that remains—there should be at least a cup of the spiced stock; if not, add a little more stock or water. Line a wetted mold or molds with sliced hard-boiled eggs. Place the fish fillets on top of this, then pour over the aspic. Chill, turn out on lettuce leaves and surround with mayonnaise dressing.

ASPARAGUS AU GRATIN

Two small bunches asparagus or one large bunch, one cup white sauce, two tablespoons grated cheese, buttered crumbs, salt and pepper. Boil asparagus until tender in slightly salted, boiling water. Drain and remove strings from bundles. Put a layer in a well buttered baking dish. Cover with white sauce; add salt and pepper. Add another of asparagus and white sauce with seasonings. Continue layer for layer until all is used. Sprinkle with buttered crumbs and cover with grated cheese. Put in a hot oven for 15 minutes to melt the cheese and brown the crumbs.

KATE'S WEDDING

Kate's wedding made Jimmy feel sick,
For they had been always so thick;
For a fellow to marry
His sister and carry
Her far away seemed a mean trick.

Jimmy stuck up his nose and sauntered out to the garage in disgust. All this fuss and feathers made him sick. He didn't see why they had to tear the house down almost every time one of his sisters got married. How he hated weddings, Kate's especially! Kate was near his own age and had always been a regular pal to him. What would he ever do without her? He buried his face in the seat of the old Ford and sobbed.

Kate was too young to be getting married. Why, she was only three years older than he was. He supposed his mother would be expecting him to get married next. Not if he knew it! He wouldn't steal a fellow's sister and take her away out West.

And this was another thing that made Kate's wedding so much worse than his other sister's. She was marrying a fellow she had met when she was visiting out in California and she would go out there to live. Jimmy had never yet seen the young man, but he had worked up a terrible hatred for him. His train was due any time now, and the wedding was to be shortly after he arrived.

"Hello, there! I suppose you're Jimmy." Jimmy sat up suddenly and hoped that the garage was too dark for his visitor to see any traces of tears. A young fellow was coming across the garage. "Gee, I'm glad to get out of there. Aren't weddings fierce?" He sat down and mopped his brow.

Jimmy liked him immediately. "I suppose you're one of the ushers," he said. "I don't like weddings, either. I'm never going to have one, are you?"

The fellow laughed. "Well, it looks to me like I wouldn't. Fellows never have them—it's just girls."

"Gee, I wish Kate could have had hers without that poor boob from California. I hate him. Now, if she were marrying you! Shoot—I wish she was."

They talked a long time, and Jimmy learned that the young usher was from California, too. "That's all that's against you," he said.

"Oh, here you are!" Kate rushed into the garage and, to Jimmy's amazement, threw her arms around the young usher's neck. "Oh, I'm so happy! What do you think! Mother has just promised that Jimmy may spend the summer with us in California. Won't we three have a wonderful time?"

WINTER DISEASES, LIKE FLU, LARGELY DUE TO SUMMER HABITS.

Everyone remembers the dread flu following the war. Few recall the absence of flu and most diseases during the war, or know that neither before, during, nor after the war, were flu, pneumonia, etc., prevalent among races not following civilization's food habits. Why was this?

Blood must be kept alkaline by eating alkaline foods, yet civilized races refine out of their most important foods—the grains—the alkaline salts, just to make flour white, cereals dainty. The result is acid blood. Acids leave the blood by the skin, linings of nose, throat, lungs, etc., irritating these surfaces and lowering body vitality, enabling disease germs to attack the body.

During the war acid forming white flour, refined cereals, meats, sweets were controlled. Alkaline whole grains, milk, nuts, beans, vegetables and fruits were increased. There was no flu. After the war people glutted themselves upon acid-forming white flour, refined cereals, fats, etc., resulting in millions of deaths through flu. Flu will continue its ravages while stupid food habits prevail.

Roman Meal is richly alkaline. 400 parts in each 1,000 "Excess Alkali." It corrects the acids of white flour, other cereals, meats, fats and sweets, keeping the blood alkaline, Nature's own immunizer against disease, which protects the savage who lives upon natural foods. Use Roman Meal some way every day. It relieves constipation, prevents indigestion, alkalinizes the blood, keeps you well. It was designed by a physician-dietitian, aware of the "Deficiencies" of modern refined foods, for this very purpose. Delicious, easily prepared, economical. At grocers.

PATRICIA BRENT SPINSTER

ANONYMOUS

"To ride on Peggy's 'magic carpet,' as she calls it," said the Duke, "is to be admitted to the household as a friend. Come again soon," he added as he shook hands in parting. "Any Sunday at lunch you are always sure to catch us. We never give special invitations to the friends we want, do we, Peggy? and I want to have some more talks with you".

As Patricia and Elton walked towards the Park, he explained that Lady Peggy's tea-tray had figured in many little comedies. Bishops, Cabinet Ministers, great generals and admirals had all descended the stairs in the way Patricia had.

"In fact," he added, "when the Duke was in the Cabinet, it was the youngest and brightest collection of Ministers in the history of the country. Every one of them was devoted to Peggy, and I think they would have made war or peace at her command."

When Patricia arrived at Galvin House, she was conscious of the world having changed since the morning. All her gloom had been dispelled, the drawn look had passed from her face, and she felt that a heavy weight had been lifted from her shoulders.

Chapter XVIII

THE AIR RAID.

Miss Brent, please get up. There's an air raid."

Mechanically Patricia sat up in bed and listened. Outside a police-whistle was droning its raucous warning; within there was the sound of frightened whispers and the noise of the opening and shutting of doors. Suddenly there was a shriek, followed by a low murmur of several voices. The sound of the police-whistle continued, gradually dying away in the distance, and the noises within the house ceased.

Patricia strained her ears to catch the first sound of the defensive guns. She had no intention of getting up for a false alarm. For some minutes there was silence, then came a slight murmur, half sob, half sigh, as if London were breathing heavily in her sleep, another followed, then half a dozen in quick succession growing louder with every report. Suddenly came the scream of a "whiz-bang" and the thunder of a large gun. Soon the orchestra was in full swing.

Still Patricia listened. She was fascinated. Why did guns sound exactly as if large planks were being dropped? Why did the report seem as if something were bouncing? Suddenly a terrific report, a sound as if a giant plank had been dropped and had "bounced." A neighbouring gun had given tongue, another followed.

She jumped out of bed and proceeded to pull on her stockings. There was a gentle tapping at her door, not the peremptory summons that had awakened her and which, by the voice that had accompanied it, she recognised as that of Mrs. Crasko-Morton.

"What is it?" she called out.

"It's me, mess." Patricia could scarcely recognize in the terrified accents the voice of Gustave. "It's a raid. Oh! mees, please come down."

"All right, Gustave. I shall be down in a minute," replied Patricia, and she heard a flurry of retreating footsteps. Gustave was descending to safety. There was about him nothing of the Roman sentry.

Patricia proceeded with her toilette hastened, in spite of herself, by a tremendous crash which she recognised as a bomb.

At Galvin House "Raid Instructions" had been posted in each room. Guests were instructed to hasten with all possible speed downstairs to the basement-kitchen, where tea and coffee would be served and, if necessary, bandages and first-aid applied. Miss Sikkum had made a superficial study of Red Cross work from a shilling manual; but as, according to her own confession, she fainted at the sight of blood, no very great reliance was placed in her ministrations.

As Patricia entered the kitchen her first inclination was to laugh at the amazing variety, not only of toilettes but of expressions that met her eyes. Self-confident in the knowledge that she was fully dressed, she looked about with interest.

"Oh, here you are, Miss Brent!" exclaimed Mrs. Crasko-Morton, who was busily engaged in preparing the tea and coffee of the "Raid Instructions." "Gustave would insist on going up to call you a second time. We were——" Mrs. Crasko-Morton broke off her sentence and dashed for the gas-stove, where the milk was boiling over.

"Oh, mees!" Patricia turned to Gustave. She bit her lip fiercely to restrain the laugh that bubbled up at the major-domo of Galvin House.

Above a pair of black trousers, tucked in the tops of unlaced boots, and from which the braces flapped aimlessly, was visible the upper part of a red flannel night-shirt. The remainder was bestowed beneath the upper part of the trousers, giving to his figure a curiously knobbly appearance. His face was leaden-coloured and his upstanding hair more erect than ever, whilst in his eyes was Fear.

He was trembling in every limb, and his jaw shook as he uttered his expression of relief at the sight of Patricia. She smiled at him, then suddenly remembering that, in spite of his terror, he had voluntarily gone up to the top of the house to call her, she felt something strangely uncomfortable at the back of her throat.

Yellow Monkeys and Polecats of Blue

By HEDDA HOYT

Fashion Editor of the United Press

(Written for the United Press)

New York, N.Y., July 20—(United Press)—

A purple cow some folks avow,
Is something never been seen.
But I have seen orange monkey fur
And chipmonk pelts dyed green.

Red crocodiles quite lead the styles
When made up into shoes.
The lowly skunk, when it's defunct
Is dipped in brilliant hues.

If Noah knew the things they do
I'm sure t'would be his wish;
That he had sunk his little ark
And fed his pets to fish.

Each season manufacturerers spring some new and unheard of fur on us. Do you ever wonder where they get these new animals? As far as scientists know, we have fewer species of animals to-day than we had in the days when Noah herded a car-load of them on his Ark. So don't be deceived by the fancy names and colors of the latest furs, for they may only be the common garden variety of cat sailing under new names and flying new colors.

NEW FUR CLAIMED

Recently I saw a smart little jacquette made of chipmonk pelts which were dyed beyond all recognition. The saleswoman said that this was a new fur called 'Marmaduke." She was positive that it was not ordinary chipmonk. The little weasel flies about under the disguise of summer ermine. Weasel, though not as soft as ermine, is a good substitute for ermine and when dyed in the tannish shade, is very lovely.

Who ever heard of a "kolinsky"? In the words of the bellhop, "there ain't no such animal!" Yet a year or so ago everyone wanted a coat made of kolinsky fur. No one thinks of calling a muskrat a seal, but most of our so-called "seal" coats are made of muskrat skins. There were thousands of short summer jacquettes this year made of ordinary cat skins, which had been dyed in light colors. They were not called catskin jacquettes, however!

A BLUE POLECAT

Not content with the natural coloring of furs, manufacturers have concocted all sorts of becoming shades such as gray blue, tannish yellows, platinums, and beige. On many of the imported gowns one sees such trimmings as yellow monkey, bluish polecat and other colors unknown to the animal kingdom.

Leathers, likewise, are dyed in riotus colors this season. The fashionable world believes in wearing the pelts of the animal kingdom not "as is," but as the manufacturers color them. And what would the fashion world be without the beasts of the forests and the fish of the seas?

FISHSKIN PEARLS

Even sea shells are being used as hat decorations. Milady's pearls are made their cocoons toward making our crepe de chene undergarments. The whale's bones give us tapering hips. I am told that we owe the whale much of our best perfumery. Our shoes, our suits, in fact, almost everything that we wear is made of some animal or other. Our ostrict plumes have been ripped out of birds that have been raised just for this purpose.

Stop and think how many animals your costume represents! A mole coat has from 800 to 1,000 skins in it. Is it any wonder they say "the female of the species is more deadly than the male"?

A CLEVER CARD TRICK

Take a deck of cards, shuffle, and, passing them behind your back, take the bottom card from the deck and place it face up on the top of the deck. Now explain to your audience that you are going to hold the cards in front of you, cards facing them and in a position which prevents you from seeing the cards. Tell them that if they will tell you the first card, the one which you have slipped from the bottom of the deck, you will tell them every other one in turn.

As you hold the "planted card" toward the audience, you can see the card on the bottom of the deck, and when the audience tells you what the first card is, slip the deck behind your back again, being careful to give the appearance that you are not looking to see what the next card is.

Slip the card from the bottom of the deck on top and then take the same position as before, holding the cards in front of you.

Raspberry Jam

Crush well about 2 quarts ripe berries. Measure 4 level cups (2 lbs.) of crushed berries into large kettle. Add 7 level cups (3 lbs.) sugar and mix well. Use hottest fire and stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard for one full minute. Remove from fire and stir in half bottle (scant ½ cup) Certo. From time jam is taken off the fire allow to stand not over 5 minutes, by the clock, before pouring. In the meantime skim, and stir occasionally to cool slightly. Then pour quickly. If in open glasses paraffin at once. If in jars seal at once, and invert for 10 minutes to sterilize the tops. Use the same recipe for Blackberry or Loganberry Jam.

League of Nations Societies at Vienna

Franco-German Rappochement

(By W. Gleave Bowle, special representative in Europe of the League of Nations Society in Canada).

Vienna, June 27.—At the closing meeting of the Assembly to-day, I witnessed a moving scene of reconciliation between French and German delegates when the question of German Reparations, Inter-Allied Debts, and the security of frontiers was discussed.

The International Federation of League of Nations Societies is holding this week its seventh session at the Hofburg, the former State residence of the Austrian royal family, which has been placed at its disposal by the courtesy of the Austrian Government. The standard of oratory was of a very high order, and eloquent speeches were delivered by M. Jean Hennessy, President of "La Ligue pour l'Organisation de la Societe des Nations", the celebrated French Deputy; M. Henri Rolin, the leading Belgian delegate; Dr. Henry A. Atkinson, of the League of Nations Union, New York; Count Mensdorff, Austrian Ambassador to England at the outbreak of war; and Count Bernstorff, former German Ambassador to the United States.

M. Hennessy began by defending the action of the French Government in occupying the Ruhr, which, he said, was quite within its rights under the Treaty of Versailles. The atmosphere at this moment became charged with uncertainty bordering on apprehension. However, he assured the Germans that they could make themselves easy as the French had no idea of annexation. He then went on to speak of the late war, using dramatic phrases and gestures. He recalled the useless and appalling sacrifices of both nations at Verdun, where solid walls of splendid men, French and German, were hurled at each other for weeks without any appreciable advantage to either side. He then struck a deep note of tragedy and sympathy when he spoke of a visit to the battlefield, where a custodian showed him a cemetery which the man described as beautiful (at the word "beautiful" M. Hennessy's tone became tinged with irony), where thousands of dead patriots reposed in their last long sleep. The man also spoke of another cemetery, larger and still more beautiful in course of construction; where the bones of many more thousands of soldiers would rest, French and German, inextricably mingled and indistinguishable one from another.

M. Hennessy was wholly in favour of placing the Reparations question in the hands of the League of Nations.

Court Bernstorff also spoke with deep feeling, and was plainly agitated. In his reply, he said that it was only the assurance of the French delegates, that they were willing to agree that Germany should have a place of absolute equality in the League of Nations, that made it possible for him to accept the proposals before the Assembly. If the French Government had only spoken to his Government as M. Hennessy had now spoken, there would have been no need for them to be discussing this question of Reparations. He further said that disintegration was the great fear of the German people, especially after the occupation of the Ruhr; they feared that they might lose the Rhine Provinces. "Remove this fear", he said, "and the world would stand astonished at the sacrifices the German people would make".

The whole Assembly was moved, some visibly, at this spectacle of rapprochement, the sincerity of which was patent, between these former bitter antagonists. The resolutions were adopted unanimously, and it was proposed and carried that copies should be sent to the Government more particularly concerned, viz:—Great Britain, France, Germany, Belgium and the United States.

The resolutions were as follows:—

1—That the Federation of League of Nations Societies is of the opinion that the machinery of the League of Nations should be used to secure, with the assistance of Germany and, if possible, of the United States, a general settlement of the connected questions of Reparations, inter-allied debts and the security of frontiers.

2.—That the Federation of League of Nations Societies calls particular attention to the fact that an organization invested with the high international authority that appertains to the League of Nations can examine these problems as a whole, as well as in detail, with more impartiality and with greater care than the separate Governments can do; and in particular may be able to achieve more effectively and rapidly:

1.—The fixing of Germany's real capacity to pay.

2.—The application of the principle that the restitution of the devastated areas should be the first charge on whatever sums are paid by Germany.

3.—The organization in Germany on an international basis of such supervision as a solution of the problem may involve.

4.—The utilization of international credit.

3.—The Assembly urges the constituent societies of the Federation, each in its own way, to bring all possible pressure to bear on national and international opinion with a view to giving the fullest publicity and the utmost practical effect to the policy contained in the foregoing resolutions.

FAVOR RESISTANCE POLICY

Essen, July 20.—The German trade union council for the occupied territory passed a resolution against the efforts of the leaders of the Rhineland republic movement, and in favor of the continuance of passive resistance at all cost.

MOVE PLANNED AT ST. CATHERINES

Ottawa, July 20.—The first seizure of papers under the Ontario Anti-Betting Information Law and the federal statute implementing same was made here under the authority of Fred M Journaux, local collector of customs acting on instructions from the federal customs department.

St. Catharines, July 20.—Crown Attorney E. H. Lancaster intimated that action would be taken against Buffalo papers breaking anti-betting law by publishing tips on races. Today's Buffalo Courier came into this city as usual, containing Collyer's tips and the selections at various tracks. So far the St. Catharines bundles of Buffalo papers have not been stopped by the customs officers at the border

Firms File Action Involving Agreement

Toronto, July 19.—The Ontario & Finance Corporation, Limited, of Toronto, and the Chemical Products Limited, of Trenton, have entered action at Osgoode Hall against the Canadian Industrial Bond Corporation, Limited. Thomas P. Birchall, Robert J. Cluff and William J. Cluff, to recover payment of moneys alleged due under certain agreements.

Under an agreement of December 10, 1920, it is alleged the Canada Industrial Bond Co., agreed to purchase from the Ontario & Quebec Finance Corporation, 2,400 preference shares of Chemical Products Limited, for $240,000. The individual defendants, it is alleged, guaranteed the payment of the purchase price. The moneys payable were assigned by the Ontario and Quebec Finance Corporation to Chemical Products Limited. An order for the sale of certain stocks deposited by the individual defendants as security for the carrying out of their guarantee is asked, the proceeds to be applied on account of the plaintiff's claim.

ENCOURAGEMENT FOR THE DELIBERATE.

Here you are, poky folks: The Joplin (Mo.) Globe says deliberation saves more time than it wastes.

FOND IMAGINATION.

A woman never realizes how many men she could have married until she finds herself left at the post.

In the matter of engraving

We can be of service to you.

Lots of you folks need something in this line.

You have doubtless many monogram space unlettered.

You have silverware and tableware ditto.

You have watches with the an article that would be improved in a worth-while way by a little attention on the part of our engraver.

Bring them in. All of them.

Choose your style of lettering... Trust to us to give them that desired artistic effect.

Surprising how a small sum spent thus adds to the apparent value of an article.

But now it makes her seasick—

As the Seasons Pass.

In winter, when my eyebrows freeze
And skies are cold and clear,
I read about the summer breeze,
And wish that it were here;
But when the heat-wave maximums
And sunshine make me ill,
I sit and read "If Winter Comes,"
And hope to gosh it will.

SHORT STORY

Poor Eleanor's floss got away
As she worked on the porch one fine day;
She looked everywhere
But gave up in despair
And vowed that the culprit should pay.

• • •

Eleanor's sister, was to be married soon. Eleanor was embroidering her a luncheon set. It really was going to be very pretty, indeed. Eleanor was ever so proud of it. She had secured a special floss with a slender thread of gold entwined in it. "There's just exactly enough," she said. "Wouldn't it be terrible if something happened to a strand of it? I never could get any more in time to finish it for the wedding."

Eleanor was anxious to work while her sister was not around, so one afternoon she took her embroidery and little brother Billy out on the porch. Billy watched while she worked. He had promised his mother that he would be good and not bother Eleanor. Pretty soon Frieda Smith came over and sat on the steps talking, but Eleanor did not stop her work.

"Oh, dear, there's the telephone," she complained, laying down her work at last. "Excuse me, I'll be back in a moment. Oh, please don't go," she called back as Frieda started to rise. It was her sister Edith calling. Before she was through Billy toddled in with the information that "Fweda" had "done homo." Eleanor hung up the receiver and went back to her work on the porch. Her floss was gone.

"Billy," she cried, "did you take sister's floss?"

Billy only looked scared. "Me no take fwoss," he piped.

"If you don't give it to me this minute I'll have Mother spank you!" Billy was strong in his denial. "Well, then, Frieda is playing a trick on me. She's taken it for a joke." Leaving her little brother on the porch, Eleanor tore over to Frieda's. But Frieda's concern was so sincere that Eleanor knew that she was not fooling her.

Mrs. Horne arrived home to find her little daughter in tears. "Billy took it, I know," she cried. "He was always asking for some."

"Me no take fwoss," Billy tearfully insisted.

"Maybe it blew away," suggested their mother. "What is that bright thing sticking out of the bird box"

Eleanor was back in a minute.

"That little Jenny Wren stole my floss," she said, and took tearful Billy in her arms.

SWEDISH LAW MAY POSTPONE ROYAL ROMANCE.—It has just been discovered that it will be necessary to change the Swedish law regarding the marriage of an heir to the throne to enable Crown Prince Gustay Adolph to wed Lady Louise Mountbatten, whose mother, the Marchioness of Milford Haven, is a first cousin of King George. According to the Swedish legal interpretation, Lady Louise would rank as a commoner. She is here seen with her mother and fiancee aboard a Swedish warship.

PERFECT GIRL LIVES ON TENNESSEE FARM

Marguerite Martin, who lives eight miles from Chattanooga, Tenn., and won the International Health contest, is not content with doing only one thing at a time. Although but fifteen years old, she is a leader in her county in club work of several kinds, an excellent swimmer, a good tennis player, and a brilliant student.

Until last December, Marguerite had never been outside of her own county, Hamilton, and had lived all her life on the little Tennessee farm. She is a "regular girl" and has no freak fads or fancies. Her only rules for eating are "to eat what you want to but not too much of it."

In being awarded the "perfection" championship in the International Health contest, Marguerite triumphed over 600,000 other boys and girls. The marks she made in these tests were so high that the judges first believed there was some mistake in the marking. A perfect score in all the contests held would have been 90; Marguerite made a total of 88.5.

So There, Smarty!

"The difference between a woman and a glass," said the funny fellow, "is that the glass reflects without speaking, while a woman speaks without reflecting."

"And the difference between you and a glass," said the sharp girl, "is that the glass is polished."

TENTING TONIGHT

Going camping? Then read this article to find out how to make a handy tent to take along.

When you go on that camping trip this summer you will need a good tent if you are going to be a real camper. Most good tents are expensive to buy at the sporting goods stores and they're often too cumbersome to use anyhow. The best kind of tent is one which does not require much space, is easily pitched, and is inexpensive. The tent described here is all of these.

First, buy about nine yards of unbleached muslin. Make this into a three-yard square. Fold this diagonally and sew on flaps for tent pegs at three corners. On the fourth corner, put an eyelet or a loop, through which a rope can be drawn. The tent can be quickly pitched by pegging down the three corners, passing a rope through the eyelet—to the corner diagonally opposite—and hitching this rope to a tree branch, thus making a tent pole unnecessary.

The tent, as it has been described, is not yet waterproof, and this must be tended to before the article is of any real value. To waterproof the tent, first take a washtub and fill it with hot water. In this, put pail, weight it down with several bricks, and put turpentine in the inner pail. Chip plenty of paraffin into the turpentine and the paraffin will melt.

Souse your tent in this mixture, making sure that it gets thoroughly saturated. Work outdoors, as the fumes of the turpentine may sicken you otherwise, and work fast. When the tent has been thoroughly saturated in the solution, hang it up to dry without wringing.

And These Centipedes!

"How old is your little brother, Johnny?" inquired Willie.

"Just a year old," replied Johnny.

"Huh, I've got a dog just a year old and he can walk twice as well as your brother."

"He ought to; he's got twice as many legs."

Careful.

The cake had been passed to everyone at the table but Bobbie, 3½ years old.

Bobbie—I'll take a piece of cake, please.

Mother—No, dear; banana cake is too heavy for little boys.

Bobbie (after several seconds of thought)—Well, I'll use both hands.

Imperial Grand Lodge of Order Gets Under Way at Winnipeg

REV. NESS PRESIDES

Council Sessions in 1926 May be Held in London, England

Winnipeg, Man., July 21.—Passage of a resolution by the Imperial Grand Orange council of the world, appealing to the British government to withdraw immediately the British envoy to the Vatican was applied for by Rev. David Ness, of Glasgow, Scotland.

Winnipeg, July 21.—With the accustomed pomp and ceremony, the eighteenth triennial convention of the Imperial Grand Orange Council of the World opened yesterday with Rev. David Ness, M.A., of White Inch, Glasgow, Scotland, presiding. This is the first time in the history of the order that the imperial council has met west of the Great Lakes, though on four previous occasions the imperial members have convened in the dominion.

London probably will be selected for the holding of the sessions in 1926, the English delegates being ready to extend an invitation before the council adjourns. There is no suggestion as to any other venue, nor mention of any possibility. Frederick Dane, of Toronto, imperial grand vice-president, will be elected to succeed Rev. David Ness as president, while it is expected T. R. Lavery, M.P., of Newtonwards, Ireland, probably will be the choice of the convention to succeed Mr. Dane.

BATTLE FOLLOWS DEATH OF VILLA

(United Press Despatch, Exclusive to The Intelligencer)

Mexico City, July 21.—Federal forces tramped through the hills near Santa Barbara at dawn today in search of seven assassins, who shot down Pancho Villa, the Mexican Robinhood, while he was driving his automobile down the street in a suburb of Parral.

Chihauhau City, Mexico, July 21.—General Francisco (Pancho) Villa commander of rebel armies in northern Mexico for ten years, was shot and killed yesterday morning at 8.30 o'clock at his big ranch at Canutillo Durango, by Miguel Trillo, his secretary.

A battle followed, in which Trillo was killed by men loyal to their slain chieftan. According to latest advices received from the ranch, the fight was still in progress last night.

More than 100 casualties have occurred in the sanguinary fighting which followed the shooting of Villa by Trillo.

BOY SCOUTS SHOW BIG GAIN

New York, July 12 (United Press)—Announcement has just been made by Chief Scout Executive James E. West, of a gain of 80,294 Boy Scouts since December 31, 1921, as a result of the nation-wide membership roundup. There are more Boy Scouts and officials in the United States than in all other countries combined the total in the United States being 612,911.

President Harding is awarding silk parade flag streamers to local councils and troops that make a 25 per cent gain in the roundup, sending the streamers with a special letter over his signature. Hundreds of these steamers have already been received and ceremoniously placed on the flags.

MASONIC GRAND LODGE SESSION MARKS RECORD IN LODGE HISTORY

Special Car Provided for Col. Ponton and Lord Ampthill

PREMIER APPLAUDED

Imperial Sentiment Evidenced at Banquet, Significant Feature.

The 68th Communication of the Grand Lodge of Canada in the Province of Ontario was the largest, most successful and most significant in the history of the Grand Lodge, Col. W. N. Ponton, K.C., of Belleville, retiring Grand Master, stated to-day.

Col. Ponton and Rt. Hon. Lord Ampthill, Pro-Grand Master of the United Grand Lodge of England, were guests of the Canadian National Railways on the return journey from Toronto yesterday. The railway company courteously placed at their disposal a special coach. Lord Ampthill proceeded to Quebec to embark for England.

"The communication just closed at Toronto, was really wonderful", said Col. Ponton. "The imperial sentiment evidenced and the spirit of comraderie were splendid. Every delegate declared it to be the most successful communication ever held by the Grand Lodge."

Col. Ponton said that Premier Ferguson's speech at the St. Andrew's Lodge banquet Thursday was a masterpiece of good taste and good statesmanship. "The Premier's speech was repeatedly applauded", said Col. Ponton and our distinguished English visitors were visibly impressed." Col. Sir John is a world-famed financial genius and Premier Ferguson found his views and comments particularly interesting. There were 2,169 delegates at the Communication.

Monster Masonic Parade Planned

Toronto, July 21.—R. W. Bro. Wm. Mikel, of Belleville, requested permission to hold a monster Masonic parade on June 17, 1924, in Belleville, to celebrate the progress of Masonry in this province during the last 100 years, at the closing of the Masonic Communication here. The grand master promised that the matter should receive careful consideration.

The parade will be staged in connection with the monster U.E. Loyalist celebration.

The sessions of the 68th annual communication of the Grand Lodge of Canada in Ontario, A.F. & A.M., beyond a doubt the most successful ever held, came to a termination with the installation.

French, of Toronto, grand senior warden. W. F. Montague, of Hamilton, became grand junior warden by acclamation. Rev. R. C. Blagrave, of Peterboro, was elected grand chaplain; E. T. Malone and W. M. Logan were re-elected grand treasurer and grand secretary, respectively.

A Mid-Ocean Dream

New York, July 21.—(United Press)—John Barleycorn is to have a kingdom of his own, according to announcement made in New York papers.

The top of Iceland or Labrador or some other land where the population is rather thin is to be sawed off and towed out into the Atlantic and anchored near the vessel lane. It is to be supported by gas buoys and for heating the island, gas mains are to be run under the sea from either Mts. Etna or Vesuvius, where the supply of both gas and heat are overwhelming.

Just how the physical details are to be arranged are not made public. But that is a mere detail and no one in New York questions the ability of the mechanical genious of North America enough to be seriously worried over such small problems.

As for the selection of the exact land to be decapitated, Iceland is in favor at present. It is pointed out that the British rather cling to Labrador, as their publishers are interested in the forests. Then, too, Iceland has more glaciers than Labrador. These can be tapped for ice-water and also for cracked ice, both expected to be in great demand on the new island.

The new kingdom is expected to be the final refuge for the thirsty world. When anchored, it is to be furnished with everything the most polished drunkard or mere beginner might desire. It will have its own hospitals D. T. refugees, etc., to say nothing of miles upon miles of glittering mirrors, brass rails and myriads of bartenders, with diamond headlights and spotless white coats.

While it is expected that the population turnover of the new kingdom will be rapid, it is pointed out that presence of the ocean on all sides of the island will make disposal of victims very easy—about the only kind thing the promoters care to say about that chemical combination of oxygen and hydrogen.

Wall street financiers believe the greatest difficulty in financing the project will come from the fact that the men who put in the $20,000,000 to start the kingdom on its way will have to moved by purely altruistic motives, as they cannot hope to live to enjoy the fruits of their labor and must build for their offspring. Some doubt is expressed by men accustomed to handling big projects whether even the most sincere drinkers will care to invest so heavily in a thirst-prevention devise for the coming generation.

No public announcement is expected for some time as to how the decapitation of the land selected and its safe transportation into the ocean is to be manager. It is admitted these things involve serious problems. It is hoped that further search of the tomb of the latest pharaoh to be despoiled will give mechanical details of the construction of the pyramids which will assist.

TO DEDICATE BELLEAU WOODS AS MONUMENT TO U. S. MARINES

Americans Rescue Sacred Spot From Amusement-Makers and Will Preserve It as World War Shrine

By A. L. BRADFORD
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, July 21.—(United Press).—The memory of American marines and other U. S. forces who "told it to the world" in the great Battle of Belleau Woods during the World War, will be consecrated to history at ceremonies in France, Sunday, July 22.

The Battle of Belleau Woods marked the final turning point where the tides of war swept up the American and allied armies and carried them on to victory. This battle has been called by General Pershing, the "Gettysburg of the World War."

Belleau Woods will be dedicated as a National Memorial to the American Troops "who participated in the final campaign which resulted in the victory of the Allied Armies, and the expulsion of the invader from the soil of France", the announcement states.

The dedication will be under the auspices of Belleau Woods Memorial Association, an organization formed by patriotic American men and women to commemorate the valor of the men of the American forces.

The association is incorporated under an act of Congress of March 3, 1923, as a non-profit-making organization. When Belleau Woods was about to be sold as an amusement park, the association stepped in and bought the tract.

Describing its present plans, the association states that they "include placing the woods in proper condition as a memorial to the men whose blood has consecrated it, the erection of fitting monuments and memorial tablets and a comprehensive work in the whole terrain in which the battle was waged to include certain reconstruction in the towns of Lucy, Corey, Bouresches and Belleau, and the preparation and marking of the whole area so that it will form a permanent American memorial in France to the Americans who died in the struggle for world freedom."

The honorary president of the Belleau Woods Association is Secretary of War Weeks, and the honorary vice-presidents include Le Marechal Foch.

Mine and Metal Men to Meet in Canada in August

New York, July 19 (United Press)—Mining engineers from this and other countries will make their summer pilgrimage next month to the heart of Canada's mineral riches. The program includes visits to leading mines and technical sessions at which prominent engineers from many sections of the country will describe the developing problems of mining and metallurgy.

Petroleum and gas will be among the principal general subjects of the technical sessions, which are to be held in Montreal. Public sentiment is being aroused and the campaign is showing results in the decrease of automobile accidents, according to police.

Three local newspapers have thrown every effort into the campaign, each printing column after column of safety propaganda.

One paper fostered a boulevard stop system, resulting in the city council passing an ordinance. Another paper opened and operated at its own expense free automobile inspection stations. Inspection of the mechanism of automobiles resulted in discovery of many faulty machines.

The third paper started a "safety contest", giving prizes for letters making suggestions of how to make the streets safer.

MURDER ONLY IS CROWN CLAIM

R. L. Calder Asserts Crime Was Cold-blooded and Premeditated

DEFENSE ELOQUENT

Assert Crown Failed to show Motive for Alleged Deed

Montreal, July 21.—R. L. Calder, for the Crown in the Delorme murder case, addressed the jury in English following the conclusion of the addreses for the defence. He said: —

"Gentlemen, if this is a crime at all, it is murder—murder, and nothing else.

"There are alternative verdicts which can be rendered in very many cases, such as manslaughter, but in this case, if the accused at the bar is not guilty of murder, he is guilty of nothing under the law. Because this was not a crime committed in sudden heat, this was not the flashing up of a quarrel, this was not one of those dolorous events in the life of a man where one man, suddenly moved by passion, kills another man near and dear to him, and regrets ever afterward.

"This is a cold-blooded, premeditated, carefully calculated and carefully hid murder.

"It is because this is a carefully calculated and carefully hidden murder that the Crown cannot bring you direct evidence to bear on the case. If you asked that in every case of premeditated murder the Crown should bring witnesses that have seen the thing done, then you might as well strike the article of premeditated murder from the code."

Montreal, July 21.—The latest supposition in the Delorme trial is that a verdict may be expected late tonight. In an address of two hours C. L. Cahan, K.C., associated with Aleyn Taschereau, K.C., in the defense of J. A. Delorme, yesterday, made an eloquent plea to the jury to have him found not guilty of the crime of fratricide. Insisting that there was no possible motive which could have prompted the accused to get rid of his half-brother, he warned the jury against the dangers of returning a verdict on purely circumstantial evidence, quoting the law and incidents of people similarly convicted who were afterwards found to be innocent.

The crown, he maintained, had absolutely failed to show that the murder had taken place in the house the afternoon prior to the finding of the body. There was nothing but a series of incidents that failed to connect the accused with the crime and because of that the jury should find him innocent.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

LIKE A HOUSE—THE LIBRARY

Even the smallest home has its library, its collection of books or just a portion of the house where you go to do your reading and your thinking. It is to that spot you retire when you wrestle with problems, cares, and worries. You keep your papers and documents there also.

Now the library of that body of yours is the brain. 'Tis there you direct all the affairs pertaining to the body. Every act, every thought, every fancy has its origin there.

You plan your work for the day, you learn some new fact, you work out some new problem, you learn a new popular song, you tuck away a good story—perhaps sometimes a bad one.

Just as in the library of the house you file away books and papers so likewise do you file away all the above things in your brain.

Did you ever think how useless that part of your house the library is.

Books and papers you once considered valuable you throw out as you go over them from time to time.

I met a professor a while ago who said that he never tried to remember a name or a date or similar things. That suited him insofar as his work was concerned.

I met a politician shortly afterwards and as he congratulated all the members of a championship football team he was able to address them all by name Christian name, and all. You see that suited him insofar as his work was concerned.

So take stock of the library—your mind. You know better than I do what you want to do with it. But keep it up to date like a set of books, where you remove the old useless matter and put in the new up-to-date useful matter.

And don't forget that the brain is repaired by fresh blood, removing the tired blood. This can only be done by exercising the body, the increased circulation making the changes for you.

SOLOMON TO THE SUMMER GIRL

Consider thy apparel, for fine feathers make fine birds, and no maiden with the glad rags is a homely as the Lord made her. Yet be not extravagant in thy attire, last some youth shall flee from thee, saying, "Wherewithal shall I get the scads to doll up this Jane in the similitude of the fashion plate to which she is accustomed?"

Men are but animals and they
Will growl unless you feed and pet them,
Trouble enough to keep, but, say,
Think of the job it is to get them.

Movie Napoleon Invades Castle of Austria's Royalty

Vienna (By mail, to the United Press).—Napoleon—riding his white charger, heading his columns of victorious troops—has again invaded Schoenbrunn suburban residence of the Hapsburgs.

As the "Little Corporal" entered the great open yard through the gates where once before his fiery steed (Napoleon always rode a fiery steed) carried him in triumph before a royal assemblage, movie camera clicked, directors waved their arms wildly and megaphoned the conqueror what to do, how to do it and when.

Schoenbrunn, the Potsdam and Versailles of Vienna, is a Hapsburg home no more. It is now the home of a museum.

The latest effort is a huge production showing Napoleons historic invasion. Every detail has been carried out with most minute care—thousands of participants, carrying out the reel story in real fashion.

"Dude Ranchers" Have Stage Set For a Real West

By LAWRENCE MARTIN

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

On tour with President Harding, (by Mail)—There is a rather new and flourishing industry in the west. It has brought a measure of prosperity to some agriculturists who were finding the going rather hard until they thought of it.

It is the "dude ranch."

Nowadays, if you go into the west on a tour, you get a nickname. If you travel in style abord a Pullman and stop in hotels, and se your country from a sight-seeing bus or under the direction of a tour conductor, you are a "dude."

President Harding and his party were called "dudes" when they went into the Yellowstone country. There was no offense in the term: it merely distinguished them from the other class of travelers—the "sagebrushers," who go in the family chariot—tin lizzie or limousine. The sage-brushers are socalled because they come through the sagebrush, burn sagebrush and in time get to look almost the color of sagebrush. They are the honest-to-goodness travellers, who take it easy and really see things.

In the tourist season the "dudes" fill up the big hotels in Yellowstone and other national playgrounds, so that the only way a guest can get his meals on time is by luck or the exercise of a winning personality on the head waiter. There is always a "bread line" at the dining room doors of these places.

RANCHER'S BRIGHT IDEA

Some bright rancher, who had all the trappings and scenic effects of the old wild and woolly west right at his command, conceived the bright idea of taking some of the dudes into his ranch home as paying guests. Now it is a regular industry.

Lucky is the traveler who finds one of these ranches. They treat the "dudes" well. They give them clean beds and feed them like kings. They provide a "dude wrangler," a cowboy in the most elegant regalia obtainable, who will pose for the 'd'udes", and do his stuff with the lariat and the six-gun whenever asked. These 'd'ude wranglers" are good actors. They pose as bad men.

Most of them are beardless youths of the most guileless sort, who wouldn't harm anybody and who keep the Volstead law from inclination. But if it will give the dudes a thrill to think they are being piloted about by a tough, wild fellow who has six notches on his gun, each notch indicating a man killed, why, what's the harm in that?

There is no waiting in the bread line at a "dude ranch". You are told to "come and get it" when dinner is ready, and if you don't, it is nobody's fault but your own if you are hungry.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

Bernard Ragner says, regarding the present situation in France: "Even France is awaking to the perils of the liquor traffic. This nation, which leads all Europe in the consumption of alcoholic beverages, where the poets have sung for a thousand years the supposed glories of the glittering goblet, has at least come to realize that strong drink is a liability, socially, economically and nationally. To fight this modern plague, La Ligue Nationale Contre l'Alcoolisme has been formed and its name indicates its purpose—to fight against alcohol, at all times, at all places, with every possible weapon."

The following are the two opening paragraphs of the resolution re temperance, passed by the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church at its recent meeting in Port Arthur:.

"The General Assembly reaffirms its belief in the wisdom of, and need for, the total prohibition of the liquor traffic for beverage purposes, and can adopt nothing less as an ideal in legislation than the total prohibition of the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor as a beverage.

"The Assembly is persuaded, from the experience of those provinces in Canada which have tried Government control, viz., British Columbia and Quebec, that no such system can remove the evils of the liquor traffic."

Baptists at Stockholm Claim Persecution

By Don Q. Riddle, United Press Staff Correspondent

Stockholm, July 21.—At the third Baptists' international congress which meets here today, Baptist leaders are expected to charge that adherents of that faith are undergoing vigorous persecution in certain European countries today, and to ask the U.S. congress to take steps to alleviate the situation.

At the annual meeting of the Southern Baptist Convention of the United States, held in Kansas City two months ago, the Foreign Mission Board of that body was authorized to approach the state department at Washington with a view to negotiations looking toward the elimination of persecution in Roumania. It was said then that persecutions in Roumania had been so persistent and so severe in recent years that Baptists throughout the world were gravely concerned.

Dr. J. H. Rushbrooke, of London, representative of the Baptists of the world in diplomatic capacity, is expected to make the report leading up to the discussion of conditions in Roumania. Dr. Rushbrooke has spent the last two years seeking to negotiate full religious liberty and equality for Baptists and other peoples in those countries where it does not exist. He has at the same time acted as supervisor of the general relief work in Eastern and Central Europe and cooperated in the shaping of mission policies.

AMERICANS PROMINENT.

Americans will play a prominent part during the sessions. At the opening meeting, when the governor of Stockholm will welcome the delegates on behalf of the city, one of the replies will be delivered by Dr. George W. Truett, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Dallas, Texas. Dr. Truett will also deliver what is known as the convention sermon.

Tomorrow, many Americans will speak in Stockholm churches and other meeting places. Among them are Dr. A. T. Fowler, of Brooklyn; Rev. Lacey K. Williams, of Chicago; Rev. Frank Peterson, of Minneapolis; Rev. John Friborz, of San Francisco, and Rev. O. Hedeen, of Chicago. A group of American negro singers will sing sacred melodies in the leading Stockholm park at an open-air meeting in the afternoon, at which time addresses will be delivered by the Rev. J. A. Booker of Arkansas and David Paddlety, a Kiowa Indian. This meeting will be in the nature of a pagenat. On Sunday evening Drs. David J. Evans, of Kansas City, and M. E. Aubrey, also of Kansas City, will address a gathering devoted to the interests of the various world-wide Baptist young people's organizations.

Frank Burkhalter, of Nashville, Tenn., will be in charge of the American section.

CATERPILLARS

Caterpillars of some moths, particularly the polyphemus moth, are so numerous that we often wonder why they do not multiply so fast that there are nothing but polyphemus moths around us. Nature steps in, however, and regulates their number by means of a little fly called the ichneumon fly. It is one of the specialists in the insect world and its job is to prevent the countryside from being flooded with caterpillars and moths.

Strangely, it has no teeth or good offensive weapons. How, then, does it manage to kill billions of caterpillars yearly?

EGG HATCHES IN CATERPILLAR.

Let's look at the way one particular species, ophion, works. When Mrs. Ophion is ready to lay her eggs she hunts out a nice, fat, polyphemus caterpillar. She flies up on him and deposits one single egg on his furry body. This little egg hatches and bores his way into the caterpillar's body. This treatment does not kill the caterpillar at once.

Almost always, the caterpillar lives to spin his cocoon, but he never emerges from it because the larva of the ophion consumes the caterpillar's body for food. When the larva has finished its meal it spins a cocoon within the cocoon of the caterpillar which has furnished its body for food. Finally the tiny cocoon within the cocoon hatches and out comes another ophion, ready to carry on the war against caterpillars.

CATERPILLAR PICKS UP EGGS.

Some of the ichneumon flies lay many eggs to feed upon a single caterpillar. Some of them just lay their eggs in a place where a caterpillar is sure to pass and pick up the eggs as he crawls over them.

Some day, if you take the pains to search, you may be able to see one of these small flies emerging from a great cocoon. If so, you will be able to understand the tragedy which has taken place inside of the cocoon—the fly coming out has been nourished on the blood of his caterpillar enemy whose shell will still be found in the cocoon, if it is opened.

A bronze tablet in memory of sixteen officers and men of the United States army, who died of starvation and exposure in the Arctic in 1884, is now on the way to Cape Sabine, Ellesmere Land, where it will be placed at the scene of one of the most tragic disasters in the history of the American Arctic exploration, the refuge camp of the Greely expedition. Set in the rocks at latitude 78 deg. 45 min. north, more than 800 miles above the Arctic Circle, this will be one of the most northerly monuments in the world. On the tablet is inscribed:

"To the memory of the dead, who, under Lieutenant A. W. Greely here gave their lives to ensure the final and complete success of the first scientific co-operation of the United States with other nations 1881-1884."

The tablet is being erected by the National Geographic Society and will be placed during the present summer by Donald MacMillan, Arctic explorer and lieutenant of Peary on the voyage which resulted in the discovery of the North Pole.

MUSCA DOMESTICA

There is an astonishing number of persons, who scoff at modern rules of sanitation and hygiene. They refer to early periods, 25 and 50 and 100 years ago—and assert that "people got along better then than they do now," despite the lack of modern preventitve and corrective measures. In isolated instances statistics seemingly support their absurd contentions. But careful examination reveals the fact that living conditions were more primitive and there was not the congestion that exists today, even a quarter of a century ago in most sections of the American continent.

Congestion of population and the living conditions in the cities, which result are naturally attended by increase in the menace to health. Germs and parasitic vermin thrive in proportionate numbers. By the operation of a regulatory law of nature human beings who live in intensely congested areas and do not properly observe sanitation rules are "thinned out" by disease, thus making conditions more healthful for the remainder and checking for a time the influences which menace health. This is simply a slight variation in the operation of the law of "survival of the fittest."

Naturally, in earlier periods when open spaces were more common and the curative rays of the sun were not so generally shut out from the dwellings of mankind, when fresh air and fresh and pure food supplies were more readily available the morality figures were small.

On the other hand, before the advent of modern scientific methods, the effects of diseases were relatively far more deadly than is the case today. Corrective and preventative measures, otherwise medical treatment and sanitation rules, checked and conquered bubonic plague, yellow fever, small pox and other contagious and infectious diseases. The typhus scourge in Eastern Europe is due solely to improper and unsanitary living conditions, resulting, of course, from the ravages and disruptions of war. An impartial study of mortality tables and other vital statistics in Canada will show that the results of modern methods have been remarkable.

One enemy of human kind, which is being relentlessly fought is the house fly. This insect particularly menaces of deadly bacteria. Since the fly constantly travels back and forth from places where filth has been accumulated to the home and seems to delight in alighting on the improtected face of a baby, the seriousness of the menace represented is apparent. Elimination of all accumulations of filth and other germ-breeding places and the safe-guarding of homes by the plentiful use of screens are recommended as the two great preventative measures by authorities who have made a study of this phase of sanitation advancement.

Belleville is an unusually well kept city and the citizens appear to co-operate enthusiastically with city officials in the crusade against bacteria-producing conditions. Few sections of the city are flagrantly in need of improvement in this respect.

However, mid-summer, with its high temperature and the attendant rapidity of decomposition, mark the high-point of the house-fly's activity and the resultant menace to health. Every Belleville mother, who has small babies should exercise especial care in guarding against this insidious household enemy.

Babies are stricken by the thousands during the summer months and homes are darkened by the deaths of persons of all ages from diseases caused by bacteria. This death toll could at least be materially reduced by more rigid observance of sanitation and hygienic rules. The following extract from the Toronto Sunday World deals out spokenly with the common house fly as an enemy.

In well-screened homes the fastidious ones may not fear the common house fly. The diseases that it brings are not at hand, because the fly itself is rigidly excluded. But there are homes in this city which still have the house fly and its grim attendants.

There is little sympathy with those who do not do their utmost to correct the conditions which breed the fly, but there should be abundant sympathy for those who are actually unable to resist this invasion.

"Some people have got to the stage of exhaustion where they no longer resent swarms of flies . . . . When a mother ceases to care whether flies rest on her baby's face, then civilization is in danger, whether we stop to think of it or not . . . . . .

The mother who is too ignorant to realize the peril of the house fly needs to be instructed and to be protected against herself. The highest and most impartial and dispassionate authorities bring a grave indictment against Musca Domestica or common house fly. The Encyclopedia Britannica says in part:

"Its distribution is of the widest and the rapidity of its breeding, in manure and dooryard filth, is so great that as a carrier of germs of disease, it is now recognized as a potent source of danger."

Compulsion is applied, and yet the flies remain, greatly reduced in numbers, hated and attacked in most homes and areas instead of admired as "pretty and intricate wonders of nature." And yet there are babies that will die . . . . . . this summer because of flies.

By The Side Of The Road

LET'S SEE, WHO HAVE VISITED TWEED RECENTLY

A bunch of hoodlums from Belleville, who visit Tweed quite frequently, staged a wild west scene on Victoria St., at an early hour on Saturday morning. They were armed with revolvers and fired several fusilades into the air, which brought several residents out of their beds thinking the town was being raided. This sort of thing is not even funny and these boys would be well advised to cut it out in future or they may have to explain matters to the magistrate.—Tweed News.

THE FORCE IN RESERVE.
(Montreal Daily Star)

It is by faith that man removes mountains, changes organizations, reconstructs civilization. His limbs may be weary with toiling and his back galled with bearing, but if the heart within him is peaceable and resolved, he has a world of difficulty. The tedious and troubled years come when the labor remains and the faith and vision are wanting. Nature is made to serve.

A CLEAN FORTUNE.
(Springfield Republican)

Mr. Ford's stunning success in his brief business career of 20 years is the reason for the movement in his favor which the politicians and the straw votes report as distinctively threatening. For the American people worship not money itself, perhaps, but success in making it on a vast scale; while Mr. Ford has the advantage of having made his money without soiling his hands or his soul. It is a clean fortune, even if it is now the largest single fortune in the world. Right there is Mr. Ford's strength as a possible Presidential candidate among the masses of voters.

THE CHARM OF THE OLD.
(Boston Globe)

London must have obtained a publicity man to look after her tourist business. At any rate, booster stories are being sent out from the dear old place. One day it is that London subway trains in the tuppenny tube run faster than New York subway trains, express excepted. The next, there is a story about the biggest restaurant in the world being in London and having nine hundred waitresses, and a jazz band in every room. Londoners insist that the largest restaurant in America serves only 2,000,000 meals a year while their eating palace will serve 10,000,000.

If London wants to attract our tourists, London should call attention to things seldom to be found in America—to quaint, quiet little places where one can have good food and drink without hurry or worry; to transportation which gives everybody a seat and avoids the rush. American innocents abroad want to find the Old World old.

SLAUGHTERING THE INNOCENTS
(Lindsay Post)

A clergyman in Kansas City, made indignant by the death of a little girl under the wheels of a speeding automobile, advocates mob justice for speed-mad motorists who kill children. The pastor offers to pull the rope himself.

Mobs usually dispense a pretty poor brand of justice, and the Kansas City pastor ought to know it. They too often hang innocent perons, and no man may feel safe where mobs, especially those which hide under masks, attempt to play deus ex machina by assuming functions which belong to the commonwealth.

Yet the Kansas City man's rash statement serves to call attention to a very grave modern problem. The mechanical age has not proven an unmixed blessing. The same minds that evolved the machines should be able to devise means of guarding human life against the misuse of their brain children. Universal public education which, more than any other thing, gave birth to the era of machines, should provide the solution of the problem of automobile killings. But it will take time.

The Advantage of Ready Money to Your Heirs

THEY were discussing Insurance. The Broker said:

"I believe in insurance. I handle stocks and bonds and have opportunities to pick and choose investments. If I leave an estate entirely consisting of stocks and bonds it cannot be converted into immediate cash without danger of considerable loss. So I am going to leave enough insurance to provide a good proportion of ready cash to be available during the settlement of my estate. I think that is sound business."

"You are perfectly right," replied the banker. "Insurance in a company like the Mutual Life of Canada is just as safe as money in the bank, and it affords your family protection in full from the start, and, in addition, is a good investment."

"True," assented the broker. "I have a Mutual Endowment policy coming due next year. On these participating Endowment plans the Mutual Life of Canada is at present paying at maturity from 20% to 100% more than the assured pays in! The protection in the long run costs nothing!"

A CONFESSION.

A nervous women went to have her throat examined by a specialist, who, while adjusting the laryngoscope remarked: "You'd be surprised to know how far down we can see with this instrument."

"Is that so doctor," faltered the patient.

Then, after a pause, she said:—"Before you begin, doctor, I ought to tell you that I really hadn't time to mend that hole in my stocking before I came here."

HARD-HEADED.

A negro was receiving bricks at the top of a ten-storey building at Los Angeles, where some repair work was going on. Another negro on the ground was loading the bricks on the carrier.

The negro above accidentally dropped a brick, hitting the one on the ground squarely on the head.

He was indigant, and yelled to the one above: "Be a little moah careful up thar nigger. That brick hit me and made me bite mah tongue."

ALICE BRADY NOW AT GRIFFIN'S IN CROOK STORY

There is action galore in "Missing Millions," the new Paramount picture starring Alice Brady, which is the feature offering at Griffin's to-day, matinee and night. Beginning with the daring robbery of a famous gem at a fashionable party, there follows in thrilling sequence an attack by a thug and a rescue; the third degree, imprisonment and death for an innocent man; one of the worst cases of double crossing ever heard of; a plot to rob the strong room of a ship; a cross-plot by other thieves; a fierce fight between four of the crooks in the strong room; a decidedly novel way of removing gold ingots from the ship, and finally, the portrayal of a big problem and a big sacrifice. David Powell, popular leading man, and Frank Losee, noted screen 'heavy," are in the strong cast, and rendered efficient support to the dainty star.

William Desmond in a new chapter of Universal's popular continued play, "The Phantom Fortune", a Torchy Comedy, and a beautiful Travelogue are being exhibited on the same program.

"WHAT WIVES WANT" NOW AT REGENT IS ATTRACTING ATTENTION

When Edward T. Lowe, Jr., and Perry N. Vekroff wrote "What Wives Want", the Universal all-star production that is attracting attention to the Regent theatre this week end, they took for their theme a martial problem that is one of the topics of the day and that is a matter of grave concern in a great many Canadian homes. The story concerns the husband who is too busy to give the wife the attention she desires, and "the other man" who steps in just when the wife reaches the point of mentally accusing her husband of neglect. "What Wives Want" is presented by an unusually capable cast that includes Ethel Grey Terry, Margaret Landis, Vernon Steele, Niles Welchm and Ramsay Wallace.

"Broke" an amusing Cameo comedy, Pathe News, and a good baseball comedy complete a good program of screen entertainment.

"THROUGH A GLASS WINDOW" HAS PATHETIC THEME OF TREMENDOUS APPEAL

Some philosopher once said that the "best entertainment is that which makes you laugh through tears". If this be true, certainly, "Through a Glass Window", which will be exhibited at Griffin's this Monday to Wednesday, with May McAvoy in the stellar role, will prove an excellent show.

Little Miss McAvoy wins your attention as the plucky little mite who struggules along under the burden of a mother who is going blind and a brother who is just a shade too weak. And then there's Raymond McKee, who as Tomasso Barlio, an Italian vegetable vendor, sings his way to Jenny's heart. And one musn't forget the charming little mother, which is played with poignan, gripping pathos by Fannie Midgely.

All in all, it is a heart interest story which stacks up splendidly with such pictures of emotional appeal as "The Miracle Man", "One More American", and "Humoresque". Credit for the entertaining story is due to Olga Printzlau.

A funny Fontaine Fox Toonersville Trolley comedy, Fox News, and a two-reel Wild animal story are announced for presentation on the same program.

COWBOY ANTICS AFFORD COMEDY SITUATIONS IN "CONSCIENCE" FILM

Comedy lovers will find much to enjoy in some of the cow-boy antics that add to the excitement of "Shadows of Conscience" which Russell Productions have just completed and which may be seen at the Regent Theatre, Monday to Wednesday, matinee daily.

The homecoming of Winnie Sherman played by Gertrude Olmstead, is the occasion for great rejoicing among the ranchmen, many of whom take advantage of the chance to make their first and last appearance in a dress suit in the young lady's honor. "Fatty" gives the boys (and the audience too) the biggest laugh of their lives when he dons his swallow-tail and then proceeds to drown himself in cologne. Old scores are forgotten, and each one is everybody's friend at the jolly festival in the Sherman home which constitutes one of the most popular scenes in "Shadows of Conscience". The spirit of the entire picture is "homey" and renders it an especially attractive production for the family theatre. Everything of an unwholesome nature has been eliminated so that from start to finish, this superproduction offers first-grade entertainment. In making it register as this sort of feature, Russell Simpson, the star, nobly assisted by Barbara Tenant, Gertrude Olmstead, Landers Stevens and W. Bradley Ward, have contributed important characterizations.

DAY OF HUGE GUARANTEED PURSES OVER

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, July 20 (United Press.—Fight promoters are beginning to talk more sense and less money every every day.

Tex Rickard, the premier, says the day of $300,000 purses passed with the fiasco out in Shelby, Montana—remembered by some as the scene of some bout or other between one Jack Dempsey and Mr. Thomas Gibbons.

He hastens to add, however, in the next breath, that "around New York" there may be some dare-devil promoter who will try to offer somebody that much, but he expresses doubt as to whether I will ever be paid.

The 90,000 crowd at the Dempsey-Carpentier affair, which stirred up more interest in this country than any previous sporting event, will also remain the peak in attendance for some time to come, Rickard believes.

The Shelby affair seemed to awaken everyone in the fight game to the fact that fighters were getting too much money.

Dempsey is the only one who pulled out of the fight with enough money to wad a shotgun. Everyone else lost. Jack got $220,000, and the consensus of opinion is that was plenty.

Rickard showed his genius for promotion when he got Firpo and Willard into the ring for a percentage of the gate. He is not talking six figures to anyone, nowadays, without knowing what he is talking about.

The $220,000 Dempsey received would keep an ordinary man in luxury for a lifetime.

There have been arranged what the fighters call "benefit bouts" all over the country, for one charitable cause or another. The only thing that charity gets out of these fights is what is left over after the fighters get their purses.

Of course, no one is going to say that a fighter should not make a living. Bricklayers are making $15 a day, and they may be worth it. Some fighters are getting purses in six figures and they may be worth it probably not.

But somehow or another, Eugene Criqui, the featherweight champion of the world, who never cashed any of these big purses, is finding time enough to go to France and fight for the disabled soldiers, and he is not taking a centime.

• • •

There should be more of the spirit displayed by Criqui and Tommy Gibbons. The man who stood 15 rounds with Dempsey didn't get a cent of the purse. He knew a week ahead of time that he wouldn't. Jack Kearns already had $200,000 and be threatened to leave the state if he wasn't given the remaining $100,000 that had been promised him by a bunch of bankrupt promoters. Just how much the sentiment of the populace of Montana had to do with Kearn's decision to let Dempsey fight, is perhaps irrelevant, but no one heard Gibbons threaten to back out.

Gibbons wanted a chance at the heavyweight title and he was willing to fight for nothing to get it.

It is also worthy of not that Georges Carpentier, dethroned idol of France, demanded pay to fight at the same show for disabled veterans that Criqui is entering for nothing.

In every bad lot you can always find one or two good peaches.

• • •

New York is beginning to hear the cry for more public courses to satisfy the increasing demand and develop the sport.

President Murray Hulbert of the Board of Alderman has asked Mayor Hylan to provide the courses from land already owned as parks by the city.

The demand came shortly after Dick Walsh, the New York star, had won the public links championship. With more courses. New York may soon be able to supply another champion, but the final development of the game necessitates that other cities follow the same course.

CITY SOFT-BALL LEAGUE FORMED

Six Teams Signed Up for Well Balanced Group

A meeting of the new soft-ball league was held last evening in the Intell Office. A schedule was drawn up and other important business transacted. Six teams compose a nice little group with games on Monday, Wednesday and Friday nights, thus giving each team one game a week. The schedule begins next Wednesday night when the Tiger Tire and Grand Trunk Office clash at the High School grounds.

The representatives decided to adopt the rules used by the Ontario Soft-Ball Association. McLaughlins, Tiger Tire, Shoemen, 34th Battery, Printers, Grand Trunks compose the six teams in the group. A list of six umpires were appointed and will each officiate once a week. Stan Nurse and "Bun" Frechette will work together, Stub Barrett and Archie Leslie and Ken Colling with Art Donahue. Players must play with club with which they are affiliated. Providing their club is not represented in the league, they may play with whatever team they do so desire.

Each team must supply their own material, namely a ball in good condition and at least one bat.

Each team is allowed twelve players.

Players cannot jump from one team to another.

The protest committee is to consist of the executive of the association.

No spike shoes may be worn.

Every team must play out the schedule.

Four Canadians May Compete in Final Bisley Match Today

Bisley Camp, July 21.—Canada has three marksmen certain to be in the final stage of the shoot for the coveted King's Prize to-day, Pte. White, Toronto; A. E. Ashe, Victoria, B.C., and Major Crowe, Guelph, Ont.

Sergt-Major Hawkins, Toronto and 30 others, each with a score of 92 at the two ranges, 300 and 600 yards, in the second stage, will shoot off for 15 places in the final stage, so that Canada may possibly have four competitors in the final. Last year four Canadians reached the final stage.

Following were the complete scores of the Canadians at both ranges in the second stage of the King's prize competition: White, 50 and 45—95; Ashe, 48 and 47—95; Crowe, 48 and 54—93; Hawkins, 47 and 45—92; McLeod, 46 and 45—91; Paddock, 47 and 44—91; Martin, 46 and 45—91; Penman, 46 and 44—90; Morris, 43 and 45—88; Blair, 44 and 43—87; Tyers, 47 and 40—87; Davidson, 46 and 41—87; MacDonald, 41 and 39—80.

KINGSTON WALLOPS PETERBORO 16 - 11

Session Was One of Most Loosely Played Contests of Season.

Kingston walloped Peterboro in one of the most loosely played games yet this season in the Limestone City last evening. The final count was 16-11 for the homesters but even the official scorers grew tired counting the hits. It was a regular merry-go-round with errors interspersed with home runs. Hit and run was the order of the day. Gallagher and Rice were in the points for the Kingstonians. The latter is developing into a nice catcher. Heckman and Hutchinson hurled for the Petes. The big left-hander struck three in the one innings in which he pitched. Heckman and Batstone were among the home run hitters. Colling and Butler umpired.

Score by innings:

Kingston	0	1	1	0	3	6	3	2	x	—16
Peterboro	0	4	0	1	0	4	1	1	0	—11

CRIQUI FIGHTS FOR CHARITY-FOR NOTHING

New York, July 20.—Eugene Criqui is a real champion.

The little featherweight war hero is going to return to Paris August 2, no matter what the outcome of his bout with Johnny Dundee, scheduled for the Polo Grounds July 26. He is going back to appear 'for nothing' against the best featherweight in France. The funds derived from admissions to the bout will be used to aid disabled war veterans.

It is quite a novel experience for a prizefighter to do anyting for nothing. Jess Willard, Luis Firpo, Jack McAuliffe and Floyd Johnson recently staged a benefit for the Milk Fund of New York, and the cash they received would support a million babies for a month.

Jack Dempsey only got $220,000 for boxing fifteen rounds with Tommy Gibbons in what his manager, Jack Kearns, called "a good workout for Dempsey." He was to have received $300,000 for the show, and it was only at the last minute that he showed himself "a good sport" and decided to take a chance on his last $100,000.

If Kearns is a "good sport" what kind of a sport would you call Criqui who, in this advanced day of financial frenzy, is going back to fight FOR NOTHING for the disabled soldiers of France?

• • •

The University of Washington crew seems likely to maintain its championship standard for the next year at least.

The east will have a hard pull to develop anything better than the next Washington crew, which will have six men left over from this year and a big husky freshman crew to pick from.

Out of the boat which beat the Navy, Columbia, Syracuse, Pennsylvania and Cornell in the 'varsity race of the recent Poughkeepsie regatta, there will be only three men lost.

Tidmarsh, the bow oar; Dunn, who rowed No. 3, and Captain Shaw at No. 6, are the only ones to leave. Remaining there are Dow Walling, the star stroke, who is only a sophomore; Luft, France, Spuhn, Dutton and Grant, coxwain, who has been elected captain.

The crew of 1923 was the first western crew ever to win the big eastern regatta, but with this formidable material the crew of 1924 should prove still stronger.

It is even doubtful whether some of the regular 'varsity will be able to hold their places against the competition of those in the freshman boat, all of whom approximate the build of Jess Willard and the strength of modern Goliaths.

One of the Yale entrants in the Intercollegiate golf tourney at Siwanoy County Club pulled a funny "hole in one."

As the foursomes were teeing off from the home tee, he hit the ball with a Babe Ruth swing and it was still slicing and rising as it disappeared in the morning mists. The caddies spent half an hour looking for the ball and then gave it up as lost.

When the foursome got around to the eighth hole on the return journey along the parallel course, the ball was found in that cup.

Shooting for the first hole, the golfing Babe Ruth had made the eight hole in one—but it didn't do him much good.

A new racetrack is to be constructed at Long Beach, Long Island, near New York, according to the word that is going around. The new course is expected to be completed in time for an opening in July, 1924.

It will be conducted on the same "oral betting" style prescribed by New York law, charging $3.85 admission, like the others, because it cannot make any money, openly, off the betting.

MORNING

When the starry night is fading, conquered by the glowing dawn,
And a million jewels are gleaming over flower, and tree, and lawn,
And the morning breezes whisper, while the song birds weave a charm,
Oft' I start from bed believing I am back upon the farm.
And I hurry to my window, but I look a bout in vain;
All I see is smoke ascending and a grimy city lane,
And a dwarfed and stunted garden, and a lawn that needs a rain,
And some shrubs all weak and hopeless that will never bloom again.
But the birds still carol gaily—they at least are genuine,
And I drink their cherry music as an epicure his wine;
They are singing, ay, and teaching, hearken that harmonious sound,
And their theme is of the simple joys that on the warm abound.

CHANGE OF LIFE LOSES TERRORS

For Women who Rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Greenville, Pa.—"I took your medicine through the Change of Life and it did wonders for me. I was down in bed when I started to take it and weighed 96 pounds. I had hot flashes and was so nervous and weak that everything would get black and I could not see. I would sit and cry and did not know what I was crying for. Since I have been taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel younger than I did ten years ago, and my friends all tell me I look younger, and I owe it all to the Vegetable Compound. I do all my housework for a family of seven now. I will be glad to answer any woman who writes me in regard to my case."—Mrs. JOHN MYERS, 55 Union St., Greenville, Pa.

Many letters similar to this have been published testifying to the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. They are sincere expressions from women who describe as best they can their feelings before and after taking this well-known medicine.

1 teaspoon soda.
1 cup blueberries.

BUSINESS.

Father (to son who has been taking a course of salesmanship)—"Well, my boy, what do you know about business now?"

Son (who has the root of the matter in him)—"Only this—that it's simply making people think that they can't get what they don't want."

WHAT HE CAME TO.

The passengers in the smoking compartment chatted in many subjects, finally reaching ambition.

"Yes, gentlemen," said one, "real ambition starts in childood. And if we obey its impulse we not only attain it, but actually we go far beyond our wildest dreams. Look at me. In my boyhood I was anxious to become a pirate. "Today"—and he gazed proudly round the compartment—"I run a successful hotel."

HEIGHT OF PERFECTION.

Fond Mamma—"Leroy, is your teacher satisfied with you?"

Leroy—"She must be. She said today that if all the pupils were like me she'd resign. That shows I know enough."

PATRICIA BRENT SPINSTER

ANONYMOUS

"Come along, Gustave!" she cried brightly. "Let us help get the tea. I'm thirsty."

From that moment Gustave appeared to take himself in hand, and save for a violent start, at the more vigorous reports, seemed to have overcome his terror.

As Patricia proceeded to assist Mrs Craske-Morton, a veritable heroine in a pink flannel wrapper, she took stock of her fellows. Miss Wangle was engaged in prayer and tears, her wig was awry, her face drawn and yellow and her clothes the garb of advanced maidenhood. On her feet were bed-socks, half thrust into felt slippers. From beneath a black quilted dressing-gown pepped with virtuous pride the longcloth of a nightdress of Victorian severity.

Mrs. Mosscrop-Smythe was in curl-papers and a faded blue kimono that allowed no suggestion to escape of the form beneath. Miss Sikkum had seized a grey raincoat, above which a forest of curl papers looked strangely out of place. Her fingers moved restlessly. The two top buttons of the raincoat were missing, displaying a wealth of blue ribbon and open-work that none had suspected in her. The lateness at which the ribbon and openwork began gave an interesting demonstration in feminine bone structure.

Mr. Sefton was splendid in a purple dressing-gown with orange cord and tassels, and red and white striped pyjamas beneath. Mr. Sefton had chosen his raid-costume with elaborate care; but the suddenness of the alarm had not allowed of the arrangement of his hair, most of which hung down behind in a sandy cascade. His manner was the forced heroic. He was smoking a cigarette with a too obvious nonchalance to deceive. The heroes of Mr. Sefton's imagination always lit cigarettes when facing death. They were of the type that seizes a revolver when the ship is sinking and with one foot place negligently upon the capstan (Mr. Sefton had not the most remote idea of what a capstan was like) shouted, "Women and children first."

He walked about the kitchen with what he meant to be a smile upon his pale lips. The cigarette he found a nuisance. If he held it between his lips the smoke got in his eyes and made them stream with water; if, on the other hand, he held it between his fingers, it emphasised the shaking of his hand. He compromised by letting it go out between his lips, arguing that the effect was the same.

Mr. Bolton had donned his fez and velvet smoking-jacket above creased white pyjama trousers that refused to meet the tops of his felt slippers. Mr. Bolton continued to make "jokes," for the same reason that Mr. Sefton smoked a cigarette.

Mr. Cordal was negative in a big ulster with a hem of nightshirt beneath, leaving about eight inches of fleshless shin before his carpet slippers with the uu-tops were reached. He sat gazing with unseeing eyes at the cook huddled up opposite, moaning as she held her heart with a fat dirty hand.

Mrs. Barnes, the victim of indecision, had leapt straight out of bed, gathered her clothes in her arms and had flown to safety. She walked about the kitchen aimlessly, dropping and retrieving various garments, which she stuffed back again into the bundle she carried under her arm.

Mrs. Craske-Morton was practical and courageous. Her one thought was to prepare the promised refreshments Her staff, with the exception of Gustave, was useless, and she was grateful to Patricia for her assistance.

Outside pandemonium was raging, the noise of the barrage was diabolical, the "bouncing" of the heavy guns, the screams of the "whiz-bangs," the cackle of machine-guns from aeroplanes overhead; all seemed to tell of death and chaos.

Suddenly the puny sound of guns was drowned in one gigantic uproar. For a moment the place was plunged in darkness, then the electric light shuddered into being again. The glass flew from the windows, the house rocked as if uncertain whether or no it should collapse. Miss Wangle slipped on to her knees, her wig slipped on to her left ear.

"Oh, my God!" screamed the cook, as if to ensure exclusive rights to the Deity's attention.

Jenny, the housemaid, entirely unconscious that her nightdress was her sole garment, threw herself flat on her face. Mrs. Craske-Morton, who was pouring out tea, let the teapot slip from her hand, smashing the cup and pouring the contents on to the table. Gustave's knees refused their office and he sank down, grasping with both hands the edge of the table. Mrs. Barnes dropped her clothes without troubling to retrieve them.

Suddenly there was a terrifying scream outside, then a motor-car drew up and the sound of men's voices was heard.

Still the guns thundered. Patricia felt herself trembling. For a moment a rush of blood seemed to suffocate her, then she found herself gazing at Miss Wangle, wondering whether she were praying to God or to the bishop. She laughed in a voice unrecognisable to herself. She looked about the kitchen. Mr. Sefton had sunk down upon a chair, the cigarette still attached to his bloodless lower lip, his arms hanging limply down beside him. Mr. Cordal was looking about him as if dazed, whilst Mr. Bolton was gazing at the glassless window-frames, as if expecting some apparition to appear.

FANCY DIVING.

(This is the sixth of a series of eight articles by Pierson L. Maxwell, a swimming expert who has taught boys and girls to swim at Municipal beaches, ocean beaches and private pools. Mr. Maxwell has been a lifeguard and a racing swimmer for a number of years. He knows what he is talking about when it comes to swimming. Clip these articles and follow them if you want to become a good swimmer.)

One of the showiest and most entertaining forms of water sports is the art of fancy diving. There are several principles and bits of advice which will go a long way toward helping a boy become a fair diver. Here they are.

Remember always, your head controls your body when fancy diving, with your arms and legs helping out. If you wish to do a somersault dive, take a good spring, drop your head quickly on your chest, and double up your legs. This will cause you to go spinning around.

HEAD CONTROLS BODY

When you wish to do the twist dives, turn your head and shoulders to the right, or left, and your body will also go to the right or left. In using a diving board, never be bashful about hitting it hard. Get a good spring out of it. To execute good dives requires time and you can only get the time if you have a good spring into the air.

As you start your dive, first get on the board and come to attention before your run. Act like you owned the world and this will give you the confidence and form to do a much better dive than otherwise. It is absolutely unnecessary to take a long run from in back of the board to do a dive successfully, no matter what the dive is. Always start your dive from a run on the board, not twenty feet behind the board.

Have your toes pointed, your legs together and straight, when you enter the water.

CLAM'S SQUIRT-GUN NECK

When some one disturbs him an ordinary clam "shuts up" without any argument, but there is one kind of clam that doesn't believe in giving in without a fight, and he carries his own little squirt-gun to ward off enemies. He is the giant clam, found on the shore of portions of the Puget Sound in Washington, where he is called the "goyduck."

This giant clam is about ten times as big as the ordinary clam and looks the same, except at one end there is a "neck" about two and one-half feet long and two inches in diameter. This is his squirt-gun.

He buries himself deep in the sand, under shallow water, leaving only the tip of his neck above the sand so he can breathe and catch bits of food. When the tide goes out he fills his neck with water, loading his "gun" for protection.

When he feels any pressure on the sand he shoots out a stream of water that surprises his disturber and gives the clam time to draw in his neck. The only way hunters can catch him is to discover the tip of his neck before they have walked too close to it and then push a long, sharp, willow stick quickly down his neck so he cannot pull it in. Then they must dig to get him.

Dressing For Mid-Summer

United Press.

New York, July 21.—Mid-summer dresses are divided into two groups—the sheer, sleeveless chiffons and georgettes and the more formal cantons, satin-backed crepes and crepe de chenes.

Though the warm days have brought out numbers of chiffons and georgettes in both plain and printed effects, one sees an equal quantity of long-sleever silk gowns in navy and black. Lace trims the plain chiffon frock, forming panels and a finish for the neck and short-capped sleeves.

The printed chiffon or georgette frock often has the design outlined in beads, though not in all-over effect, as the sheer materials cannot stand too much additional weight. Often the waist portion of the frock is outlined in beads. Sleeves are either very short in this type of frock, or entirely missing.

The slender silhouette is shown in most all gowns, although it is varied now and again by the detachable bustle bow or the pleated flounce. Taffetas and moire silks are made with the detachable bustle-bow effect and the bow can be removed if one wishes. Moire, by the way, is very popular at present. As the season advances it is predicted that shiny surfaced materials will replace dull surfaced materials.

Summery frocks of the garden variety are favoring voile, dotted swiss and French crepe. Pipings of contrating materials are a popular trimming. Yellow is a leading color with orchid and nile green following. One sees little all white, but white gowns combined with vivid colors are many. White lace-trimmed net is used over black taffeta frocks in apron effect on many dinner gowns. Black and white effects are popular in dressy gowns, as well as in sport frocks. One sees many black crepe de chene jacquettes embroidered or printed in white.

Beaded gowns are still popular and the self colored beads are more popular than beads of contrasting shades. Little all-over beadwork is to be found but band effect and panel beading is popular.

Eyelet embroidery is again in fashion's favor and one sees it on many of the high-priced frocks worn over slips of contrasting color. Organdies and voiles are especially pretty worked in eyelets. It is even predicted that velvet gowns next winter will be worked in eyelets and worn over colored slips.

Twin side panels are losing favor and the side drape, the one-side panel and the front panel or front drapery, are shown on most of the newer dresses.

Evening gowns are heavily beaded and the beaded robe which may be purchased in semi-made condition in the shops can be made into a lovely gown of the formal type, since many of the new gowns are opened at the sides with pleated side panels or ruffles filling in the gap between the front and back of the skirt. One can usually match the color of the beaded robe in net or chiffon, either of which are suitable for making ruffles or side panels.

The fall tendency leans toward straight lined gowns without a suggestion of waistline or belt.

If one may give a "word to the wise"—diet!

Tobacco In History

Smoking is generally believed to have originated among the North American Indians because each of the many tribes was indulging in tobacco when first discovered by Europeans.

The Susquehanna "redskins" support their claim to be the oldest smokers by the following legend:

One day, during a famine, when animals were their staple food, two hundred hunters bivouacked to roast a deer. A friendly spirit descended from the sky and sat down near them. Believing the spirit responsible for their finding the food, they tendered the tongue of the deer as a sacrificial token of their gratitude.

The spirit appreciated the gift of the Susquehannas, and told them they should find their reward on the same spot thirteen moons later. The promise was fulfilled, and, according to the legend, on the appointed day they found, for the first time, maize just ripening, beans, and a tobacco plant.

When Columbus landed in Cuba in November, 1492, he was surprised to find natives "puffing smoke from their mouths and noses." Their crude cigars consisted of leaves of tobacco, rolled within the sheaths of maize heads. The discoverer of the New World was also the first from the Old World to discover tobacco.

Spaniards who invaded Paraguay, in 1503, were met by the natives, whose weapons were small tubes through which they squirted tobacco juice to blind the white men. One of the Spaniards, Gonzalo de Oveido, went back to Spain with some tobacco plants, which he cultivated. This was the first occasion on which tobacco was brought to Europe.

The origin of the word nicotine is interesting. In 1559 Jean Nicot, an ambassador of France, bought some tobacco seed at Lisbon, from a Flemish captain just back from Florida. Nicot cultivated the plant and presented some specimens to his queen, Catherine de Medici. For some time the plant was known as herbe de la reine ("the queen's plant"), but this name, being too long, gave place to nicotiana, which survives among botanists to this day.

Sir Walter Raleigh and Sir Francis Drake brought tobacco to England in 1586; but they were not the first to introduce it, although Sir Walter is generally given credit for having done much to popularise smoking at that time

It was Sir John Hawkins who first brought tobacco to England, twenty years before Raleigh and Drake. It was first smoked in England at the Pied Bull Inn, Islington.

The first duty on tobacco was imposed in 1614 by the Star Chamber.

Although there are more than forty varieties of the tobacco plant, less than six are used commercially for the manufacture of smoking mixtures.

The Virginian tobacco plant is the one in greatest demand for commercial purposes. It sometimes attains a height of fifteen feet, although the average height is only seven feet. The leaves, each about two feet long and comparatively narrow, are a brilliant light green, and spring directly from the vertical stalk, which has no branches. The blooms, of pink hue, appear only at the extreme top of the stalk.

The Turkish tobacco plant is quite different. Its height rarely exceeds five feet, and the leaves are less tapering and almost egg-shaped. The stalk is much thinner, and the flowers have a deeper tint. This plant is the one sometimes seen in British gardens.

Persian tobacco, another variety, is smoked in hookahs. The flowers of this plant are white.

Agitators against the use of tobacco are by no means a modern development. Indeed, the methods they employ to-day, however objectionable the principles they seek to forward, are mild in comparison with those of their ancestors.

After tobacco was introduced in Italy, in 1560, Pope Urban VIII. and Innocent XI., to use the words of one historian, "fulminated against it the thunders of the Church."

Sultans and priests of Turkey considered smoking so serious a crime that in many cases torture and death was the punishment meted out to those indulging in it.

In a proclamation, headed "Counterblaste to Tobacco," King James I. described smoking as "a custom loathsome to the eye, hateful to the nose, harmful to the brain, and dangerous to the lungs." He described the smoke as the "black, stinking fume resembling the horrible stygian smoke of the pit that is bottomless!"

But despite all the opposition that has been, and may yet be, directed against the "pernicious weed," it still flourishes, and is likely to do so so long as civilization makes calls on our nerves, which only tobacco has the power to soothe.

The Swastika Symbol.

The subject of the origin of the Swastika symbol has given rise to protracted controversy. The latest contribution to the question is that of Harit Krishma Deb, in the journal of the Asiatic Society, Bengal. He suggests that it is a modification of the mode of expressing the ancient Hindu syllable Om, which is used in religious rites. This, a pothook with square ends, was duplicated, one across the other, to form the Swastika, meaning "bringer of blessings," which goes back in India to the seventh century, when it was used as a cattle mark. Another reference is well before 528 B.C. It is found on gold leaf on a vase with relics of Buddha, and it appears on the Edicts of Asoka. (272-232 B.C.) The earliest example known is on a spindle whorl from the third city of Troy, about 1800 B.C., and it is frequent in Greek vases about 600 B.C.

Prizes to Be Claimed

Money that Really Belong To Ex-Soldiers and Sailors

A reminder of the war appears monthly in the London Gazette, in the form of a long list of soldiers' unclaimed balances, which in the aggregate amount to a large sum. Sometimes $2,000 to $2,500 is standing to the credit of an officer, and in one case more than $3,500 was due to the next-of-kin of a corporal.

There is also a good deal of army prize money awaiting claimants. This has been administered since 1792 by the Commissioners of Chelsea Hospital, who began with $10,000, part of the unclaimed Gibraltar prize fund, and subsequently recovered big amounts from army prize agents. The admiralty, too, holds a good deal of navy prize money, as well as many seaman's balances, for which owners have not yet been found.

How comes such money to be left in the possession of public departments? A common cause is desertion. So is enlisting in a false name, though this is almost confined to the army.

Some years ago a youth persuaded a shopkeeper to act as his guardian, and himself witnessed (using an assumed name) that person's signature, with the result that he got into the navy in a name other than his own and without his parents' knowledge. But, broadly speaking, it is only in connection with the army that an "enlisting name" is, or can be used.

There is another factor. Many men die on active service and leave no next-of-kin. Consequently, there is nobody to claim their estate. An astonishingly large number of soldiers who fell in France and Belgium left no one to mourn them individually, and for this reason their balances are, and will remain, unclaimed.

Much of the money standing in the names of ex-service men is paid out sooner or later, sometimes after many years. When, for instance, persons apply for assistance at Chelsea Hospital, the lists of unclaimed funds are consulted, and, as a result, a visitor may be advised to see if he is entitled to any prize money.

A similar practice was once followed when a man wrote from Australia wishing to know whether he was entitled to a pension. The authorities promptly asked him why he did not apply for his prize money, and in consequence he had a windfall.

Similar incidents are not uncommon in connection with prize money under the control of the admiralty. The statute of limitations in respect of it is forty years; but in practice claims have been admitted after a longer period. A share of a balance from a portion of the booty captured in Pegu by our forces in 1852-3 was paid out forty-seven years afterwards.

At least once, however, the balance due to a "dead" soldier has been paid out while he was still alive. The man was reported killed at Majuba; but actually he was a deserter when the famous disaster happened. After lying low for a time in South Africa, he reached England, and ultimately communicated with some of his relatives, asking them to get his balance and send him part of it. But, unfortunately for him, the money had been drawn and spent.

While, however, a good deal of unclaimed prize money, and so on, is ultimately recovered, there are always large balances in hand, and the consolidated fund is liable for a big total, which may be drawn upon to satisfy claims that such balances are unable to meet.

In the end, too, some of the unclaimed money is applied to the upkeep of Chelsea Hospital, and a part of the rest is transferred to the Royal Patriotic Fund Corporation.

Origin of Humane Societies.

Humane societies are celebrating the fact that laws for the protection of animals have been in existence for 100 years. In 1822 an Act of Parliament was passed in England which provided for a punishment for the "ill treatment of cattle," and the Act was introduced by a man named Richard Martin, who was called "Humaniety Martin," because of his introduction and support of the bill brought a great deal of opposition. The opponents wanted to know why the punishment should not be inflicted for boiling lobsters and eating live oysters. Martin not only passed the law, but was the first complainant under it. He found a driver who was mercilessly beating a donkey. The poor animal was dragged into court, and very much to the surprise of the courtroom crowd, the driver was found guilty. Two years after the passage of the Act Martin organized "The Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals." Queen Victoria later approved of the organization, and added the word "royal" to the title, and Americans derive their own Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals from this excellent example.

British New Guinea.

A scheme is on foot to explore British New Guinea, the interior of the island never having been traversed by a white man. The aim of the expedition is to determine the economic value of New Guinea to the empire, and to add to the sum of scientific knowledge. It is hoped to send out an advance party to select a suitable harbor as a base of operations. For the main expedition the personnel will include experts in entomology, botany, geology, mining, engineering, anthropology, chemistry, archæology, tropical agriculture, and topographical surveying. The nontechnical staff will number eight, and so exacting are the conditions that out of 714 applications, only three have been found to comply with them. The party will number 30 all told, with a police protection of 100.

Nelle Gwynne Not All Bad.

Nelle Gwynne, orange girl, tavern singer, successful actress, and later mistress of Charles II., the "restored Stuart" to the throne of England, is a character in English history. She used improper language, had tavern-tainted manners, and lack of early training till the last showed in her exterior, but her nature was not permanently corrupted or tainted. Terrible stories have always been afloat of her coarseness, plebian birth (she was born in a coal cellar) and corrupt life, but her later biographers prove that she was not entirely good for nothing. She is said to have been the only human being in England that exercised anything like a good influence over the wayward, frivolous Charles II. Her acts of charity were substantial and much needed, and as the years passed on, and the opportunities for wrongdoing increased, and her beauty and personal charms increased, her behavior became more and more prudent and her character more and more circumspect.

Pepys' diary describes Nelle Gwynne as a good actress and a pretty one, a charming wit, and universally popular. She pleased every one, from the king to the charcoal seller. Songs were written about her, styles of dress were named for her, and her portraits were painted.

A Famous Market.

Covent Garden Market is probably the best-known mart of its kind in the world, and the recent rumor of the impending sale of its site, which would necessitate the removal of the market to another part of London, Eng., has caused much misgiving, the history of markets demonstrating that they must be of natural growth, and that any alteration of site means a great risk of failure. Covent Garden provides a typical instance of natural growth from the days when the people of the neighboring villages brought their fruit, vegetables, and herbs to sell in baskets beneath the wall of the convent garden, the wall which is mentioned in connection with the boundaries of the market in the charter granted 262 years ago by Charles II., who made the grant in defiance of the city's market monopoly in the "square mile" and seven miles beyond. Incidentally, excavations in the market a few months ago brought to light what was believed to be part of that wall, pneumatic picks being necessary to displace the very solid masonry.

Elephants Once Roamed Britain.

Through what appears to have been a mere chance part of a tusk and some teeth of one of the largest species of British elephants were recently saved from an untimely end. Some laborers digging gravel for the paths of a new kitchen garden in the Deer Park of Magdalen College, Oxford, came across the relics, that is to say, lying in untouched terrace gravel about four to six feet below the surface of the soil. A casual onlooker ventured to doubt whether the first tusk found was ivory. In reply the digger said: "I will show you that it is ivory," and he immediately proceeded to prove his point by driving his pick into the tusk, breaking it up to make more gravel. Fortunately, attention was drawn to the site before the whole of the other tusk shared the same fate, four molar teeth being found close by. The part of the tusk that was rescued now constitutes a memorial to one of the earliest recorded inhabitants of the college site and is on exhibition in the college library.

Judge Darling's Wit.

Pages might be filled with stories of Mr. Justice Darling and the Old Bailey, in London, where he has presided over so many dramatic trials, and where he has so often relieved some sordid tragedy by a humorous sally.

"I don't know why you calls me a professional burglar," exclaimed a prisoner to him. "I have only done it once before, and I have been nabbed both times."

"Oh, I do not mean to infer that you have been very successful in your profession," said the judge in a courteous tone.

England Ready to Move To Checkmate France

—Sir Chas. Ross

Editor of Outlook Says French are Ruining Prospects of England Recovering From War, and Blames Lloyd George.

Editor's Note: Premier Stanley Baldwin is about ready "to do something" says Sir Charles Ross, Bart., owner of "The Outlook" of London, and one of Great Britain's most distinguished publicists. In the following article he absolves the Baldwin administration from blame for the "negative and humiliating subservience" of England to the "wreckers of France," responsibility for which he ascribes to both Bonar Law and Lloyd George. He believes that Baldwin does not intend to "permit Britain to remain a cipher in the Councils of Europe while her prospects of recovery from the war are being ruined by France."—The United Press, New York.

By SIR CHARLES ROSS, Bart.

(Copyright, 1923, by the United Press. By arrangement with "The Outlook," London.)

London, July 14.—(By mail to United Press)—It is no wish of mine to raise hopes that may be later dashed, but there is reason to believe that Mr. Baldwin intends shortly to do something.

This is a sensational prediction indeed. There were few who thought, towards the end of 1916, that Mr. Wilson (the President of the U.S.) would ever do anything.

He had delayed so long, had put up with so much, that there seemed no reason why he should not swallow more sunken liners, when had gulped down the Lusitania.

America did nothing when the Lusitania went down, neither did England when the French invaded the Ruhr and torpedoed her commerce. Mr. Baldwin is heir to the policy of "tranquility," but it would be unfair to blame Mr. Bonar Law too much for the humiliating subservience of this country to the wreckers of France during the years since the Armistice.

BLAMES LLOYD GEORGE

Mr. Lloyd George, that late convert, who now fulminates so strongly against his former Gallic accomplices, must bear his share of the responsibility for the do-nothing tactics of Great Britain, in face of a situation that deprives our people of their livelihood and menaces the whole of the Old World with ruin.

But at long last the patience of America did wear thin, and at long last so has England's. Mr. Baldwin took office in the confident belief that the application of sound business common sense to the reparations problem must bring about a speedy agreement.

He regarded the pacification of Europe, the settlement of debts, and the withdrawal of invading armies as the paramount interest of this country, and therefore as the keystone of his policy. The German Reparations offer, there can be no harm in disclosing, was inspired from London.

This first triumph, Mr. Baldwin hoped, would be succeeded by an Inter-Allied Conference in which the German reply would be accepted as a basis for negotiation, and this Conference, in turn, by an informal congress at Brussels or elsewhere, with the Germans present, definitely to liquidate the war.

His hopes were rudely blasted by a brutal negative from Paris. Cautiously, the government caused to be dispatched on June 11 the famous questionaire in which France was most politely requested to explain her views and her plans.

The questions were definite and categorical. M. Poincare could not answer them, however, without exposing the hypocrisy of the French claim that the Republic is in the Ruhr to exact Reparations and not for more sinister motives, less easily avowed.

The Belgian Cabinet crisis immediately chafed under the delay, but could not gainsay the French plea that a consultation with Belgium was necessary before an answer could be returned. So eleven days passed.

SUSPICIONS CONFIRMED

When it was felt that it was impossible to wait any longer, England still did not press for an official reply, but Lord Crewe asked the French Premier informally to outline his attitude. What the French Premier said confirmed his worse suspicions. M. Poincare not only stated that France would not leave the Ruhr until the last penny of reparations has been paid, but even hinted that the British questionnaire may never be answered at all!

Meanwhile, in the highest official circles here the belief is entertained that an explosion in Germany, with consequences of cataclysmic disaster to Central Europe, which may more than destroy the Armistice, cannot now be far off.

Mr. Baldwin, with these considerations in mind, does not intend to permit Britain to remain a cipher in the councils of Europe while her prospects of recovery from the war, through her trade, are being ruined by France.

TO DEAL DIRECTLY

We are assured that, when the Premier does move, whatever criticism may be offered, it can no longer be said that we are a weak, cowardly, ineffective people, afraid to open our mouths while a foreign power deliberately starves our workpeople. We do not imagine things will move in a hurry. A ringing statement of British policy, British interests, British aims, is all that we can expect at first. But soon, if France is determined to remain in the Ruhr, and determined to prevent any Reparations settlement in order to keep Germany prostrate, we shall be compelled to deal direct with our late enemy.

A plan has been discussed in high quarters under which the United States would be asked to arbitrate between Germany and Great Britain to determine the total amount of Reparations which Germany should pay this country in settlement of all claims. The American administration will probably refuse such an office. But there is no reason why Germany and ourselves can not appoint an impartial commission of experts, presided over by an American chairman, and this procedure, we believe, is likely to be agreed upon before the year is out.

DESCENDED FROM KINGS.

The Majority of People Have Royal Blood in Veins.

It was stated recently that a Plantagenet Club is being formed in England, the qualification for membership being descent from Plantagenet Kings, or from Scottish, Welsh, or Irish kings, and princess.

A writer once said that "Every king has a slave for ancestor and every slave a king," and probably there is no little truth in the statement.

If we consider that every person living to-day is the product of millions of ancestors since the days of the Plantagenets, it would be strange if, through some of them, he had not inherited a strain, however diluted, of the blood of kings; for among them there could scarcely fail to be one or more of the old feudal barons, who descent from the early kings of England or Scotland is beyond question.

Without going back to times so remote—though a score of generations would link us with them—it is a well-known fact that there are many thousands of persons living to-day who are lineally descended from the union of princes and princesses of past centuries with commoners.

But it is through descent from the feudal nobles that a strain of royal blood has come probably to millions of the poor and obscure of our day.

In the north of England there are thousands of men and women—laborers, factory-hands, and so on—who, though they do not know it, have among their forefathers Norman barons or knights, or Saxon Thanes, who could trace their descent from kings.

The majority of these old feudal families, after a few generations or centuries of power and splendor, fell from their high estate, and their broad acres passed into other hands. Their descendants sank from one social statum to a lower, until to-day many of them are living as peasants where their ancestors reigned as lords.

Where to-day are the descendants of most of the great feudal families of the north of England—the de Lancasters, barons of Kendal, the Stutevilles, Greystokes, Fitzhughs, Dacres, and so on, all of royal descent? A few, it may be, still flourish; but the majority are among the submerged.

During a recent tour of the north of England the writer came across many of them who, beyond a doubt, spring from such ancient knightly and noble houses. They bear the name; they are struggling to keep body and soul together on the very spot where their ancestors ruled as petty kings; and they know nothing of this splendid past.

In one Yorkshire village lives a farm laborer who is lineally descended from William de Lancanster, first Baron of Kendal, in whose veins was the blood of Plantagenets and Kings of Scotland; and an old woman, who after a life of toil is living on an old age pension, ignorant of the fact that, through her Curwen ancestors, she could claim descent from Ethelred II., King of England, Malcolm II., King of Scotland, and the Counts of Anjou.

In the same district are a maid-of-all-work, a groom, a policeman, and a village shop-keeper, all of whom have similar royal blood in their veins.

These cases are typical of thousands of others, in which people of low degree have a provable royal ancestry; while it is more than probable that millions are no less "royal," though the claim is impossible to prove.

New Theory to Explain Creation of This Earth

By William J. Losh, United Press Staff Correspondent.

Washington, July 21.—A theory that the earth an other planets were formed from fragments rent from the sun by the powerful tidal attraction of a passing star, eons ago, is advanced by J. H. Jeans, F.R.S., in the annual report of the Smithsonian Institution.

Casting about for a theory which harmonizes difficulties of the nebular hypothesis, Jeans and his school of thought have evolved the tidal hypothesis."

According to this theory of the origin of the solar system, what probably happened at the moment of the cataclysm, Jeans says, is that the attraction caused the sun-mass to eject two arms or jets of matter, one towards the attracting star and the other in exactly the opposite direction.

Due to the instability of the distribution of density in one of the masses, condensations formed in it and ultimately it broke up into separate detached masses. The surviving jet formed our sun; the fragments of the burst jet are now our planets.

From the mathematical investigation on which this hypothesis is based, it appears, according to Jean's article, that the jets thrown out would have been gaseous, but would have rapidly cooled in the process of ejection to liquid or even solid states.

"It can be shown that the planets which would be formed out of the middle portion of such a jet ought to be much more massive than those formed near the ends, and this may possibly provide an explanation of the comparatively great masses of Jupiter and Saturn," Jeans states.

"We imagine that the planets at first described orbits under the combined gravitational action of the sun and the passing star, but as the star receded they were left revolving as at present, around the sun. During their earlier motion they may themselves have been broken up by the tidal action of one or both of the big masses present, and such a process may explain the origin of the satellites of the planets."

All the Languages of the World Are Heard at Lausanne

Lausanne, July 1.—(By mail to United Press).—Lausanne—tucked away in the quiet mountains of Lake Geneva—is a veritable Tower of Babel.

Every language in the world—it seems—may be heard in the streets in the movies and around the hotels. Scene of the Near East conference, Lausanne has broadened itself out into more than what it was in the days when one heard of it merely as a pleasure resort or a town in Switzerland.

Always a place of diversified languages—at the border of French speaking and German speaking. Switzerland—Lausanne soon accustomed itself to hearing Turkish, Greek, Russian and most everything scattered promiscuously about the air.

The situation has become so complex that banking institutions plaster their walls with signs written in almost every known language. An announcemet in a store window looks like the instructions in all languages one finds in the back of one's American passport.

And to accompany this mixture of tongues Lausanne decorates itself with the flags of all the nation's interested in the peace conference there. The rising sun of Japan flaps in the wind alongside the tri-color of France and the flags of other lands involved.

"It's some job," declared the hotel porter at the biggest hotel. "Every Turk, Greek and what not thinks I can talk his lingo. I only know fixe or six tongues—but that's not a starter. Fortunately most of them speak French or English—and that let's me in."

JURORS IN DELORME CASE DISAGREE

FRANCO-BRITISH IMPASSE OVER REPARATIONS STILL ACUTE

BRITON, WINNER OF KING'S PRIZE

Captures Honor in Tie-off Shoot With Close Competition

HAWKINS STRONG

Too Many Magpies Preclude Victory for Canadian Marksman

Bisley Camp, July 23.—In brilliant weather but with a changing wind and a mirage over the targets the final stage of the King's Prize was competed for amid great excitement, which was accentuated when Capt. E. H. Robinson, late of the R.A.F., won the coveted prize from Lance-Corporal W. T. Norton, late of the Queen's Regiment, Westminster, in the tie shoot-off.

The Duke of Connaught, who had previously visited the Canadian competitors at their hut and who subsequently distributed the prizes to the winners in the various competitions, was an interested spectator of the shoot-off that meant so much to Robinson and Norton. Robinson scored 5 bulseyes, including two sighters. Norton made two inners and a magpie in the shoot-off.

Robinson made 96 in the second stage of the shoot for the King's Prize, 67 at the 900 yards in the final Saturday, and 69 at the 1,000 yards, his aggregate being 222.

Capt. Robinson's win was exceedingly popular, particularly as the captain belongs to the Bisley neighborhood. He is editor of the National Rifle Association Journal, and was joint author with the late famous marksman, Ammundsen, in a standard book on rifle shooting. He writes short stories.

HAWKINS' SHOOTING.

Sergt.-Major W. A. Hawkins, Toronto, opened well at the 900-yard range in the final shoot for the King's Prize with four bullseyes, but unfortunately he dropped into magpies after that. However, he regained his form and made bullseyes in his last four shots. He was regarded as the Canadians' best hope in the important competition, but his last four bullseyes were preceded by several inners and an outer in his eleventh shot.

A. E. Ashe, Victoria, B.C., had four outers and two magpies in his list of shots at the 900 yards. Major C. R. Crowe had several magpies and one outer, but he made bullseyes after his tenth shot.

At the last range, 1,000 yards, all the Canadian targets were diversified, but not more so than the majority along the whole length of the range. The wind and light were exceedingly puzzling at the 1,000-yard range.

His Majesty the King's Prize is of an aggregate value of £1,170. The first prize is £250 given by the King and the National Rifle Association's gold medal and gold badge. The second prize is the N.R.A. badge and £50; third, the N.R.A. badge and £20; fourth, the N.R.A. badge and £10. Altogether there are 400 prizes

Veteran Editor Honored On Eightieth Birthday

Former Publisher of Stirling News-Argus Observes Completion of 63 Years of Service in Newspaper Field.

A significant event occurred at Stirling on Saturday afternoon. Mr. James Currie, until last April editor and publisher of the Stirling News-Argus, celebrated his eightieth birthday and his sixty-third year in the newspaper field. Members of the Bay of Quinte district of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association, of which Mr. Currie is a member, assisted in the celebration.

The veteran newspaper man was presented with a gold-headed cane by his admiring colleagues and was the recipient of a flood of congratulatory expressions from those present and from others who were unable to be present and who sent their messages by mail.

The presentation took place on the lawn of Mr. Currie's charming home in Stirling. The gift was presented by Mr. E. A. Calnan, publisher of the Picton Gazette and secretary of the Bay of Quinte Association. Mr. Calnan briefly reviewed Mr. Currie's long career and commented upon the steadiness of purpose and peace of mind which served as potent factors in Mr. Currie's notable success in the newspaper field. Mr. A. H. Watson of the Madoc Review, retiring president of the Bay of Quinte Association extended congratulations and best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Currie on behalf of the association. Among other speakers, who lauded Mr. Currie's record and complimented the veteran editor and publisher and his helpmeet were: E. R. Sayles of Toronto, national manager of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association, who conveyed to the honoree a message of good will from the press of Canada; Mr. F. A. J. Davis of the Central Canadian of Carleton Place, who proffered the congratulations of the Ottawa Valley Association; Mr. A. R. Alloway of the Trenton Courier-Advocate President of the Bay of Quinte Association and Mr. H. M. Price of the Bancroft Times, Vice-President.

Mr. and Mrs. Currie responded fittingly, the former explaining that, throughout his long career as a publisher, it had been his steadfast aim to pursue a policy of fairness, to gain the respect of his readers for the reliability of his publication and to supply his readers with a news medium of a moral tone and standard that would assure it a welcome in any household. There were number of ladies in the party and following the ceremony associated with the presentation, the remainder of the afternoon was spent socially. Light refreshments were served and before their departure the visitors and the members of the Currie household posed for a group photograph.

Mr. Currie was born in East Whitby township, near Oshawa on July 21, 1843. At the age of 17, he entered the employment of The Oshawa Vindicator.

In 1870 he became associated with the management of the Cannington Gleaner and in December 1884, he removed to Stirling to become proprietor of the News Argus, succeeding Mr. J. H. Thompson, who later became the publisher of the Thorold Post. Mr. Currie disposed of his interests in the News-Argus in April, last to Trent Valley Newspapers, Ltd, of which Mr. A. R. Alloway of Trenton is the active head. He still assists in the publication of the News-Argus. L. B. Calnan, Jr., is the manager of the News-Argus.

Mr. and Mrs. Currie have four daughters, the Misses M. E. and A. M. who reside at the family home, Mrs. Jos. Frappy of River Valley and Mrs. W. H. Stevens of New Mexico.

Mexico Will Furnish Coal to Canada at Cost of $9 a Ton

Washington, July 23.—The Mexican Government has advised the Mexican Trade Commissioner at Montreal that Mexico would be willin gto furnish coal to Canada at a cost of $9 a ton. The Mexican Embassy made this announcement to-day. A Canadian syndicate offered to purchase 200,000 tons of coal in Mexico at $8 a ton.

The answer of the Mexican Government will be transmitted to the Canadian syndicate, and it is considered probable that it will be accepted. A heavy drain would be made by this contract on the coal.

ALLOWAY HEADS DISTRICT EDITORS

Association Favors $2.00 as Yearly Subscription Rate for Weeklies.

Mr. A. R. Alloway, publisher of the Trenton Courier-Advocate was elected president of the Bay of Quinte district of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association to succeed Mr. A. H. Watson of the Madoc Review at a largely attended meeting of the district of the Canadian Weekly Newsay. Other officers elected were: Mr. H. M. Price, Bancroft Times, Vice-President; Mr. A. E. Calnan, Picton Gazette, Secretary, (re-elected); Mr. S. G. Way, Tweed Advocate, Thos. J. Jarrett, Quinte Sun, W. B. Embry, Directors.

The association adopted a resolution introduced by Mr. Alloway favoring a minimum yearly subscription rate of $2.00 for weekly newspapers in the district, which comprises Prince Edward and Hastings counties The resolution stated that "in view of the fact that more than 400 weeklies in Canada have advanced their yearly rates to $2.00, the association believes of $2.00 per year to be the minimum subscription rate at which weekly newspapers can be published at a profit and urges that all weeklies in the district not now maintain a subscription rate of $2.00 do so on or before September 1, 1923.

Technical discussions dealing with job room methods and operation costs were led by Mr. E. R. Sayles of Toronto, national manager of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association and Mr. F. A. J. Davis of the Central Canadian, Carleton Place.

British Empire Vividly Extolled At Rotary Lunch

W. S. Herrington, K.C., of Napanee, Speaks of the Characteristics of Units Composing the Empire

There was a large attendance at Rotary luncheon today at Hotel Quinte, presided over by President O. H. Scott. Visitors were Harry Guppy and H. Benson of Windsor, J. C. Thompson, Swift Current, N. A. Montgomery, of Toronto, J. N. Flett, Kingsville, R. A. Bull, W. H. Gomery and H. F. Ketcheson, Belleville.

After luncheon and the transaction of some business, Mr. B. Burrows in a few well chosen remarks introduced the speaker of the day, Mr. W. S. Herrington, K.C., of Napanee.

Mr. Herrington's address was entitled "The Empire" and he referred to the various units which compose the Empire. Canada was not British originally, but French. It became British by conquest. He hoped that the best of feelings would exist between those in Canada who spoke different tongues. Canada has remained British. In 1792 our forefathers landed upon these shores and a government was formed, not a government by the people.

The speaker referred to the approaching celebration in Belleville commemorating the landing of the U. E. L. in this vicinity. Mr. Herrington next referred to Australia, which country has a commonwealth government similar to that in vogue in Canada. It has a population of about one million. South Africa and India were spoken of. India presents problems that will be hard to prove. The people in that country are, however, energetic and intelligent and this is manifested by the many beautiful and substantial buildings that are erected in the various cities.

Look at these different units, which are thousands of miles apart. What in common brings these units together Nations are like individuals and as such are bound together. There is a strong attachment to the mother land. Great Britain is sentimental, but not emotional. There may be class distinction but the humblest is honored and respected generally. Another characteristic of the British is the respect for the law and the dignity of the law. It has also great respect for religion and things sacred. Great Britain deals with friend and foe alike. When Great Britain sets out to accomplish an object or goal, she accomplishes it. She will see that all get British fair play. It is the respect that all have for Great Britain that we are one as it were, and sing with heart and soul, "God Save the King."

Rotarian J. O. Herity on behalf of those present extended to the speaker a hearty vote of thanks for his admirable address. This Mr. Herrington acknowledged.

British Stand Coolly Welcomed in France

Matin Says France Can Not Sign Note Because of Germans' Rebellion Against Versailles Pact.

(United Press Despatch Exclusive to The Intelligencer)

Paris, July 23.—If lack of accord persists between France and England each country will be obliged to resume its liberty towards the German Government, the semi-official Temps declares editorially today.

Paris, July 23.—Matin declared editorially that it is impossible for France to sign the British note to Germany because Germany is in open rebellion against the treaty of Versailles.

Paris, July 23.—Bitterly and sarcastically flaying Lloyd George for finding it "amusing" that France could simultaneously restore devastated regions and complain of Germany's voluntary bankruptcy, Premier Poincare Sunday attacked the ex-British Premier. Theunis examined the British note to Germany and the accompanying covering letter. Prop-British circles are optimistic while prop-French circles remain non-committal. pro-French circles remain non-com-

London, July 23.—The note to Germany replies in detail to the German proposals of June 7. It accepts in principle the International Commission of experts to assess German capacity to pay. The note discusses German guarantees offered in the Berlin note and intimating these will have to be supplemented by others. There is only vague reference to the Ruhr. This is confined to an expression of regret as to the effect of passive resistance. In its present form after editing by rival factions of the Cabinet, this clause is devoid of any specific meaning.

The covering note to the Allies recognizes the French claim to reparations in friendly phrases, but requests modification of the Ruhr regime without specifically asking evacuation. The document expresses willingness to discuss the inter-allied debts at a convenient time. The British case is restated at length.

ACT OF HEROISM PERFORMED BY BELLEVILLE MAN IS RECALLED

Editor, Intelligencer:

The world admires heroism. I was informed yesterday of a most courageous act of heroism performed some years ago, by Mr. Donnan, the present acting Crown Attorney for this county.

A number of lads were skating on a pond. The ice gave way and one boy fell through the hole and sank. Mr. Donnan immediately dived through the hole in an effort to rescue the unfortunate boy. He reached and grappled for the boy, and caught the boy's cap and supposed he had the boy, but unfortunately had not. In doing this act Mr. Donnan risked his own life.

Belleville is fortunate in having such a brave man as a citizen.

A. J. Nesbitt Buyer of Ottawa-Hull Power Co.

A. J. NESBITT.

Whose purchase of the Ottawa and Hull Power Company constitutes one of the most notable deals in the power field for some time.

Montreal, July 23 (Special)—One of the largest and most important power deals that have been consummated in Canada in the past few years was successfully concluded here today, when A. J. Nesbitt, head of the firm of Nesbitt, Thomson and Company, on his own behalf, took over the entire ownership of the Ottawa and Hull Power Company, the largest concern wholesaling power in the districts of Ottawa and Hull.

Earlier reports had indicated that perhaps Mr. Nesbitt had associated with him some New York interests, but when the final details were completed today it was found that he was acting solely on his own account and had purchased for his own firm the entire outstanding stock of the big power company.

Mr. Nesbitt has been specializing in public utility and power undertaking for a great many years. The present, however, is the largest deal ever carried out for his personal account.

The Ottawa and Hull Power Company owns two hydro-electric plants situated on the Chaudiere Falls, between Ottawa and Hull, on the Quebec side. These two plants have an installed capacity of 31,000 horsepower and with a third unit now being installed will have a total production in excess of 40,000 horsepower.

In addition, the company controls a large undeveloped power at Bryson, 50 miles from Ottawa, capable of the development of 60,000 horsepower. Among some of the principal customers who are large consumers of the company's power are the City of Ottawa Hydro-Electric Commission, the Ottawa Light and Power Co., Canada Cement Co., Hull Electric Co., City of Hull, British-American Nickel and others.

Music & Drama

MAY McAVOY'S FIRST PICTURE WAS "SWEET"

It was a very "sweet" picture, the first photoplay in which May McAvoy ever appeared. For the young star who will be seen at Griffin's to-night to Wednesday in "Through a Glass Window", made her picture debut in a one-reel affair advertising a popular brand of sugar.

She took that advertising job because the casting directors for regular legitimate drama couldn't "see her". They thought she was too small and failed to recognize the remarkable appeal of the girl. When the "sugar" photoplay appeared, however, they revised their ideas and she leaped into instant popularity, a popularity which led to stardom following her appearance as "Grizel" in Barrie's "Sentimental Tommy".

"Through a Glass Window" is a gripping human interest Realart picture produced by Famous Players Lasky Corporation. It was written by Olga Printzlau and directed by Maurice Campbell. Raymond McKee is the leading man and heads an unusually strong supporting cast of players.

Fox News, a two-reel Wild animal story, and an original and amusing Toonerville Trolley comedy have been arranged for presentation on the same program.

AMERICAN LIFE FIFTY YEARS AGO SETTING FOR "SHADOWS OF CONSCIENCE" AT REGENT

There are several reasons why Russell's "Shadows of Conscience", which is the feature attraction at the Regent Theatre, to-night to Wednesday, matinee daily, is a distinctly superior offering. It isn't often that you find a picture of the Great West, as this is, so replete with hot action and at the same time so free from cheapness and overdrawn melodramatic situations. The story has everything that makes real drama, including heart interest, villainy, comedy and pathos. It has a picturesque background, taking place in the American West fifty years ago when morals and oreder were more of an individual matter than a written decree.

Briefly the tale concerns the life of Jim Logan, a frontiersman who escapes to California after having been unjustly accused of the crime of murder. Here he brings up a small daughter of a miner who was killed by his partner. The latter trails Logan and after ten years finds him happy and prosperous, the guardian of the girl who has turned out to be a beautiful young woman. He decides to "expose" Logan's past but is thwarted in his schemes by Logan's cleverness in forcing him instead to confess to his own guilt. The ending is achieved in a marvellously powerful manner and serves as the final twist to a fascinating drama.

Those who see the first chapter of "The Eagle's Talons", the new Universal chapter play, which is being shown on the same program will agree with the writer that it is the most thrilling chapter picture ever shown here. In the first chapter there are as many punches as ordinarily are to be seen in most feature productions. "The Fighting Parson", Fred Thompson is co-starred with Ann Little, a screen daredevil. Al. Wilson, champion stunt flyer supports them.

A good Sport Review and Two-Reel Vitagraph Comedy will also be exhibited.

FRANCISCO VILLA, most spectacular of Mexican bandits and survivor of a hundred skirmishes, was ambushed and killed by a group of twenty men near his ranch in Durango.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

ABDOMINAL BELTS

In some of our more up-to-date hospitals it is not unusual to see people lying on the abdomen for days and weeks across a pillow. There has been some falling of the organs of the abdomen, ligaments have been stretched and the physician is endeavoring to get things back into place insofar as he is able.

Sometimes there have been strains of the muscles and joints of the back, and they are thus quietly rested or put back into place by this simple method

In a former article I spoke about corsets and suggested that every one should wear them. That is corsets made out of muscle, your own muscle—the muscles of the abdomen.

Now of course that is the ideal method of retaining the internal organs in their proper position, and likewise taking any undue strain off the back. But naturally there are cases too weak, too old in fact to endeavor to develop the abdominal muscles sufficiently to hold everything in place. And it is for these cases that the abdominal belts are of such great benefit. Just another time when you give Nature a little help.

But the average stout man or woman in good health who resorts to an abdominal belt and that only is making a big mistake.

If in addition to wearing the belt you do simple abdominal exercises such as bending and twisting, lying on the back and raising both feet SLOWLY almost to a right angle a few times a day, and also cutting down on your liquids and starches, you will find yourself gradually tightening up the belt a hole or two every week and may be able to do without it altogether. A few months of this common sense method will work wonders with you.

You see you will have made the belt out of muscle that Nature intended you to wear.

Popular Commercial Traveller Strongly Recommends Dreco, the Ideal Tonic and Regulator. His Story is Particularly Interesting at This Season of the Year

Mr. Samuel Toples, of 340 Charlotte Street, Peterborough, Ontario, the well-known traveller for B. F. Ackerman, Son & Company, Ltd., discovered in Dreco an ideal corrective for internal ailments. Mr. Toples says:

"For years, my stomach, kidneys and liver have troubled me. My food would sour, causing indigestion, gas and heartburn. Had a sharp pain in the small of my back from my kidneys and suffered terrible dizzy spells which at times got the best of me so that I could hardly keep up with my work. Had pains in my stomach and chest from the gas and my bowels seemed locked as had always to be taking medicine to keep them open. I was very nervous and could not sleep and my appetite was very poor. I hardly knew what it was to eat a square meal.

"I suffered with these ailments for several years and tried almost every kind of medicine without result. Then, fortunately I heard about Dreco and gave it a trial. One bottle has done more good for me than anything I have ever used. Most of my troubles have vanished and I can carry on my work with great comfort. I intend to finish the full treatment and have my wife, whose health has been poorly, take it also."

All of Mr. Toples' troubles were traceable to his stomach. Dreco prepared especially for the stomach from medicinal herbs and roots, quickly restores it to healthy functions and builds up the whole system. Dreco contains no mercury, potash or habit forming drugs.

Dreco is being specially introduced in Belleville by The Belleville Pharmacy, and is Sold by a Good Druggist every where.

Owning a good watch is more than a privilege

It's a duty. Every man whose time is of value owes himself an accurate measurer of his time.

An unreliable timepiece is an exasperation. And frequent visits to the repair man finally cost more than a new watch.

You may argue that you can't afford a good watch.

The truth is you can't afford not to.

If your idea of dependable watch is correct, the watch is here.

If you can spare us a few minutes some time, we shall be glad to show you.

A MISSION ACCOMPLISHED

Few men acquire the distinction that has been earned by Mr. James Currie, editor-emeritus of the Stirling News-Argus. On Saturday, last Mr. Currie celebrated the eightieth anniversary of his birth and, incidentally the sixty-third anniversary of his entrance into the newspaper field.

Mr. Currie was a pioneer in the newspaperfield in Canada. He entered the field at a time when publishing methods were crude. There were no lynotype machines and few power driven presses. There were no telephones and typewriters were not in use. The duties in every department of the weekly paper were far more laborious than is the case to-day.

As a lad of 17, he entered the employment of the Oshawa Vindicator as a printer. As a tyro, his duties were even more varied than that of novices in weekly newspaper plants today. In accordance with the custom of those days, he was primarily a fledgling printer, but he quickly acquired a smattering of newsgathering job work and advertising, and in a few years was graduated from the tyro stage. In 1870 he became connected with the Cannington Gleaner in an executive capacity and in 1884, he took charge of the News-Argus as owner and editor.

On Saturday when the newspapermen of the Bay of Quinte group of the Canadian Weekly Newspaper Association journeyed to Stirling to pay honor to a man who had rounded out 63 consecutive years in the newspaper field, they found a charming gentleman, erect in bearing, clear-eyed, faultlessly groomed and thoroughly conversant with current events and the technical affairs of the newspaper world of today.

His colleagues, aware of his splendid record of achievement as a newspaperman, were deeply impressed by the calm dignity and vigor of this veteran, who has survived 63 years in an industry which demands perhaps greater expenditure of energy and more faithful devotion to duty than does any other.

It was natural that his fellows of the Fourth Estate, familiar with the vicissitudes and demands of newspaper work, were impressed.

The editor of a weekly newspaper is in the fullest sense a public servant. He is, by virtue of his profession, in imtimate contact with the people of the community. More, he becomes an intimate of each household and, as the years pass he witnesses episodes in the great drama of life, which are revealed to few besides those immediately concerned.

An editor whose span of service in one community covers a half century acquires a profound philosophy of life, a philosophy predicated upon a highly developed knowledge of human nature.

Society becomes virtually an open book to him. As a friend, confident and counsellor of the people of his community he comes into contact with life in all its phases. He is familiar with its foibles and fancies, its tragedy and comedy.

He congratulates the young married couple upon the arrival of their first-born and prints the news of the events in the columns of his paper. Later, as the child grows older and reaches the period of adolescence, his career is faithfully followed in the columns of the newspaper. The first little social functions, the early years at school, then the honors gained as a school boy or schoolgirl, all these are recognized as news by the editor. No one is more proud of the members of the high school or college graduating class than is the editor. The rich 'Jones' boy and the son of 'Smith', the ne'er-do-well are accorded equal recognition and honor in the newspaper.

As the years pass and the young people attain maturity, weddings are solemnized and are elaborately described in the "society news". In addition, the editor, as the spokesman for the community, extends to the happy couple the best wishes of the community.

But life is not all sunshine and as the shadows come and go the editor remains true to his creed, faithful to his trust. When erring members of the community bring disgrace and sorrow to relatives, the weekly editor, when it is necessary in fairness to his readers to public the story, refrains as far as possible from publishing shameful details.

When a citizen dies whether he be of high or low degree whether during his span on earth he has amassed riches and has gained honor among his fellows or whether misfortune or his own folly has prevented him from acquiring even a competence, his memory is respected by the editor. To all alike is extended the common courtesy, characteristic of the newspaper in its dealings with society.

Another phase of the weekly editor's life is the responsibility he cheerfully assumes in civic affairs. Necessarily a leader in the community he is frequently the first to launch a progressive movement. It is usually the editor who proclaims the advantage to be derived from the introductions of a new industry. It is he who consistenly advocates civic improvements, good roads, adequate school buildings, hospitals, etc.

Newspaper ethics are highly developed and firmly grounded. The ethics of the editor are the ethics of his newspaper.

Hence, Mr. Currie, editor-emeritus of the Stirling News-Argus, at the end of his 63 years of service, possesses the pleasurable knowledge of having faithfully and wisely steered his course through the water of life during all these years.

Through all the kaleidoscopic changes of a long period in which physical and even racial configuration became materially altered; through all depressions and crises, his emprise survived to stand today, embodied in the News-Argus, as a monument to a man who has ably performed his mission in life and now, full of years and rich in honors among his fellows, is content.

He is not perhaps, in the strictest sense, an editor-emeritus since he left the field as owner and publisher several months ago, and is still connected with the News-Argus in another capacity because he has no desire to remain idle. His philosophy of life is aptly epitomized in the beautiful lines,

"Let me live in my house by the side of the road
And be a friend to man."

By The Side Of The Road

Imagine Earle Williams as the Earl and Betty Compson as the bride.

PRESS OPINIONS

WHY BLESS A SNEEZE?

(Montreal Herald)

Often in this country a sneeze is greeted with "God bless you, or "God keep ye, sir." Curiously enough, this is a survival of the Black Plague which swept Europe more than two centuries ago. It is believed that a chill preluded this fatal and loathsome disease, and everywhere men uttered a prayer lest afflicted friends should become victims.

DANGER OF SOCIALISM.

(Adelaide Chronicle)

The more strongly the premier insists on the necessity of a common front against the danger of Socialism—and he is painting that danger, not without justification, in the most vivid colors—the clearer becomes the need for all practicable measures of association in order to bring out and use effectively the full strength of the anti-socialistic forces.

THE PRICE WE PAY.

(London Advertiser)

Northern Ontario and Quebec are again being burned. Great areas of timber have done down; settlers and villagers are in danger of extinction. Fishermen and sportsmen are glamed for the trouble—much of it at any rate.

If hundreds of acres of burned timber is the price we pay for a catch of fish and a few dead animals, then it is high time to leave the fish alone in these forest streams. Every summer and fall sees the same thing in Canada's wooded areas. It is high time we did something more desperate printing pamphlets and issuing warnings.

NEW BLOOD NEEDED.

(Philadelphia Ledger)

The presentation of an unacceptable reparations offer by the Cuno government and its prompt rejection by the Poincare government have demonstrated rather conclusively that Cuno and Poincare cannot meet upon common ground. Paradoxically, however, the Franco-German muddle is a shade less muddy as a result of the exchange.

A very distinct feeling exists that France and Germany can meet on common ground. But not Cuno and Poincare. These two seem to have reached their respective limits.

A change in personalities is now in order. A new chancellor of Germany and a new premier of France might well be able to bridge the gap which now yawns betweeen the two nations.

Wit and Humor

Preachers who are so eagerly trying to do something unusual might try preaching the old-fashioned gospel.

MASCULINE, FEMININE, NEUTER.

A curate, newly arrived in a certain parish, met a small child in rather nondescript attire, and endeavored to make friends.

"Well and how are you, my little boy?"

"I'm not a little boy."

"Oh, a little girl, eh?"

"Nope.".

"Dear! dear! Then what are you?"

"If you please, sir" (thinking of a recent school promotion).—"I'm a 'mixed junior'!"

Realism is just the art of making commonplace, inoffensive things seem nasty.

Germany is magnanimously willing to let France choose any method of collecting that won't work.

But what do you do to make the car stop?

How often do you have the brakes inspected? How often adjusted? Most important of all—are they lined with RAYBESTOS?

In emergencies, everything depends—not on speed or power or oil or gas; but upon—brake lining.

Maybe you've never got into a real tight pinch—but any day the test may come—if it came to-morrow would your brakes respond?

It's such a simple precaution to see that they are working right and lined with Raybestos—the lining guaranteed to safeguard the lives and property dependent on your brakes; guaranteed not in any haphazard way—but definitely—for a full year of service.

FOR over twenty years the Carnation label has been a sure guide to purity, safety, and convenience in milk. Carnation is simply the richest and best milk with about 60% of the natural water content removed by evaporation, sealed in the container and sterilized.

Carnation is rich enough to take the place of cream in tea, coffee, etc. By adding a little more than an equal part of water you get "whole" milk of natural consistency. Order several tall (16 oz.) cans or a case of 48 cans from your grocer.

THIN WHITE SAUCE

Two tablespoonfuls flour, 2 tablespoonfuls butter, ½ teaspoonful salt, 2/3 cup water, 1/3 cup Carnation Milk. Melt butter, add flour and stir until thoroughly mixed. Add the milk with the water and cook about five minutes or until the mixture thickens, then add salt. This recipe makes one cup of sauce.

BELLEVILLE RAILROADERS TAKE GAME FROM COBOURG SQUAD BY SCORE OF 5-3

OULETTE HURLS STEADY GAME FOR TRUNKS—TWO GET HOMER

Victory Indicates That Winning Streak of Locals is Still Existent

The Trunks won from Cobourg at the agricultural field on Saturday afternoon in a central League fixture by a score of 5-3. Few strike-outs and plenty of hitting kept the fans on edge the whole nine innings. Saturday's win puts Belleville on even footing with Peterboro and a victory over Jake's clan here on Wednesday will put the locals on the top of the second half.

It was expected that Jack Williams would take the mound, but a last minute change saw Jack Oulette go to the hillock. The right-hander was in fairly good form with the exception of the seventh, when the Cobourgers nicked him for three hits, which resulted in their scoring a trio of runs. He struck out five, issued two passes, and allowed but six safeties.

Both Wicky Ross and Harry Mills walloped out home runs, both of which were clean slams which went in the race track. Wicky's was a lusty clout to deep centre, and Harry's to right field. Jack K. Williams and Harry Brownscombe banged out three-baggers.

The fielding features were supplied by Ross, Mills and Turpin. Harry pulled off two pretty catches. He stabbed Jahren's drive in the third and again the sixth he went into the crowd and pulled down Butler's fly. Ross came in fast to pick off a line drive over second base. Turpin robbed Mills of clean hit when he grabbed Harry's drive with his bare hand. It was a pretty hit and the Cobourger received a hand from the crowd for his pretty piece of work.

Jahren was in the box for the visitors and was hit rather freely, besides yielding five passes. He was pulled in the sixth and "Punch" Derry sent in. The latter fared much better and fanned four men during his short regime.

Belleville gathered a total of seven hits while the Cobourgers had six safeties. Three errors came to Belleville and one to the losers. Vern Weir was responsible for two bobbles while Meagher mussed up one.

The Trunks started scoring in the first and continued until the sixth, after which Derry held them scoreless. T. Kenny, the Cobourg first-sacker was injured in sliding to second and forced to retire. J. Kenny took his place at the initial sack while Payne went to centre field.

A Weir to Meagher to Mills play completed a pretty double killing in the eighth inning.

Allan Meagher was credited with but one time at bat. He laid down two pretty sacrifice hits, walked, and grounded out in his four appearances.

The game took two hours to be played. Alex. Kay and George Sullivan umpired, and both were right on top of the plays.

BIG BUSINESS GOING IN FOR SPORTS

By PAUL R. MALLON, United Press Staff Correspondent.

New York, July 23.—Big business is beginning to realize the worth of sports.

A few years ago employers in the major factories and business houses looked upon sport merely as a recreation and took no hand. Now it is considered a part of the business.

Baseball grounds, athletic tracks, football fields and tennis courts are being constructed by nearly every big plant, in the realization that such recreation may take the place of the old corner saloon. It increases the efficiency of the workers and holds them to their jobs.

Perhaps the largest undertaking of this kind has been launched by the Westinghouse Electric Company, which has organized what is known as The Westinghouse Athletic Association. The company employs more than 30,000 persons and its monthly payroll averages $4 250,000.

The organization pays for itself from admissions, which are carefully handled by a board of directors.

Girls' activities are under a separate association. They play baseball, tennis and basketball. At present they have one baseball team, two basketball teams and have arranged a tennis tournament.

Seven men baseball teams are formed into an intershop league where prizes are offered to the pennant winner and the team finishing in second place.

The success of the scheme indicates clearly that industrial athletics have come to stay.

A lot of talk about the "luck of the game."

In most cases it about evens up in the long run. Walter Hoover, the Duluth sculling star, who won the Diamond Sculls last year, lost this year to the same man in the same manner that he had won.

When Hoover and D. H. L. Gollan of Leanders were rowing in the first heat in the race last year, Gollan's oar blade split and he was forced to drop out of the race, while Hoover continued on and won.

This year Hoover's oar split in the same heat.

Recently Sammy has been credited with doing the 100 yards—in which his elder brother held the record for years—in 54 4-5 seconds. He paddled the 220 yards in 2 minutes 25 seconds. Both are close to Duke's marks.

It is possible that he will begin international competition within the next year, perhaps at the Olympiad in Paris.

• • •

Speaking of the Olympiad, the word is given out by the American Olympic committee that a little village is being constructed outside the stadium at Colombes.

Practically all of the countries have agreed to take a number of the little villas which have four separate rooms suitably furnished, with two bedrooms and lavatories.

The houses of each country will be fenced off so that each nation will be a separate community.

In each section there will be a large dining room and reading room with shower baths and massage rooms.

A big dance and reception hall will be erected in the center of the village and likewise a theatre, where productions will be staged for the athletes.

A practice running track and swimming pool also is being provided.

Local Situation In Hockey Circles Demands Action

Belleville Stars Being Lured to Other Clubs

The residence rule of the Ontario Hockey Association takes effect in a week or two and many hockey players are now making a last minute move and transferring from one club to another.

In Belleville the situation is somewhat complicated and who will take over the reigns of management here next season is not yet known. Mr. W. E. Scott of the Belleville Amateur Athletic Association when interviewed this morning said that nothing definite had been done in regard to the selection of a manager but one would probably be appointed in a few days. Several well-known men have been mentioned for the position. If we are to have a hockey team next season something must be done immediately. Several local players have already migrated to other towns and a number of others are contemplating a change.

Both "Bouncer" and "Toots" Holway who have been prominent in local sporting circles for some years have located in Brockville, where they have accepted positions. The Brockville Rowing Club have corralled a number of fast players and hope to cut a big figure in he hockey world. Kinghorn of Cornwall has also taken up his residence in Brockville. The above mentioned boys form the nucleus of a nifty aggregation.

Lawrence Goyer, formerly of this city and who played Junior with Guelph last season will probably be found under the colours of the Woodstock team in the coming season. At least this is the latest rumour which has come from Western Ontario.

Gunner Arnott a Belleville product may remain in Preston unless Stan Burgoyne coaxes him to Milwaukee, where Stan. has been signed up as coach. Gunner made a big hit with the Preston fans last season with his spectacular rushes.

The players are drifting from Belleville and if we are to be represented by a fast team something must be done to retain them.

Of last year's team we still have:—Crooks, Weir, Frechette, "Soup" Goyer, Hagerman and Swayne. A new defence must be secured with both Holway boys gone.

Last year's Juniors will be practically intact.

Although the season is still five months away we must look to ourselves and be prepared to meet the situation.

Yachting Notes

Mr. T. S. B. Benson, designer of the R.C.Y.C. "Nayada," which anchored off the Government Dock Saturday noon was one of the party aboard the yacht. He and the crew, consisting of H. E. Soulter, D. G. Edison and Arthur Phillips were the guests of the Commodore and officers of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club at the Belleville Club and Hotel Quinte for luncheon. The yacht cleared for Chaumont Bay, New York early in the afternoon.

SOFT BALL NOTES

The Printers team of the soft-ball league will hold a practice on Coleman Flats to-morrow night at 6.30 sharp. All players in either office who wish to try out will please be on deck at 6.30 sharp.

Mr. H. A. Fish has donated a cup for the boys. Such generosity is much appreciated.

Wednesday night's game at the High School grounds at 6.30 should attract a good crowd. The Grand Trunk office are reported as having a nifty aggregation with such well-known boys as Cy Young, Harry Hurley and others on their line-up Senior players on the Grand Trunk team are barred from competition. The Tiger Tire are equally strong. The ball to be used is a fourteen inch rigid-surface ball.

THE WOMAN POWER OF AMERICA

is well illustrated by the thousands of women who are entering every profession, almost every line of business and politics as well. They are bound to make good, and there is no question but what health is their greatest asset, Many women, however, develop weak, nervous conditions and cannot stand the strain of a professional or business life. Such women should remember when beset with headaches, backache, nervous, irritability or any ailment peculiar to their sex that the greatest of all remedies for such conditions is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. For nearly fifty years this old-fashioned root and herb medicine has been restoring the women of America to health and strength. It holds the remarkable record of helping 98 out of every 100 women who try it.

PATRICIA BRENT SPINSTER

ANONYMOUS

"It's a bomb next door," gasped Mrs. Craske-Morton, then remembering her responsibilities, she caught Patricia's eye. There was appeal in her glance.

"Come along, Gustave," cried Patricia in a voice that she still found it difficult to recognise as her own.

Gustave, still on his knees, looked round and up at her with the eyes of a dumb animal that knows it is about to be tortured.

"Gustave, get up and help with the tea," said Patricia.

A look of wonder crept into Gustave's eyes at the unaccustomed tone of Patricia's voice. Slowly he dragged himself up, as if testing the capacity of each knee to support the weight of his body.

"There's brandy there," said Mrs. Craske-Morton, pointing to a spirit-case she had brought down with her. "Here's the key."

Patricia took the key from her trembling hand, noting that her own was shaking violently.

"Mrs. Morton," she whispered; "you are splendid."

Mrs. Morton smiled wanly, and Patricia felt that in that moment she had got to know the woman beneath the boarding-house keeper.

"Shall we put it in their tea?" enquired Patricia, holding the decanter of brandy.

Mrs. Craske-Morton nodded.

"Now, Gustave!" cried Patricia, "make everybody drink tea."

Gustave looked at his own hands, and then down at his knees as if in doubt as to whether he possessed the power of making them obey his wishes.

Miss Wangle was still on her knees the cook was appealing to the Almighty with tiresome reiteration. Jenny had developed hysterics, and was seated on the ground drumming with her heels upon the floor. Miss Sikkum gazing at her as if she had been some phenomenon from another world. Mr. Bolton had valiantly pulled himself together and was endeavouring to persuade Mrs. Barnes to accept the various garments that he was picking up from the floor. Her only acknowledgment of his gallantry was to gaze at him with dull, unseeing eyes, and to wag her head from side to side as if in repudiation of the ownership of what he was striving to get her to take from him.

Mr. Sefton, valiant to the end, was with trembling fingers endeavouring to extract a cigarette from his case, apparently unconscious that one was still attached to his lip. Mrs. Craske-Morton, Patricia, and Gustave set themselves to work to pour tea and brandy down the throats of the others. Mr. Sefton took his mechanically and put it to his lips, oblivious of the cigarette that still dangled there. Finding an obstruction he put up his hand and pulled the cigarette away with it a portion of the skin of his lip. For the rest of the evening he was dabbing his mouth with his pocket-handkerchief.

Gustave had valiantly gone to the assistance of Jenny, and was endeavouring to pour tea through her closed teeth, with the result that it streamed down the neck of her nightdress. The effect was the same, however. As she felt the hot fluid on her chest she screamed, stopped drumming with her heels and looked about the kitchen.

"You've scalded me, you beast!" she cried, whereat Gustave, who was sitting on his heels, started and fell backwards, bringing Miss Sikkum down on top of him together with her cup of tea.

Mrs. Craske-Morton was ministering to Miss Wangle and Mrs. Mosscrop-Smythe. Mr. Bolton and Mr. Cordal were both drinking neat brandy out of teacups.

Outside the guns still thundered and screamed.

Patricia went to the assistance of the cook; kneeling down she persuaded her to drink a cup of tea and brandy, which had the effect of silencing her appeals to the Almighty.

For an hour the "guests" of Galvin House waited, exactly what for no one knew. Then the noise of the firing began to die away in waves of sound. There would be a few minutes' silence but for the distant rumble of guns, then suddenly a spurt of firing as if the guns were reluctant to former anger. Another period of silence would follow, then two or three isolated reports, like the snarl of dogs that had been dragged from their prey. Finally quiet.

For a further half hour Galvin House waited, praying that the attack would not be renewed. There were little spurts of conversation. Mr. Sefton was slowly returning to the "foot on the capstan" attitude, and actually had a cigarette alight. Mr. Bolton and Mr. Cordal were speculating as to where the bomb had fallen. Mrs. Craske-Morton was wondering if the Government would pay promptly for the damage to her glass.

Outside there were sounds of life and movement, cars were throbbing and passing to and fro, and men's voices could be heard. Suddenly there was a loud peal of the street-door bell. All looked at each other in consternation. Gustave looked about him as if he had lost a puppy. Mrs. Craske-Morton looked at Gustave.

"Gustave!" said Patricia, surprised at her own calm.

Gustave looked at her for a moment then, remembering his duties, went slowly to the door, listening the while as if expecting a further bombardment to break out. With the exception of Miss Wangle and the cook, everybody was on the qui vive of expectation.

Lip-Stick on Pearl Necklace Latest in Paris

By Hedda Hoyt, United Press Fashion Editor.

New York, N.Y., July 23.—The poke hat continues its reign in Paris, although several millinery designers are sponsoring the new "scuttle" hat which differs slightly from the poke. Its crown is higher than the crown of the average poke and its brim is very narrow. All hats continue to keep the short back effect. Panne and Lyonvelvet are the favorite fabrics used for early Fall models and brown and green are the leading hat shades. There is a shade of deep wine that is also used a great deal.

Feathers of all sorts from barn-yard fowl to ostrich will be used this coming season and it is predicted that the ostrich in all its variations will be seen on sports hats as well as on dress hats. Vari-colored feathers and feather fancies splotched with metal are shown in quantities. Pom-poms, wheel effects, and tassels of burnt ostrich trim many tailored shapes. Ribbon still holds its popularity as a trimming.

• • •

Metal-cloth blouses lavishly worked in beads are seen in great numbers in the Parisian shops. Metal, by the way, is stressed as one of the leading fabrics for Fall for formal gowns, blouses, hats, etc.

• • •

• • •

Choker necklaces, so popular with the Parisians, are matched by ear-rings, bracelets and accessories of like color. Cornelian and crystal are the most popular of the semi-precious stones used. Glass beads in such colors as ruby red, onyx blue, sapphire and jade green are quite as popular as the more costly stones.

• • •

The lip-stick pendant which hangs on a long pearl necklace is the latest accessory from Paris. One cannot lose one's lip-stick if it is tied about one's neck and the Parisian believes in having her lip-stick ever ready. Not only does she keep her lips a crimson hue, but she never feels that she is completely groomed until she has put a bit of color on her chin and on the lobes of her ears.

Fifth Avenue Women Do Not Dress to Please Sterner Sex

By HEDDA HOYT.

Fashion Editor of the United Press

(Written for the United Press)

New York, N.Y., July 23.—(United Press).—Fifth Avenue on a hot summer's day certainly can't be called a fashion centre! Most of the "birds of fine feather" have flocked together and flown to cooler climates and those that remain in the city seem very much in doubt as to what to wear on a summer's day.

With the thermometer at 96 degrees, we see women gowned in conventional silk crepes and satins with inevitable little fur-pieces about their throats to cover the barelooking neckline; women carrying gloves because custom tells them that it is unconventional to go without them; women with eyes squinting under brimless turbans and women in heavy sports suits. There are no summer dresses, nor are there parasols to shield one from the sun.

Women of New York, afraid of looking "countryfied," shy from the sheer bastistes, organdies and voiles. They would rather be miserable in heavy silks than be unfashionable in cottons. Now and then we see some brave soul in a cotton dress, but we mark her as coming from the country.

But does she look less smart than the city women sweltering under a fur neckpiece, less smart than the woman who wears a sleveless dinner gown on the street in preference to an honest-to-goodness summer dress, less smart than the permanently waved person who carries her felt hat in her hand rather than wear a straw one?

MEN LIKE DAINTY DRESS

What has become of all the lovely organdies and voiles that were sold in the shops this season? What a treat it would be to se a real summer dress on a real summer's day on Fifth Avenue! Women certainly don't dress to please men—in the summer time. For where is the man who doesn't prefer a girl in a dainty pink dress that looks like a dish of strawberry ice-cream to a black-draped, heat-withered fashion-plate.

A glimpse at the veranda of the Westchester Biltmore Country Club would acquaint one with garments suitable for warm weather. There are many gowns that would be just as suitable for town wear as they are at this fashionable country club. For instance, the ecru, lace-trimmed bastiste frocks worn over black slips could be worn on Fifth Avenue beautifully. The short-sleeved crepe de chene frocks in pastel shades are so simple in cut that they could be worn anywhere.

There are numerous dotted swisses, organdies and voiles in grays, tans, dark blues and subdued shades which are as lovely as they are cool. Hemstitched handkerchief liene frocks in such shades as delft blue, bottle-green and gray are so much prettier than the heavy silk frocks we wear in the city. One sees many of these at the country club of an afternoon worn with wide-brimmed leghorns or simple trimmed horse-hair hats.

Beige, blond, wood and tobacco shades are favored by the fashionable this season and all of these are shades that can be worn in the city. One need not select summer fabrics in such shades as pink or baby blue for street wear. A material of summer texture in a subdued color can be worn on Fifth Avenue as well as at a resort.

HAVEN'T APPROVED PLANS

Montreal, July 23.—An emphatic contradiction has ben given by members of the Dominion Marine Association to a press despatch from Chicago stating that Canadian shipping interests had approved proposals of the Chicago sanitary district for regulating the water level of the Great Lakes by Means of compensating works in the St. Clair, Niagara and St. Lawrence rivers.

TOO MUCH OF A GOOD THING

"The scenery is all right," replied the home searcher. "The only trouble is there is too much of it between here and the city"

Walkerville Woman Gets a Big Surprise

"Tanlac gave me health and happiness a year ago, after it looked like I never would be well again, and I haven't stopped praising it since,' declared Mrs. Maude Whitehead, 2 Victoria Road, Walkerville, Ont.

"My appetite was so poor I often went all day without food and was so weak and run-down a few steps over to the store would exhaust me and get me out of breath until I thought I would drop in my tracks. I feared a nervous breakdown, too for I would tremble all over even if the doorbell rang and at night little noises like a curtain rustling would keep me wide awake.

"I felt an improvement with my very first dose of Tanlac and now I am always hungry, eat like a farmhand, am never nervous, sleep all night long and am so strong I could walk the mile and a half to Windsor and hardly notice it. Tanlac is simply grand."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37-million bottles sold.

Tanlac Vegetable Pills are Nature's own remedy for constipation. For sale everywhere.

BRAZIL SHOWS DEFICIT

Rio de Janeiro (By mail to United Press).—President Bernardes recently read to Congress the budget estimates for the fiscal year beginning June 1, 1923, showing a deficit of 238,452,453 milreis, or approximately $24,331,000 at the existing rate of exchange. The president's proposal is now before Congress, where it is not likely to undergo any curtailments. Should the present Congress follow the precedent of the last one—instead of curtailment, the Bernardes' budget proposal is apt to be amended until it ultimately shows deficit of twice that estimated by the president.

Got Motto from England

Whence came the motto on the golden scroll in the beak of the bald-headed eagle on the Seal of the United States? "Out of many, one," in Latin, turned out to be a mighty good description of the United States, though the plurality was often more manifest than the unity. As almost everybody in the country has that much Latin, the pedigree of the phrase is interesting, aside from its patriotic signification. In a pamphlet, reprinted from the Classical Journal for April, Mr. Monroe E. Deutsch of the University of California gives the result of a careful investigation. Franklin, Adams and Jefferson, appointed by the Continental Congress, July 4, 1776, a committee to devise a Seal of the United States, recommended in their report in August the motto "E Pluribus Unum."

"E Pluribus" doesn't swim into our ken again until some time between June 13 and June 20, 1782, the latter the date of the adoption of the Seal. Charles Thomson, Secretary of Congress, restored the motto. Who suggested it and what was its source? The most common theory, in Mr. Deutsch's opinion "exceedingly well grounded," is that the motto comes from the legend on the title page of the Gentleman's Magazine, published by Edward Cave, Jr., our old friend "Sylvanus Urban, Gent." The first number was printed in 1731. On the title page "was a drawing of a hand holding a bouquet of flowers, to the left of the bouquet being the words 'Prodesse et Delectare' (to benefit and amuse), and to the right 'E Pluribus Unum.'" The latter was taken over from the Gentleman's Journal, 1691-94, edited by the Huguenot Motteux, that glorious translator of "Don Quixote" and, with Sir Thomas Urquhart, of Rabelais. Motteux said that the implication of "E Pluribus Unum" was that, 'The only one of the many gratify every reader.'" So "One chosen from many" must have been his translation. Sylvanus Urban's organ in 1734 had another, the modern, interpretation. These are the concluding lines of a "poem" on the legend:

To your motto most true
  For our monthly inspection,
You mix various rich sweets
  In one fragrant collection.

The Gentleman's Magazine and its legend were familiar in the colonies. Considering its origin, however, how did the committee employ the phrase in a so much more dignified association? A letter from Thomson, four days after the adoption of the Seal, speaks of the present to himself of Fortescue's "On the Praises of the Laws of England"—in Latin. In this book Mr. Deutsch finds the phrase "E Pluribus constituitur unum." "One is formed out of many," in reference to a government. Fortescue also refers to Aristotle's "Politics." So Fortescue's phrase comes, like most everything else, out of Aristotle, "Out of many, one," in Greek. Who proposed the Latin version at Philadelphia? It must have been either Adams or Jefferson or Franklin, or a French painter, du Simitiere, who designed a Seal described by John Adams. The latter "proposed the choice of Hercules" for the Seal; Jefferson, "The children of Israel in the Wilderness, led by a cloud by day and a pillar of fire by night; and on the other side Hengist and Horsa, the Saxon chiefs from whom we claim the honor of being descended."

The motto is on du Simitiere's sketch, but isn't mentioned in Adams' account of it; nor does the fact that he drew the sketch prove that he proposed the motto, as a foreigner would be unlikely to do. Jefferson was interested in mottoes, as in everything, but there is no proof that he had anything to do with "E Pluribus." Moreover, his favorite device for an American Seal was the Father in Aesop giving the bundle of rods to his sons with the motto, in Latin, "Unconquerable if inseparable." In Franklin's case, we know that the committee accepted his design and motto for the other side of the Seal, while those of Adams and Jefferson were rejected. He had picked up sufficient Latin; and there is plenty of it in his works. As early as 1754 he was busy with mottoes indicating the union of the colonies. The one then suggested by him was the "figure of a snake separated into parts, to each of which is affixed the initial of one of the colonies, and at the bottom in large capital letters the motto, 'Join or die.'"

A very curious design, Doctor. He had a number of contributions in the Gentleman's Magazine frequently referring to it; in 1755 offered to be its Philadelphia circulation agent. His nephew, Benjamin Mecom, started in 1758 a short-lived publication called the New England Magazine of Knowledge and Pleasure. Only two copies are known. It had both mottoes of the Gentleman's Magazine. In 1776 Franklin proposed anonymously, as a motto for the Seal, "Rebellion to tyrants is obedience to God," pretending that the phrase came from the epitaph of the regicide, Bradshaw. If he did that, Mr. Deutsch argues, he wouldn't have any scruple about taking a national motto from the title page of an English magazine; and that English magazine in 1776, the year the motto was selected published a poem very sympathetic with the Americans and foreseeing the time when:

Our sons, beneath yon Western skies
Shall see one vast republic rise.

So Dr. Franklin must have been the man. If he was, he may have chuckled at borrowing the legend from the then enemy. Still, the proof isn't, perhaps, impregnable. Mr. Deutsch thinks it likely that old Motteux got the phrase he modified from Horace's e (or de) pluribus una.

British Prime Minister Excellent Business Man Cousin of Rudyard Kipling

Stanley Baldwin is the first British Premier of whom it might be said that his chief claim to international fame is that he is the cousin of a poet. At present there can be no doubt that the name of Rudyard Kipling means more to the world than the name of Stanley Baldwin. But his blood relationship to one of the most illustrious of Englishmen was not one of the reasons why he was called upon to take the place of Bonar Law. He was chosen because he is believed to be one of the shrewdest, sanest and most business-like men in the public life of the Old Country, and because the present political complexion of the House of Commons made it in the highest degree inadvisable that any but a commoner should be Prime Minister. Mr. Baldwin's rivals for the post are all members of the Lords—Curzon, Balfour, Derby and Devonshire, and it happens that the official Opposition has no spokesman in the Lords. It is a matter of common sense that the leader of the Opposition should be able to debate matters with the Prime Minister directly. This would not be possible if one were in the Lords and the other in the Commons.

The new Prime Minister has one achievement of the first magnitude to his credit as well as many smaller tasks faithfully performed. It was he who arranged for the funding of the British debt to the United States, and at the same time made both countries as well satisfied with the bargain as it is possible in the nature of things that they should be. He proved himself a fine business man in his dealings at Washington, and on his return to England he showed that he was also a good politician, for he explained that the sentiment of the west and middle west in the United States made it impossible for him to get the precise terms he would have desired. Immediately the typical western statesman assailed him, but he only smiled. He had scored his point. A few evenings later the American Ambassador challenged his facts in rather a provocative way at a dinner. Again Baldwin smiled and talked about something else, leaving it for Earl Balfour to make an answer. The main thing was that the debt was funded on terms agreed to by both countries and with a minimum of irritation.

Another remarkable thing he did has been by this time generally forgotten in England where similar sacrifices were not unknown. Though he toiled patriotically in the war as a government official he was over the age limit for active service. He was represented at the front by two sons. This, however, did not satisfy him, so he had his entire private fortune independently assessed, and turned over one-fourth of it as a free-will gift to the British Exchequer. He is a protectionist, a Tory and a die-hard, but one of his sons is a Socialist, a fact which does not impair their affectionate relations in the slightest. The new Prime Minister is credited with a fine sense of humor, and in the descriptions of him we have read, we note that he is accused of grinning rather than smiling. There is something rather boyish and extremely likeable about him, which is indicated by the fact that when the King called him to Buckingham Palace he took a taxi from the ranks instead of proceeding in greater state in his Rolls-Royce. He is also a confirmed pipe smoker, a fact which might also serve in place him.

Stanley Baldwin comes of a solid Worcestershire County family, one which has always produced loyal supporters of the King, and occasionally men who have distinguished themselves. On his mother's side one perceives something akin to genius. His maternal grandfather was Rev. George MacDonald, a Methodist minister, who often has been spoken of as the father of "four remarkable daughters." They were women remarkable for their beauty and charm. One of them was married by Sir Edward Burne-Jones, the painter, and inspired him to depict the type of saintly loveliness with which his name is associated. Another was wed by Sir Edward Poynter, president of the Royal Academy; the third became the bride of Lockwood Kipling, an Indian official, and the fourth became the wife of Alfred Baldwin, who was to become a steel magnate, and the father of the Prime Minister. This Methodist minister, if he were alive to-day, might take considerable pride in the fact that he would be the grandfather of two baronets, a great poet and the Prime Minister of Great Britain.

Stanley Baldwin went to Harrow, and Trinity College, Cambridge, after which he entered his father's business, and his training has been in steel, railways and finance. It is said that on one occasion when the Baldwin employes were forced to strike because of a labor dispute in which they had no direct part, he paid their wages out of his own pocket. He must have been well liked, for an industrialist who is not approved by labor would not have had such plain sailing to political preferment as has been the case with the Prime Minister. He enjoys social relaxation, and like most Englishmen of his class is interested in some sort of hobby. Mr. Baldwin's is the breeding of pigs at his place in the Severn Valley. He is compactly built, slightly below medium height, affable, approachable, and so far has cultivated no mannerisms that have caught the eye of the cartoonist.

"Rev. T. J. Logan, who was chased by a mob from Belleville last Sunday night, is through with the ministry.

Leastwise, that is what he told Mrs. Gainsborough at whose house he took refuge after his summary departure from Belleville, hastened by a crowd of over a thousand people.

"He has gone away for six weeks, and I would not be surprised if he should marry very soon now," said Mrs. Gainsborough. "He has his fiance in Peterborough. She works in a factory there, and she is sticking by him through all this trouble. He told me that when he comes back he is going to try out a job in the factory where she works, and show the people of Belleville he is not as bad as he is painted."

Rejected Cocoa, But Learned to Like It

Athens, July 3.—(By mail to United Press).—From being shunned, cocoa has become one of the most popular foods which the American Red Cross is using in its feeding of refugees in Greece. When Colonel Haskell and the American Red Cross Commission began their work, it was decided to feed cocoa to children and to the sick. But the refugees thought that it was sand or brick dust and refused to take it. After some days, a few began to try it and then the sweet tooth of the Asia Minor people asserted itself. The rest was easy.

"There's a marked increase in the line up of refugees on days when 'kakaow' is given out here," writes Henry C. Wolft, of Coshocton, O., field manager of Red Cross. "When cocoa is issued in dry form, the refugees mix the cocoa powder with a small quantity of sugar and make a paste which they eat on their bread and which takes the place of meat."

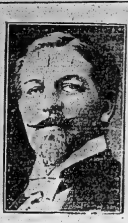
Domestic Difficulty Is Aired in Court, Couple Reprimanded

This morning's session of the City Police Court saw two cases disposed of.

When P. C. Evans saw a man clinging to an iron post on Front street yesterday afternoon he immediately assumed Mr. Man had partaken too freely of the fiery liquid. Noting the approach of the officer the chap hied himself to the rear of Ostrom's Drug Store where he decided to remain until the officer had betaken himself to other parts. However, the constable visited the rear of the store where he took the drunken man. A crowd collected at the Front street entrance to the gangway in hopes of seeing some fun. However, Evans piloted his man in the opposite direction and emerged at the Bell Telephone gangway with his charge in tow. This morning the accused appeared in court and was assessed $10 and costs.

A Front street resident appeared before Magistrate Masson on a charge of assault and battery. After the taking of the evidence a peaceful settlement was effected. He was placed on a bond for his good behaviour for one year.

The affair took place at the home of the accused on Saturday morning. The wife of the accused was the only witness in the case. She stated that when her husband refused to pay the grocery bill because he judged that it was too high. The woman threw the wedding ring at her husband saying that if he did not want her she did not want the ring. With that the husband seized her, she said, and attempted to choke her. During the scuffle she received numerous scratches, evidences of which she exhibited in court. There had been numerous quarrels previous to the late one, all regarding grocery bills, etc., which the husband claimed were too high.



THE MAN WHO WOULD BE KING.—The Duke of Orleans, recognized leader of the French monarchists, would re-establish a throne in his native country and ascent it himself.

The accused was called to the stand to answer to his charge. His wife had refused to accept $20.00 which he had offered her. He said that his wife had threatened to leave him and seek her livlihood by other means. At that the accused said he had struck her with the back of his hand. In his evidence he stated that his wife had called him vile names and threatened him in various ways.

Accused, an employee of the Canada Cement Company, said that he had lost a day or so in the past week through burns sustained at plant.

Mr. B. C. Donnan, in cross examining the witness caused him to backdown on several statements which he had made to his counsel, Mr. Jack O'Flynn. The witness denied scratching his wife's shoulder and neck, saying that she must have did it herself. The court ridiculed these statements and accused was eventually found guilty.

Magistrate Masson gave the accused a severe lecture, intimating that in the offence he was liable to term in the penitentiary with lashes. The cadi said that under the circumstances of having a wife and child to support he hated to send him down.

When a peaceful settlement was broached accused readily gave his assent.

The wife also was given a severe lecture. She promised to co-operate with her husband in making a peaceful home.

Accused took out a bond to keep the peace for one year.

Newly-Wedded Earl Is Mistakenfor Pickpocket

Chicago, July 23.—The Earl of Northesk, whose adventures in the 24 hours have included marriage to an American chorus girl and the loss of his pet dog, was Saturday mistaken for a pickpocket.

The Earl and Countess dashed out of the Drake hotel followed by a retinue of house men and servants when someone telephoned a clue to the dog's whereabouts.

Somebody yelled "pickpocket!" and a crowd of curious surrounded the laird, who had a lobby policeman in tow.

"I wish," said the Earl, "that you Chicagoans would let me alone."

WOMEN DEMAND 'FULL EQUALITY'

Seneca Falls, N.Y., July 23.—Absolute political, moral and economic equality of the sexes was provided in a resolution demanding a constitution amendment passed here at the second convention of the National Women's Party.

The proposed amendment will be introduced in congress next winter.

It was brought before the convention by Miss Alice Paul, vice-president.

The proposed constitutional amendment reads: "Resolved that men and women shall have equal rights throughout the United States and every place in its jurisdiction."

On laying the proposed amendment before the convention, Miss Paul declared in her opinion the "only way in which complete equality can be gained for all women within reasonable time is by federal amendment, just as the women were given the right to vote in that way."

BRITAIN'S STAND SELFISH, CLAIM

Paris, July 23.—Basing their observations on what has leaked out from the parley at the Quai D'Orsay, where the ministry is locked in consultation over the British note, regarding which it was sad that several points have been already found unacceptable, well-informed writers in the French press assail the idea of any commission fixing new reparations figures.

They brand the suggestions, supposed to be part of the British note is a new design to put France and Belgium in the minority and force the hand of these countries.

The critics lay stress upon a claim that such a commission is not provided for by the treaty of Versailles, and assert the reparations commission at present in existence is the only competent authority on this point, Germany can appeal to this commission to examine her resources, if she wishes to.

"In the entire affair, England too obviously is playing Germany's game, La Liberte states.

Funeral Rites Were Impressive

Deseronto, July 23 (Contributed)—The town of Deseronto was shocked at the news of the very sudden death of the late Colonel Malley at the Queen's Hotel, Toronto, where he had been for somedays attending the Druggists Convention. His remains were brought back to his home in Deseronto and the funeral took place Sunday July 15th at St. Mark's Church the Rector the Rev. C. E. S. Redcliffe, B.C.L., conducted the service, a most solemn and impressive one assisted by the Rev. Canon Jones of Kingston who read the Lesson and Rev. Rural Dean Jarrett, M.A., of Hawkesburg who preached a most forceful sermon. The Masons were out in full force and took charge of the remains after the service was over. The coffin was literally buried beneath a profusion of floral tributes.

Surpliced choir were out in force rendering three hymns beautifully. Colonel Malley will be much missed he being an outstanding man, a Past Master Mason and a member of the Canadian Order of Foresters, I.O.O.F and L.O.L. 1375, and also a delegate to the Synod of the Diocese of Ontario. His widow and two sons Clare and Arthur have the sympathy of the community.

COUNCIL SELECTS AN ARBITRATOR

Judge Wills Appointed by City in Case of Claims for Damages by Flooding of Premises.

At the Council meeting last evening Judge Wills was chosen as arbitrator for the city in the claim for damage of Messrs. Edward A. Kellaway and George Evans. In March, 1922 their premises were flooded when the river broke up and it is alleged the trouble was caused by an embankment which was left on the side of the road adjoining their property. Efforts have been made to make a settlement with the parties, but thus far without success as the damages claimed is thought to be rather excessive.

MURRELL BACK IN JAIL AT LONDON

Notorious Bank Robbery Suspect Closely Guarded

London, Ont., July 24.—Sydney Murrell, chief of the Murrell gang that attempted the robbery of the Union Bank in Melbourne two years ago, and that slew Russell Campbell, a garage man, who responded to the alarm spread among the villagers, is back in the cells of the county jail in London.

Murrell's return was scarcely less dramatic than his sensational escape nearly two years ago on the eve of the Assizes at which he and two of his confederates were to have faced trial for murder.

Scarcely half an hour after the arrival of the train in St. Thomas, and within less than a minute from the moment the cars stopped at the corner of Dundas and Rodout Streets he was in the new chilled steel cell with the first relief of the guard that is to be with him incessantly until the time of his trial at the Assizes, which open here on October 2.

HEALTH BOARD WANTS CITY TO INSTAL FILTRATION PLANT

A Deputation from Council Will Wait Upon the Board in Regard to the Matter.

The new Parks Commission will not have control of the city boulevards, altho gh they will administer trees and parks. Ald. Robinson last night put up a fight against the absorption by the board of the right of administration of the boulevards. Mayor Bennett said these boulevards were formerly in charge of the Parks committee and he saw no reason why the Parks Commission could not handle them. He expected that next year the Commission would ask a one-mill grant, and they might as well be given something to do.

Ald. Robinson thought the Parks Commission would be more likely to get a swelled head than Council would.

Ald. Donahue said property owners preferred to look after their own boulevards.

It was too big a task for the commission, believed Ald. Treverton.

"I want things clean cut between the Council and the board," said the mayor.

Ald. Greenleaf was informed by the mayor that Council would not charge the board for material for filling boulevards.

The Robinson amendment carried.

Belleville's share of the provincial election expenses was $308.00.

"We do not want the land," said Ald. French, when a recommendation to appoint a committee to find out from Mr. Gulliver what he wanted for a block of land near Memorial Park, came up. "He wants $300." So Council refused to pass the recommendation.

By-laws were formally passed authorizing the construction of sanitary sewers on Pope street, Grier street, Pinnacle street, Cannifton road, Lingham street, Brassey and Bettes streets, Ridley avenue, and Gordon and Earl streets, and construction of concrete walks on certain streets.

The "order" system was attacked quite freely at Council, aldermen pointing out that the obligation to get orders often meant delay to the civic employees. The mayor, however, pointed out that goods were being bought without authority, a most unsatisfactory condition of affairs.

The matter of representatives of the city of Belleville meeting representatives of other municipalities in regard to suburban roads is being arranged, Mayor Bennet told Ald. Robinson.

WATER WORKS IMPROVEMENTS

Belleville's waterworks improvement problem was brought to the attention of the Council by Ald. Greenleaf, who asked how the situation stood as to the improvements.

Mayor Bennett stated that the city engineer had sent the plans to the Provincial Board of Health but that body refused to consent to the work being authorized—that is, the construction of a new intake, and the erection of a new building to house a new auxiliary pump, unless Belleville Council passes a resolution before May 1st, 1924, pledging the municipality to the construction of a filtration plant. The Council had not agreed to this and it was thought advisable to have city representatives wait upon the provincial board on Thursday.

Ald. McCreary hinted that it looked like a half million of expenditure, before the matter was settled. He said no delegation should have power to act. Ald. McCreary has all along opposed the proposition of a new intake, etc., on the ground that it would mean a much greater expenditure than $100,000.

Mayor Bennett stated that the deputation would try to get along without the construction of a filter plant. If that could not be done, it is likely all the work will be stopped.

Ald. French moved, seconded by Ald. Lynch, that the mayor, Ald. Thompson and Manager Austin be a delegation to meet the Provincial Board of Health regarding the proposed additions to the waterworks

Ald. McCreary opposed a delegation going. He said the objection could be taken by correspondence.

Ald Treverton asked if Council intended to go on with the work.

"No, we do not want a filtration plant," Ald. French stated. That was the reason he supported a deputation.

Ald. Donahue said a deputation could explain and urge that Belleville could not go on with the filtration plant for four or five years

"We have put our heads in a noose. We agreed to expend $100,000 on improvements and now the provincial board wishes to saddle us with $500,000," said Ald. McCreary.

The mayor said the fire protection was a question.

Ald. Greenleaf said the present conditions could not continue. The board should be shown that there is need of improvements but that Belleville is not able to go on with a filtration scheme. "They cannot order us to build what we cannot pay for."

Ald. Robinson moved, in amendment, seconded by Ald. McCreary that negotiations with regard to the waterworks improvements be carried out in writing, instead of by deputation.

The amendment lost.

Ald. Robinson moved another amendment, that the deputation proposed to the Provincial Board of Health regarding the waterworks, be composed of one member of this Council, instead of three. This lost.

The motion carried. The yeas and nays were recorded on the first amendment:

Yeas—McCreary, Robinson, Gardiner (3).

Nays—Bennett, Donahue, French Greenleaf, Lynch, Patterson, Treverton (7).

The yeas and nays on the second amendment:

Yeas—Robinson, McCreary, Treverton (3).

Nays—Bennett, Donahue, French Greenleaf, Lynch, Patterson, Gardiner (7).

"That deputation has no authority to negotiate anything. They are just spending the city's money," said Ald. McCreary.

Mayor Bennett called Ald. McCreary an obstructionist.

Ald. Greenleaf moved, seconded by Ald. McCreary, that the by-law relating to three trimming be rescinded, that duty being assigned to the Parks Commission. The resolution carried.

DELORME TRIAL COST $60,000

Accused Abbe Expected to Face Trial Again in September

10 FOR CONVICTION

Prisoner Accepts Report of Disagreement Calmly—Admission to Bail Denied

Montreal, July 24.—The case of Rev. Adelard Delorme, charged with the murder of his half-brother, Raoul Delorme, will be submitted to the Attorney-General's Department for instructions, it was announced today. It is probable that he will be called for a second trial at the next session of the Court of the King's Bench in September.

Delorme was apparently not surprised by the report of the jury's discharge yesterday after their report of a disagreement. He exhibited neither disappointment nor relief, but accepted the decision, which means to him more weary months of imprisonment, with stoical calm. His release on personal bail was refused by the court.

Sir Francis Lemieux announced that the trial had cost approximately $60,000. The preliminary police work, the inquest which sent him to the High Court for trial last year and the subsequent insanity proceedings are said to have cost even more.

Montreal, July 24.—Juryman P. D. Decarie, interviewed as to the debate that followed after the summing up of the judge amongst the jury, replied: "After hearing the entire speech of the learned judge I was sure that the accused was not guilty. I stuck to that decision throughout the entire time that the jury were debating. Two of us were acquitting him, while the rest were confident that he was guilty. W. D. David was also of the same opinion as myself."

There appeared to be no prospect of agreement by the jury from the first. After having been sent back twice by the Chief Justice, Sir Francois Lemieux, they returned for the third time yesterday afternoon with the same answer—they were unable to come to an agreement, and there was no prospect of any agreement.

At a few minutes past three the jury filed back into the box to answer for the third time. The event of the question Juryman Wilfred David again answered for the rest: "My Lord, in the name of Jury I have to declare that we cannot come to an agreement and that we think it is useless for us to sit any longer for that would serve no purpose."

His Lordship then addressed the jurymen as follows: "In that case the court will discharge you, but before doing so the court cannot do otherwise than express to you its thanks for the devotion you have shown during his trial and for the conscientiousness with which you have done your duty. Gentlemen, you are discharged."

January 6, 1922.—Raoul Delorme, Ottawa college student, murdered in Montreal.

January 7.—Body of Ramoul Delorme found with six bullet wounds in head at Snowdon Junction, in suburbs of Montreal.

January 9.—Inquest opened.

January 14.—Abbe Delorme, half brother of dead man, offers $10,000 reward for arrest and conviction of murderer.

February 14.—Inquest closes and Abbe Delorme arrested on coroner's warrant.

March 14.—Abbe Delorme committed for trial.

June 30.—Abbe Delorme found insane by special jury of court of king's bench.

October 10.—Curator appointed by Montreal courts to Delorme estate and Abbe incarcerated in Beauport Asylum, Quebec, interdicted.

December 6.—Release of Abbe Delorme on writ of habeas corpus refused in Quebec.

May 23, 1923.—Abbe Delorme discharged from Beauport asylum on certificate of superintendent that he was sane.

July 21.—Jury reports unable to reach an agreement and is sent back by judge.

DIVERSION OF SEWAGE OPPOSED

Geddes Street Property Owners Object to Connection With College Sewer

SUIT MAY RESULT

Formal Complaint is Submitted to Mayor Bennett and Aldermen

A number of property owners on Geddes Street are strongly opposed to the plan of diverting sewage outside of the city into the Geddes street sewer, it was shown at the City Council meeting last night. They declare that the practise is unfair and that the city has no right to divert the purpose of the city sewage system.

The complainants have instructed counsel to institute legal proceedings to restrain the city officials if the practise is not discontinued, it was announced. When the matter was introduced last night, opposition to the practise was evidenced among council members.

Ald. McCreary asked under what authority the old Albert College was connected up with Geddes street sewer.

Ald. Donahue declared there was no authority, the connection being actually made before he knew it.

Mr. W. C. Mikel, K.C., on behalf of the property owners of Geddes street, objected to the use of the sewer by the college, which pays no part of the capital cost of the sewer. He asked that dumping be discontinued and that a conference be held with college authorities and Geddes street property owners to find if an agreement can be reached as to the use of the sewer and protection of the interests of the sewer owners.

Mayor Bennett told Mr. Mikel the matter would be dealt with. The college agreed to pay $150 for the use of the sewer on Geddes street. There had been a conference between the Council and Albert College. He said Albert College would be a college, he understood, for girls.

Ald. McCreary stated his opposition to the college using the sewer, as the college paid no part of the capital cost.

The following communication was submitted to Mayor Bonnett and the Aldermen:

To his Worship Mayor Bennett and Aldermen of the City Council.

Dear Sirs:—

We are acting for a number of property owners on Geddes Street in this city whose properties are assessed and paying for the sewer constructed on that street.

They instruct us that the city has opened the sewer to permit sewage from property outside the city being drained into the Geddes Street sewer.

Our claimants feel that this is unfair to them and that it is unfair to the citizens generally, to place the sewage system of the city at the service of and to benefit property outside the city.

Our claimants also claim that the city has no legal right to thus divert the purpose of the city sewage system and they have instructed us to take proceedings to restrain the city if this is continued.

(Signed) Mikel & Alford.

Discusses Charms Of Northern Part Of Hastings County

There was a good turnout of the members of the Kiwanis Club at the weekly luncheon today at Queen's Hotel, presided over by President T. Collister. Visitors were Messrs. W. H. Gomery, E. R. Smith, G. H. Taylor, of Toronto, W. J. Sloan of Ottawa, M. Dainard of Wellington and P. Walsh. All of the visitors being called upon gave a few words referring to the pleasure it gave them to be present.

Kiwanian Fred S. Deacon gave an interesting talk on his recent trip to West McCoomb Lake in the northern part of Hastings County and incidentally referred to that section of Hastings County. The lake is a fine body of water with a girth of 120 miles with 92 islands scattered about it. At the present time there are tourists out there from Cincinnatti, Cleveland Pittsburg, New York and other places in the United States. The lake is beautifully located and abounds in fish, especially black bass and lake trout. The Americans as a rule enjoy travelling for the trout and they are taken at a considerable depth. The lake in places is 175 and 200 feet deep

There are but few settlers in that locality and these settlers are excellent hunters and sportsmen and are also good guides. A number of beautiful cottages are located about the lake many of them being owned by Americans. It is without doubt a fine place for an outing. Many of the settlers are uneducated but a school has been established by the Government and it is attended by a number of children who are being educated. The speaker referred to the fire rangers and the excellent work being done by them. A steel tower upwards of 200 feet high has been erected and from this point of vantage a general view of the surrounding country is obtained. The great wealth of that section of the country has been depleted through either wastefulness and reforestry is needed to provide growing trees. Many from this city and vicinity are at present enjoying the holidays at the lake.

Judge Wills reminded all present of the great regatta to be held here on August 1st, 2nd and 3rd and also intimated that members of the Kiwanis Club were associate members of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club.

6 Bandits Get Over $60,000 in Daring Holdup

Robbers Halt Auto Train Carrying Currency to Banks

TWO SLAIN, RUMOR

Messenger Dies Enroute to Hospital Report—Local Police Notified

Toronto, July 24.—Six bandits in an auto at 9.45 this morning attacked the train of autos carrying currency to several banks from the clearing house.

As the messengers reached Melinda and Jordan streets, the bandits jumped on the running board of the leading car and opened fire. The messengers inside, taken by surprise, drew their revolvers and fought back while guards from other banks also opened up. There was a fusilade of twenty or thirty shots.

Wm. Dick, 30, Gough avenue, a Bank of Nova Scotia employe, was shot through the right chest; J. W. Harris, 4 Luttrell avenue, a messenger, is believed to have been shot and killed. This report is not confirmed. One messenger, shot by the bandits, died as he reached the hospital. Two others are seriously wounded.

The Bank of Nova Scotia lost $27,000 in two bags. The Sterling Bank loss will not exceed $35,000.

The Provincial Police here were promptly notified of the robbery and in turn all the officers of this district were notified. It appears that the bandits were in possession of a high powered Studebaker car, the body being blue in color. The number on the car was 36,036 which number was subsequently wrenched off the car and thrown away. One of the men was exceptionally tall, being over 6 feet in height and wore a brown suit. Another member of the party wore a dark sweater. The police at Toronto who were swift upon the trail fired at the rear of the car and it is thought that some of the bullets struck the car. The bandits it is asserted, were armed with repeating rifles also large revolvers. The car which figured in the affair is thought to have been stolen.

London, July 24.—The House of Commons on Monday evening defeated by a vote of 286 to 169 the resolution of Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the Labor party, demanding that the Government immediately call a disarmament conference.

ASSESSMENT FIGURES FOR SEVERAL PROPERTIES REDUCED BY COURT

Canning Factory Levy Cut to $10,000—Riggs Garage Figure Lowered $5,000 — Hotel Assessment Unchanged

Before Judge Deroche yesterday afternoon appeals against the assessment of certain manufacturing concerns and private property were considered.

The Graham Company appealed against an assessment levied upon various properties in which the company is interested. After considerable argument the assessment was fixed as follows:—

Station street property, $7,000; Front Street left the same as fixed by City Council; Canning factory premises on Pinnacle Street, $10,000.

Mr. Graham bought the canning factory at a rather exorbitant price in his opinion. There had been some improvements put on the building but these did not warrant the assessment being raised to $26,000.

In the case of the Riggs Garage the assessment was lowered from $20,000 to $15,000. Mr. C. A. Payne made an appeal on behalf of Mr. Riggs. He said that the Riggs garage was a great asset to this city and in his opinion Mr. Riggs was not getting a square deal from the city. The building including the land cost in the neighbourhood of $37,500.

Judge Deroche thought that the assessment on the garage should be comparatively low in the first year.

Finally after some deliberation the assessment was fixed at $15,000.

In Mr. J. V. Jenkins' appeal from the assessment of Hotel Quinte the assessment remained at $40,000. Mr. C. A. Payne on behalf of Mr. Jenkins said that Hotel Quinte was one of Belleville's finest advertisements. It had cost $56,000 to erect the hotel in the year 1907.

Mr. R. P. White, a local contractor said that to erect such a building at the present day would cost in the neighbourhood of $250,000. The building in its present state was worth $125,000.

Mr. William Pepper, contractor, substantiated Mr. White's statements. Finally it was decided to allow the assessment to remain at $40,000.

Ex-Ald. Hunter's assessment was slightly reduced.

FRANCE AND GREAT BRITAIN RENEW AGE-OLD BATTLE FOR SUPREMACY

Development of Air Power Puts Continental Power Again Within Grasp of French After Century of Submission—Rivalry 1,000 Years Old.

By J. W. T. MASON

(Written for the United Press)

NEW YORK, July 28.—(United Press)—Europe is back to the condition of diplomatic hostilities that existed in the years before the war. Expectation of [illegible] international good will will not be realized because nationalistic ambitions are functioning as bitterly as in the period antedating 1914.

The break between Great Britain and France over German reparations is in reality only an incident. Eventually the reparations issue must be settled, but no settlement is probable of Anglo-French rivalries. The two nations are destined to face each other in bellicose attitude in the Mediterranean, while their interests in the Near East cannot be reconciled without a grave retreat by one side or the other.

There can be no doubt but that the world is in for a constant series of crises between Great Britain and France, such as put Europe on the uneasy seat many times in the past century. Only the German menace against both France and Great Britain caused the "Entente Cordiale" to be created by the late Edward VII., for mutual protection. There is no longer a German menace directed against Great Britain, and the French government is determined there shall be none against France for the rest of this century.

FRANCE & ENGLAND AT ODDS

With Germany down and out, France and Great Britain are threatening each other, as has been their customary attitude since the time of William the Conqueror, nearly a thousand years ago, when French rulers governed England, only to lose in turn their French domains.

The persistent major enmity in Europe does not centre about the Germans, but about Franco-British rivalries. The French are dreaming of the time when the glories of Louis XIV will be restored and when France once more will dominate the European continent and will force Great Britain to occupy secondary place. That has been the French international creed ever since the downfall of French influence dating from the time of the Revolution.

Never before has the time for its realization been as bright as now. The persistent obstinancy of France during the present crisis in the Ruhr, the grave risks French industry and finance are running, the refusal of the Poincare government to agree to any compromise, even though suggested by America, as a neutral nation—all these strange developments can be explained only by the nationalistic ambitions of the French leaders.

FRANCE'S OPPORTUNITY

When the German army was supreme, France had no chance to become dominant in Europe. Likewise, when the British navy vastly outstripped France's strength at sea, France had to stifle her ambitions for the moment.

But now, armies and navies appear to be passing before the advent of airships and bombing planes. That is to say, future mastery in war is less and less likely, to depend on vast expenditures for instruments of destruction and on military man-power.

Two men in a cheaply-built aeroplane may do more damage in the future than many regiments, or batteries of field guns, or thirty million-dollar battleships. Therefore, France can look forward hopefully to a recovery of her ancient glories, though her man-power and her treasury are depleted. This is the fundamental factor, dominating all others, in the European situation as it now exists.

SPEEDING IT UP.

That Body of Yours

CORNS

Nearly every human being has had at some period of his life at least one corn.

I don't need to describe one to you. You have seen the broad top, and as you dug down deeper the growth became more pointed and ended in one or two black looking roots. The nearer you got to the root the more tender the corn became.

This is because these roots actually press upon a nerve ending. You know what that means when you have an aching tooth. It is the same thing.

Sometimes these corns occur between the toes and are called "soft" corns.

Now as to the cause.

They are due entirely to pressure. Now all corns are not due to tight shoes. Shoes that do not fit your feet properly will cause rubbing and pressure, and the formation of corns.

You are familiar with the effect of the weather upon a corn. There is usually a storm or some rain near at hand with a low pressure in the atmosphere. That allows more pressure in the bloodvessels of the skin; they press on the tender nerve ending and cause the pain. So you have pain on walking from your own pressure and you have pain when off your feet from the cause just mentioned.

Now what to do about it?

Well, first, shoes that fit you properly. Don't be afraid of an extra size in either width or length. Your feet are precious. Many people buy the regular corn plaster with the round hole in the centre after removing the centre or "medicine" part. This allows the corn to occupy the hole, and the pressure is then around the corn instead of directly on it. Sometimes softening the corn for a few days with ordinary vaseline will permit the easy removal of it, if the foot is soaked in hot water for a few minutes before lifting the corn out.

In regard to the advertised corn cures, they all give fairly good results, whether in liquid or paste form. You see the basis of nearly all of them is salicylic acid and usually collodion. However the removal of pressure is the main thing in the treatment.

Music & Drama

FROM KIDDIES TO GRANDMOTHERS, THEY'LL LIKE THIS RUSSELL PHOTOPLAY

You don't need to be afraid to bring the kiddies, your best beau or your grandmother to see "Shadows of Conscience," now at the Regent theatre. It's just what we've been looking for in the way of clean, American drama. It has plenty of thrills for you but no blushes. The kiddies will like the child scenes and the comedy, your best beau would like the fights and the smashing climax and your grandmother will enjoy the good old-fashioned standard of morals that prevails.

"Shadows of Conscience" is a story of yesterday in this country, but the entertainment value is such that it can be appreciated at any time and in any place. Action and suspense run high but there is not a single objectionable scene or distasteful moment. Our censors must have had a light job when they gave this picture the "once-over."

Russel Simpson is a hero, as an actor and as a man in this role. He has two charming feminine assistants in the persons of Barbara Tenant and Gertrude Olmstead and a powerful aid-de-camp in Landers Stevens, the "heavy". This able cast has been directed by John P. McCarthy and have something to offer that will please all types of patrons.

MAY McAVOY IN APPEALING STORY AT GRIFFIN'S

There are several big gulps in the throat in "Through a Glass Window," a Realart picture starring May McAvoy, which opened at Griffin's theatre yesterday, but perhaps the biggest comes when the little heroine works all night to make paper flowers and transforms for a sick mother, a sordid tenement backyard into a semblance of country beauty. And then comes a laugh when the mother happily recovered, makes one of a party which jaunts in a vegetable wagon for a day at the beach with roller coasters, merry-go-rounds, and similar concomitants.

So it goes through the entire picture, an appealing May MacAvoy starring vehicle for Famous Players Lasky. There is a delightful intermixture of pathos and comedy, "smiling through tears," so to speak. Miss McAvoy sustains her reputation and she is assisted by a capable cast including Raymond McKee, Fannie Midgeley, Burwell Hamrick, Fred Turner, Carrie Clark Ward, Wade Boteler and Russ Powell.

"The Skipper's Sermon," the funniest yet of the Fontaine Fox Toonerville Trolley comedy series, an interesting Sport Review, and exclusive pictures of excavation work in the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen, showing the work of removing priceless objects from Pharaoh's burial chamber, are being exhibited in addition to the above feature offering.

U.S. World War Veteran Sells Cards in Genoa

By Gus M. Oehm, United Press Staff Correspondent.

Genoa, Italy (By mail to United Press).—"Picture postcard, mister. Views of Christopher Columbus' birthplace and the seat of the famous Genoa conference. Only one lire each."

A strangely American appeal. This offer from a squatty little Italian stops every American traveller who has occasion to stop over in the Genoa railroad station.

A silver badge—also strangely familiar—catches one's eye. It is an American service button—silver to denote "wounded in action."

"Are you an American?" the tourist naturally asks the young man.

"I'm an Italian but I lived in the States a long time."

"I see you were wounded in action. Were you with the American army? How is it you are here selling post cards?"

"Yes, I was with the A.E.F., and got plugged. I didn't like the idea of going back to the States where a guy can't get even a drink of beer and where a gas-lunged veteran may get a job and where he mayn't. I just got myself discharged over on this side and I manage to make a living off of folks like you from back over there. But honest to goodness, I'm getting tired of telling this tale to every second customer I have. I oughta charge extra for the information."

Just about then another tourist from the States spies the silver button and poor Tony—that's what he says his name is—repeats his story for the 'steenth time.

The other peddlers around the station avow Tony is making a wad of money and intends returning to his job as waiter in New York just as soon as he gets enough laid away to carry him over.

Rickenbacher Sees Us All Up in the Air

Akron, Ohio (By mail to United Press).—A brilliantly colored airplane swooped down to the landing field beside the filling station and the driver accompanied by his wife and three children, alighted and strolled over to the attendant.

"Lemme have ten gallons," he ordered and then stretched himself out on the grass to rest.

"Better tighten up those propellers too, pard," he said. "I wouldn't miss that dinner engagement in New York for anything."

An automobile racing along the road nearby attracted the driver's attention and he called to his wife, "Oh Martha, there goes an automobile."

According to Major Eddie Rickenbacher, ace during the world war, just this is to be expected in a very few years.

Eddie told how he got up and ate breakfast at 9.45 a.m. in Mt. Clemens, Mich., went to the landing field and boarded "Spark Plug" (Eddie's plane) and one hour and fifty minutes later was dusting "Spark Plug's" propellers at Stow Field in Akron.

Rickenbacher said that after a while every city in the United States would have its own municipal flying field.

"In twenty-five years," he remarked, "planes will drop down and take on gas just as autos do now, and there will be garages that specialize in airplane repair work."

"Airplanes can go anywhere there is atmosphere," continued Eddie, "and for that reason they will be the leading means of travel in a quarter of a century."

Owning a good watch is more than a privilege

It's a duty. Every man whose time is of value owes himself an accurate measurer of his time.

An unreliable timepiece is an exasperation. And frequent visits to the repair man finally cost more than a new watch.

You may argue that you can't afford a good watch.

The truth is you can't afford not to.

If your idea of dependable watch is correct, the watch is here.

If you can spare us a few minutes some time, we shall be glad to show you.

$7 Freight Rate For Alberta Coal

Agreement on Rate Reached by Government and Railways.

Edmonton, July 24.—A freight rate of $7 per ton has been fixed, it is stated by Premier Greenfield, for experimental shipments of Alberta coal to Ontario over the Canadian National lines. Agreement to this effect has been reached by the Government and the railway authorities, and arrangements will be made at once for the first shipments.

The coal will be sent from Drumheller, Brazos and other mines on the Canadian National Railway lines, and will be billed through to various points in Ontario. It is expected that between 4,000 and 6,000 tons will be shipped on this basis.

GIRL INJURED IN MOTOR MISHAP

Peterboro, Ont., July 24.—Eight-year-old Geraldine Wood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Wood, of Cavanville, was seriously injured in Millbrook, when knocked down by an auto Saturday night. The little girl, was crossing the street when she was struck on the head by the radiator, tearing all the hair off one side. She sustained other serious wounds about her head, and it is not yet whether her skull is fractured. The car was driven by a young man by the name of Davis. Witness say that no blame can be attached to him.

Farmer Immigrants Arrive: Many Plan To Live in Ontario

Quebec, Que., July 24.—The Canadian Pacific steamer, Montcalm, in command of Captain A. Rennie, from Liverpool with 1,086 passengers, including 300 cabin, arrived at Quebec Saturday morning at nine o'clock and after landing third-class passengers for immigration inspection left for Montreal at 10.15 o'clock.

There were 88 returned Canadians in the third-class. The balance were all new settlers for Canada, 200 Scandinavians composed of Norwegians, Dutch, Finns, Icelanders, all farmers, for distribution in Ontario and British Columbia. The remaining five hundred, a splendid type of young married British farmers with their families, were booked for Ontaio and the prairie provinces. Among the latter were 40 Catholic orphan children who came out under the auspices of the British Catholic Children's Immigration Society in charge of Rev. J. R. Crea, and booked for the St. George's Home at Ottawa.

Among the cabin passengers were Lord Clyde Hamilton, brother of the Duke of Abercorn, who in an interview said he would confine his visit to the province of Quebec, making Montreal and Quebec his headquarters but would pay a visit to Ottawa and probably Toronto.

The Canadian Pacific Empress of France, in command of Capt. E. Griffiths, left Quebec on Saturday afternoon at five o'clock for Cherbourg Southampton and Hamburg with 20 passengers, 120 saloon, 70 second, 7 third-class, mails, and 4,000 tons of cargo. Prominent among the saloon passengers was Rt. Hon. Lord Ampthill, G.C.S., I.D.C., I.E., of London, who recently came out to Canada at the request of the Duke of Connaught as a delegate from the Grand Lodge of the Masonic order in England to attend the convention as representative of the Grand Lodge of England to the Grand Lodge of Canada held at Toronto.

FIREMEN ARE BUSY AT CAMPBELLFORD

Autos Collide on Meyersburg Road.

Campbellford, July 23.—The Campbellford fire brigade have been earning their pay lately. On Friday afternoon they responded to a call from the 6th line Seymour where a barn and hay stack on the farm of George Wallace were on fire, and with the aid of the up-to-date chemical motortruck, succeeded in saving the dwelling and other outbuildings. On Friday evening a call came from Robert Bibby's on Rannie street in the heart of the residential district, where a barn and drive shed were on fire. With three streams they had this blaze under control in short order. The last call came at 2.30 Sunday morning from Deputy Reeve Jas. Wilkinson's home on Bridge street, where the front steps and verandah were blazing. This fire was also promptly extinguished. The new motor truck is doing good work, and Chief Davidson is to be congratulated on his well-trained army of volunteer fire-fighters.

Garnet Green, of Cobourg, while motoring with his family on the Meyersburg road on Saturday evening, had the misfortune to be run into by another car going south which had turned out to pass a horse and rig. Mr. Green's young son was thrown through the windshield by the force of the impact and was badly cut about the head, and both cars were badly damaged. The accident happened opposite the paper mill and was caused by the driver going south not noticing the rig till he was right up to it and had to turn sharply to avoid a collision.

CANADIAN HEALTH AND NUTRITION STUDENTS EXTEND SCOPE OF WORK

Girl Graduates of Ontario Agricultural College Seek Training.

Canadian students of nutrition and health education for children are eager to extend the limited field for practice training afforded in their own country, by finding additional opportunities for institutional field work in the United States. Girl graduates of the Ontario Agricultural College at Guelph, Ontario, are seeking especially the kind of practical training given to pupil workers in hospitals which could be arranged through work in nutrition classes in connection with child health centers in the larger cities, according to Miss Frances M. McNally, head of the teacher training department of the McDonald Institute of Ontario, in which most of the women students of the government agricultural college pursue their studies in home economics.

Twenty-two graduates of last year and this year of this school are now doing pupil work in hospitals in New York City. The department this year graduated 63 pupils to apply their nutritional and health education preparation, with the necessary further training for specific adaptation, in the various fields developed by present-day specialization. Some of these will make use of their health educational training in public school teaching, while others will turn to special health teaching. Fourteen are engaged in field work in connection with the municipal health center at Halifax. Practically the only other centers for such work in Canada at present are in Montreal and Toronto.

Canada has a division of child welfare, in the dominion department of health at Ottawa, which is now about four years old. Its work has been in largest part so far with the families of returned soldiers and the children of immigrant families coming into Canada. Its head is Dr. Helen McMurchy, who, as one of the directors of the American Child Health Association, a national organization in this country, is bringing to bear on matters affecting the health of children in Canada, the workers' projects of workers in the United States for making health training a fundamental part of all phases of health and educational work with children. The American Child Health Association represents the recent amalgamation of the former American Child Hygiene Association and the Child Health Organization of America in one body devoted to the health interests of children from infancy through the school age, under the presidency of Herbert Hoover. The headquarters 61 the Association are at 532 Seventeenth Street, Washington, and its administrative offices at 370 Seventh Avenue, New York City.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor:

There are many things done in this city, everything is supposed to be done for a reason, sometimes they are done for a good reason and perhaps sometimes for a poor reason. The undersigned could not but help notice this morning that the lower bridge was blocked to traffic for a full half day. There is no doubt but what it needed washing as it was certainly filthy and is in that state most of the time, we do not remember of it ever having been washed before but I was just wondering if it was absolutely necessary to close the bridge to traffic in the busiest hours of the day to perform this operation. It seems to me that the proper time to do work of this kind is some time between 12 o'clock at night and 6 in the morning and I do not see any good reason why it could not have been done between these hours. The writer himself, found people driving who were strangers in the city and personally conducted them to the upper bridge as they did not know but this was the only bridge crossing the river. There are many things we think could be improved upon which would work out more economically to the citizens of Belleville.

OHIO WETS AND DRYS TO RENEW BATTLE

Columbus, O., July 24 (United Press).—Ohio, cradle of prohibition, is to witness another battle over the wet and dry issue.

Forces of the American Anti-Saloon League and the Organization Against Prohibition are manoeuvering for another spectacular clash.

The "drys" have laid plans—with $2,500,000 backing—to fight off any attempts of this or any other state to repeal its prohibition enforcement code. Their goal is to make Ohio a shining example of dryness for the whole country.

The "wets", following the recent Anti-Saloon League war council at Westerville, announced the first step in the counter-attack would be moving their headquarters to Columbus, a more strategic point, they believe, than Toledo.

"It will be fine business," said G. C. Hinckley, "if we can announce inroads on the dry cause right here in the home state of the Anti-Saloonera." Hinckley is general manager of the Organization Against Prohibition.

As soon as the organization's headquarters is well established here, the work will begin in earnest, said Hinckley. "We are going to hold the 183,000 dry votes we had in the election last fall and we're going to swell that number to a substantial wet majority."

Like their "enemy dry", Hinckley's men plan to do their missionary work in the congressional districts.

"Dry" leaders, declaring they are more amused than frightened by the activities of the opposition, point out that every possible indication of the trend in Ohio since she first went dry has been that she is growing drier every year.

It is true that there is not the sparkling enthusiasm for battle among the "wets" of the electorate that has marked other conflicts on this issue.

Most Ohioans seem reconciled to a "dry" future insofar as the law is concerned and few persons will deny that the work of the prohibition agents has been effectual.

There was great promise in the work of the Organization Against Prohibition before the election last fall. People were thinking there might be something to the talk of wine and beer coming back in the state. But then the election came and the "damps" were defeated overwhelmingly. Now there doesn't seem to be so much of that old-time confidence in the "wet" ranks.

Election time, however, may bring new life to the campaigners and new enthusiasm to the voters.

"STOP! THIS IS MY OCEAN."

"What's the News?"

WHEN Columbus and his caravels returned from the New World, the first question shouted from the shore was, "What's the news?"

That's always the question of paramount importance. Years ago folks asked it of the post rider, the soldier returned from the wars, the man who had been down to the settlements, or the neighbor back from the general store.

To-day, you find the answer in your newspaper. Through the newspapers the news of the world and of the community quickly becomes public knowledge. And remember this—it takes two kinds of news to make a modern paper complete.

The first tells of happenings near and far—of fires, sports, elections, accidents, marriages, deaths, great men, great events.

The second tells of things you eat, wear and use—things you buy, things being sold to your friends and neighbors. This news is advertising.

It's just as important to keep up-to-date on the advertising in this paper as it is to read about what's doing in the world of events.

Advertising is an essential news service.
It is distinctly to your advantage to be guided by it.

BRITISH JUSTICE

One of the most zealously guarded rights of Anglo-Saxon peoples is that of trial by jury. The practise was inaugurated at a time when social intercourse was direct and relatively simple.

The principle of justice upon which the practise is based is, in turn, premised on the logical assumption that twelve men, selected at random, sufficiently intelligent to pass upon simple issues of law and fact, and without fixed opinions regarding the matter at issue, can render an absolutely impartial verdict.

Congestion of population and intensive development of all phases of social life have injected much that was formerly extraneous into legal procedure. The resulting complications are most clearly evident in the court room. Barristers and solicitors and the King's counsellors with their technical training and their thorough acquaintanceship with the almost confusing ramifications of modern legal practise, move in court procedure on a plane distinctly above the level of the average layman. For this reason a considerable part of the import of modern court proceedings "goes over the heads" of the laymen.

There is nothing unsound or unfair in this, however, for no party to a legal controversy profits or suffers more or less than the other.

This highly developed condition was evident in the Delorme trial, which ended in a disagreement by the jury yesterday afternoon. Because of its prominence the intimate details of the trial became common property. Thousands of men perhaps learned more about court procedure by following the story of the case in the newspaper columns than they had learned in the class room.

Fortunately, Great Britain's judicial system, because of its tremendous size possesses a significance and majesty that enables it to withstand the assaults of influences which might weaken its structure.

Certainly, in few other lands could the Delorme case have been tried as simply and expediently as is possible under the British flag. In the United States, outside influences and interests would have made themselves felt and it is not altogether improbable that additional complications would have resulted. A similar situation exists in France.

Abbe Delorme has been accorded a fair trial and a jury of his peers have disagreed as to his guilt or innocence. He will again be brought to trial before another jury, but, until final disposition is made of the case, he will be assured of just treatment and the right to employ every safe guard provided by British law to protect his interests.

The cost of the case is an unfortunate feature, but the ends of justice must be served. Both the Crown and Abbe Delorme are entitled to the full measure of justice and consistent recognition of this inalienable right forms the great bulwark of the British judicial system.

ENCOURAGING FIGURES

Immigration returns of the Canadian Government for the fiscal five months of the present year, according Financial Service, show a one hundred per cent increase in immigration from the British Isles over the figures for the same period last year. The immigration from Continental countries in Europe shows an increase of 71 per cent during the same period, while there is a decrease of 33 per cent in immigration from the U. S.

The figures are as follows:—

JAN. 1—MAY 31, 1922

British Isles	10,500
Continent	6,588
U. S. A.	10,885
Total	27,973

JAN. 1—MAY 31, 1923

British Isles	20,953
Continent	11,244
U. S. A.	7,244
	39,441

These figures are in marked contrast to the immigration returns for the year ending March 31st, 1922, as compared to the year ending March 31st, 1921,

The immigration for these two years was:—

YEAR ENDED MARCH 31, 1921

U. S. A.	48,059
Other countries	26,156
British Isles	74,262
Total	148,477

YEAR ENDED MARCH 31, 1922

U. S. A.	29,345
Other countries	21,634
British Isles	39,020
Total	89,999

The figures for the first five months of the present year give cause for optimism at least and the hope that Canada has turned the corner as far as the slump in immigration is concerned, Financial Service comments.

Two-Minute Tours

(By United Press)

The newspaper men who are writing about Etna these days were scooped some years ago by at least three well-known fellow craftsmen: Homer, Pindar and Plato. For this volcano greatest in Europe and ranking with the greatest in the world, has been pouring out lava and ashes, destroying farms and villages and interesting philosophers and scientists since the world was young. Pindar was the first writer to mention Etna's fires, in 474 B.C. and since that time more than 100 eruptions are said to have taken place.

A much more remote history of Etna has been pieced together by modern geologists who look upon the whole island of Sicily as a contribution from the great reservoir of molten material under the mountain. They picture a time when the sea rolled over the site of Sicily, then Etna's tip emerged and through the ages it has steadily built itself and Sicily up.

Etna might be described as both the Creator and the Destroyer. It has created Sicily; its disintegrated lava has given a soil of matchless fertility which supports rich vineyards and orchards; and it has drawn to its slopes in spite of obvious dangers, hundreds of thousands of tillers of the soil.

It is on the lower slopes of Etna where time and weather have most completely broken up and washed down the ancient lava, that the creative side of the volcano is best seen. Virtually the whole circuit is a garden spot of date palms, bananas, oranges, lemons, olives, figs and almonds. Farther up are nut trees—notably the beautiful filbert orchards near Castiglione—and a forest zone of chestnut, cork, pine and oak.

The streams that have poured down Etna's sides during the past few days can hardly be different from the numerous preceding flows. The typical river of fire from Etna flows in a relatively narrow stream. It moves sufficiently slowly so that men and animals may keep out of its path, the large crowds of people assemble to watch its progress.

South of France Full of Planes; "American" Barber

By GUS M. OEHM

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Marseilles, July 3.—(By mail to United Press).—Airplanes everywhere—high and low, far and near.

Five and six in view at once—this is the sight one sees as one travels along the Riviera from the Italian border to Marsailles. As the train winds along the picturesque seaside, travelers seem never to be out of the sound of the hum of an airplane motor.

To a traveler coming from Germany where the passing of an airplano causes the whole population to pour out of doors to watch the unusual sight, one is impressed by the wealth of air machines everywhere visible along the route of travel in Southern France.

Many of the big air stations are located in the sunny warmth of Southern France and every minute—it seems—they take the air for trial spins and experiments.

Lyon (By mail to United Press).—American tourists hitting this in-between city have found a real American barbershop where English is spoken and haircuts a la American are on tap.

But there's a trick in it.

"Barge American, English spoken, mode American."

This is the sign in the window which entices the wayfarer into the shop.

The American barber turns out to be a Frenchman whose entire American vocabulary consists of the two words "shave" and "haircut" and whose American mode consists of cutting as much hair from the victim's head as he will permit without committing murder.

EVERY SPORT AT A GLANCE

FIGHTER SHOULD GET WHAT HE IS WORTH

(By PAUL R. MALLON, United Press Staff Correspondent.

New York, July 24.—A fighter should fight for what he is worth, and that is what he draws at the gate.

These are the words of Tom O'Rourke, matchmaker of the Polo Grounds Athletic Club. They mean something, because O'Rourke has joined with Tex Rickard to drop the boxoffice price of tickets to the big bouts in and around New York.

O'Rourke says $10 is enough for anyone to pay to see any champion, and so he has set that as the top price for the Eugene Criqui-Johnny Dundee bout—this week at that mark.

He sounds a sensible note in the matter of promotion. He sees just as every other promoter in the country now sees—as a result of the Shelby financial farce—that very few people are going to pay $50 for ringside seats to see a couple of prizefighters slam each other.

The Jeffries-Sharkey fight at Coney Island, away back in the old days, drew exciting $70,000, and the prices were from $2 to $10, with the exception of some $25 boxes clustered around the ring. The tembuck seats were fifteen feet from the ring.

Sharkey and Fitzsimmons fought for a $10 top. Terry McGovern mixed it with Frank Erne for that amount.

This marks a strong return to normalcy. Even some fights, where no championship has been involved, have had $17 top prices around here. The only ones who would pay that are the gamblers. They are about the only ones that can afford it, with a few Broadway sports.

Here is another reason why the pari-mutuel system of betting should be installed at all race tracks in the United States.

A check-up shows that the purses being given at Kentucky and Maryland tracks are far higher than in communities where pari-mutuels are not allowed.

Ten years ago the Preakness was worth $1,670 to Prince Eugene when he won it. This year it was worth $52,000 to Vigil. That's in Maryland.

The Withers Stake was worth $2,725 to Rock View in 1913. It paid Zex $18,300 this year. That's in New York.

It is the same story in Kentucky. The Derby value increased more than $45,000 in ten years, while the Belmont stakes increased about $35,000.

The tracks in Kentucky and Maryland can offer bigger purses because they derive revenue from the betting transacted. Big purses get better horses into the field and better horses make better races.

Arthur Statz, the sparkling outfielder of the Chicago Cubs, is the best golfer in baseball.

Eppa Rixley, the Cincinnati hurler, is challenging his title. Recently, Rixey shot a 70 down in Philadelphia and he is "raring" to get a match with Statz.

Last winter the Cub star reached the final in the amateur coast championships in the Southern California tournament. He started playing when he was thirteen years old and he says it hasnt' hurt his baseball stance any. He started in as a caddy at the Worcester, Mass., Country Club.

Statz, however, says although golf doesn't hurt his baseball, he never plays during the summer season. He believes it is physically impossible to do both at the same time. He probably will turn professional golfer when his baseball days are over—but that time seems far away now.

Jess Willard had a great showy stunt for his training. He stood up and let two big boys throw a medicine ball at his tummy and didn't even grunt.

They stood about two feet away and hurled the ball as hard as they could for three or four minutes. It would just about kill an ordinary man, or at least knock him out for half an hour, but Jess took it like child's play.

SPORTING SKITS

Counting Saturday's game, when Belleville turned back the Cobourg nine by the score of five to three, the standing of the group now is:

	W	L	P.C.
Peterboro	4	2	.667
Belleville	4	2	.667
Kingston	3	3	.500
Cobourg	1	5	.166

Talking about gate receipts it is stated that Peterboro Club has not yet got its head squarely above water. At the outset of the season the Petes had to pay one thousand dollars for the grounds, then a game at home had to be cancelled on account of flooded grounds, and two fixtures had to played on July 1st. Dame Rumor says that the Petes are a cool thousand behind.

There were but 200 people at the last game in Kingston, says a report which goes to show that the crowd is falling off in the Limestone City.

Oshawa and Leaside are battling for supremacy of the second half of the C O.B.L. in A. section. Saturday afternoon last the Durant motor team were defeated at the General Motors town by the close score of 4 to 3, in a game that was exciting and interesting from start to finish. A fair sized crowd attended. Dainty performed well for the Oshawa crew.

* * *

Cobourg fans have disappointed the management by failing to support the games as they should.

* * *

All of which gives rise to the remark, how long will "B" section carry on—probably for this season only. It looks as if the old one-section league panned out the best after all.

Lindsay baseball club is hanging on "like a puppy to the root", but it is tough pulling. The gate receipts at the last two games amounted to $13.00, not enough to pay the umpires, let alone carry on. The fans who said they would support amateur ball, where are they?

Kingston Whig:—The umpires were all that could be desired and handled a very trying game efficiently. A great many fans kept slamming at Umpire-in-Chief Butler—but had they been in the proper position to see things they at once would have realized that he was handling his job unusually well. Collings, on the bases, left nothing to be desired—although we still, have a sneaking hunch that he got away with one or two balls belonging to the Kingston club. He seldom leaves a town without his "souvenir".

Nayada to Represent R.C.Y.C. in George Cup Race Series

Nayada, the yacht which visited Belleville Saturday, will represent the Royal Canadian Yacht Club in the George Cup races at Chaumint Bay on July 25, 26 and 27. Skipper F. P. Wilson will be in charge. The George Cup, after being held by the R.C.Y.C. for many years, was won last season by the Huskie from Watertown. The defending club selected the site for races. The Nayada will leave here on Thursday night for the scene of the approaching struggles.

The sailing committee' officials in selecting Nayada, have been influenced by the following considerations:

(1) A Canadian designed and built yacht should, other things being equal, have the preference in a selection for an international cup race.

(2) The trials recently concluded took place under weather conditions that made it impossible to determine any marked superiority of any one yacht over the other competing. In the opinion of the judges, and concurred in by the committee, any one of the three yachts, Nayada, Lillian or Viva II, the latter wonderfully improved under her Marconi rig, would make a most creditable representative.

(3) It is felt that the Nayada, under the direct supervision of her designer and her joint owners, has progressed further in the matters of tuning up and general racing condition than the others, and, in view of the short time remaining before departure for Chaumont Bay, this feature takes on added importance.

(4) It is agreed that one of the fundamental objects of the club, namely, the encouragement of the design and construction of yachts in Canada, will be best served by the choice made under the circumstances.

The committee officials wish to acknowledge their appreciation of the manner in which the owners, skippers and crews of the three yachts entered the series of trial races, and of the spirit which animated them all in the effort to find the best boat to send after the George Cup.

Lacrosse is now about the only game which is not established here, and judging by the success which has attended the introduction of the latest game, cricket, there should be plenty of encouragement for the devotees of lacrosse. A start now might not get very far this season, but it should lay the foundation for next year. With teams in all the nearby western towns, Napanee, Belleville, Deseronto, Trenton, there should be a good chance to link up a splendid series.—Standard.

Yacht Regatta to be Outstanding Event in Belleville History

August 1st, 2nd and 3rd will be three important days in Belleville's history. On those three days the largest regatta ever attempted in Canada will be held in Big Bay, off Massassaga Park. The Lake Yacht Racing Association have this year chosen this pretty little summer resort as the scene of their activities. The visiting yachtmen will be the guests of the members of the Bay of Quinte Yacht Club. The people must get behind the project and make these three days the biggest in Belleville's history.

* * *

Over fifty yachts will take part in the regatta which is the largest collection of this class of boats ever gathered at one point.

* * *

The Brockville has been chartered and will make several daily trips to Massassaga. This the local people will have the privilege of viewing the races at a very small cost.

The yachts taking part at Choumont will all take part in the regatta in the Bay of Quinte waters.

TOMORROW'S GAME IMPORTANT CLASH

Petes Will Need to be "On Their Toes" to Cop Win

To-morrow's game with Peterboro will be the most important exhibition of the second half. The Petes on their last appearance here a week ago humbled the Trunks after a hard-fought battle in which the losers made some rather costly mistakes. The team are, however, playing great ball at present and the Petes will have to be right on their toes to put across a win. Jack Williams after a long rest is right in the "pink" and should take a fall out of the Northerners. Heckman is manager Solomon's logical selection for the mound. To-morrows game will practically decide a winner of the second half. The Trunks have thus far defeated the Petes four times in six games played this season.

Cobourg play in Kingston to-morrow. Butler and Wilson will handle the local set-to.

Those fans who pass up to-morrows game will be missing the super-clash of the season.

SOFT BALL NOTES

To-morrow night will see the opening of the soft ball league on the High School ground at 6.15 sharp. The Tiger Tire and Grand Trunk office will be the opposing teams. Stub Barrett and A. Leslie will officiate. The boys hope to see a good crowd on hand for the opener.

34th Battery had a practice last night and the Typos will work-out to-night. The printers have gathered a nifty aggregation and will make the other teams step, hat is if they don't "pi" things up. Things are going just right in soft ball circles and the moguls hope to firmly establish the game in Belleville.

DOING DUBLIN.

It was the Englishman's first visit to Dublin, and he was driving round on a jaunting car seeing the sights. When they got near the river, as an Irishman tells the story, he was struck with the unpleasant smell, and asked the jarvey: "What is this horrible smell?"

The Jarvey replied, proudly: "Shure, an' don't you know that the smell of the Liffey is one of the sights of Dublin."

COST OF LIVING IS RISING

By HENRY WOOD

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Geneva, July 24.—(United Press).—The world is facing another general increase in the cost of living.

This, at least, is indicated by the latest worldwide statistics just received by the International Labor bureau on wholesale prices.

Up until a month ago, wholesale prices the world over were showing a marked tendency to stabilize. During the past month, however, for reasons that have not yet been clearly established, this tendency towards stabilization has turned into a steadily upward movement.

Only one country in the entire world, namely, France, has been able to report for the past month a decrease in wholesale prices.

Since the close of the war and the organization of the International Labor Bureau, the latter's statistical department has been able to demonstrate that the first precursor of an increase in the cost of living is a rise in wholesale prices. This quickly spreads to retail prices, and in a short time a general increase is reflected in the entire cost of living.

WORLD-WIDE MOVEMENT

Countries which have reported during the past month an increase in their wholesale index numbers, as compared with a previous tendency towards stabilization, are the United States, Great Britain, Germany, Belgium, Denmark, Italy, Norway, Holland, Poland, Sweden, Switzerland, China and Japan. In other words, the tendency is essentially world-wide.

In France, the only country in the world to report an actual downward tendency in wholesale prices for the past month, this phenomenon is believed to be due merely to the fact that wholesale prices there had been steadily increasing ever since February, 1922, and had probably reached a point considerably above that of other countries.

France was able to report not only a fall of 9 points in her wholesale index number, but also a fall of 1 point in her retail price.

On the other hand, in Czecho-Slovakia, where wholesale prices had been falling steadily since the beginning of 1923, when they participated in the general world-wide tendency towards stabilization, the index number there has turned towards an increase as in all of the other countries except France.

Owing to the fact that a certain period of time must elapse after an increase in wholesale prices before the latter is reflected in retail prices and the cost of living generally, the statistics for the past month have not as yet shown any serious change in the retail prices. This, it is declared, however, is inevitable and it is expected that next month's world-wide reports will begin to see last month's increase in wholesale prices reflected in the retail price of things and the cost of living generally.

Former Kingston Hockey Player is Mystery in Britain

could tell nothing about himself, but gradually he was able to say that his name was "Jimmie," and that he formerly lived in Kingston where be played hockey. He is about thirty years of age, but apart from that nothing more can be learned of his former life, though he apparently served in the great war as he carried a Canadian war badge.

Efforts here to identify the man have been fruitless because of the meagre information regarding him which has thus far been secured, but hopes are entertained that the man's identity will be determined shortly.

Found lying on the roadside over two months ago near London, England, a former Kingston hockey-player, whose mind is almost a blank, and of whom nothing can be learned, is still in Luton Infirmary, while efforts are being made to clear up the mystery surrounding the man's identity, says a London, Eng., publication.

Woman's Sphere

A LITTLE SLICE O' LIFE.

It was after midnight,
And some people were trying
To get to sleep.
The apartment house Tetrazzini,
On one of the top floors,
Was at concert pitch
And was going unusually strong.
We have often wondered at her.
She sings eighteen hours a day.
One gruff voice yelled:
"Stop that cat fight!"
Another yelled: "Rotten!"
A third advised the singer
To get on the key or quit.
Many others protested,
And in a moment she began
All over once more, and sang:
"I Hear You Calling Me,"
And then she kept practising until long after 2 o'clock.
If that woman ever gets a job
On the concert stage that will Take her away from home,
How happy we will be.

RASPBERRIES ARE HERE

In these days of quickly ripening fruit, when the quick succession of cherries, raspberries, black and red currants, apples, plums, and all the other fruits which seem to come in a crowd, the tired homemaker is only too often to be found over a steaming fruit kettle, stirring, tasting, testing; going with puckered lip from fruit to bottle, wearing a serious frown while her face grows hot and steamy and uncomfortable. For actual hard labor, I would recommend canning fruit on a hot day.

But before the season for canning raspberries down has actually come there are weeks, when we all enjoy them just fresh, and while our bushes are ably beginning to bear, or the price of them is a little high for wholesale canning we are more apt to eat them fresh. However, they are delicious in any way. Here are a few recipes, which are really delicious.

Jellied Raspberries

Rub raspberries through a sieve, sweeten heavily and let stand until the sugar is dissolved. Add a package of soaked and dissolved gelatine to a quart of fruit; mould, chill, and serve with whipped cream.

Rice and Fruit Pudding

Fill a baking dish nearly full of raspberries, sweeten to taste and cover with rice boiled in milk and sweetened. Bake until the rice is brown and serve hot in the same dish.

Raspberry Blanc-Mange

Thicken two cups of milk with two level tablespoons of cornstarch rubbed smooth with a little cold milk; add a pinch of salt and two eggs beaten with three tablespoons of sugar. Cook in a double boiler until smooth and thick, stirring constantly, and pour crushed and sweetened raspberries. Chill and serve with cream.

Raspberry Shortcake

Sift a quart of flour with four even teaspoons of baking powder and a pinch of salt. Work into it a cup of fat and add enough milk to make a soft dough. Shape into two flat cakes, put together with butter between and bake. Pull apart and fill and cover with crushed and sweetened raspberries.

Raspberry Pie

Line a plate with good paste; look after carefully one pint of raspberries; spread them over the crust, heaping them in the centre; sprinkle over them two tablespoons of sifted flour and a teacup of sugar; brush over the edge of the crust with a thin paste(made by stirring a teaspoon of flour into a little water); add the top crust, trim the edges neatly with a sharp knife and bake in a quick oven. Glaze with a thin meringue made of the beaten white of an egg and a tablespoon of pulverized sugar, the meringue to be added just before taking the pie from the oven, where it should remain long enough to set the icing.

And when you have used all the fresh raspberries that you want, you ought surely to preserve some. To most persons the flavor of preserved raspberries or canned raspberries is almost as good as the flavor of the fresh fruit.

And raspberry jam! Everybody knows how good that is, either eaten alone or as a tart filling or as an ingredient in cabinet or bread pudding. Somehow the seeds of red raspberries are not so conspicuous as those of black raspberries and blackberries, and for that reason this earlier berry makes the best jam.

YOUNG DAUGHTER. MADE WELL

Mother Tells How Her Daughter Suffered and Was Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Vancouver, B. C.—"My daughter is a young girl who has been having severe pains and weak and dizzy feelings for some time and had lost her appetite. Through an older daughter who had heard of a woman who was taking it for the same trouble, we were told of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My daughter has been taking it for several months and is quite all right now. It has done all it was represented to do and we have told a number of friends about it. I am never without a bottle of it in the house, for I myself take it for that weak, tired, worn-out feeling which sometimes comes to us all. I find it is building me up and I strongly recommend it to women who are suffering as I and my daughter have." —Mrs. J. McDONALD, 2947 26th Ave. East, Vancouver, B.C.

From the age of twelve a girl needs all the care a thoughtful mother can give. Many a woman has suffered years of pain and misery—the victim of thoughtlessness or ignorance of the mother who should have guided her during this time.

If she complains of headaches, pains in the back and lower limbs, or or if you notice a slowness of thought, nervousness or irritability on the part of your daughter, make life easier for her. C

RAH FOR VIRGINIA

Virginia is a pioneer in requiring the physical examination of every child laborer, not only when he receives his employment certificate, but at regular intervals during the years when he is especially susceptible to the strains of industry. Thus it will be determined whether his work is hurting him or interfering with his normal development. And if it does—what then?

COMMUNITY FROLICS.

There is nothing which makes for happiness all around, peace and mutual understandings, as does play together. The scrappy quarrelsome community is the one in which the inhabitants live isolated. Romping on the village green makes for good neighborliness and good citizenship—and summer is the natural time for it.

Organizations of every kind which wish to foster such good will events will find "Community Service, 315 New York city, full of ideas and suggestions—as it should be. They will help you arrange exercise for patriotic days, playground events, picnics and outings and games, flower shows, health dramas, "Baby Week," water sports, community singing, band concerts, nature activities exhibits, camping or hiking stunts and contests in tennis, top-spinning, harmonica playing, sand box modeling, still walking, horseshoe throwing or fly casting.

FITTING YOUR HOME TO YOU.

"Get rid of what you do not need, and acquire, instead, what best expresses your need and taste." That is a slogan in the "Better Homes" campaign begun this month by club women all over the United States. The practical ways and means are to look over your house, from cellar to attic and sort out any inappropriate or no longer used articles which you find in your possession. Sell these. Want ads in your paper will do it for you quickly and at a small cost. There are plenty of people who need these very things which are not now of use to you. Purchase instead the articles which you do need in your home. Thus your home will be adapted to you and your family and other homes to their occupants. It is a community benefit all around and everybody will live happily ever after.

For Thin Waists And Sleeveless Gowns

(Toilet Tips)

A safe, certain method for ridding the skin of ugly, hairy growths is as follows: Mix a paste with some powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface about 2 minutes, then rub off, wash the skin and the hairs are gone. This is entirely harmless and seldom requires repeating, but to avoid disappointment it is advisable to see that you get genuine delatone. Mix fresh as wanted.

GREETINGS AFTER NINE YEARS.

THIS A CHILD CAN DO.

This a little child can do:
Cheer you up when you are blue,
Give you hope when hope is gone,
Get you up before the dawn;
Make the dull world bright and gay,
Keep you in the narrow way,
Give you back your youth again,
At your heart strings tug and strain,
Keep you in an awful stew—
This and more a child can do.

PATRICIA BRENT SPINSTER

ANONYMOUS

"It's the police," suggested Mrs. Craske-Morton, with conviction.

"Or the ambulance," ventured Miss Sikkum in a trembling voice. "They're collecting the dead," she added optimistically.

All eyes were riveted upon the kitchen door. Steps were heard descending the stairs. A moment later the door was thrown open and Gustave in a voice strangely unlike his own announced:

"'Ees Lordship, madame."

Bowen entered the kitchen and cast a swift look about him. A light of relief passed over his face as he saw Patricia. Some instinct that she could neither explain nor control caused her to go over to him, and before she knew what was taking place both her hands were in his.

"Thank God!" he breathed. "I was afraid it was this house. I heard a bomb had dropped here. Oh, my dear I've been in hell!"

There was something in his voice that thrilled her as she had never been thrilled before. She looked up at him smiling, then suddenly with a great content she remembered that she had dressed herself with care.

Bowen looked about him, and seeing Mrs. Craske-Morton, went over and shook hands.

"She's a regular heroine, Peter," said Patricia, unconscious that she had used his name. "She's been so splendid."

Mrs. Craske-Morton smiled at Patricia, again her human smile.

"Oh! go away, make him go away!" It was Mrs. Moscrop-Smythe who spoke. Her words had an electrifying effect upon everyone. Miss Wangle sat up and made feverish endeavours to straighten her wig. Jenny, the housemaid, looked round for cover that was nowhere available. The cook became aware of her lack of clothing. Miss Sikkum strove to minimise the exhibition of feminine bone-structure. Mrs. Barnes made a dive for Mr. Bolton, who was still holding various of her garments that he had retrieved. These she seized from him as if he had been a pickpocket, and thrust them under her arm.

"Oh, please go away!" moaned the cook.

"Come upstairs," said Patricia as she led the way out of the kitchen, to the relief of those whose reawakened modesty saw in Bowen's presence an outrage to decorum. Switching on the light in the lounge, Patricia threw herself into a chair. She was beginning to feel the reaction,

"Why did you come?" she asked.

"I heard that a bomb had fallen in this street and—well, I had to come. I was never in such a funk in all my life."

"How did you get round here; did you bring the car?"

"No, I couldn't get the car out, I walked it," said Bowen briefly.

"That was very sweet of you," said Patricia gratefully, looking up at him in a way she had never looked at him before. "And now I think you must be going. We must all go to bed again."

"Yes, the 'All Clear' will sound soon, I think," replied Bowen.

They moved out into the hall. For a moment they stood looking at each other, then Bowen took both her hands in his. "I am so glad, Patricia," he said, gazing into her eyes, then suddenly he bent down and kissed her full on the lips.

Dropping her hands and without another word he picked up his cap and let himself out, leaving Patricia standing gazing in front of her. For a moment she stood, then turning as one in a dream, walked slowly upstairs to her room.

"I wonder why I let him do that?" she murmured as she stood in front of the mirror unpinning her hair.

Chapter XIX

GALVIN HOUSE AFTER THE RAID

The next day and for many days Galvin House abandoned itself to the raid. The air was full of rumours of the appalling casualties resulting from the bomb that had been dropped in the next street. No one knew anything, everyone had heard something. The horrors confided to each other by the residents at Galvin House would have kept the Grand Guignol in realism for a generation.

Silent herself, Patricia, watched with interest the ferment around her. With the exception of Mrs. Craske-Morton, all seemed to desire most of all to emphasise their own attitude of splendid intellectual calm during the raid. They spoke scornfully of acquaintances who had flown from London because of the danger from bomb dropping Gothas, they derided the Thames Valley aliens, they talked heroically and patriotically about "standing their bit of bombing." In short Galvin House had become a harbour of heroism.

Mrs. Craske-Morton, who had shown a calmness and courage that none of the others seemed to recognise, had nothing to say except about her broken glass; on this subject, however, she was eloquent. Miss Wangle managed to convey to those who would listen that her own safety, and in fact that of Galvin House, was directly due to the intercession of the bishop, who when alive was particularly noted for the power and sustained eloquence of his prayers.

Mr. Bolton was frankly sceptical. If the august prelate was out to save Galvin House, he suggested, it wasn't quite cricket to let them drop a bomb in the next street.

(To be Continued).

WHAT'S IN A GLOVE

Your baseball glove was probably wandering around the plains of Argentine, three or four months before you bought it, as a part of some very wild South American cow, for much of the leather which goes into making baseball mitts is imported from South America.

In the making of good baseball gloves only a very small portion of a hide can be used, and much of the leather in the very high-priced mitts is of Wapi elk, a leather which is difficult to obtain.

Before the crude leather can be used at all it must go through a number of processes to soften and preserve it. The leather goes from chemical vat to chemical vat and is finally ready for its start in being made into a baseball glove.

Skilled men cut the good portion of the hide into convenient sized pieces and the pieces are then cut according to a pattern. There are twenty-five separate pieces of leather in the mitt used by one famous big league first baseman, and each of these pieces must be cut with great accuracy and sewed together just so.

Padding a glove successfully also calls for expert work, and special designers are kept busy inventing new and better types of pads to be used in gloves. During the entire manufacture of the glove, inspectors are busy looking for articles which do not come up to the standard.

FOUR AMERICAN GIRLS WIN TRIP TO FRANCE

Four American high school girls have won their way to France! Other school girls have been fortunate in being able to go abroad, but no other girls have ever done what these girls are doing. They have been sent to France by the Girls' Canning Clubs of the United States to teach the French people how the Americans can food at home and preserve food in time of plenty for future use.

That is quite a task for only four young girls to undertake, but these American girls can do it, if anyone can, for they are the pick of the country. Last December representatives were sent from all the girls' canning clubs in every part of the United States to compete in a contest held at the International Live Stock Show in Chicago to determine who were the best girl canners in the country—who knew enough about scientific canning and the most economical and easy ways to preserve all kinds of foods to be able to teach the French people these methods.

It was a difficult task for the judges to decide on the winners, for girls who composed the nine teams of two girls each were all experts. After three days of careful testing and grading of their efforts, two teams were chosen winners. Katherine Bolibaugh and Beulah Rodgers from Iowa were acclaimed the champions.

The girls are being accompanied by older women who are food experts and who will direct their work.

Fashion Ideas For Blonde and Brunette; Color Suggestions

By HEDDA HOYT

Fashion Editor of the United Press
(Written for the United Press)

New York, N. Y., July 23 (United Press).—Many women are like the little freckled-faced, red-haired lad who refused to wash his face and brush his hair because nature had made such a mess of him that it was no use trying.

Women should never be content to place themselves on the "as is" counter! The woman who is content with what nature gave her is indeed vain. There isn't a woman living who can not improve upon nature if she wishes. Be she as drab as the proverbial church mouse, she can make herself attractive by wearing colors which bring out her best points and conceal her worst points.

Many women depend upon makeup to put over their otherwise colorless personalities. Others who do not believe in the use of makeup try to develop charming personalities. Neither of these two routes is entirely satisfactory, as to often rouge and lipsticks cheapen without beautifying and the person who is continually trying to be "sweet" becomes tiresome.

Colors for the Colorless

If one has eyes of no particular color, hair that is of no decided shade and a colorless complexion one must depend upon colorful clothes to bring out their personalities. Let the vivid person wear the drab shades. Colorless persons are usually prettier in pastel shades than in vivid ones. The pale, ashblond, for instance, is always lovely in nile shell pink or orchid.

Many people believe that all blondes can wear black, but this is a mistake, for many blondes look decidedly faded in black as it gives pallor to the face and seems to accentuate lines. Golden blondes with vivid colorings and dark-haired women with ivory complexions wear black well. Sallow skinned persons should beware of black or white, or the combination of these two.

It is impossible to say that all blondes can wear one color and all brunettes another, for there are as many varieties of blondes and brunettes as there are pickles. If the pale blonde wore pastel shades, the medium blonde wore medium shades and the brunette wore vivid shades, they would be following a pretty safe rule. For instance, an ash-blonde can wear pink; a medium blonde can wear rose and a brunette can wear flame.

For the Red-Headed Girl

Auburn haired women are at their best in deep blues, reddish browns, black and white. There is a theory that all red-haired women look well in green but if the hair is too red one is apt to have a "port and starboard" effect as the contrast between red and green is too distinct. Hair that is slightly auburn, however, can stand certain bottle-greens and bluish greens nicely.

Gray-haired women should avoid gold or yellow tones as they give the hair a coppery look. Platinum, however, is lovely on gray-haired persons and all dark shades are becoming to them. Lavender should be worn only by the very young or the very old, as the middle-aged person is aged by it. Persons who have passed the bloom of life should not wear vivid colors, as shades that are slightly subdued are prettier on them. Browns are seldom becoming to the middle-aged, although all shades of blue are usually becoming.

Size is another fly in the feminine ointment which restricts one's color section. A woman may have a peach bloom complexion, glistening hair and sparkling eyes, glistening takes two nickles to weigh her she knows that she can't wear light colors.

Female Frauds Usually Homely

In the past few days two women in New York have been indicted for fraud. Both are elderly and lose all points for pulchritude. Yet they showed unusual ability to impose upon hard-headed business men. The fact causes a writer in the New York Times to point out that the most noted of female swindlers have not been of the vamp type. The most successful of them, like Mme. Humbert, Diss De Bar, Cassie Chadwick, and Ellen Peck, all of whom were homely to the verge of ugliness, the most successful, Mme. Humbert, being probably the hardest looking. All these women were well equipped with brains, and it may be that the very absence of good looks had a favorable psychological effect upon their elderly and middle-aged victims, who probably would have been upon their guard against women of the siren type. Mme. Humbert was probably the victim of illusions which she had inherited. Undoubtedly she was a criminal, but it seems that after a few years of telling her story she came to believe it, thus gaining the self-confidence which enabled her to act her part perfectly in the critical days.

Mme. Humbert's father had talked for years about a mythical estate, probably to impress the neighbors, but it is not known that he defrauded anyone. His daughter became a cheat early. She wrote to a dressmaker and got a trousseau without paying for it, though no husband was in sight. Later she had the good luck to become the wife of the son of a former minister of justice, a person of no little importance. Establishing themselves in Paris, Mme. Humbert let it be known that she had two millionaire uncles named Crawford in America, who had given her a treasure, but had forbidden her to open the box containing it until after their death. In proof whereof, she displayed a solid-looking safe, sealed and presenting all external evidences of containing something of vast importance. She brought suit in the courts for permission to open the box at once and secure the millions. She had other supposedly interested parties, mere dummies, oppose her suit. The matter raged through the courts, now madame winning, and now the others. Nobody seemed to have the slightest doubt that the casket contained an immense fortune; nor did anybody doubt that sooner or later Mme. Humbert would come into possession of it.

In the meantime, Madame borrowed heavily upon her expectations. A company was established to share in the proceeds after the court proceedings should come to an end. The Humberts floated 700,000,000 francs in notes, much of which went for interest and refunding, but it was estimated that their net profits were 60,000,000. The Humberts were important people in the world of finance; their careers had political complications almost comparable to those of the Dreyfus affair. One day the case suddenly shifted from the civil to the criminal courts, and the safe was opened by gendarmes. It was found to contain a pile of old newspapers and a button. The swindlers fled to Spain, but were brought back. They had a tremendous trial and in the end escaped with short sentences.

Ellen Peck was another successful swindler of great homeliness. For fifty years she was a devoted wife and a woman held in the highest esteem. But she went to jail three or four times. Her first exploit was to get $19,000 out of a soap manufacturer who had been robbed, and to whom she represented herself as a detective. Later a shrewd patent medicine mogul was her victim. Her specialty was the promotion of various bunco schemes, and the late Inspector Byrnes of New York estimated that in the course of her career she had received a million dollars. In 1909 she became New York's oldest convict for then at the age 79 she secured a loan of $2,000 from a real estate firm on a title that had been invalid for sixty years. To the end of her career she found many people to believe in her, so convincing an identity had she built up as the faithful wife and mother, whose children had become highly reputable citizens.

Diss De Bar was plump and plain, and is known in Canada because some of her swindles involved Canadians. He mother was a Kentuckian and her father a German professor. Her specialty was the occult, and she became perhaps the most notorious of alleged spiritist mediums. When she pitched her tent in New York in 1870 she announced that she was the daughter of Lola Montes and Ludwig I. of Bavaria. Her most illustrious victim was Luther Marsh, a millionaire lawyer, who had once been a partner of Daniel Webster's. She convinced him that Adelaide Neilson was his spirit bride. How much she made in the course of her career is uncertain, but at one time she boasted that out of her various cults she received an annual income of $150,000. Several times she was in prison and served sentences in more than one country, but jails seemed to agree with her, for it is on record that once she added fifty pounds to the two hundred she took in with her while serving her term.

Turf Versus Concrete.

A new Silesian building material is made from turf, which is cut into strips, fitted into a wooden frame, and given a hardening and retaining coating of cement and chalk. The wall produced is said to give greater resistance than concrete to heat and dampness.

QUEEN VERY POPULAR

VICTORIA OF SPAIN BELOVED BY HER PEOPLE.

She Was Recently Attacked in a Sermon Delivered by a Priest to a Fashionable Congregation, But in Spite of Criticism She Has Gone Placidly on Her Way.

Undoubtedly the Roman Catholic Church is powerful in Spain, and perhaps in no other country would one find a priest making an attack from his pulpit upon the modesty of the queen. Yet this was the experience which Queen Victoria of Spain had a short time ago, when Father Calasanz decked his pulpit with photographs of fashionable ladies, including the queen, and declared, "These are shockingly decollete." His congregation is a fashionable one, and it is not likely that more than one of the ladies whose photographs he condemned were present. After the service there was a scandalized whispering among his hearers, and the priest was generally condemned for disrespect to the queen. Within a short time all Madrid was discussing the affair. The newspapers took it up, and there was almost unanimous disapproval of the preacher's remarks. One newspaper republished the photo of the queen which had been criticized. There was a rush to buy copies, but the announcement was made that all had been sold. It is supposed that the edition had been suppressed by order of King Alfonso.

It is said that the king visited in person the court photographer who had taken the pictures of the queen and the ladies of the court, and had requested that all the negatives be destroyed. An hour before the order was given a correspondent of the New York World went to the studio and obtained photographs which the World recently reproduced. After inspection we can report that there is no picture that might be expected to shock anybody but a monk. Some of them indeed would be classified as almost prudish on this continent. The priest was called before the Archbishop of Madrid and forbidden to preach pending an inquiry, and the Minister of Justice took proceedings against him for lese majeste. The priest protested that he meant to give no offence to anybody, that his discourse had been misunderstood, and that all he had intended was a moral homily. Later the lese majeste proceedings were abandoned, at the instance, it is said, of the queen, who however she may have been offended as a woman, is undoubtedly a loyal daughter of the church she entered shortly before her marriage.

Victoria's life in Spain, we gather from the World correspondent, has not been a happy one. The queen therefore has been driven to find consolation in the promises of the church and the rearing of her six children. The eldest of these, the Prince of the Asturias, has always been delicate, and the second son, Don Jaime, has been deaf from birth. There are two other boys and two girls. One of the latter, Cristina, shares her mother's love for horseback riding, and they are often seen together on the bridle paths. The queen has devoted herself to her children, having the domestic instincts of the English royal family even more strongly developed because of some of the trials and difficulties of her position.

Curiously enough this passion of motherhood goes hand in hand with a determination to retain her reputation as the best dressed queen in Europe. When she was married she was by no means the fashionable looking woman she is to-day. Some of the Spanish noblewomen thought her even dowdy, and the hat she wore on her first public appearance in Spain excited derision and pity, one milliner suggesting that she should have worn her wedding cake as it had better lines. It was not long before a marked change came over the quality of the queen's wardrobe. She may have been dressing to please her beauty-loving husband, or perhaps to please her own dawning appreciation of the fascination of charming clothes, and for some years now she has been regarded as a model of elegance. The years have changed her figure, have even improved it, a youthful sturdiness having given place to a slender grace, while her carriage has improved and in appearance she is the type of the great lady. She has appreciated the fact that fine garments add to feminine beauty, and it is said that in 1919 when she visited London she bought $100,000 worth of furs alone.

Queen Victoria has become popular in Spain, perhaps as popular as her husband, and that is one reason why the ill-advised outburst of Father Calasanz has been so generally condemned. Her horror of the bull fights was known, but it seems to be necessary for a Spanish queen to attend bull fights. Naturally her box would be the one to command the most gruesome view of the proceedings, but the queen after some experiences resorted to smoked glasses, which make it possible for her to see nothing at all. She has remained adamant in her refusal to permit any of her children to attend the fights, however, and the Spanish people respect her for it. Moreover, of late she has gone out of her way time and again to show her interest in football, and we learn that the game now threatens the bullfight in popular esteem. Not long ago the great annual fair of Seville was opened for the first time in its history with a football game instead of a bullfight, and the queen, to celebrate her triumph, rode with fifty of her ladies on ponies from one end of the fair to the other, dressed in Spanish costumes, and pelted with flowers by the cheering people.

It is estimated that more than half the people in the world dwell in Asia.

Co-operation is the Policy!

A New Germ Theory.

A new line of research is being followed up by workers at the Pasteur Institute in Paris. The thesis is, says a medical correspondent, that the microbes which attack us limit their attacks to special portions of our bodies. No matter into what area of the body they may penetrate, they invariably pass to the special structure which is their natural "soil." Thus, if typhoid bacilli are introduced into a vein, they will travel through the body until they come to the wall of the bowel. Only when this has been reached will they lodge and begin to multiply. In other words, immunity must be local, of the tissues and organs rather than of the blood. This is a new idea and one which offers a fresh vista of knowledge.

Luminous Plants.

There are a number of plants and flowers which give out a phosphorescent light in the dark. Linnaeus first noticed this phenomenon in the common nasturtium, whose flowers seemed to him to have a faint iridescence at night. Later observation by others showed that the light was stronger after very sunny days. Among other plants which possess this singular property are the marsh lily and the fraxinella. The last named secretes a volatile oil which oozes out in hot weather, and forces a vapor which becomes luminous in the darkness. In the coal mines near Dresden grows a species of fungus which exhibits the appearance of luminous festoons of shifting colors.

Dam 18 Miles Long.

Work on the Wilson Dam at Muscle Shoals (Alabama) has begun again. The army of engineers are little concerned with what will become of the electrical energy to be derived from the waters of the Tennessee river; their business is to complete the job by the spring of 1926. The dam will form a "pool" eighteen miles long; four units of electrical machinery, capable altogether of generating one hundred and twenty thousand horse power, are on the ground waiting to be installed.

Rubber Seed for Cattle Food.

Recent experiments conducted in the Straits Settlements have clearly shown that a feeding cake for cattle and other stock, favorably comparing with linseed and other oil cake, can be produced from the residue of the Para rubber seed, after the oil is extracted, thus affording an opportunity for the development to very considerable proportions of a profitable industry in connection with the ordinary oil extraction.

Naming the Dock.

It was a beautiful little lake. The man who had purchased an estate on it said he must have a dock for his motorboat and asked if there was any timber in the neighborhood. They told him there was plenty of hickory.

"Build it of that," he directed, "and I'll name it Hickory Dickory Dock."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Tanned Sponges Last Longer.

Leather is so much improved by tanning that much is expected from sponges treated by the new tanning process. The sponge material is greatly toughened and strengthened, the bacteria that are so active in causing the breakdown of the sponge being also more effectively resisted.

Marked.

"Has Tom showed you any marked attention?"

"Yes, he left the price tag on the ring he gave me."—Boston Transcript.

A Prayer for Humor!

What is probably the most up-to-date prayer in existence is to be found outside a Hampstead Baptist Church in England.

It begins:—

Give me a good digestion, Lord,
And also something to digest;
Give me a healthy body, Lord,
And sense to keep it at its best.

The prayer goes on to ask for a healthy mind to keep the good and true in sight," and for a heart "that does not whimper, whine, or sigh." It concludes:—

Give me a sense of humor, Lord,
Give me the power to see a joke,
To get some happiness from life
And pass it on to other folk.

Offering of Ottawa

HULL POWER PREF. STOCK

It is understood the details with regard to the Ottawa and Hull Power financing are now being definitely settled, and that Nesbitt Thomson & Co., Limited, will shortly be offering the preferred stock of this Company.

One of the interesting points of this situation is that while both of the plants of the company are situated in Quebec, they are between Ottawa and Hull, and almost one could say under the shadow of the Parliament Buildings.

It is very seldom that a hydro-electric plant is situated so near to its ultimate market. In this case the company markets practically all its power at the power site. Besides owning the above mentioned plants, capable of 40,000 h.p. which are now installed and in operation, the company also controls a power site further up the river capable of 60,000 h.p. development.

It is understood that the interest bearing securities to be outstanding will only be $100 per h.p. of installed capacity, which is very conservative and this is without the value of the large undeveloped power.

U.S. TO TAKE A HEALTH CENSUS

Washington, July 24.—(United Press). —A great nation-wide study of the health of each man, woman and child in the United States will be undertaken July 4, 1924, the U. S. Public Health Service has announced.

"The National Health Council, a combination of the 13 greatest medical and public health organizations in America, during the year beginning July 4 next, will endeavor to persuade every person in the United States to take a peep into the future to see what the conditions of his health will be a few years hence," the announcement stated. "Anybody who does not like what he sees will be told what he can do to better it.

"For ages men have sought to probe the future by reading the stars, consulting the oracles, visiting fortune tellers and mediums, and even by watching for the groundhog and reading the goosebone. But always when men sought information concerning the future they coupled their request with the question, unspoken, but always understood : 'Will I be there to see the prophesy fulfilled?'

"It is not so difficult as it may seem to predict how long a man will retain his health or will live. His expectation of life is particularly easy to estimate: Substract his age from 80; and if his health is good he will probably live fore more than two-thirds of the difference.

"But is his health good?

"A life insurance company can answer the question pretty accurately. Unless it does so it is bound to go bankrupt sooner or later. Finally it examines you physically, not merely to find out whether you are sound at the moment but whether you have any unsuspected disease whose existence neither you nor any one else could know from ordinary observation.

"Most persons think of death as coming from one of the great diseases—typhoid fever, for instance. But it isn't those that do the real damage. It's the hidden things that weaken your organs without your knowing it till the test comes and you find yourself defenceless.

"All these things can be and will be investigated under the council's plan by a reputable physician—by each person's family doctor, if he likes. The council hopes that at least 10,000,000 persons, say 30,000 a day, will have themselves examined during the [illegible] months beginning July 4 next.

"This national health examination campaign will unquestionably markedly lengthen the average human life. Its span in the United States was lengthened from 41 to 56 during the 50 years that elapsed between 1870 and 1920."

HOW THE TANKS WERE NAMED

Did you ever wonder how the big, lumbering war machines called "tanks," the iron monsters which helped to turn the tide of victory toward the Allies, go their name?

One of the workmen in a plant in Sussex where the fighters were being manufactured was asked one day by a British general what he thought the fighters looked like. He replied: "I don't know what they look LIKE, but they look about as much unlike a tank of ale as anything I can think of."

Answer to to-day's picture puzzle: The four words pictured that form a word-square are : Fore, oval, rack, elks.

Actor Rouses Storm By Attacking the Moral of Stage

Prominent London Comedian Says Immorality Is Appalling and Draws Several Hot Replies

By CHAS McCann
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

London, July 24.—(United Press).—"Don't let your women go on the stage. Its immorality is appalling."

"It is almost impossible for a girl to be what she ought to be if she goes on the stage. Unless she has money, a man, or a manager to help her through, it is a terrible difficulty for her to get anywhere at all with her career."

That is an actor's view of the British stage, given by "Wee Georgie" Wood, a famous comedian, at a Rotary Club dinner at Manchester, when he was made a member of the club.

London actors, actresses, and managers say it is not true.

The accusation struck them like a blow in the face. Wood is one of them—a veteran and a leader—but he is the least liked man on the stage just now.

COCHRAN SAYS ITS LIBEL

"I never heard such a gross libel in my life," said Charles B. Cochran, England's greatest producer.

"Perhaps no man has had more experience of stage life than I have, and I can say definitely that there are only two things which will get a girl ahead on the stage—talent and hard work.

"A girl may go wrong and a man may, through influence, get a girl on the stage; but she won't stay there long in a good show without both talent and hard work. The audience are the judges, and no amount of booming or boosting will keep a girl in a big post unless she has talent.

"'Wee Georgie' Wood's statement is absolute rot, and wicked rot at that."

"It is talent, and nothing else, that counts on the stage to-day," said Miss Barbara Gott, leading lady in "Lilac time" at the Lyric.

"I had neither influence nor money behind me, and have climbed from small parts to leads, and I know scores of actresses on both the variety and legitimate stage who have done as I have done.

"There are temptations on the stage as in all walks of life, but to say that this is the rule rather than the exception is a wicked libel."

PLAYING AND BEING

Another of Wood's statements in his speech was:

"It is almost impossible for an actor night after night to play at love without feeling it. If you play, with emotion it will play with you."

He referred to the chorus girl, "on $15 or less a week—a life in which bullying by a stage manager plays quite a prominent part."

"Don't tell me this isn't true," he added; "I have seen too much of it."

Its a fact that a chorus girl gets around $15 a week in a London chorus. In the provinces she may get $7.50, and out of it she is supposed to keep herself in food and clothing and to pay for lodgings.

Some girls do it. A few support themselves entirely on it. Others, a good many, manage to buy food and pay for lodgings and car-fare and depend on their families for clothes. A few have money of their own. Then there are the others.

There is no secret about the salaries. Anyone who goes around town knows girls who receive them, and support themselves or fail to support themselves on the money.

Those who keep themselves straight are taken out to dinner occasionally; not very often, on the road. They live in London mostly; when they are on tour they live together, three or four of them, in dingy rooms, and cook most of their own food.

Small Motors Show Paces; Room For Improvement

New York, July 24.—(United Press). —The smaller one-man racing cars have had a whirl on the faster board bowls It appears that there is much room for improvement before they will reach the speed and endurance of their larger brothers.

After motors of 183 cubic inches piston displacement had been successfully raced for three years, it was decided to reduce the size of the motors Specifications called for cars of 122 cubic inches.

They were raced for the first time at Indianapolis on May 20 and made an excellent showing on the 2 1-2 mile brick oval, where the best average time for the long grind of 500 miles is 94.48 miles an hour made by Jimmy Murphy in a 183-inch car in 1922. Milton, who won the race this year in the first of the smaller cars, averaged 90.95 miles an hour.

The average was considered excellent for the Indianapolis track, which approximates the conditions of road racing. The straightaways are long, but the turns which are practically flat compared with the complete banks of the bowl courses.

Experts were more than pleased with Milton's average. They contended that had Milton been pushed in the last half of th race, as he was in the first, when he was establishing new records, that Murphy's high mark of the previous year would have been shattered. The contention being based, of course, on the belief that Milton's speedster could have remained intact during the sustained attack on time and distance.

Then along came the July 4 race at Kansas City, the first time the small cars were raced on a speedy board bowl, where the pilots ride the car to the last inch of speed.

ONLY FOUR FINISHED

Out of twelve starters, only four finished the event and two of the finishers would have been culled from any logical list of likely contenders before the start of the race. The pace was too rapid for the pigmy motors.

Eddie Hearne, cautious, conservative, driver never picked as a winner, but always chosen for a first division place in the list of finishers, romped into first money at Kansas City after several of the favorites had rolled their cars to the hospital.

That is Hearne's usual course. Driving with the experience that comes from years of competition, he always keeps his car within striking distance of the romping youngsters who step out into the lead and attempt to maintain a burning pace. If they are successful he takes less money—but when they break up, he jauntily drives into the lead.

For the remainder of the season the pilots will be wheeling their cars on the faster tracks—one mile, mile and a quarter and mile and a half bowls. The pace will be fast. Murphy averaged better than 115 miles an hour in one 250-mile event at Los Angeles with his sensational 183 inch car. It is evident that the racing laddies will have to put some endurance into their mounts if they are to exceed or even maintain the speed of last season's events. Murphy turned in a few laps at 119 miles an hour at Kansas City. If the cars would stay together at that gait all would be well.

French Manager Has Hot Roast For U.S. Movie Men

By JOHN O'BRIEN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Paris, July 23 (United Press).—French movie films haven't made the slighest progress in the last ten years American films are crude in conception although lavishly executed. This is the verdict of Andre Antoine, the great Paris theatrical manager.

"The taste of the theatre public has been steadily developing for many years," said Antoine, "but the movie people haven't done anything to keep pace with it. As far as they are concerned, we are still in the days of the film based on elementary dectective tales.

"In spite of the immense wealth in the hands of the American producers, which enables them to indulge in expenditures impossible in France, they have not brought anything new to the movie from the viewpoint of art. Men like Griffith spend millions of dollars on a production. They get tremendous effects, of course, but their scenarios are mere hackneyed repetitions of the situations of the old stage.

"Dramatic authors of to-day cannot change this. We need a new generation of artistic thinkers, freed from ancient pseudo-literary baggage, who will be able to take advantage of the special facilities for expression which the screen gives. More than that, the business of making movie films must be taken out of the hands of men who are in it for the sole purpose of making millions."

Chester Ills., July 24.—Twenty-five desperate madmen, several of them "killers," at large in Southern Illinois following a riot at the jail state hospital here Sunday night.

Many of the fugitives were convicted of murder and committed to the institution on insanity pleas. Several are believed to be armed and hiding in the thick brush and hills of southern Illinois and southeastern Missouri.

DRASTIC ACTION NOT PROPOSED

Toronto, July 24.—"Give puglicity to the law and warn those believed to be offenders. If the public notice and the private warning are disregarded, take steps to enforce the law." Such in brief were the instructions sent out by the attorney-general's department at the Parliament Buildings here to all the crown-attorneys of the Province of Ontario in respect to the enforcement of the Betting Information Act.

It was stated yesterday at the attorney-general's office that because persons were selling copies of papers today containing racing information they were not necessarily to be arrested. The arrest is left to the discretion of the crown-attorney of the district in which the "crime" is committed. If after due warning and publicity the law is disregarded then it is the duty of the attorneys to prosecute, and in fact it was said there was no alternative course except a prosecution open.

HOPE TO AVERT U.S. COAL STRIKE

Atlantic City, N.J., July 24.—With only five weeks remaining in which to agree upon a wage contract perpetuating peace in the anthracite coal industry, four union leaders and as many mine operators gathered here today to renew negotiations interrupted ten days ago to permit the miners to attend a district convention at Wilkesbarre.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America, and S. D. Warriner, head of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company, and spokesman for the operators, were confident they would be able to avert trouble in the anthracite field this fall, but which side would make the necessary concessions neither would predict.

The coal companies have agreed to abolish the twelve-hour day where practicable, and have agreed "in principle" to the elimination of what the miners contend is unjust dockage.

France Will Not Pay Until Germany Does

Paris, July 24.—"France has never dreamed of repudiating her signature, but she is sure her allies will understand that so long as she has received nothing from Germany it is impossible for her to make any reimbursement."

This is what Count De Lasteyrie, minister of finance in the Poincare government, declared in an intimate interview on the possibility of France beginning payment on the three billion dollars she owes the United States.

Farm Problems To Be Hardings Theme

Aboard U.S.S. Henderson, with President Harding, en route to Vancouver, July 24.—President Harding turned his attention to world affairs today as his Alaskan visit came to an end with the Henderson headed southward.

In his scheduled speeches at Vancouver and San Francisco Mr. Harding is planning to discuss international problems again, with particular reference to the world court and the French acceptance of the Washington naval treaty.

Mr. Harding is looking forward with the keenest pleasure to the call on our Canadian neighbors.

The president, besides urging the world court will again discuss his plan for an organization of consumers to co-operate with farmers and other producers in reducing the cost and distribution of foodstuffs.

Find Alabaster Statue of Minerva Under Rome

By CAMILLO CIANFARRA
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Rome, July [illegible] (United Press).—After centuries of digging, exporing and searching, in the course of which hundreds of bronze and marble statutes and busts of inestimable value were found, the Rome subsoil has still in store wonderful surprises for the archeologist and the art lover.

The latest find is a colossal statue of Minerva, entirely of alabaster, which the art experts of the Italian government have declared as absolutely unique.

Professor Paribeni, who is the chief appraiser for the Department of Fine Arts, says that, while mediocre statues of marbles of greco-roman make are very common, and are to be seen in almost every museum, from the Louvre of the Metropolitan, to say nothing of the Vatican, which has the most complete collection of statues of Roman emperors, and the Roman Museum, which has whole wings full of intact and mutilated masterpieces of Greece and Rome, a statue of alabaster of finest Greek workmanship was unknown to the archeologists.

The Statute was found where once was located the so-called Emporium, a kind of storage-home, where the Romans used to deposit the blocks of marbles brought to Rome by water not only from the quarries of Tuscany, but from Greece and Egypt as well.

The statue of Minerva must also have been brought to Rome by water from some Greek city, and never put up, probably because it arrived damaged. The head and the arms have been found and the statue will be repaired. It shows Minerva sitting, and in its long underground life, the alabaster has acquired a wonderful hue. Professor Paribeni maintains the statue belongs to the first century of August.

Immediately after its discovery the statue was removed to the storeroom of the Thermae Museum.

NO ARRESTS IN TORONTO ROBBERY CASE

HOLDUP VICTIMS ARE STILL ALIVE

No Trace of Bandit Gang Yet Found by Authorities

LOOT $132,000

Hamilton Police Are Reported to Have Unearthed Clue

Toronto, July 25.—There were no new developments in the bank messenger hold-up case here today. No arrests have been made. A car, found burned near Fort Erie, at first believed to be the bandit car, was proven to be the property of a Buffalo man.

The messenger, Duck, who was wounded in the fighting is improving after the blood transfusion operation yesterday. Harris and Campbell also are reported improved. The Hamilton authorities are said to have unearthed a clue as to the whereabouts of the fleeing bandits, but no arrests had been reported from there at 3 p.m. to-day.

Toronto, July 25.—Police estimates place the value of the booty secured by the bandits in the sensational hold-up of banks messengers here yesterday morning in the vicinity of $132,000, all in negotiable currency, though the banks say the total is $88,000.

The reported loss by the Bank of Nova Scotia is $70,000 and by the Sterling Bank, $12,000. Large sums were saved by the pluckiness of the messengers.

Investigation by the local police indicate that at least eight or ten men figured in the hold-up. While it is known that the main operators travelled in a stolen maroon-colored Studebaker Six bearing the license plate of a resident of Thornhill, an outlying suburb, there is reason to believe there was a second car which served in the capacity of a decoy pacing the way for the experts who followed in the big Studebaker. That the robbers had carefully planned the hold-up was evident by their subsequent operations; they operated with marked rapidity, exhibited no signs of fear, and went right ahead in a professional way, all of which has convinced the police that the robbers were no novices.

The group of bank messengers returning to their respective banks conveying large leather bags containing large amounts of money from the Clearing House at Yonge and Wellington Streets, some walking, others in automobiles, were swooped down upon by the thieves without a moment's warning. Although the messengers were accompanied by guards, all armed with revolvers, the latter hardly realized what had happened and were covered with guns before they had a chance to open fire upon the invaders. It was quite apparent that the robbers had perfectly timed the arrival of the messengers at the point at which they opened fire. The messengers under the sudden fusilade of bullets poured out with machine-gun rapidity, battled desperately to save the bags. In the midst of the fray one of the messengers succeeded in reaching a point of safety with a bag containing $150,000. The criminals shot to kill. Fourteen bank messengers faced the bullets.

The injured are:

JAMES W. HARRIS, 4 Luttrell avenue, Standard Bank messenger, shot through abdomen. His chances of recovery are good.

WALTER S. DUCK, 30 Gough avenue, Union Bank messenger, shot above the heart. His condition is reported favorable, though serious.

ALLEN LORD, 201 Sherbourne street, elevator man, was bruised in the fight, but is not in hospital.

Bank officials are very reticent in discussing the "murder hold-up."

It was claimed that the money had to be handled in some way between branches and head offices and the clearing house. Guarded cars, it was said, did not remove the danger of a bold hold-up.

"Even with an armored car," suggested one bank manager, "we would not have been safe, because the bandits can run us down and get at the money just as easy."

We will have to put on more men, and more armed force. A police guard is the essential now wanted, where the whole street will be patrolled while messengers are receiving and unloading money."

FORMER LINDSAY MAN

Lindsay, July 25.—Mr. Arnold F. Duck, of Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Duck, formerly of Lindsay, was one of the victims of the bandits' bullets in the daring hold-up at Toronto yesterday.

Arnold is a messenger in the Canadian Bank of Commerce, and pluckily gave battle to the masked men. He was seriously wounded in the fight, but is expected to recover.

Hamilton, Ont., July 25.—Motorcycle officers and special constables in automobiles raced down the Toronto-Hamilton highway yesterday immediately after the receipt of the information of the Toronto bank robbery. The whole district was combed, but no trace of the robbers was found. The only clue which could be regarded as important was supplied by a Waterdown garageman, who said five men passed through there in a Chevrolet car a short time before. That they will not attempt to enter Hamilton is the opinion of the police and efforts are being confined to a search of the rural districts surrounding.

Up to the hour of 2-30 o'clock this afternoon the local police and Provincial police had nothing new to report in reference to the hold-up and robbery at Toronto yesterday morning. From the time word was received here of the affair both the city and provincial police have been on the alert in this city and vicinity. A number of the roads running east and west were manned but no trace of the car used or the bandits could be found. A report was current last evening that some members of the gang had been captured at Oshawa, but it was without foundation. It is confidently expected that the desperadoes, for such they are, will yet be run down.

WOMAN'S DEATH HELD ACCIDENT

Coroner's Jury in Case of Mrs. Weech Fixes No Responsibility

DRIVER ABSOLVED

Injured Daughter of Victim Still in General Hospital Here

At Colborne on Monday night the Coroners' Jury, in the case of the unfortunate auto accident whereby Mrs. Weech of Toronto lost her life, rendered its verdict which was to the effect that it was purely an accident. Mr. William J. Craig of this city, who was driving the car at the time was exonerated from any blame. A number of witnesses were examined in the case.

It will be recalled that Mrs. Weech met death when the car in which she was riding on the afternoon of July 18, collided with a telephone pole, 4 miles west of Brighton. The pole was broken off, the upper part striking Mrs. Weech on the head, killing her instantly.

Mr. Craig explained that a stretch of newly gravelled road encountered at the scene of the accident was responsible for the tragedy.

Miss Hilda Weech, 13-year-old daughter of the victim, was sustained a fracture of the left leg and other injuries is still in the hospital here. Her condition was reported improved today.

LOCAL COAL MEN NOT ENTHUSIASTIC

Say Mexican Coal Would Retail Too Highly Here

Local coal dealers continue to scout the theory that a possible coal famine might be avoided by the importation of Mexican coal. With the initial price of the foreign product at $9.00 a ton, when it reached the consumer here, they said, it would cost in the neighborhood of $19.50 per ton. The importation of Alberta coal is not being seriously considered here. The coal vendors apparently do not fear a coal famine next winter. Mayor Bennett is not pessimistic in the matter.

Tracery is the horse, and though English bred, he has resided in the Argentine for a number of years. His return to his native soil has coincided with the sale of a part of him by his owner. Senor Unzue, to an English syndicate. Unzue paid $255,000 for the animal.

When Tracery came home he brought three of his Argentine children with him. They will be auctioned at the yearling sales at Newmarket and should bring fancy prices.

Papyrus, winner of the 1923 English Derby, and Waygood, winner of the namesake of the English event in Ireland are sons of Tracery.

They will be granted free passages, and will be placed with carefully-selected farmers of good standing through the Marchmont Home, Belleville, Ontario. They will receive the usual marketrate of wages. At the close of their second year they will be encouraged to take a one or two years' course in scientific agriculture at the Ontario Agricultural College and at the end of that time it is hoped the Canadian Government will arrange to help them to acquire farms of their own on easy terms.

DELORME MAY BE TRIED IN QUEBEC

In That Event Trial Will Not Occur Until October

Quebec, Que., July 25.—The second trial of Abbe Adelard Delorme will most likely take place in Quebec at the October term of the criminal court, which opens on he 10th of that month, is freely stated at the Attorney-General's Department.

The difficulty in finding a judge to preside over the case which arose in the first instance will again occur this time with the added burden of finding a jury, after the trial has caused such wide-spread interest. Rural districts might be found suitable for the hearing of he case as far as the formation of an independent jury is concerned but the fact that the murder was committed in a city and in conditions alleged to be more suitable for a city jury is expected to prevent such step being taken. Only a few miles from St. Michel Asylum where the accused priest spent nearly a year confined as insane will likely be the scene of the new trial.

It was also learned that there was no legal objections to Sir Francois Lemieux presiding over the second trial if he wished to, but it was stated that most likely Justice Gibson or Justice Sevigny would preside at the trial if it was held in this city.

Mr. W. C. Mikel, K. C., on behalf of the property owners wrote the Council relative to the objection of the ratepayers on that street, of allowing outside parties to drain into the sewer. If an amicable arrangement is made no further action will be taken, if not an injunction will be sought to restrain outsiders from using the drain for the disposal of their sewage.

SEEK TO DELAY MURDER TRIAL

Counsel to Sydney Murrell Would Try Robbery Charge First

WANTS OTHERS TRIED

Crown Attorney Will Press for Immediate Trial for Killing

London, Ont., July 25.—An effort to have the trial of Sydney Murrell, for the murder of Russell Campbell at Melbourne, put off as long as possible is to be made by J. M. Donohue, barrister, who was engaged to-day to defend the prisoner. Mr. Donohue, after a long talk with his client, stated that he would make application to the Attorney-General's Department to have Murrell tried at the approaching Assizes on one of the charges of robbery that are standing against him, and that the murder charge be not pressed until the four men alleged to have been implicated in the killing, namely Sydney and William Murrell, Jack Williams and Ernest Norton, are all in custody. Mr. Donohue points out that this was the course followed when Williams, who is now serving a term in Kingston, was tried, the Crown being unwilling to proceed against him for murder while the other three were not in custody.

J. C. Elliott, County Crown Attorney, is to press for immediate trial on the more serious count, and in other circles it is claimed that only on the charge of murder can Murrell be tried, inasmuch as he was extradited on that commitment from California.

Young Miller was with the Burleigh Fall Fishing Club, composed of members from Cleveland, who come annually to this spot. There was no one with him in the canoe at the time of the accident, and the only explanation is that the canoe was caught in an eddy and carried toward the dam.

Two-Minute Tours

(BY UNITED PRESS)

Bruges, Belgium, has just observed its greatest annual celebration, the procession of the Most Precious Blood. This celebration was suspended during the German occupation.

Bruges, which figured largely in the World War, derives its name from the way it is built. Because the town from the beginning had numerous canals and structures carrying streets across them it was named in Flemish "Bridges." It is a sort of reversed Venice. Bruges is a land area cut into islands by numerous canals.

Like Venice, Bruges was once the commercial and banking centre of the world. This was in the fourteenth century. The centre of commercial activity had moved from Italy to Flanders, and Bruges was then Flanders' greatest market. Until the Zwyn finally silted up in 1490, Bruges held its own. At the height of its power Bruges had a population of 200,000; now the inhabitants number about 55,000.

The people of Bruges have built several canals to the North Sea. The largest and most direct leads eight miles to Zeebrugge, meaning "the seaport of Bruges." This basin at Bruges figured prominently in the World War. The Germans developed a strong U-boat nest at Bruges from which their underwater commerce destroyers went out to sink many an allied ship. The British, however, successfully hindered the U-boat activities from the Bruges nest by their famous sortie against Zeebrugge mole, when ships filled with concrete were sunk across the entrance to the canal.

In St. Basile's chapel in Bruges is kept the "Sacred Vial," brought by the old Crusaders from Jerusalem, reputed to have been the vessel holding the water with which the body of the crucified Christ was washed. This reliquary is carved once a year in the Most Precious Blood.

Sky Flivver Is Born in England

London, July 25 (United Press).—Flying machines for the price of a cheap automobile will be available soon, according to Sir Sefton Brancker, Director of Civil Aviation.

The English Air Ministry has built one model of the flivver flyer it works. Because of its delicate appearance and swift flight it has been officially named the "Wren."

Unless it proves to be too good, models of the machine will become available to the public.

The Air Ministry, however, retains the right to restrict the use of the new plane to war purposes, if it seems desirable.

The "Wren" travels at a speed of 53 miles an hour and will fly for nearly two hours on a gallon of gas. It is officially described as a motor-propelled glider.

Unconventional Memories

Some Well-known People Strange Foibles of Shah

A story of the "Jubilee Juggins," a young man who earned his nickname in the jubilee year, when he was busily squandering a quarter of a million pounds, is told by Mr. Ralph Neville in "Unconventional Memories."

On one occasion some rogues locked the door of the billiard-room at a certain resort, and kept him playing half the night, until he had lost ten thousand pounds. "Friends" battened upon him to such an extent that once the porter at another sporting resort, answering a query for "the Jubilee," replied: "The beagles and the vultures are 'ere, but the carcass h'aint come yet."

Of late Dr. Wolff, who spent a long time in Abyssinia and many other places in religious pursuits, the author also tells a story. Dr. Wolff was said to have contracted careless habits during his travels.

On one occasion he was to pay a three-day visit to a country house, and before he went his wife packed three spotless shirts in his bag, telling him to put one on each evening.

"I hope you did as I told you," she said on his return.

"Of course I did, my dear," was the reply. "I put on a clean shirt every evening, one on top of the other. I am wearing all four now!"

Mr. Neville was for a time attache at the British Legation in the Persian capital—Teheran—and he tells some anecdotes about the then Shah, Nasr-ed-din.

In 1879 the Shah paid a visit to London, and was housed in Buckingham Palace. One of the Persians whose duty it was to massage the Shah—this being the royal visitor's cure for sleeplessness—so infuriated his master by rudeness or incompetence that the Shah ordered him to be bow-strung in Buckingham Palace.

The man was executed on the spot, his body being taken out that night and buried in the palace gardens, where, in some unknown spot, it lies to-day.

"Whether the story is true or not," the author adds, "I cannot say, but from what I know of the Persians of that day the incident is not improbable."

On one or two occasions at dinner functions, when some unusually fat lady was present (female obesity is or was esteemed a beauty in the east), the Shah would take off his spectacles, wipe them, and have a good look at her. After which he would address her through an interpreter, and inquire:—

"How many children have you got?"

If she replied that she was not married, the Shah would say: "Why not? A fine woman should have a husband. You had better get one as soon as you can."

The Shah had adopted as a mascot a child who, he believed, had indirectly saved his life. The boy was made a full general and given a uniform and a miniature diamond-hilted sword, as well as an army of boys to command. He had, also a special suite of servants to look after him.

The boy was brought with the Shah to England. At a luncheon at the Guildhall the ill-mannered little fellow tried several times to put his hand in his neighbor's plate, his gluttony being aroused by seeing some morsel more tempting than any on his own.

At a Durbar at Agra, in honor of the Ameer of Afghanistan, when the bandmasters were instructed to play the Afghan National Anthem they declared that no one had ever heard of such a tune! Eventually the commander-in-chief (Lord Kitchener) was appealed to for instructions.

"It does not matter," Kitchener replied; "the Ameer does not know a note of music. Play two or three bars of something heavy, pompous, and slow—that's sure to pleasehim!"

A march from one of the older German operas was played, with such success that the newspapers printed remarks about "the weirdly beautiful Oriental strains of the Afghan National Anthem."

All sorts of curious stories are circulated concerning Oriental potentates visiting London. During the visit of the heir to the throne of Afghanistan in 1895, he was, according to one report, perturbed by the downfall of the government. He at once offered the use of his Afghan escort to protect the royal family!

He sent to a Bond street gunmaker for ammunition, and placed his house in a state of efficient defence, experience in his own country having taught him that when a government falls it is wise to be prepared for all eventualities.

"The King's Journalist."

Mr. J. G. Muddiman has written the life of his ancestor, Henry Muddiman, who founded the London Gazette in 1665, under the title of "The King's Journalist, 1659-1689." The book throws fascinating sidelights upon a period of English history which has never yet been fully explored, and upon the real beginnings of English journalism. Muddiman's "News-Letters," from 1667 to 1689, the MSS. of which have been at Longleat, Wiltshire, since 1704, have been carefully examined. Mr. Muddiman compares the life of a journalist of those far-off days with that of the present. "A remarkable contrast," he writes, "to a modern editor journeying to his daily work by the underground railway was presented by the bewigged seventeenth century newswriter, mounted on horseback and travelling to Whitehall or the 'Seven Stars' in the Strand, armed with a sword and a brace of pistols in his holster, 'because of the footpads at Knightsbridge.'"

Venice is built on eighty islands, has four hundred bridges.

TERMS WERE SEVERE

WARTIME SENTENCES ARE CAUSING A REACTION IN U.S.

Men Were Sent to Penitentiary Because They Held Unpopular Opinions, But Prominent Humanitarians Are Now Declaring That the Action Taken by Courts Was a National Disgrace.

It took the United States a long time to raise a sufficient temperature to enter the war, but once raised it has taken longer for that temperature to subside than in any other nation. There now languish in federal penitentiaries fifty-two men who have been in prison for several years, their offence being expressions of opinion against the war. Long ago every other nation released its political prisoners. Indeed, after the peace was signed, the United States released the actual German agents then in custody. Men who had tried to blow up bridges and vessels carrying ammunition, and to wreck munition plants have long ago been set at liberty. The reason for their early escape was the fact that they were foreign subjects. But the Americans who, as members of the I.W.W., were convicted under the Espionage Act, continue to serve their terms, some of which are for twenty years. The Harding administration has not been more merciful to them than the Wilson administration. Both have been adamant, although a few have been permitted their liberty, among them Eugene V. Debs, after an imprisonment of years.

The imprisoned men have raised up many powerful friends for themselves, men about whose absolute patriotism there can be no question. They believe that the United States disgraces itself by its treatment of these prisoners. They assert that however grave their offences, they have suffered enough and should receive not simply amnesty but a full pardon and the restoration of all their rights of citizenship. The Government, however, insists that each case shall be treated on its merits, and that there will be no general jail delivery. Senator Borah is one of the leaders who denounce the continued imprisonment of the pacifists. He quotes the constitution of the United States to show that Congress was specifically denied the power to make laws restricting the speech of the press.

Perhaps war hysteria never reached such heights anywhere else as in the United States. The reason was that the American people were well aware that there were millions of people of German and Irish descent or birth who were strongly against the war, who wanted Germany to win, some of them on account of Germany and others on account of Britain. It was felt that the country was honeycombed with potential enemies and spies. No allowance was made for the conscientious objector. He was sent down as pro-German, his alleged moral scruples being considered so much hypocrisy. What would the country do, demanded the indignant patriots, if everybody was permitted to dodge military duty on the pretext that he did not believe in war of any kind? Why the country might as well never have declared war!

It will now be admitted by all the nations that were involved in the war that some very fine people objected to the war, insisted that it would settle nothing, and risked odium and physical danger for the sake of views they honestly believed in. But it was dangerous to make these admissions while the conflict was on; in fact, if the main object was to win the war once being involved in it, such admissions were impossible. The United States was in a different position from any other belligerent. In England and France there were few Germans, and fewer pro-Germans. There the pacifists were generally recognized as pacifists and were treated, if not with respect, at least without savagery. In the United States there were millions of pro-Germans, and the man in the street found it impossible to distinguish between a pro-German and a pacifist. If any American should have been put in jail for treason it surely was William Randolph Hearst, yet he remains triumphantly unadorned with a convict's uniform, a power in the nation.

In a trial at Sacramento when forty members of the I.W.W. were tried, all but three of them refused to make a defence, on the ground that they had no chance. But the three who put up a resistance escaped lightly, and the others were heavily punished, not so much for the alleged offences, but for their attitude to the trial and the court which was held to be extremely disrespectful to the American theory of justice. To show the amazing severity of the American courts in war time, we quote passages from three letters written by Charles Bennett, a member of the I.W.W.:

"(1) Things are pretty quiet here just now owing to the wave of patriotism that is sweeping the country at this time."

"(2) The I.L.A. here are showing a great lot of patriotism by wearing patriotic buttons with old glory upon them and buying up Liberty bonds and trying to work the so-called scabs off on the jobs by showing the boss that they can work faster and harder and stand it longer than the scalpys, as they call them."

"(3) The situation on the coast here is fierce, owing to this great wave of patriotism that is sweeping the country at this time, and they are arresting our fellow-workers and throwing them in jail on no charge whatever, thinking that they will break their spirits that way, but thus far they have not accomplished their purpose."

For these expressions of opinion, he was sentenced to ten years' imprisonment.

BAPTIST S. S. PICNIC

At 9-30 this morning the steamer Brockville conveyed a large excursion party to 12 O'Clock Point and at 2 o'clock in the afternoon had another load of human freight. It was the annual picnic of the Baptist Church Sunday School and the day was excellent for such an outing. During the after noon the boat made a trip from 12 O'Clock Point, up through the Murray Canal to Presqu' Isle and many took advantage of the sail. At the Point a programme of sports was carried out for the benefit of the children of the school and others who attended the picnic.

PRIVATE PICNIC.

Members of the Woodmen of the World in this city this afternoon enjoyed a picnic at Redness Grove near Rednersville, Prince Edward County. The party was conveyed to the Grove by autos.

CAR WENT OVER BANK

A large American touring car plunged over an embankment on the provincial highway, one mile west of Napanee, on Monday afternoon. The road was being tarred at the time and the driver lost control of the machine. Although the car was damaged to some extent, the occupants were fortunately saved from injury.

RECKLESS DRIVING

Mr. W. D. Glen of Ravena, N.Y., who with his family is visiting at Deseronto and Napanee, was on Sunday the victim of a reckless motorist. He had been on a visit to Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Taylor, Deseronto, and on returning, his car was run into at the corner of John and Dundas streets, Napanee, by an unknown car. The running board and all one side of his car was smashed. Temporary repairs were made and he was able to continue his journey. It is said that the offending motorist was travelling at an unduly rapid rate.

NO OPTION.

A cinema actor was suing a company for an immense sum for breach of contract. Upon being asked why he demanded such a sum, he replied, "Because I am the greatest actor in the world." Later, one of his friends took him to task for so loudly singing his own praises. "I know," replied the actor, "it must have sounded somewhat conceited, but I was under oath, so what could I do?"

DANDELION WINE.

John Hunter, Jr., of the city was fined $15 and costs his morning in police court on a charge of drunkenness. The accused admitted the charge but said that an overdose of dandelion wine had brought about his condition.

CORNERED BY COBRA.

Terrible Snake That Attacks Anything It Meets.

"A king cobra will attack anything he meets," says Mr. Frank H. Buck, the collector, writing in the Asia Magazine.

"One specimen, twelve-and-half feet long, which I had bought from a Malay, was brought to me in a flimsy cage. I directed the Chinese carpenter who makes most of my animal cages to put all his skill into a handsome box for the cobra, and presently he proudly delivered a teakwood box three feet square and a foot and a half high with a plate-glass top.

"Yew Kee, two of his Chinese assistants and Bent Chee, my Malay 'boy,' who were helping me to change the cobra to his new quarters, were standing in the centre of a narrow cement passageway with a blind end. On one side of the passageway were several wooden crates containing tigers; on the other side were some fish tanks. One of the Chinese picked up the old box, and just as he came to the centre of the passageway the bottom, which was rotten, fell out, and the snake landed on the ground!

"Everyone became panic-stricken. My 'boy,' who faces tigers intrepidly, jumped over three or four boxes and got away. The Chinese scattered in all directions. I was left at the farther end of the passageway, and between me and freedom was the snake! The thing was almost at my feet, it raised about two and a half feet of its body off the floor, extended its hood and began to glide toward me, hissing and stretching out its forked tongue.

"I kept backing away, and the cobra kept gliding nearer. When I had flattened myself against the wall it was not more than three feet from me. I had never been so badly frightened. If I had had a broom or a heavy stick I could have killed the snake, but I did not have even the six-inch knife that I usually wear in my belt. Suddenly I thought of my white coat. I tore it off and, holding it out before me, threw myself on top of the snake!

"As I sprawled over it I felt its body wriggling under me, but I could not be certain that its head would not dart out from the coat and sink its fangs in my arm. Fortunately, I had caught the head firmly, and in a moment the men came rushing up to help me. Reaching over, my 'boy' gathered up the coat and placed the cobra in the teakwood box."

The Ex-Service Mind.

"Words are the cheapest thing in Europe to-day; even fine words, the finest as pronounced in succession by various great political leaders," says Mr. Stephen Graham in the Contemporary Review.

"It is only dramatic acts or events that have power to stir the imagination of those who have been through the great war. War's reality, as it remains in the memory of the ex-service man and as he feels it in his body and mind and estate, still outweighs anything that has been put into the opposite scale of peace. The soldiers' world-war experience lies heavy on one side; the politicians are high up in the air on the other. The soldier looks across and wonders how it is that the politician can find nothing substantial to put in his end of the scale so as to make a balance between what has been paid and what has been obtained.

"Destiny dealt unequally with men in the war, more unequally than in life, and the after-thoughts have been unpleasant. The secret thought of the masses of the ex-soldiers of England is strongly critical of nearly all the world's affairs; the peace, the makers of peace, the European situation, the domestic situation. They have found little expression as yet. The 1918 general elections was fought while they were absent in Europe, and everything has since been done to diminish their influence upon public life. There has been no political attempt as in America to get the soldier's vote. Meanwhile, the ferment of the ex-soldiers' minds increases, and so does the tension upon the surface of British political life.

"There is bound to be a burst upwards from below—from the soldier masses and their wives, from the orphans, too, and from all those who registered war's terrible realities intimately in their bodies, in their lives."

The Waiter's Lost Plan.

Sir Basil Thomson, late assistant commissioner of London, Eng., police and director of the special branch at Scotland Yard, who knows as much secret war history as any man living, has published some of the interesting chapters of spy history in his book, "Queer People." Among the more amusing stories is the following: "On one occasion a very staid couple came down to denounce a waiter in one of the large hotels, and brought documentary evidence with them. It was a menu with a rough sketch plan in pencil made upon the back. They believed it to be a plan of Kensington Gardens, with the palace buildings roughly delineated by an oblong figure. They had seen the waiter in the act of drawing the plan at an unoccupied table. I sent for him, and found before me a spruce little Swiss, with his hair cut en brosse, and a general air of extreme suprise. He gave me a frank account of all his movements, and then I produced the plan. He gazed at it a moment, and then burst out laughing. 'So that is where my plan went! Yes, monsieur, I made it, and then I lost it. You see, I am new to the hotel, and in order to satisfy the head waiter I made for myself privately a plan of the tables, and marked a cross against those I had to look after.'"

YOUR CHILD IS AN ANIMAL

Many mothers do not realize that children are little animals and require as great feeding care as other young animals. Everyone knows that young animals can be killed by improper food.

Chickens, pigeons, guinea pigs, rats, mice, dogs, monkeys, and men have been quickly brought to death's door or killed by an exclusive diet of white flour products, polished rice, white or creamy wheat, barley, and corn cereals, from which the dark parts have been refined away. With all of the above foods an animal can eat, it soon dies, because such foods are deprived of their alkaline salts and growth and repair substances. Such foods turn the blood acid and the body's vitalizing elements are thus destroyed. The very bones are absorbed in the process. Prof. Forbes fed swine upon modern corn cereals until their legs broke under them because of poor bone quality.

We must revise our child feeding. More whole grains, milk, eggs, beans, nuts, vegetables and fruits, foods which kept our forefathers rugged and long lived. Such foods keep the blood normally alkaline and rich in growth and repair substances, lessening sickness and increasing growth.

There is but one non-acid, whole-grain cereal, Roman Meal, 400 parts in each 1,000 parts "Excess Alkali" (opposite of acid). Roman Meal, as porridge with milk, or as baked products with milk as drink, will keep your child normal, robust and well. Your child demands the best and Roman Meal is the best child's food. Icy-cold CHOCOL-O, BROSE-O, and JELL-E are hot day treats. Recipes on package. At grocers.

"What's the News?"

WHEN Columbus and his caravels returned from the New World, the first question shouted from the shore was, "What's the news?"

That's always the question of paramount importance. Years ago folks asked it of the post rider, the soldier returned from the wars, the man who had been down to the settlements, or the neighbor back from the general store.

To-day, you find the answer in your newspaper. Through the newspapers the news of the world and of the community quickly becomes public knowledge. And remember this—it takes two kinds of news to make a modern paper complete.

The first tells of happenings near and far—of fires, sports, elections, accidents, marriages, deaths, great men, great events.

The second tells of things you eat, wear and use—things you buy, things being sold to your friends and neighbors. This news is advertising.

It's just as important to keep up-to-date on the advertising in this paper as it is to read about what's doing in the world of events.

Advertising is an essential news service. It is distinctly to your advantage to be guided by it.

FUEL PROBLEMS

With a rate of $7 per ton fixed for coal shipped into Eastern Ontario from Alberta and with an offer of coal from Mexico at $9 per ton, new avenues of escape from a possible famine are opened to Eastern Canada. The practicability of either these two schemes can only be established by experience, which prove costly and futile.

There is, however, another plan, which has been proposed as a solution of the fuel problem—preparation of coal substitutes.

The great need of the provinces of Ontario and Quebec is an assured supply of suitable fuel for domestic heating at a moderate price. The small householder cannot longer afford to pay from $18 to $20 per ton for anthracite. and he cannot look for much relief in the price of anthracite, if any.

On the question of a substitute for anthracite coal, President R. M. Wolvin of the British Empire Steel Corporation communicated with Senator McLellan, chairman of the Fuel Committee, stating that investigation indicates that there are certain seams of coal in Nova Scotia producing coal that will make a satisfactory household coke and that the gas produced from this Nova Scotia coal while coking can be cleaned and the sulphur removed so that it can be used either for fuel or illuminating purposes. Mr. Wolvin suggests a subsidy or bonus to encourage the industry.

There appears at present no danger of an anthracite shortage, but the price per ton in any event is almost prohibitive. If a way can be found to procure Satisfactory fuel in sufficient quantities and for a reasonable price, Eastern Canada will reap untold benefit.

THE REGATTA

During the latter part of July and the first three days of August, Belleville will be the mecca for yachtsmen from all sections of the Lakes region. The yacht regatta to be held here during the first three days of August will be one of the really important events in the yachting history of the continent.

Over 50 yachts will be entered and every fleet on Lake Ontario, in addition to fleets of other waters will be represented.

The regatta will bring to Belleville hundreds of noted yachtsmen and upon this section of the Bay of Quinte will be focused the attention of the yachting world of the American continent.

Yacht racing is a sport of kings; it is a sporting enterprise that has always drawn its recruits from the ranks of leading sportsmen. It is recognised generally in the sporting world as an ideal form of competitive activity. One outstanding reason for this is the fact that yachting flourishes purely as a result of keen sportsmanship. Mercenary interests do not operate to vitiate its attractiveness as a pastime.

In years gone by the Bay of Quinte was the locale of flourishing yachting activities. With the advent of the motor-driven boat, however, interest in the sailing yacht waned. Now the pre-eminent qualities of sailing craft for competitive purposes is again becoming recognised. The Bay of Quinte is an ideal water for racing and with the renaissance of yachting, Belleville should achieve exceptional prominence among water sportsmen.

A series of motor boat races have been arranged and this feature will attract another large group of sportsmen.

The regatta means much to Belleville and it behooves all business, professional and public men interested in the city's welfare to assist in the plans now being made to entertain the hundreds of visitors, who will be here during the regatta.

The Bay of Quinte Yacht Club, the City Council and the Chamber of Commerce and other organizations are cooperating to make the affair the success it should be. During the remaining interval re-doubled efforts in the work of preparatory arrangements should be made and when the visitors arrive a welcome of such enthusiasm and proportions should be accorded them that their return in even greater numbers next year shall be assured.

PRESS OPINIONS

AS IT EVER SHOULD BE

(Montreal Family Herald)

Apparently the fact escaped general notice, but nevertheless it was, pleasantly significant that in the Ontario general election there was no appeal to racial or religious feelings.

The chief issues discussed related to taxation and administration, to prohibition and social reform. There were no unfriendly references to other provinces, nor any attempt to drag the question of French teaching in the schools into the contest.

There is reason to think that Mr. Ferguson belongs to the school of Whitney and Mowat, as does Mr. Drury, who throughout his term of office was broadly tolerant in his attitude towards the religious minority in Ontario.

Dissatisfaction still exists over the regulations affecting French teaching, but the chances are that in degree as agitation ceases any actual grievances that may exist will be redressed.

THE COAL SHORTAGE

(Quebec L'Evenement)

The Federal Fuel Controller, in expectation of a new miners' strike in Pennsylvania, has issued advice to all people to make provision early that they may not be short of coal or a substitute for the heating of their houses.

The experience of the last few years adds weight to this official counsel. Let us stop 'grousing" against luck or against the merchant, and make haste to fill our bins with some fuel adapted to our installations.

DECLINE OF PRIVACY

(Manchester Guardian)

Privacy is becoming impossible; we all live in glass houses and science is rapidly turning the fabric into magnifying glass. We only need some new refinement to make a passing thought register itself somewhere as a column article and the process will be complete.

But perhaps by that time we shall all be so discreet that our passing thoughts will have returned to their starting point and be hardly worth examining at all.

Sidelights on the President's Journey

By Lawrence Martin, United Press Staff Correspondent.

Aboard the U.S.S. Henderson en route Alaska with President Harding (By mail to United Press).—Relaxed and resting aboard ship from the rigors of two strenuous weeks of transcontinental travel, the official members of President Harding's party discussed their impressions of the trip, and told of the things which, to them, were significant about it.

President Harding regards the journey from Washington to Tacoma as the pleasantest speaking tour he ever made. Chatting with members of his party, he said that if it had not been for the automobile accident at Denver in which Sunner Curtis was killed and one other member of the party was hurt, it would have been perfect.

To the President, the most significant thing about the trip was the new ear of communication which, he believes, is opening up. He was deeply impressed with the manner in which his speeches were transmitted via telephone wire and radio, and thus relayed directly to millions of Americans far from him. This is more than a scientific marvel, in Mr. Harding's opinion. It is a step towards that closer union of all people which he regards as an approach to the ideal condition of the Republic.

FOUND PEOPLE CHEERFUL

The President was impressed also with the cheerful appearance of the people. Everywhere he went he found an air of confidence and cheer, with people busy and apparently fairly contented. The nation, he believes, is on the track back to complete normalcy and this, to him, was a gratifying revelation. He got many evidences of the sturdy Americanisms of the country, and this pleased him for he believes that there is little danger that the people will be led away after fads in government or economics.

Secretary Work of the Interior Department said he was impressed by the public interest in the President's discussion of government problems. No matter how dry the subject under discussion, the audiences always stayed to hear all Mr. Harding said, and showed that they were following him with earnest attention, Work said.

"There is undoubtedly a tendency in the country, on the part of individual citizens to take a greater interest in government," said Work. "This is a hopeful sign and means better government. The people were eager to get the President's report on the state of affairs. They are thinking about it, and the standard of citizenship therefore is going up."

WALLACE AND THE FARMERS

Secretary of Agriculture Wallace liked the attitude of the farming communities. He said the farmers showed the President that, despite their troubles, there are few if any quitters among them, and that they are willing to go the limit in doing their part, with government help, to keep agriculture going strong in the United States.

"The 'class' of our farmers was clearly shown to us on this trip," said Wallace. "We found them everywhere going ahead hopefully, confidently, and without grumbling. I found a strong belief everywhere that the government will do right by the farmer. But I found also that the farmer is out there doing his part and not worrying much about whether the government is going to do its part or not."

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

LIKE A HOUSE—THE STOREROOM

You know what the store room of a house or flat is like. It has stuff that is too good to throw away or that you are not using just at the time. Sometimes there is an emergency call for something, a spare bed, an extra chair an extra suit of clothes or underwear. Perhaps even it is something in food supplies that you keep in your storeroom. Now I know you'll wonder where the storeroom can be in that body of yours.

What particular position? Well as a matter of fact it is no particular part because Nature has a better system of housekeeping than we have.

Her storeroom is in practically every part of the body. That is, every part of the body has a storeroom of its own in its ability to supply your emergency needs instantly.

Take any part of the body. The lungs for instance always have about a hundred cubic inches of nearly pure air to carry you along should you have your 'wind" knocked out, be under water, or have your breath shut off in any way. This surplus will carry you along for a few minutes.

Your liver stores up extra sugar, so that if there is a sugar famine insofar as your body is concerned—that is if your vegetable supply is cut off—then the liver will supply this extra sugar to the blood until you get back to vegetables again.

Then there is always a little extra bile in the gall bladder if special need arise.

Similarly your muscles are always ready to do your bidding. I mean that extra bidding because they have stored up within them a little extra oxygen for just such emergencies.

So no matter how essential or valuable the store house is in your home to the household, the store house in that body of yours is easily more efficient in supplying the needs of that body.

MAY McAVOY AT GRIFFIN'S IN APPEALING STORY

With an Italian vegetable vendor as hero and a little doughnut and coffee waitress as heroine, "Through a Glass Window," which is the feature offering now at Griffin's, has established itself as one of those real human interest stories of the screen, of which there are, alas, too few. There is pathos in the story of the plucky little girl who struggles with the burden of a blind mother and a brother who is a bit too weak. Pathos wonderfully interpreted by May McAvoy who has deservedly won a reputation for her human appeal. "Through a Glass Window" is a Realart picture for Famous Players-Lasky Corporation release and was written by Olga Printzlau.

"The Skipper's Sermon," a highly amusing Fontaine Fox Toonerville Trolley comedy, a two-reel jungle story, Sport Review, and Fox News showing exclusive pictures of the excavation work at the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen and the work of removing priceless objects from Pharaoh's burial chamber are being exhibited in addition to the above feature offering.

RUSSELL SIMPSON NOW AT REGENT IN PUNCHY DRAMA

Prepare for thrills when you buy your ticket for "Shadows of Conscience", at the Regent theatre tonight. Thrills of pathos, thrills of comedy, thrills of suspense and every other kind ever suggested by the cinema are packed into this pioneer story of America. That's because the men are real, the women are beautiful, the situations are tense and the action is swift. Russell Simpson holds up the role of hero valiantly and everyone that works with him gives a performance that you will not forget.

Ann Little, William Thomson and Al. Wilson are appearing on the same program in the opening chapter of Universal's new continued play, "The Eagle's Talons." A Vitagraph comedy will also be exhibited.

WALLACE REID IN NEW COMEDY

It is nothing new for a screen star to be seen in a picture as the inmate of a jail, but a new twist is given the jail episode in "Thirty Days," Wallace Reid's new Paramount picture which is the feature attraction at Griffin's tomorrow to Saturday, with a matinee Saturday.

In this case the star, as John Cadwalader Floyd, goes to jail to escape being murdered. The picture is sweepingly humorous and brings an avalanche of laughs. There is a splendid supporting cast headed by Wanda Hawley and Kala Pasha. "The Penny Reward", a two-reel Campbell comedy, a Kinogram, and William Desmond in the third chapter of "The Phantom Fortune" serial have been arranged for presentation on the same program.

HOOT GIBSON HERE TOMORROW IN HAIR RAISING WESTERN STORY

Hoot Gibson again demonstrates that he is in reality a "high falutin' rootin' tootin' shootin' son-of-gun" from western anywhere in the Universal photoplay of Texas cattleland, "Dead Game," his latest starring vehicle which comes to the Regent theatre for three days, starting tomorrow, with a matinee daily. Gibson exhibits a roping ability and horsemanship that would do credit to any cow hand of the old school. It is an action picture from the first long shot to the final fade-out with plenty of gripping drama and a pretty love story. Hoot is supported by a trio of players well known in western plays. They are Laura LaPlante, Robert McKim and William Steele.

A good Cameo Comedy, Pathe News, and "Pleasure Before Business," a two-reel Century comedy, will be exhibited on the same program.

Woman First Entrant in St. Louis Air Race

St. Louis, July 25 (United Press)—Officials of the St. Louis Air Board, in charge of the International Air Races of 1923, to be held at St. Louis Field, October 1, 2 and 3, have announced receipt of the first of more than 250 entries expected in the eight events. It was from Mrs. Bertha Dale Horchem, of Ransom, Kansas, who, in a trial at St. Louis Field, July 5 reached an altitude of 16,300 feet, being the highest flight any woman has ever made."

Mrs. Horchem will compete in the "On to St. Louis Race," for which the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce is offering a valuable trophy in addition to the cash prize of $1,000.

In this race, which is open to civilians only, planes will be flown from all sections of the country to St. Louis, points being awarded on the speed, the distance, and the number of passengers carried, as well as the horsepower of the engines.

Last year, in the similar "On to Detroit Race" more than 100 pilots from all over the United States competed in this specific race. The winner of this Detroit Race was Walter H. Beach of Wichita, Kansas, who took first prize in a Laird "Swallow." It is a coincidence that Mrs. Horchem flies this same type of airplane.

Ask More Federal Cash for Education in Home Economics

By A. L. BRADFORD

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington July 25 (United Press)—More federal funds for home economics education in American public schools will be demanded of the next Congress by organizations representing 9,000,000 women, Harry L. Fidler, vice-chairman of the Federal Board of Vocational Education stated to the United Press.

A vigorous campaign will be waged for increased appropriations for the proposed by the Women's Joint Congressional Committee, in which 14 of the leading women's civic bodies of the country are represented.

Congress last session turned down a similar appeal but, according to eh women, did so only because it failed to appreciate the wide scope of such education and the popular demand for it.

RAPID GROWTH OF WORK

In no other division of the Federal Board of Vocational Education has growth been as rapid as in home economics, according to Fidler. A recent report of the board shows that the present enrollment in the federally-aided home economics schools is 117,738. This represents an increase of almost 300 per cent in the five-year period since the organization of the work. In 1918, the enrollment was only 39,739. At the same time, the number of schools has increased from 323 to 1,262. The number of home economics teachers has increased from 1,087 to 3,777. Last year the total expenditure for home economics from combined federal, state and local funds aggregated $3,100,000.

The home economics schools have already so far outstripped the federal appropriation. Fidler said, that last year the states found it necessary to appropriate nearly eight dollars for every federal dollar received for such education. Under the Federal Act, the states are obliged to expend only one dollar to every Federal dollar received.

Fidler estimates that the present home economics schools are equipped to give training to only one woman out of every 200,000. An increase in the federal appropriation would enable the states to so expend their schools as to reach a vast field of girls and women who are now debarred from school advantages.

FRENCH PREPARING FOR OLYMPIC GAMES

By PAUL R. MALLON, United Press Staff Correspondent.

New York, July 25.—More than 5,000 athletes from all nations of the globe are going to the French Olympics and arrangements have been made to seat 100,000 spectators.

Fifty-four nations will take part in 136 events.

It may be the greatest athletic carnival in the history of the world, thousands of times greater than when the Greeks used to climb over the mountain passes in the spring, taking weeks, to attend the first games on Mount Olympus.

A tennis stadium is being built, a village is being constructed to house the athletes, a nautical stadium for the rowing and sailing races on the Seine, a range for long distance shooting, an arena for boxing, fencing and wrestling, and fields and stands for the rugby football matches.

The track is the largest in the world and made of red scoria, formed in two parallel lines 130 metres long.

Work of the French committee has been greatly hampered by lack of money. The chamber of deputies cut the appropriation in half, but still the work has gone one and it is very probable that all the projects will be successfully completed.

The International Amateur Federation congress began discussions of the situation Monday in Paris. Col. A. G. Miles, member of the American executive committee, is in attendance.

The University of Pennsylvania has offered Franklin Field, Philadelphia, for the try-outs, which are expected to begin about the first of June next year. The Harvard stadium also has been offered.

The American team will sail on June 18.

A short two years ago Goldie Rapp came up to the Giants from the American Association in a blaze of glory. His fame was heralded far and near. He went to the training camp down south and they said he was the best that had been seen in years.

But when the season started he flivved. McGraw clung to him a little while, hoping that the mysterious failure might be turned into the success everyone thought was in store for the third sacker.

Later, however, McGraw let him go to the Phillies.

Now the Phillies have let him go back to the minors and another dream is dispelled and another career shattered.

Lacrosse—the summer football game—is gaining popularity in the north. The increased interest is reflected in the recent matches of Syracuse University in England, where they trimmed all comers until they found the strain of an over heavy schedule too great.

The Canadian-Indian game cannot be played effectively more than once a week, the experts say.

The oldest golf club in America will soon celebrate its thirty-fifth birthday, next November. This shows how young the game is in this country and emphasizes the remarkable strides which have been made in its development in this compartive brief period.

The club is the St. Andrews, a few miles above Yonkers, where a six-hole course was opened away back in 1897.

John Reid, sometimes called the Father of Golf in America, was one of the chief movers in the original enterprise. The first club house was a table which sat at the first team and the furnishings comprised two tubs of ice water. Later on a tent was used.

Nowadays no club is satisfied unless it has spacious lawns, a big veranda, luxurious furnishings and a couple of professionals hanging around. It is safe to say that the initiation fee was less then than it is now.

Babe Dye May Quit Hockey for Diamond

Buffalo, N.Y., July 25.—St. Patrick's may lose Babe Dye from the 1923 to 1924 hockey line-up if the Babe annexes a major league contract to play baseball. It looks now as if he would connect with the New York Yankees. Twice in the past the Buffalo Club has held up Babe's contract till the very end of the hockey season due to chances of injury. Major league teams would probably not consent to Babe's winter pastime if it involved possible injury. Babe intimates now that if that is the case, he may abandon hockey if offered a good baseball contract. "I don't think I would allow hockey to stand in the way of a major league career," said Babe yesterday.

BILL HUGHES COACH OF QUEEN'S TEAM

Kingston, Ont., July 25.—It has been officially announced by the athletic board of control of Queen's University that W. P. Hughes, of Montreal, had been appointed coach of Queen's football teams for this year. Mr. Hughes, who has already accepted the position, coached Queen's senior team the latter part of last season after George Awrey, the then athletic director, was unable to attend to his duties on account of illness.

Sport "Rubayat" of Guide Scribe

The Central League is very much like a drowning man grasping at a straw in order to save himself. Lindsay is struggling along trying to finish out the schedule. Their latest proposition is to cancel their game scheduled at home and play a double header away on Civic Holiday. The gate receipts in the last two games at Lindsay were less than thirteen dollars, hardly enough to pay the umpire. Peterboro, it is reported, is a thousand dollars behind and Cobourg, of course, is worse off than Peterboro. Kingston is reported as having a hard struggle financially and Belleville has not increased last year's bank balance. The Oshawa press is kicking about the small attendance at their ball games and Leaside's gate receipts have not been sufficient to meet expenses. It has been a bad year for the Central Leaguers, all due to a desire to keep up with the Joneses. A proposal has been made to organize the Lakeshore league again for next year to include, Cobourg, Port Hope, Bowmanville and Oshawa with a residence rule of May 15th. The city and town combination as at present will never be a success and the break is bound to come. Let Peterboro, Belleville and Kingston link up with some other city and form a district of their own. —Port Hope Guide.

BOWLING AT KINGSTON

Kingston, July 25.—The Eastern Canada lawn bowling tournament, under the auspices of Queen's Lawn Bowling Club, will be held from July 30 to August 1. The prizes offered are of the best, and, as rinks from all over Ontario are to be present, the tournament is expected to be a great success. All entries must be sent to H. W. Newman, chairman of the Tournament Committee, by Saturday, July 28. The following rinks are already registered: Six from Ottawa, Napanee, Belleville, Deseronto, Picton, Peterboro, Oshawa, Cobourg, Bowmanville, Brockville, Prescott, Chesterville, Toronto and Newboro.

OFF FOR CHAUMONT.

Kingston yachtmen are already on their way over to Chaumont to attend the regatta there which is to be held on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week.

Chiryia, which represent Kingston in the George Cup races, left at noon to-day with the owner, Mr. Arthur Dalton, as skipper, and with Prof. Jemmett, Halloway Waddell and Doug. Carruthers as crew.

About the same time Scrapper also left with Principal Bruce Taylor in charge and his three daughters as crew.

Still later in the afternoon, Mr. W. Casey's handsome yawl, Sylvia, also left with Mr. Casey in charge and a crew consisting of Henry Hill, Hubert Ryan and Hansord Hora.

It is Mr. Casey's intention to stay only a day or two at Chaumont, and then sail around the lake to Toronto, to reach there in time to participate in the long distance cruising race from Toronto to Belleville, where a regatta will be held next week.

Do You Know?

Q. What rules prevailed at the Dempsey-Gibbons fight? H.J.

A. There seemed to be no rules. Before the fight it was agreed that "straight rules," allowing the fighters to hit with one hand free and requiring them to protect themselves at all times would prevail. Dempsey did everything but use a ring-post.

Q. Did Jess Willard quit in his fight with Firpo? S.M.B.

A. Many thought Willard did quit and others were of the opinion that he couldn't get off his knees. There was some opinion also that he knew he was gone and that he didn't want to subject himself to unnecessary punishment. Officially, Willard was knocked out by a punch; unofficially, it is all a matter of opinion.

Q. From the showing he made in the early season, did the amputation of a finger last winter throw William T. Tilden off his game? J.K.

A. Apparently it did not. Tilden lost a match or two, but he has done that before in his career.

CANNIFTON ROAD LOSES TO CUBS, 8-7

A very exciting game took place at the rear of the G. T. R. Station between the Station Cubs and the Canifton Road team. About sixty people attended the game. After a hard fought battle the Cubs proved to be the winners by the tune of 8—7.

CONACHER TO STAY WITH ARGONAUTS

Noted Athlete Denies Report That He Will Go to Pittsburg.

Ottawa, July 24.—"Contrary to reports appearing in the press, I have no present intention of leaving Canada, and I expect to be in the line-up with the Toronto Argonauts this fall". Such was the statement made here by Lionel Conacher, athletic superman and premier football performer of the dominion.

"I don't know how the report got abroad," said Mr. Conacher, "that I was going to Pittsburg. I did give the matter some consideration at one time, but I operate a fairly prosperous cleaning and pressing business in Toronto and at present I have no intention of giving it up," he added.

Referring to the Argos' prospects in the fall, Conacher said, according to the interview: "We are practically certain to have all of last year's players with us again, including Joe Breen and Munro. The Tigers of Hamilton, I understand, will likewise have a very strong side so it should be a great season.

JELLY DAYS

• • •

From the kitchens down the streets comes forth the delicious odor of cooking fruit, where busy women are preserving for the use of their family in winter, the cherries, currants, raspberries and hosts of other fruit which are now in season. Most women, although of course protesting to husbands, and neighbors, that the work is terrible in the heat, and they vow each year they will preserve fruit no more, in their heart really enjoy preserving. The great piles of luscious fruit, the steaming kettles, the careful cooking which is needed, the long rows of brilliantly colored bottles of fruit, all neatly labelled and ready to go away on the shelves for use when the snows and winds of winter make them doubly attractive, are fascinating to women who enjoy doing things well.

IN MAKING JELLIES.

Jellies are made of cooked fruit juice and sugar, and proportions are in nearly every case equal. If your jelly doesn't "jell" you may lay the fact down to the use of too ripe fruit, or too little sugar.

Jelly glasses should be well washed and placed in a kettle of cold water. Put this on the stove and heat the water gradually to boiling point. On the proper preparation of your jelly jars lies a large amount of responsibility as to the finished success. Too many women grow careless in the preparing of the jars and bottles for preserved fruit. To cover the jars, use circles of note paper and fasten down the side with mucilage. Some prefer to cover jellies with melted parafine. However, either is satisfactory.

TO MAKE A JELLY BAG

Are you one of those women who when the time comes to strain the jelly, struggle with a square piece of cloth and try to get the liquid to stay in while you keep the four corners from slipping. You will save a great deal of labor and trouble if you make a proper jelly bag as follows: Fold two opposite corners of a piece of cotton or cheesecloth to strain your jelly through and sew the side up in the shape of a cornucopia, sewing the pointed ends together. Bind the top with tape, and attach two heavy loops by which the bag may be hung. Then when you are ready to strain the jelly it is only necessary to hang the bag on a stout stick, and pour the fruit liquid in.

CURRANT JELLY

In making currant jelly, pick over the fruit but do not remove the stems. Mash a few of them in the bottom of the preserving kettle, with a wooden potato masher if you have one. If not, a wooden spoon will do as well. Continue until all the berries are mashed. Cook until the fruit looks white, then strain through a coarse strainer and allow juice to drop onto cheesecloth or jelly bag and through to the container. Measure the liquid. Bring to a boiling point and add an equal measure of sugar; boil ten minutes, skim and pour into glasses. It is a good idea to stand the glasses in a sunny window for twenty-four hours. Cover and keep in a cool, dry place.

Currants and raspberries make a delicious combination for jelly, making it in the same way as above. Grape jelly is made in the same way, the grapes being picked over, washed and stems removed before cooking. Heat to boiling point, mash and boil thirty minutes. Then follow the currant recipe above. Green grape jelly is a delicious delicacy and is made with grapes which are just beginning to turn, in the same manner as above.

STRAWBERRY COMPOTE WITH CUSTARD

• • •

1 quart strawberries
1 cup rich milk
Sugar sirup
¼ cup sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla

Dissolve a cup of sugar in one-half cup of water, boil two or three minutes, then drop in the strawberries that have been hulled and carefully picked over. Simmer in the sirup until transparent, then remove to compote dish and put in a cool place and let stand a while.

Place the milk in a double boiler, beat up the eggs, add the sugar and corn-starch and stir well blended. Add gradually in the hot milk, stirring constantly. Season with salt and vanilla. Cool and pour over strawberries. Top with whipped cream and garnish with whole candied berries.

SPANISH CREAM

½ cupful Borden's St. Charles Milk diluted 1 3-4 cupfuls water.
1-8 teaspoonful salt
½ cupful sugar
3 eggs
1½ tablespoonfuls granulated gelatine
1 tablespoonful vanilla

Let the gelatine stand in the milk for five minutes, then scald the mixture. Combine the egg-yokes, sugar and salt with the scalded milk, and cook until slightly thickened like a custard. Then stir the mixture into the egg whites beaten stiff; add the vanilla. Turn into individual moulds which have been dipped in cold water and when set unmold and serve with light cream, or any preserved fruit.

Bolivar, South America's Washington

One hundred and forty years ago Simon Bolivar, son of a wealthy influential man in South America, was born in Venezuela. Aristocratic and well educated—it seemed he had everything to be desired, but Bolivar was not satisfied. There was one thing that he wanted more than anything else; for this he gave up wealth and position. He wanted to free South America from the tyranny of Spanish rule.

Boilvar loved an ideal and lived for it. His ideal was "liberty". The money he inherited from his father he gave to his cause and to prove his sincerity, he freed all his slaves.

The task Bolivar set for himself was almost hopeless. Spain was strong and South America was not organized. Bolivar had to create a nation and bring the people together. Three times he carried forward his plans for rebellion but each time he failed—Spain was too strong.

In 1824 his fourth rebellion was successful and he founded the Grand Republic composed of Colombia, Panama, Venezuela, Ecuador, and Sucre. They made him President of Colombia, but the $30,000 salary he received, he gave half to the widows and orphans of the soldiers who had fought with him.

PATRICIA BRENT SPINSTER

ANONYMOUS

Everyone was extremely critical of everyone else. Mr. Bolton said things about Mrs. Barnes and her clothes that made Miss Sikkum blush, particularly about the nose, where, with her, emotion always first manifested itself. Mr. Sefton had permanently returned to the "women and children first" phase and, as two cigarettes were missing from his case, he was convinced that he had acquitted himself with that air of reckless bravado and endeared a man to women. He talked pityingly and tolerantly of obvious terror.

Mr. Bolton saw in the adventure material for jokes for months to come. He laboured at the subject with such misguided industry that Patricia felt she almost hated him. Some of his allusions, particularly to the state of sartorial indecision in which the maids had sought cover, were "not quite nice," as Mrs. Mosscrop-Smythe expressed it to Mrs. Hamilton, who returned from a visit the day following.

At breakfast everyone had talked, and in consequence everyone who worked was late for work; the general opinion being, what was the use of a raid unless you could be late for work; Punctuality on such occasions being regarded as the waste of an opportunity, and a direct rebuke to Providence who had placed it there.

Patricia did not take part in the general babel, beyond pointing out, when Gustave was coming under discussion, that it was he who had gone to the top of the house to call her. She looked meaningly at Mr. Bolton and Sefton, who had the grace to appear a little ashamed of themselves.

When Patricia returned in the evening, she found Lady Tanagra awaiting her in the lounge, literally bombarded with different accounts of what had happened—all narrated in the best "eye-witness" manner of the alarmist press. Following the precept of Charles Lamb, Galvin House had apparently striven to correct the bad impression made through lateness in beginning work by leaving early.

It was obvious that Lady Tanagra had made herself extremely popular. Everyone was striving to gain her ear for his or her story of personal experiences.

"Ah, here you are!" cried Lady Tanagra as Patricia entered. "I hear you behaved like a heroine last night."

Mrs. Craske-Morton nodded her head with conviction.

'Mrs. Morton was the real heroine,' said Patricia. "She was splendid!'

Mrs. Craske-Morton flushed. To be praised before so distinguished a caller was almost embarrasing, especially as no one had felt it necessary to comment upon her share in the evening's excitement.

"Come up with me while I take off my things," said Patricia, as she moved towards the door. She saw that any private talk between herself and Lady Tanagra would be impossible in the lounge with Galvin House in its present state of ferment.

In Patricia's room Lady Tanagra subsided into a chair with a sigh. "I feel as if I were a celebrity arriving at New York," she laughed.

"They're rather excited," smiled Patricia, "but then we live such a humdrum life here—the expression is Mrs. Mosscrop-Smythe's—and much should be forgiven them. A book could be written on the boarding-house mind, I think. It moves in a vicious circle. If someone would only break out and give the poor dears something to talk about."

"Didn't you do that?" equired Lady Tanagra silly.

Patricia smiled wearily. "I take second place now to the raid. Think of living here for the next few weeks. They will think raid, read raid, talk raid and dream raid." She shuddered. "Thank heavens I'm off to-morrow."

"Off to-morrow?" Lady Tanagra raised her eyes in interrogation.

"Yes, to Eastbourne for a fortnight's holiday as provided for in the arrangement existing between one Patricia Brent and Arthur Bonsor, Esquire, M.P. It's part of the wages of the sin of secretaryship." Patricia sighed.

"I hope you'll enjoy——"

"Please don't be conventional," interrupted Patricia. "I shall not enjoy it in the least. Within twenty-four hours I shall long to be back again. I shall get up in the morning and I shall go to bed at night. In between I shall walk a bit, read a bit, get my nose red (thank heavens it doesn't peel) and become bored to extinction. One thing I won't do, that is wear openwork frocks. The sun shall not print cheap insertion kisses upon Patricia Brent."

"You're quite sure that it is a holiday." Lady Tanagra looked up quizzically at Patricia as she stood gazing out of the window.

"A holiday!" repeated Patricia, looking round.

"It sounded just a little depressing," said Lady Tanagra.

"It will be exactly what it sounds," Patricia retorted; "only depressing is not quite the right word, it's too polite. You don't know what it is to be lonely, Tanagra, and live at Galvin House, and try to haul or push a politician into a rising posture. It reminds me of Carlyle on the Dutch." There was a note of fierce protest in her voice. "You have all the things that I want, and I wonder I don't scratch your face and tear your hair out. We are all primitive in our instincts really." Then she laughed. "Well! I had to cry out to someone, and I shall feel better. It's rather a beastly world for some of us, you know; but I suppose I ought to be spanked for being ungrateful."

What To Eat In Hot Weather and When to Eat it

New York, (United Press).—The human body requires food to generate energy in warm weather as well as in colder temperatures, but not so much and of an entirely different character according to a statement issued by the health department, in an effort to relieve suffering from summer heat.

Food chemists can figure accurately the amount of food necessary for persons in all various occupations. But few people know how to supply their bodies with fuel energy in the heated season. Many books on food products, it is suggested, has a table the use of which will help provide such firms for a family in all seasons, especially during the warmer weather.

Persons engaged in hard labor require meat but during the summer it should be used very sparingly. Otherwise indigestion may result.

PLENTY OF WATER.

Water is an essential and from 6 to 8 glasses of liquid should be consumed each day.

Hard foods, the chewing of which stimulates secretions, are a necessary aid to digestion. Raw fruits, fibrous vegetables, nuts, toast and crusts of bread are suggested.

Suggested menus follow:

Breakfast—Loaf bread(eschew hot bread and biscuit during heated season); cereal, package variety preferable (hot oat meal is decidedly heatening-; use butter sparingly; grape fruit, orange juice, cantelope or other seasonable fruits, or stewed fruits such as rhubarb, prunes, apricots or baked apple.

THE NOON DINNER

Dinner, the health department suggests, should be the mid-day meal, if possible, but if inconvenient during the week, should be made the order of Sundays and holidays. Meat during the summer should be served only at this meal. Stewed chicken, minced chicken on toast, veal chops or croquettes, and broiled mutton, hot or cold, are preferable meats. Vegetables should consist of buttered beets, mashed potatoes, string beans, rice, tomatoes, peas or spinach. Salads of romaine, lettuce, dandelions or fruits are the best.

Desserts of shortcake, currant jelly with bread, sponge cake, lady fingers, sweet crackers, ice cream or ice custards are suggested for the end of a perfect hot weather meal.

Supper may consist of creamed macaroni on toast, baked potato or stewed tomatoes and rice or iced tea or coffee or a glass of milk. Stewed fruits, iced jelly or ice cream is suggested for dessert.

HOUSE-CLEANING DAYS FOR OFFICIAL WASHINGTON

Washington, July 24.—(United Press). It's house-cleaning time in official Washington—not politically but physically.

Things do get dirty in Washington. Perhaps it is because of the dirty linen, so frequently publicly washed at the capitol. Now that the President, Congress, Supreme Court and pretty much everything else in the official line is on vacation, junkets or something of the kind, a general renovation is underway.

The executive offices of the White House are without floors. The old wooden floor has ben taken up and workmen are preparing to lay a tile flooring. The walls are to be scraped and painted, while the glass dome in the large reception room is to be replaced with a new and brighter one. There is little renovating going on in the White House proper, as this was done while President Harding was in Florida last winter.

The capitol has been turned into a workshop for painters, carpenters, and electricians. The Senate chamber and lobby are being "done over," including replacements in the glass ceiling. The members of the house will be in a better position to see the light when Congress meets in December. Painters are changing the color scheme of the friezes in the panels of the house hall. Heretofore they were dark and reflected little light. They will be changed to a light blue.

PLUSH FOR CORK

It is planned to remove the cork flooring in the house and replace it with a dark green plush carpet. Although more serviceable than a carpet, Congressmen have objected to the cork because of its untidy appearance and because is does not muffle the sound of members and employees walking.

The ceiling of the house chamber, made up of shields of the forty-eight states, is to washed and several new shields will replace cracked and broken ones.

The house restaurant has been equipped with a new marble floor to replace the old and worn tile flooring.

Workmen have just completed installating of an iron base for the ceiling over the portico at the main entrance to the Capitol. The wooden base which has been the main support of the ceiling since the Capitol was erected, had deteriorated and Congress ordered the iron supports installed.

Every room in the Senate and House office buildings have been renovated and painted.

It is sad to relate that for years the Capitol has been infested with rats and bugs, as well as with lobbyists. The latter will be allowed to stay, but the rats and bugs must go. Pied-pipers and bug chasers have been hired.

Also, additional fire precautions are being installed, including a four-inch water main extending from the base 166 feet up to the dome.

Altogether, the next Congress session will have a clean place in which to work, regardless of the members.

WOMEN OF THREE GENERATIONS

The daughter, mother, and grandmother have all proved from personal experience the remarkable strengthening and tonic properties of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in overcoming the ills of women. It was first made from roots and herbs in 1873 by Lydia E. Pinkham of Lynn, Mass., for her neighbors and friends. Its fame has spread from shore to shore until it is now looked upon by women everywhere as the standard remedy for woman's ills. It has been proved that it benefits 98 out of every 100 women who try it, which is a marvelous record for any remedy to hold.

Spiritist Faker Was Exposed

Some months ago Mr. Malcolm Bird, associate editor of the Scientific American, went to England with Sir Conan Doyle and attended several spiritist seances there. He appeared to be deeply impressed, and his credulity was undoubtedly a grief to many of his friends. Then the Scientific American offered prizes of $5,000 for the production of definite spiritist phenomena, and recently in New York George Valentine of Wilkesbarre, said to be one of the best mediums in the United States, essayed to win the capital prize. Now it appears that Mr. Bird was not quite so credulous as his public utterances indicated; that he may have been "spoofing" his old friend Conan Doyle; that all the time he was laying subtle traps for the mediums. One of these traps was sprung upon Valentine with disastrous effects. He was revealed as a fake. This is not a matter of much importance, because nearly all mediums are revealed as frauds, with on appreciable effect upon believers in spiritism. What is interesting is the methods employed by the investigators. They really showed subtlety and they cannot be impugned.

To use police slang, it would appear that Valentine and his friend or assistance, Richard Worrell, of Wilkesbarre, were "framed." Grievously were they deceived. They were trussed like chickens for the spit, but never suspected it until they were being digested by the guests. The seance was given in a New York office in daytime, but in pitch darkness. A dozen men and one or more women formed the sitters. Their hands, we presume, were joined in order that the psychic current might flow freely. The chairs were tied together. In front of Valentine's chair was a strip of wood nailed to the floor, the idea being to prevent the chair being moved, and there were also chalk marks to show if the other chairs moved. These precautions looked so childish that at the second seance, Valentine seemed suspicious that something deeper lay behind them, and both he and Worrell were nervous.

However, the seance got under way after the searchers after truth had sat in a sweltering darkness for an hour. The trumpets sounded, sitters were tapped, presumbaly by spirit hands. The usual Indian guides gave their cheerful but unimportant messages. Vague lights were seen hither and yon, and Mr. Worrell commented in unearthly tones about the phenomena. Houdini was given a particularly violent whack on the head. Presently Worrell identified one of the visiting spirits as being that of his son Bobbie, who had died at the age of six. Then another voice seemed to emerge from the blackness directly in front of Mr. Bird, and greeted him with "Hello Malcolm." Mr. Bird asked for the spirit's name, and something unintelligible followed. Then Mr. Bird asked if the name was "Harry," to which the voice agreed. At this point two or three in circle began to chuckle and then to laugh outright. Mr. Worrell rebuked them, He said: "Friends, I must really ask that you treat this seriously. After all this is a religion to many persons, whether you believe in it or not, and it deserves respect. This is the most sacred of all things, the communion with the spirits, more sacred than the communion of the church. Please, do not laugh." The medium also enjoined them to refrain from unseemly giggles.

However, the atmosphere was evidently inhospitable for the entertainment of other spirits and shortly afterwards concluded, and Mr. Valentine announced that they could not hold another seance the next day as they had to go to Wilkesbarre. How he was being tested has leaked out since. The laughter, when Mr. Bird suggested the name "Harry" to the spirit was caused because he had told a couple of his friends before he entered the seance that this was the name he would suggest, and naturally when the medium "bit" they could not repress their amusement. Immediately the medium had left the room, one trap into which he had fallen was revealed. He had said that once or twice in the performance he had been lifted in his chair from the floor. But if the chair had left the floor it would certainly have torn the strip of paper which had been glued to the floor and to the legs of his chair. The chief point was that while he was supposed not to have left his chair he had done so several times, as hidden electrical apparatus revealed.

In an adjoining room sat a couple of stenographers connected by headpieces with a dictograph in the seance chamber, and equipped with a stop watch. Under the chair of the medium was an electrical device, connected with the adjoining room. The weight of the chair alone was not enough to close the switch which sent light into the adjoining room; when the medium's body was in it the other room remained dark. When the medium's body was out of it the adjoining room became illuminated. The man with the stop watch timed his absence. The stenographers recorded the fact that it was only when the chair was empty that people were touched by spirit hands. One of them checked the number of times the light went on and off and compared the length of the absence of the medium from the chair with the duration of the "phenomena" They tallied exactly. The case is closed.

"POISON PEN" LETTERS

NEW YORK GREATLY STIRRED BY ITS LATEST SCANDAL

George Maxwell, a Wealthy Music Publisher and Prominent Clubman, Has Been Charged With Circulating Defamatory Documents—It Looks Like the Actions of an Insane Person.

New York's current scandal is the indictment of George Maxwell, wealthy music publisher and clubman, on a charge of having sent numerous defamatory letters to several men and women high in social life of the city. Maxwell, who is said to be a member of a noble Scottish family, was in England when the indictment was found, but is now believed to be returning voluntarily to stand trial. All the letters were written on a typewriter and only two of them had any handwriting, about half a dozen words. It is conceded that the handwriting is too scant for the purpose of identifying the writer, and therefore the hope of the prosecution is based on locating the typewriter. In any event the identity of an individual typewriter can be more clearly established than the identity of any letter writer. Under the microscope many little differences will be found even between two brand new typewriters of the same make. Moreover these differences never vary, and are to be established by the eyesight of the ordinary man rather than by the theories of handwriting experts.

There is, of course, this difference thatno man writeswith another man's hand, while he might use another's typewriter. If handwriting is identified, the author is identified. If typewriting is identified, the proof is still lacking that the owner of the machine did the writing. Half a dozen people, a dozen, even, might have access to the machine. In the Maxwell case, a certain suspected typewriter has vanished. Suspicion was fastened on Maxwell because his name appeared in all the letters and because, if the charges were true nobody would know of the offences committed except the writer and the other persons implicated. It is considered impossible that anyone could have followed Maxwell and have gained the alleged information by spying on him. It is equally incredible that he would have been so mad as to confide in anyone. Therefore, unless the letters were to be dismissed as false on their face value Maxwell was clearly indicated as the only author. But if the letters were to be tossed aside as obviously false, who would have an object in writing them, unless a lunatic? Neither Maxwell nor the women whose names were coupled with his could be injured.

There is also the fact that some four years ago he was accused of having written an anonymous letter, but the case was not taken to the Grand Jury. The fact that some of the letters were mailed when he was known to be out of town, and that he also received some of the letters are not considered as important, for it is said that invariably the author of such letters mails some to himself. In fact, Mr. Maxwell appears to be in an unpleasant position, though his friends assert their confidence in him. It is the opinion of experts that authors of "poison pen" letters are either insane when they write or are certain to become insane later on. Some of them have a malignant hatred of the persons whose reputations they assail, but they are as a rule not hard to detect. Those who write their letters by wholesale to and about people with whom they are not acquainted are the real defectives. There have been many outbreaks of the kind, one of the most celebrated of recent years being in Tulle. For three years various people were bombarded with letters signed "Tiger's Eyes," the flood beginning just before the war ended. One suicide, the driving insane of four persons and the disruption of several homes were the results of these letters.

Suspicion fell on a young woman named Laval, who had been disappointed in love and was supposed to be jealous of the happiness of others. Public opinion was so fiercely directed against her that her mother committed suicide and the girl attempted to end her own life. She was convicted, but many people remained unconvinced of her guilt and she received several offers of marriage. Unsolved is the "poison pen" outburst in the seaside resort of Littlehampton, England, where the plague continued for two years. One woman was arrested twice, convicted and given a prison sentence, but as the letters continued while she was in jail, it was obvious that she was not guilty. Scotland Yard continues to work on the case, but remains baffled.

In 1911 there was an outbreak of the same kind in Middletown, N.Y. Those who received the letters were young married women or women about to be married. Passaic and Elizabeth, N.J., and Ypsilanti, Mich., were also flooded with "poison pen" letters, homes being broken up as the result of the malignance of some persons unknown. It seems likely that the epidemics are not the work of one person. When it becomes known that the "poison pen" has begun work, other anonymous slanderers are inspired to take up the odious task. That people of this type are extremely imitative iswell understood by alienists; so we suggest that those who receive anonymous letters—in the near or distant future—should pay no attention to them.

ISLAND MYSTERIES.

City of Pirates Disappeared in the Ocean.

A few weeks ago the wireless station on Easter Island, a thousand miles off the coast of Chile, failed to answer during a period of thirty-six hours, and a report was almost immediately broadcasted that the island had been swallowed up by the sea.

Commenting upon this, a New York paper said, in an editorial article, "Not even the sophistication which has accompanied the spread of science has succeeded in divesting islands of their subtle lure." One might add, "And it never will succeed." As Mr. A. Hyatt Verrill, author of "Islands and Their Mysteries," says, "an island is a body of land surrounded by water, and by romance and mystery."

In "Islands and Their Mysteries," Mr. Hyatt Verrill explains why it is that islands exercise a mysterious charm over the imagination. One of the reasons is because of their instability; their sudden appearances and sudden disappearances, together with their changing formations.

In this book he tells many stories that justify the popular belief in island witchery. There was, for example, the city of Port Royal, Jamaica. In the old pirate days it was noted throughout the world as the foregathering place of the sea robbers and "the richest and wickedest city in the world."

"One Sunday morning," writes Mr. Verrill in his book, "there came a severe earthquake, and most of Port Royal sank beneath the waves, carrying with it scores of the pirates, with all their booty and ill-gotten gains."

Another equally mysterious catastrophe about which Mr. Verrill writes occurred in Nevis. Nevis, he says, "was a favorite watering-place for all the society of Europe and the West Indies, but the chief town, Charlestown, shared the same fate as Port Royal, the entire city sinking suddenly under the sea; and to-day, in clear weather, one may row above the submerged town, and, looking through the crystal-like water, may trace the outlines of the streets and buildings of the once populous town."

And then there was the island that vanished immediately after it had been annexed to the British Empire. This island suddenly rose above the sea a few years ago, off the coast of Trinidad, in the British West Indies.

"It was new-born land," says Mr. Verrill, "wet, muddy, and bare, but it was land nevertheless, and apparently stable. The authorities visited it, took possession as a dependency of Trinidad, and set up the British flag; but a few days later this new acquisition to the British Empire disappeared as suddenly as it had appeared."

Three Historic Tortoises.

Tortoises, so far as can be determined, have reached the greatest ages attained by any modern animals. The only creature now alive that looked on Napoleon is a tortoise from Aldabra, and this had been living in St. Helena for an unkown length of time. Even this age is probably exceeded by that of another tortoise that is—or was recently—living in Mauritius, whither it was brought from Sepchelles many years ago. This specimen became a national possession in Maritius in 1810, where it has said to have lived for at least 70 years previously, and a pretty safe estimate is thought to be that it is at least 150 years old. That tortoise has been confounded with another, which was brought to England in 1897, and which now is preserved in the Rothschild Museum at Tring. It was certainly more than one hundred and fifty years old at the time of its death—probably it was neared two hundred years—and it is the largest known tortoise. It is reported to have attained the weight of five hundred and sixty pounds.

$13 A TON FOR ALBERTA COAL

Toronto, July 25.—With the object of introducing Alberta coal in large quantities into Toronto homes, Mr. James Arthur, of Winnipeg, representing the Drumheller and Lethbridge Mines is at present in this city.

The lignite or domestic coal can be transported to Toronto, by arrangements just completed with the railways, at a rate of $7.00 per ton making the probable retail price of the Canadian fuel about $13.00 per ton. It will come from the west in a series of fifty car shipments. The average output of the two mines represented by Mr. Arthur is 1,000 tons a day.

The representative commented on the apathy shown by many of the local coal dealers in connection with the western product. It is pos sible that they are handicapped by agreements with large American mining companies and are unable to purchase this low priced product of the west, which is now being used by 80 per cent. of the householders of Winnipeg. Every effort has been made regarding transportation difficulties with the result that this fuel is now available for the people of Toronto.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

July 24, 1923.

Editor of The Intelligencer,

Dear Sir,—

Will you kindly furnish me with the required information:

What is the matter with our City that we cannot get one single manufacturing concern of any importance to locate here.

It seems too bad that all our boys are compelled to go elsewhere to find employment. We have lots of land for factory sites, vacant buildings suitable for industries. Railway and water communication second to none in Canada, electric power, good streets, a good market in fact everything that should attract manufacturers and in the face of above facts the manufacturing concerns seem to give Belleville the go bye.

It does seem funny to me (and to lots of other people) that with our Chamber of Commerce, a well-paid Industrial Commissioner, we have not been more successful in our endeavors along that line.

Is it not high time for us to bestir ourselves and see if we cannot do something to establish a rejuvenated Belleville who will carry dinner pails.

Yours truly,

B. A. SANFORD.

English Giant Sea-Plane

London, July 26 (United Press).—Great Britian's first giant sea-plane, claimed to be the biggest in the world, has undergone its trial flights successfully at the Isle of Grain.

It is designed to carry a crew of seven at a speed of 110 miles an hour. It has five machine-gun emplacements.

Four Rolls-Royce Condor engines, developing a total of 2,600 horse-power, furnish the motive power. The wing span is 140 feet and the length over all 67 feet. It weighs 15 tons and has been four years under construction.

Wheels are fitted to the under-carriage to permit the plane to land upon or rise from any aerodrome or beach.

The plane is called Fairey Brittania N 4. Its hull is flexible and shock-absorbing. It has a range of 1,500 miles, and is expected to be able to remain at sea for several days at a time, carrying out the long-distance patrol work in co-operation with the cruiser squadron for which it was designed.

A fifteen-year-old girl of Detroit has written these slogans for autoists:

"Watch your 'step on it'."

"Taking the other fellow's dust is better than 'to dust returneth'."

"Six feet have awaited many a driver who wouldn't give an inch."

Toronto, July 25.—Sneak thieves continue to work in the district. Yesterday morning the driver for the Farmers' Dairy Co., left 20 lbs. of butter in the doorway, at 2353 Young Street, about 2 o'clock and, on his return, it was gone. A down town contractor also reported the loss of a kit of tools from a building in course of erection.

United Press Despatch, Exclusive To The Intelligencer.

Toronto, July 26.—Canadian Bankers Association offers ten thousand dollars reward for the capture of bandits who held up bank messengers Tuesday.

Toronto, July 26.—Is it possible that the six convicts who escaped from the Eastern Penitentiary, Philadelphia, Pa., July 14, and are still at large after a fortnight of intensive searching, are the same men who conducted the daring raid on local bank messengers yesterday? The description of two of the escaped convicts agrees almost in small details with the description given Inspector Wallace by eye-witnesses of yesterday's affray, and some of the men escaped from the American institution were convicted for a crime similar to that perpetrated yesterday.

Toronto, July 26.—Investigation by police authorities has revealed the fact that a band of men, closely resembling the bandits who on Tuesday held up a train of bank messengers in Toronto and secured sums variously estimated at from $82,000 to $132,000, were seen at Waterdown, five miles northwest of Hamilton, on the afternoon of the robbery.

Descriptions of two of the men, who visited a Waterdown garage are reported to tally closely with those of two of the bandits. Men in charge of the garage said the two men brought a Chevrolet car to the garage on a second visit and purchased two gallons of gasoline.

It was reported that six men, believed to be the bandit gang, were encamped from Friday of last week until Monday at Bronte near Oakville, removing their camp to the flats outside of Oakville on Monday. They disappeared Monday night or Tuesday morning.

The weapon discarded by the bandits in flight has been identified as a Browning model. It was manufactured in Belgium and its sale is barred in Canada except in the city of Montreal.

Telegraph and telephone messages pour into police headquarters from all parts of Ontario to the effect that the notorious maroon-colored, high-powered Studebaker Six car in which the robbers travelled out of Toronto bearing men answering the meagre descriptions of some of the gang broadcasted a few hours after the shooting, had been seen. The police placed little faith in these messages, because of the belief that the big car had been discarded and another pressed into service to make the final getaway after reaching a point of temporary safety. The police expect to learn at any hour of the finding of the Studebaker car in a ditch in some side road, probably within a short distance of Toronto. Police officials say that this would be the logical thing for the criminals to do when the opportunity presented itself.

The condition of Walter S. Duck, James W. Harris and David Campbell, wounded bank messengers, shows slight improvement, it was stated by attending physicians to-day.

Reports from St. Michael's Hospital stated that Mr. Campbell, whose condition was regarded as the most critical of the three messengers, was that he was doing as well as could be expected. The bullet, which went through his left lung and lodged in the shoulder, has been removed.

The marooned-colored Studebaker car used by the robbers belonged to an official of the National Iron Works, in the Ashbridge's Bay district, and was stolen from in front of 71 King Street west on Saturday last. So far the detectives have been unable to locate the gasoline station where the robbers obtained a plentiful supply of gasoline before embarking upon their murderous exploit.

One police officer said it was a curious thing that the robbers chose Tuesday morning for the hold-up, Tuesday, according to the police officer, is the biggest "turnover" day in the week at the clearing house on Wellington street, and he wondered how the bandits got to know this bit of inside information.

While the local police have been unable to trace with any certainty the movement of the gang since their car was seen headed toward the western city limits, the belief that the robbers doubled back and swung easterly via lightly travelled roads in the outskirts of the city appears to be gaining ground with some of the detectives and county constables, who have been scouring the city and suburbs unceasingly. Inspector Wallace says that nothing has been left undone to round up the gang. It is thought probable that the members of the gang separated after their desperate drive through the crowded streets to reach a point of safety.

Chief of Police Dickson said he was in communication with the police of several large Canadian and American cities with a view to obtaining photographs of men who had been held for similar crimes on the chance that they might be the same men who figured in the hold-up of the Toronto bank messengers. He said it may be a slim thread, but it was worth following up, because some of the bank messengers and others who witnessed the robbery might be able to say whether they were the men. The chief admitted that with a high-powered car at their disposal the robbers would experience little difficulty making a get-away out of the city, adding 'we' have got to figure now on the high-powered car used by desperadoes to avoid arrest."

Bank Messenger Smith of the Bank of Nova Scotia, affirms the belief of the police that there were at last ten-

Local Bankers on Lookout for Loot of Toronto Hold-Up

Local bank managers when interviewed this morning stated that the bandits who perpetrated the daring hold-up in Toronto on Tuesday morning will probably not assume the risk of attempting to pass any stolen checks. Should they try to convert the checks into cash there is a strong chance of them being apprehended through numbers and stamps. One banker stated that the bandits will in all probability destroy the checks thus eliminating any chance of their being caught in this manner. Local bankers, are however, on the look-out for checks which had been through the Toronto clearing house, stolen by the robbers.

The robbery was probably planned for many days ahead and the bandits took every precaution against being beaten at their own game, bankers said.

LEMIEUX NOT TO PRESIDE AGAIN

New Judge Expected to Try Second Delorme Case

Montreal Que., July 26.—Previous to his departure for his summer home in Cacouna Chief Justice Sir Francois Lemieux announced officially that he would decline to preside over the second Delorme trial wherever it might be held.

"I have done my share in that case and have helped the authorities as much as I could," said his Lordship. "This will terminate my connection with the affair, and I certainly will not accept the task again Other judges will be called upon to deal with the case."

So sure was Abbe Delorme of the verdict of acquittal being returned at his trial, arrangements had been completed by which he was to come to this city, accompanied by Dr. Brochu, superintendent of St. Michael Asylum, and was to retire for some time at a private hospital at Stromuald, near Quebec, to rest.

He was to remain here until the middle of August, when plans had been arranged for petition to the civil courts to obtain the repeal of the interdiction pronounced against him. This part of the programme at least will be carried out, it was stated, and a move will be made before the civil courts in Montreal within a few weeks by Alleyn Tachereau, K.C., who has now returned to Quebec. It is unlikely that the defence will again face trial without having at their disposal the financial resources of the Delorme estate.

LEAVES WITH HORSE, BUGGY AND GIRL

Renfrew Vicinity Aroused Over Act of Enterprising Young Man

Lindsay, July 26.—Renfrew and vicinity is aroused in the hunt for Roy Langford, about 25 years of age, who, obtaining by false pretenses, a horse and buggy from Robert McGowan, liveryman, absconded with Viola Tucker, a 15-year-old daughter of Mrs. George Tucker, Renfrew. Warrants for horsestealing and abduction are in the hands of Chief Constable McKee and Provincial Inspector Sylvester, but all search has so far been fruitless.

The pair had an advantage in the delay of the livery owner in reporting the loss, and it was only after hearing of the abduction that his suspicion was aroused. It is believed that the girl was a willing associate, which is confirmed by William Greeson, at whose farm, a short distance from Haley's station, they remained over night, and who says the girl did not seem perturbed. They were then, it is thought, heading for the Quebec side of the Ottawa River.

Employment in Montreal, Ottawa, Winnipeg and Vancouver increased, while in Toronto and Hamilton curtailment was indicated.

BRITISH HELP FOR CANADA'S HARVEST

Montreal, July 26.—The first gun in the Imperial Conference to be held in London, England, in September, is considered to have been fired by the announcement of the Canadian transportation companies of special rates and arrangements for the bringing over from the British Isles of extra farm labor for the bumper crop in the west soon about to be harvested. The White Star, Cunard, Dominion and Anchor-Donaldson and other steamship lines working jointly with the railways, have offered a rate of £12 to any male farm laborer from any part of the United Kingdom to Winnipeg, Manitoba, and from there half a cent a mile to any other station. Sailing dates are from August 1 to August 11 inclusive. Canada would welcome 10,000 men from the old country—the Canadian National Railways expect to handle a very considerable share of this traffic.

The trains of the Canadian National Railways will meet the incoming harvesters at Quebec and Halifax, where they will disembark, travelling directly to Winnipeg by their lines, this route being shorter by several hours than any other transcontinental line. After working one month, upon presentation of a certificate duly authenticated by the farmer in question, any worker is entitled to a return fare of $20.00 to the Canadian sea-port, and 25% reduction on the ocean liner. This return offer will be available until November 30, and if conditions require it, this date will be extended another month.

Circulars are being distributed in Great Britain to all steamship agents, while large poster announcements contain the terms of the transportation companies' generous offer. Indications already point to a tremendous degree of interest on all sides and newspaper comment is most favorable.

BAPTIST PICNIC DRAWS CROWDS

Twelve O'clock Point and Presqu'ile Visited by Excursionists

SPORTS PROGRAM

Moonlight Sail on Bay is Feature of Evening Entertainment

The picnic held yesterday under the auspices of the Sunday School of the Baptist Church of this city was a great success in every respect, the cash receipts being $325. At 9 o'clock in the morning and at 1.30 in the afternoon the steamer Brockville made trips to Twelve O'clock Point and on both occasions carried goodly loads of human freight. It was an ideal day for such an outing.

During the afternoon a sail through the Murray Canal to Presqu'isle was most enjoyable. The picnic committee composed of Dr. B. F. Butler, Conductor Berry and Mr. A. Blackburn, manager of the Stroud Company's store was most energetic and left nothing undone to make the affair pleasing and successful. A candy booth was in charge of Dr. B. F. Butler who is an ideal salesman, judging from the fact that the proceeds from the same were $50.

Prizes were awarded to those who sold the greatest number of tickets and competition was keen. Mildred Lloyd sold 127 and secured a prize of $5. Bert Orr sold 46 for which he received $3 and Edna Blackburn sold [illegible] receiving $2.

After all had been supplied with the good things provided for the noon luncheon a programme of sports was carried out on the grounds at the Point and the winners of the various events were as follows:

Beginners Running Race—Girls— Marjorie Doolittle, 1; May Hobson, 2; Madeline Harvey, 3.

TORONTO GETS ROTARY MEET

Toronto, July 26.—Toronto is to get the great international Rotary convention to be held in June, 1924.

Official announcement of this fact was not to be had yesterday, but the presence in the city of Earl Benedict and Ralph Cummings, international officers, who came on from Chicago Tuesday, indicates that Toronto has won out in the contest with Cleveland and Mexico City for the honor of playing host to the Rotarian thousands.

Cleveland particularly made a great pull for the convention, and it is said that in point of accommodation it could eclipse Toronto, but this town had it on the Ohio city in other ways.

Asked as to the decision of the Rotary directors, the Toronto Publicity Bureau stated that it had no official tidings from Chicago, but was hopeful that the convention would come here.

It will mean an influx of over 7,000 delegates and the wives and families and friends who come with them.

REPORT OF CROP CONDITIONS

Toronto, July 23.—The following is a summary of returns made by the Agricultural Representatives to the Ontario Department of Agriculture:

Fall wheat is turning out better in the cutting than was expected both in yield and quality, although not up to the average.

The hay crop is a good one, taking the province over, and eastern Ontario is at last realizing some big yields, after many years of light cuttings.

New hay sold in Brant last week for $12 a ton, but only $8 a ton was being offered in Glengarry.

Pastures are failing considerable in many counties, although some representatives report the flow of milk as being good for the time of year.

Bruce: I have never seen such fine fields of alsike as I have looked upon in this section in the Bruce peninsula.

Alsike has also done splendidly in South Simcoe, and much of it is being kept for seed.

Halton: Many farmers are cutting alfalfa for seed and some are threshing it in the field. The yield and quality is good.

Dundas: There is a notable increase in the quantity of sweet clover that is being made into ensilage this season.

Sweet clover cut for hay in the barn in Manitoulin is said to be much better in quality than that of last year.

Corn has made great growth all over the province during the past week or two, and may yet be a fairly satisfactory crop.

Waterloo: Many farmers are going to reduce their acreage of fall wheat this year, owing to the bad attacks of Hessian by during the last two or three years. There is hardly a field but is more or less affected with fly this year.

Wentworth: Cherries are being sold at 25 cents per six-quart basket and 80 cents for 11-quart baskets. Farmers report that this crop is being marketed at a loss.

Norfolk predicts a good apple crop this year, should favorable weather continue. So far this fruit has been remarkably free from scab.

Numerous reports are coming in from Victoria of damage to apple trees by the Twig Blight, or Fire Blight. This disease is quite serious this year.

Fort William: The strawberry crop in Dorion township was good, and about 500 crates are being marketed from there this summer. The crop is being disposed of in Fort William, Port Arthur, Schreiber and Hornpayne.

Prince Edward: Peas for the canning factories are giving a fair yield; blight developed later than usual, and aphids have seriously affected some fields; so the yield, on the average, is not as high as expected. Balance of the crop will be harvested this week.

Lennox and Addington: Canning peas were mostly all harvested last week, and are quoted at $40 per ton for shelled peas delivered to the factory. New potatoes are being marketed by farmers in this county at Kingston. They have been receiving $3.25 per bushel. One farmer stated that his yield was 120 busheds per acre. The broiler trade is good, and they are paying 40 cents per pound for those weighing from two to two and a half pounds.

Young pigs are bringing from $8 to $10 a pair in Frontenac.

Grey: The lamb market has broken very badly. Farmers have been sending them freely and till the present receiving remunerative prices. Many have become disappointed over the serious decline in hog prices. Some are even saying they are not going to continue in the hog business longer.

Carleton: A few good horses, 1,500 pounds and over, are being bought for bush work at from $175 to $200 each.

In Timiskaming horses are selling at from $300 to $500 a pair, depending on age and quality.

Prescott and Russell: Large quantities of honey are actually put on the local market at prices from 16 to 2[illegible] cents a pound. There are large quantities of dandelion honey, which was especially abundant this year, and which the bee-keepers find hard to dispose of.

Farmers are still complaining of the shortage of labor and co-operation in field work is more common than for years, women and old men helping out in many instances.

DONAHEY DEMANDS DRYNESS

Columbus, O., July 26.—(United Press)—The burden of prohibition enforcement in Ohio has been strapped on the backs of local officials.

The state government, through the policy initiated by Governor Viv Donahey, is "the club behind the door." It swings effectually against local officials who wink at the law.

Already mayors of thirteen Ohio cities have felt the point of the governor's prod, and four county sheriffs have been threatened with removal from office under charges of lax law enforcement.

Reports to the capitol from communities where investigations have been made and whose officials have received Donahey's now proverbial "thirty days to clean up or get out of office," indicate the method has brought results.

Early in his administration, Governor Donahey startled the state by calling upon his executive carpet Mayor Herbert Vogt of Massillon. Vogt's administration had been criticized to the governor for alleged winking at liquor laws and Donahey proceeded to investigate. The probe resulted in Vogt's removal from office.

Since then Donahey's office has become the scene almost daily of a conference between the governor and some "citizens' committee" complaining of insufficient vigilence on the part of its city administration.

Three other mayors, under fire for similar offenses, have had to come before the governor to show cause why they should not be removed from office under charges of lax law enforcement. Donahey has given them the benefit of the doubt, however, and now mayors of twelve Ohio cities, including New Philadelphia, the governor's home town, are serving on probation.

WALLY REID'S NEW COMEDY VEHICLE LAUGHABLE

Appearing as a young man about own, and a flirtatious philanthropist, Wallace Reid has a part that fits him to perfection in "Thirty Days", a melodramatic farce comedy, picturized by Paramount from the play by A. E. Thomas and Clayton Hamilton.

He has the type of story his many Belleville admirers love to see him in—a smile and laugh producer, and "Thirty Days" which is being exhibited at Griffin's tonight to Saturday, with a matinee Saturday, is one of his best. In this picture, Wally has the role of a wealthy young man, whose time is spent in charitable work, mild flirtations and buzzing around his fiance—that is, until the "Society of the Thousand Eyes" swears a deadly vendetta against him and he goes to jail to avoid being murdered. The circumstances leading up to this, his efforts to get into jail, his experiences there, his attempts to stay in after his time is up, topped by a visit from his arch enemy at his home later, make a highly amusing entertainment.

An interesting Kinogram titled "Higher Life", "Penny Reward", an amusing Campbell comedy, and William Desmond in the third chapter of Universal's new continued play of big business, "The Phantom Fortune" are announced for exhibition on the same program.

HOOT GIBSON AT REGENT IN NEW WESTERN ROMANCE

The atmosphere of the old west has never been the Indian-killing, ranch-house revel, fighting atmosphere of the dime novels in the picture in which Hoot Gibson has starred.

Gibson has always played in stories in which his character could have been transferred to another atmosphere than that of the west if the author had so desired. In other words, his roles have been human and real, not merely "dashing heroes" of the west.

"Dead Game" which is the feature attraction at the Regent Theatre, tonight to Saturday, matinee daily, is the latest Universal production starring Gibson. It was written and directed by Edward Sedgwick. "Dead Game" has in its cast besides Gibson, such well-known players as Robert McKim, "villain de luxe," Laura Laplante of "Around the World in 18 Days," William Steele, Harry Carter and William Welsh. McKim is particularly famous as a "heavy" of western pictures and Miss Laplante is already well known and popular with Belleville screen fans.

"Dead Game" is a story of a man who knew a good deal about fighting, riding and being a he-man in general, but nothing at all about women. To him a woman was the "big problem."

A Cameo comedy, Pathe News, and "Pleasure Before Business", a good Century comedy, have been arranged for exhibition on the same program.

That "prospects for increased immigration into Canada are excellent" was one of the most important statements made by E. W. Beatty, K.C., upon his return from an extended tour of England and European capitals. The president of the Canadian Pacific Railway believes Canada is progressing in the matter of immigration, but intensified efforts are essential, he considers, to offset erroneous impressions abroad that Canada does not require new settlers.

A record run between Winnipeg and Quebec was recently made by a special Canadian Pacific train when passengers from the Orient were, through delay caused by landslide, in danger of missing their connection with the C.P.S.S. "Empress of Scotland" at the eastern port. The train covered the 1,579 miles in a little over 36 hours, whereas the schedule time for trains between these two cities is 53 hours. The passengers had crossed the Pacific on the C.P.S.S. "Empress of Russia" and were taking advantage of the 21 day Orient-to-Europe service of the Company.

The United States has invested in Canada $2,500,000,000, according to the Bankers' Trust Company of New York, which has just completed a survey of Canadian industry and the amount of United States capital invested. Of the total sum invested, $1,200,000,000 is in bonds, and the remainder in farms, mortgages, small businesses, industrial enterprises, banking and private loans. It is computed that more than 200 branch factories were opened in Canada by United States concerns in 1919, and a great number in 1920 and 1921, and that late in 1922 the number of these came to 700.

A collie dog is reported to have saved the life of a London West girl, while accompanying the child to a nearby store. On the way she stopped on the C. P. R. railroad tracks in the path of a westbound flier. Realising the child's peril, the dog threw himself against her with sufficient impact to knock her clear of danger, and was cut to pieces by the train before he could regain safety.

The girl's mother tried to discourage the dog from going when the daughter started for the store, but he went, and was the means of saving the child's life, and died heroically as a result.

BRITAIN HAS 1,180,000 IDLE MEN; WORRIED OVER WINTER OUTLOOK

Statesmen Blame France and the Ruhr Mixup, but That Doesn't Buy Food or Lower Taxes — Thousands Leaving the Island

By P. M. SARL
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

London, July 26.—(United Press).—Despite the customary summer easing of the industrial situation, unemployment is still a serious problem in England, and responsible leaders of British statecraft and industry are worried, as the coming fall and winter will almost certainly aggravate the situation.

Sporadic strikes and labor troubles cannot be blamed for the state of affairs, as this year such disturbances have been fewer than usual.

Yet, on a recent count, there were 1,180,000 persons officially registered as unemployed and in receipt of the government's "dole."

Politicians, labor men, and industrialists do not hesitate to place the blame largely on the French occupation of the Ruhr district, which, apart from its paralyzing effect on German industry has seriously affected European trade and industry. Britain, which in pre-war days, had the largest share of German's trade, has been affected more than most countries, and in nearly every branch of industry the repercussion of France's Ruhr policy is seen.

Premier Baldwin, himself a business man as well as a statesman, was one of the first to see this, and he has been working might and main to ease the situation, although naturally hampered by the usages of diplomacy and the necessity of preserving European political balance.

BLAMES TROUBLE ON FRANCE

Some of the leaders of British industry have been very outspoken on the subject, a notable example being Mr. W. Clare Lees, the Manchester cotton operator. Lees, in a speech before the Manchester Chamber of Commerce, while scoring Germany's truculence, evasions and procrastination on the subject of erparations, and voicing Britain's sympathy towards France, roundly denounced the Ruhr adventure, and pointed out that the whole of Europe and, in fact, the world, was suffering from this Franco-German "blood feud."

He told France that she was treading the road to destruction. Not only German destruction, but French destruction, British destruction and European destruction.

"You cannot pursue a policy of destruction and reconstruction at one and the same time," he said. And he insisted that the continued ferment in which the world was kept was due to fear, racial animosities, duplicity of heart and purpose.

Dealing with the effect of the Franco-German impasse on British industry, he instanced his own trade—cotton—which was suffering severely through lack of German markets, and holding up of the intricate system of exchange on which that trade depends for its existence. He pointed out that as a result of the American section of the cotton trade was suffering more from lack of employment than any other trade in the country.

CAUSES EMIGRATION

While the statesmen and politicians are endeavoring to settle the Ruhr dead lock, some relief has been obtained through emigration, many thousands having emigrated to Canada, Australia, and other countries, but it is pointed out these are the most desirable type of artisans, agriculturalists and general workers, who are not to be confused with hardened recipients of the unemployment "dole."

Large sums have been spent on relief works, but with the continual drain on the countrys taxable resources, temporary palliatives canne be increased and, in fact, must be steadily reduced.

Thus, while the unemployment problem is more or less "routine" and fails to attract much attention during the summer, it is clear that it will become a very serious one with the aproach of winter.

Labor declares that absolute bedrock has been reached as regards wage scales, and the taxpayer is equally insistent that further subsidies or relief schemes are impossible.

Hence the importance attached to the Ruhr deadlock by British politicians, and the insistence of industrialists and workers on a speedy rehabilitation of European trade and industry.

It Has Done Me Worlds Of Good Says Toronto Woman

Dreco prove a true friend to Mrs. Oliver, of 695 King street west, Toronto, who cannot praise it too highly

Another Toronto resident has found real merit in Dreco as a corrective for ailments arising from a poorly working digestive system. Here is her story:—

"I have suffered for eighteen months from inflammatory rheumatism. My muscles and joints ached so badly that I could not bend to get on my knees. Nothing could be so painful as to suffer as I did. My liver was also out of order and I often had bilious attacks, Dizzy spells and spots floating before my eyes. My blood was impure and I always felt tired and weak I tried almost everything, but my case seemed to be getting worse, until at last I heard about Dreco and decided to give it a trial.

"Have only used one bottle, but the results really are wonderful. My aches and pains from rheumatism have gone and I have no more dizzy spells. My bowels are regular and I sleep through the night without disturbing. Have no more tired feeling and am so much stronger that my work is now a pleasure. I'd gladly tell any one about Dreco, as I think that all who suffer should know this medicine. It has done me worlds of good."

Mrs. Oliver's statement is a message of hope to all who are troubled with symptoms caused by faulty digestion Dreco is scientifically prepared from nature's herbs, roots, bark and leaves and acts on the vital organs, toning and regulating them in a way that speedily benefits the whole body. It contains no mercury, potash or habit forming drugs, and is the most reliable spring tonic known.

Canada Faces the Future With Confidence

CANADIANS have always been noted for courage, optimism and faith in their country.

Canada was not built up by pessimists, nor will Canada continue to develop if her people allow themselves to become croakers and grouchers. Canada is fundamentally an agricultural country. We have a soil and climate which can grow the world's finest agricultural products.

Canadian farmers who have earned the capital invested in their farms out of profits in farming are numbered in thousands. These successful farmers have paid off their mortgages, stocked their barns and stables, bought their machinery, made a good living, and brought up their families. It meant hard work, but today they are independent.

Money in Mixed Farming

In recent years, at different points on the prairies, oats fed to steers have brought from 70c to $1.07 as against the Fort William price of 42c per bushel, while barley used for the same purpose has brought as high as 97c as against Fort William price of 57c per bushel. Farmers marketing their coarse grains in this way lower marketing cost, have a sure market and make money on their grain, while at the same time they market their roughage, otherwise often wasted.

The cattle embargo is now off. Steers are worth more money and certain to make good money for the Canadian farmer from now on.

Money in Pigs

The Dominion Experimental Farms have proved by actual test that there is a profit in feeding pigs. Last year at the Central Farm, Ottawa, after paying for feed, labor, interest and depreciation, the net profit per pig was still $4.63.

Profits from Sheep

As money-makers, sheep are hard to beat. In every Province from Prince Edward Island to British Columbia are found many flocks returning generous profits to their owners.

We Must Cut Production Costs

Canada is meeting with the keenest competition in the marketing of her products. To hold her own and regain her place on the world's market, she must reduce cost of production.

The only way to do this is to increase production per acre, per cow or per other unit.

But improved quality, also, is essential to meet market demands.

The quantity and the quality of the products and the cost of production in competitive countries is beyond our control.

Prices of agricultural products are regulated by world supply and demand.

Hence, decreasing production will not help the Canadian farmer.

Poultry Pays

Poultry makes money for those who adopt modern methods, whether East or West. Little Prince Edward Island markets co-operatively in carlots, shipping annually upwards of one million dozen eggs. The British Columbia Co-operative Poultry Men's Exchange markets in the same way, thus saving ruinous glut in their local market.

Grow Seed

Canada's Northern grown seed possesses extra vitality. There is a large market for it to the south. Canada exports seed potatoes, but imports other seeds. She has the opportunity to grow seed for herself and for export.

The Future

Ten years from now the pessimists of today will have been forgotten. Britain has removed the embargo against our cattle. She wants our beef and bacon, our cheese, butter, eggs and apples, our wheat and flour. As the population of the United States increases, she will compete less and less against us on the British market. Eventually, she will herself be an importer of many other food stuffs besides wheat from this country.

Canada has the men, the climate, the land, the stock and the potential markets necessary for agricultural success. Let us farm with all the industry and science we can muster. Let's get to work and pay off our debts. Canada is moving forward with confidence in its future. Let us keep going ahead.

AN "ACCIDENT"

A coroner's jury has returned a verdict of accidental death in the case of Mrs. Jane Weech, of New Toronto, who was instantly killed when the car in which she was riding collided with a telephone pole on the highway, four miles west of Brighton on the afternoon of July 18.

Obviously, the evidence introduced did not warrant the return of any other verdict. Although the tragedy was faithfully re-constructed for the benefit of the jury, there was absolutely no indication that the driver or any other person was culpable.

There is no doubt that the verdict was an absolutely just one, reached after thorough investigation and profound consideration.

Yet the term, accident, covers a multitude of motor traffic "sins." Perhaps a more comprehensive and thorough educational campaign, dealing with the perils of motor traffic would eliminate a large percentage of such "accidents."

It is obvious that since the advent of motor-driven vehicles highway traffic conditions have become revolutionized. Accidents occur with a frequency that would have caused consternation in the pre-motor car period.

Full co-operation and keen appreciation of the existent danger should serve to alleviate the situation.

THE BANDIT MENACE

The daring holdup of a train of Toronto bank messengers and guards, carrying several hundred thousand dollars in currency and negotiable paper, with the subsequent serious wounding of three members of the train personnel, was naturally at once a shock and a severe blow to banking circles.

The monetary loss was undoubtedly fully covered by insurance carried by the banks involved, with the result that the loss must be met by the insurance companies. To banking men, however, the fact that the deed was accomplished in bright day light on a busy thoroughfare of a metropolitan city must stand out as the most significantly serious feature of the affair. The ever-present menace represented by the activities of thugs and gunmen was vividly illustrated in Tuesday's robbery.

Toronto has been comparatively free from the depredations of the more ambitious type of auto bandits and Tuesday's affair may mean that Toronto has been embraced in the field of activities recognized by the auto bandits, who during the past few years have preyed so persistently upon large American cities.

That the coup was carefully planned, there is no doubt, and it may be logically assumed that the bandits as carefully planned their "get-away."

In New York, Chicago and other metropolitan centers the full import of the bandit menace has at last been recognized and heavily armed guards accompany all valuable shipments through the streets. Armoured cars are used and the guards carry high-powered rifles, at all times, maintaining positions in which they can shoot quickly. This practice seems unusual and even unnecessary to casual observers, but incidents such as the one which occurred in Toronto on Tuesday prove its feasibility.

Profound study of social conditions may reveal the immediate causes for the rise of the auto bandits, but in the mean time the problem can not be left solely to psychiatrists. Practical preventative measures of protection and relentless warfare on banditry are the only means by which the menace can be mitigated.

By The Side Of The Road

The enterprising young man, who is charged with stealing a horse and buggy and girl, all in one fell swoop, has great possibilities. Some day he may rival John D. Rockefeller or Henry Ford—as a financier we mean.

PRESS OPINIONS

IN FACE OF ODDS.
(Flint Journal)

We do our best work under difficulties, the same as an army puts up its best fight when trapped in a corner. No songs ever were written, no orations delivered about an army that had easy picking. Heroic deeds—really big accomplishments—are staged by the warriors who win in the face of desperate odds, such as the handful of men holding the mountain pass or trench until help arrives. A good thing to keep in mind, when our obstacles seem beyond our powers to handle them. It's the working of a natural law.

GOLD MEDAL FOR COURAGE.
(Los Angeles Times)

Since 1904, when Andrew Carnegie created and endowed the Hero Fund Commission, over 18,000 bronze and silver medals have been awarded to individuals who risked their lives to save other lives.

Only eighteen persons, however, have received the Gold Medal for Courage in its highest form. The honor roll includes nine fishermen, three firemen, one school teacher, one plumber, one storekeeper, one laborer, one farmer and one architect—all privates in the firing line of life.

AN IMMORAL LAW.
(Montreal Le Canada)

The vote of the province of Manitoba proves once again that prohibition is not the intelligent solution of the drink problem and that it is better to return to a sensible law which gives satisfaction to everybody, while respecting each man's liberty.

Prohibition will never give satisfaction; it will always create difficulties which are unnecessary, considering that an adequate solution to the problem can be found; it gives rise to every scandal and abuse.

It is the most immoral law which has ever been promulgated; it trains people to despise the law and is a factor of moral decay and physical ruin.

ARISTOCRAT OR MONGREL.
(Baltimore Sun)

The dog appears to be the most intimate link between man and the kingdom of dumb creatures around him. And we grow to love this four-footed friend, whether he is well-bred or ill-bred, whether aristocrat or mongrel. Somehow he gets hold of his owner's heart, somehow he makes himself a member of the family in which he lives. Exactly how or why it might be difficult to explain, except on one theory—and that is the irresistible power of love. A dog loves with all his heart and mind and strength, and who can resist him?

THOSE DEAR OLD LADIES
(Philadelphia Public Ledger)

It is a picturesque competition that lately took place in Turin, where old ladies in the sunny eighties and nineties competed for a "beauty" prize. One award went to a demoiselle of ninety-six, and the first prize was bestowed on a comparative youngster of eighty-two. The judges recognized the fact that beauty is more than skin deep and that "the glory born of goodness never dies."

Beauty, within the wide scope of the definition, included health and general spryness, long service in the household, the patriotism of women who gave useful sons to the State, the ability to dance, or sew, or cook. The winner was a "tailoress" with eleven sons.

Mere facial prettiness is all very well in its way, but what the crowd recognized, as well as the judges, was the essential goodness of these useful, hard-working, kindly, patient souls who had never sought any laurels or vaunted themselves as superior to the rest of their sex.

Devise New Methods of Saving Life

By John O'Brien, United Press Staff Correspondent.

Paris, July 26 (United Press).—Instead of blood transfusion to save the lives of persons in danger of death from anaemia, Dr. Henri Durville presented to the congress of experimental psychology her a new method by which the vitality of a healthy person is transmitted to the invalid. He cited many cases in which patients given up by specialists have been practically brought back to life.

Dr. Durville gave details of two cases in which he was especially interested, because the persons affected were members of his own family. One was his nephew, aged seven, stricken with double pneumonia. Two specialists, members of the academy of medicine, informed Dr. Durville that they saw no hope of saving the boy's life. Dr. Durville explained to the congress how he succeeded where the specialists failed.

"The method," he said, "is simple. Take a piece of flannel or linen and place it over the affected organ. Take a deep breath and apply the lips, the mouth well open, over the cloth. Expel the breath with the greatest energy with the will to make it enter into the patient's body. When all the air in the lungs has been exhaled draw another deep breath and repeat the operation. This must be kept up at intervals of five minutes for several hours. It is fatiguing but effective."

Dr. Durville declared he continued this operation every five minutes for twelve hours a day for three days in the case of his nephew, saving the child's life.

The other patient was the doctor's wife who was suffering from blood poisoning after childbirth. Two specialists also had abandoned hope. The doctor and his brother took turns at employing the same method and at the end of ten days the specialists who had said she could not be saved were invited to return and see her in full convalescence.

"It is a miracle," was their verdict, according to Dr. Durville.

Canners Profit; Indians Suffer; President's View

By LAWRENCE MARTIN
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

With President Harding in Alaska—(By mail to the United Press).—The Indians of one Alaskan town have a new conception of the white man's God since President Harding called on them.

It was in Metlakatla, the little fishing settlement which first welcomed the Harding party in Alaska, where Mr. Harding gave the Indians a new picture of the God they learned about in the mission church.

They had been telling him, politely but dramatically, how the fish they depended on for a living had all been taken from them when the canners came in and set traps in the creeks. They spoke manfully, not complainingly, but simply stating their situation, which appeared to puzzle some of their simple minds.

One after another told how the traps set by the canners had obstructed all the streams, and how as a result the canners had a monopoly on the fishing.

"We do not desire these fish to sell. We do not want to make money with them," one Indian told the President. "We just want to eat them. We have eaten them all time. We can't catch them now, since cannery come."

And then the President told them how human progress always brought such conditions in its wake. He said that it was in conformity with "the law of God" that the cannery should come to Metlakatla.

Some of the educated Indians smiled at that. They could not see much of the workings of Divine Law in a condition that robbed a simple, intensely religious, law-abiding people of their living, their bread and butter.

"They are too religious, too good," said one young Indian, a Carlisle Indian school graduate. "What they ought to do is step out and destroy a few of the fish traps, and then the canners would not monopolize all the fishing. But the Indians are so good-natured that never occurs to them. It probably would be the first thing a white man would think of."

"What's the News?"

WHEN Columbus and his caravels returned from the New World, the first question shouted from the shore was, "What's the news?"

That's always the question of paramount importance. Years ago folks asked it of the post rider, the soldier returned from the wars, the man who had been down to the settlements, or the neighbor back from the general store.

To-day, you find the answer in your newspaper. Through the newspapers the news of the world and of the community quickly becomes public knowledge. And remember this—it takes two kinds of news to make a modern paper complete.

The first tells of happenings near and far—of fires, sports, elections, accidents, marriages, deaths, great men, great events.

The second tells of things you eat, wear and use—things you buy, things being sold to your friends and neighbors. This news is advertising.

It's just as important to keep up-to-date on the advertising in this paper as it is to read about what's doing in the world of events.

TRUNKS LOSE TO PETERBORO SCORE OF 4-0 IN RAGGED GAME

Railroaders Guilty of series of costly Errors and Poorly Played Contest.

Three costly errors contributed to Peterboro's win over the Trunks at the Agricultural Park yesterday afternoon by a score of 4-0. The locals put up a very poor brand of ball yesterday although they were out trying hard the whole nine innings. They literally threw the game away by a series of errors. Besides this they failed to hit in the pinches when a safety meant runs. However, we're not to knock the team after their past notable records, but certainly something must be done to bring about a needed change.

Unhappily runners were on the paths when the errors were made. When a team leads in the hitting department by 8-6 and whose pitcher hurls a pretty exhibition with seven strike-outs and yet is beaten 4-0 must come to life and find out the cause of the defeats. Both games with Peterboro have been sorry exhibitions and there is no reason in the wide world why they should have been lost. The errors were really of the inexcusable variety. Stan Hagerman's wild throw and Vern Weir's two bad bingles should both have been converted into easy outs.

We have a wondering suspicion that some of the fans possess the idea that the games are being arranged to insure a play-off between Belleville and Peterboro. Let us say right here, that is certainly not the case. The boys are trying hard but have hit some rather poor luck. Yesterday's game was practically the turning point of the second half unless something unexpected happens. If Kingston can trim the Petes on Saturday and the Trunks trim Cobourg things will then be all to the mustard.

Peterboro too had three errors but these did not come at the critical moment.

The champs had runs on the bags time after time but the odd hit was not forthcoming.

Heckman pitched a beautiful game keeping the eight hits so well scattered that Belleville were unable to obtain even one run. He had nine strike outs and walked but one man. Heckman has now struck the hot weather and is going great guns. How he holds up under the strain of pitching two hard games a week is a mystery, he may crack before the season advances a great deal farther. He has a nice assortment of curves which he mixes with his fast one.

Jake Solomon utilizes every bit of baseball stratagem which he possesses in order to gain a run or two. In the second innings of yesterday's game, he engaged in a long controversy with the umps. over a unique decision. Ansaldo doubled to left field as he rounded second a spectator picked up the ball and threw it to Brownscombe who in turn relayed it to Jack Williams who tagged Ansaldo in his attempt to make hird. Jakie entered a protest immediately but finally the runner was motioned to the bench by the umps. Unquestionably the man should have returned to second on the interference of the spectator.

Vern Weir had a rather bad day at short field. His two bobbles came at the wrong time. Such days, however, are few and far between for our peppery little short-stop. Vern was not entirely responsible for his one error as Jack K. Williams interfered. Hagerman's wild throw to Harry Mills handed the Petes a run in easy fashion. Harry Brownscombe is in the throes of a bad batting slump at the present time. He had three strikeouts in three times at bat. "Browny" got in the game a little late in the season but may come into his own shortly.

Wicky Ross was the big noise with the willow when he came through with three big juicy hits. This boy is smacking the old apple on the nose at a lively clip in the last few games.

The Peterboro team are playing nice ball all around both in the field and at the bat and are apparently determined to cop the second half. The Kingston gang will strike a hard proposition on Saturday.

Hagerman pulled off a pretty catch when he grabbed Wolfe's foul in the seventh with his outstretched mitt.

Swanston made two or three pretty catches when he went after foul flys.

"Shiner" Johnston the Petes keystone guardian scored three of his teams four runs, two of them being the result of walks.

The team certainly are not hitting as they should, especially in the pinches and something must be done to bolster this department.

In the ninth with Hagerman at bat and 'Cap' Smith on first a funny play occurred. Hagerman had three balls and one strike. Heckman threw what Stan thought would be called a ball and he started for first base. "Cap" naturally took his time in going to second. The "ump." however, called it a strike and "Cap" was tagged out as he started for second. Hagerman going back to bat.

The Trunks made a great bid to pull the fat out of the fire in the ninth, but their efforts were all in vain.

Allan Meagher is playing a pretty game in the sacrifice role of late. He has had four sacrifices in two games.

Comolli and Heckman had two safeties apiece while Helson and Ansaldo each got one hit.

In the ninth 'Cap' Smith batted for Brownscombe and Gerow went in for pitcher Williams. The former singled while Walt struck out.

Jack Williams twirled well enough to win an ordinary game, but the bad errors caused his downfall. He struck out seven and passed two and allowbut six hits.

Emerson Barnes officiated behind the plate while Dick Butler was on the bases. Both were top notch.

Close to one thousand people witnessed the Trunks downfall.

TIGER TIRES WIN FIRST LEAGUE GAME

Soft Ball Schedule Opens With Flying Start.

The boys in the soft-ball league got away to a flying start last evening when the Tiger Tire and Grand Trunks engaged in a real contest last night at the High School ground. The Tire boys finally came out on top of a 12—5 score. The railroaders made a great effort to pull out on top in the last inning but the Tigers succeeded in cutting off the rally. Only seven innings are played as darkness settles in rather early. It was a tidy little battle all the way but the Tigers superior hitting ability won the game. It was the first game of playground ball staged in Belleville and the officers of the league have reason to be proud and it is now an established fact that the league will be a success. The fans are missing some real sport if they fail to witness these games on the High School ground every Monday, Wednesday and Friday night. If the games continue to be of the high-class calibre of last evenings encounter the fans should certainly not miss them.

Bill Knott and Jack Smith were in the points for the tire builders and both showed plenty of stuff. Phil. Brockel and Edgecomb as battery for the Trunks were equally good but their support wavered at times. The game was run off in short order.

Some real snappy plays were pulled off by members of both teams. Bill Cook of the Tigers caused a laugh when he tried a hook slide into first.

"Dopey" Adams was of course the star of the game. He made one or two mistakes but that doesn't matter in the least.

Archie Leslie and "Stub" Barrett made a first-class pair of umpires and made a hit with their snappy decisions.

The Trunks are still very much in the running and may cause some fireworks before the schedule is played out.

The boys wish to thank the spectators who kindly contributed to help the league get a start.

Friday night's game will see the Printers and 34th Battery hook up, in what should prove a fast game. Stan Nurse and "Bun" Frechette will officiate.

A meeting of the officers and executive will be held tonight in the Intell. office at 8 o'clock sharp. All teams are requested to see that they are represented.

Batting order:

Tigers—Smith, c; McKenna, 2b; Symons, lf; Cornell, r.f; Platt, 1b; Brooks, 3b; Knott, p; Cook, c.f; Hays s.s;

G. T. R.—Symons, r.f; Adams, s.s; Brockel and Nurse p, Young 1b; Fitchett, 3b; Edgecombe, c; Thompson, i.f; Knott 2b; Jordan, c.f.

Q. Miller Huggins seems to be having no trouble with the New York Yanks this season. Has he more authority than he had in the past? A. F. H.

A. Since Col. Ruppert became sole owner of the Yankees, it is generally believed that Huggins has complete and final control of the team and he has been getting results. Ruppert has always been a great Huggins admirer, but Capt. Huston, former partner in the team, never liked the little manager.

RIOWNA WINS FIRST GEORGE CUP RACE

Watertown, N.Y., July 26.—With favorable conditions the entries in the George Cup contest here got away for the second day's race at Chaumont Bay.

Riowana, of the Toronto Canoe Club, sailed by William G. Reilly, won the first race. She won by four boat lengths from the Nayada, of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club. The third boat was Latonka, of Oswego, Huskie of Watertown, the defender, was fourth, and Chriya of Kingston last. Latonka led the first round, but Nayada overhauled her on the first leg of the second round, held the lead until within a quarter of a mile of the finishing mark when Riowna picked up a shift of the wind, libbed over, blanketed Nayada, and went to the front. Before Nayada could get going again Riowna had obtained a lead of four boat lengths which Nayada failed to reduce. It was the most sensational finish of any race of the George Cup series.

Latonka led the fleet by twenty-five yards over the first round of the course in the first race. Nayada was second, fifty yards in front of Huskie, of Watertown, the cup defender. Riowna was fourth, fifty yards behind Huskie, Chiria Second of Kingston was last, twenty yards back of Riowna. This was at the end of seven and a quarter miles of the fourteen and a half mile course. The wind was twelve miles strong. Latonka was first over the starting line, and was never in danger except at conclusion of the first round.

On the 3 mile spinnaker to the first buoy she beat Riowna by 150 yards. Huskie was third. Chiriya was third and Nayada last. The second leg was a two and half mile thresh to windward. Latonka off by herself held her lead while Nayada, Riowna and Huskie battled each other merrily. In the windward work the R.C.Y.C. challenger Navada showed her qualities and worked up to second place while Huskie was third at the weather mark. There was no change on the mile and a half reach to the home mark, except that the Navada reduced Latonka's 100 yard lead to 25.

"UGLY DUCK"

Miss Collins taught lessons in art
Which "Ugly Duck" wanted to start.
His face was so queer
She couldn't bear him near;
But his loneliness went to her heart.

Miss Collins' pupils in beginning art gathered in her studio for their first lesson. It was easy to see that the handsome little children in their stylish smocks came from the best families of the city. In the outer office Miss Collins' assistant was kept busy giving instructions to maids and chauffeurs.

The door of the studio opened and the first child to arrived without an escort entered. After one quick glance at the ugliest little boy she had ever seen, Miss Collins looked in order that he might not see the look of horror in her eyes.

The little boys and girls in the studio were evidently not so considerate, for when Miss Collins looked back she saw tears in the ugly, narrow eyes, and the sharp little chin was quivering under the crooked nose.

He was smaller than the other children, but he spoke like a little old man. 'May I join your art class?"

Miss Collins hesitated. She could feel the tension in the room. She saw the look of disgust on the faces of her aristocratic little pupils. "I won't be in the class if he is, will you?" she heard some one whisper.

"I can draw," the boy hastened on in a trembling voice. "I thought maybe in a beginners' class——"

Miss Collins still hesitated. What could she do?

"I see. You don't want me, either. Well, I can't blame you." He started out of the door, his queer, crooked little form more bent and dejected looking than ever.

"Here, Ugly Duck," called out the handsome little boy in the class. Miss Collins felt that she wanted to slap him. 'You said you could draw. Draw us a picture."

The other children laughed delightedly at their little friend's cleverness and what they thought would be the ugly boy's embarassment. But, to their astonishment. "Ugly Duck" turned quickly to the blackboard. With a few deft strokes he sketched the boy who had spoken.

Miss Collins gasped. It was almost perfect. In a second the children had forgotten their disgust "Draw me, 'Ugly Duck,' draw me." they clamored. "Let him come, Miss Collins. Let him be in the class."

"I fear he is far too advanced for our class," she smiled; "but if he would help me teach I would give him lessons in advanced art."

PATRICIA BRENT SPINSTER

ANONYMOUS

"Do you know why I've come?" enquired Lady Tanagra, thinking it wise to change the subject.

Patricia shook her head. "A more conceited person might have suggested that it was to see me," she said demurely.

"To apologise for Peter," said Lady Tanagra. "He disobeyed orders and I am very angry with him."

Patricia bushed at the memory of their good-night. For a few seconds she stood silent, looking out of the window.

"I think it was rather sweet of him," she said without looking round.

Lady Tanagra smiled slightly. "Then I may forgive him, you think?" she enquired.

Patricia turned and looked at her. Lady Tanagra met the gaze innocently...

"He wanted to write to you and send some flowers and chocolates; but I absolutely forbade it. We almost had our first quarrel," she added mendaciously.

For the space of a second Patricia hated Lady Tanagra. She would have liked to turn and rend her for interfering in a matter that could not possibly be regarded as any concern of hers. The feeling, however, was only momentary and, when Lady Tanagra rose to go, Patricia was as cordial as ever.

From Galvin House Lady Tanagra drove to the Quadrant.

"Peter" she cried as she entered the room and threw herself into an easy chair, "if ever I again endeavour to divert true love from its normal—"

"How is she?" interrupted Bowen.

"Now you've spoiled it," cried Lady Tanagra, "and it was——"

"Spoiled what?" demanded Bowen.

"My beautiful phrase about true love and its normal channel, and I have been saying it over to myself all the way from Galvin House." She looked reproachfully at her brother.

"How's Patricia?" demanded Bowen eagerly.

"Fair to moderately fair, rain later, I should describe her," replied Lady Tanagra, helping herself to a cigarette which Bowen lighted. "She's going away."

"Good heavens Where?" cried Bowen.

"Eastbourne."

"When?"

"To-morrow."

"Damn."

"My dear Peter," remarked Lady Tanagra lazily, "this primitive profanity ill becomes——"

"Please don't rot me, Tan," he pleaded. "I've had a rotten time lately."

There was helpless and hopeless pain in Bowen's voice that caused Lady Tanagra to spring up from her chair and go over to him.

"Carry on, old boy," she cried softly, as she caressed his coat-sleeve. "It's your only chance. You're going to win."

"I must see her!" blurted out Bowen.

"If you do you'll spoil everything," announced Lady Tanagra with conviction.

"But, last night," began Bowen and paused.

"Last night, I think," said Lady Tanagra, "was a master-stroke. She is touched; it's taken us forward at least a week."

"But look here, Tan," said Bowen gloomily, "you told me to leave it all in your hands and you make me treat her rottenly, then you say——"

"That you know about as much of how to make a woman like Patricia fall in love with you as an ostrich does of geology," said Lady Tanagra calmly.

"But what will she think?" demanded Bowen.

"At present she is thinking that Eastbourne will be a nightmare of loneliness."

"I'll run down and see her," announced Bowen.

"If you do, Peter!" There was a note of warning in Lady Tanagra's voice.

"All right," he conceded gloomily. "I'll give you another week, and then I'll go my own way."

"Peter, if you were smaller and I were bigger I think I should spank you," laughed Lady Tanagra. Then with great seriousness she said, "I want you to marry her, and I'm going the only way to work to make her let you. Do try and trust me, Peter."

Bowen looked down at her with a smile, touched by the look in her eyes. For a moment his arm rested on her shoulders. Then he pushed her towards the door. "Clear out, Tan. I'm not fit for a bear-pit to-night."

The Bowens were never demonstrative with one another.

For half an hour Bowen sat smoking one cigarette after another until he was interrupted by the entrance of Peel, who, after a comprehensive glance round the room, proceeded to administer here and there those deft touches that emphasise a patient and orderly mind. Bowen watched him as he moved about on the balls of his feet.

"Have you ever been to Eastbourne, Peel?" enquired Bowen presently. Just why he asked the question he could not have said.

"Only once, my lord," replied Peel as he replaced the full ash-tray on the table by Bowen with a clean one. There was a note in his voice implying that nothing would ever tempt him to go there again.

"You don't like it?" suggested Bowen.

"I dislike it intensely, my lord," replied Peel as he refolded a copy of The Times.

"Why?"

"Why?"

"It has unpleasant associations, my lord," was the reply.

Bowen smiled. After a moment's silence he continued:

"Been sowing wild oats there?"

"No, my lord, not exactly."

Flowers and Clothes

By HEDDA HOYT

Fashion Editor of the United Press

(Written for the United Press.)

New York, N. Y., July 26 (United Press).—Not long ago an exotic, little Broadway actress told me that her favorite flower was the wallflower. I had forgotten that such a flower existed except as a fictional expression where an unattractive girl is referred to as a "wall flower".

"And why the wallflower?" I asked her.

"There is no other flower with it's coloring—it's lovely shading from golden brown to a deep henna and dull orange. It is not a conspicious flower. In fact, few people know it yet anyone familiar with a grandmother's garden will recall it standing serenely on it's straight stock—overpowered by brilliant-hued hollyhocks, marigolds and zenias, but dignified, in it's inconspiciousness. It's odor is like no other flower—sweet without being sickening. Inconspicious beauty always attracts me more than conspicious beauty. A conspiciously beautiful woman is always conscious of the fact that she is being admired and that spoils her.

Dressing Without Clash

"I feel the same way about clothes. The best dressed women are not conspiciously gowned but wear wonderfully made garments of subdued coloring. One might not notice them in a crowd but they can stand close inspection. Their shoes, gown, hat, make-up, gloves, and accessories all coincide with another. There is no clashing of color. They wear no reeking perfumes, no fadish jewels. Like the wallflower they stand out amid a galaxy of colors because of their inconspiciousness."

"But you do not follow the wallflower rule for dressing!" I suggested.

"Ah no!" she smiled, "I am not really beautiful. Only the truly beautiful woman needs no color back ground. Her own beauty becomes less apparent when surrounded by faddish styles or colors. Clothes, for her should be merely a background—a dull-finished frame for a beautiful picture.

"Mrs. Lydig Hoyt, or Julia Hoyt, as she is known upon the stage, is a perfect type of the beauty I describe. Her clothes are always of subdued cut and coloring. Her tall, slender figure her dark eyes and hair and her classical features are always more attractive when she wears black than if she wore a brilliant color. In fact, she seldom wears anything but black or black and white combinations. Her shoes are never faddish. Her hats are usually simple untrimmed shapes that form a perfect outline for her lovely face. Writers always describe the beauty of Julia Hoyt—never the clothes of Julia Hoyt—thought she is always extremely well dressed.

Depend on Clothes

"Many actresses like myself are referred to as "beauties' when we are not beautiful at all. It is because we are not beautiful that we have to depend upon clothes to make us appear beautiful. I have in mind a certain well known dancer who is renounce for her beauty—all America bobbed their locks because of her and yet if one were to see her at a bathing beach one would be completely disillusioned. It takes conspicious clothes to make her beautiful.

"But she still insist that the real beauty is more attractive when in inconspicious clothing. Her face and form should outshine her garments. Like a perfect diamond she is more beautiful in a simple setting than when surrounded by an overpowering setting."

SOCIETY NEWS FROM NUTTOWN

Miss Hazel Nut and her brother Phil arrived home to-day from a long trip through the west. Their many friends were at the station to meet them and proceeded to the Nut home, where a party was given for the travelers.

One accident marred their home-coming. Miss Nut brought with her a dog given her by her uncle, Mr. Wall Nut. On their arriving home the new dog caught sight of the family cat and proceeded to tree it. Mr. Nutt was severely bruised in a fall from the tree when he tried to rescue it.

(This is the last of a series of twelve nut dolls which you can make of nuts, millinery wire No. 7, and crepe paper. The features are put on the nut with black and red crayon.

The body of the cat is made of a large peanut. Cut a piece of wire about four inches long and run it through the peanut lengthwise, allowing ½ inch to stick through at the other end. Insert this in a haselnut for the head. The longer end of this wire is curved up to form the tail. For the legs and feet, cut two pieces of wire about 2½ inches long and insert through the side of the peanut a short distance from each end. Make loops at the end of the wires ¼ inch long to form the feet.

Cut a strip of black crepe paper ½ inch wide, fasten end to peanut with paste and wind around the nut until covered. Cover legs and tail in the same way with strips ¾ inch wide.

For the ears, cut small triangles of black paper and paste them on as shown in the illustration. If you want your cat to have whiskers, paste or glue a few bristles from an old brush on both sides of the mouth.)

Change Dress, But Don't Change Furniture If You Desire To Keep Friend Hubby Always In Love

By HEDDA HOYT, Fashion Editor of the United Press.

New York, N.Y., July 18.—Men like changes! The only thing a man doesn't want to see changed about his home is the furniture. He could relish his wife in a different dress and a different hair-do every day.

Women must constantly adjust themselves to style changes if they wish to appear perpetually adorable in their husbands' eyes. Many women would rather alter their homes than alter their hems to suit the current fashion. It is far safer to let the old armchair remain in its accustomed place near the hearth than let one's hair-do date back to 1900.

When a man comes home after a hard day's work at the office and finds his wife with her hair combed in some new way, a bargain counter bow refreshing an old gown or some such thing, he takes a new interest in life for he realizes that his wife is still keeping up with things—that she isn't tired of the game.

WOMEN ARE DIFFERENT.

Women differ from men in this respect. A woman would be completely disturbed if her husband appeared at the door minus his mustache. Many a man has returned home from a camping trip with a month's beard on his chin to be met by an irate wife. Women like their men to stay "as is." Any altering from the accustomed route sets them on edge.

It takes a clever woman to appear fascinating in her husbands eyes these days. I have in mind a little middle-aged woman whose one ambition in life is to hold the love of her husband—a peculiar aim in these days of equal rights. This woman is not attractive and many women wonder what her husband sees in her.

But those who see her every day could learn the art of "husband holding", from her. In the first place she realizes that she cant compete with the well groomed women her husband meets in his daily life, because of her age and because of financial restrictions. His stenographer spends more on her clothes than she can.

JUST A LITTLE DIFFERENT

So she tries to be just a little different from the run of women who fill the subways and offices—women who spend a large sum for one dress and wear it until it is completely worn out before buying another. She buys clothes that are on sale because they are not exactly what women are wearing—just a trifle off the mode. Then she alters them so that they will be becoming to her particular style, always adding some little touch that is decidedly new. She is a perpetual remodeler. Her gowns undergo many changes before they are cast aside.

Her husband never knows when he leaves her in the morning what she will be wearing at night. She has a hat for every day in the week—old hats that have been held over from year to year and refreshened with new bows, ribbons and dyes.

I once heard a gentleman say that a wife was a bride as long as she kept fresh ribbons in her garments and I believe there is some sense to his theory. "Men may not chase after street cars after they have caught them" but it keeps a woman running nowadays to hold her husband's attention!

FARRELL LIKES DUNDEE AGAINST CRIQUI

By HENRY L. FARRELL, United Press Sports Editor.

New York, July 26.—The iron jaw of France and the rubber ball of America will meet at the Polo Grounds tonight to decide the featherweight championship of the world.

Eugene Criqui, with the serious face and the crooked jaw, will defend the title that he won some time ago, with a great victory over the venerable Johnny Kilbane, against Johnny Dundee, one of the greatest little fighters that ever swung a glove.

Dundee, one of those Italians who set the poets into reveries about the fighting blood of Caesar, will be at least the sentimental favorite. He has a tremendous following in New York and his partisans are not confined to the Italian colony.

Criqui proved in the Kilbane fight that he is a worthy champion and a great fighter. He had proved it before, in Europe, but Americans are skeptical about the class of fighters on the other side who helped to give the gallant French war hero of Verdun an impressive list of knockouts.

Dundee is, beyond doubt, one of the greatest little fighters that ever lived. He has been nearer to various championships than any other fighter, with the possible exception of Charley White. He has battled them all, and in most of his fights he was forced to give away pounds and pounds of weight to his opponents.

Various opinions have been expressed on the outcome of the fight, but there is one that should carry weight because he has met them both and he knows both.

Johnny Kilbane, former featherweight champion, leans toward Dundee as the victor, and he predicts that Criqui will have the fight of his life on his hands.

"Criqui is a great fighter, Kilbane says. "He keeps coming in all the time and he is always hitting. He hides behind an upraised shoulder, much after the style of Dempsey, and he is hard to reach on the jaw. He is not an extremely clever fighter, but he has a heart that keeps him coming back all the time. I had no trouble outboxing him and I found that he was easy to hit.

"However, when I found openings I missed many of them. I had been out of the ring too long and my timing was way off. I was short with punches that I felt sure were going right to the button, and every time I missed I got a good one back. That French boy can counter.

"Against Dundee, Criqui will have a different fight to carry. Dundee hasn't been out of the ring. He is about the 'tightenest' boxer in the business, and when he leads he will not miss like I did. When Criqui cocks his right hand he will not find Dundee standing in the way of it like he caught me. Dundee has a tricky style, and if he fights his usual fight Criqui may find so many gloves in his face that he cannot set himself for his right-hand punch."

• • •

Dundee isnt a great hitter, or at least he hasnt shown any terrific punch in his more recent fights. However, against a man his own weight, the little Italian may get more results from his punches. Criqui can hit. That is a sure thing.

Against Dundee, the punches of the Frenchman will not be so effective however, and the Italian will be moving when they get over and punches are always lost on a moving target.

Dundee knows more than the Frenchman, because he has been fighting much longer and against opponents of class that Criqui has never had the opportunity to wise himself up on.

Nine fights with Benny Leonard, in all of which he at least held his own, are testimonials of the real class of Dundee, and when he was able to keep away from the sharp shooting right hand of Leonard, he surely ought to be able to stay away from Criqui, who cocks his right-handers back much like Georges Carpentier.

Dundee has been fighting for a long time, and it may be that he has passed his best day, but there is no reason to feel sure of that. He has always been a clean liver and he has never been bothered with the burning-out necessity of making weight. He will have to run off a few pounds for Criqui, but it ought not hurt him.

• • •

Regardless of the winner, it will be a popular victory. While Dundee has thousands of partisan admirers, they are all of the type who respect and admire Criqui for his war record.

The Frenchman was almost overwhelmed by the ovation that fell upon him when he won the title from Kilbane. Of course, Kilbane was not overly popular in New York, but there were tear-dimmed eyes among the shouters, and it was plain to see that the boy who had survived a shell at Verdun and lost half of his jaw went to the hearts of a fight crowd that is always a little chicken-hearted even under its rough-coated veneer.

STILL A CHANCE

The standing of the league at the present time, including yesterday's games, is as follows:

	W.	L.	T.P
Peterboro	5	2
Belleville	4	3
Kingston	4	3
Cobourg	1	6

Peterboro's win from Belleville and Kingston's victory over Cobourg, puts Belleville and Kingston tied on the second rung, each with four wins and three losses. If Kingston win from Peterboro and Belleville defeat Cobourg on Saturday, in this case all three teams will be tied, with five wins and three losses. And this is the way it will shape up from the present outlook. Kingston walloped the Petes last Friday night, and here's hoping they repeat the dose on Saturday.

Belleville had a glorious chance to pile up a nice lead in their three home games in a row but as it happens they only won one of them. It will thus be necessary to win at least two of the three games on the road to remain in the running for the second half.

The Trunks have still five games to play, two at home and three away. They have only to play Peterboro once, that at Riverside park a week from Saturday. If we may judge from past games the Trunks should win on August 4th.

They have lost two very tough games in the past week and must get busy if they are to win the second half. Although they won the first half, we'd feel a whole lot better if they stowed the second away in the old bat bag.

EVANS IN LEAD

Mayfield Country Club, Cleveland, July 26.—Chick Evans, defending champion, won his second round match in the western golf meet when he defeated Ellsworth Augustus, Cleveland, champion, 6 and 5.

How to Rid the Arms of Objectionable Hairs

(Aids to Beauty)

A simplified method is here given for the quick removal of hairy or fuzz growths and rarely is more than one treatment required: Mix a stiff paste with some powdered delatone and water, apply to hairy surface and after 2 or 3 minutes rub off, wash the skin and every hair has vanished. This simple treatment cannot cause injury but care should be exercised to get real delatone.

IMPORTANT POWER DEAL AT OTTAWA

Successful Hydro-Electric Concern Changes Hands

Ottawa, July 26 (Special).—The recent purchase by the investment banking house of Nesbitt, Thomson & Co., Montreal, of the old established business of the Ottawa and Hull Power Company, Limited, attracted special interest in financial and public utility circles on account of the old established nature of the undertaking and the exceptional facilities which it affords for expansion and increased earning power.

The location of the plants is one of the unique features of this enterprise. Both are situated at Chaudierre Falls on the Ottawa River, between the cities of Ottawa and Hull. The company's customers are principally found in those cities, which are widely known as exceptionally good industrial centres. It serves such companies as the City of Ottawa Hydro-Electric Commission, Ottawa Electric Company, City of Hull, Hull Electric Company, Canada Cement, and British American Nickel.

One of the plants has an installed capacity of approximately 13,500 horse power developed under a head of 37 feet. The second is equipped with two units of 9,000 horse power each, while a third unit of the same size is being installed. This makes 27,00 horse power from this plant or 40,000 horse power from the two plants.

Through stock ownership the company controls the Ottawa River Power Company, Limited, which owns and is now developing a water power on the Ottawa River at Bryson, a distance of about 50 miles above the city of Ottawa, which is capable of developing 60,000 horse power. This places the company in a position of owning and controlling plants with a present capacity of 40,000 horse power and an ultimate capacity of 100,000 horse power, all of which are owned in fee simple and are located in the Province of Quebec.

KING'S YACHT ASHORE.

South-on-Sea, England, July 26.—King George's yacht Britainnia ran aground on the Shoeburry sands near the mouth of the Thames at the completion of the first round of a race. She lies high and dry, and her position is regarded as serious. The King was not on board.

DESCRIPTIONS OF

According to one of the eye-witnesses, the ring-leader of the gang was apparently the heaviest man of the party. The description given stamps him as a man about five feet eight or nine inches in height, stout and broad-shouldered, weighing possibly 180 or 190 pounds, with a heavy, dark, clean-shaven face and dark hair, which appeared to be curly. A side view of his face revealed a "stodgy" countenance. He was somewhat slow and ponderous in movement. He wore a peak cap, dingy blue in color, a blue coat and chocolate-colored trousers, which were somewhat "baggy" at the knees. The men who saw him believe he was a foreigner.

I twas persistenly stated again to-day that the amount secured by the robbers in the hold-up were in the neighborhood of $125,000. This was the amount mentioned officially by the police first on Tuesday evening, the night of the crime although two banks issued statements saying their combined losses were $83,000.

The Provincial police here were yesterday afternoon informed that a large Studebaker car, maroon in color, and containing five or six men was seen in the vicinity of Consecon and was being driven at a rather rapid pace. As speedily as possible some members of the local force were en route to Consecon, but were unable to find any trace of the car other than the information above related. It was reported that the car was going south eastward in the direction of Bloomfield. Picton and other points were notified of the occurrence, but without any results.

We didn't know there was a shortage of wheat straw until we noticed the price of genuine Panama hats.

Popular Officer Tells How He Gained 37 Pounds

NAPOLEON GIROLDEAU

"Last winter, for the first time in years, I didn't miss a day on account of sickness," said Napoleon Giraldeau, 653 Colonial Avenue, Montreal, popular police officer, in relating his experience with the Tanlac treatment.

"It's near a year since I gained 37 pounds by taking Tanlac and I've never had a sick day since. I had indigestion for 10 years and at times thought the end was near. I lost 27 pounds and was just a skelton of what I had been.

"But it seems now like I never had indigestion, and I eat big feeds of meat and potatoes and sleep like a log. I owe my health to Tanlac."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 37 million bottles sold.

LOCAL RIFLEMEN SHOW UP WELL AT FIRST MATCH HERE

Fine weather greeted the riflemen of the A.L.I. Rifle Association at their opening match on the newly constructed rifle range held on Wednesday afternoon when a fairly good number of the marksmen were present.

Colonel W. G. Ketcheson, an old rifle shot and a staunch suporter of the cleanest and most manly sport, rifle shooting, fired the first shot which signified the re-opening of the rifle ranges since the war. The Colonel made no mistake and scored a central bull's eye. Afterwards he said: "Boys, I have set you a good example; now go to it, and I hope you all make bull's eyes."

This was not the case, although orpl. G. W. Elliott only missed the bull's eye once in winning the Grand Aggregate. The shooting was very good and it was unfortunate that one of the best marksmen present could not stay to finish. This was Corpl. J. Hurford, who was well up the list when he had to leave on an urgent call.

Major D. T. McManus carried out the duties of Statistical Officer; Lieut. Elliott, Range Officer, and Mr. G. W. Dawes, President of the G.W.V.A., very ably carried out the very important duties of Butts Officer.

The following were the prize winners:

Extra series at 100 yards—highest possible 50.—Cadet-Capt. D. W. McManus, 49, Cergt. H. Stanley 49, Sergt. H. B. Day 49; first, second and third prizes divided.

Extra series at 200 yards—highest possible 50.—Corpl. G. W. Elliott, 45, first prize; Sergt. A. J. Stewart, 43, second prize; Corpl. M. Cummings, 42, third prize.

Extra series aggregate—highest possible 100—Sergt. H. Stanley, 89, first prize; Corpl. M. Cummings, 88, second prize; Sergt. A. J. Stewart, 86, third prize.

All-Comers' Match—highest possible 70—Corpl. G. W. Elliott, 68, first prize; Corpl. M. Cummings, 67, second prize; Sergt. H. Stanley, 65, third prize.

Grand Aggregate highest possible 70.

Corpl. G. W. Elliott (winner of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Assn. Bronze Medal) and firs prize, score 156.

Corpl. M. Cummings, 155, second prize.

Sergt. H. Stanley, 154, third prize

At the conclusion the prizes were presented by Lieut. Colonel W. G. Ketcheson who shook hands and complimented each winner. He informed the marksmen that the Committee had planned a Big Match to take place after the boys return from The Ontario and Dominion Rifle Meetings and wished those who were going there to remember that they came from Belleville where we invairably produced winners.

The practice will continue on each Wednesday and Saturday afternoon commencing at 2 p.m.

MENNONITIES COMING.

London, July 26.—A Riga report states that 5,000 Mennonites are leaving shortly for Canada.

PUTTING HER FOOT IN IT.

The mother of a family showed the ticket collector on the railway a couple of half-fare tickets for her two children. The latter, after looking at her doubtfully, said, "How old are they?"

"They are only six, and they are twins."

"Ah "

Then after a moment's pause, the man inquired:—

"And where were they born?"

The mother (unthinkingly)—"This one was born in London and the other in Leeds."

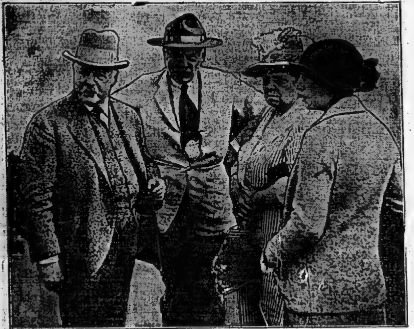
COULDN'T COAX HIM.

A Highlander from Tobermory asked at the Oban railway station the price of a ticket to Killin.

"Hoot awa'," replied Donald; "it's far ower dear I'd rather walk," and off he started.

He had not proceeded far when the train came tearing along, whistling as it neared a station.

"Ye needa whistle for me " said Donald, "I made ye an offer since and ye wandna tak' it; sae you can gang on, I'm no comin'."



LIEUTENANT-Governor W. C. Nichol of British Columbia and Randolph Bruce, leader in the development work of Kootenay and Windermere, at the Indian celebration at Invermere following the opening of the Banff-Windermere road. They were honored by the Kootenay Indians who made them an honorary chief and chieftain of their tribe respectively.

Browning Automatic Pump Gun Sold by a Montreal Dealer

SEEN AT LEASIDE

Workman Tells of Encountering Band in Bush—One Wounded

Toronto, July 27.—With additional clues, meager as they are, police officials are busily seeking trace of the bandits who held up the bank messenger train here on Tuesday, last. No important developments had occurred today up to 2 p.m.

It has been learned that the Browning automatic pumpgun, discarded by the bandits was purchased in a Montreal store on July 14. The clerk, who sold the weapon, described the purchaser as about 45 years old, about 6 feet tall, proportionately built, and of a tan complexion. He said the man was attired in a dark grey suit and peaked cap and appeared to be an American tourist. The purchaser drove a car. This description resembles that of either bandit No. 4 or No. 5, as listed in the official descriptions.

Another clue was unearthed when police were informed that a band believed to be the bandits was encountered in the bush near Leaside by a workman Wednesday afternoon.

Alex, Schernwich, 426 Richmond street west, came across the gunmen in a bush off the main road at Leaside at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. As Schernwich walked into the bush he was confronted by a heavy-set man who pushed a revolver against his chest. Schernwich as he looked forward saw four men busy dressing a wound in the leg of a man who was lying stretched out on the long grass.

Schernwich was then ordered to pull down his hands and stretch them out in front of him. With the gun pressed closely against his chest, Schernwch was asked where he was going. He replied that he was on his way to Leaside. The bandit ordered him to turn and run in the opposite direction or he would open fire on him.

Schernwich was able to lead the detectives to the exact spot where he said he met the bandits. The grass was tramped down, making it evident that the gunmen might have spent Tuesday night in this lonely spot.

The only clue found was a piece of absorbent gauze, which had evidently been cut to be applied as a dressing on the gunshot wound.

Tracks of where an automobile had stood at the side of the road were also seen by the police.

Describing the man who had covered him with a revolver, Schernwich said he was a tall, well-built man, and was very well dressed. His description, it was learned yesterday, was the same as that given detectives by messengers who were within striking distance of the man during the street fight.

Unable to find any further trace of the desperadoes, the detectives returned to headquarters. A statement was taken from Schernwich, in which he was positive the car he had seen was a large black one.

DEVONSHIRE WILL NOT RESIGN POST

London, July 27.—Official denial is made of the rumor which has been prevalent here lately that the Duke of Devonshire wishes to resign from the colonial secretaryship. The whole story is denied officially.

President Harding is Warmly Welcomed by Vancouver Folk

Vancouver, B.C., July 27.—President and Mrs. Harding disembarked from the United States naval transport Henderson and stepped foot on Canadian soil here yesterday at 11 o'clock.

The arrival of the chief executive of the United States was made the occasion of a military display excelling anything previous on his trip. As the Henderson steamed through the narrows into Burrard Inlet, shortly before ten o'clock, she was given a salute by the British light cruiser Curlew and the destroyer Patrician. When the President stepped down the gang plank he was greeted by another salute fired by the sixty-eighth battery of the fifteenth brigade, Canadian Field Artillery and taken up by the Curlew.

The President was received by a combined guard of honor from the Curlew and Patrician, another guard with King's and regimental colors, two military bands and a detail of Royal Canadian Mounted Police. Formal welcome was extended at the pier by officials of the Dominion, the Province of British Columbia and the city of Vancouver. After making a brief response, Mr. Harding, with Mrs. Harding and other members of the party, was escorted to automobiles for a parade through the city and to Stanley Park, where the executive delivered the principal address of his visit.

Returning from Stanley Park, the President was the luncheon guest of the civic government of Vancouver. The remainder of the day's program provided for the international golf match between the President and Hon. J. H. King.

A dinner tendered by the Dominion Government, a reception and embarkation at nine-thirty o'clock for the voyage to Seattle.

In the course of his address at Vancouver the U. S. president said:

"If European nations would heed the lesson conveyed by Canada and the United States they would strike at the root of their own continuing disagreements and their prosperity forget to inveigh constantly at our's."

"It is the public will, not force, that makes for enduring peace," and it is rot a gratifying circumstance that it has fallen to the lot of us of North Americans and living amicably for more than a century under different flags to present the most striking example produced to the basic fact that peace can always be kept, whatever be the grounds of controversy between people that wish to keep it?"

REV. RAMSAY IS BESTED IN FINALS

Peterboro Man is Victor Over Belleville Pastor in Stratton Trophy Match

Rev. D. C. Ramsay of Belleville was defeated by Jack Mayneord of Peterboro in the finals for the Stratton trophy at Peterboro yesterday by a score of 17-16.

The clocks were just striking midnight when Ramsay's last bowl, when he was lying one, and needed another to tie it up, fell short of an inside draw, and left Mayneord the victor of the main bout of the tourney after a long day of steady bowling from nine in the morning. As a deciding game it was a fitting climax to the eliminating struggle that had begun with twenty-seven contesting rinks, and the gallery of spectators agreed that the finish was well worth waiting for.

The finalist rinks were as follows:

Peterboro	Belleville
R. Elliott	C. H. Vermilyea
Andy Ross	A. R. Symons
W. J. Oke	T. J. Hurley
J. W. Mayneord	Rev. D. C. Ramsay
Skip, 17	Skip, 16

The score by ends:

Ramsay .. .. .. x1x1x3x11xx3x141—16
Mayneord .. .. .. 1x3x5x2xx23x1xxx—17

The breaks of the game were about evenly divided and on the most of the play the rinks appeared to be very evenly matched. Both skips played steadily with many fine shots to their credit, and the same goes for the ices and the front ends too. Bob Elliott led in great style, but "Clem" Vermilyea gave him a battle all the way. The seconds were also on their toes, and both rinks tried hard for every end.

Mayneord got a nice lead in the first stage of the game, a five end in the ditch being particularly helpful. Ramsay made a big bid to save that end but missed by just the least shade of overweight. His five on the second and third last ends put him with striking distance after Mayneord seemed to have the game in his locker, but Ramsey's best on the

Garden Party Held at General Hospital Delightful Function

One of the most enjoyable functions which have taken place in Belleville for some time was the garden party held last night upon the lawn of the general hospital in connection with the hospital. The affair was under the auspices of the graduating nurses who spared no pains to make it the success which it proved to be. There was a large attendance. The spacious lawn in connection with the hospital was appropriately decorated with flags and bunting and when brilliantly lighted with electric lights present both an attractive and inviting appearance. Johnston's Kiltie band was present and during the evening rendered a number of selections which were much appreciated.

About the lawn were located booths at which ice cream, soft drinks, etc., were served and despite the fact that the evening was cool there was a good sale of same. At the close of the proceedings a number of cakes which had not been disposed of were auctioned off by Mr. W. C. Mikel who, needless to state is a first class auctioneer. A goodly sum was realized for same. The proceeds from admission, booths, etc., were most encouraging and will be applied to some worthy cause.

During the evening Mr. Bankier and Mr. James Booth rendered solos in their usual pleasing and able manner.

Upon the lawn a platform had been erected and appropriately decorated. This was used for dancing, music for same being supplied by the Sills Orchestra. Many present took advantage of the opportunity to dance as the evening was all that could have been desired for this class of amusement.

Dainty refreshments were served by the nurses and attendants to all who attended. To the graduating nurses who managed the whole affair much credit is due for its success.

Community singing was rather a feature of the party and this was heartily entered into by all present. This part of the programme was under the direction of members of the Kiwanis Club, who were out in goodly numbers to assist in the singing of popular songs.

Picnickers Travel On Special Train

The picnic held at Cobourg yesterday by the G. T. R. Library Association of this city was a huge success. A special train of twenty-three coaches was required to accommodate all who desired to attend. The affair took place in the beautiful park off Lake Ontario and the day was all that could have been desired. After dinner had been partaken of by all present a fine and interesting program of sports was carried out and prizes awarded to the successful competitors. The events included races for men, women, boys and girls and all were well contested. Baseball game, soft ball were played between teams representing various departments of the G. T. R. These were of an interesting nature. A soccer match was played between teams representing the Belleville and Brockville shops and the latter won. The excursionists arrived home shortly after 8 o'clock tired but happy.

DEMONSTRATE LOW OPERATION COSTS

Competition Shows Attractive Feature of Chevrolet Car

(F. H. Needham, in Edmonton Journal)

The low cost of operating a Chevrolet automobile was well demonstrated on Portage avenue when the Edmonton entries for the Chevrolet National Economy Test demonstrated just how good their cars were and how cheaply they could be operated.

Ten Edmonton cars entered this competition and the models ranged from the 1918 vintage 4-90 model to the new 1923 Superior model Chevrolet and the mileages these cars got varied from 31.4 miles to 55.4 miles to the gallon of gasoline.

This test proved beyond doubt that if the car is reasonably well cared for and the engine kept clean that the cost of operating can be reduced considerably. It has been proven before and has been proven once again that by taking your car to the official service station to be tuned up, that it will well pay for the small cost of such service.

Several of the cars that participated had their engine tuned up, such work as having the valves ground, carbon removed and the carburetor adjusted being done to them. All cars were absolutely stock models and the terms of the contest being that no special motor or carburetor equipment must be used.

The most remarkable performance made by any of the local contestants was made by Mr. Jack Starkey, the well-known manager of the Penn. Coal Mine Co., Ltd., who rolled up the huge mileage of 166.2 miles on three gallons of "Red Start" gasoline. Previous to this record, Mr. Starkey made 49.9 miles on one gallon of gasoline on Thursday night and this performance was advertised in the Journal. Many people were sceptical about the accuracy of this announcement, as only a few friends of Mr. Starkey's and others interested in the sale of Chevrolet cars were present when this test was pulled off, so the officials of the Nor-West Motors Ltd. well advertised the coming test that was held on Saturday and a good crowd of spectators was on hand to witness the large runs made.

Mr. Starkey started on his test at 7.25 p.m. with the measured three gallons of gasoline and after running between the speeds of 15 and 18 miles per hour he came to a stop at 4.45 a.m. Sunday morning with his carburetor and tank as dry as a Methodist conference meeting. The speedometer checked this run at 166.2 miles and the run was made over a measured course on Portage Avenue. Mr. Starkey carried three passengers during the test.

Amongst the other remarkable runs made during the test were those made by Mr. C. N. Goodwin in his 1918 model 4-90 touring car and Mr. Alec Hudson with his 1919 model 4-90 touring. Both these cars turned in a mileage of 119 miles for three gallons of gasoline. This is an average of 39.9 miles to the gallon.

CHINA IS BROKE AND CAN'T BUY

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Peking, (By mail to United Press).—American manufacturers and capitalists whose customers are nations will have to take China off the lists for a time.

The Government will not be a customer for some time, though private business will probably continue to thrive.

The Government just now is unable to buy the things she needs and pay cash and is unwilling to buy them on credit under the terms offered. She is unable to pay debts or to contract new ones at advantageous terms.

For this reason John J. Abbott, representative of the Continental Commercial Bank of Chicago, is returning home after failing to obtain interest or principal of a loan of $5,000,000 which China defaulted at the time of the Washington Conference.

PROUD BUT BROKE

For the same reason Frederick W. Stevens, representative of the American group of the consortium, is returning to America. The consortium was organized to build railroads, highways, canals, or other needed public utilities but China will not accept construction loans and let the foreigner supervise the spending of the money. At the same time the government has no money and can not even keep its present railroads in good working order.

General business, however, is good with the exception of the cotton spinning trade. The industry was reveloped beyond the actual needs of the country; Japan buys much of her cotton in China and the remaining stocks are not sufficient to keep the mills going. Hence sales of mill machinery will not be large for a few years.

Other lines of machinery, however, will do well, as will paper, electrical goods, bicycles and light motorcycles, sheet metal and possibly before the end of the year, wireless receiving sets.

WALLIE REID AT GRIFFIN'S IN UNIQUE COMEDY

The unique comedy situation of a man going to jail to avoid being murdered is presented in "Thirty Days," starring Wallace Reid, which was shown at Griffin's theatre, last night.

Mr. Reid, as John Cadwalader Floyd, a rich young man, is being pursued by an impetuous Italian butler who, thinking John has kissed his wife, has sworn to kill him. John might have kept clear of Polenta without having to go to jail, but when the fiery Italian enlisted the aid of his fellow members of the secret and terrible "Society of the Thousand Eyes," John found stilletos on every hand, sleeping and waking. So he decides to go to jail until Polenta leaves the country, or gives up his revenge. But Polenta gets into the jail, and when unsuccessful in there, waits outside the gates for John, whose hunrorous antics, ably portrayed by Mr. Reid, are a source of continual merriment.

The picture has been well done by James Cruze, the director, and the cast, headed by Wanda Hawley, is admirable.

HOOT GIBSON AT REGENT IN FAST MOVING WESTERN STORY

One of those fast moving western pictures in which Hoot Gibson is so often seen is showing at the Regent theatre. "Dead Game" opened there last night. It is his latest Universal starring vehicle.

"Dead Game" tells the story of a young cowboy of the west who knows all about men and horses. Yes, he was a smart young fellow all right—except where the women were concerned. He didn't know enough about them to keep from getting jilted by a girl who really loved him.

Gibson undeniably gets the human interest in a role of this sort. He can play the awkward lover to perfection, and in "Dead Game" he is given plenty of opportunity to, by awkward lover, persistent lover and plain "cave man."

WOMAN MAKES FIGHT AGAINST DRUG EVIL

A fine young man of a fine old family becomes a drug addict. His father, the district attorney, is making a hard fight to wipe out the drug traffic at the time his son falls into a trap sprung by the very men his father is drawing into the law net.

Thrills follow thrills as the young man takes each step down the grade. His sister is a lawyer. She is also a fighter. She learns the truth about her beloved brother. She takes him under her wing to save him from utter disgrace, and dissolution physically. Despite all efforts by the drug system to crush her and destroy her purpose, she emerges triumphantly. The boy is charged with a murder he did not commit. His sister defends him at the trial. This is one of the most impressive scenes ever staged. To know how it comes out, one must see the picture.

"The Greatest Menace" is more than a picture—it is an education, and everyone, young and old, should see it. Other selected plays will be exhibited, and regular prices will prevail during the engagement.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

YOUR WILL

I have listened to many arguments about the ideal build for a sprinter. Many trainers claim that the long legged athlete has a great advantage over the one with short legs. For proof he mentions Wefers one of the long, lean type.

For answer the other party to the argument comes back with—What about Duffy?

Duffy was a short stocky fellow with a burst of speed equal to that of Wefers.

What is the explanation?

Well speed can almost be said to be a matter of will power.

I would say then that with will powers equal, the long fellow would have the advantage. However, will power is one of those things we cannot measure.

The ideal sprinter would be an athlete with Wefers' body and Duffy's will.

In experimenting with electrical impulses they have found that with a certain electrical stimulus to a muscle it is the two hundredths part of a second before the muscle acts.

By doubling the strength of the electric current the muscle performs the movement in one hundredth of a second, or in half the time. And so instead of the electric stimulus, in a race you use the stimulus of the will.

In a race as the muscles tire, the length of time between the moment the muscle receives its impulse, and the time it acts grows longer, and the steps or strides become slower.

Now you can see that the fellow with the strong will overcomes some of this time by using a stronger impulse, using more will power. I have often wondered why an athlete who finishes the race at a considerable distance behind the winners is applauded so vigorously by the spectators because he sprints hard the last forty or fifty yards, I know that it is because the crowd like to encourage him, for finishing at all instead of quitting.

However, if he had used more will power he would have developed more muscle power, and while he might not have won the race, he certainly would have been near the winners at the finish.

SENSITIVE PLANTS.

Some of Them Subject to Peculiar Influences.

"Plants have no nervous system in the strictest sense, and yet they are 'irritable,' as the physiologists say. They are sensitive to various outside influences, and they often answer back by some kind of movement," writes Prof. J. Arthur Thomson in John o' London's Weekly.

"Therefore we may speak of the senses of plants. There are, it is true, no special sense-organs in plants; but there are none in an animal like an earthworm, which is nevertheless sensitive to vibrations, light and shade, chemicals, and oders. An unforgettable sight is sometimes seen in an almost dark damp shed in a farm-steading where some potatoes have been left and forgotten. They have sprouted and sent out long weak shoots, which have grown towards a chink in the wall.

"It is plain that their constitution has been influenced by the scarcity of light—for the shoots are very flabby; it is also plain that they have grown towards the little light there was. Here we have to do with a diffuse irritability or sensitiveness, and this is very common among plants. But when a leaf adjusts itself to a nicety so as to make the most of its light exposure, just as if it were an invalid adjusting his rotating summer-house, we have to distinguish the blade of the leaf as the main 'receptor' of the stimulus and the stalk of the leaf as the main 'effector.' This is the thin edge of division of labor; and is it not farther than sponges have got?

"When unopened tulips or crocuses are brought into our sitting-room in the morning they soon expand, and this is very delightful. But when the room has become very comfortable the flowers close up again, and this is rather disappointing; but can one avoid the conclusion that the plants are sensitive to temperature? As to this, however, matter-of-fact physiological botanists will not allow us a long tether. The tulips and crocuses open because the upper side of perianth (outer flower-parts) grows more quickly than the lower side; warmth favoring chemical processes. But after a while the notably increased warmth reaches the other side of the perianth, and that grows rapidly in length, thereby closing the flower. If the room grew warmer still we suppose the tulips would open again, but we have never attained to that height of thermal comfort.

"Many flowers like the daisy open and close with the growing and waning light of day, and many leaves have their diurnal and nocturnal poses. By the use of delicate instruments it has been possible to show that a tree may react to the shade of a passing cloud. Another sense is touch, and many plants have it in a high degree. The tendril will respond to the light touch of a thread, the stamens of the rockrose to an insect's legs, the mouth-like stigma of the musk to a pollen-grain, the leaves of the sensitive plant to a sudden jar.

"It is very interesting to find that there are, as in many animals, special 'receptives,' which convey the stimulus of touch inwards. On the tendrils of the cucumber there are cells with minute insinkings which agitate crystals of calcium oxalate and these excite the living matter. On the movable stamens of the barberry there are touch-papillæ; on the leaf of Venus's Fly-Trap and on the sensitive plant there are touch-hairs."

Perils of a Prince.

It must be trying for a young prince who has the real normal instincts to behave always as a prince is expected so to do. He cannot forever follow the patterns laid down in the story books. Lord Meath, in his new book, "Memories of the Nineteenth Century," tells an incident of the boyhood of the late King Edward. On one occasion a few Eton boys were invited to spend the day at Windsor Castle with the prince. In those days fashion decreed that an Eton boy who was proud of his school must be neatly dressed, and the boys bought new silk hats for the occasion. After the introduction the boy prince made some remark on the immaculate hats.

"Please remember that, to the Etonian of that day, his hat was almost as sacred as the beard is to the orthodox Turk. It must not be touched. From words, it is said that the prince proceeded to show his disrespect to this kind of headgear by violence, and, without warning, he bonneted his nearest Etonian neighbor! Here was an insult which could not be borne by self-respecting Etonians, even at the hands of a prince! So royal blood is said to have flowed! And, if the story is true, a dishevelled and tearful prince, with an injured nose, rushed from the room, saying that he would tell his ma! Which he is reported to have done."

Queen Victoria sent for the boys and apologised for the rudeness of the prince, but they never had another invitation!

Europe's Surplus Spinsters.

The German Statistics Office has made the announcement that there are on the Continent of Europe 25,000,000 women, the majority of them young and marriageable, who must either embrace polygamy or go unmarried, as there are not sufficient men to furnish them with husbands.

In 1913 Europe had a recorded population of 460,000,000 women. The present population is estimated at 475,000,000, with a surplus of 25,000,000 women. To each batch of a thousand men there are 1,111 women.

Russia has the largest number of women, 1,229 to 1,000 men; Germany stands second with 1,100, Austria third with 1,069. Holland is the most favored in this regard, for in that country the surplus has decreased from 1,020 to 1,010 women to 1,000 men.

In a wild state the horse lives to be from 35 to 40 years old, while the domestic horse is old at 25 years.

Dew Pond Secret.

The secret of making dew ponds is known to only two men. They are brothers, and the secret has been handed down from father to son for two hundred and fifty years.

Dew ponds are to be found on many hillsides where water can be collected in no other way. They collect moisture from the air, and this is the only method of obtaining water without a spring or surface drainage. Dew pond water is the purest in existence.

The two men who hold the secret of the ponds live in Hampshire, Eng., and they are kept hard at work constructing these magic wells. The earth is dug out to a depth of five feet in the centre, sloping gradually upwards to the rim of the pond, where there is an embankment about eighteen inches high.

The pond is lined with clay and covered with a layer of straw, which in its turn is covered with lime. The lime and the clay must not be allowed to mix. With the lime is put a special substance, and it is in this substance that the secret lies.

On top of all is a covering of earth, which is flattened by a special wooden tool. The pond takes six months or so to fill, but once it has done so it never empties and requires no further attention.

Running British Railways.

Of all the British railways, before their amalgamations last January, the London and North-Western employed the greatest number of people—101,483. Next came the Great Western with 91,985, and the Midland with 81,731.

At the other end of the scale, amongst the companies deemed worthy of classification, were the Stratford-upon-Avon and Midland Junction Railway with a total staff all told of 317, and the Rhondda and Swansea Bay with 324.

The grand total of employes on the whole of the railways of the United Kingdom was, according to a recent Government return, 766,381, of which 737,946 were males and 28,435 females.

Amongst the latter, quite a considerable number were employed on work not usually done by women—in England at all events.

There were, for example, four women "cranemen," five "engine cleaners," and thirteen "oilers and greasers," while one woman—on the North British Railway—took on the dangerous and arduous work of a "shunter."

There were, besides, twelve women signalmen, twenty station-masters, seven working foremen, and six railway policemen. No fewer than 93 women were employed as laborers, and 895 women and 165 girls are classed as "mechanics and artisans."

LIQUOR TRAFFIC.

The proposal of a 12-mile limit in connection with the transportation of, [illegible] the coast of the United States does not appear to have been accorded serious consideration.

While it cannot be denied that the motive of the American officials is sound, the statutory foundation upon which their proposals are predicated, are conservatively speaking, unusual.

American jurisprudence was cradled in Britain; from Britain America acquired her wholesome regard for personal liberty. Opponents of prohibition in the United States maintain that the legal machinery provided to promote enforcement of prohibition, if not the prohibition amendment itself, is in contravention of the constitution.

It is an ambitious undertaking, therefore, to ask the government of Britain who has no prohibition law, to cooperate in the enforcement of American prohibition on an international scale. It can be rightly assumed, of course, that the British will not countenance any violation of international law in connection with the liquor traffic and will be willing to co-operate with the United States to the extent of checking activities of British subjects, which are found to be dependent upon illegal acts on the part of Americans.

Yet, until America can keep her own doorstep clean, she cannot expect much assistance from outside sources. The prohibition regulations are apparently violated almost with impurity in many sections of the States and the laws governing the introduction of liquor from the outside are certainly not being rigidly enforced.

American prohibition officials apparently, unable to enforce the prohibition law desire to transfer the burden to other shoulders. It is the law of the United States. She must first properly enforce it and then she may, with better grace, appeal for co-operation to other nations.

THE GERMAN PARADOX

The crash of the German mark to the startlingly low level of 3,000,000 to the pound sterling or 666,666 to the dollar has a far more serious significance to the outside world than to the Germans themselves.

Germany's reconstruction efforts since the signing of the armistice have been confined chiefly to strengthening industries and making capital improvements generally. Germans "in the know" have invested their savings in wealth producing industries; tremendous energy has been exhibited in the development and repair of industrial plants and all forms of equipment.

The collapse of the money market has, of course, ruined thousands of Germans, but paradoxical as it may appear, Germany herself is "financially ruined" and economically sound. With her mines and factories enlarged and improved and with all associate industries on a satisfactory operating basis, the nation is prepared to enter the world trade field as soon as her monetary standards become more stable.

Thus, while the individual suffering has been great and will continue so for some time, the nation as a whole is not seriously affected. Financiers disagree as to the direct causes of the peculiar situation in Germany, but several eminent authorities have expressed the opinion that there was "method in the madness" of Germany, in other words, that industrial and political leaders foresaw the present situation and, moreover, actually brought it about as a means of strengthening the German nation at the expense of the Allies.

German philosophy is not always clearly understood by the Anglo-Saxon. The Germans usually have but one definite objective in view and all other interests are sacrificed, if necessary, in the achievement of the one object. Capitalists and workers alike are crushed in the path of the juggernaut. This appears to have been the case in the present situation. Germany is still the Fatherland and in peace as well as in war "cannon fodder" is necessary under the German system.

If Germany can eventually emerge from the present reparations tangle without abortive interference in her plans, her financial standards will rapidly improve to a point where she will be able to purchase raw materials in small quantities. With returns from her first exports and with her debts greatly reduced because of the pitiableness of her plight in the eyes of the world, she will forge rapidly ahead in the production of goods for export and the new German era will be underway.

By The Side Of The Road

President Harding is the first president of the United States to visit Canada while in office. Funny that so many Americans visit certain sections of Canada since America went dry. Wonder if they will search Mr. Harding's grip when he goes back home.

They may find the Toronto bandits next year when the time comes to make out income tax reports.

They are making marks by the trillions over in Germany. Bank robbers would find it difficult to carry away much wealth in marks at their present valuation.

That woman in New York, who seeks a divorce decree because her husband used profanity in the presence of her pet dog and frequently spoke harshly to the "purp" should be given a decree without any delay. Husbands are becoming altogether too atavistic.

They have arrested several persons in Germany for selling spurious marks. Surely spurious marks could be no more worthless than the "genuine" ones.

A sea serpent has at last been reported off Atlantic City the last inportation of "hootch" must have been below grade .

PRESS OPINIONS

AN IMPUDENT GOVERNMENT

(Syracuse Post-Standard)

It needs no new law to prevent ships from aboard landing liquor in New York harbor. It is not claimed that the liners have been smuggling. There is need of law, in the interests of international comity, of decent hospitality and of common sense, which shall recognize that a foreign ship is foreign territory in harbor as a sea, and which will permit the foreigners on board the ship of their nationality to eat and drink what they choose. It is not only no part of our duty, it is impudent in our Government to seek to compel the passengers and crews of foreign vessels to live in accordance with our custom when our custom is repugnant to them.

DEFIANCE OF THE LAW.

(Montreal Le Soleil)

To get to the bottom of this whole complicated situation, which appears to be getting still worse, nothing less than a serious investigation would be necessary, conducted by men entirely disinterested, in order to study all the facts concerning the salary of the miner, the cost of living and the "real" profits which are resulting from the enterprise of the owners. And if, after such an investigation, it became clear that the miners had a legitimate grievance, no pains should be spared to remedy it without delay. But if the contrary were the case and new troubles should arise, recourse would be necessary to the most drastic steps to ensure the respect of the law before everything. We are marching insensibly towards the ruin of our trade and our industry and also to social revolution, if we tolerate any longer conditions which allow a group of citizens to defy authority and to take justice into their own hands without resorting to the ordinary courts of law.

APATHETIC PUBLIC.

(The Australasian)

Sooner or later it will have to be considered whether the public does not merit the contempt with which it is treated. In the last few years people display no resentment against being trodden upon.

In 1903, when the railway strike took place, it was broken in five days by the force of public opinion. The Government took a firm stand, and the people stood behind it. Not a day passed without some trains being run Each day brought an improvement in the service, and in five days the morale of the strikers was shattered.

Today, when a strike takes place, the public makes the best of conditions, expecting that in a few days the dispute will be patched up and that services will be resumed.

POOR BOOBS.

(Boston Transcript)

A fanatical minority liberally advertised and highly organized is now clamoring for the use of the army and the navy to enforce the Volstead law. Their clamor is a militaristic threat. Such action, short of the complete exhaustion of every reasonable effort by the civil police power to enforce this law, would front free America with the menace of militarism in its most obnoxious form.

NECESSARY KNOWLEDGE

(Toronto Globe)

While three people were struggling unsuccessfully for life in the waters of the Grand River, four passers-by were asked by the widow of one of the victims to go to the rescue. "We ain't no swimmers," was the reply. Wherever there is a possibility of doing so, swimming should be made a compulsory subject of teaching in Ontario's public and high schools.

OVER REGARD FOR TRUTH

(Indianapolis News)

The greatest bores we meet with are those who have a painful over-regard for exact and unimpeachable truth, while an important factor in entertaining and clever converse in a nimble imagination that mingles an agreeable amount of fiction with fact. Good talkers prefer not to detect nor to be detected, but to swap even and let it go at that.

He stood with a friend at the counter of a department store, waiting for his change. After some minutes had gone by, he remarked: "I wonder if they had department stores back in the days of Job."

"Why?" the friend required.

"Because," he replied with a tired smile, "Job declared: "All the days of my appointed time will I wait, till my change come."

Noted Authority Talks on Longevity Before London Club

By CHAS. McCANN

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

London, July 21.—(United Press).—Man is getting the worst of it from whoever allotted him a span of only three score and ten years of life, Dr. Leonard Williams, noted author of medical books, told the Aldwych Club.

But man gives himself the worst of it regarding illness, Dr. Williams added.

He declared that man's expectation of life should be from 120 to 140 years; and he held the unscientific Bible partly responsible for instructing man otherwise. As to illness, Dr. Williams said:

"If we become ill we ought not to be pitied as victims, but condemned as fools. It is just as fantastic to talk about being a martyr to rheumatism as it would be to talk about a martyr to delirium tremens.

"Man is virtually the only reasoning animal," Dr. Williams continued. "But the price he pays for his reason is a heavy one—the loss of his instinct or intuition. Man reasons; but he is the only animal who does not know how to feed himself.

"Woman is less logical than man, and more intuitive. The more logical she becomes, the less intuitive she is.

MAN'S REASON BLURRED

"Instincts of the lower animals are increasing. Man has only his reason to guide him. And his reason, blurred and befogged by every kind of bias—in which greed figures very largely—causes him to arrive at the most fantistic and dealy conclusions.

"One of these is that the normal span of life is about 70 years.

"If you estimate the average age of the lower animals in relation to the time it takes them to reach maturity, and aply that formula to man, you will ar the conclusion that man's normal span of life is from 120 to 140 years.

"The reason why we have ben content with three score years and ten and speak of a man of 80 who is still vigorous as a marvel, is partly on account of the Bible, which is not a scientific work, and largely because in matters physiological we are content with a very low level of mediocrity.

"We must learn to divest ourselves of the idea that there is something heaven-sent and the inevitable about illness. There is nothing inevitable about it, still less is there anything heavensent.

"In greater or less degree, chiefly in greater, all disease is preventible. If we get an illness it is our own fault sometimes, and sometimes, but very seldom, the fault of our forebears.

"We speak of the normal as synonmous with the average. The average man is not normal. He is grossly, and even grotesquely, abnormal.

"It is necessary to realize that when a man has developed his powers and attained his maturity, maturity ceases to be a function of time, but becomes a physical state, which it is the duty of the man to maintain in its pristine vigor for as long as possible."

FIRPO AND WILLS LOGICAL CONTENDERS

By PAUL R. MALLON, United Press Staff Correspondent

New York, July 25.—Just a year ago Jack Dempsey was forced practically into retirement because of the scarcity of "logical contenders" for the heavyweight championship.

Every aspirant for the title was loaded down with some kind of a "too" that would not develop the steam necessary to put over one of the modern heavyweight scraps.

Gibbons was too little; Willard was too old; Wills was too dark; Firpo was too green; Beckett was too horizontal, and Carpentier was too through.

In the short space of a few months, the whole situation was turned over, several "toos" were removed, and now Dempsey has in the makings enough work to keep him busy for a year and bring him another fortune.

Tommy Gibbons was the biggest factor in bringing the heavyweight division back as the leader of the biggest season that boxing has known in a decade.

It was Gibbons who exploded the popular belief that Dempsey was too good for any of his rivals and that the best of the contenders for the title would be little better than a set-up for the champion.

When Gibbons went through fifteen rounds with Dempsey without being knocked off his feet, Dempsey lost all his claim to the title of an invincible superman, and it was only logical to figure that if a light heavyweight like Gibbons could keep Dempsey away for fifteen rounds that some heavier man, with a little class, could give the champion a great battle.

Some opinion exists that Dempsey "carried" Gibbons for the very purpose of destroying confidence in his ability so that he could get some big shots against the other contenders.

* * *

Dempsey's poor showing against Bill Brennan the last time they met, when Brennan went twelve rounds with the champion, made the Carpentier fight possible, because the public figured that the champion had slipped and that the Frenchman would have a real chance to win.

Perhaps Dempsey did not extend himself against Gibbons. No one knows but Dempsey, but few who saw the fight in Shelby on the Fourth had many doubts that the champion was doing his best and that he really tried to knock Gibbons out.

As a result of that bank-wrecking Shelby affair, Dempsey has two big fights in prospect with Luis Firpo, the South American giant, and Harry Wills, the big colored stevedore. Another match with Gibbons would also be an attractive card.

Dempsey, no doubt, will choose to take the South American first. Not because he fears Wills more, but the longer he allows the impression to prevail that he is dodging the colored fighter the greater will become the interest in the match when it is made.

Before Firpo fought and knocked out Jess Willard, smart ring men expressed the opinion that the sooner Dempsey got the South American into the ring the better his chances would be of retaining his title.

It was figured that time would increase the chances of the Argentine giant and lessen the effectiveness of the champion. Since the Willard fight, however, it is generally believed that Firpo is as good now as he will ever be. The South American has the mental equipment to learn in the gymnasium, but he hasn't the temperament to carry out his lessons in the ring.

He is a right-hand fighter, a charger and a mauler, and it seems sure that he will never be anything else. Perhaps he is too old to learn how to box and to change his style.

* * *

Wills, just the same, will become no better as time passes, and if Dempsey really has any fear of the stevedore, he is smart in putting the fight back as far as possible on the calendar. While there is no real reason to believe it, the opinion is spreading that Wills has slipped way back in the last few months.

Regardless of the many complicated angles, it would be worth while to see Dempsey in fights with Firpo and Wills and it would be a treat to see another Dempsey-Gibbons fight.

DEMPSEY-FIRPO BOUT ARRANGED

New York, July 27.—Jack Dempsey will defend his world's heavyweight championship against Luis Angel Firpo at the Polo Grounds on September 12 or 15, it was learned from a reliable source last night.

Tex Rickard, who has signed both fighters, would not comment on the date or the place he has selected for the fight.

Dempsey will get a large percentage of the purse and Firpo has been guaranteed not less than $100,000 for his end.

HUSKI IS WINNER OF SECOND HEAT

Watertown, N.Y., July 27.—Huskie lead the entire second round and won the second heat by 40 yards from Chiriya of Kingston in yesterday's race for the George Cup. Riowna of the Toronto Canoe Club, Wednesday's winner, was 200 yards astern of the Chiriya. Nyada, of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club, which finished second Wednesday, was fourth, one-half mile behind and the Latonka II. of the Oswego Yacht Club, was a quarter-mile further in the rear. There was no change in the order in the second round.

The wind held from 12 to 14 miles strength and suited the Huskie. The time for the first lap was: Huskie, 12.17.30; Chiriya, 12.18.10; Riowna, 12.18.45; Nayada, 12.20.30; Latonka, time not announced. The finish was: Huskie, 1.50.30; Chiriya, 1.53.15; Riowna, 1.53.40; Nayada, 1.59.40; Latonka, 2.02.45. The standing in points is now as follows:

Riowna, 8; Huskie, 7; Nayada, 6; Chiriya, 5; Latonka, 4.

A big throng cheered the progress of the race from the shore and from the launches along the course.

Q. Has Babe Ruth cut his swing because he can't hit homers any more or because he wants to go after the league batting championship? R. T. L.

A. Writers following the Yankees believe that he has changed his style to help out the team on the theory that he would be more valuable knocking in runs with singles and doubles. Ruth said last season that he had one remaining ambition, and that was to lead the league in batting.

* * *

Q. How much did Jack Dempsey really get for fighting Tommy Gibbons at Shelby? Did Gibbons get anything? H. L.

A. No figures were made known on what Dempsey really got, but it is understood he drew $242,000. Gibbons got $2,500 for training expenses and he may have picked up another $5,000 from the "gate" at his training camp.

* * *

Q. What is the open championship worth to a professional golfer? Did Bobby Jones get anything for winning the title? J. H.

A. It is estimated that the open championship, in the business and revenue that the title draws, is worth from $25,000 to $50,000, depending upon the popularity and business acumen of the title holder. Jones, being an amateur got nothing but glory for his victory.

The game of softball has taken such a hold on the players in Hamilton that hardball is getting decidedly the worst of it. For many years the Hamilton Amateur Baseball Association was the governing body of baseball in Hamilton, but the following item from the Hamilton Herald of Tuesday would lead one to believe that softball has got the upper hand: "Opinion in local baseball circles is that the Hamilton Amateur Baseball Association will cease functioning this year. The scarcity of ball players practically makes a governing body unnecessary. Speaking to-day, one of the members of the H.A.B.A. said: "I don't think we will be on the job next year. All the members feel that they are not needed. There is really nothing to do. There is only one senior league, no intermediates and very few juniors. It appears as if the development of ball players in Hamilton has ceased. The few leagues that are operating in Hamilton can affiliate with the O.B.A.A.' Do you blame softball for the scarcity of ball players?" was asked. 'Yes. The game has secured such a foothold that it is doubtful if any more young hard-ballers will be developed. Visit any of the parks and you'll see the youngsters playing with the soft ball. A hard ball is seldom seen."

AND THAT'S THAT.

Although about their lack of coin
Most everyone complains.
They should worry more, I think,
About their lack of brains.

The Grasshopper's Anti-Tobacco League
Priscilla was strong for reform;
The speeches she made, long and warm,
Against all the chewing
The "hoppers" were doing,
Converted the Grasshopper swarm.

Priscilla Grasshopper felt that she had a mission in life. When she thought it all over she had to admit that it was up to her. She would have to convert the whole grasshopper tribe. She was the only inhabitant of all Hoppertown that did not chew tobacco. Priscilla shuddered at the thought. Poor, ignorant creatures! They had all been brought up wrong. They did so need a serious-minded missionary among them to teach the error of their ways.

Priscilla had borrowed a book from the family of June bugs next door and had been reading up on the harmful effects of nicotine. She had discovered that there was only one thing worse than chewing tobacco and that was smoking cigarettes. She was glad that all her townspeople were not addicted to that terrible habit. Goodness knows, chewing was bad enough. It was terrible for their health and complexions. Besides, it was such a vulgar habit. Priscilla blushed to think that even the very nicest lady grasshoppers chewed. Something really ought to be done about it.

And so Priscilla committed a speech all about the evil effects of chewing tobacco and went around to the various clubs and delivered it.

Her speech was so convincing and her lovely complexion (due to her shunning of the bad habit) so enticing that even the worst old chewers were moved. They admitted that they had felt queer pains around their hearts lately, and Priscilla proved conclusively that it was due to the tobacco. It was not long before the frightened grasshoppers formed the "Grasshoppers' Anti-Tobacco League," and they all signed the pledge never again to chew.

All week long Priscilla worked, and at last late Saturday night she had the name of every inhabitant of Hopperville on her pledge. My, how happy she was! She was just going home thinking that she had never been so thankful in all her life. It was wonderful to do so much good. She had the promises of all the grasshoppers that they would never again chew.

"What is that peculiar smell?" Priscilla wondered. It reminded her that they should have had some sort of celebration, a bonfire or something, to mark this wonderful change in Hopperville. Maybe some of the dear young grasshoppers that had helped her in her campaign had thought of it.

Priscilla followed her nose to investigate. She was led around back of the barn. There the lovely missionary fainted dead away to discover all the younger set of Hopperville learning to smoke cigarettes.

"Well, if it's not too private," said Bowen, "tell me what happened. At the moment I'm particularly interested in the place."

Peel gazed reproachfully at a copy of The Sphere, which had managed in some strange way to get its leaves dog-eared. As he proceeded to smooth them out he continued:

"It was when I was young, my lord. I was engaged to be married. I thought her a most excellent young woman, in every way suitable. She went down to Eastbourne for a holiday." He paused.

"Well, there doesn't seem much wrong in that," said Bowen.

"From Eastbourne she wrote, saying that she had changed her mind," proceeded Peel.

"The devil she did!" exclaimed Bowen. "And what did you do?"

"I went down to reason with her, my lord," said Peel.

"Does one reason with a woman, Peel?" enquired Bowen with a smile.

"I was very young then, my lord, not more than thirty-two." Peel's tone was apologetic. "I discovered that she had received an offer of marriage from another."

"Hard luck!" murmured Bowen.

"Not at all, my lord, really," said Peel philosophicaly. "I discovered that she had re-engaged herself to a butcher, a most offensive fellow. His language when I expostulated with him was incredibly coarse, and I am sure he used marrow for his hair."

"And what did you do?" enquired Bowen.

"I had taken a return ticket, my lord. I came back to London.

Bowen laughed. "I'm afraid you couldn't have been very badly hit, Peel, or you would not have been able to take it quite so philosophically."

"I have never allowed my private affairs to interfere with my professional duties, my lord," replied Peel unctuously.

For five minutes Bowen smoked in silence. "So you do not believe in marriage," he said at length.

"I would not say that, my lord; but I do not think it suitable for a man of temperament such as myself. I have known marriage quite successful where too much was not required of the contracting parties."

"But don't you believe in love?" enquired Bowen.

"Love, my lord, is like a disease. If you are on the look out for it you catch it, if you ignore it, it does not trouble you. I was once with a gentleman who was very nervous about microbes. He would never eat anything that had not been cooked, and he had everything about him disinfected. He even disinfected me," he added as if in proof of the extreme eccentricity of his late employer.

"So I suppose you espise me for having fallen in love and contemplating marriage," said Bowen with a smile.

"There are always exceptions, my lord," responded Peel tactfully. "I have prepared the bath."

"Peel," remarked Bowen as he rose and stretched himself, "disinfected or not disinfected, you are safe from the microbe of romance."

"I hope so, my lord," responded Peel as he opened the door.

"I wonder if history will repeat itself," murmured Bowen as he walked through his bedroom into the bathroom. "I, too, hate Eastbourne."

Chapter XX

A RACE WITH SPINSTERHOOD.

Before she had been at Eastbourne twenty-four hours Patricia was convinced that she had made a mistake in going there. With no claims upon her time, the restlessness that had developed in London increased until it became almost unbearable. The hotel at which she was staying was little more than a glorified boarding house, full of 'the most jungly people' as she expressed it to herself. Their well-meant and kindly efforts to engage her in their pursuits and pleasures she received with apathetic negation. At length her fellow-guests, seeing that she was determined not to respond to their overtures, left her severely alone. The men were the last to desist.

She came to dislike the pleasure-seekers about her and grew critical of everything she saw, the redness of the women's faces, the assumed youthfulness of the elderly men, the shapelessness of matrons who seemed to delight in bright open-work blouses and juvenile hats. She remembered Elton's remark that Fashion uncovers a multitude of shins. The shins exposed at Eastbourne were, she decided, sufficient to undermine one's belief in the early chapters of Genesis.

At one time she would have been amused at the types around her, and their various conceptions of "one crowded hour of glorious life." As it was, everything seemed sordid and trivial. Why should people lose all sense of dignity and proportion at a set period of the year? It was, she decided, almost as bad as being a hare.

All she wanted was to be alone, she told herself; yet as soon as she had discovered some secluded spot and settled herself down to read, the old restlessness attacked her, and fight against it as she might, she was forced back again to the haunts of men.

For the first few days she watched eagerly for letters. None came. She would return to the hotel several times a day, look at the letter-rack, then, to hide her disappointment, make a pretence of having returned for some other purpose. "Why had not Bowen written?" she asked herself, then a moment after she strove to convince herself that he had forgotten, or at least that she was only an episode in his life.

His sudden change from eagerness to indifference caused her to flush with humiliation; yet he had gone to Calvin House during the raid to assure himself of her safety. Why had he not written after what had occurred? Perhaps Aunt Adelaide was right about men after all.

The Farm Water Supply

(Experimental Farms Note.)

In locating the farm home the first essential is a sufficient supply of pure water easily accessible. The origin of fresh water in the earth is usually traceable to the rainfall upon the surface. The earth's crust consists of many layers of varying thickness. These, when considered in connection with water supply, are divided into two classes: porous, or those that will allow water to percolate or flow; and impervious, or those that prevent the movement of water.

When a porous stratum overlies an impervious one there is the collection of the local rainfall from the immediate surrounding drainage basin. When a porous stratum underlies an impervious formation the water will be collected at the outcrop of the former, which may be at a great distance from the well. Should that point be at a higher elevation than the location of well, artesian or flowing water should be secured. This overflow might have sufficient head to elevate the water into homes and barns. In the course of time underground streamlets and streams have formed, and fortunate is the person that locates one of these when digging for water. These streams usually flow along the surface of an impervious earth layer and frequently terminate in a spring on a hillside.

The source of our farm water supply is usually a well that penetrates the ordinary ground-water level or that taps an underground stream. Some are fortunate in locating near a spring, and others get their supply from a stream that flows through the farm. These sources are all good, provided that they are free from contamination. There are three types of wells in common use: the dug well for shallow depths; the driven well for earth formation; and the drilled well where the water bearing stratum is overlaid by rock or hard-pan.

These wells should be protected from polluted surface water. For this reason the well should be located on rising ground, so that the surface water will flow away from it. Dug wells should be walled with water-tight material. If stone or brick is used, cement mortar should be used to seal the interspaces. Concrete makes a good, tight wall. Wells driven through clay are usually safe. Drilled wells should be lined with wrought-iron casing extending to the rock and driven into it to form a water tight joint.

There are three methods in common use in conveying the water from the source of supply to the farm buildings. First, by gravity, when the source is higher than the buildings; second, by the use of an hydralic ram, when there is an abundant supply of running water to operate it; third, by the use of a pump. In installing these last mentioned, galvanized iron pipe of sufficient size to meet the farm requirements should be used.

There are many types of pump on the market. For shallow wells the cistern pump with cylinder in the barrel may be used. For deeper wells the suction pump may be used if the cylinder is placed within 25 feet of the low water mark in the well. The single and double action pumps, with or without power, can be used to elevate water to the desired height.

When water has to be elevated the wind-mill is a cheap source of power. A gasoline engine will do the work at a very low cost, and pumping can be done while the engine is at other work.

Water from limestone formations is hard, and not satisfactory for washing. Rainwater, which is always soft, can be collected from the roofs and stored in cisterns for washing purposes.

The home and barns on every farm need water on tap wherever required, much more than does the city home; because the farm requires more water per capita and the people on the farm have less time to carry water. It is estimated that the average farm family of 5, with 4 horses, 33 head of cattle, 50 sheep and 10 pigs, requires over 000 gallons of water per day.

In conclusion, then, the farm water supply should be adequate to meet the maximum requirements every day; it should be reasonable in cost, simple in construction, durable and easy to operate; it should be fresh, pure and cold at the taps, and it should be available for fire protection.

A Mother Writes

Edna Meyer had her hair and scalp almost completely torn away by the shaft of a windmill on a farm near Hamilton. Her Father, Brother and even her physician donated inches of skin which was grafted on her head. After 27 months of medical treatment the wounds would not heal and became sores. Through her Pastor, Rev. C. E. Burrell she heard of UTOR and in three months her head was completely healed. "I graefully give this testimonial", writes her Mother to William Pugsley. "That others may be cured by using UTOR."

HOW TO SLEEP ON A BARE FLOOR

IT is more a matter of SLEEP, than of bed or board.

Some people can sleep sitting up, standing up, even while walking.

Many people can't sleep in the softest of downy beds; and all of us suffer occasionally from nerve-racking, wearing, tiring wakefulness at night.

There is always a reason for sleeplessness. Usually, it is a "sour" stomach, a liver that has "lain down" on the job, congested bowels, or biliousness.

Then, just before retiring, take Beecham's Pills. They soothe an uneasy stomach, encourage the organs of digestion and elimination to natural activity, and assure restful sleep no matter what!

"I wash all my dainty things with LUX"

"It only takes me a few minutes at night in my own room to wash out my silken underthings, silk stockings or my daintiest blouses and smocks in a basin of the gentle, bubbling Lux suds.

I just dip them up and down in the basin, pressing the rich Lux lather through and through them, and when they are dry, they look just as fresh and beautiful as when new."

Lux will not harm anything that water alone will not harm. No fabric so fine nor hue so delicate that it cannot be washed with Lux.

Facial Blemishes

Sallow, muddy, roughened or blotched complexions are usually due to constipation.

When you are constipated, not enough of Nature's lubricating liquid is produced in the bowel to keep the food waste soft and moving. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it acts like this natural lubricant and thus secures regular bowel movements by Nature's own method—lubrication. Nujol is a lubricant—not a medicine or laxative—so cannot gripe. Try it today.

PRIZES PRESENTED

The presentation of the prizes was a brief informality at the midnight hour. Dr. Hammond presented to Rev. Mr. Ramsay and his rink the second prizes, four silver pie plates and the losing skip paid the honors to the winners, surrendering the Stratton trophy which R. Wray of the Belleville Club had captured last year, and presenting four individual silver cups to Mayneord and his assistants.

It was stated that Jack Fitzgerald directed the last previous local rink that won the Stratton cup ten years ago, and Jack Mayneord was a member of it.

Belleville rinks were all eliminated from the Warne Cup competition.

HOME OF BEDE.

Two Famous Historians Associated With Jarrow.

Two great minds—of types as widely different as can be well imagined—have been, in ancient and modern history, the makers of Jarrow.

For over a thousand years the world, when it heard of Jarrow, thought of Bede. It was the place where that great saint and scholar, "father of English history," had lived his strenuous life, and died his beautiful death—which, as described by the old chronicle with such sublime simplicity of diction, stands out, a cameo, in the mind of the most elementary student of English literature. Here, in his day and generation, Bede did a mighty work. Men marvelled at his learnings, and strangers came long distances into this corner of Northumbria to join the college of six hundred monks over which, while still a young man, he presided. "All that the world then knew of science, music, rhetoric, medicine, arithmetic, astronomy, and physics, were brought together by him." Besides his work as a schoolmaster he had his duties as a monk; yet he found time to write, it is said, a hundred and fifty books, one being his famous "Ecclesiastical History of the English Nation." All that we really know of the century and a half that follows the landing of Augustine we know from him.

England owes much indeed to the Sage of Jarrow, and has never ignored her debt. Though all the ups and downs that separate the eighth century from the twentieth she has paid unstinted honor to his name. And that name has shed a reflected lustre upon Jarrow, though pilgrims coming thither needs must reconstruct the past, in their mind's eye, without much outward help. The light which Bede so well and truly tended has spread far and wide; but the sconce which then upheld it has crumbled into decay. All that remains of the monastery—once far-famed as a seat of light and learning—consists of scanty fragments of two walls, on the brow of the slight hill overlooking "Jarrow Slake," which, prior to its reclamation, was an estuary of the Tyne, about five hundred acres in extent. Beside the ruin stands St. Paul's Church, an old building much rebuilt; and Jarrow, overlooked by these, lay, in the middle of last century, a little village, living on the memory of its past. It had no streets, nor numbers to the houses; and its link with the outer world was a primitive "branch railway" line from Brockley Whins, up the incline of which an old gray horse drew the single carriage which sufficed for local traffic.

Then on the scene came Charles Mark Palmer, one of the foremost pioneers of modern industry; and by a stroke of enterprise endowed Jarrow with "a Present." Up sprang a town, humming like some gigantic hive; its "honey" those rich stores of coal and iron which, in Bede's day and for long after, lay as undreamt-of buried treasure all about the banks of a clear-flowing, silvery Tyne.

Cheated of Just Reward.

It seems always to have been true that a pioneer of any invention which is afterward to become indispensable must suffer misfortune, and perhaps even perish, before his creation can win the recognition it deserves.

This was the case with the steel loom for knitting stockings, invented in the sixteenth century by William Lee.

Lee took his invention to Queen Elizabeth, but she withheld her patronage. Again he improved his machine, so that it would knit silk stockings—the queen's love of silk hosiery had been one of her chief reasons for disinterest—but again he was disappointed at not receiving a royal grant.

Things were no better under James I., so he went to France, and when success was almost within his grasp at the French court the assassination of the king balked him again. Broken-hearted, he died, but in the next century Oliver Cromwell granted a patent on his device to the company of Framework Knitters.

British School Boys of 11 Bet on Horses, Teacher Testifies in an Official Inquiry

London, July 26.—All over England tonight stern fathers were calling their little sons into the sitting room and asking them point-blank if they ever bet on horses. The idea that perhaps a son was more interested in his "bookies" than in his books popped into father's head as soon as he started reading the evening newspaper.

Under exciting headlines he read about the "sensational testimony" given by a woman school teacher at the Government's inquiry into betting. This teacher, whose school is in a poor district, testifies that out of a class of 42 boys, averaging 11 years old, nineteen admitted that they backed horses. She also suspected that others in the class "followed the ponies" with their pennies but were afraid to admit it.

Some of the boys were daily betters, she said, buying a three-penny "tip" and retailing its suggestion to their classmates at a half-penny each. She remarked that the boys were so eager and interested in betting that they had even offered to put up a little penny for her. Colleagues had informed her that conditions were similar in other schools.

Asked by Sir Alfred Butt whether the youngsters understood the intricacies of betting, such as starting prices, she replied: "Oh, dear, yes! They talk about form, the size of the horses and the abilities of the jockeys. I have been astonished at their knowledge."

Through various sources all sorts of betting "tips", race news and paddock gossip are available to all who read, yet much surprise was voiced today over the fact that the youth of the land has hardly got off the rocking horse before beginning to back the real thing.

"What's the News?"

WHEN Columbus and his caravels returned from the New World, the first question shouted from the shore was, "What's the news?"

That's always the question of paramount importance. Years ago folks asked it of the post rider, the soldier returned from the wars, the man who had been down to the settlements, or the neighbor back from the general store.

To-day, you find the answer in your newspaper. Through the newspapers the news of the world and of the community quickly becomes public knowledge. And remember this—it takes two kinds of news to make a modern paper complete.

The first tells of happenings near and far—of fires, sports, elections, accidents, marriages, deaths, great men, great events.

The second tells of things you eat, wear and use—things you buy, things being sold to your friends and neighbors. This news is advertising.

It's just as important to keep up-to-date on the advertising in this paper as it is to read about what's doing in the world of events.

Advertising is an essential news service. It is distinctly to your advantage to be guided by it.

Unique Position of Ottawa-Hull Power Co.'s Market

Plants Located Right in Centre of Populous Industrial Community

The Ottawa and Hull Power Company, Limited, recently purchased by the investment banking house of Nesbitt, Thomson & Co., Montreal, will be capitalized at $1,500,000, 7 per cent. cumulative preferred stock with $25,000 common shares of no par value. It will have an authorized bond issue of $5,000,000, of which it is proposed to presently issue $2,500,000. These will be first mortgage bonds bearing 6 per cent. issue, maturing in twenty-five years, or in 1948.

It is interesting to note that this company will have an extremely low funded debt per horse power, approximately $62 or including the preferred issue about $100 per unit.

Dividends on the preferred stock will be paid quarterly in March, June, September and December 15, free of normal income tax, the same to accrue from Sept. 1, 1923.

The company has an excellent and convenient market for its power in the adjacent cities of Ottawa and Hull and has an established earning power at the present time which is capable of great expansion when the company increases its possible capacity of 100,000 horse power by the development of the site at Bryson, 50 miles above the City of Ottawa on the Ottawa River.

There is now in operation two plants at Chaudierre Falls, one developing 13,500 horse power. The other has two units of 9,000 horse power or over 40,000 horse power for the two combined. Contracts for the third unit now being installed have been signed which will considerably increase the earnings over the return reported for 1922.

The company has an excellent list of customers including a number of the largest consumers of hydro-electric power in the two cities of Ottawa and Hull, all of which take large blocks.

LARGE ARMY OF AMERICNS INVADE OLD LONDON

By Chas. McCann, United Press Staff Correspondent.

London, July 27.—This is an American summer in London. The trans Atlantic tourist movement has passed the proportions of an invasion and become an occupation.

Hotels are filled, boarding house are overflowing. Horn-rimmed men and flat-heeled girls crowd the streets Soda fountains and peanut merchants are enjoying a prosperous season—their first.

Prohibition restrictions in the States have caused a lot of comment and some knocking; Englishmen cannot understand a free people letting anything come between the cup and the lip without a struggle.

But while British sailors were marching in the Portland Fourth of July parade, London hotels, newspaper offices and private homes were flying the Stars and Stripes; and at the hotels Britons helped to celebrate the anniversary of American independence from British rule.

The London County Council gave hotels and restaurants an extra two hours of drinking and dancing for the occasion.

ALL KINDS OF AMERICANS.

Every sort of American is here. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Secretary of Labor Davis represent the government, Senator Brookhart is here in the interest of the common people. There are scores of other senators and representatives, and it would probably be as nearly possible to raise a quorum of either House here as it would in any quarter of the United States.

There are thousands of ordinary citizens, and they run into their neighbors and their bootleggers with shouts of delight that still startle the natives, who disapprove of neighbors as a matter of principle, and don't know what a pal an honest bootlegger can be.

Americans can—and do—go to American shows and see American companies. They dance to the music of Paul Whitman's and Paul Specht's bands. They occupy whole sections of the stands at any sporting event, to watch Americans frequently bring home the bacon.

Johnson and Hunter fought out the final in the All-England tennis championship; Americans were runners-up in the open golf; Hoover and a half dozen brother oarsmen were competitors in the Diamond Sculls at Henley.

PAY SAME PRICES.

Americans pay the same prices at hotels as do Englishmen. There are Anglo-American unveilings, Anglo-American speeches, Anglo-American dinners, informal Anglo-American reunions at "pubs" and cocktail bars, and, at the rougher and wetter cafes, occasional Anglo-American fights.

There is baseball at the Fullham football grounds, and Englishmen who wonderingly recognize baseball as what their children play just after they have learned to walk and forget before they have learned to run, go out to the games just to hear the boys yell. It doesn't mean anything to them; they like the strange noises. They listen and go back home and start discussions in the newspapers about it.

This week's discussion is as to the meaning of "attaboy." The nearest they have got to it so far is that it is a contraction of "At 'em boys."

Battle for Fruit of Durian Tree.

Desperate fights over the ownership of durian trees are of yearly occurrence in the Malay peninsula. Sometimes, when a tree has been found near a borderline, entire villages have been wiped out in the struggle to possess it.

It is impossible to compare the fruit of the durian tree with its extraordinary odor and flavor, to any other. The fruit is creamlike in substance. If the meat of a banana were squashed and mixed with an equal quantity of rich cream, a small quantity of chocolate and enough garlic to lend a strong taste to the whole, the result would be about the nearest possible approach to the flavor and consistency of the durian. At the same time, the flavor is extremely delicate and, of course, indescribably rich.

Story of Rabbit Pie.

In the course of his new wireless sketch, Harry Tate, the comedian, fires off a regular machine-gun fusillade of stories.

One of the best concerns a man who sold what he alleged to be rabbit pies.

Pressed by an irate customer, who found something amiss with their flavor, as to whether the pies were really and truly what they purported to be, the man admitted that they contained "a small admixture of horse-flesh."

Further pressed to say what proportion of each, he replied:

"Oh just fifty-fifty—one horse one rabbit."

Pair Arrested at Buffalo not Implicated, belief of Authorities

Local police at noon today had learned of no new developments in the Toronto messenger robbery case. It was reported that the pair held at Buffalo had been released.

Kingston, July 28.—Considerable excitement prevailed here yesterday when a large red touring car, resembling the one which figured in the hold-up in Toronto last Tuesday, passed through the city. The car was travelling at a terrific rate of speed and witnesses said it contained 7 men.

The fact that Provincial Police officers of the Belleville and Picton districts were deligently seeking traces of a large red car reported to be in the neighbourhood gives color to the assumption that the car which passed through here may have been the bandit auto.

Buffalo, N.Y., July 28.—Police late yesterday afternoon indicated that they had been unable to establish a connection between the two young men and their bullet-riddled car and the missing Toronto gunmen. The men were able to furnish means of identification which the police said apparently was bonafide, and said they probably would be released unless further suspicious circumstances developed.

The men, while admitting they were in Toronto Thursday, denied the holes found in their automobile were caused by gun fire. A revolver found in the car, police said, bore evidence of recent firing, but the authorities, after checking what were said to be reputable references, believed they had not sufficient evidence to hold them.

Toronto, July 28.—

It was stated last night at the General and St. Michael's Hospitals that the three messengers who were wounded in the gun battle between bandits and bank men on Tuesday are all now expected to recover and are doing well. Their wounds are progressing favorably and the three men are now resting much better than on previous days.

GOLF FATAL TO BIRDS

London; (By mail to the United Press).—Partners in golf foursome killed two birds during a round at the Tohrpe Hall course, in Essex.

A. W. Wass drove from the tenth tee. The ball hit a tit-lark fifty yards away. The bird was cut cleanly in two.

Ten minutes later Wass' partner, A. F. Hart, played his second shot—a mashie—from the twelfth fairway and struck a singing lark in flight. The bird was killed, but not mutilated.

Both birds are to be stuffed, and will be placed in the clubhouse along with a partridge and a greenfinch killed by other golfers.

REVIEW OF CITY'S INDUSTRIAL DEVELOPMENT BY J. O. HERITY

Chamber of Commerce Secretary Lists New Industries Brought to City

Editor Intelligencer:

My attention has been called to a letter appearing in your issue of Wednesday, the 25th inst., over the name of Mr. B. A. Sanford, in which the writer makes reference to the industrial situation in Belleville. Mr. Sanford's letter is in a somewhat pessimistic tone that is entirely unwarranted by the facts. He asks, for instance, "What is the matter with our city that we cannot get one single manufacturing concern of any importance to locate here." And then he says, "It seems too bad that all our boys are compelled to go elsewhere to find employment." Then, after enumerating some of the advantages of Belleville as a field for manufacturing enterprise, he asserts that "manufacturing concerns seem to give Belleville the go-by."

The obvious inference to be gathered from these and other similar statements is that Belleville has been standing still or doing nothing while other cities, more wide-awake, had been successful in gathering in a grand harvest of industries that had given Belleville the "go-by."

Let us briefly examine the facts. Since the writer assumed the office of industrial commissioner, and within the last two years, ten new industries have chosen Belleville as their home. This we assert, and challenge successful contradiction of the statement, is a larger number of manufacturing enterprises than has been secured by any town or city in Ontario having less than thirty thousand inhabitants. We have at our office a statistical statement from all the live towns and cities in Ontario showing new industrial locations in recent years and it should be a source of pride to us that Belleville leads them all. We will be pleased to show this statement to Mr. Sanford or to anyone else who may call.

The names of the new organization that located at Belleville in the time mentioned are the Tiger Tire and Rubber Co., the Alemite Products Co., the International Burr Co., Belleville Electric and Stampings Ltd., the Ashley Sweater Co., National Castings Ltd., The American Optical Co., the Baby Shoe Co., Collins Motor Products Ltd., and J. & J. Cash Inc.

To this really splendid list we hope within a few days to add the name of another well established industry that will make another excellent contribution to the manufacturing status of Belleville.

Some of the industries mentioned above are not as yet large employers of labor but all appear soundly established and have before them an exceedingly promising future.

And let it be observed that the people of Belleville could make no greater mistake than to despise an industry because it was small. The McLaughlin Motor Co., the Massey-Harris Co., the International Harvester Co., and the Ford Motor Co., huge as they are today, all began in blacksmith shops where less than a dozen men were employed.

More important than the size of an industry is the fact that it has capable management. With this advantage small industries speedily develop into greater. And, let us remark in passing, that ten industries employing an average of twenty-five hands each, are far more advantageous to any community than a single large industry giving employment to 250 hands. Then our eggs are not all in one basket. We have ten chances for success to one with the larger concern. If one of the smaller companies fail its loss is scarcely felt, whereas if any large, dominating industry fails, we have acute distress and the bread-line.

My own contention is that Belleville should devote her best energies in the years immediately to come, to securing the establishment here of as large a number of industries as can possibly be obtained. Negotiations are being carried on with more than one hundred industries of large proportions in the United States and Great Britain to secure the location of Canadian branches at Belleville. We have secured four such branches here in the past eighteen months and the prospects are excellent to bring in a number of others. But in looking after the big things in the manufacturing world let us not forget that the real road to success lies with the business-like encouragement and development of those of modest size. If we wait here for General Motors to move down from Oshawa or the Massey-Harris establishment to be transferred from Toronto, the chances are that we will all be much older before Belleville expands industrially from any such source. It is unutterable nonsense to entertain such expectations, but we have heard people expressing disappointment because business firms of that formidable size were not crazy enough to shift their vast industrial establishments to Belleville.

There was a time, away back in 1882, when Belleville could have secured what is now the General Motors of Oshawa. At that time Robert McLaughlin, head of a very modest carriage making plant, offered to locate in Belleville. But because of a lack of enterprise and business foresight that now seem incomprehensible to us our people turned him down and he settled and remained in Oshawa.

Within recent years, similar golden opportunities were thrown away when we had the first chance but allowed the Westclox and De Laval companies to pass on to Peterborough, the Sanitary Company to go to Port Hope and the Benedict & Proctor Co. to find a home at Trenton. All of these important and high-class corporations would have stayed at Belleville had there been any properly organized and managed effort to make known to them our advantages. The things needed were hospitality and salesmanship.

Let us correct Mr. Sanford's assertion that "not one single manufacturing concern of any importance" has located here. On the contrary we have established here, in the last year, three industries that are by far the most important of their kind in the world. These are the American Optical Company, Alemite Products Ltd. and J. & J. Cash, Inc.

The people of Belleville do not yet realise how truly important a manufacturing enterprise they have secured in the American Optical Company. It commenced operations here a year ago with only two expert lens manufacturers in charge. A half dozen Belleville boys and girls were at first engaged and trained in the highly technical work of the company. This small band of workers has now expanded to more than fifty and the weekly pay-roll to nearly one thousand dollars. As soon as they have secured a building of their own, expansion will be far more rapid. The writer has had it from responsible officers of the company that they expect within a comparatively few years to be employing one thousand hands in their Belleville plant. Already this newly organised plant has sent its output to Cuba, South America, Great Britain and practically all the countries of continental Europe. Surely we have no right to refer to such an industry as not being "important." It was, by a large margin, the most desirable and important American branch to be established in Canada in the year 1922. An industry of the magnitude that will ultimately be reached by the American Optical Company is, we maintain, worth half a million dollars, as a permanent business asset, to any small urban municipality securing it. The effect on general property values, the increase in population and the distribution among our merchants and other business men of the earnings of workers, who are usually free-spenders and buyers at home, are considerations that need only to be mentioned to enable us to realise their worth. And yet Belleville secured this splendid asset without the payment of one dollar by way of bonuses, free sites or special concessions of any kind, in precisely the same way as all the others have been brought here in the past two years. Instead of this company giving Belleville the "go-by" it came here after determined and prolonged efforts on the part of Lindsay, Peterborough, Brockville, Sherbrooke and a number of other cities in Ontario and Quebec.

Alemite Products Ltd. is a branch of the Bassick Mfg. Co. of Bridgeport, Conn., which has five great plants in the United States. The Alemite lubricating system is only one of the Bassick Company's lines. As others are added we will begin to realise that we have also in the Alemite Company a high-class organization. Only recently its floor space in the Graham building has been doubled.

J. & J. Cash, Inc., to which reference has recently been made in your columns, is an industrial acquisition of which we should all be proud. From the parent plant at Coventry, England, two branches were established in the United States, another in Australia and now Belleville is to have the honor of being the home of the sole Canadian branch. The J. & J. Cash Co. is one of those old reliable, substantially endowed corporations that operate every working day in the year.

There are many people who imagine that such firms as J. & J Cash just happened to come to Belleville, without and particular effort to bring them. To all such we would state that J. & J. Cash came to Belleville only after two years of persistent work by our industrial department. This sufficiently illustrates the fact that such results are not achieved in a moment of time or by mere chance We are all expecting to see too much in too short a period.

It should be remembered also that we have during the past three years been passing through a period of extreme commercial depression when comparatively few industries were thinking of expansion. To achieve the success we have and surpass all other cities in our class is an achievement of which every citizen should speak with pride and gratification.

Belleville is not stagnant, as some would have us believe. In the ten-year period, 1911 to 1921, according to unquestionable figures of the Dominion censors, our increase in population was more than 23 per cent., a higher rate than that shown by Peterborough, Brantford, Guelph, Stratford, Port Arthur, Vancouver and many other cities that are frequently held up to us as models of progress.

As to Mr. Sanford's remark about

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

The meeting was opened by the President, Hon. W. F. Nickle, K.C., who delivered a comprehensive address outlining the years work. He also tendered his resignation as President stating that the honorable position he was priviliged to occupy in the Government necessitated his retiring from office.

The finance Committee recommended the transfer of $278,000, now held in the Mortuary Fund to the Reserve Fund. $130,00 of this amount to be placed to the credit of members joining the Association since Aug. 1st, 1918, and the balance to members joining previous to the above date.

The list of investments during the year showed the great care exercised on the part of the Board of Directors in the selection of the securities purchased. Since the last annual meeting $394,000 has been invested in Government and Municipal Bonds at an average interest rate of 5.52 per cent.

The securities of the Association were examined by the Finance Committee and found to be in complete accord with the Auditors' Report.

The securities now held by the Association amount to $2,784,000.

The retiring Directors for the year Dr. P. T. Copeland, St. Marys, Ont., J Powley, Toronto, Ont., and Dr. J. C. Connell, Kingston, were re-elected for a further period of three years. The Auditors John Nicolle and J. G. Ettinger, were also re-elected for the ensuing year.

R. W. Dickson, Montreal, in very appropriate words, conveyed to the President, Hon. W. F. Nickle, the sincere appreciation of the meeting for the services he had given to the Association since his election as a member of the Board of Directors in 1912 and the signal ability with which he presided as President of the Board during the past five years. He further expressed the regret of every member in learning that the duties devolving upon him as Attorney-General made it necessary to tender his resignation as a Director and asked him on behalf of the representatives in attendance at the Annual Meeting to accept the leather travelling bag, which he then presented, as a slight recognition of the esteem in which he is held by the members of the Oddfellows' Relief Association.

Mr. Nickle made fitting reply and spoke of the sacrifices so often made by men in public life.

A meeting of the Directors was held immediately after the adjournment of the General Meeting, when the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, Dr. J. C. Connell, Kingston; Vice-President, J. Powley, Toronto; Secretary-Treasurer, F. S. Evanson, Kingston.

HYDROPLANE WILL GRACE HOME-COMING

Yacht Races Will be Held on August 4.

Arrangements were completed today for the bringing of a hydroplane to Trenton for the Old Home Coming Celebration. This is due to the personal efforts of Mayor Roenigk and Mr. W. A. Bleecker, the latter being the chairman of the Finance Committee. These two gentlemen visited Kingston and Gananoque on Tuesday and interviewed parties there and today the owner of several machines came to town and a deal was closed.

The Lake Ontario Yacht Racing Association has assured the committee of some good yacht races here for Saturday, August 4th, and as previously announced the 48th Highlanders band will be here for the opening of the celebration on Saturday.

All citizens are invited and urged to co-operate with the committee in every way possible, particularly in the matter of decorating their homes. A prize of $50 is being offered for the best decorated home and in addition a beautiful desk set. Similar prizes are also offered for the best decorated car.

4 LOCAL BOATS TO ENTER RACES

Entertainment Features will Not be Overlooked During Regatta

MANY FROM STATES

Racing Program Provides Events in Which Various Classes Will Compete

The regatta which will be held here next week on the Bay of Quinte off Massassaga Park promises to be the aquatic event of the season. The committee in charge of the affair are leaving nothing undone to secure not only good races, but will also provide ample entertainment for the many visiting yachtmen who will visit the city. The races will be on Big bay which is an ideal place for such an event and from off Massassaga Park an excellent view of the crafts as they sail over the course can be obtained.

Several yacht clubs will be represented, namely the Royal Yacht Club of Toronto; Royal Yacht Club, of Hamilton, Kingston, Oswego, Rochester, Buffalo, Cleveland; Crescent of Watertown and the Bay of Quinte Club.

In the yacht racing events four local boats will be entered, namely the Temeraire, owned by Messrs. E. G. Porter K. C., M. P., and others; Helen D., owned by S. E. Carman; Ripple, owned by Mr. R. B. Cooper, and the Thestle, owned by Judge Wills.

Swift motor boats from various places will be in competition for prizes and exciting races are anticipated. Some of the local motor boats will be competitors in their various classes.

The Dinghy's race will prove to be an attraction for many crafts of this type. At least five fourteen foot dinghy's from the Kingston Yacht Club will be here whilst there will be entries from other clubs. We have in this city crafts of this type which are speedy and some of them we venture to predict will not be tail enders.

Altogether the program provided is the most extensive and interesting that has ever been prepared here. That many visiting yachtmen will be in the city there is not the slightest doubt.

HUSKIE MEETS NAYADA TODAY

Latter is Winner of Third Heat in George Cup Race

Watertown, N.Y., July 28.—Nayada of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club, butted into the picture yesterday, trounced the fleet and tried Huskie, Watertown defender for the trophy honor. She won by two minutes and eight seconds in time and three hundred yards in distance. Before the race it looked as if the battle for the silverware was between Riowna, of Toronto, winner Wednesday, and the Huskie, which finished in front yesterday. But Nayada surprised everybody by trouncing Huskie in her own weather.

Nayada victorious, and the abject defeat of Riowna, leaves Huskie and Nayada tied at eleven points each for first, and forces a sail-off today.

A typical Huskie wind provided today, and it looked like a cinch for Ed. Lansing's craft before the starting gun. After the start it was different. The Nayada, with her new light mainsail, was a different boat. Skipper Wilson took her across in front and she was never afterward headed.

Chirya, of Kingston, was second across the starting line and held her place to the first mark to winward, but on the second leg with a pinnaker run, the Huskie overhauled her and slipped into second place. There she stayed. The Chirya was easily third and the Latonka, of Oswego, was fourth, one half mile astern of the Chirya, with the Riowna of Toronto last.

Nayada, 1, 1; Huskie, 1, 1; Diowna, 9; Chirya, 8; Latonka, 6.

Time was —Nayada, 1.32.38; Huskie, 1.34.30; Chirya, 1.37.15.

COMPLETE WORK.

WASH-GRAVEL PLANT WILL SOON BE IN OPERATION IN HUNTINGTON

Corporation Acquires 425 Acres of Rich Deposits—Large Market for Product Assured

Note—The subjoined contributed article was available for publication by the Intelligencer yesterday but could not be "set up," owing to machine trouble.

Unknown to those residents outside of the immediate locality, a highly important industrial and business development is taking place in the fourth concession of the township of Huntingdon. Within the next month there will be in operation there the most complete wash-gravel plant in the Dominion of Canada, while the magnificent mountain of pure gravel, known as Schryver's Hill, is pronounced by experts to be the finest deposit of its kind within our national boundaries.

To the organization known as Robertson Limited, formerly Quinlan and Robertson, belongs the credit for this new promotion and enterprise. The ample finances behind this company have enabled them to carry forward the project on a scale commensurate with its importance.

The corporation has acquired about 425 acres of land which comprises what were formerly the Murray, Post, Schryver and Keller farms in the fourth concession and part of the Alcombrack farm immediately across the road in the third concession. The holdings cover the whole face of the hill, the valley immediately below, and extend well back on the plateau above.

As to the extent of the deposit, only such words as "inexhaustible" and "unlimited" apply. From this vast repository of souveniers of the glacial period tens of millions of car-loads of gravel can be removed and tens of millions more will be there awaiting the giant dipper. The summit of the hill is 752 feet above sea level, 503 feet higher than the surface of the Bay of Quinte, and 240 feet above Rawdon creek which courses in the valley below. A test shaft sent down to a depth of 100 feet, about half way up the slope, demonstrated that the bed at that depth showed no sign of exhaustion and was a superior quality to that found upon the surface.

To make this gigantic gravelline storehouse of value to the people of Ontario has required an elaborate layout of railway spurs and sidings, the construction of a water system as capacious as that supplying a large town and the erection of a plant that is in itself extensive and imposing. Beyond all this was the courage, vision and enterprise that go with successful business and the engineering skill required to put business plans into practical execution.

The spur-line of the railway breaks away at Fuller (formerly Ivanhoe) station on the Canadian National line running between Belleville and Madoc. From the station it extends south, almost across the concession, and for a distance of slightly over a mile. Thus by a series of three branch lines it zig-zags, by a five per cent. grade, more than one hundred feet up the side of the mountain where the initial development and excavation will take place.

Water for washing purposes is secured from Gowdy's creek ,a fine, steady, spring-fed stream that is dammed back for a considerable distance to provide a reservoir for the pumping station. An engine of 100 h.p. will drive the main pump. An eight-inch water pipe connects the reservoir with the washing trestle about a quarter of a mile away.

The main dumping bins are 17 by 81 feet on the foundation and 58 feet high. Naturally they are of ponderous construction and permit the loading of flat cars from both sides as a matter of only a few minutes' operation.

The gravel will be of four grades, according to size of pebbles, while there will be two grades of sand as a result of the washing and screening.

The gravel deposit, as suggested above, is singularly pure. But over the top there is from six inches to a foot of sandy loam. By an ingenious process of washing the loam, because of its lighter gravity, floats away in the water while the heavier sand sinks to the bottom of the washing tank and is saved.

In the gravel beds there area few boulders as well. The latter will scarcely ever exceed a foot in diameter but whenever they are of a size larger than are supposed to be graded as gravel they will be automatically sorted out and conveyed to the crusher. The boulders are of the "hard-head" variety and will, when crushed, form the best quality of macadam.

Power for the crusher and the conveying and washing apparatus is supplied by two boilers and an engine of 125 h.p.

An excavator that will lift two and a half cubic yards of gravel at every motion of the titanic scoop will dig more gravel out of the hillside than could be handled in the same time by an army of one hundred shovellers.

A seven-ton Plymouth gasoline locomotive will be employed to shift the dump-cars to the trestle.

What is "wash" gravel and where will a market for it be found?

The answer is that the gravel as it comes from the pit is put through a water-bath and the finer pebbles and particles of sand are washed out and sorted by the screens according to size.

It has been discovered by road builders in the United States and Canada that the most durable and economic material for road surface, on the average country highway, is good clean gravel. It is easy to apply, cheap to maintain, convenient to repair and durable beyond most others. The washed gravel is better yet. Then we have the important uses for cement construction, stucco and a number of others.

The market will embrace Toronto on the west and all of eastern Ontario in the opposite direction.

The company expects to employ about forty hands at the start, practically all of them skilled in special work in the operation of the plant.

Mr. W. E. Tummon, ex-reeve of Huntingdon, who has been associated with Quinlan & Robertson for a number of years, has undoubtedly been the moving spirit behind this new development that will mean so much to his native township. Mr. Tummon will perform the duties of general manager of the company while Mr. U. Marcotte will be superintendent of the plant.

Mr. E. L. Mills, who was one of the chief engineers in charge of the construction work at the new Welland canal, has worked out the details of engineering problems in connection with the Schryver's Hill enterprise and has brought about what has every appearance of being a most convenient and serviceable layout.

It will be recalled that the early operations while sinking the test shaft on the hill gave rise to rumors that the company was digging for gold. There was considerable excitement among surrounding property holders for a time. Others dug shafts on their own account, but careful assays of the samples secured failed to reveal the slightest trace of gold.

Louis Aziz, a foreigner, was yesterday placed under arrest by Inspector Naphin. The accused is charged with an infraction of the Ontario Temperance Act, namely, of having liquor in a public place other than his residence. Aziz is a resident of Deseronto but was arrested in Thurlow where it was alleged the offence took place. This morning the accused was brought up before Magistrate Mason and the case by request of counsel for the defendant was enlarged until Monday. Aziz was allowed out on bail which was furnished.

Cure for Corns.

A good plan to get rid of corns is to buy from a chemist some gutta percha tissue. Cut it into strips, and wind a piece round the corn, having first moistened it with olive oil. See that the edges of the tissue are as even as possible, and when you come to the end of the strip, wet the edge with spirits of turpentine. Press it down, and it will stick. Also, dip a feather in turpentine, and touch all the edges to make them adhere. Leave this dressing on four days, and when you remove it the corn should be quite easily got out. Be particular about the edges adhering, as the exclusion of the air is the main point to consider.

Tree Growth.

With the aid of a newly designed denrograph, some remarkable features relating to the growth of trees was determined. These included such phenomena as actual daily shrinkage and expansion of trunk circumference, a restricted period of growth (not over three months' duration), and a non-rhythmic growth dependent solely on food supply, temperature and moisture. It was also found that the inchoate foliage and the elongation of branches may occur weeks before the trunks begin to enlarge.

Phrenology.

The brain that counts is from the ear to the top of the head and the ear to the forehead. The back part of the brain only shows affection and it is not nice affection, unless the head is rather rounded out between the crown of the head and the neck at the back. The more the head juts out at the back, the more affectionate and kind will be the nature.

Many Stamps.

When a bill of exchange for 490,000,000 marks (about $25,000) recently reached the Wilhelmshaven branch of the German National Bank for collection the various official stamps on it were so numerous that they covered an attached roll of paper nine meters in length, according to a German newspaper report.

Static Interference.

"Static," what it is and why it is, are known to all radio experts, but how to eliminate it is absolutely unknown. Midday in summer is the time of minimum radio efficiency, when static is at its worst. Midnight in midwinter is the time of maximum radio efficiency, when static is practically unnoticed.

To Prevent Goitre.

Goitre is an expression of deficiency of iodine in the thyroid. Elaborate experiments made recently by Dr. O. P. Kimball on school children furnish evidence that administering a minute quantity of iodine every day acts as a preventative in such regions where goitre prevails.

MR. HARDING'S VIEWS

President Harding's belief that the nations of Europe might profit materially by the example of the United States and Canada is well founded. The United States' executive in his Vancouver speech recalled the obvious relationship of the two countries, stressing the notable absence of frontier safeguards and the perfect accord which marks the relations of the two peoples.

Everyone will undoubtedly endorse Mr. Harding's statement that "it is the public will, not force, that makes for enduring peace". This fact has been amply proven by the experiences of European nations.

However, the public will is strongly influenced by politics and the attitude of most European peoples is the reflection of the views of political leaders. They are products of the old school of European diplomacy and the peoples of the nations which are usually at loggerheads are considered merely as political pawns, their welfare being rated as secondary to the aims of the leaders, despite the fact that the welfare of these nations is directly reponsive to the condition of the people.

Fortunately, while the domestic political situations of the United States and Canada are by no means perfect, their interests are not politically interwoven and their political squabbles are hence strictly private affairs.

Again, an obvious feature of the relations of the United States and Canada is the wholesome respect each exhibits toward the other. For more than a century, as Mr. Harding pointed out, the two nations have existed as amicable neighbors. Governments have risen and fallen, Liberal and Conservative, Republican and Democratic, but the relationship has remained the same. There has been no hint of friction.

As a matter of fact, this relationship is scarcely short of exemplary, whether from a national or an individual view point. And, while the hope that other nations may profit by the example is perhaps an ambitious one, the example exists and certainly its moral influence is not impotent.

President Harding spoke lightly of the "annexation talk", a bugbear in certain circles and frankly deprecated the proposition. In this Mr. Harding voiced the views of all well-informed leaders of both nations.

Canada as a British Dominion has prospered mightily. She is, in some respects, more democratic than her neighbor. With Great Britain as the nucleus, Canada and her sister colonies form the component parts of he world's greatest Empire.

Undoubtedly the moderating influences born of this arrangement have served to strengthen and direct the courses of the governments of these dominions. As a result, many of Canada's social, economic and political institutions are more sound than those of her neighbor.

ANOTHER LANDSLIDE

The Conservative landslide in Prince Edward Island affords further proof of the overwhelming pro-Conservative sentiment throughout Canada and confirms the claims of Conservative leaders that the electorate generally desire a return to sound, conservative government.

The capture of 26 seats out of 30 in Thursday's elections was virtually an annihilation as far as other parties are concerned. This is of special significance since Dominion Liberal leaders were active on behalf of Liberal candidates. As a political prognosis the victory in Prince Edward Island is clearly indicative of Liberal reverses in the next Dominion elections.

While the political situations in Prince Edward Island and in Ontario are not noticeably similar, the relation of the interests of the two provinces to the Liberal government at Ottawa have produced identical reactions, proving conclusively that the Conservative party is united in its disapproval of Liberal policies.

This attitude of disapproval was denoted by the defeat in both provinces of the Premiers and several cabinet members. From the election returns it may be logically assumed that the present Dominion administration is not popular.

The Conservative victories in Prince Edward Island and Ontario should prove mutually beneficial and should prove effective in paving the way for a general Conservative victory at the next general election.

By The Side Of The Road

A judge at Muskegon, Mich., has announced that in his jurisdiction hereafter the wife, who allows liquor to be sold in her home by the husband must suffer the same penalty as he. "I know from experience no married man can violate the law unless his wife consents", says the wily judge. How about the husband, whose wife makes home brew against his wishes?

A thief who is accused of tickling a New York professor's feet is charged with "gurglary", according to the New York Times. Wonder what the penalty is?

A Chicago man, charged with having slain a chicken five years ago, has just been freed of a cruelty charge by the judge. Perhaps if he had slain one of his fellow men, he would have been at liberty long ago. The prisoner was specifically charged with having "beaten and tortured" the chicken. No, it was a real chicken of the barnyard variety.

Perhaps President Harding was more enthusiastically welcomed in Vancouver than would have been the case had he visited a state in the "solid south" (Democratic).

PRESS OPINIONS

SERVANTS OF THE PUBLIC.
(Montreal Star)

A teacher gets less than an unskilled farm hand, if board and lodging be taken into account. Yet the teacher is supposed to posses a sound education, to maintain an immaculate personal appearance and to set the pupils an example in such social arts as are concerned with ordinary daily life. The teacher has fifty compulsory grounds for expenditure to the unskilled laborer's one.

We expect our teachers to be accomplished, resourceful, tactful, unfailingly reasonable, self-controlled, amiable, cordial, cheerful, encouraging and optimistic—and we pay them at the same rate as a day-laborer. They have nobody to fight their battles but themselves, and they have no time to combine and formulate any effective plan of campaign that shall force their claims upon the attention of the governing authorities.

DE MORTUIS.
(London Morning Post)

As a trans-Atlantic liner was entering New York harbor, an American passenger proudly pointed out to a Frenchman who was standing beside him on the deck the famous Statue of Liberty. The Frenchman gazed, and remarked, "We also erect statues to our illustrious dead."

CROOKED INFORMERS.
(Guelph Mercury)

Speaking of liquor enforcement methods, Premier Drury is reported as saying that "mercy and toleration are no use in prosecuting offenders." It will be a sorry time for justice in the courts if mercy and toleration are to be cast aside and considerations of humanity are ignored. There are some being convicted now who are not thought guilty, but under the system the evidence of crooked informers is preferable to the word of honest men. The law assumes guilt unless the accused proves innocence. That's a serious departure from British justice.

ALL IS NOT GOLD.
(Toronto Star)

Labor gains more through steady employment at fair wages than short working periods at a temporary high level.

A certain percentage of Canadian workmen have been tempted by the temporary high levels in the United States to forsake steady employment at fair wages in Canada. Some have even moved their families across the line.

It is a short-sighted policy, and with the beginning of the end of abnormal wages already in sight, a proportion of the absentees will drift back into the Canadian labor market.

Far-away fields are green, but the migrant who seeks them must reckon with the possibility of sudden drought.

TO STAY AT HOME IS BEST.
(Montreal Le Canada)

We are faced with certain difficulties at present, but an identical situation exists in other countries, in the United States as elsewhere. The war left us with problems which only the united efforts of everybody will satisfactorily solve.

The better plan is clearly to stay in the province of Quebec, but rather than emigrate to the United States a Canadian should stay in Canada. This will be the best way of helping the government to renew for us the prosperity of former years. Emigration cannot improve the conditions of those who go, while the loyal industry of all our citizens will bring prosperity and happiness to the Dominion.

BOOTLEGGERS AND PROHIBITION
(Buffalo Evening Times)

The way the people are plundered by the Volstead Act and the conditions consequent on it, is beyond the power of mind to conceive and shocking to every instinct of honesty.

With the public deprived at one fell stroke of healthful beer and light wines made by approved processes and by responsible manufacturers, the bootlegger and his products are the only resort left.

The liquors sold under this system fetch anywhere from double to three or four times a reasonable price and the price increases every time they change hands.

The total thus mulcted from the people is enormous. It runs into the billions. This extortion is growing bigger all the time.

The horde of Prohibition spies and officials, in soft jobs on big salaries and living on the fat of the land, are anxious to perpetuate this state of affairs.

The bootleggers are piling up fortunes. The bootlegging millionaires and the high salaried prohibition officers are alike dependent on the Volstead Act for their easy money. They have struck hands in an unholy alliance of mutual support of the absurd and tyrannical legislation to which they both owe their big money and soft snap.

And the people are gouged.

A man seldom measures his own faults and those of his neighbor by the same rule.

FANNING WITH FARRELL

FEW KIND WORDS ABOUT JACK KEARNS

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

ew York, July 27 (United Press).—manager or prominent figure connected with boxing has been "panned" ack Kearns has. No one is being pon the carpet now like the manager o the world's heavyweight champion.

ragraphers and editorial writers, shy copy; gossippers on the street, out of ects, and cartoonists, groping for , pick out Kearns as a good object the "rassberry."

ends of Kearns have always maind that he was a square shooter, a fellow and a "regular guy." Fds and others alike have to admit t he is the greatest manager ever n to boxing and a business man d enough to hold his own with the est in the country.

was not until Kearns became enged in the financial meshes at Shelbat he had a good opportunity to that he was "regular" and few about it because he did not choose vertise it.

arns is being painted in words and pres as the man responsible for the ose of three banks in Montana and bursting of Shelby's bubble, because forced the promoters of the fight to k themselves and the city to give hampion his "pound of flesh."

arns did nothing of the kind. It not his fault that the fight was a ." He cannot be blamed for the management of the fight that made ale out of what should have been 0,000 attraction.

mpsey did not get his "pound of " because Kearns was regular gh to push aside a contract that d have held in any court of the ted States, and because he was willto accept what he could get.

o one could have blamed Kearns if ad pulled out of the fight when the oters admitted that they had failo raise the $100,000 for the third ment on Dempsey's purse. Fights a big business now. Kearns is a ess man, and the promoters were ted with being some of the best ess men in the north-west. They d a contract and the promoters did ive up to it. Any attorney can the answer.

• • •

Late on the afternoon of July 2, when the promoters had until midnight to turn over the $100,000 to Kearns, or admit that they could not live up to their contract, word was sent to the champion's manager, through newspapermen, that the money was not available and could not be raised.

Kearns decided, more than eight hours before the "zero hour," to send Dempsey into the ring for the $210,000 that had already been paid to him, if the promoters could not give him any more.

He waited in his hotel until 11 o'clock for some of the promoters to come to him and talk it over. It was not his business to start after the money until midnight, and the promoters were not businesslike enough to come and see him.

Shortly before midnight, one of the financiers of the fight gave out a rather inconsiderate statement that they didn't have the money, that they were not going to give Dempsey his "pound of flesh," that they didn't want to talk to Kearns and that, regardless of the contract, "Kearns had better have Dempsey in that ring tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock."

• • •

Kearns, quite naturally, became indignant and he said if they wanted to act that way he would act right back and he would force them to meet every period and comma in the contract.

When midnight passed, Kearns was still ready to talk it over, and finally one of the more sound-minded of the promoters came over to his hotel for a talk, and it was fixed up.

Even after Kearns had agreed to their proposition, the fight never would have taken place if he had not taken over the management early in the afternoon.

Just before time for the main bout, not one of the promoters could be found. Kearns hustled around and got Dempsey and Gibbons in the ring, got the fight started and ran the show. He sold the tickets and acted as the mediator when the summons servers began to show up with threats to stop the fight.

Much of the public's animosity toward Kearns is the result of a misunderstanding. When the champion's manager was on his way east to see the Firpo-Willard fight, he was asked how much he wanted for the next Dempsey fight.

"I'd take a million if I could get it," he replied.

It then appeared in print that Kearns wanted a million dollars for the next fight and the "razzberries" showered down.

NOTED HOCKEYIST CLAIMED BY DEATH

Quebec, July 28.—The local sporting world was shocked yesterday upon learning of the sudden death of Mike Quinn, who for a number of years was the leading figure in local hockey circles and also professional hockey circles in eastern Canada.

Mike was connected with the Crescent hockey team in 1901, while in 1902-3-4-5 he was with the amateur Quebec Hockey Club.

When the professional team was organized in 1908-9, Mike was named manager of the club and he remained at the head of the team for several seasons including 1912-13 and 1913-14, when the Quebec team won the championship of the world and the Stanley Cup.

"Jack" Derry Heads Kingston Ball Team

Kingston, July 28.—It is officially announced that John Derry, of the firm of Walsh and Derry tailors, has been appointed manager of the Kingston team in the Central Ontario League. James "Flat" Walsh has been compelled to give up the leadership owing to the fact that he is leaving the city. Owing to a previous engagement Mr. Derry will not be able to accompany the team to Peterboro on Saturday.

"Jack" Derry has had a long and honorable connection with sport in this city and district. For many years a leading player on the old-time Triple Links in the days when championships came their way with great regularity, and still later with the Ponies. He established a reputation for clean honest sportsmanship which he has sustained through his later connection with baseball and in the other sports in which he has taken part.

TYPOS TROUNCED BY 34TH BATTERY

Soft Ball Fans Treated to Lively Exhibition

The Typos made their official bow to the soft-ball fans last evening and although they lost the game they put up a hard battle and will be heard from later. The odd error here and there coupled with failure to come through in the pinches spelled the printers downfall. The final score was 13-6 with the 34th Battery on the long end. The Battery fielded a nifty aggregation but like their opponents they need a little practice. In Major "Bob" Graham they have a first class receiver.

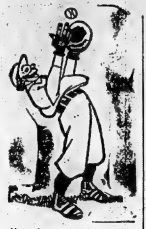
In the absence of the regular hurler Lormer Mason stepped into the breach and made a grand job of it. Cook behind the bat was bothered by the flying sand and has ordered a gas mask for the next game.

Lloyd hurled a nice game and was given air-tight support.

The printers made a great bid to pull the fat out of the fire in the last of the seventh but their rally was cut short.



Above shows one of the reasons for the printers loss. McDonald couldn't be persuaded to drop one single fly. Note the posture of him.

Stan Nurse and "Bun" Frechette made a first class pair of arbiters.

"Stub" Barrett's McLaughlin sixes and Reid's Shoemen will clash on Monday night at 6.15 wih Bun Frechette and A. Donahue in charge.

The Tiger Tire and 34th are now a tie with a win each. The deadlock will be broken on Wednesday night when these two teams meet.

Printers—Scott, Mason, p; Curry, Speers, Stoco, Barlow. Wiley, Hill, Cook, c.

RED CURRANT JAM.

Red currant jam may be made like that of black currant, but about three fourths as much sugar as fruit is needed. It is rather necessary to sieve out the seeds, but if the skin is not too finely broken up in the process the jam may suggest the difficult bar-le-duc, at any rate in flavor if not in appearance. Perhaps it is more like the latter if a thick syrup is made first and the seeded currants cooked in that. The problem is to get out the seeds without breaking up the skin.

BLACK CURRANT JAM.

In these days of high sugar prices, it is well to remember that black currants require less sugar than any other fruit. Get the currants as fresh as you can, as they are of little worth when wilted. For each pound of fruit allow one-fourth pound of sugar, and stir gently with a wooden spoon over a small fire until the sugar is dissolved, then bring slowly to a boil and cook evenly until a little of it will stiffen when dropped on a plate. Put up like any jam.

Health For Weak Despondent People

From End to End of Canada Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Doing Good Work

There is not a nook or corner in Canada, in the cities, towns, villages and on the farms, where Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have not been used and from one end of the country to the other people sound their praise. You have only to ask your neighbors and they can tell you of some run down man, suffering woman, ailing youth or unhappy anaemic girl who owes their present health and strength to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The success of this medicine is due to the fact that it acts directly upon the blood, making it rich and pure, and thus brings new strength to every organ and nerve in the body. Mr. Andrew F. Webb, Melanson, N.S., tells what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for him as follows:—"I was in a run down condition from overwork and what the doctor called a nervous breakdown. My sister urged me to try Dr. Williams Pink Pills. After taking several boxes I improved wonderfully and feel like a different person. I sleep well, eat well and my nerves are stronger and with confidence I can recommend these pills to all weak, run down people."

If you are suffering from any condition due to poor, watery blood, or weak nerves, begin taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills now, and note how your strength and health will improve. You can get these pills through any dealer in medicine, or they will be sent by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

HEADS WORLD BAPTISTS

Stockholm, July 27.—Dr. E. Y. Mullins, of Louisville, Ky., was unanimously elected yesterday president of the Baptist World Alliance by the third congress of the alliance in session here.

BEFORE MY BABY CAME

I Was Greatly Benefited by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sydenham, Ont.—"I took your medicine before my baby was born, and it was a great help to me as I was very poorly until I had started to take it. I just felt as though I was tired out all the time and would have weak, faint spells. My nerves would bother me until I could get little rest, night or day. I was told by a friend to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I only took a few bottles and it helped me wonderfully. I would recommend it to any woman. I am doing what I can to recommend this good medicine. I will lend that little book you sent me to any one I can help. You can with the greatest of pleasure use my name in regard to the Vegetable Compound if it will help others take it."—Mrs. HARVEY MILLIGAN, Sydenham, Ontario.

It is remarkable how many cases have been reported similar to this one. Many women are poorly at such times and get into a weakened, run-down condition, when it is essential to the mother, as well as the child, that her strength be kept up.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent tonic for the mother at this time. It is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs, and does not contain any harmful drugs. It may be taken in safety by the nursing mother. C

British Engineers Busy.

Contracts for engines and railroad stocks for foreign and colonial customers have been booked by British firms in such volume as to keep their engineers and laborers hard at work for months to come. Beardmore & Co. of Glasgow have obtained an order for the reconstruction of repairing workshops of Portuguese railroads, and are making twenty-seven locomotives and 3,350 pairs of wheels for Indian railroads. Beyer, Peacock & Co., Ltd., of Gorton, Manchester, have booked an order for thirty locomotives from the East Indian Railway Company. Beardmore & Co. also will make three engines for East Burmah, and the Vulcan Company of Manchester is manufacturing thirty-five locomotives for India. Altogether British engineering firms have recently booked orders from abroad for close upon $10,000,000.

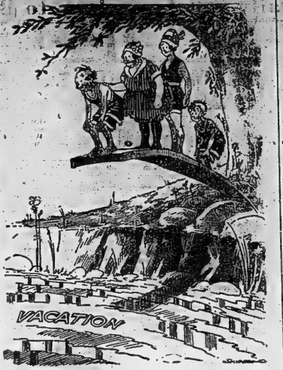
Small Glands Are Really of the Highest Importance.

Of all the fascinating mysteries connected with human life there is none of more absorbing interest, nor more full of possibilities for future development for the good of mankind, than the discovery of the forces which guide and control the growth of the body and regulate its activities in regard to appetites, feelings and emotion. Gradually we are learning something about a number of small glands, each of which makes a special material that is poured into the blood, whence it exerts a profound influence on these activities. Indeed, so powerful is the influence of some of these glands, small as most of them are, that their loss will result in death. They are intimately concerned with such questions as being tall or short, fat or thin, the growth and texture of hair and bone, the regulation of the sex functions and maturity, and the changes which take place in the body when one is worried, anxious or afraid. Practical use is already being made of the little that is known about them. But there is much danger that ignorance and speculation may lead to exploitation and charlatanry at the expense of the uninformed, the best preventive for which is a plain statement of the truth. Doctor Cannan, one of the pioneers in this field, tells in Hygeia what is known and adds that these "glands exercise such potent influences on our efficiency and well-being that when we know how they operate we shall probably be in a position to determine the manifestations of sex characters and possibly influence sex behavior, modify the growth of children and of lower animals, and order the rate or nature of chemical change in our bodies. We are still far from attaining these ends. In the presence of both the overenthusiastic and the overconservative, the attitude which is certain to be right in the end is that of demanding rigorously the well-ascertained facts as a basis for both critical judgment and for hope.

"JUMP, DAD, JUMP, WE'RE ALL READY!"



PATRICIA BRENT SPINSTER

ANONYMOUS

Patricia wrote to Lady Tanagra, Mrs. Hamilton, Lady Peggy, Mr. Triggs, even to Miss Sikkum. In due course answers arrived; but in only Miss Sikkum's letter was there any reference to Bowen, a gush of sentiment about "how happy you must be, dear Miss Brent, with Lord Bowen running down to see you every other day. I know!" she added with maidenly prescience. Patricia laughed.

Mr. Triggs committed himself to nothing more than two and three-quarter pages, mainly about his daughter and "A. B", Mr. Triggs was not at his best as a correspondent. Lady Tanagra ran to four pages; but as her handwriting was large, five lines filling a page, her letter was disappointing.

Lady Peggy was the most productive. In the course of twelve pages of spontaniety she told Patricia that the Duke and the Cabinet Minister had almost quarrelled about her. Patricia "Peter has been to lunch with us and Daddy has told him how lucky he is, and how wonderful you are. If Peter is not very careful, I shall have you presented to me as a stepmother. Wouldn't it be priceless!" she wrote. "Oh! What am I writing?" She ended with the Duke's love, and an insistence that Patricia should lunch at Curzon Street the first Sunday after her return.

Patricia found Lady Peggy's letter charming. She was pleased to know that she had made a good impression and was admired—by the right people. Twenty-four hours, however, found her once more thrown back into the trough of her own despondency. Instinctively she began to count the days until this "dire compulsion of infertile days" should end. She could not very well return to London and say that she was tired of holiday-making. Galvin House would put its own construction upon her action and words, and whatever that construction might be, it was safe to assume that it would be an unpleasant one.

There were moments when a slight uplifting of the veil enabled her to see herself as she must appear to others.

"Patricia," she exclaimed one morning to her reflection in a rather dubious mirror. "You're a cumberer of the earth and, furthermore, you've got a beastly temper," and she jabbed a pin through her hat and partly into her head.

As the days passed she found herself wondering what was the earliest day she could return. If she made it Friday night, would it arouse suspicion? She decided that it would, and settled to leave Eastbourne on the Saturday afternoon.

As the train steamed out of the station she made a grimace in the direction of the town, just as an inoffensive and prematurely bald little man opposite looked up from his paper. He gave Patricia one startled look through his gold-rimmed spectacles and, for the rest of the journey, buried himself behind his paper, fearful lest Patricia should "make another face at him," as he explained to his mother that evening.

"She's come home in a nice temper!" was Miss Wangle's diagnosis of the mood in which Patricia reached Galvin House.

Gustave regarded her with anxious concern.

The first dinner drove her almost mad. The raid, as a topic of conversation, was on the wane, although Mr. Bolton worked at it nobly, and Patricia found herself looked upon to supply the necessary material for the evening's amusement. What had she done? Where had she been. Had she bathed? Were the dresses pretty? How many times had Bowen been down? Had she met any nice people? Was it true that the costumes of the women were disgraceful?

At last, with a forced laugh, Patricia told them that she must have "notice" of such questions, and everybody had looked at her in surprise, until Mr. Bolton's laugh rang out, and he explained the parliamentary allusion.

When at last, under pretence of being tired, she was able to escape to her room, she felt that another five minutes would have turned her brain.

Sunday dawned, and with it the old panorama of iterations unfolded itself: Mr. Bolton's velvet coat and fez, Mr. Cordal's carpet slippers with the fur tops, Mrs. Barnes' indecision, Mr. Sefton's genial and romantic optimism, Miss Sikkum's sumptuary excesses; all presented themselves in due sequence just as they had done for—"was it centuries?" Patricia asked herself. To crown all it was a roast pork Sunday, and the reek of onions preparing for the seasoning filled the house.

Patricia felt that the fates were fighting against her. In nerving herself for the usual human Sunday ordeal, she had forgotten the vegetable menace, in other words that it was "pork Sunday." Mr. Bolton was always more than usually trying on Sundays; but reinforced by onions he was almost unbearable. Patricia fled.

It was the Sunday before August Bank Holiday. Patricia shuddered at the rememberance. It meant that people were away. She did not pause to think that her world was at home, pursuing its various paths whereby to cultivate an appetite worthy of the pork that was even then sizzling in the Galvin House kitchen under the eagle eye of the cook, who prided herself on her "crackling," which Galvin House crunched with noisy gusto.

Baby's Great Danger During Hot Weather

More little ones die during the hot weather than at any other time of the year. Diarrhoea, dysentry, cholera infantum and stomach troubles come without warning, and when a medicine is not at hand to give promptly the short delay too frequently means that the child has passed beyond aid. Baby's Own Tablets should always be kept in the house where there are young children. An occasional dose of the Tablets will prevent stomach and bowel troubles, or if the trouble comes suddenly the prompt use of the Tablets will relieve the baby. The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25c. a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Tar For Cement Protection.

Investigations have been made on the use of gas for the purpose of impregnating cement to protect it against various influences. The liquid gas tar that is used for this purpose is obtained as a by-product in the manufacture of gas, and is very cheap. Both cement and mortar absorb the material very readily. The cement that is treated with this product can be stored for six months in a strongly alkaline solution without any bad effects, while untreated cement was badly injured by this treatment. The impregnated samples did not exhibit any loss in strength or durability.

World's Greatest Crater.

The largest volcanic crater in the world has been discovered, it is reported, by two Swedish scientists. It took them nine days, using three horses and sledges to cross the great sea of ice of the Wainajokel from west to east in order to reach Kolar on the Fjord of Hornar. Upon the Hogjokel they found a tremendous volcanic crater containing hot water and no less than eight kilometers long and five kilometers wide. It was surrounded by a number of hot springs. The discoverers named it the Svea crater.

When the Waiter Scored.

"Do you call that a veal cutlet?" he demanded of the waiter. "Why, such a cutlet as that is an insult to every self-respecting calf in the country."

The waiter hung his head for a moment, but recovered himself and said, in a tone of respectful apology, "I really didn't intend to insult you, sir."

BUMPER CANADIAN CROP

Winnipeg, Man. (United Press).—Western Canada may produce a wheat crop this year of 500,000,000 bushels, beating last year's record-breaking yield by 100,000,000 bushels if present favorable conditions continue. This is the prediction of R. G. Craig, president of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, who has returned from a three weeks' motor trip through the prairie wheat belt investigating the crop situation.

A Mother Writes

Edna Meyer had her hair and scalp almost completely torn away by the shaft of a windmill on a farm near Hamilton. Her Father, Brother and even her physician donated inches of skin which was grafted on her head. After 27 months of medical treatment the wounds would not heal and became sores. Through her Pastor, Rev. C. E. Burrell she heard of UTOR and in three months her head was completely healed. "I gratefully give this testimonial", writes her Mother to William Pugsley, "That others may be cured by using UTOR."

"Cannon" Proved a Failure.

One of the most peculiar pieces of ordnance ever invented was that which was tried for its sole occasion at the storming of Fort Henry, in what is now West Virginia, by Simon Girty, the famous renegade, and his several hundred Indian followers, on September 1, 1777.

All day long, without success and with considerable loss, the savages and their still more savage leader had been attempting to carry the little stockade with its handful of defenders. Night had setled down and their patience was short, when some inventive genius amongst them suggested the making of artillery with which to batter down the stubborn walls.

A maple log, already hollowed by the process of time, was bound with chains, plugged at the breech with wood, filled to the muzzle with stones, pieces of iron and other missiles. It was then conveyed to within 60 yards of the gate and discharged. The log burst into a thousand pieces, its fragments scattering in all directions and killing several of the attackers. And not a picket of the fort was injured.

Sun's Rays Drive an Engine.

The sun's rays are used to generate power in a miniature engine which was the subject of a demonstration at the college of the city of New York by Mr. Bernard Grossman, a graduate.

A parabolic copper mirror focused the rays on a test tube of water, the heat causing steam, which in turn operated the tiny engine at a high speed.

Mr. Grossman said that his invention could be used to provide light, heat, and power, or to operate motor trucks.

"Coal," added the inventor, "will, before very long, be obsolete.

"Every community will have its plant, where the sun's rays will be caught and concentrated. The millions of unites of energy from the sun which we now waste, while we continue to drain the earth of its oil and coal, will be put to use."

The plan has been laid before several engineering experts, and an attempt to utilise it on a large scale may soon be made.

HOOT GIBSON AT REGENT

Hoot Gibson has owned a particularly desirable limb on the trees of motion picture popularity. He's a typical western cowboy of the old school and when he dons the spurs and straps a six-shooter around his waist, there's action. His fans call him by his first name and holler "Powder River" when they see his name and picture in the theatre lobbies. And he was never "Hoot'er" than he appears in "Dead Game", a Universal Western photoplay showing at the Regent Theatre to-day, matinee and night.

A Funny Cameo comedy, Pathe News, and "Pleasure Business" an amusing Century comedy, is being exhibited on the same program.

WALLIE REID NOW AT GRIFFIN'S IN NEW COMEDY "THIRTY DAYS"

Is a jail the safest place in the world for a man who seeks to escape an assassin's knife? That it is not, is indicated in the story of "Thirty Days", Wallace Reid's new paramount picture which is being exhibited at Griffin's today, matinee and night.

This is a delightful melo-dramatic farce comedy in which Mr. Reid as the hero, is pursued by a murderous Italian and his followers in the "Society of the Thousand Eyes". When he sees all those eyes watching him with a stiletto to match each eye, he becomes nervous and goes to jail because he believes this safer than a Sanitarium. It was for a while until Polenta got into the jail, and then—

If your laughter cells haven't been thoroughly exercised lately you will do well to see the dizzy succession of laughable situations. Wanda Hawley is leading woman and heads an excellent supporting cast.

"A two-reel Campbell comedy "Penny Reward, A Kinogram, and William Desmond are also being exhibited.

RICHARD DIX AND LEATRICE JOY AT REGENT MONDAY

Happiness. What is it? Contentment. What is it? Does money bring happiness? Does success bring contentment? Look into your own life and find the answer. Both sides of all these questions are presented in terms of living drama in Goldwyn's great picture "Poverty of Riches", at the Regent Theatre, Monday to Wednesday, matinee daily. It is a photoplay with a message that wings straight to the heart of every man and woman in the world. The role of the young mother whose greatest desire in life was destroyed by her husband's lust for success is beautifully played by Leatrice Joy. Others in the all-star cast are Richard Dix, John Bowers, Irene Rich, Louise lovely and Frankie Lee. A specially invited audience, composed solely of women, saw the picture in New York and pronounced it one of the greatest American dramas ever screened.

Ann Little and William Thompson in the second chapter of Universal's new stunt serial "The Eagle's Talon's", a Fox Sunshine comedy and a topical reel will also be exhibited.

"THE GREATEST MENACE" TELLS STORY IN AN EXCITING WAY

"The Greatest Menace" at Griffn's Monday to Wednesday with a matinee Wednesday, bangs out a great truth in an exciting, romantic way. A young man of high family rank becomes a drug addict. He goes from bad to worse and is accused of a crime that he did not commit. A sister, who has sturied law, defends him, and the boy is being prosecuted by his father, the District Attorney, who is unaware, until the day of the trial, and the defendant is his own son. There are many highly dramatic scenes, superbly staged, and the dope scenes in particular were all taken from real city life.

An all-star cast enacts the principals characters, such players included as Ann Little, Wilfred Lucas, Robert Gordon, Harry Northrup, Rhea Mitchell, Jack Livingston, Andrew McClennan, Mildred June, "Red" Kirby, Gordon Mullen and Lew Meehan.

It has been months since a picture that speaks the truth without subterfuge has hit the screen, yet "The Greatest Menace" comes right out in the open and in one of the most amazing exposes of the drug traffic that has ever been recorded anywhere.

Three other selected plays will be exhibited. Regular prices will prevail during the engagement.

"What's the News?"

When Columbus and his caravels returned from the New World, the first question shouted from the shore was, "What's the news?"

That's always the question of paramount importance. Years ago folks asked it of the post rider, the soldier returned from the wars, the man who had been down to the settlements, or the neighbor back from the general store.

To-day, you find the answer in your newspaper. Through the newspapers the news of the world and of the community quickly becomes public knowledge. And remember this—it takes two kinds of news to make a modern paper complete.

The first tells of happenings near and far—of fires, sports, elections, accidents, marriages, deaths, great men, great events.

The second tells of things you eat, wear and use—things you buy, things being sold to your friends and neighbors. This news is advertising.

It's just as important to keep up-to-date on the advertising in this paper as it is to read about what's doing in the world of events.

Advertising is an essential news service. It is distinctly to your advantage to be guided by it.

REVIEW OF

unemployment here and the migration of our young men to greener fields, it is only necessary to say that this was a general movement, not occasioned by lack of employment so much as by the abnormal and economically impossible wages paid for a time by the automobile industry and the building trade in the United States. We have yet to hear of any business authority who has had the courage to state that the flurry of prosperity in a few of the larger cities of the United States had behind it sound commercial reasons or was likely to have any permanence. It is quite within the limits of possibility that many of these same young men will be glad to get back to the old town after the bursting of the bubble. In any event Belleville has suffered far less from the exodus than have such distinctively industrial cities as Peterborough, Hamilton, Brantford and London.

There is one thing that Belleville needs more than new industries and that is the intensifying of the spirit of local patriotism. We believe there is no city in Ontario that has suffered so grievously and undeservingly from the destructive efforts of the chronic knocker, and yet we have here what is one of the finest cities in all essential respects, to be found anywhere. Belleville has all the advantages enumerated by Mr. Sanford and many more but they have been rendered negative because of the gruesome grouching of the grousers who could find no good thing in the city that was giving them a livelihood. With a united, optimistic, forward-looking population of twelve thousand people there is positively no limit to the expansion and prosperity that may be ours.

In this good work we feel sure Mr. Sanford will heartily join. We have always known him as a preacher of optimism and can only believe that the pessimistic suggestions in his communication to you were based on wrong information that we have endeavored to correct.

J. O. HERITY,
Industrial Commissioner.

CHAOS APPEARS IMMINENT IN GERMANY

RESIGNATION OF CABINET SOUGHT

Shopkeepers Fear Raids on Stores by Hungry Populace

FRANCE BLAMED

Belgian and French Replies Due to Reach London To-night

(United Press Despatch Exclusive to The Intelligencer)

Berlin, July 30.—The resignation of Chancellor Cuno's cabinet is openly demanded by many German newspapers today.

Berlin, July 30.—German shopkeepers are rushing orders for iron bars to protect shop windows from being ransacked by the hungry populace.

Dortmund, July 30.—Chief of Police Kleinow, a German, was released from prison by the French authorities Sunday so he could "organize and maintain order."

Berlin, July 30.—At the end of one of the darkest weeks in Germany's history, the cabinet Sunday issued a proclamation blaming France for the internal difficulties of Germany and declaring her willingness to pay reparations.

Paris, July 30.—The Belgian reply to England on German reparations which will be delivered today, adopts a more conservative tone than the French response. French and Belgian replies to the British note will be delivered at 10 Downing Street this evening or Tuesday morning. The Belgian reply was handed to Quai D'Orsay at noon Sunday and immediately telegraphed by special wire to Premier Poincare at Camp-Igny for examination.

London, July 30.—French and Belgian replies to the British reparations note and covering documents are expected here before tonight. Premier Baldwin will make a statement on them in the Commons tomorrow, if possible.

SEEKS THRONE

Berlin, July 30.—Karl Rudolph announced Sunday that he is the illegitimate son of the late Crown Prince Rudolph of Austria, and that he will appear in public January 30, 1924, with notarized documents showing his royal birth, and assert his right to the job of being king of all German-speaking peoples.

MEN HELD HERE MAY BE PARTY SOUGHT FOR ATTEMPTED HOLD-UP

Masked Bandits Foiled near Oshawa—Men Arrested Here Failed to Pay for Case

Great excitement prevailed at the corner of Bridge and Front streets on Saturday afternoon when Chief Kidd and his forces took three suspicious-looking characters into custody thinking they might be the bandits wanted in Toronto in connection with last Tuesday's daring hold-up. After having interview the Toronto authorities on long distance telephone it was ascertained that these were not the men in question. Provincial police here were notified that a large McLaughtlin car was speeding eastward on the highway. Local provincial men got busy at once, but unfortunately they took the wrong road. It was discovered that the men had secured ten gallons of gas near Port Hope and while the garage man went in to get some oil they left without the usual ceremonies! Inspector Naphin meeting the speeders near Trenton gave chase and at Jone's Creek he phoned the local police to be ready at the corner. No trouble was experienced and the men were placed in the county jail pending investigation.

The men gave Montreal as their home. The motor had a Quebec license. They gave their names as follows—George Generoux 25, Theodore Grenier 20, and Harry Charron 30. The first two are held on a vagrancy charge while Charron is charged with reckless driving. In view of the fact that the gun found in Toronto was supposed to have been purchased in Montreal the local police authorities were suspicious.

Local officers are endeavouring to trace the men's past records. They will be remanded until next Saturday

The men it is believed may be the same ones who attempted to hold up a taxi driver named Mallory between Oshawa and Whitby on Friday night Mallory by a lucky turn managed to escape from the hold-up men.

Oshawa, July 30.—Three masked men made a deliberate but futile attempt to hold up a motor car on the Kingston road between Oshawa and Whitby at a late hour Friday night. J. Mallory driving a McLaughlin touring car plainly marked 'taxi," was returning from Whitby a few minutes after midnight. About half way between Oshawa and Whitby a masked man leaped from the ditch and attempted to jump on the running board of the car. Mallory threw on, also wearing a mask, attempted the second man, about thirty feet farther on, also wearing a mask, atempted the same tactics.

The speed of the car was too much for the second bandit, but the headlights revealed a third masked figure standing in the middle of the road and behind the third man was a car drawn up across the middle of the highway.

Mallory was then going at terrific speed and swerved to avoid the third man. The car took to the ditch, but the speed was sufficient to carry the auto past the standing car and out of the ditch again onto the road.

PRESIDENT HARDING IS DANGEROUSLY ILL

United Press Despatch, Exclusive To The Intelligencer.

San Francisco, July 30.—President Harding has suffered a relapse and is dangerously ill here.

San Francisco, July 29.—Abridgement of the President' speaking tour on the Pacific Coast appeared possible. Brigadier-General Charles E. Sawyer gave notice he would not permit Mr. Harding to enter upon the strenuous program unless there was absolute certainty that the President was recovered fully from what the General described as a violent attack of ptomaine poisoning, attributed to copper poisoning in crab meat consumed by the Presidential party aboard the United States ship Henderson.

The giant Alaskan crabs were taken aboard at Cordova, They were the gifts of the Agricultural Experiment Station there. Alaska's rule that crabs should be eaten only as are oysters on the Atlantic Coast—in months whose names include the letter "R"—was disregarded.

The woman who is enciente was severely cut and bruised from kicks and blows. The many friends in this city of Rev. A. S. Kerr will be pleased to learn that he has arrived safely at Edinburgh, where he will remain for a few weeks.

'RED SUNDAY' FLIVVERS

Berlin, July 30.—Germany's long advertised "Red Sunday" faded to pink beneath a downpour of rain that dampened the enthusiasm of huge Communist gatherings and split up meetings that had been planned throughout the nation.

DANCE PAVILION IS FIRE VICTIM

Moira Lake Company Resort Scene of Incendiary Fire Saturday Night

A few weeks ago a Madoc citizen named Kellar had a dancing pavilion erected off Moira Lake where a number of cottages are erected and where a number from Madoc and other places spend their holidays. The pavilion was enclosed by a large tent with a railing around the side and floor was hard wood polished for dancing. At a rather late hour Saturday night the pavilion was destroyed by fire and the general opinion is that the fire was incendiary in its origin. Some of the flooring was not burned but was rendered useless. Some parties from Belleville arrived upon the scene whilst the fire was in progress and assisted in preventing it from spreading.

Peterboro, July 30.—Keith Nichols, eight months old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Nichols of Peterboro, is dead and Mrs. Nichols is injured as a result of an automobile accident on the gravel road near Bailieboro yesterday.

The car, driven by Wesley Nichols, was proceeding toward Kingston on a down grade and turned out to pass an empty gravel wagon. There was not room to pass and the car rolled down the embankment into an eight-foot ditch. The baby died three hours later.

Alleged to Have Refused a Shroud For ex-Serviceman

Kingston, July 30.—Though he had fought for the best part of two years in France, Arthur Carr, 459 Princess st., who died on Wednesday following an anaesthetic, was refused a shroud, it is alleged by a minor official at the Christie St. Hospital, and but for the police his body would have gone in a nude state to the Morgue.

Col. McMann, Medical Superintendent at the hospital explained that the employee alleged to have refused the street, asserted that no direct request for one was made. He said if the charge was found to be true the offending employee would be discharged.

Veterans here apprised of the alleged refusal of the sheet are highly incensed.

CAR DRIVEN BY BANDITS FOUND

Machine Secreted in Barn Near Duncan Station, 8 Miles from Toronto

CHEQUES FOUND

Car Was Stolen in Toronto on July 21—Bloodstains Discovered

Toronto, July 30.—The stolen six-cylinder maroon-colored automobile used by the bank bandits in their escape from the robbery at Jordan and Melinda streets last Tuesday morning was found in a barn on the Donalda farm at 5.30 Sunday afternoon. The farm is owned by the Dunlop estate, and is situated one mile east of Duncan Station on the C.N.R., less than eight miles from the city. In the car were found two of the stolen bags used by the bank messengers, which still contained the missing cheques. These cheques, useless to the gunmen, were hurriedly discarded.

Blood stains both in and outside of the bags and in the car, detectives say, are evidence that at least one of the desperadoes had been wounded in the gun battle that occurred in the streets.

Close examination of the car showed only one bullet mark. This shot, supposedly from one of the wounded messengers' guns, struck the tonneau of the car less than six inches above the gasoline tank, then glanced off. A spare automobile tire and a number of copies of The Globe, together with the mutilated messengers' bags, were found in the back of the car.

Discovery of the car was made by an eight-year-old boy, Jack Sexton, 114 Grenadier road, who, along with his parents, was picnicking on the roadside. The boy, when looking for a stream to get water, saw the automobile standing in an old barn.

Mr. W. Russell Sexton, the father, was surprised that a car should be left in such an isolated spot, and, with his son, walked over to the barn. On looking in he noticed that the license plates were attached with a string. With news of the bank hold-up fresh in his mind, he curiously mounted the side of the car and saw the two black bags. They had been cut open, and when he noticed the cheques he hurried to a telephone and notified the police.

The police car with Detectives Wickett, Thomson, Koster, Levitt, Allen, McCready, Miller and Glasscock and Plainclothesman Clarkson, sped to the district. Here the car was searched and the bags and cheques removed and placed in the police car. With drawn revolvers detective searched the entire surrounding country in trace of further evidence that might give them a clue leading to the hiding place of the gunmen. At 7.30 in the evening the search was given up and the car was brought to the city and placed in the police garage.

All of the missing cheques, detectives say, were found in the bags and scattered around the bottom of the car. The robbers had cut open the messengers' money bags and had torn the small metal seals from the smaller containers. These were also found in the car.

The car, which is owned by Gordon Perry of the National Iron Works, was stolen from King street east Saturday morning, July 21. The description of the car as given by the messengers proved correct in every detail. The body was maroon color and the fenders were painted black. The wheels were white with dust, and unless one was within a short distance of the car it could easily be mistaken for a black one.

When confirmation was received last night at police headquarters of the recovery of the car a number of detectives were gathered up from outside divisions and ordered to the central office. Inspector Wallace Guthrie and Sergeant of Detectives Murray were in consultation with heads of the Pinkerton Agency until late last night. Police are now of the belief the thugs, one of whom they believe is wounded, are hiding within a few miles of Toronto, and plans for further search of the outskirts of the city and in York township will be made.

The finding of the robbers' car, detectives declared, corroborates the story of Alex. Schernwich, who reported he had met the gunmen in the bush near Leaside last Wednesday afternoon. The road at Leaside on which the car was seen standing by Schernwich leads to many sideroads by which motorists could drive to the Donalda farm.

Smooth Traveller $10 Richer After Transaction Here

On Saturday a stranger was in this city and by the art of endeavoring to make change and getting smaller bill changed for bills of large denomination was $10 to the good. It appears that his victim was a young lady who was in her usual place of business when the stranger approached and tendered a $20 bill for a rather small purchase. He was given the change and then desired to obtain a larger bill for some small bills. Two five dollar bills were laid out by the young lady and these the stranger picked up with the other bills he had lain down. After his departure the vendor ascertained that she was $10 short in her receipts. The affair was reported to the police and a description given of the party but no trace of him could be obtained.

YACHTSMEN ARE ROTARY GUESTS

Trip Through North Ontario Described With Aid of Screen Views

Many Rotarians and a number of visitors including visiting yachtsmen were today present at the weekly luncheon at Hotel Quinte. Rotarian O. H. Scott, President presided. Visitors were: C. Anglin, Kingston, F. Weaver, Lockport, N.Y., Dr. D. Day, Brooklyn, N.Y., F. Wilson, Z. Carter, D. Vanwinkle and W. Golden of Toronto. After luncheon and some business had been transacted, Rotarian W. B. Deacon introduced the speaker of the day Mr. J. W. Evans, civil engineer of this city.

Mr. Evans last year in company with others had an extensive trip in the northern part of Ontario in that territory known as new Ontario.

With views thrown upon the wall Mr. Evans showed the starting of the expedition at Elk Lake and continuing through the Montreal river. The various lakes and landing spots made by the party were shown also miners camp. The views were excellent and showed clearly that section of new Ontario which is comparatively unknown except by a limited number of persons. The trip had for its object ascertaining of some of the mineral deposits of that country. Mr. Evans explained the views as presented in a manner that was both instructive and profitable.

At the close the speaker was accorded a hearty vote of thanks for his talk and views.

Attempts at Rescue Prove Fruitless—Body is Recovered

Campbellford, July 30. (Special)—Edward Marriott, aged 28, of Warsaw, Ont., was drowned at the Hydro power plant at Healey Falls at noon Sunday, when he slipped from the core wall at the plant. Because of the swift current all attempts to rescue the young man proved unavailing.

Marriott's body was recovered at 4 p.m. Sunday by Walter Bagley, of Belleville, who is employed at the Hydro plant. Mr. J. J. Johnston to Retire To-morrow—Never Figured in Wreck During Long Service

Congratulations are due Mr. J. J. Johnston of this city who to-morrow celebrates his fifty-first year in the services of the Grand Trunk. Mr. Johnston will make his final trip tomorrow and will then retire to spend his remaining days with his sons and daughters in California. Mr. Johnston who is now sixty-six years old began his railroad career at the age of fifteen in the city of Toronto. He followed in order as call boy, cleaner fireman and then realized his ambition that of becoming an engineer on this great railroad.

He received part of his early training at York where he started as fireman. He spent fifteen or sixteen years in a passenger train after which he went on the International Limited for some years. At the present time he is on the Canadian National train running to Kingston thence to Toronto and back to Belleville. Mr. Johnston has been an honoured citizen of Belleville for the past thirteen years. He retires with a clean and enviable record and has had no accidents to speak of.

Mr. Johnston regards Belleville as the finest little town on the American continent and is wont to leave it but wishes to be with his children who reside at Long Beach, Cal. Mr. and Mrs. Johnston have resided on both Bridge and Charles Streets. They are at the present time making their home at the Windsor Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnston have been readers of the Daily Intelligencer since their residence here and will continue to devulge the home news after their departure.

Mr. Johnston is the oldest engineer on active service in seniority.

The Grand Trunk officials here have always had highest regard for Mr. Johnston. He began his railroad career in the year 1872.

Mr. Johnson will retire with a remarkable record and will have reason to feel proud of his career. He will receive a pension upon his retirement.

THE NECESSARY WORDS.

Ordinary People Require Five Hundred [illegible] in Conversation.

Five hundred words are enough for the average person in English, according to an old saying, and it has been added with some scorn that that is all that many people attempt to use, so limited is their stock of language. But what are the five hundred? A writer in John o' London's Weekly has resurrected the list of five hundred necessary words as it was framed by Prof. Charles Dewey Robinson for the New York Times some years ago. The list has an interesting bearing on the study of languages, and it is obvious that if a man set himself to the not very formidable task of learning the French, German, Spanish and Italian equivalents for these words he would have made a good start in becoming a linguist. A study of this list shows a [illegible] that have lost [illegible] or which have been largely superseded by [illegible], but on the whole they are a handy lot.

The list, as drawn up by Prof. Dewey Robinson, is as follows. It is classified in sections of ten:

O'Connor Dean of Commons

T. P. O'Connor, member for Liverpool, is the father of the House of Commons, and a short time ago his seventy-fifth birthday was commemorated by a dinner given him by his colleagues in the House. All parties were represented, and cordial were the wishes showered upon the veteran by the men who should know him best. In honor of the event he was presented with a snuff-box, for he is one of the few members who cling to the old habit. His position in the House is rather a curious one. He is an Irish Nationalist representing an English constituency, but there is no longer an Irish Nationalist party. All Ireland except Ulster is a Free State and the Irishmen in it are either Free Staters or Republicans. Parnell, perhaps even Redmond, might find himself regarded as a reactionary should he revisit the glimpses of the Irish moon. But though there is no longer a Nationalist party we have little doubt that Mr. O'Connor will continue to be elected from Liverpool as long as he presents himself, and by no means all of his supporters will be the Irish of Liverpool, who are of a specially virulent type.

He offered himself in 1880, standing for both Galway and Liverpool, and winning both seats. He elected to sit for Liverpool, which was rather a fortunate choice, for he has continued to be elected since, almost without a fight. No matter whether his opponents were Liberals or Conservatives, Laborites or Socialists, he has always won comfortably and now has sat longer in the House than any other member. He was one of the leaders of the Parnell group, and in those days assisted loyally in the blockading tactics of the Irish. But he was never a vicious fighter. He was always genial, making friends among his political adversaries. As a Parliamentarian he has won high rank, and probably would make an admirable Speaker. In debate he is far from the typical wild Irishman. He is deliberate, and his chief gift lies in his persuasiveness, spiced with humor.

It is as a journalist, however, that he is most distinguished. It might be near the mark to say that he is the most illustrious of living journalists, as distinct from publishers and editors. He has been both editor and publisher. He founded and was the first editor of the Star, the Sun, the Weekly Sun, M.A.P., and T.P.'s Weekly. In fact he had a genius for starting a paper, building it up into a swiftly growing concern and then selling it. He has had his ups and downs, at one time almost penniless, at another time rich. His prosperity is by this time firmly established, yet he continues to work every day at his calling as though his next meal depended upon the article he is writing for some hundreds of papers to which he contributes. The truth is that he loves the work. Writing never was hard for him. His only trouble was, at one time, to find a purchaser for his wares. He writes easily, and as it is not always the case with facile writing, his matter is easy to read, pleasant, informative, touched with spice and humor.

T. P. was a brilliant scholar, taking the highest honors with his M.A. at Queen's College, Galway. In 1867 he joined the staff of Saunders' News Letter in Dublin and showed such promise as a reporter that in three years he became sub-editor on Lord Burnham's London Telegraph. Since then he has worked directly on a dozen or more London papers in various capacities and has contributed articles on a variety of subjects for hundreds of British and American periodicals. It is doubtful if any living author has a greater output to his credit. As a journalist, the world was his parish, and he has discussed a thousand subjects. After he had become a member of the House of Commons, his articles were naturally sought after for their political content. On this continent he had a great following, for he was the chief author of Nationalist propaganda, though he was hardly ferocious enough for such Irish-Americans as Ford, Devoy, Cahalan et al. He never was a hater of England, though we suspect that he was her genial villifier on more than one occasion. At all times he has urged a better understanding between Celt and Saxon.

In addition to his countless newspaper and magazine articles Mr. O'Connor is the author of several books, some of which, being written from first-hand information, ought to have permanent value. They include "Lord Beaconsfield—A Biography," "The Parnell Movement," "Gladstone's House of Commons," "Napoleon," "Old Love Stories" and "The Phantom Millions." One of his journalistic feats which will be appreciated probably only by newspaper writers was performed on the death of Joseph Chamberlain. At five o'clock in the afternoon he was called up in the House by the Daily Telegraph and asked for a biography of the dead statesman. He left the House at six and half an hour later had begun. He worked till 9:30, and at the end of that time had written 6,000 words of a brilliant sketch. At ten o'clock he kept an important engagement at the Greek Embassy, where he gave the chief address. Any newspaper writer who can write 1,000 words an hour, of original matter takes pride in his speed. Mr. O'Connor worked just twice as fast and kept it up for three hours.

Mr. Dogbone—You known that silence gives assent?

Miss Catnip—I believe it; I know a lot of people who make a loud noise and never give a cent.

Reveal Culture of Ethiopians

The history of the ancient Kingdom of Ethiopia through the long span of 1,100 years—from 750 B.C. to 350 A.D.—has been completed in principal outline by excavations in tombs and pyramids in the Anglo-Egyptian Soudan by the Harvard-Boston expedition headed by Prof. George A. Reisner.

The most recent researches of the expedition in the pyramids at Meroe have established that the culture of the Ethiopians stood as an outpost of Egyptian civilization in middle Africa, Dr. Reisner said in the report which he has just made; that in the art of the Ethiopians a Greek influence obtained and that in the invention of a script of their own was evidence that the Ethiopians were people of genius.

The Ethiopians, Dr. Reisner declared, are not and were not African negroes. He described them as "dark colored races in which brown prevails," adding, however, that many individuals show a mixture of black blood.

This latest report from Dr. Reisner has to do principally with discoveries at Meroe, which is not far from Khartum and some 600 miles south of Luxor and the Valley of the Kings, where the discovery of the King Tut-Ankh-Amen tomb was recently made. The report picks up the main outlines of the history of Ethiopia from 300 B.C., where Dr. Reisner's earlier report of researches at Napata left off. The capital of Ethiopia was changed from Napata to Meroe at that time. Dr. Reisner, whose report from Napata made it possible for the first time to write the history of Ethiopia from 750 B.C. to 300 B.C., now brings the story of the kingdom in main outline through the following six and a half centuries up to its conquest by the Abyssinians about 350 years after Christ.

The principal achievement of the expedition during the last three years, under the auspices of Harvard University and the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, has probably been scientific examination and analysis of the fifty royal tombs in the cemeteries at Meroe, and the resulting determination of the chronological basis for the history of Ethiopia during the Meroitic era, the report indicated.

"The period is a long one, and to the layman the effort to fix the order of fifty royal tombs situated in apparent confusion on two separate hills may appear almost hopeless, although the procedure is really quite simple," said Dr. Reisner.

The custom of Sati-Burial, according to which the members of the king's household killed themselves or were killed when he died and were buried in the same tomb, prevailed at Meroe from the second century B.C. onward, says Dr. Reisner.

"The great outstanding feature of the history of Ethiopia was that the Ethiopian culture unit stood as an outpost of Egyptian civilization in middle Africa," Prof. Reisner said. "Ethiopia had become thoroughly Egyptianized while it was under the sway of Egypt, and the Egyptian influence, though gradually diminishing, remained dominant for hundreds of years."

The Ethiopians, however, were not so entirely dependent on Egyptian civilization as this might seem to indicate, for they invented a script of their own, as few other nations have done, unique in the form of the letters adapted only to the writing of their own peculiar language. The cursive was invented first for the practical purposes of daily life and caused an immediate decline in the knowledge of Egyptian; and when the knowledge heiroglyphics was lost they invented a heiroglyphic script of their own. These inventions are warnings that the genius of the people of Meroe is not to be underestimated.

The excavations also uncovered a few objects of Greek art, a considerable quantity of objects of Hellenistic-Roman art, nearly all of them manifestly imported, and some forms of native pottery derived from Hellenistic forms, showing that there was a Greek influence on Ethiopian art.

"As always throughout Ethiopia," Dr. Reisner said, "the burial chambers of every tomb which we excavated had been plundered, and usually very completely plundered."

The most important objects of local manufacture found by the expedition were the products of the goldsmiths, Dr. Reisner said. These included a series of twenty gold seal rings dating from about 100 B.C. to about 100 A.D., thirty silver seal rings of about the same date, nine pairs of enameled gold buttons, six pairs of pendant earrings of gold or enameled gold, ten necklaces and seven bracelets and a number of gold amulets disconnected from necklaces or bracelets.

Alliteration Record.

Miss Lora Whitmore, register of deeds, comes of a family of nine children. And the names in the family are all very similar. When the first three children arrived they were named in succession, Dora, Cora and Nora. This caused some comment in the neighborhood and a friend of the parents said: "That works all right for three children, but you are liable to run out of names that sound similar, if you have any more." Apparently this put the parents on their mettle, because they solved the problem nicely. The next addition to the family was a pair of twins, a boy and a girl. So they were named Flora and Mora. After this there were four other girls born and they were promptly named Ora, Zora, Lora and Clora. If any family can beat this record for alliteration, step up and prove it!—Columbus (Kan.) HORRORS OF DRUG EVIL CAUSE FIGHT

Expose of Narcotic Gangs Made in Dramatic Sensation, "The Greatest Menace."

No doubt the readers have heard all about the illegal traffic in drugs that is going on behind the law's back in American cities and what bitter fights are waged against it by the authorities in an effort to stamp it out completely. Men and women have died in great agony from the use of drugs. Throughout the country organized systems are not only smuggling drugs into the United States and Canada, but are disposing of them to the many addicts that are their consumers.

One of the biggest and most complete films ever screened that exposes the drug rings from start to finish is entitled "The Greatest Menace" that J. G. Mayer has just completed. This powerful film that tells a most entertaining and throlling love story in addition to holding up the drug traffic to the light, is booked for presentation at Griffin's starting tonight, for three days, with a matinee Wednesday.

Mr. Mayer first of all engaged Albert Rogel to direct the picture. Mr. Rogell, while the youngest of all the big film directors, but considered one of the most able, in addition to directing the story, made the screen adaptation from an original narrative by Angeles G. Kaufman. Mr. Mayer then made sure that the story would be enacted by an all-star cast of players, and some of the most popular names on the acting list of "The Greatest Menace."

One of the biggest and most popular picture casts ever engaged was that especially selected by Mr. Mayer for "The Greatest Menace," which includes such celebrated players as Ann Little, Wilfred Lucas, Jack Livingston, Robert Gordon, Harry Northrup, Rhea Mitchell, Andrew MacClennan, Mildred June "Red" Kirby, Gordon Mullen and Lew Meehan.

The management of Griffin's feels highly elated over the definite booking of "The Greatest Menace," which is not only the latest of the superphotoplay productions, but deals with one of the most timely and widely-discussed topics of the present day. It is a positive sensation and a dramatic treat as well.

Fox News, Vaudeville Movies and other selected attractions will also be exhibited. Regular prices will prevail during the engagement.

CHILDREN OR SUCCESS — WHICH WOULD YOU CHOOSE

There are some motion pictures you cannot forget. "Poverty or Riches," which is the feature offering at the Regent Theatre, tonight to Wednesday, with a matinee daily, is one of them. Its message will wing straight to the heart of every man and woman in Belleville and stay there. "Poverty of Riches deals with several questions that have puzzled millions of people. Here are some of them. Does it pay to have children? Does it pay not to? Has a man the right to deny his wife the sacred joy of motherhood because his consuming ambition demands a clear road to success? If you had to choose between wealth and babies, which would you take? These burning questions, each of them a vital problem of Canadian life, are woven into as thrilling a drama as ever reached the screen. You follow with breathless attention the contrasted lives of two young married couples—the Colbys—who are struggling successward by sacrificing the dearest treasure in life, and the Donaldsons, who have children, and are poor, and worried over the rent, and poorly clad—and happy. The picture is so true, the two families so real, the acting so fine, that you will be swayed in the grip of varying emotions until the very last scene of the photodrama.

Leatrice Joy, Richard Dix, John Bowers, Louise Lovely, Irene Rich, Frankie Lee and others appear in the all-star cast.

The second chapter of Universal's "Eagle's Talons" serial, Sunshine comedy and a Hy Mayer Travelogue will also be exhibited.

ASSIZ IS FINED $200 AND COSTS

Peddler Convicted of Giving Brandy to Indian

Louis Assiz, a foreigner from Deseronto, was fined $200 and costs at this morning's police court on a charge of illegal possession of liquor. The charge was laid by Inspector Naphan, who arrested Assiz last Friday, the 27th of July. The breach of the O.T.A. took place on the 6th day of June at the home of Isaiah Green, an Indian employe of the Canada Cement Co.. Assiz, who is a peddler by trade, sells his wares in the Deseronto and Point Anne districts. Mrs. Green owed the accused the sum of $12.90 since last fall with the exception of two small cash payments which she has made. According to the Greens' evidence, Mr. Assiz called at the house on the 6th day of June (Canada Cement pay day) for the purpose of collecting part of the outstanding debt. While there accused is alleged to have produced a pop-bottle filled with brandy and Mr. and Mrs. Green partook of the contents. Nothing further was said regarding the affair until Lou Soules, county constable, served a garnishment writ on the Green family for the debt owed Mr. Assiz. It was at this stage that Mrs. Green informed Mr. Soule of the June 6th matter.

All of the witnesses and the accused were foreigners and Indians who did not posses a varied knowledge of the English language and hence an interpreter, Gabriel Assiz, a distant relation of the accused, translated the evidence into English.

Mr. John Simpson, a young attorney from Napanee appeared on behalf of the accused.

The Green's evidence did not corroborate as to the matter of time. The Green family claimed that they did not posses a varied knowledge of they mentioned the matter to Mr. Soule.

The witnesses for the accused, Ferris and F. E. Yared together with Assiz's story corroborated in every detail, Magistrate Masson was inclined to believe the Green story rather than the story of the accused and his cohorts.

In default of payment Assiz will serve three months in the county gaol. Mr. Simpson put up a strong fight for his client, Mr. Assiz.

AUTOISTS SHAKEN UP IN COLLISION

Car Speeds on After Ramming Another Near Foxboro

An auto accident occurred on the Foxboro provincial highway at about 8.30 on Sunday evening which might have been a serious affair, but fortunately no one was injured. Mrs. Mitchell of this city was driving a Ford auto in which were seated with her Mr. and Mrs. Carson, her parents, and Mr. G. Vanmeer. At a point about two miles south of Foxboro, Mrs. Mitchell desired to turn around, and gave a signal of her intention to do so. A car, it is alleged, travelling at a high rate of speed was following closely behind, and, as Mrs. Mitchell turned, the left front wheel of her car was struck with considerable force by the other car and the former was forced into the ditch. The front axle of the Mitchell car was broken and it was otherwise damaged but the occupan's escaped with slight injuries. The car which did the damage did not stop but proceeded on its journey going towards Foxboro. The number upon the car was not obtained.

French Dislike Rush For Divorces There

Paris, July 26.—Inquiries among American lawyers in Paris indicate that Americans have more difficulty in getting divorces here than would be supposed from the number of them granted. One-third the Judges, being Catholics, disapprove of divorce upon religious grounds, another third is described as regarding with disfavor applications of foreigners for divorce, and the remaining third of the bench look upon the matter with indifference.

Sentiment in legal circles of Paris is developing strongly against the French courts being utilized for the convenience of Americans who are unwilling to resort to their own courts, preferring to establish legal domicile in France to claim the rights that accrue to them under French law.

The divorce granted yesterday to Irene Castle Treman, the dancer, from her husband, Captain Robert E. Treman of Ithaca, N.Y., appears to have been arranged by mutual consent on the ground that he refused to observe the marital relations, and upon her application.

Such a method is usual in French procedure, which allows divorces by reciprocal consent, unlike American law. Under French practice it is recognized to be entirely correct for the husband and the wife to determine upon a divorce when the only solution of their domestic difficulty appears to them to be a dossolution of their marriage.

In such cases the Judge gives the applicants a certain period of time within which to reconcile their difference. If, when that period elapses, they remain unreconciled, the decree is granted if other conditions are fulfilled.

Dull and disobedient children

May not be naturally so.

Thousands of children who have been disinclined to study, and been called backward, have by being equipped with glasses been transformed into bright, ambitious students.

So before children are blamed for lack of interest in studies they should have the conditions of their eyes determined.

Our service is of value in this respect.

OAK LAKE CAMP MEETING OPENED

Crowds Assemble to Hear Evangelist Pease and Mr. Greenlaw, Soloist

Three big services marked the opening of the Oak Lake Camp meeting.

In spite of the chill of the morning a good crowd had gathered for the 11 o'clock service.

Evangelist Pease and Mr. Greenlaw were on hand and after being introduced took full charge of the meetings. They had arranged a special program. The congregation joined heartily in the singing under the direction of Mr. Greenlaw. Mr. Greenlaw's voice was as strong as ever, and during the three services he rendered six solos, as only Mr. Greenlaw can render them. Many of his friends came miles to hear him the first time, some coming over fifty miles.

Evangelist Pease brought three stirring messages. In the morning his subject was, "The Faithful Few" in the evening he spoke on 'Hard Cases.'

Mr. Pease is an evangelist of several years' experience in Michigan and the North Central States.

He is a pleasing speaker and holds the interest of his hearers to the end. He sticks to the old Gospel message and the old-fashioned religion as the only cure for to-days ills.

The afternoon crowds could not get in the tabernacle. It was packed and a solid wall of people stood around the outside throughout the service.

A more secluded and profitable place could not be found to spend a Lord's day than on these grounds.

A special service will be held on Wednesday afternoon. Two picnics are to be held on the grounds that day. A special service of song will be arranged for the occasion with special selections by Mr. Greenlaw. The seats are all free and everyone is invited to come to these services.

FIRM CHANGE IN BELLEVILLE NOTED

Canada Lumberman Reports Incorporation of New Lumber Company

The following article appeared in the August 1 issue of the Canada Lumberman:

The Brown Sword Co., Belleville, Ont., have been reorganized and a new company incorporated which will be known as the Angus-Keefer Lumber Co., Limited. The company has an authorized capitalization of $50,000. They manufacture sash and doors and deal in lumber in a retail way.

"Prior to their being taken over by the Angus-Keefer Lumber Co., the Brown-Sword Co. have been established for five years. In 1919 the business was acquired by Messrs. J. E. Angus and N. Keefer. Since then the turn-over of the firm has increased greatly and connections in centres outside of Belleville have been firmly established.

"The active management of the new company is in the hands of the president, J. A. Angus, who has had a valuable experience in the lumber business in Toronto and Belleville. A. E. Brown, vice-president, has been connected with some of the largest woodworking factories in Canada for the past 25 years, his duties being largely managerial and executive. He will superintend the work in the factory. The secretary-treasurer, N. Keefer, graduated in architecture from the University of Toronto in 1914, from which time he had been connected with building operations until 1919 when he and Mr. Angus took over the Brown-Sword Co.

"The factory is situated on Station St., Belleville. The building is a modern structure and the plant comprises up-to-date and efficient machinery."

Million Boys May Be Sent To Canada From British Isles

Montreal, Quebec, July 30.—Plans looking to the immigration to Canada of a million British boys around the ages of 18 were discussed here by W. G. Black, Deputy Minister if Immigration, and the British Immigration Aid Association, Montreal will be the distributing centre and the first group is expected to arrive within a short time.

The Rev. John Chisholm, organiser in Canada of the association, said today that during his recent trip to Britain he had found the condition of youths around 18 years of age was serious as a result of trade union restrictions. The unions insist that boys attaining the age of 18 years must receive the wages of a fullgrown man, and the result is that there are now one million boys 17 and 18 years of age who have no possible opportunity under existing conditions of being employed as apprentices.

The idea is to put them on Canadian farms.

WEST LAKE

Mrs. Anson Benham's many friends are glad to know she is able to be around again after a two weeks' severe illness.

Miss Eva Robinson of Picton will be our teacher for the coming year.

An ice cream social was given at West Lake Methodist church last Friday evening under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society. Ice cream and cake were served on the lawn and the crowd then adjourned to the church when an excellent program was given. Rev. Mr. McQuade acted as chairman. The first item on the program was to have been a selection by the West Lake orchestra but, owing to illness, at the last moment the orchestra numbers had to be omitted. "Can't You Hear Me Calling, Caroline" sung by Mr. Henry Rose, was followed by an excellent recitation by Miss Annie Ashley, entitled, "Changing Color." Miss Bowerman of Bloomfield favored with a piano solo which was well rendered. Mrs. Henderson of Toronto, elocutionist, gave a recitation entitled "My Little Son Dominique" (a French dialogue) which was encored. She gave as her second number a little Scotch poem, entitled, "Without a Wife." A dumb bell exercise by five winsome misses led by Miss Margaret McQuade, was splendidly done. This was followed by a duet by Miss Genevieve Smith and Miss Stark; a lullaby entitled "Mammy's Baby." Miss Bowerman and Miss Cleave favored with an instrumental duet. The closing number on the program was a solo by Miss Effie Gallanough of Toronto, entitled, "I Love You," which was heartily applauded, to which Mrs. Gallanough responded with a short solo entitled "Little Mother of Mine." A hearty vote of thanks was tendered those who so ably assisted in the program.

WAGES AND SALARIES.

William J. Bowen, International President of the Bricklayers' Union, declared in New York the other day that bricklayers were unfairly pictured as plutocrats because some receive a daily wage of $16. Said Mr. Bowen: "When you consider that the bricklayer cannot average more than 3 days a week the year around, you won't find much plutocracy even at $16 a day."

Yet, at three days a week, $16 a day would mean an average daily wage of $8 the year round. Mr. Bowen explains that, even after an apprenticeship of four years, tyros in the bricklaying trade do not become finished mechanics. Many persons in the various professions or in the "white collar" trades do not average $8 a day after 10 years of preparation. This, however, does not constitute an indictment of the bricklayers' wage system, but, rather, appears to indicate that the remuneration in lines of endeavor other than those followed by union mechanics is not sufficiently high.

The meagerness of the college professor's stipend compared to the wage of the skilled mechanic is an old story. Since the wages for all classes of labor, non-union as well as union, have been advanced and protected by unionism, it is but natural that the union men themselves should profit most by the result and there has been no sound argument advanced in favor of a lowering of wage standards. On the contrary, careful analysis would seem to indicate that the wage standards are still too low.

But in the light of these facts it is evident that "education" in the form of college and university training is in danger of becoming unpopular as an equipment for one's life work.

When briklayers earn $16, prizefighters command incomes in six figures and leading movie stars sign contract providing for salaries rivalling the incomes of multi-millionaires the value of the "educated" person's service appear insignificant at the present rating.

A thoroughly educated person is, generally speaking, the greatest asset to society. The high social standards and the culture developed through education form the backbone of civilization. Without the services of the educated man and woman, prizefighters and movie stars could not exist except on a discouragingly low financial level. Yet these educated and intensively trained men and women receive, in many instances, a mere pittance for their services.

A case illustrative of present conditions was the employment of Judge Kinesaw Mountain Landis as arbiter of organized baseball at $50,000 and his subsequent relinquishment of a federal judgeship in the United States paying a salary of $7,500. What an encouragement for law students!

By The Side Of The Road

Re the flutter in the dove-cotes at Chamong Park, it might be suggested that "none but the brave deserve the fair." Surely the local young men, who will dare to disregard even temporarily the charms of native belles deserve the smiles of those Buffalo maidens. However, they may yet find themselves "buffaloed" all around.

THE CALL OF THE WEST

Fifty thousand is the minimum number of farm laborers needed for the harvesting of the grain crops in the Canadian West and the railway companies are arranging for the expeditious transportation of this army of workers.

The plans of the Canadian National Railways in connection with this great industrial movement are illuminating. Special trains will be provided, lunches, supplies of fresh water and many other comforts associated with "special accommoditions" will be supplied. This may appear somewhat revolutionary to those who still vividly recall the seasonal migrations of the harvest hands and "lumberjacks" of an earlier day. Yet there is no economic or social reason why it should not be done If there were any reason which could be advanced in opposition to the plan of the Canadian National Railways, it would perhaps be a psycholigal one.

In many sections of the rural west life is severely simple. Bodily comforts do not command the important position in the social scheme they are accorded in the more effete east.

When the army of harvesters reaches its various destinations the new "hands" are apt to find living conditions noticeably different from the atmosphere of the trains "deluxe" in which they made the journey westward. However, if they possess the qualities normal, healthy men should, they will readily adapt themselves to conditions as they find them.

Abundance of substantial food, clean surroundings and plenty of fresh air, the three primary requirements for salubrity, are paramount characteristics of Western farm life. Many young men even after one short season in the West, have assimulated some of its wholesome ruggedness and have thus profited materially in after life by their experience.

There are, of course, the more immediate benefits—to health and purse, the later being the chief impellent force associated with the yearly migrations. Generally considered, the response to the call of the west for help in harvest time is a judicious move.

There have been unfortunate episodes in the past as a result of which the western farmer's apparent lack of hospitality was criticised by the "hands". These, however, occurred in the days when the bars were open and were crowded during the harvest season with many types of humanity. In those days many genuine laborers "boed" their way westward "on the blind" or "on the rods". These were known as "stiffs". Yet there was a distressing number of real "boes" who did not seek work, but were content to beg of the workers, thereby securing money with which to purchase liquor. There were, of course, the usual quota of crooks and cardsharpers to be found under such conditions. Acquaintanceship with men of these classes was responsible for the criticism directed to the western farmer.

The elumination of the bar has likewise eluminated these undesirables and there is every reason to assume that the welcome accorded the harvest workers this year will equal, in spirit at least, that accorded them as passenger patrons of the Canadian National Railways.

Wages in the harvest field are usually regulated by the availability of labor and the condition of the market. In the latter instance the farmer must suffer more severely than the laborer Hence, while the "going wages" will not be fubulous they will undoubtedly be eminently satisfactory.

PRESS OPINIONS

ROOM IN RUSSIA.

(Stratford Beacon-Herald)

There seem to be at least a few agitators in Canada,—down in Nova Scotia, for instance,—who prefer Russian methods and customs to those of Canada. It is hard to understand such a preference; it is also hard to understand why such people do not go to Russia and shake the dust of Canada from their feet. Perhaps one reason why such people prefer Russia is that they have never lived there.

MARITIME RELATIONS.

(London Telegraph)

The fact that the British government have set up a committee to devise means for facilitating the task of the American government in checking "boot-legging," shows that this country is quite ready officially to give fair play to the great American experiment of prohibition, and is only taking its firm stand on the solid ground of international practices and the comity of international maritime relations.

SPECTACULAR VILLA.

(Buffalo Times)

Pancho Villa's sinister career is ended. The man whose death was so often anticipated by the tongues of rumor at last is dead. And the manner of his death was in keeping with his deeds and character. He was killed from ambush.

Villa was a type not uncommon in the revolutionary history of South American and Central American countries. That he fixed so much attention in the United States was due to the proximity of Mexico to us, and to the fact that Villa's system of making war by foray and massacre cost the lives of American citizens.

From first to last Villa was spectacular. Leader of armies which differed from bandit gangs in little except in being more numerous, he spent the last years of his life as a big landowner and provincial magnate. He was both a product and a cause of the appalling Mexican condition during the years when he was in the limelight.

NO ROOM FOR CRINOLINE!

(London Daily Mail)

Crinolined ladies have appeared in Paris. If the campaign to restore the birdcage skirt continues we shall lay the blame at the door of French dressmakers. It might even strain the Entente. Even if no reactionary design is hidden in the folds of this voluminous garment it would relegate women to the limbo of Victorian futility and render impracticable the exercise of "equal rights." Woman in a crinoline would be handicapped all through life's race.

INVASION OF PARKS.

(Montreal La Presse)

Picnickers who daily invade our public parks, especially that of the mountain, should remember that it is their duty not to leave remains of their meals lying about. Let us hope that it will not be necessary for the police to take action and that everyone will bear in mind the assistance which he should give those who are entrusted with the task of keeping clean the roads and lawns of our public parks. This is a civic pride which all should practise. In it is bound up the health of the people and the good name of the city.

EXAMS NOT EVERYTHING.

(Daily Chronicle)

It is true, no substitute has yet been found, at schools or a Universities, for the examination method of testing knowledge; and yet all teachers who take education seriously are well aware that the students who have made the best use of their time from the point of view of mind development, are by no means always those who have the knack of displaying their goods in the shopwindow of an examination paper.

GUARANTEES AGAINST WAR

(Kingston Whig).

Suppose we were to abandon our Army and Navy, and entrust our future to a League of Nations sitting at Geneva, would Mr. Mosley guarantee us not merely against war, but against the worst consequences of war from which our soldiers and our sailors have saved us hitherto—from invasion, from slavery, from the slaughter of our manhood, and the rape of our womanhood? Such fates have not once, but many times in the history of mankind overtaken nations so foolish as to abandon the practice of arms.

THE WORLD'S BENEFACTOR

(Kingston Whig.)

There is something more than pride in the feeling of Canadians about the success and the welcome Dr. Banting has won overseas. That it should have been the fortunate lot of a Canadian doctor to discover a medium for the alleviation of much human suffering and the cure of a disease which has hitherto been held to be virtually incurable is a matter that cannot but give the most profound satisfaction to all humanitarians. But all too often the individual through whose research mankind benefits is forgotten by the public. Dr. Banting who is a man of singularly reticent nature has appealed to the imagination of Londoners. He can be as shy as he likes, but the pulse of the Empire will always beat a little quicker when he is there.

GAME MEN IN GOLF, BOXING, TENNIS

By HENRY L. FARRELL
(United Press Sports Editor)

New York, July 30 (United Press).—Bobby Jones, young Atlantic golfer, is one of the best examples of pluck, patience and persistence to be found on the entire list of sport's star athletes.

It took 21-year-old Bobby just seven years to rise to the height of golf when he won the American national open championship, one of the great prizes that the game offers.

When he was a 14-year-old boy, it was too much to expect that he would win a national championship. When he was 18 the job was still too heavy for such youthful shoulders, but when he came to 18 it was expected that he should begin to deliver.

Many theories were advanced when he failed to live up to the reputation that he had established as the "boy wonder" of golf. He was said to have been retarded by the adulation he received in his kid days; it was suggested that he had too much temperament to become a champion, and finally it was intimated that he didn't have the "heart" to get "out of the rough" that is on the course of every championship.

No greater test of his courage could have been asked than that which he faced when he was forced to play off a tie for the championship at Inwood. Where he failed previously on the last hole, causing some to sniff that he couldn't "carry weight," he rose to the heights of brilliance in the last hole of the crucial test and won from an opponent whose gameness never had been questioned.

Perhaps nothing that is attached to the open title itself came up to the joy that was his when he was able to show that he had the heart and the game of a real champion.

• • •

Another great athletic who vindicated himself recently was Tommy Gibbons, and he had to do something that no other boxer had done to show that he too had a great heart.

Gibbons had to stay fifteen rounds with Jack Dempsey, the heavyweight champion, under odds that would have made the stoutest of hearts waver, to show some of the eastern wise men that he had at least the heart of a champion.

When experts' opinions were being expressed after the Dempsey-Gibbons match had been made, many of the trained experts said that Gibbons could not last more than a few rounds. They granted that he had the technical qualifications of a fine boxer and a heavy hitter, but that he could not stand rough going.

Gibbons had never met anything but set-ups, it was pointed out, and when he went up against Harry Greb, his timid heart made him step back several times when it looked like a little more aggressiveness might have given him a knockout victory.

Gibbons was sick the last time he fought Greb, but he did not advertise it and he did not alibi. He had an abscess in one of his front teeth when he fought Dempsey, but he said nothing about that.

The only thing he did do was to go in and stay fifteen rounds under punishment that at times almost hurt the spectators.

No other light heavyweight in the game would have consented to fight Dempsey under straight rules. Few heavyweights would do the same thing, but Gibbons accepted the rules and a hand picked referee without a grumble or a protest.

Tommy Gibbons may not be listed on the record books when he gets through as "one of the best fighters," but he certainly will be listed as a game fighter.

During the recent clay court championships, Bill Tilden, the greatest of them all, protested about the conduct of the gallery during one of his matches.

Some comment suggested that no game man would allow the crowd to bother him.

Tilden's objections were on purely ethical grounds. It is considered very poor etiquette for a tennis gallery to applaud a champion's errors and much worse to make any kind of a demonstration while a point is being played.

There is no gamer player on the court than Bill Tilden, and there is no finer sportsman or none who has done more for tennis.

While Tilden was playing Norton, three years ago at Wilmbledon, the crowd was decidedly pro-Norton, and it applauded every point he made, but Tilden never opened his mouth.

British galleries, schooled in etiquette, applauded after the point had been made, and Tilden accepted that as being proper.

GOYER HOLDS GALT DOWN TO 3 HITS

Guelph, July 30.—The Galt Terriers were absolutely helpless Saturday afternoon against the great pitching of Freddie Goyer, who held the senior O.B.A.A. champions to three scattered hits and shut them out by a score of 18 to 0. Goyer was in magnificent form, and although he only struck out eight Terriers, he had them hitting to the infield and popping them up. Only two men reached third base during the game, and four got as far as second. He was particularly good in the pinches.

In all fairness to the Terriers, it must be said that they presented a crippled team and did not put any ginger into their work.

NAYADA ARRIVES AT GOVERNMENT DOCK

The yacht, Nayada, of Toronto, which was unsuccessful in the George Cup race off Watertown, N.Y., arrived at the government dock here at 11.30 this morning, having led the Watertown yachts in their sailing for this port. The crafts left Watertown at 10 o'clock Sunday morning but the wind was light and rather adverse.

BELLEVILLE BESTS COBOURG, 11 TO 4

Belleville won from Cobourg on Saturday by an 11-4 score but are still one game behind the leading Petes who grabbed a victory from Kingston by 4—2. Oulette did the heaving for the visitors and was in fine form. Jahren pitched for Cobourg. The lake shore boys are here Wednesday while the Petes go to Kingston. If Kingston can trim the Petes everything will then be in apple pie order.

PETES VANQUISHED KINGSTON, 4 TO 2

Game is Clean and Well Played, According to Reports

Peterboro, July 30.—The Petes outplayed Kingston in every department of the game Saturday afternoon, and defeated the Ponies 4 to 2. The game was remarkably clean and well played, each team registering but one error. Heckman on the mound for the Petes was in first-class form. He held the visitors to three hits, and in seven of the nine innings retired the opposition in order.

Both he and Gallagher had five strike-outs to their credit, but Gallagher issued two passes and was touched for nine hits, including triple and two doubles.

The victory put the Petes on top in the race for second half honors of the Big Four section of the league, and practically eliminated Kingston. The players were:—

Dempsey and Firpo Meet September 14

New York, July 30.—Jack Dempsey will defend his heavyweight title against Luis Firpo, Argentine boxer, at the Polo Ground, September 14, Tex Rickard announced this afternoon. The fight will be fifteen rounds to a decision.

The bout will be staged at night, Rickard said.

Prices for the fight will be the lowest ever charged for a heavyweight world's championship bout, $3 to $25.

Dempsey is now in Los Angeles and will come on here immediately. Firpo, who is on an exhibition tour of the middle west, will return to New York on August 5.

Jack Kearns signed articles for Dempsey, and Firpo signed for himself early this week.

SHADOW CAST ON WILLARD'S GAMENESS

By HENRY L. FARRELL, United Press Sports Editor.

New York, July 28.—When Jess Willard was counted out in his corner on one knee, with Luis Firpo standing behind him cocked to send over another right hand, many of the 100,000 who saw the fight felt that the former heavyweight champion had quit cold.

Even a doubt that his courage was not sufficient to get him up off the floor was no nice thing for a former champion to carry out with him in his last fight.

No one but Willard ever will know whether he was really out and unable to continue or whether he figured that the end was inevitable and that he would escape punishment and possible permanent injuries by getting out when he had a good chance.

It is certain that Willard made no violent effort to get up on his feet, but it may be that his leg muscles had become partially paralyzed, even if his head and his mental faculties were not impaired.

Ray Archer, Willard's business manager, was frank enough to admit that the big Kansan could have gotten up, but that he would only have gone down again as he was through.

Criticism of Willard's actions depends on the point of view and it brings up the old question of ethics.

In Europe an athlete who is hopelessly beaten and who endangers himself by continuing, can "retire" in good grace and nothing is thought of it. Mlle. Lenglen did that in the United States, and they are still talking about it because American ethics of sport require that an athlete should go through or die.

Willard left himself open to suspicion, however, because he was charged with doing the same thing at Toledo when he refused to come from his corner in the Dempsey fight after he had taken a terrific beating.

It is rather strange that in both instances, Willard decided not to continue after he had taken the worst of the beating and when it seemed that his opponent was spent.

All of American sportsmen do not agree, however, that a fighter should run the risk of permanent injuries just for the sake of being crowned for gameness.

"Why should he have gotten up? He knew perhaps that he couldn't win, and the wise thing for him to do was to take the count and escape the danger of being badly hurt. No one can say that he took a dive and no one can deny that he took a bad beating all the way through the fight," Jack Britton, former world's welterweight champion, said after the fight.

• • •

Willard has now retired from a game that was very good to him. Although he never had a shot at the purses that are being given to Jack Dempsey now, he, nevertheless, earned a little fortune in the ring.

He never liked boxing, and he never had the fighting instinct of Dempsey, who really likes to put on the gloves. Willard was always misunderstood and rather disliked by the public.

It must have been an unusual and pleasant experience for the former champion to hear 90,000 fans in chorus shouting: "Come on, Jess," when he had Firpo in a bad way in the fifth round of the fight.

Willard might have responded four years ago, but he couldn't that night: he was too old and too "through" to deliver.

• • •

Right after the fight, Willard's handlers said that he was suffering from neuritis in his left arm and that doctors had been treating it for several days before the fight.

Since then several experts have printed stories that it was known on the "inside" that Willard had broken up in training and that he was not in condition to fight.

The same experts, even up to the day before the fight, were writing that Willard was in the best of condition, that he was almost as good as when he took the title from Jack Johnson and that he was in condition to put up a great fight.

Only one story was printed before the fight that Willard was NOT in condition.

That story was written by Jack McAuliffe, the retired, undefeated lightweight champion, and it was carried by the United Press.

McAuliffe admits that he did not know exactly what was the matter with Willard, but he knew that he was not right, and that he was not in shape.

• • •

Willard says that Dempsey will beat Firpo. Jack Johnson says there are three heavyweights who can beat the champion: Luis Firpo, Harry Wills and Jack Johnson.

Willard has fought both Dempsey and Firpo. Johnson has done all of his recent battling with speed cops.

USED PINE BARK AS FOOD.

Found Sustenance in Covering Which They Removed From Trees.

A common query of tourists on their first trip into the forests of the southwestern states is, "Who peeled all those big pine trees, and for what reason?" The pines commonly found around the edges of open parks and mountain valleys have had half to three-fourths of their bark removed up to seven or eight feet from the ground. This is the explanation given in American Forestry by Walter J. Perry:

On the Carson National forest in northern New Mexico there was, within the memory of living men, quite a large Indian population, consisting of Navajos and occasional roving bands of Utes, Apaches and Comanches. These were gradually dispossessed and pushed back by the Mexican settlers coming in from the south up the valley of the Rio Grande, so that the last remnants of the original inhabitants disappeared to the arid west about forty-five or fifty years ago. Formerly these people, or some of them, cultivated patches along the lower valleys of the mountain streams. In the summer they spread out into all the little mountain valleys, and signs of these camps are very abundant. One of these signs is the peeled trees.

From the best information obtainable from old settlers, Indians and others, it appears that the Indians removed the dry outer bark of the trees by means of stone hatchets, after which the inner bark or cambium could easily be stripped off. This was dried and roughly ground by means of the metate and used as a substitute breadstuff to eke out the scanty supply of corn raised in the valleys, which, to judge by corncobs found in the once inhabited caves, was of very poor size. The peeling of the bark was done in the early summer when the sap was flowing and the bark was easily removed. At this season the cambium is tender and palatable, being of sweetish taste and slightly aromatic, and is probably nutritious.

There are some thirty or forty peeled trees around one old summer campground. One of these trees was a thrifty 22-inch pine, about one hundred and fifty years old when it was peeled three-fourths way round in 1852—seventy years ago.

Longevity of Nutgrass Nuts.

There are tales of the sprouting of grass nuts in the United States that have been buried for 30 years. Government wood specialists believe they have an authentic case of such nuts being in the ground for eight years without losing their viability. To settle the question four galvanized iron cans about two feet square and four feet deep, without bottoms, have been sunk into the soil at the Arlington farm near Washington, each can holding 250 pounds of soil well filled with the grass nuts, and each is covered light. The cans will be opened, one by one, in 1923, 1926, 1931, and 1936, and if the nuts prove to be as tenacious of life as has been supposed, adequate means of extermination will be sought.

Q. Was Bobby Jones the first amateur to win the American open championship? Was he the youngest winner?

A. Bobby Jones was the fourth amateur to win the open title as Francis Ouimet, Jerry and Chick Evans preceded him. Ouimet was the youngest winner of the championship.

• • •

Q. Is there any truth in the report that there may be no world's series this fall?

D. S.

A. No actual facts are available, but it is understood from rather reliable sources that if the Cincinnati Reds win the National League pennant, Ban Johnson, president of the American League, will refuse to allow the winner of the pennant in his league to play against them, on account of Rube Benton, one of the Red pitchers. Johnson would not allow Benton to play in the American League when the Yanks tried to get him last winter.

• • •

Q. Isn't Babe Ruth's fine batting average this season due to the fact that he gets so many passes? A. W.

A. There is no doubt that the practice of playing "safety first" by walking Ruth in a pinch helps his average because it cuts down the time at bat. In the first half of the season, Ruth was passed more than a hundred times. However, Ruth is a great batter and he might hit at least one out of every three if the pitchers offered him good ones.

• • •

Q. Could not the rule limiting the price to fifteen dollars for boxing in New Jersey be suspended for a heavyweight championship fight.

W. P.

A. The "$15 top" in New Jersey is a part of the boxing law and it could not be changed without legislative action. The New York maximum of $25 was made a rule by the commission and it could be changed or suspended if the commission saw fit.

• • •

Q. What is the secret of the great form shown this year by Luque, the Cincinnati pitcher? T. K. S.

• • •

A. John McGraw says that Luque resembles Mathewson more than any other pitcher since the days of "Big Six." Luque has a fine curve ball, a great change of pace and perfect control. With it he has a keen brain and courage and nothing else is needed to make a great pitcher.

Q. Who is the American amateur golf champion?

A. Jess Sweetser, of Yale, is the present amateur champion. There may be a new one in October and if the law of averages holds, there will be a new one.

Watertown, N.Y., July 30.—The Huskie of the Crescent Yacht Club of this city Saturday defeated the Nayada, representing the Royal Canadian Yacht Club in the final race for the George Cup on Chaumont Bay. The Huskie crossed the finish line 300 yards ahead of the Nayada. She took the lead at the start of the race and was never headed. She was 200 yards ahead of the Canadian boat at the end of the first round. A twelve mile wind prevailed throughout the race.

Swiss Chard Cooked With Ham Knuckle

Pick over, wash and drain 1 peck Swiss chard. Cook a ham knuckle slowly in plenty of boiling water in a stock pot or large kettle. The last ½ hour of cooking, add the prepared Swiss chard, press the leaves down as they wilt until all are covered with water, add more boiling water if necessary. Cook until chard is tender. Add salt if necessary. Drain, chop, reheat and serve on hot platter with ham knuckle arranged in center. Pass vinegar.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

LIKE A HOUSE—THE BEDROOMS

The bedroom of your home means hours of rest every day. Some young people find ten hours necessary while most find seven or eight hours sufficient for their needs.

Now it may be a source of wonder to you where in that body of yours we will find the bedrooms or resting places.

And yet practically every part of you, every tissue takes a rest regularly.

In a former article I spoke about your faithful heart, apparently working away twenty four hours in the day, and yet actually resting a good part of the time. That it took a short rest between the first and second beat, and then a longer rest before it started the first beat again.

Similarly with the lungs. You know how important the breathing is. Only for a few minutes can you go without breathing. Yet there is a slight pause—a period of rest between the respirations.

And so all down the intestinal tract—food goes into the mouth—juice starts to flow, teeth begin to work, food gets to stomach, juice flows, stomach muscles work, food gets into intestine, juices flow, muscular walls work, absorption into blood takes place, unused food goes into large intestine, muscles work and waste matter is thrown out.

You see one part does its work and rests while the other parts are doing theirs. Similarly in the blood vessels the elastic tissue in the walls is stretched to allow blood to pass through in extra amounts, and then this elastic tissue returns to the normal condition again.

As you know, your muscles work part of the time and rest part of the time. Of course they are always on a very slight tension so as to be ready for use at the slightest need.

So just as your body has a store house that is ahead of your needs always with more than just enough, so in the matter of rest every part has its period of activity and of rest.

And finally, as every household has a bath room and lavatory for the cleansing of the body inside and out, even so do the lungs, Kidneys, intestines and skin clear out the waste matters of that body of yours.

MORE ABOUT SUMMER COMPLAINT

I have talked to you about this before, but a few more thoughts might be worth while.

As you know, it is a very distressing condition with severe diarrhoea, vomiting, loss of appetite, and extreme weakness.

Now what causes this diarrhoea and the attendant symptoms?

Well, you know what an irritation of the eyes will do. They water, turn red, and become quite sore.

An irritation of cold in the head will start the flow of water from the nose. This extra flow of fluids or juices is always spoken of as a catarrhal condition, and the extra flow of fluids in the intestine is known as intestinal catarrh. It is called Summer Complaint, Summer Diarrhoea and various other names, but if you'll remember that it is a catarrhal condition of the intestine you'll have the idea all right.

Now I told you before that it was the attempt of the muscular walls to get rid of the offending object that caused the pain, by pressing on the nerves.

You see green fruit or overripe fruit cannot be handled by your intestinal juices, and becomes like a foreign object in the intestine. It demands its expulsion from your body, and like the boy in the soap advertisement it will not be happy or contented until it gets its way. And from the pain you feel you are ready to believe that your intestine is in a very discontented frame of mind. Sometimes a swim in cold water too soon after eating, will start the trouble. You will remember that I advised that you eat no food for a couple of days and just drink water.

If you are in a hurry for results the old fashioned method of taking a dose of castor oil is still good treatment. After the oil has been taken some hours a teaspoonful of bismuth divided into three doses, a dose every four hours until the three are taken will usually terminate the distress.

ALL FORGIVEN!

The comedy movie actor stopped a man he knew, "Look here," he began. "I understand that you said last night that I have no sense of humor. A remark of that kind, made publicly in the presence of other people, is very damaging to a man in my position, and—"

"Hold on," interrupted the other. "I never said you had no sense of humor. What I said was that you had no sense of honor."

"Ah!" beamed the movie actor. "I thought there must be some mistake I felt certain you would never run down a pal behind his back."

You Must Have Flounces To Be Really Up-to-Date

By HEDDA HOYT

Fashion Editor of The United Press

(Written for the United Press)

New York, N. Y., July 23 (United Press).—"'All's well that ends well'—providing, of course, that it ends in a flounce," say the designers.

Whether the flounce dress will continue on until Fall is a matter of conjecture, but certain it is that the in-between-season frock must have a flounce of some sort, if it is to look entirely new.

There are flounces for flappers and flounces for the dignified. The common variety at present seems to be the pleated flounce which begins just below the knee and extends in a straight line about the skirt. Ruffles set onto the gown to simulate the flounce usually variate the straight-around idea and swoop up at the back or at one side. Again they may curve upwards at both sides and narrow at the front and back.

One of the prettiest ruffled frocks that I have seen has three circular ruffles of black picot-edged velvet terminating the skirt of a frock of black and white printed satin. Here the flounces slope slightly upwards at the sides. The frock is straight lined and unbelted and is quite tightly fitted.

Flounce of Velvet

Another lovely flounce idea is carried out in an evening gown of black chiffon-velvet. A wide circular flounce of velvet begins at the knees and adds unusual grace to the severity of the sleeveless, batteau-necked gown. Velvet is to be more popular than ever this coming season and a tall, slender woman is sure to look well in a gown of this sort. As a rule, flounces are more becoming to slender persons than to those of mature proportions.

Adding a flounce to an old frock is one of the simplest means of remodeling, as it is not even necessary to match the material of the gown exactly since many of the new flounce frocks have their flounces of an entirely different material than the frocks. Usually, however, the flounce is the exact shade of the upper portion of the gown.

With the circular flounce skirt, one selects sleeves which terminate at the elbow in a circular flounce. A circular bertha on a sleeveless gown offers another suggestion for the circular-flounce skirt.

Of course, one need not select a flounced skirt this season, as the designers always offer us an alternative. There are the three-tiered skirts which are so youthful! The tiers may extend completely about the skirt or just across the back. The apron effect is also among the newer models. The uneven-hemmed overskirt with points falling at the sides is also being used, so one has many types of skirts to select from.

FLIES' WONDERFUL FEATS.

Little Creatures Have Sufficient Speed to Outdistance Man.

When a man walks four miles in an hour, he takes about 1,760 paces in fifteen minutes, or nearly a hundred and twenty a minute.

If this walk were quickened to a run, a thousand paces would be taken in five minutes, or two hundred a minute. Sprinting, the rate might be raised to nearly three hundred paces a minute.

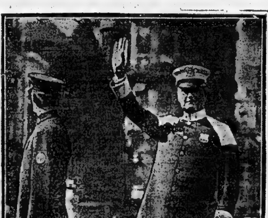
But if a human being could move his legs as fast as the ordinary housefly moves its wings, the pace would rise from three hundred paces per minute to 19,000, and the ground would simply be dashed over! Supposing that you stride a yard in walking, you would cover 19,000 yards, or more than eleven miles, in a minute.

If we had the quickness of muscular movement possessed by the fly we should indeed be wonderful athletes. This insect is able to move its wings at the rate of three hundred and thirty beats to the second. He is busier in wing-beat than the bee, for the latter has a wing-beat of only one hundred and ninety to the second.

When we study these figures of wing-power we find that the fly is a creature to be respected and envied. He leads the world in actual muscular energy, and is relatively a giant in strength.

A man or a horse does well enough if he pulls his own weight. A beetle thinks nothing of his own weight. He wants it multiplied several times over before he feels that he has got a pulling job really worthy of his powers.

The bachelor who escaped the lures of Juno has cause for congratulation.



This is the new uniform which will be worn by New York's traffic police to save them from being bumped off by motorists whose eyesight is not of the best.

PATRICIA BRENT SPINSTER

ANONYMOUS

Patricia sank down upon a chair far back under the trees opposite the Stanhope Gate. Here she remained in a vague way watching the people, yet unconscious of their presence. From time to time some snatch of meaningless conversation would reach her. "You know Betty's such a sport?" one man said to another. Patricia found herself wondering what Betty was like and what, to the speaker's mind, constituted being a sport. Was Betty pretty? She must be, Patricia decided; no one cared whether or no a plain girl were a sport. She found herself wanting to know Betty. What were the lives of all these people, these shadows, that were moving to and fro in front of her, each intent upon something that seemed of vital importance? Were they——?"

"I doubt if Cassandra could have looked more gloomily prophetic."

She turned with a start and saw Godfrey Elton smiling down upon her.

"Did I look as bad as that?" she enquired, as he took a seat beside her.

"You looked as if you were gratuitously settling the destinies of the world," he replied.

"In a way I suppose I was," she said musingly. "You see they all mean something," indicating the paraders with a nod of her head, "tragedy, comedy, farce, sometimes all three. If you only stop to think about life, it all seems so hopeless. I feel sometimes that I could run away from it all."

"That in the Middle Ages would have been diagnosed as the monastric spirit," said Elton. "It arose, and no doubt continues in most cases to arise from a sluggish liver."

"How dreadful!" laughed Patricia. "The inference is obvious."

"The world's greatest achievements and greatest tragedies could no doubt be traced directly to rebellious livers Waterloo and 'Hamlet' are instances."

"Are you serious?" enquired Patricia. She was never quite certain of Elton.

"In a way I suppose I am," he replied. "If I were a pathologist I should write a book upon The Influence of Disease upon the Destinies of the World. The supreme monarch is the microbe. The Germans have shown that they recognize this."

"Ugh!" Patricia shuddered.

"Of course you have to make some personal sacrifice in the matter of self-respect first," continued Elton, "but after that the rest becomes easy."

"I suppose that is what a German victory would mean," said Patricia.

"Yes; we should give up lead and nickel and T.N.T., and invent germ distributers. Essen would become a great centre of germ-culture, and—"

"Oh! please let us talk about something else," cried Patricia. "It's horrible!"

"Well!" said Elton with a smile, "shall we continue our talk over lunch, if you have no engagement?"

"Lady Peggy asked me——" began Patricia.

"They're away in Somerset," said Elton, "so now I claim you as my victim. It is your destiny to save me from my own thoughts."

"And yours to save me from roast pork and apple sauce," said Patricia, rising. As they walked towards Hyde Park Corner she explained the Galvin House cuisine.

They lunched at the Ritz and, to her surprise, Patricia found herself eating with enjoyment, a thing she had not done for weeks past. She decided that it must be a revulsion of feeling after the menace of roast pork. Elton was a good talker, with a large experience of life and a considerable fund of general information.

"I should like to travel," said Patricia as she sipped her coffee in the lounge.

"Why?" Elton held a match to her cigarette.

"Oh! I suppose because it is enjoyable," replied Patricia; "besides, it educates," she added.

"That is too conventional to be worthy of you," said Elton.

"How?" queried Patricia.

"Most of the dull people I know describe their dullness to lack of opportunities for travel. They seem to think that a voyage round the world will make brilliant talkers of the toughest bores."

"Am I as tedious as that?" enquired Patricia, looking up with a smile.

"Your friend, Mr. Triggs, for instance," continued Elton, passing over Patricia's remark. "He has not travelled, and he is always interesting. Why?"

"I suppose because he is Mr. Triggs," said Patricia half to herself.

"Exactly," said Elton. "If you were really yourself you would not be—"

"So dull," broke in Patricia with a laugh.

"So lonely," continued Elton, ignoring the interruption.

"Why do you say that?" demanded Patricia. "It's not exactly a compliment."

"Intellectual loneliness may be the lot of the greatest social success."

"But why do you think I am lonely?" persisted Paricia.

"Let us take Mr. Triggs as an illustration. He is direct, unversed in diplomacy, golden-hearted, with a great capacity for friendship and sentiment. When he is hurt he shows it as plainly as a child therefore we none of us hurt him."

RECIPES

Gooseberry Trifle

About 1 lb gooseberries, prepared and washed, stew in very little water, sieve, sweeten, and add a little grated nutmeg. Put the pulp in a crystal and over it place a few slices of sponge cake, pour custard made by mixing 2 yolks or 1 egg and sugar, beat in the teacup, boiling milk, put into pan, stir over a slow heat until it begins to thicken, and use. For a more substantial dish use custard given for gooseberry souffle. Decorate top with whipped cream, sweetened. It may be served in small glasses.

Gooseberry souffle

Scald as many gooseberries as are required, pour off water, add sugar to fruit and sieve. Put into pie dish and cover with custard.

For custard—2 yolks, 2 teaspoons corn flour, ½ pint milk, sugar. Mix yolks and sugar, moisten corn flour with little cold milk, boil remainder, add corn flour, stir it till it boils; stir it quickly over the yolks and sugar and use. Whisk 2 whites stiffly, fold in 2 level tablespoons caster sugar, pile on top of custard, sprinkle with fine sugar, and firm in cool oven. Serve hot or cold.

Green Gooseberry Jelly

Wash the fruit and put into pan with water to just cover, boil till it is tender and strain through a scalded flannel bag or towel. Measure the juice, and to every pint allow 1 lb sugar; put juice and sugar into pan, heat slowly until sugar is dissolved, then boil quickly for about 10 minutes or till a drop will hang from spoon. Put into scalded jars, cover. A sour fruit, such as this sets very quickly.

Gooseberry Catchup.

3 lbs. gooseberries, 4 lbs. sugar, 2 ounces cloves, 2 ounces cinnamon, 1 pint vinegar.

Remove the stems and blows from the gooseberries and wash. Mix with the other ingredients and simmer for three hours.

An English recipe for bottling gooseberries is as follows:

They bottle successfully, and in mid winter we can have stewed gooseberries or gooseberry pie and imagine it is June. Scald preserving botles and dry thoroughly; top, tail, and wash the berries—hard green ones will do. Pack them tightly into the bottles and cover with cold water to within about one inch of top; fix on rubbers—which must be in good condition—lids, and screws fixing the latter firmly. Have a pan deep enough to allow water to come up to level of water in bottles. Put towels or straw in pan—something that will keep bottles from touching bottom of pan. Set bottles on this, surround with cold water, put on slow fire, bring to boiling point, draw to side and let bottle stand for ten minutes in the cooling water. Take out, fix screws as tightly as possible, dry and store in dark cool place.

OLD CURIOSITY SHOW.

Site Made Famous by Charles Dickens Passes.

The passing of Vieweg's Old Curiosity Shop in Westminster Bridge Road is a sad occasion, remarks the London Evening News.

Though it was jostled out of its original home (where in 1910 it boasted establishment of over 100 years) by the preparations for the building of the new county hall, it was immediately re-established by its proprietor a few doors lower down.

The late George Gus Vieweg preserved the quaint old system in the new home, and wanderers returned were happy to find Old Curiosity Shop just as it was years ago.

Thus it had the most crowded shop window in all London; curiosities were suspended down its panes on strings like onions, and the majority were descriptively ticketed so that you could even have ten minutes of education at that window.

You walked into the shop under a low-hanging cloud of bags and straps and golf clubs, and within the ceiling was thickly hung and entirely hidden by an amazing mixture of musical instruments, knob-kerries, barometers, handcuffs, telescopes, walking sticks, native spears and shields and Arab guns with carved stocks.

This Mr. Vieweg died a month or two ago and his stock is now preparing for the auctioneers.

No reasonable Dickensian will wish to dispute the claim of that charming old building in a corner of Linclon's Innfields to be the original Old Curiosity Shop.

There is nothing in the book to prove it—but what of that? The definite link between Dickens and the Westminster Bridge Road shop is the fact that the novelist was a customer of the late Mr. Vieweg's father. One can go further, perhaps, and point to the fact that the Viewegs have always specialized in miniatures and medals.

Now recall Master Humphrey's second visit to Little Nell and her grandfather. After Nell's brother and Dick Swiveller and Quilp had gone:

"I willingly yielded to his persuasions, and sat down, pretending to examine some curious miniatures and a few old medals which he placed before me."

However, all is surmise; and what matters as much as anything is that thousands of people are going to miss this Old Curiosity Shop who regard it with something like affection.

Old Mr. Vieweg could tell immediately if he had what a customer wanted, and could put his hand on it in all that made miscellany.

He literally lived in his business, for he never returned from a holiday without a bagful of treasures.

They say he had at one time and another a gold violin, Napoleon's own Legion of Honor badge, his lozenge box and gold star, many of the Roman bronzes that have been taken from the Thames, and an ivory model of Nelson's Victory, made by French prisoners at Portsmouth.

When cataloguing the books—among some of which Dickens, Gladstone and Beaconsfield probably browsed—they found a circular papier mache snuff box with a slip of paper inside. On this Mr. Vieweg had written:

"This box was formerly the property of Charles Dickens and was sold at the sale at Gad's Hill, near Gravesend."

"Are you on this investigation committee?"

"I think so."

"What are we investigating?"

"Dunno."

"Well, let's play poker until the chairman comes. Maybe he'll know."

LARGE ROBBERY

Paris, July 26.—An attempt to obtain 1,000,000 francs fraudulently from the Finance Ministry has brought to light the fact that Germans have negotiated municipal bonds stolen in Northern France during the war.

Recently a well-dressed man appeared at the Ministry and presented a package of municipal bonds for redemption. The large amount they called for—1,000,000 francs—together with the fact that they were presented by a private individual aroused suspicions and the man was arrested.

He was found to be an Armenian named Papazian who arrived recently from Cologne. The secret police had been warned a few days ago that an attempt of this nature was about to be made and had arrested several suspicious persons, but Papazian had slipped through the meshes of their net.

It appears that large quantities of these bonds issued during the war by French municipalities in invaded territory were stolen by the German Army in its retreat and taken to Germany. Considerable quantities were subsequently put into circulation by the Germans, payments being effected through Belgian banks which bought them in good faith.

Others like those now presented for redemption have remained in Germany since the war.

TWO KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Toronto, July 30.—J. Saunders, Queen street, Toronto, and Miss Mary Ross, stenographer in the Imperial bank, Bay street branch, Toronto, were killed, and Chas. Saunders, 335½ Lake Front ave., was seriously injured and may not recover, when a car in which they were driving turned turtle on the provincial highway, about 6 miles east of Barrie, on the provincial highway to Orillia, near Crown Hill, at concession 2, Oro

The accident occurred about 2 o'clock this morning. The provincial highway is blocked at this point because of repairs to a bridge and a barricade is across the road with orders to detour to the left. The Saunders car evidently was going at a pretty good clip when it came to this barricade, and Chas. Saunders, who was driving, endeavored to switch off to the right to avoid hitting it. Instead of avoiding it the car smashed into the right side of the barricade, breaking the red lantern which acted as a warning signal. The car went over the right bank of the road and turned completely over in the ditch with its radiator pointing in the opposite direction to its first position. The wheels were in the air and the whole three occupants were pinned under the car.

The lads were alleged to have sold racing form charts in contravention of the statute. The case will be debated on Monday.

DETROIT PAIR UNDER ARREST

Detroit, July 30.—Hazel Oliver, 19, and Josephine Hart, 21, were arrested at 3462 Brush street Saturday and are held by Detroit police in connection with the $82,000 Toronto bank robbery.

Two men, said to be companions of the girls, are being sought on suspicion of being connected with the hold-up.

In a room rented at 422 Napoleon street, by male companions of the women, police found a shotgun, a revolver, 100 rounds of ammunition, brass knuckles, black jacks and flashlights.

Police refuse to say on whose information the two women were arrested, and it is believed that they also expected to find the two men when they arrested the women, but timed their raid too early.

COMPLETE WORK.

Windsor, July 30.—The last obstacle to the completion of the $900,000 reconstruction program on Windsor street railways, operated by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, has been overcome, Sir Adam Beck, chairman of the commission announced here. The work will be rushed to completion this year, he said.

WERE GREAT RACE.

Vikings Properly Take High Place in History.

Remains of two Viking cities have just been discovered, Swedish dispatches state, on the shores of the Scandinavian peninsula.

"Many persons pigeonhole the Vikings along with Captain Kidd and Blackbeard as nothing more than pirates," says a bulletin from the headquarters of the National Geographic Society. But this is no more nearly true than some of our other easy generalizations about people we do not know.

The Vikings had among them merchants, explorers, lawgivers and litterateurs, as well as guerrilla sea rovers. And if they must be branded a nation of robbers, it might as well be recognized that we are discussing family affairs, opening the closet to examine our own private skeletons, as it were. For under the name of Goth, Northman and Norman, they poured blood into and contributed traits to the people of almost every country of western and southern Europe.

Especially is British stock indebted to Viking blood. It came early from their kinsmen, the Angles and Saxons, it came through Viking colonies in Scotland and Ireland, it came directly by invasion in the time of Canute, and finally came the important contribution of the Normans, Vikings once removed.

The Vikings were distinctly products of their geographic environment. They may be considered Germans who were made over by the more northern winter and led to the sea by the fiords and islands of Scandinavia. Their boats became to them what horses are to the Cossack or camels to the desert dweller. The raids in which some of the young bloods engaged were not piracy under the morality of the day, which made one's enemies fair marks for plunder.

Americans should feel sympathetic toward the Vikings, for they were in many ways, both desirable and undesirable, the Yankees of their age. Restless and energetic, votaries of the strenuous life, lovers of adventure, they travelled for the love of travel and sought wealth, whether in merchantboats or war craft, for the love of the [illegible]. They loved their politics [illegible] joyed the debates of the Althing [illegible] fully as the fights in which their feasts often broke up. They were ardent outdoor-sports enthusiasts, engaged in skiing, snowshoeing and sledding in the winter, and staged wrestling, running and jumping matches in the warmer seasons. They even had their national ball game, a sort of hybrid between hockey and lacrosse.

A little imagination might serve to credit the Vikings with being a source of such modern devices as pure food laws, the carbon copies of our business world and ship subsidies. One old Viking law announces that it shall be fraud to sell "sand or shavings for meal or butter." Viking merchants checked their wares from or into their boats by notches on tally sticks, and then ingeniously furnished both buyers' and sellers' records for their "files" by splitting the stick.

King Canute was the Viking champion of an especially appealing ship subsidy. He declared that any merchant who made three voyages overseas at his own expense should be ennobled.

Advice to Aged People.

People from sixty to ninety, says a doctor, should be excused from going to funerals. The funeral of your friend is sometimes followed by your own. Microbes are everywhere, and are looking for people with a poor circulation. A fatty heart is a weak heart. Keep thin. They are looking for people with a poor circulation, for pale people. Keep rosy. He gives a picture of his ideal death. It is this: "I know of no happier death than that of a doctor, still in harness at ninety, dying in his chair, just after saying good-bye to his last patient."

New Typewriters.

Easy separation into three standard units is the feature of a new typewriting machine. Either the carriage, the frame or the type action may be simply removed without the use of tools, and interchanged with similar units of any other machine of the same make; or, of course, new units may be substituted.

MAY CHANGE NEW SALES TAX LAWF

Ottawa, July 30.—Officials of the department of customs and inland revenue are at the present time preparing regulations under which the amended sales tax will be administered. The amended act provides a flat rate of six per cent. and provides for certain exemptions largely upon food stuffs and necessities of life. It does not come into force until January 1st next, and in the meantime the old act is in operation.

Under the new act the governor-in-council has no power beyond the making of further exemptions from the incidence of the tax. This power he does possess. And in view of strenuous protests against the manner in which the flat rate will militiate against certain industries, and add to the cost of certain commodities, particularly newsprint, it is regarded as quite possible that when the tax goes into force next year some important changes will be made.

"What's the News?"

WHEN Columbus and his caravels returned from the New World, the first question shouted from the shore was, "What's the news?"

That's always the question of paramount importance. Years ago folks asked it of the post rider, the soldier returned from the wars, the man who had been down to the settlements, or the neighbor back from the general store.

To-day, you find the answer in your newspaper. Through the newspapers the news of the world and of the community quickly becomes public knowledge. And remember this—it takes two kinds of news to make a modern paper complete.

The first tells of happenings near and far—of fires, sports, elections, accidents, marriages, deaths, great men, great events.

The second tells of things you eat, wear and use—things you buy, things being sold to your friends and neighbors. This news is advertising.

It's just as important to keep up-to-date on the advertising in this paper as it is to read about what's doing in the world of events.

Advertising is an essential news service. It is distinctly to your advantage to be guided by it.

PUBLISHING OF DIVORCE CASE DETAILS HARMFUL TO MORALS CLAIM

London, July 31.—The Parliamentary Committee appointed to report on a proposed bill aiming to greatly curtail press reports on divorce proceedings, which had been strongly criticised by the newspapers as undue interference with the liberty of the press, to-night issued its report, which is against the hearing of all cases in camera, and also against giving the judge authority to decide what shall be published.

The committee submits an amended bill which prohibits the publication in any judicial proceedings of any indecent matter or medical, surgical or physiological details calculated to injure public morals, while in divorce, judicial separation or nullity proceedings nothing shall be published except the following:

1—The names, addresses and descriptions of the parties and witnesses:

2—The grounds on which the proceedings were brought and resisted, as set forth in the petition and answer:

3—The judge's summing up, the jury's verdict, and the court's judgment.

There is certain to be a strong outcry by the press against the amended bill.

MACKIN RECOVERS RETURNS TO OTTAWA

Charles Macklin the man who was removed to the Belleville General Hospital almost three weeks ago suffering from a temporary lapse of memory, due it is believed to continual physical aggravation resulting from injuries sustained by him when four ribs were fractured in a fall from a lumber pile, was liberated Saturday last fully recovered. Macklin left for his home in Ottawa, after the big-hearted Kiwanians of this city had purchased a suit of clothes, other clothing for the man, and had bought a ticket for him to Ottawa.

Macklin was in an unfortunate state both physically and mentally when found wandering near Hartsmere several weeks ago. A nominal charge of vagrancy was withdrawn.

KING GEORGE SCHOOL OPENING

Premier Ferguson, Minister of Education and Hon. Dr. Cody will be Invited to the Ceremony

At the meeting of the Board of Education held last evening the secretary Mr. W. J. Diamond stated he had a communication from Mr. Ackerman, Chairman of the Board relative to the opening of King George school, and if it should be a public affair.

Col. Ponton spoke in favor of making it a public affair and sending a cablegram to King George relative to naming the school after him. The opening of this school is the stepping stone to a collegiate.

Mr. J. Elliott was in accord with the proposition to hold a public gathering in connection with the opening of the school.

A motion prevailed, that the Hon. H. Ferguson, Premier and Minister of Education and Hon. Dr. Cody be invited to attend the opening ceremonies of the school.

Improvement Project Must Include Plan For Filtration Plant

Mayor Bonnell, Ald. Thompson, chairman of the water works, and Mr. E. T. Austin, superintendent of the waterworks department, were in Toronto yesterday. The object of their visit was to interview the Provincial Board of Health relative to contemplated improvement to the water works system, especially the providing of a large intake pipe and other necessary improvements. The deputation were met by Dr. McCullough, Provincial Health Officer, and, while the contemplated improvements were of a satisfactory nature, they cannot be proceeded with unless the filtration plant is included, which would mean a large additional expenditure. The deputation were, however, informed that the work need not be gone on with for two and a half years hence.

DESERONTO YOUTH ELUDES PURSUERS

Provincial police had received no word today concerning George Toppings, the Deseronto youth, who is a fugitive from justice with a posse of provincial and local police in pursuit since he broke into Thompson's garage in Deseronto early Sunday morning, and made off with an auto. Toppings, who is 20 years old, turned up in the vicinity of Read, drove members of two families to church, later dined with one of them, took a party of six children for a joy ride in the afternoon, and then abandoned the automobile and the six lives on a lonely piece of road when police officers hove in sight in pursuit of him and the stolen auto. He opened the auto to fullest speed just before he jumped from it, leaving the machine and its load of six children to their fate.

The automobile ran up the side of a hill, struck a boulder and overturned, but none of the youngsters was injured.

BANDITS' TRAIL IS AGAIN COLD

EXHAUSTIVE SEARCH IN VICINITY OF LEASIDE PROVES UNEVENTFUL

WATCH BORDER.

SEARCHERS DILIGENTLY FOLLOW UP ALL CLUES IN MAN HUNT

Toronto, July 31.—With Leaside as the centre of operations, for the whole of yesterday detectives searched the entire countryside for the Toronto bank bandits, one of whom they are positive is wounded. From daybreak three different posses of heavily armed detectives tramped through bush and farm land for some trace of the robbers.

A thorough search of the barn on the Dunlop farm near Duncan Station was made by police and farmhands. Six tons of hay were removed and some six thousand feet of lumber lifted. A shirt which was worn by one of the men, together with the finding of a small screwdriver, were the only new clues found on the Donalda farm. Last night a doctor in the East End found a parcel of clothing which might have been discarded by the robbers, and handed it over to the police.

Working on the theory that the hold-up men were in hiding within a few miles of where the car had been hidden, squads of police were armed with rifles, shotguns and revolvers, and went in three large speed motors to the district. They worked under the instruction of Inspector William Wallace.

Windsor, July 31. — Virtually the complete detachment of provincial police stationed on this border were at Sarnia and vicinity yesterday in search of trace of the bandit raiders who held up the Toronto bank messengers. Provincial Inspector J. H. Putnam was in charge of the searching party and intimated before he left for Sarnia that the hunt would be kept up until he was satisfied that the bandits were entirely out of the district.

London, Ont., July 31.—After a fruitless all-night search in the vicinity of Arkona, where, according to information handed to the provincial police, members of the Toronto bandit gang, who a week ago held up four bank messengers and made a getaway with $82,000, were in hiding. Inspector Putnam, Sergt. Proctor and a detachment of provincial constables from Windsor, besides Provincial Constable Oliver, of Sarnia, and another from Chatham, came to London yesterday, tired and weary, yet anxious to continue the search should any new developments arise.

Telegraph Head To Resign Post

Toronto, July 31.—General manager since 1911 and vice-president since 1921 of the Canadian National Telegraph Co., George D. Perry, is resigning from the service of that company. It is thought that George C. Jones, assistant general manager of the company, will succeed Mr. Perry.

Mr. Perry began his business career with the Standard Bank in Toronto, and his first position with a railroad company was as cashier for the Credit Valley Railway Company. Mr. Perry then became connected with the Dominion Telegraph Company remaining until 1881, when the company's lines were taken over by the Great Northwestern Telegraph Company. He then entered the service of the N.W.T. Co. and had been, successively, accountant, secretary and auditor, secretary-treasurer, superintendent of supplies, and, in 1911, on the death of I. McMichael, general manager.

He was born in Whitby, received his education at Trinity College School, Port Hope, is an enthusiastic yachtsman, and lives at 96 Rowanwood avenue.

It is proposed to have the pool erected as speedily as possible and it will be built under the supervision of the city engineer.

The matter of the Corby bathing house was taken up but nothing of a definite nature was agreed upon.

Dusseldorf, July 31. — Germany's floating debt is increasing at the rate of 30,000,000 marks per second and has passed the 47,000,000,000,000 mark, according to statistics compiled by French sources today.

Autoists Held Here Hold-Up Artists, is Belief of Police

Harry Charron, 30; George Genereau, 25; and Theodore Grenier, 30; all of Montreal, arrested here at corner of Bridge and Front streets, by Chief Constable A. Kidd and Inspector F. Naphin, are still in custody here.

Charron, owner and driver of the McLaughlin seven passenger machine which they drove is charged with a breach of the Motor Vehicles Act, when he drove off with ten gallons of gasoline which he had not paid for at a gasoline station at Welcome, near Port Hope.

Provincial officers here have sent the finger prints of the three men to Ottawa and are also endeavouring to ascertain whether or not the car was stolen by the men. Nothing further will be done in the matter until the results of the above mentioned investigations are known, so the Intelligencer was informed this morning by Provincial officers.

It is the belief of police officers here that the three men are the same trio who deliberately attempted to hold up an Oshawa taxicab driver between Oshawa and Whitby recently.

Whitby Mayor, Reeve And Council Asked To Surrender Offices

Whitby, July 31.—An indignation meeting was held Saturday night in the Town Hall, Whitby, by the citizens of the town. About one thousand turned out to voice their opinion on the way the affairs of the town were run. Several heated discussions took place, and the meeting assumed the aspect of a near riot. Notices were posted around the town informing the people of the meeting and also requesting the presence of the Mayor and Council. Registered letters were also sent to the Mayor and Council requesting their presence, but in spite of the precautions taken by the ratepayers to have these highly desired persons present, but three attended.

After considerable discussion several resolutions were adopted, the important one being as follows:

> Be it resolved that the mayor, reeve and councilmen be requested to resign immediately, and that a new mayor, reeve and council be elected, who will carry out the affairs of the Corporation of the Town of Whitby in a more satisfactory manner than the present ones.

FRUIT CROP IN CANADA.

Ottawa, Ont., (United Press).—Prospects of a heavy yield of fruit throughout Canada are promising according to reports received by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Reports from Nova Scotia Ontario, Quebec and British Columbia are optimistic. Nova Scotia is the leading apple producing province in Canada.

Kingston, July 31.—

Not many weeks ago a young man canvassed Winchester section, and especially school teachers, for a new magazine (Canadian), and received a good many subscriptions, says the Winchester Press. The teachers and others are still waiting for the first copy of their magazine, and are likely, from all accounts, to keep on waiting. There seem to be a great many fakers travelling through the country soliciting subscriptions for this, that and the other thing.

ESTIMATES FOR SCHOOLS LARGER

FIGURES SHOW $8,000 MORE WILL BE REQUIRED FOR YEAR

TOTAL $92,146.68

ADDITIONAL SCHOOL AND LARGER STAFF RESPONSIBLE FOR INCREASE

A special meeting of the Board of Education was held last evening the object of which was to consider and pass the estimate for the year. The City Council will be asked to provide $31,319.43 for High School purposes and $60,827.25 for public school purposes. This is an increase of $8,000 over the amount asked for last year, owing to the opening of King George school which means an increase in the teaching staff and other expenses. Some other business of a general nature was transacted during the session.

Members present were Messrs. W. H. Gilbert, A. McGie, Dr. Marshall, F. H. Chesher, Col. Ponton, J. Elliott, C. Hanna, W. Harvey, P. Harrison, F. S. Deacon and Dr. O'Brien.

On motion Mr. F. S. Deacon was voted to the chair in the absence of Mr. H. W. Ackerman, chairman.

Minutes of last meeting read and confirmed.

Reports of committees, communications, etc., were laid upon the table. Board went into committee of the whole on reports, etc.. Mr. Hanna in the chair.

The Finance Committee recommended the payment of a number of accounts which were adopted.

REPORTS

A report was presented from the night school showed the attendance to be upwards of 400. The total number of hours taught last term in the various classes were over twelve thousands.

Col. Ponton referred to the fact that the report showed that there were four classes where there was only one pupil being taught. Was this not rather expensive?

Mr. McGie—There is no one teacher for one pupil, although the report may show only one pupil taking a certain subject but the teacher is teaching others at the same time.

On motion the report was laid over until next meeting for further consideration.

The Sites, Building and Repairs Committee reported that the estimates for the year were $1,000 less than last year.

On motion, the report was adopted.

The departmental examination expenses amounting to $1,013 was prevented and was adopted, excepting an account of $5 to Mr. Tilley as a messenger.

The June report of the attendance officer showed the number of cases of absence, etc., he had investigated. Received and filed.

The Secretary was authorized to subscribe for five copies of the Canadian School Journal.

The Committee rose and reported Report received and adopted.

WOMAN VICTIM OF ASSAULT IMPROVED

Mrs. Mary Shymsshym, the Point Anne woman who was severely injured in a Sunday evening free-for-all fight in Shack town, in that village, is much better today, and it is believed that results of the affair may not be as serious as at first imagined.

As a result of the improvement, Nick Gurniak and Sam Gurniak, the two alleged assailants, who have been in custody here since Sunday, were admitted to bail this morning. Checques for $400 in each instance were accepted by Magistrate Masson for both accused men. Nick Gurniak's right leg, which was twisted in the melee, was improved today, but his right eye is still slightly discolored.

It is alleged the fight resulted from the calling of ugly names, and resulted in a fight of the crudest nature, in which the "gooseberry" rules were the limit. Kicking in the stomach was allowed as well as grasping the nasal organ and twisting.

The Gurniak boys will appear in court on Thursday morning charged with assault, and will be defended by C. A. Payne.

Pekin Government Boats Fire Upon Amoy Forts

Amoy, China, July 31.—Two gunboats of the Peking government made a sally into the harbor here, firing on forts which returned the fusilade, the boats withdrawing without much damage.

BUILDING NORMAL, RECORDS INDICATE

Statistics Show Usual Decline in Month of June

According to reports tabulated by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, there was a decline of 23.6 per cent. in the value of the building permits issued in June as compared with May. This seasonal decrease is often experienced during June, the largest aggregate of permits granted usually occurring in April or May, when the building season is commencing. The comparison with June, 1922, also shows less projected activity during the month under review, there being a reduction of 15.9 per cent. Statements received from 56 cities showed that they had authorized building to the value of $14,345,573, whereas in May, 1923, the total had been $18,766,065, and in June, 1922, $17,052,582.

Detailed returns were furnished by 49 cities, which issued over 1,500 permits for dwellings at a total valuation of approximately $7,600,000, and for some 3,600 other buildings estimated to cost nearly $5,800,000. Since the erection of several houses, apartments stores, etc., is very frequently authorized by one permit, the number of buildings to be put up would be somewhat larger.

All Provinces except Prince Edward Island, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick registered declines in the value of prospective building as compared with the preceding month. The increase in Nova Scotia of $70,543, or 91.8 per cent., was the largest, while of the declines recorded elsewhere than in Ontario of $3,136,195 or 28 per cent., was the most pronounced. Alberta, with a percentage decline of 40.4, however, showed the greatest proportional loss.

Only Quebec and Prince Edward Island recorded increases in the value of the permits issued as compared with June, 1922, there being percentage gains of 12.1 and 93.8 respectively in those provinces. Of the decreases indicated in the remaining districts, that of $1,176,166, or 12.7 per cent., in Ontario, was the largest actual decline, while Nova Scotia, with a loss of $193,598, of 56.8 per cent., registered the greatest percentage reduction.

All of the four largest cities—Montreal, Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver—reported less contemplated building as compared with May, 1923, and with June, 1922. The only increases in both comparisons were indicated in St. John, Quebec, Three Rivers, Brantford, Chatham, London, St. Thomas and New Westminster.

Brampton, Ont., July 31.—Eighty Swiss youths have been placed on the farms in different sections of the county in an effort to supply farm labor.

EXPLAIN TAX REGULATIONS.

Ottawa, July 30.—The department of customs and excise will shortly inform wholesalers and retailers of the new sales tax regulation, and it is probable that officials of the department will confer with them to avoid misinterpretation.

REPLIES PLACED BEFORE CABINET

NO EVIDENCE OF RUPTURE OF FRANCO-BELGIAN PARTNERSHIP IN RUHR.

REICHSTAG SESSION

SUCCESSOR TO CHANCELLOR WHOSE RESIGNATION SEEMS INEVITABLE, DISCUSSED

United Press Despatch, Exclusive To The Intelligencer.

London, July 31.—"I'm afraid the French and Belgian replies mean only continuous negotiations", Premier Baldwin Monday told the Commons after the French and Belgian Ambassadors had delivered their government's communications on reparations and the Ruhr.

London, July 21.—French and Belgian replies to the British note, together with the draft of the reply to the German memorandum are now in hands of the British Government. They were handed to Lord Curzon yesterday afternoon by the French and Belgian Ambassadors, who only remained at the Foreign Office a few minutes.

London, July 31.—Allied replies to Britain's reparations note were laid before the Cabinet today by Marquis Curzon. The contents are to remain an official secret.

Paris, July 31.—Despite divergence in the Franco-Belgian replies to England on reparations, there is no chance of Belgian and France breaking off their partnership in the Ruhr.

Berlin, July 31.—Members of Parliament, remaining Berlin, met Monday evening at the Reichstag to discuss the choice of a successor to Chancellor Cuno whose resignation seems inevitable.

ASPHALT MACHINE BEING REPAIRED

It is expected that the steam shovel will be returned from Lindsay and put in operation, on Station street next Monday. The asphalt machine is being repaired. The asphalt will be laid on Highland avenue as soon as possible. The storm sewers and water and gas renewals are practically completed on Station street. Both projects will be completed on or before the middle of October.

At Deseronto yesterday His Honour Judge Deroche heard evidence and arguments on 11 appeals by the Rathbun Company and the Deseronto Land Company from the Assessor and the Court of Revision of the town of Deseronto. The striking result was that total assessments of $29,425 against these Corporations were reduced to $12,100, a total reduction on appeal of $17,325. Mr. W. N. Ponton, K.C. represented the Companies appellants, and Mr. W. A. Grange, of Napanee and Mr. H. Bedeford the Town of Deseronto.

FLEETS ARRIVE FOR REGATTA WHICH WILL OPEN HERE TOMORROW

Belleville harbor assumed a real old-time appearance this morning when about thirty yachts representing nearly every club on Lake Ontario lined both shores. The success of the big regatta is now practically assured and all that is needed is kindly co-operation on the part of the weather man. The yachts with their snow-white sails, with the British and American flags wafted to the breeze present a very pretty spectacle which is being viewed by many citizens. Prominent among the visiting craft is the Scrapper, owned by Dr. Bruce Taylor of Kingston and sailed by his three daughters. Principal Taylor is a great yachtsman and a king of good fellows.

The Nayada of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club and one of the fastest boats on the Great Lakes, is a neat appearing yacht and will no doubt cut a big figure in the race. The Cheriya of Kingston, which put up a gallant fight in the George Cup races, is anchored off the government wharf. The Oriole IV. owned by Gordon Gooderham, commodore of R.C.Y.C., himself a well known yachtsman, is anchored at the dock. The Crescent

South Hopes to Save Itself By Replacing Negroes With Whites

New Era for South Forecast by Movement Now Under Way in South Carolina—Planter, Politician and Banker Explains Plans

By FRANK A. CLARVOE, United Press Staff Correspondent.

(Copyright, 1923, by United Press)

San Francisco, July 31.—"Young Rastus is following the lead of old Uncle Joe and layin' down de shubbel an' de hoe."

"Rastus is leaving the southern cotton fields with their carefree life and low pay for the steel mills and manufactories of the north, for higher pay and other conditions which he thinks he wants."

"For the first time in its history, South Carolina's white population outnumbers the black, and for the second time in its history the old south faces a great problem of readjustment because of the "emancipation" of the negro."

Such is the declaration of Richard I. Manning, prominent banker and planter of South Carolina and state's "war governor." Former Governor Manning was here recently with a party of South Carolinians to study colonization pratices in the west, to the end that some similar plan may be perfected and put into practice in his state. They are continuing their trip through Oregon, Washington and the great northwest.

Hordes of negroes are departing monthly from the southern cotton belt to industrial centers in the north and west. Facing a serious labor shortage, with its output of cotton reduced nearly 70 per cent since 1921, and thousands of its farms abandoned, South Carolina is turning its attention to solving its own state and sectional problem by the only means seemingly possible, according to Manning—establishment within the state of colonies of hardy people able, agriculturally, to support themselves.

MONEY PROVIDED.

The last South Carolina Legislature approved the colonization plan and provided the money for preliminary investigation, Manning said.

Southern hospitality is to acquire a new—an economic—significance.

Manning declared that the boll weevil, that costly scourge of the cotton fields, has precipitated a crisis in the south, a crisis augmented by the exodus of the negro and the flocking of white laborers to the southern mills.

"Since 1892, when the weevil swarmed from Mexico into Texas, until 1920, when South Carolina was smitten, the result was inevitable," Manning declared. "In 1922 catastrophe was upon us. In one year our crop was reduced from 1,600,000 bales to 500,000 bales, and a total of more than $100,000,000 yearly return in cash lost to the state.

"Pinched by conditions at home and attracted by high wages in other sections, the negro then hastened his migration. More than 50,000 have left the state since last December. Most of these were field laborers. Others rented small farms, which now are abandoned. There is nobody to work them. Small, white land-owners followed by deserting their farms. Seven thousand farms, an untold acreage, now lie idle. Many of the workers are in the cotton mills, which are springing up all over the state until South Carolina is second only to Massachusetts in value of cotton manufactures."

GOOD FOR THE STATE.

"While South Carolina does not view with enthusiasm the withdrawal of its small land-owner from agricultural pursuits for work in the mills and does not feel that cotton manufactories can replace agriculture as the basis for state wealth, the departure of the negro is actually a good thing," Manning continued. "People of the south must now use their heads rather than their own and others' hands. The exodus removes from the shoulders of the south the last of the incubus weight which has throttled southern enterprise.

"We now face a condition similar to that following the war between the states. Then the negro ceased to be a slave and became a paid worker, but still content for the most part to remain with the soil. That change in his economic status caused the white population to readjust itself. Now the negro is steadily forsaking the soil for the industrial plant, and another economic adjustment is necessary.

"These abandoned farms must be manned, labor must be supplied, new land must be reclaimed, and white cotton must still be king, greater diversity of farming must be instituted.

SOLUTION OF THE STRUGGLE

"To make a success of cotton there must be, as in everything else, a fair margin of profit. It is hand-labor. The solution of the fight for cotton lies in the forming of colonies of hardy agriculturists, with ambition to take advantage of state aid to own their own farms and work out their own salvation with cotton and other crops, with their hands.

"We need new blood to aid in the extension of agricultural activity, in the fight for southern cotton. The legislature's plan is to hand-pick prospective immigrants from the northern countries of Europe and settle them in colonies where they can have unit state supervision and the benefits of the farm loan banking system. They will not be laborers in the sense that we are importing 'hands' to replace the vanishing negro. The immigrants will not be scattered. The colonies are planned as units and must be self-supporting, for we, as a state, believe that as the small home-owner is the back-bone of the nation, the small land-owner is the back bone of an industrial section. The farms that have been rented by large land-owners and formerly rented to the negro are particularly considered as the seats of activity for the people who we hope to bring into the state."

"This plan of ours will be called a startling departure for the south," Manning admitted. "Undoubtedly it is. A new era of progressivism is dawning and while this plan, as it is carried out and extended, will mean readjustments social, economical, political, South Carolina, and the south with her, wittingly considers these possibilities, and beyond the fog of this present serious situation sees promise of a brilliant economic future."

PIKE'S PEAK CLIMB.

Colorado Springs, Colo., July 31 (United Press).—Entries are coming in daily for annual running of the hill climb to the summit of Pike's Peak labor day event. Owing to the ruling of the American Automobile Association, which bars all freak cars and those of extremely light weight out of the event, the race this labor day promises to be the best since its inception in 1916 The course, which is slightly more than 12 of the 18 miles of the Auto Highway to the top of Pike's Peak, 14,109 feet above sea level, is in perfect condition.

PERFECT RETORT.

"I pronounce you man and wife," had just been spoken. Guests were tittering and kissing the bride and most of them were kissing the groom

To one side stood a Titian-haired beauty who was known to have jilted or been jilted by (one never knows which) the proverbially happy bridegroom.

"Have you kissed the bridegroom?" a hysterical guests shrieked at her.

"Not this evening," replied the beauty.

In Memory of Martyr

Five Churches in England Dedicated to King Charles

Every January 30th services are still held in some churches in England, in memory of King Charles I., who was executed on that day in 1649, in Whitehall.

Not only are these services held in honor of the "King and Martyr," but there are also no fewer than five churches in different parts of the country dedicated to him, as a saint.

The church of Charles, at Plymouth, has a curious history, taking us back to the early part of that unfortunate monarch's reign, when he was extremely popular, and when none could have dreamed of civil wars and the beheading of a king. Charles' Church, Plymouth, is the earliest of the five and dates from 1641, when an expansion of Plymouth town led to an Act of Parliament being passed dividing the ancient mother-parish of St. Andrew.

In seeking a name for the new parish, the fervid Loyalists of the West Country made the proposal that his Majesty should permit it to be named after himself, and this was graciously agreed to.

The church then built was first used for worship in 1643, and was dedicated, "per nomen ecclesial Caroli," by the name of Charles' Church twenty-two years later (September 2nd, 1665), a fortnight after the dedication of the parish church of Falmouth.

Falmouth was then a brand-new town and port, built where only the little hamlet of Smithike (or Pennycomequick) had stood. The dedication of Falmouth Church is to Charles I., king and martyr. It is not a beautiful church, and its tower has the peculiarity of not being square. It is about two-thirds as broad as it is long.

The bleak and hard-featured parish of Peak Forest, on the cold Derbyshire uplands, has a very curious church dedicated to St. Charles, king and Martyr. It was built by Christian Countess of Devonshire, in 1657, during the Republican and Cromwellian era, a time when it might be supposed such a royalist dedication would be impossible.

This is an extremely ugly neoclassic building. It was in use until 1877, when a new church was built, in the gothic style, the old building now being used as a reading-room. Peak Forest, it may be added, was long an ecclesiastical "peculiar." That is to say, it was a self-contained and entirely independent jurisdiction, not subject to any bishop, dean, or chapter.

The vicar was his own surrogate, and issued marriage licences under his own "peculiar" seal. In consequence of this, Peak Forest became as scandalous a place for runaway marriages as Gretna Green itself. But all that is long of the past.

The red brick church of King Charles the Martyr, at Tunbridge Wells, was originally a chapel. It was built in 1684, and stands facing the common, near that famous parade, the Pantyles.

Tunbridge Wells itself dates from 1606, when Lord North, having fallen into a consumptive state of health, was trying the bracing air of this borderland of Kent and Sussex. He it was who discovered the famous springs.

Benefiting by them, he spread the good news, and a visit in 1630 by Henrietta Maria, Queen of Charles I., set the seal of approval on the place.

Strangely enough, Tunbridge Wells became a favorite resort of the sour Puritans during the Commonwealth, and thus came into being the local Biblical names of "Mount Ephraim" and "Mount Zion."

A complete reversal took place after the restoration of 1660. Hence the distinctly Royalist dedication of what was the chapel and is now the church.

The fifth and concluding example of a Charles' church is that of King Charles the Martyr, at Newtown, three miles from the little town of Wem, in Shropshire. It was built in the first place as a chapel-of-ease to Wem, and still draws an annual subsidy of $250 from the mother-church. This was one of those very exceptional church livings which are in the election and gift of the inhabitants; but this privilege ceased in 1855.

The original church was unfortunately rebuilt in 1868, but the "Charles" dedication is still retained.

The Longest Word.

Until recently the longest word in the English dictionaries was "disproportionableness," which is not so very long, after all, when it is compared with some of the gigantic names of modern chemistry. Henry Carey, an English poet, wrote, somewhere around the year 1700, a burlesque called by the sounding name, "Chrononhotonthologos," in which there was a character called "Aldiborontiphoscophornio." This whole play is full of long words and bombastic phrases, a noted example of which is the following: "His cogitative faculties immersed. In cogibundity of cogitation." An English newspaper is on record as having used (with what meaning it is hard to guess) this truly Gargantuan word, "Polyphrasticontinomimegalondulation." This was possibly a burlesque on some long-winded political proclamation. But the king of them all, the longest word, without a doubt, ever coined, was a word used by the Greek comedy writer Aristophanes. It is unnecessary to give this word. Besides, lack of space forbids. Suffice it is to say that it has seventy-nine syllables and 111 letters.

GRIPPING FILM TELLS BIG TRUTHS

J. G. Mayer's "The Greatest Menace" Hands Knockout to the Drug Systems

A clean knock-out was scored at Griffin's theatre last evening when J. G. Mayer's thrilling photo-drama "The Greatest Menace" scored a great triumph over the drug systems that are wrecking the physiques and minds of Young America and Canada today. One dramatic punch after another is landed on the drug traffic by Mr. Mayer's splendid production and it not only points out the terrible effects from using drugs but cautions the world against a vice that is being fought by nation, city and province.

"The Greatest Menace", according to the picture, is dope. And this same deadly poison that is surreptitiously delivered to the users by the routes known to the narcotic operators forms the keynote of this screen story. The District Attorney of a certain section is on record as out to obliterate the drugs and their notorious systems at any cost. The gangs plan a battle that reaches far and wide in his weapons. The system enmeshes a son of the District Attorney. It stoops so low in its efforts to block the attorney's fight that it has the boy arrested on a murder charge. Now a sister of the disgraced youth steps in and legally conducts him through his trial and what happens later is all told dramatically by the motion picture camera. There are some well-worked up surprises and exciting twists that keeps the audience on the tiptoe of expectancy.

The picture is finely acted. Ann Little does some of the best work of her film career. As the feminine attorney, who tackles the dope ring and finally beats them in the fight for her brother's life, she displays real histrionic ability. Robert Gordon as the brother, puts his heart and soul into the interpretation of the doped son of the District Attorney. Harry Northrup was bully as the head of the dope ring. Wilfred Lucas was excellent as the District Attorney. Rhea Mitchell did some excellent acting as the girl drug-fiend. This was a thankless role but one that Miss Mitchell did with distinction. Praise must also go to Andrew MacClennan, Mildred June, Mr. Kirby, Gordon Mullen, Lew Meehan and Jack Livingston for the capable handling of their respective roles.

Albert Rogell is the accredited directing master and if one can accept his work on "The Greatest Menace" as a criterion, he is headed for the very high rung of the ladder of fame. The film was adapted by Mr. Rogell from an original story by Angeles C. Kaufman. It will go a long way in helping to wipe out the drug horrors that are daily reported in the bog cities of the nation.

"Babies", an amusing Kineto Review, a good Vodevil Movies, and an interesting Fox News were exhibited during the evening.

"POVERTY OF RICHES" A DRAMA RIPPED FROM THE BOOK OF LIFE.

LeRoy Scott, in "Poverty of Riches" which is now being exhibited at the Regent Theatre, wrote a story that actually reflected life.

Life, as you don't need to be told, is a curious matter. Good is not always triumphant. Justice is not always done. Life often defeats itself.

For example—and this is close to all of us—is it not true that young married couples who have children are more hampered in the fight for wealth than couples that are childless?

Yes, it is true. So true, that every young couple reach the day when they are forced to make a definite decision—babies or success.

Which do you think is more desirable? Luxury, ease, wealth, the admiration and envy of the world—or a little home, a happy wife, a humble position in life, and children. Which?

It's a problem that has been developed, in "Poverty of Riches", into the most powerful of motion pictures, with interest and suspense sustained in an extraordinary way.

Leatrice Joy, Richard Dix, John Bowers, Louise Lovely, Irene Rich, Frankie Lee and others of the unusual cast give inspired performances.

Movie Chats, a Sunshine comedy, and Ann Little and Fred Thomson in a new chapter of Universal's stunt serial "The Eagle's Talon's, completes the program that is well worth seeing.

ESTIMATES FOR PUBLIC SCHOOLS OF BELLEVILLE FOR YEAR 1923

Mr. John Elliott, chairman of Finance of the Board of Education, at a meeting last evening presented the following statement regarding the estimated income and expenditure by the board for the year 1923:

	Levied in 1922	1923
High School	29,637.65	31,319.43
Public School	53,534.35	60,827.25
Total	83,172.00	92,146.68
Increase	8,974.68
	92,146.68	92,146.68

Total sum required for 1923, provided for as below:

Levy	92,146.68
General Resources	14,670.32
Transferred form Bank Reserve	9,000.00
	115,817.00	115,817.00

Bank Reserve Dec. 31, 1922	12,786.59
Transferred as above to reduce Levy	9,000.00
Leaving Reserve Account	3,786.59
Balance still due by City Council re purchase Pinnacle St. School	2,000.00

Col. Ponton complimented Mr. Elliott upon the statement presented and his work as chairman of Finance, but thought $3,000 was a rather small surplus to work upon. He also referred to the report sent out by the city auditor that the School Board had a surplus of $25,000 on hand, which he regarded as a misrepresentation of facts, as it was shown there was only $12,000 of a surplus.

Mr. Elliott stated that he had taken $9,000 from the surplus of $12,000 so as to make the amount required from the City Council as low as it was possible to do. Of the $9,000 he stated $6,000 would be applied for public school purposes and $3,000 for High school purposes.

The report presented was unanimously adopted and the necessary by-law was passed through its various stages and numbered.

Question of Hog Pen Technique is Cause of Family 'Ruckus'

A jangle as to whether hinges should be removed from a hog pen door and placed on the horse stable door, resulted in a battle on a farm on the third concession of Thurlow township recently, and was settled in police court this morning, between the parties. The parties agreed to pay all court costs of $11.56.

John Shaw the defendent of the assault charge action, is married to a former Miss Pringle, and with her brothers, operates the farm on which the incident occurred. John, armed with a crow bar, insisted on taking the hinges off the hog pen door, but his wife's two brothers insisted so strongly that he should not, that trouble seemed evident. Despite the protest of Shaw's aged mother, Mrs. Shaw, Jr., rushed out to the verbal assistance of her brothers, and according to the aged lady, climbed on hubby's back, pulled his hair, and "put the dukes" to him. Suddenly she shouted, "My jaw is broken," and the fight was over. She held that Shaw struck her on the jaw. Shaw says that in the excitement, an elbow likely collided with his wife's jaw.

Owing to the fact that the farm is worked jointly, and that a police court case would but further embitter the feeling, the matter was settled, but in the future, similar cases should they occur, will be dealt with, and the guilty one punished accordingly.

Col. E. D. O'Flynn appeared for the defendent, Shaw, and A. B. Collins for the Pringles.

O.T.A. FINE REDUCED

Lindsay, July 31.—The appeal from the conviction of Police Magistrate Bradburn whereby he sentenced Joseph A. Cox of Montreal, the colored pullman car conductor, $750 and costs or six months in jail, for having kept liquor for sale in his car at the C.N. R. station, Lindsay, on the 18th of July, 1923, came up at the Court House, Lindsay, on Saturday, before His Honor Judge McGillivray of Whitby. The fine was reduced to $200 and costs.

Mr. I. E. Weldon, who appeared for the accused, claimed that there was nothing but suspicion upon which they found any conviction whatever against the prisoner. Mr. A. M. Fulton claimed that once the liquor was found on the car, certain portions of the Ontario Temperance Act shifted the onus of proving his innocence to the accused.

NEW "COW-CATCHER"

Two autos were going full speed and in opposite directions, on the Provincial Highway just east of Port Hope on Saturday. The car eastward bound struck a cow with such force that it lifted "bossy" right into the back seat of the west bound automobile. That is grabbing things on the fly alright.

Dull and disobedient children

May not be naturally so.

Thousands of children who have been disinclined to study, and hence called backward, have by being equipped with glasses been transformed into bright, ambitious students.

So before children are blamed for lack of interest in studies they should have the conditions of their eyes determined.

LONDON MAN TELLS WORK DONE AMONG BOYS BY KIWANIS CLUBS

Kiwanian Hugh Murray of London, Ont., who represented the London club at the International Convention of Kiwanis at Atlanta, Ga., recently, was speaker at Kiwanis luncheon today, and told of the excellent work which is being accomplished by the Kiwanis clubs of Quebec and Ontario, in the chief work of Kiwanians—the assisting of the underprivileged boy. From Quebec to Windsor, there are twenty-two Kiwanis Clubs and they are looking after no less than 500 boys. Sixty-five boys are being cared for by the club at London alone. They are principally sons of Canadian soldiers who were killed overseas, and these children are being clothed, fed, educated and "daddied" by Kiwanians.

"This is the strong forte of the London club," said Kiwanian Murray "and our every effort is to make the communitly in which we live, a better place to live."

Secretary George Griffin read a most clear-cut and concise financial report, in which it was brought out that the local club have some $80 on the assest side of the ledger at the present time. A vote of thanks was extended to George for his indefatigable work in preparing such an excellent report. Mr. Tim Little was a guest today, and presided at the piano, Kiwanian Harold Holton acting in the capacity of song leader. The third guest was Mr. John W. Langwich, of Toronto.

At the Catholic picnic, this month, the Kiwanian soft ball team will play against the Rotarion team at the picnic grounds, for a box of cigars donated by the Knights of Columbus, who are also supplying home run bats and all baseball equipment. The game will be a five-inning exhibition. "Ginger" Stewart will captain the Kiwanian squad and is now scouting for material.

In connection with the band concert at Victoria Park on Wednesday evening, the Kiwanians will broadcast a singsong.

Belleville Kiwanians were in favor of a suggestion as put forth by the Peterboro club to hold a joint Kiwanis picnic at Cobourg some Thursday in August, where Kingston, Belleville, Peterboro, Cobourg and Lindsay clubs would be represented. Messrs. Phil Brockel, Ginger Stewart and "Ack" Ketcheson are members of a committee of three who will make arrangements for this outing.

BIBLE PRESENTED TO JAPAN'S CROWN PRINCE AS WEDDING PRESENT

By CLARENCE DUBOSE

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Tokyo (By mail to United Press).—A beautifully embossed Bible will be presented to Crown Prince egent Hirohito, future emperor of Japan, and his bride, the Princess Nagako Kuni, when they are married next fall.

This wedding gift will be given to the future emperor and Empress of this country by several hundred thousand Christians in Japan—both foreigners and natives. Subscriptions, small per capita, but substantial in total, are now being raised by Japanese Christian workers throughout the empire.

The Bible will be printed in the Japanese language. The materials and workmanship will be the finest money can buy, but it will not be a gaudy thing, but built only for display. It will be of a handy, convenient size—built for use. The Christians who are giving it expect that it will be read.

"The Crown Prince Regent is not a Christian, speaking in a technical religious sense, but in spirit I suppose he comes pretty close to it," prominent foreign missionary here said. "He knows the Bible. He will read this one. That's why we're making it a handy size."

WEDDING IN OCTOBER

The exact date of the imperial wedding has not been announced, but it will be fixed, probably, for some time in October. Several special missions are now in Europe buying articles of dress for the prince and princess. However, most of the garments and supplies will be Japanese products.

Hirohito issued two orders for his wedding: 1. Buy in Japan everything possible, and, 2. Spend no more money than is necessary. He said that he would never consent to money being wasted on an imperial wedding while poor people were in need.

Despite this injunction—which made a big hit with the people—the wedding will be the most elaborate show Japan has known for years. Hirohito is tremendously popular, and the entire nation will go into a holiday, and have all sorts of fetes—economy to the contrary notwithstanding.

MR. HARDING AT VANCOUVER.

The following view of President Harding's reception at Vancouver and other related subjects is expressed by the New York Times.

"In his own country President Harding has never had a more cordial reception or hospitable welcome than the Canadians gave him at Vancouver on Thursday. No President of the United States while in office had set foot on Dominion soil before, and the British Columbians made a gala day of his coming. Warships in the harbor saluted him, military organizations turned out in his honor, the city blazed with bunting, and the Stars and Stripes and British colors waved side by side, while the President's progress through the streets was cheered by throngs of people. Mr. Harding's speech at Stanley Park was in his happiest vein, sympathetic, eloquent and infectious in its note of good-will.

"The relations of the two peoples, who have been at peace for more than one hundred years, was Mr. Harding's theme. Never did he appear to better advantage. The applause of the sentiments which he uttered was as much a tribute to them as to the high office of the speaker. The Canadians opened their hearts to Mr. Harding. His address was one of those felicitous utterances that are worth preservation because they are so genuine. A passage worth quoting was as follows.

"Our protection is in our fraternity, our armor is our faith: the tie that binds more firmly year by year is ever increasing acquaintance and comradeship through interchange of citizens, and the compact is not of perishable parchment but of fair and honorable dealing, which, God grant, shall continue for all time.

"Recognition of the interdependence of the two countries is, as the President indicated, essential to the continuance of relations that have never yet undergone a severe strain. The arbitrations of the Bering Sea and the Alaska boundary disputes resulted in no friction; although in the one case the sum of $464,000 damages sustained by British seal fishermen was assessed upon the United States, and in the other the Canadians suffered a disappointment in Lord Alverstone's agreement with the American commissioners in their construction of the three-mile limit as it applied to an inlet of the sea. Future differences will have to do with tariffs, trade exchanges and conflicting interests growing out of legislation. At the present time there is only one matter that may prove a rift in the harmony of the two countries: that is the exercise of a power lodged in the Governor General to declare an embargo upon the exportation of freehold pulpwood, the raw material used by paper mills in the United States. It has been pointed out that if such an embargo were to go into effect "more than a million cords a year would be added to the drain on our fast diminishing resources." The price of newsprint paper in the United States would have to be advanced making an added cost to our publishers of $25,000,000 a year. This would be exclusive of the increased cost to users of magazine and book papers.

There are said to be two explanations of the embargo legislation in Canada. One is the desire of paper-makers there to control the industry and the other is concern for conservation of the Canadian pulpwood forests. If sober counsel prevails, there will be no embargo. During the debate in the House of Commons at Ottawa Mr. Good declared that "those who were interested in the prohibition of the exportation of pulpwood apparently wanted to prevent competition from the other side." Another member, Mr. McMaster, said that such legislation would invite reprisals. Fortunately, a commission was appointed in Canada to hear evidence for and against an embargo. The Ottawa Citizen sounded the warning recently that "trade wars and tariff reprisals are usually the consequence of acts which create artificial barriers in the path of trade." That was evidently the view of Premier King when he addressed the British Empire Forestry Association on Wednesday. He said that "to restrict trade in any direction is the last of measures to which a Government should resort," and intimated that Canada's pulpwood problem might be solved by improved forestry methods.

By The Side Of The Road

Paper marks will soon be as worthless as iron crosses.

One can but marvel at the exotic philosophy which would prompt a hospital attendant to refuse to provide a burial shroud for the body of an ex-serviceman. Even an enemy in time of war would grant that much. The Kingston hospital attendant says he didn't refuse the shroud. A thorough investigation should settle the matter.

The autoists nabbed here Saturday may have simply forgotten to pay that gasoline bill. Gasoline prices are so insignificant you know.

A school girl in California was asked to write a composition on man. This is what she wrote:

"Men are what women marry. They drink and smoke and swear, but do not go to church. Perhaps if they wore bonnets they would. They are more logical than women and also more zoological. Both men and women sprang from monkeys, but women sprang farther than men."

The new countess of Northesk will be able to show the summer girls in the Thousand Island colony something they haven't got. Its no small accomplishment for a girl to capture an ear—and the deuce of it is, they're scarce.

PRESS OPINIONS

CANADIAN BOLSHEVIK
(Stratford Beacon-Herald)

Daniel Livingston, the deposed leader of the miners in Nova Scotia, is reported as declaring that he intends to do all in his power "to overthrow the present system of government."

The declaration was scarcely necessary. Hasn't he been doing that for some time? If he has not succeeded it was not because of lack of will, but because of lack of power.

CANADA'S TIMBER WEALTH
(The Canadian Forestry)

"Unfortunately there exists in Canada a popular misconception that the extent of our timber wealth is greater than that of our neighbor to the south, and, to most Canadians, the evidence of alarm across the line gives little worry. The cold, hard fact is, however, that Canada's timber wealth is not even half that of the United States. There is, therefore, every reason for serious consideration of our position in this country."

With a timber wealth not even half that of the United States, can Canada afford the prodigality of pioneers, the speculations of politicians or the pride of possession?

STRIKES ARE COSTLY.
(Guelph Mercury)

Strikes are costly proceedings, particularly for the workers, as was demonstrated in the coal and steel workers' strike of the past few weeks in Nova Scotia. Almost two million of dollars were lost in wages that can never be recovered, and the families of the workers are that much poorer. It is unfortunate that such proceedings are not better considered before harsh steps are taken in the violation of agreements solemnly entered into. The strike is almost due to be classed as obsolete.

"JAY-WALKING" MOTORISTS.
(Peterboro Examiner)

Much of the argument used in defending motorists from charges of careless driving is based on what is called the "jay-walking" habits of pedestrians.

Undoubtedly there are too many people who cross streets in the middle of a block who fail to look both ways before crossing, who bury their heads in newspapers and sail blithely out into the traffic.

But if there are "jaywalking" pedestrians there are "jay-walking" motorists—if the term may be used.

Everybody knows the type—the drivers who use the paved portion of Peterborough's streets as a permanent driveway, and who spend hours nearly every evening merely driving up and down these few streets, cluttering up the traffic and appearing so frequently as to constitute their cars a nuisance.

It is nobody's place to dictate to people where or at least on what streets they should drive, and yet there is so much of this aimless, unnecessary, stupid motoring on these principal streets that it causes natural wonder.

A few years ago a favourite Sunday evening practice of a certain standard of young men was to hire a horse and buggy and drive up and down George street.

The custom of the horse era seems to have been handed down to many of the motoring fraternity, who make the same rounds as in the old days, but with more noise and more chance of an accident.

EUROPEAN MIX-UP.
(St. Louis Globe-Democrat)

What is to be the outcome of this situation? No one can consider it without grave concern for peace. The withdrawal of diplomatic relations with Germany is threatened by both France and Belgium if Cuno does not disavow the acts of sabotage. There is justice in the demand, but the threat is another step towards an actual state of war. Germany is disarmed but a nation of 60,000,000 people, jealous of their independence, will find a means to fight if attacked. Great Britain cannot make an independent agreement with Germany without breaking up the entente, incurring the enmity of France, and in effect allying herself with Germany. The rupture of the entente would leave the Treaty of Versailles with all its vast ramifications without united support. The trend of affairs justifies apprehension, and Americans can not afford to ignore it.

WHEAT AS REGULATOR.
(Providence Journal)

The cost of living apparently, is on the descending grade as regards foodstuffs, and if the movement now in evidence is maintained it may spread to other commodities that directly or indirectly enter into the aggregate cost. Why the price of steel billets or print cloths, for instance, should be affected favorably or unfavorably by the price of wheat may be left to the professional householder. The fact sufficient for producers and consumers of living necessities in all their variety is that it occurs.

Ask Uncle Sam so Pay Big Sums to Inventors

Philadelphia, July 30.—(United Press).—Out of the world war has arisen the biggest patent litigation in the history of the country, which will cost the United States government many millions of dollars, if patents on mobile heavy artillery are held valid by the federal courts.

Several suits have already been filed, one in this district against the Baldwin Locomotive Works, and others are to be started in various parts of the country.

While corporations are named as defendants, the Government, it is stated will ultimately have to pay any damages that are awarded, because it guaranteed manufacturers of war armament against damages and patent claims.

The Plaintiff in the suits is Lawrence W. Luellen, who claims that he and Cecil F. Dawson invented improvements on gun mounts and other mobile, heavy artillery which were used extensively and successfully in the war. Dawson assigned his rights in the inventions to Luellen.

ASKS $18,000,000

In the suit against the Baldwin Locomotive Works alone, $18,000,000 are involved and if Luellen's patents are sustained, the Government would have to pay this sum. The importance of the suits to the government and the magnitude of Luellen's claims was disclosed when counsel for the Baldwin company asked the Federal Court here for a ninety day extension in which to file and answer to Luellen's suit.

"This is no ordinary suit," the attorney said, "but is one of the biggest and most important litigations in the history of the country." He explained that the company needed the additional time to obtain the results of a world wide investigation being made by the department of justice to ascertain whether the invention of Luellen is an original one, or whether he and Dawson gleaned their idea from patents, were never put in practical use.

For months, it was learned, department of justice agents have been digging into the archives of patent offices of all the European countries for information relating to mobile heavy artillery and have not yet completed their investigation.

All U. S. Treaties Filed With L. of N.

By HENRY WOOD
(United Press Staff Correspondent).

Geneva (By mail to the United Press)—Since the organization of the League of Nations, over 500 international treaties, the terms of which would otherwise have been a complete secret, have been filed with the secretariat for publication and for access to the eyes of the entire world. It was by this obligatory publication of treaties through the League that the founders of the latter hope to break up secret diplomacy and the possibility of secret military alliances.

Even where states, like the United States are not members of the League, the treaty is always filed for publication by the other contracting party. Thus all of the American treaties have been filed with the League, the same as those of League members.

Germany, although not a member of the League, has voluntarily filed all of her treaties for publication.

Madge—"So you've broken off your engagement with Jack?"

Myrtle—"Oh, no; merely suspended it until I return to town in September."

The doctor looked him over, spent some moments in profound cogitation, and then delivered the bad news

"You must diet."

"Ugh," grunted the patient.

"You must eat less," the doctor explained.

"Aw, doc."

"I tell you, my friend you are digging your grave with your knife and fork."

The patient brightened visibly at this.

"Oh, well, with those implements it is going to take a long time."

PETERBORO LEADS IN SECOND HALF

But Situation May be Altered Materially in Week

Peterboro are now leading the second half but the complexion of things may be changed before the week is out. The Petes invade Kingston to-morrow and the Limestoners are aching to wipe out the sting of Saturday's defeat. Kingston have lost very few games at home this season and will be in there fighting all afternoon. If Kingston can send Peterboro home on the short end of the score, Belleville's chances will be considerably strengthened, that is providing the Trunks take a fall out of Cobourg. If Kingston beats Peterboro and Belleville too shoves over a win then the Trunks and Petes will be even-stephen. The railroaders, anxious to avenge their last two defeats at home are going to Peterboro on Saturday with blood in their eye. The Petes and Belleville are now running neck and neck and it looks like a lively time in the Big Four in the next few games.

It is Jack Williams turn in the box to morrow but we shouldn't be surprised if the Indian will be saved for Saturday's big doings in Solomonville.

Brownscombe will probably remain at short-stop to morrow.

"Big Peeney", it is hoped will be ready for Saturday's game.

The Cobourg team are liable to spring a surprise any time and a big crowd is expected.

Sullivan and Kay will be the officials.

The present standing of the teams are:

	Won	Lost	P. C.
Peterboro	6	2	.807
Belleville	5	3	.625
Kingston	4	4	.500
Cobourg	1	7	.125

Kingston Catcher Moves Fast—But It's Before Game

Kingston, July 31.—"Lexis" Rice, the crack catcher for the Kingston team in the Central Ontario League, was in the line-up with Kingston at Peterborough on Saturday afternoon, but he had to do some hustling to get there. Owing to the blunder of a local taxi driver in calling at the wrong address, Lexis missed the early morning train which carried his team mates to Peterboro. When the time came for the train to leave the Kingston Junction, Lexis was conspicuous by his absence and the S.O.S. sign was sent out for him, but he could not be located. Ten minutes after the train left, Lexis arrived at the station just in time to be too late. He then hopped into his own car, stepped on the gas and was in Peterboro in time to step into the game. So all's well that ends well.

LONG LAYOFF BEATS MANY CHAMPIONS

By HENRY L. FARRELL, United Press Sports Editor.

New York, July 31.—No art can be lost quicker through the lack of practice than boxing. No art is harder to back than boxing, after a long layoff, in the opinion of Jack McAuliffe, the veteran undefeated lightweight champion.

His theory has been proved three times within the early summer months by Johnny Kilbane, Jimmy Wilde and Jack Dempsey.

Three champions went back into the ring after remaining idle for an average of about two years or more, and two of them suffered the penalty of losing their titles.

Kilbane and Wilde were knocked out and Dempsey, while he retained his championship against Tommy Gibbons, lost a lot of prestige.

Kilbane blames the loss of the featherweight championship to Engene Criqui on his long absence from the ring.

"I always watch the feet of my opponent and I knew that Criqui was starting a right-hand punch that proved to be the knockout. I saw it coming, but I felt positive that I was at least a foot out of range. I misjudged the distance and it hit me right on the jaw and knocked me out," Kilbane said.

"Had I boxed oftener and kept my eye tuned up for distance I could have avoided that punch," he said.

• • •

Jimmy Wilde, game little fighter and one of the best champions, remained out of the ring too long. He was knocked out by Pancho Villa and he lost the world's flyweight championship. He did not fight for two years after he was knocked out by Pete Herman in London, and time sapped all his punch and his resistance.

• • •

After Tommy Gibbons had stayed fifteen rounds with him in Shelby, Montana, Jack Dempsey replied to a question asking for an explanation of his rather poor showing:

"There was nothing the matter with me, only I haven't been fighting enough."

The champion admitted that he didn't win by a knockout because: "I couldn't get a good shot at him."

Gibbons is one of the finest boxers in the world and he is a hard target for any fighter to find, but the Dempsey of Toledo and Jersey City would have crashed through the weaker Gibbons in fifteen rounds if the champion's timing and judgment of distance had not been thrown way off by lack of work.

Dempsey missed three punches for every one that he landed on Gibbons and had it not been for rules which permitted him to use everything but the ring-posts and had it not been for a referee who would not keep him away from the ragged edge of rules, Dempsey's showing would have been most ridiculous.

• • •

"I'm going to fight from now on. If there are opponents for me, I will not allow big purse demands to interfere with the promotion of the fights. It is better to have two or three smaller purse fights and keep in fighting shape than to have one big shot every two years and get out of form," Dempsey said after the fight.

Johnny Wilson will have the same problem to face when he goes to defend his middleweight championship the next time and unless Mickey Walker shows more ambition he will have trouble when he finally decides to give a good welterweight a shot at his championship.

• • •

Tommy Gibbons had his big advantage over Dempsey in that he kept busy in the two years that the champion was idle. Gibbons has engaged in over thirty fights while Dempsey was doing most of his work on the stage. The results were apparent. Gibbons never missed when he found an opening, and Dempsey was short and over all the time.

Firpo, if he meets Dempsey soon, will have almost the same advantage. The South American is keeping himself busy mixing up soft ones with hard ones, and although he may not be able to pick up anything in the gymnasium, he cannot forget the lessons that he learns in the ring.

Dempsey, however, is bound to be better in his next fight that he was against Gibbons. Fifteen hard rounds at Shelby should be the very thing to get the champion back on edge, and if he fights on Labor Day, which seems certain, the crowd will see a Dempsey who should be like he was against Willard and Carpentier.

• • •

Johnny Dundee's success in the ring was due in large part to the frequence with which he put on the gloves. He was smart enough not to burn himself out, as he knew just how much work he needed and he managed to get it. Dundee never had any big shots, but he fought oftener for smaller purses, and he is as well fixed financially as any fighter in the business.

Do You Know?

Q. Is it considered proper for a referee to walk between two boxers when he is breaking them? W.G.F.

A. There is no rule in this country covering the practice but the best referees only order the boxers to break or tap them on the shoulders. A referee in stepping between can give an advantage to a boxer that he might favor by blocking the opponent. In England the referees are stationed outside the ring.

Q. Was there any doubt that Johnny Kilbane might have gotten up after he was floored by Criqui F.M.

A. Kilbane is the only one who knows how he felt after receiving what proved to be the knockout punch. Kilbane choked a sceptic at Shelby who insinuated that he took a flop and friends had to pull him off. Most of the writers at the ringside thought that Kilbane could not get up as he as he tried and fell back.

The smaller boats will race shortly after the nish of the motor boat races.

SHOEMEN TROUNCE McLAUGHLIN TEAM

The Shoemen trimmed Stubby Barform although their support wavered at School last night in a soft ball game by a score of 14-6. It was a good game all through but it was evident that the Shoemen had the bulge on their less-

Both the spectators and players had bunched their hits in the second and pushed six runs across which practically cinched the game.

The features of the game was a home run by Bill Nesbitt and spectacular fielding on the part of Amos Moyse. Leslie and Barrett as battery for the [illegible] were in excellent form although their suport wavered at times.

McLaughlin's ran out of gas several times and had to send for relief.

Both the spectators and players had a barrel of fun and will be back for more.

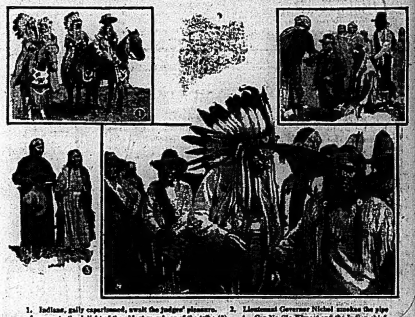
Indians Celebrate Opening Banff-Windermere Road



1. Indians, gaily caparisoned, await the judges' pleasure. 2. Lieutenant Governor Nichol smokes the pipe of peace—to the delight of the oldest members of the tribe (3). 4. Car-No-Sic-Klmeet and the Indian chief.

THE Indian, though reticent and undemonstrative, is ever ready to show his appreciation of the fact that the pale face is a friend, a brother to him. More often than not, he takes advantage of his fetedays to show this appreciation and good-will in simple ceremonies which honor the white man by bestowing upon him the name of one of their own, and a seat in their family and council circles.

The opening of the Banff-Windermere Motor Highway on June 30th occasioned the gathering of a large number of Kootenay Indians from various reserves, at Invermere, B.C. Here they entertained and were entertained by a host of visitors to the district who, having attended the opening ceremonies were easily induced by the glories of the country to stay for a few days. On this occasion the Kootenays honored Lieutenant Governor W. C. Nichol of B.C., who had officiated, with Lieutenant Governor Brett of Alberta, at the opening, by making him an honorary chief of their tribe. Robert Randolph Bruce, a leader in Windermere and Kootenay development was also asked to enter the circle, and after the smoking of the ceremonial pipe and listening to the liturgy in the Kootenay language, was dressed in all the panoply of power, head-dress and beaded clothes, and accepted into the tribe as full chieftain, being given the name of Car-No-Sic-Klmeet, which signifies "Red Sky", after a famous council chief of the tribe who has long since passed away. Mr. Bruce expressed his pleasure in a largesse of tobacco and a gift of a one-hundred dollar bank note for the celebration.

This being over the sports were resumed and prizes were awarded to the best-costumed Indian on foot, the best costumed squaw, the best caparisoned Indian on horseback, and to others for neatness of tepees and the best travois and papoose in baby trap, and for their demonstrated skill in athletic sports.

Light, airy strap and open-work patterns will predominate in women's footwear for the early fall, shoe designers are predicting, and while black as a color will be freely worn, beige, thrush, hazel, otter, Congo, log cabin and autumn brown will be shown as a necessary blend or contrasting with the prevailing shade of gowns.

Black and brown satins will be displayed prominently in both afternoon and evening wear and the solid gold and silver bullion brocades will be in form for formal functions. Street shoes will be of similar style and color with lower heels and frequently of solid leather.

In fashion and evening footwear toes will be medium round in shape. Heels will vary between the baby louis and two and an eighth inch in height. Conservative footwear will follow the usual trend. Colors will be largely black, tan and brown and the general detail, except for a tendency toward broader and fuller toes, will be unchanged.

Dreco a Big Help to Henry Titus of 275 Parvis Street Toronto, Who Now Finds Work a Pleasure. His Wife Also Taking it.

Another Toronto citizen has found that Dreco amply lives up to all claims made for it as a reliable corrective for digestive complaints. Let him tell you how this famous remedy helped restore his health and strength.

'My kidneys had troubled me for a long time," says Mr. Titus. I had terrible pains across my back at times and could hardly stay at my work. My stomach was in bad shape, too. Everything I ate seemed to sour and form gas, causing pains in my stomach and headaches. My joints and muscles ached with rheumatism and my head, nose and throat were stopped with catarrh which, however, is now clearing away. I felt weak and tired in the mornings and by night was all worn out.

'Now, however, things are different. My bowels are regular and I eat and sleep much better and feel much stronger and am not tired out when night comes. Have gained five pounds and don't mind a good hard day's work.

"My wife is also taking Dreco as she has been in poor health for some time and I have recommended it to many of my friends who have attained good results. Dreco is the best medicine I have ever taken."

Dreco acts on stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels in a natural way. The juices of herbs, roots, bark and leaves from which it is scientifically prepared speedily restore these vital organs to proper functioning and the whole system benefits. Dreco is safe and reliable and contains no mercury potash or habit forming drugs or any other harmful ingredient.

First Water Wagon Now in Museum

Madison, Wis., July 27 (United Press).—The original "water wagon" has been saved from dusty oblivion.

The ancient surrey, side lights, canopy top and all, in which Frances Willard used to ride about the middle west, leaving in her wake the first spotless white badges of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, now rests in the museum of the Wisconsin Historical Society.

It was presented by members of the Beloit, Wis., W.C.T.U. There was no crash of frothing wine bottles on its dusty sides. Anna Gordon, president of the world W.C.T.U., and Miss Willard's ables companion on the crusades in the old surrey, spoke briefly of the life of its owner, the first woman to make a stand for prohibition.

This is not the first buggy belonging to Frances Willard to be discovered. There have been many Charles A. Brown, curator of the museum, has placed the stamp of authority on this one, however. He has a photograph of Miss Willard driving on an Evanston street. The rakish lilt of the top is unmistakable, Brown says.

The carriage will rest beside another distinguished equippage in the halls of the museum. The coach in which Daniel Webster took his afternoon drive will be its companion-piece.

PATRICIA BRENT SPINSTER

ANONYMOUS

"He's a dear!" murmured Patricia half to herself.

"If he were in love he would never permit pride to disguise it."

Patricia glanced up at Elton: but he was engaged in examining the end of his cigarette.

"He would credit the other person with the same sincerity as himself," continued Elton. "The biggest rogue respects an honest man, that is why we, who are always trying to disguise our emotions, admire Mr. Triggs, who would just as soon wear a red beard and false eyebrows as seek to convey a false impression."

Patricia found herself wondering why Elton had selected this topic. She was conscious that it was not due to chance.

"Is it worth it?" Elton's remark, half command, half question, seemed to stab through her thoughts.

She looked up at him, her eyes a little widened with surprise.

"Is what worth?" she enquired.

"I was just wondering," said Elton, "if the Triggses are not very wise in eating onions and not bothering about what the world will think."

"Eating onions!" cried Patricia.

"My medical board is on Tuesday up North," said Elton, "and I shall hope to get back to France. You see things in a truer perspective when you're leaving town under such conditions."

Patricia was silent for some time. Elton's remarks sometimes wanted thinking out.

"You think we should take happiness where we can find it?" she asked.

"Well! I think we are too much inclined to render unto Caesar the things which are God's," he replied gravely.

"Do you appreciate that you are talking in parables?" said Patricia.

"That is because I do not posses Mr. Triggs's golden gift of directness."

Suddenly Patricia glanced at her watch. "Why, it's five minutes to three!" she cried. "I had no idea it was so late."

"I promised to run round to say good-bye to Peter at three," Elton remarked casually, as he passed through the lounge.

"Good-bye!" cried Patricia in surprise.

"He is throwing up his staff appointment, and has applied to rejoin his regiment in France."

For a moment Patricia stopped dead, then with a great effort she passed through the revolving door into the sunlight. Her knees seemed strangely shaky, and she felt thankful when she saw the porter hail a taxi. Elton handed her in and closed the door.

"Galvin House?" he interrogated.

"When does he go?" asked Patricia in a voice that she could not keep even in tone.

"As soon as the War Office approves," said Elton.

"Does Lady Tanagra know?" she asked.

"No, Peter will not tell her until everything is settled," he replied.

As the taxi sped westwards Patricia was conscious that some strange change had come over ehr. She had the feeling that follows a long bout of weeping. Peter was going away! Suddenly everything was changed! Everything was explained! She must see him! Prevent him from going back to France! He was going because of her! He would be killed and it would be her fault.

Arrived at Galvin House she went straight to her room. For two hours she lay on her bed, her mind in a turmoil, her head feeling as if it were being compressed into a mould too small for it. No matter how she strove to control them, her thoughts inevitably returned to the phrase, "Peter is going to France."

Unknown to herself, she was fighting a great fight with her pride. She must see him, but how? If she telephoned it would be an unconditional surrender. She could never respect herself again. "When you are in love you take pleasure in trampling your pride underfoot." The phrase persisted in obtruding itself. Where had she heard it? What was pride? she asked herself. One might be very lonely with pride as one's sole companion. What would Mr. Triggs say? She could see his forehead corrugated with trying to understand what pride had to do with love. Even Elton self-restrained, almost self-sufficient, admitted that Mr. Triggs was right.

If she let Peter go? A year hence, a month perhaps, she might have lost him. Of what use would her pride be then? She had not known before; but now she knew how much Peter meant to her. Since he had come into her life everything had changed, and she had grown discontented with the things that, hitherto, she had tacitly accepted as her portion.

"You're fretting, me dear!" Mr. Triggs's remark came back to her. She recalled how indignant she had been. Why? Because it was true. She had been cross. She remembered the old man's anxiety lest he had offended her. She almost smiled as she recalled his clumsy effort to explain away his remark.

She had heard someone knock gently at her door, once, twice, three times. She made no response. Then Gustave's voice whispered, "Tea is served in the loaunge, mees." She heard him creep away with clumsy stealth. There was a sweet-natured creature. He could never disguise an emotion. He had come upstairs during the raid, though in obvious terror in order to save her. Mr. Triggs, Gustave, Elton, all were against her. She knew that in some subtle way they were working to fight her pride.

For some time longer she lay, then suddenly she sprang up. First she bathed her face, then undid her hair, finally she changed her frock and powdered her nose.

STILL MORE ABOUT "GAS"

In a former article, I stated that many people who thought they had indigestion or some serious condition of the stomach because they were belching gas so frequently, were simply expelling air from the stomach that had been swallowed.

This "swallowed" gas is without odor of any kind.

I have advised from time to time that a little "roughage" in the food like turnips, parsnips, carrots, cabbage, and spinach would be sufficient to slightly irritate the intestine and cause the contents to move along, thus preventing constipation. I have likewise advised thorough chewing of this food so as to break everything up as fine as possible to make things easier of digestion. Now there is just this to be said about the rough foods that if not well digested there is bound to be considerable gas formation and consequent distress.

It is found that the covering of the starch granule in the vegetable is not destroyed, and so the starch goes through the small intestine undigested. This means considerable gas formation.

Now the formation of gas is a normal condition, and if you are in good health the blood as it circulates gathers this up, takes it to the lungs, and you breathe it out as part of the waste of the body. However, if your circulation is a little slow, you are "run down" in health generally, everything about that body of yours will be working just a little below normal. Your stomach action will be slower, your digestive action in small intestine will be weaker, your power to throw off waste matter will likewise be below normal.

So the advice I want to give you just here is this:

Raw foods are excellent in many ways, but if you are bothered with excessive gas formation due to a generally lowered body condition with poor circulation, it would be well to have your vegetables thoroughly cooked, so that your digestive juices would have an easier time in getting at the granules of food.

ENGLAND'S BEST POLICY IS TO LET FRANCE AND GERMANY GO THE LIMIT, SAYS MASON

By J. W. T. MASON.

(Written for the United Press)

New York, July 31 (United Press).—Great Britain is being forced into a position where she will have to give the continent of Europe to France to play with. This is what France wants believing that once she is mistress of the destinies of the Continental nations west of Russia, she will be able to regain her position as a first-class power.

Nothing will satisfy the French people but the practical test of experience. A strong party in Great Britain believes France is entitled to test out her own theory by direct action and there is every probability that Premier Baldwin will have to sit back and allow the French and German governments to fight it out in a clear ring.

DOES NOT MEAN WAR

This does not mean another war. Germany will not be able to wage a fresh conflict on the battlefields for twenty years at least. But the Ruhr struggle is a contest of endurance and morale, and the only way France and Germany can get a satisfactory outcome is for others to let the fight go until one or both contestants cries enough.

It is hard for outside nations, whose prosperity is largely dependent on international trade, to sit idly by and watch the French and the Germans interfere with the normal restoration of world commerce. But there is little that can be done effectively while both nations are so bitterly hostile to each other.

France will not give up her Ruhr policy under all the threats of the outside nations, because she realizes the threats cannot be supported by serious action. France will change her policy only when it is to her advantage to do so, or if she becomes convinced that she cannot win by present methods. There is absolutely no realization in France at the present moment that the Poincare policy is a failure. Instead, the French believe it is succeeding—slowly but, nevertheless, persisently.

PROLONGING THE DEADLOCK

The French further believe that constant criticism of France's attitude by France's former friends is prolonging the difficulties of the situation by encouraging the Germans to resist. The opposite viewpoint is that other nations are suffering intensely through unemployment and low prices for surplus agricultural products on account of the Franco-German interference with international trade. But the French say this is purely a temporary situation while they themselves are now fighting for a permanent position as a first-class power.

If France is left to herself, either to sink or swim, the end will probably be a compromise with the Germans, negotiated exclusively by the French and the Germans themselves.

The French people are very sensitive under the implication that they have forever lost their position as a firstclass nation and must remain under the sheltering wings of America and Great Britain. France is struggling to destroy this belief and to recover her own self respect.

Withdrawal by Great Britain for the time being from continental affairs, as America has withdrawn, will be the best policy to hasten the end of the Ruhr impasse. France and Germany cannot forever glare at each other there, if the rest of the world ceases to take an outward interest in the face-making competition. Once the French and Germans realise they are attracting no attention to themselves, they are the more likely to cease chattering and climb down to a settlement.

INQUIRE INTO RATES.

Ottawa, July 31.—The board of railway commissioners will hold a session at North Sydney, N. S., on the morning of Thursday, August 9. The matter to come up will be the complaint of the boards of trade of Sydney and North Sydney re freight rates from Ontario points.

SPRING IN HOLLAND.

Beautiful Time In Country Where Bulbs Come From.

"To spring visitors," one cannot help insisting on the bulbs. They rather insist on themselves, for the train from Hook to Amsterdam runs through the thick of the bulb country," says Miss Agnes M. Miall in the Sunday at Home.

"You would scarcely guess it, when the train starts speeding through the monotony of the flat, stream-divided meadows. They are meadows so green, so unnaturally green, I had almost said, thanks to the damp of this hollowland where the water is higher than the soil, that we can compare them to nothing else than the emerald stands of Noah's Ark animals. But Noah never tended his cattle, though they were the last pair left in the world, in so careful a fashion as the thrifty Dutch farmers provide for the black and white cows in their fields. Mrs. and Miss Cow are slightly ludicrous in their neat overcoats of sacking to protect against possible spring chills!

"Nectar and Ambrosia! What is that sweetness drifting heavily through the open window, that sense that all the perfume in the world has suddenly been loosed in our little compartment? 'The hyacinths!' exclaims the stout Dutch burgher in the seat opposite, in his excellent if strongly accented English. We thrust our heads out of window, gazing, gazing.

"We are in Wonderland! Surge after surge of color floods to meet the train. All around us flowerland blooms, in deep blue, in tenderest apricot, in pink, in flame, in sunshine-yellow. Away and away the varied beds stretch, for the Dutch bulbs grow as English wheat grows, by the acre, but pruned to a meticulous tidiness alien to our fields. Hundreds and thousands of neat little squares of bloom, divided by tiny paths where the workers tread to tend their growths.

"It is one vast living chessboard—the most beautiful chessboard in the world. There are tulips that shame the rainbow in their mauves and pinks and yellows; golden nodding daffodils swaying in the breeze; graceful, deep-eyed narcissi; the cool blue and glowing crimson of the hyacinths.

"Miles and miles—how can there be so many flowers in the world? We, who buy tulips meagrely in London at three-and-six a dozen, yearn to leap into the middle of these orderly storehouses and recklessly pull great armfuls of the lovely spring flowers to hug to our hearts."

Piano Landing-Stage.

There is a grand piano lying in the slime of a port in Persia, almost as famous as that derelict Ford motorcar at Teeheran over which the Foreign Office and War Office have squabbled for years.

Its history goes back to some forgotten day in the distant past. The piano arrived on board a steamer. It was put on a shallow lighter for conveyance ashore, but some clumsy lightermen, endeavoring to lift it, contrived to drop it in the mud.

There was a heated argument over whose duty it was to rescue the piano from its slimy bed. The argument failed to reach any definite conclusion, so the piano still lies there.

Even a half-drowned piano has its uses, however, and this one is now an appreciated feature of the port at which it lies. All distinguished arrivals have the privilege of using the top of the piano as a landing-stage.

It is an honor jealously reserved for special visitors, and the man who can claim the distinction of landing in Persia by way of the piano-top is sure of the respect and homage of the whole population.

Am Dey a Hell?

The newly appointed pastor of a colored church faced a packed audience when he arose to deliver his sermon on this burning question: "Is There a Hell?"

"Brederen," he said, "de Lord made de world round like a ball."

"Amen," cried the congregation.

"And de Lord made two axles for de world to go round on, and He put one axle at de north pole and one axle at de souf pole."

"Amen," agreed the congregation.

"And de Lord put a lot of oil and axle grease in de centre of de world so as to keep de axles greased and oiled."

"Amen," said the congregation.

"And den a lot of sinners dig wells in Pennsylvania and steal de Lord's oil and grease. And dey dig wells in Kentucky, Louisiana, Oklahama and Texas, and in Mexico and Russia, and steal de Lord's oil and grease."

"And some day dey will have all of de Lord's oil and grease, and dem two axles is gonna git hot. And den, dat will be hell, brederen, dat will be hell!"

Columbus' Englishman.

The gift to Great Britain by the Spanish Government of a model of the Santa Maria, in which Columbus discovered America, recalls the little known fact that the vessel had an Englishman among her crew when she made her immortal voyage. In the list of the ship's company appears the entry, "Tallarte de Lajes (Ingles)," and Sir Clements Markham suggests that Talarte being the Spanish form of Allard or Alard, the man was probably a connection of the famous sea-faring family of Alard, of Winchelsea, another member of which, Gervase Alard, became the first English admiral in 1306. An Irishman also was numbered among the crew, entered simply as "William of Galway."

The largest wireless station in the world—at St. Assisi, about twenty-seven miles from Paris—was recently opened for traffic. The station is equipped with seventeen masts, each 800 feet high. Messages sent out experimentally have already been received in China and Argentina.

SWISS HOUSEWIVES.

Training in the Work Will Become Compulsory.

"Compulsory training in housewifery will soon become legal in some Swiss cantons," writes Miss Edith Sellers in the Cornhill Magazine.

"According to the proposed measure, every normal Swiss girl, no matter what her position in society, whether rich or poor, must, before she is twenty, give up at least one year of her life to fitting herself to be a good wife and mother, if she marries, a useful member of society, whether she marries or not. During that year, which must not begin until she has completed her elementary education, she must go regularly to a Public Housewifery School, as a daily pupil if her parents can afford to let her live at home. If for that they are too poor, she must live in the school; and pay, so far as she can, for her board and lodgings by helping, out of school hours, with the housework there. The schools are to be free for all classes alike, the expense they entail being defrayed out of the joint contributions of the state, the cantons, and the communes.

"It has been brought home to most of the Swiss that it would be for the good of Switzerland if every girl was a skilful housewife. A skilful housewife, therefore, every Swiss girl must so far as possible be made, they hold. It is in fact, or so it seems to me, the wish of the average man and woman in Switzerland that the training of girls in housewifery should be universal; and, if it cannot be universal without being compulsory, well—that it should also be compulsory. In England girls are much more sorely in need of training in housewifery than they are in Switzerland, where the Women's Society for Public Welfare has been striving hard to have them taught for years past. Here, therefore, universal training would bring about even greater changes for the better than it will there. And, fortunately, the training might be secured here without every girl being forced to go to a housewifery school.

"If every girl knew that, when she was eighteen, she must go there for a whole year, unless she had passed an examination in the practice of all that concerns housewifery, very many girls would already be good housewives when they reached that age. As for those who were not, they would have to go to the school, of course, to their own great benefit, as well as the benefit of their kith and kin."

France's Sherlock Holmes.

The best-known detective in France at the present time is Edmond Bayle, a chemist, whose laboratory, is in the Palais de Justice in Paris.

He is chief of the technical bureau of the Paris police department, and he has met with such success that the more uneducated criminals look upon him as a dabbler in magic.

Dr. Bayle does not work on the British Sherlock Holmes lines. He pays no attention to the personality or psychology of the criminal, but confines himself to material things.

His workshop is equipped in accordance with this, and the numerous pieces of apparatus are designed for special purposes, such as examining forged money, the detection of bloodstains, and, in fact, the analysis of anything and everything that is picked up by those on the trail of a criminal.

In his records are registered the names of over eight million persons who have ever been involved in crime of any sort, and full particulars of any one of them can be produced at a moment's notice.

This extraordinary man has a theory that there is no crime that cannot be detected, and that every criminal, however clever, leaves traces behind him.

Up-to-Date Advertising.

As the late party-goer opened the door he saw a man wearing a burglar's mask kneeling before the safe. The next moment the man had turned and placed a revolver at the other's head.

"Throw up your hands," cried the intruder.

With the meekness of a lamb and the speed of an express train, he obeyed.

"You understand," remarked the man, pleasantly, "that I can, in the present circumstances, loot the premises at my pleasure."

"I do."

"You realize that you are at my mercy?"

"I do."

"Well, then," cried the masked man, "you will be interested to know that I got in through your dining room window without the slightest difficulty. Had it been equipped with Popson's patent safety burglar alarms this could not have happened. Installed complete with battery, $25. Allow me to hand you a circular and to wish you the best of good evenings and all the pleasures of the season."

Noted Spanish Warrior.

The Cid (Rodriguez Diaz di Divar) was a celebrated Spanish warrior, who flourished between the years 1030 and 1099. He was the hero of Castille; born at Burgos, and distinguished himself in the Civil Wars under the reigns of Ferdinand, Alphonso VI. (of Leon and Castille), and Sancho II., and afterwards against the Moors. His wife was Ximena, daughter of Count Lozano de Gormas. His son, Diego Rodrigues, died young; and he had two daughters, Elvia and Sol.

A Substitute for Tea.

To a limited extent people of the southern states of America have been familiar with cassena as a substitute for tea. The shrub grows wild and abundantly from Virginia to Texas. The Bureau of Chemistry at Washington has discovered a way of curing cassena leaves so that they make a "delightful beverage," and it believes that the laboratory experiments can be repeated on a commercial scale.

BONES OF CZAR IN CHINA.

Spirited Past Sentries and Taken to Legation in Peking.

The bones of the former czar of Russia, and those of his family, executed by Bolsheviki, were spirited past "Red" sentries in Siberia by an American envoy two years ago and now repose in the old Russian legation in Peking.

This was the information given out by Arthur E. White, Denver, who has just returned from a tour of the Orient. White said he knew nothing of the report that the czarevitch and Duke Michael are still living.

White, who is the son of an Arvada (Colo.) banker, said he received his information from U.S. Consul Harris at Singapore. Harris, according to White's story, is the man who brought the bones into China.

"Mr. Harris told me of being at Ekaterinberg, Siberia, the scene of the former czar's execution, when he was American envoy to the Kolchak government," said White.

"A British army officer showed him a pit near a house where the czar, the czarina and their five children had been confined. This pit, so Harris told me, contained the bones of the Russian royal family, the British officer had explained.

"Harris said the officer requested him to convey the bones to the British embassy in Peking, whence they were to be taken to the old Russian imperial embassy, to await a royal burial.

"Harris told me," continued White, "that the British officer located the Bolsheviki captain of the firing squad which executed the members of the Russian royal family and obtained a deposition from him to the effect that the execution took place in the dead of night, at a time when the "Red" garrison at Ekaterinberg feared the town would be captured by the Czechoslovakian army."

White said Harris told him that his Bolshevist captain, according to the deposition, himself shot the czar.

"Harris said he shovelled the bones into a chest and loaded them into an American Red Cross train leaving Siberia. The chest passed safely through, although Bolshevist officers searched the train several times on the trip, Harris told me. The bones finally were stored in the Russian legation."

Word of Unknown Origin.

From time to time there has been considerable dispute concerning the origin of the word "Mephistopheles." Some very bizarre explanations had been propounded before the time of Goethe, who was himself forced to own to the musician, Zulter, in a letter of November 20, 1829:

"I cannot give any definite answer to the question, 'Whence comes the name 'Mephistopheles?' "

According to one theory it was a hybrid Graeco-Hebraic formation of mephis and tophel (the liar); according to another its etymology was entirely Greek—very dubious Greek—mephostophilos, "he who does not love the light."

Goethe had a trick of using the abbreviated form, "Mephisto," when it suited the exigencies of his meter. It may be remembered that this particular irritated Schopenhauer, who wrote in his pamphlet, "On the Murder of the German Language."

"The foolish desire for brevity goes so far as to cut off even the devil's tail by writing 'Mephisto' for 'Mephistopheles.' "

Pastorals.

Pastorals literature must not be confounded with that which has for its subject the lives, the ideas, and the emotions of simple and unsophisticated mankind, far from the centres of our complex civilization. The two may be in their origin related, and they occasionally, as it were, stretch out feelers towards one another, but the pastoral or tradition lies in its essence as far from the human document of humble life as from—a volume of pastoral theology. Thus the shepherds of pastoral are primarily and distinctively shepherds; they are not mere rustics engaged in sheepcraft as one out of many of the employments of mankind. As soon as the natural shepherd-life had found an objective setting in conscious artistic literature, it was felt that there was, after all, a difference between hoeing turnips and pasturing sheep; that the one was capable of a particular literary treatment which the other was not.—W. W. Greg.

When Mammoths Roamed the Land.

Mastodons and woolly mammoths were once as thick in New York as bison were on the western plains a century ago, according to Dr. Sherman C. Bishop, zoologist of the state museum. Although the mammoths were more closely related to the elephants, the only surviving members of the family, they were the first to become extinct and probably passed off the scene while the mastodons were still thriving. Skeletons of mastodons, more or less complete, and some of them suitable for museum mounting, have been found in about 100 localities in the state, the last one at Temple Hill, Orange county, in 1921. The first was found in Columbia county, not far from Albany, in 1705. These huge mammals are believed to have flourished about the end of the last glacial period, some 20,000 years ago. Their skeletons are found generally in the marsh lands of those early days.

Seek Water With Magic Virtues.

The Diamond mountains of Korea are reached only by a hard road, yet thousands of pilgrims each year climb to their summits. In deep depressions in the granite peaks are pools of water, sacred water with magic virtues. He who drinks it is protected against sickness and evil. He who washes in it is cleansed of moral impurities as well as stains of travel. In some of the pools still linger the terrible dragons of olden times. So the Buddhist monks say for in Korea the austere faith of Gautama is embroidered with the imaginings of the people.

Steel Plant is Closed by Blasts

Sydney, N.S., July 31.—Investigation of several loud reports heard in the city at an early hour yesterday revealed sensational developments in the local steel situation. Both water lines to the B. E. S. Co. steel plant from the reservoirs at Sydney River and Grand Lake were blown up by high explosive bombs in the hands of desperadoes.

As a result the supply of water to the huge plant was cut off absolutely and a dangerous situation was created. Steam engines requiring a vast amount of water continually had to be stopped immediately and the whole plant shut down.

BANDITS KILL 1, TAKE $70,126

Scranton, Pa., July 31.—One man was killed and four other persons were wounded in a hold-up of a Laurel line car near Moosic by seven bandits who escaped with two satchels containing $70,126. The money was to be used in paying anthracite mine workers at two collieries.

Edward Murphy, a passenger, was shot and instantly killed; P. J. Derkin and Archie Hensall, paymaster, of the West End Coal Company, of Shickshinney, Pa., were seriously wounded; Phil Scribner, and an unidentified woman also were shot, but less seriously wounded.

SEEKS TO INTERNE ABBE IN ASYLUM

Montreal, Que., July 31.—Within a few days, rumor has it, Adelard Tetreault, curator of Abbe Delorme, will petition the lieutenant-governor to intern the abbe in an asylum. This is the intended move of the curator in the famous murder case, it was learned from officials sources.

The lieutenant-governor will be approached directly with a petition to have Delorme examined by alienists, it is stated. This is in virture of, the power vested in the chief representative of the crown in the province, who has jurisdiction over those in jails and asylums.

EXHIBIT PROJECT WELL SUPPORTED

A strong and united effort is being made by Belleville manufacturers to make the collective exhibit of factory products from this city one of the outstanding features of the coming Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto.

Mr. N. V. Hansplant, assistant general manager and secretary of the exhibition, spent two days in Belleville last week getting space contracts signed and arranging a general display scheme that will be a credit to all concerned.

Among those who have signified their intention of taking part in the exhibit and the space taken by each, are:

City of Belleville, 300 feet.

Belleville Electric and Stampings, Ltd.—100 feet.

Springer Lock Manufacturing Co.—150 feet.

Deacon Shirt Co.—200 feet.

Baby Shoe Co.—100 feet.

Tiger Tire and Rubber Co., Ltd.—200 feet.

St. Charles Motorbus Co.—100 feet.

Natural Tread Shoes, Ltd.—150 feet.

Canadian Industrial Alcohol Co., Ltd.—150 feet.

A. S. Richardson Co., Ltd.—250 feet.

Belleville Cheese Board—200 feet.

Among those who are likely to join in the exhibit but who are giving the matter further consideration, are:

National Castings, Ltd., Grand Trunk Workshops, the International Burr Co., The Belleville Hardware and Lock Mfg. Co., Elliott Woodworking Machinery Co., The Belleville Sash and Door Co., Bancroft Marbles, Ltd., and The American Optical Co.

Concerning the plans, Industrial Commissioner Herity said:

"Our citizens were all immensely surprised by the remarkable display of Belleville products at the Made-in-Belleville exhibition at the Armouries last October. The wonderful extent and variety of Belleville-made goods were a revelation to all who saw them. The coming collective exhibit at Toronto will occasion similar surpurise among the people of Ontario who have not yet come to regard Belleville as an industrial city.

"The Belleville exhibit will be placed in the north wing of the new Coliseum building, the largest structure on the Exhibition grounds and conveniently located near the eastern main entrance.

"The only other city, aside from Belleville, to make a collective industrial exhibit this year will be the city of Stratford."

VISITS OLD HOME

Mr. A. McIntosh of the Equitable Trust Co., Wall Street, New York City, with his family, motored through the city yesterday, en route to Cobourg for a visit to his old home. It was over twenty years ago that he attended the commercial college here and he found many changes in this city.

The fame of the proposed U.E.L. celebration is evidently spreading, as Mr. McIntosh had heard of it in New York City and cited a case of a former resident of Brockville who purposes coming to Belleville next summer.

DETLOR

We are having ideal weather, except for one day of a drizzling rain, which does not appear to have injured any hay which had been cut down for haying. Grain crops are looking better since the showers and a couple of cool days. We had a light frost which nipped the very tender green of the rapidly growing corn fields, and some potatoes, but in all it might appear we get as good or much better than we give. And if the corn fields continue to grow well there will be much less sacrificing of good stock, as hay generally is an abundant crop this year, and, it is is to be hoped, so much money will not go out of the country for hay and straw feeds as has been during the last several years.

Mr. Lyall Mason of Belleville spent his holidays visiting friends and relatives in the district.

Messrs. C. E. Bishop, A. Bishop and Mr. Jones, who were spending a vacation at Mr. Bishop's cottage, we learn, returned to Belleville, and Mr. Chas. Bishop, jr., Mr. H. Badgely and their friend are back in our district, we presume, Mr. Badgely is cutting the hay on his farm near the Bishop cottage.

Miss Laura Sutton is having her holidays off duty at T. Eaton's, Toronto, and is spending them under the parental roof, Mrs. J. H. Miller.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Hutchinson of Anson, accompanied by Miss E. Smith and Mr. Williams, motored to spend Sunday last with Mrs. Hutchinson's sister and family, Mrs. A. Moore.

Miss K. Belshaw and friend, Mr. White, also spent Sunday at Mr. A. Moore's.

Mr. P. A. Bradshaw and Mr. F. Adams drove to Coe Hill on Sunday last

Mr. W. Rupert of Hillier district has come to Detlor to work as apprentice with Mr. R. Blair, agent at L'Amable station.

Mr. Alex. Barr went to Toronto recently and returned with a new Ford touring car.

Mr. John Turnicliffe is also sporting a new touring car.

A number of citizens are attending the meeting of the commissioners held on Thursday of this week to consider matters relative to rural telephone system.

Misses Edna and Mona Rupnow are visiting their grandmother, Mrs. Smith, their uncles and aunts in Wellington and Hillier, and other friends of different points.

First Pocket Orchestra.

An Hungarian engineer has invented a gramophone no larger than a watch. The inventor's slogan is "Carry your orchestra in your vest pocket."

The invention is described as a practical instrument capable of producing jazz, waltzs, and one-steps.

The milkiphone, as it is called, winds like a watch and has a speed regulator. There is room inside for ten plates, giving a repertoire of twenty selections.

In the other vest pocket one can carry enough music for an all-night session. By placing the instrument on a champagne glass the sound is amplified sufficiently for an ordinary sized ballroom.
